Overview:
This course builds on and the content of the Intermediate Fiction Writing Workshop. By now you are entirely comfortable with the use of elements and concepts of fiction such as Showing and Telling; Characterization; Place; Time; Form, Theme, Dramatic Tension, Plot & Structure as well as Point of View. The aims of this class are to ensure that you write and rewrite two Short Stories that display integrated knowledge of the aforementioned elements of fiction. The greater part of our time will be spent reading published short fiction and writing and critiquing work by members of the workshop. In addition, the purpose of this course is to encourage you to begin living the life of a writer by cultivating attentiveness to the discipline of writing, to language, to literature, and to self and other. By the end of the class you will have produced two short stories that are as close to complete as you are, at this point, able to achieve.

Literary Fiction:
In this class we read, write, discuss and revise literary fiction. Literary fiction aims to disclose aspects of experience in a moving and artful way. Literary fiction strives for seamless mimesis while simultaneously making creative and aesthetically appropriate use of various aspects of storytelling, all through the tool of language. For the purposes of this class you cannot write so-called genre fiction, that is, fantasy, science fiction, mystery, children’s or young adult fiction, and so on.

Work Load:
While we read and discuss published work by a number of writers, much of our time will be invested in critiquing your own writing. You will write two short stories (with a 3500 word minimum word count, a 5500 word maximum word count) that will be critiqued twice during the semester. In the event of individual participants not producing the quality of writing or re-writing I expect, I reserve the right to request that you write a third short story in order to pass the class. If an earlier draft of your story is clearly not working or seems fatally flawed, I also reserve the right to request that you begin an entirely new project. In the Senior Workshop we will not invest every student’s work with the same amount of workshop time; the workshop aims to enhance learning and writing and as such our time will be invested in stories or in elements of stories that offer us the most for useful reflection. If your story or parts of it are not up to standard your work will not be workshopped.

Assignments:
You will turn in your own original work. All work must be typed in twelve point, New Century Schoolbook font and double spaced with page numbers. Stories should contain the writer’s name. All work must be handed in on time. Late assignments will be disqualified from submission and will not be graded unless you have an advance agreement with me. However, as this is a workshop that depends entirely on your dependable participation while also testing and developing your ability to write and produce text on deadline, it is unlikely that I will allow assignments to be handed in beyond deadline. The deadline for posting stories on-line (both by email and placed in my folder on the file-serve) is Sunday at noon preceding the Thursday of your workshop.

Final Portfolio:
At the end of the semester you hand in a final portfolio. The Portfolio will comprise the final versions of both your stories. I will not return your portfolio to you unless you specify to me, in writing, that you will collect it during the first two weeks of the following semester. Students who wish to discuss their portfolios the following semester are encouraged to do so, by making an appointment to see me.

Quizzes, Tests & Exams:
There are no scheduled quizzes, tests or exams for this class. However, if class discussion lags or if, in my opinion, work is not up to scratch, I am very likely to include any of these methods of assessment. Scores for any such unscheduled assessment will be included in your participation grade. Should you miss any such tests for whatever reason, it is your responsibility to reschedule with me.

Attendance:
You are allowed three excused absences. Absences are not excused unless you have offered me a reasonable motivation such as illness, disease or disaster before class. After three unexcused absences your grade will automatically go down by one third of a letter, for example, from a B+ to a B. Being late for workshop will be severely frowned upon. Three late arrivals will constitute an absence.

The Hours of Writing:
This course requires a substantial amount of reading and writing. I suggest you will have to do at least two hours of writing per day in addition to extensive reading in order to complete the course with a reasonable grade.

Classroom Language and Culture:
This is a creative writing space. As such, imagination and creativity must be celebrated. This means we will at times be working with provocative material, subject matter and language that may be uncomfortable to some of us. As a teacher I will aim to maintain a safe and respectful space while also at times making use of provocative remarks and language aimed at stimulating debate, inquiry and creativity. You are free to come and discuss the classroom culture with me if you are experiencing problems in this regard.

Plagiarism:
Work handed in for this class is governed by the Honor Code. All work you hand in during the semester must be entirely your own and produced exclusively for this class. Plagiarism is the act of presenting as one’s own the work done by anyone else. This act defeats the purpose of education and carries severe penalties. The use of anyone else’s ideas or expressions requires giving that person explicit credit. Penalties for plagiarism may include: failing grades for those assignments which were plagiarized; failing grades for the course; suspension from school.

Letters of Recommendation:
Students occasionally request letters from professors to assist them in being selected for graduate schools and/or into careers in later life. You may be unaware of this at present, but a few of you will develop long-term relationships with those who serve as your academic referees. To write an honest, thorough, sincere and appropriate letter of recommendation takes time, effort and focus. In addition to the most basic gesture of respect such as giving your referee ample advance warning and therefore time to compose a meaningful letter and make submissions, you may consider the use of an occasional note of thanks, or, of keeping your referee abreast of the outcomes of whatever you have applied for. As you may be requesting letters for years to come, it may stand you in good stead to keep your referees abreast of major developments in your professional life.

Disabilities:
Rhodes College makes every effort to provide appropriate accommodations for students with documented disabilities. Students may request accommodations by making an appointment to speak to Melissa Butler, the Coordinator of Disability Services. Phone: 843 3944. E-Mail: mbutler@rhodes.edu
