Welcome to the class! Geoffrey Chaucer's prolific body of work offers a fascinating and rewarding introduction to the range of genres and traditions in the medieval world. Through close and careful reading of Chaucer's many and varied writings—all in the original Middle English—we will work to develop proficiency in and appreciation of the language written and spoken in fourteenth-century London. Unit One will be devoted to study of selected Canterbury Tales; in Unit Two, we will read the long narrative romance, Troilus and Criseyde in its entirety; and Unit Three will treat representative works from Chaucer's dream visions and short poetry. Throughout each of these units, we will examine the creative ways in which Chaucer combined tradition and innovation within his poetic compositions and explore Chaucer's engagement with such issues as social class, philosophy, gender, and religion. To help fully contextualize Chaucer's poetry, supplemental readings will include relevant works by Chaucer's influences and contemporaries as well as recent scholarly interpretations of his writings. All assigned readings, including supplemental texts, are included in the Norton Critical Editions that are required for the class. Course requirements include active class participation, a series of papers culminating in a substantial research project, two examinations, oral recitations of Chaucer's poetry, and daily graded assessments.

Course Goals

The sequence of readings and assignments has been designed with the following objectives in mind:

- 1) Gaining a broader understanding and appreciation of intellectual/cultural activity (specifically in relation to medieval England);
- 2) Gaining factual knowledge (terminology, classifications, methods, trends) relating to the study of Middle English language and literature;
- 3) Learning to analyze and critically evaluate ideas, arguments, and points of view (specifically, when writing about Chaucerian literature).

Texts

To the best of my knowledge all of these texts are available at the Rhodes College bookstore. Please notify me as soon as possible if you encounter any problems obtaining these assigned texts. [Note: It will be very important for everyone to have these specific editions. Others cannot substitute.]

- V.A. Kolve and Glending Olson, eds. The Canterbury Tales: Fifteen Tales and the General Prologue. By Geoffrey Chaucer. Norton Critical Edition, 2nd edition. 2005.
- Stephen Barney, ed. Troilus and Criseyde. By Geoffrey Chaucer. Norton Critical Edition. 2006.
- Kathryn Lynch, ed. Dream Visions and Other Poems. By Geoffrey Chaucer. Norton Critical Edition. 2007

Course Requirements

- Papers: 50% (breakdown below)
  - Papers 1-3, 10% each
    - At the beginning of the semester, each student will choose a particular theme or approach that will guide his/her research agenda throughout the semester.
    - Each of our three units will conclude with the submission of a 1,250-word paper on your chosen theme or topic. Each of these papers should offer close textual analysis, demonstrate a solid understanding of current critical scholarship, and develop a clearly articulated and well-supported thesis. In addition, each paper should be submitted with a short cover letter explaining how this assignment will fit into your larger research agenda. (See below.)

- Late papers: For papers 1-3, papers submitted after the beginning of class on the due date but on the same day will be subject to a 5% penalty. Papers submitted more than one day late, but within one week of the original deadline, will be subject to a 10% penalty. Papers submitted more than one week late cannot be accepted unless arrangements have been made ahead of time.
- Final Research Paper, 15%
  - The final research paper of 3000-3,750 words will build on and draw from these earlier papers, offering a carefully integrated and synthesized analysis of your chosen topic across at least three of Chaucer's works. Additional information and requirements regarding the paper will be provided later in the semester.
  - Papers submitted after the beginning of the Final Examination time but within 24 hours will be subject to a 10% penalty. To ensure that grades are submitted on time, late research papers cannot be submitted more than one day after the Final Examination time. Papers submitted more than 24 hours will receive 0 credit. Any special arrangements must be made ahead of time and outside of class.
- Workshop Preparation and Participation, 5%
  - Prior to each paper submission, one full day will be devoted to writing workshops. Preparation might include such activities as draft writing, peer review, or related activities. This component of the grade will also include other paper-related assignments, such as any proposals or progress reports.
- General notes
  - All papers must be submitted in hard copy AND electronically through the Moodle website. Please try not send assignments as attachments through email unless you experience problems with Moodle.
  - Extenuating circumstances: Any special arrangements must be made ahead of time and outside of class.
- Daily Assessments: 20%
  - To help facilitate class comprehension and retention of Chaucer's writings, most days (except for test dates, workshop days, and days on which papers are due) students will be asked to complete in-class or online assessments, addressing such skills as language competence in Middle English, reading comprehension of Chaucer's narratives, and brief analysis of selected passages. While the specific format and focus will vary from day to day, assessments will always address only the readings for that particular day and will generally require only approximately 5 minutes.
  - Sometimes these will be administered at the beginning of class and other times will need to be completed ahead of time on Moodle. If you miss class, be sure to check the website for any missed instructions. In-class questions will be given at the beginning of class. Students arriving late will not receive extra time unless special arrangements have been made ahead of time and outside of class. Online quizzes will be made available at least 24 ahead of time and will become unavailable 10 minutes before the start of class. Please plan your time accordingly.
  - Because of the logistical problems involved in making up quizzes and in-class activities, two scores will be dropped to allow for occasional illness or emergency. Any special arrangements for extenuating circumstances must be made ahead of time and outside of class.
  - On research showing the long-term effectiveness of daily quizzes on developing "much deeper fluency" in course material, see a 2007 article in the Chronicle of Higher Education, linked through Moodle.
- Examinations: 20% (combined)
  - We will have two examinations (10% each), following Units One and Two. These examinations will include a combination of objective questions, short answer, and essays. Examinations will be designed to test skills in reading, retaining, and interpreting Chaucer's works in their cultural, historical, and literary contexts. Detailed review guides

- will be provided two class periods prior to each exam. By Unit Three, these basic skills should be firmly established and our attention will thus turn toward application of course material in final research projects and oral recitations. See further below.
- Please note that any special arrangements for make-up examinations must be made ahead of time and outside of class. Except in the case of serious illness or other documented emergency, make-up examinations will receive a 20% deduction. No make-up examinations will be administered more than one week after the original exam except in the most dire (and thoroughly documented) situations.
  - Final oral recitation: 5%
    - At the time scheduled for our final examination, the class will meet for a group reading of various Chaucerian texts. Please note that final research papers will also be due by this time and plan accordingly.
  - Participation: 5%
    - Your participation grade will be determined on the basis of your attendance, the quality of your contributions to discussion, your preparation for and participation in class activities, and your completion of any ungraded assignments.
    - Please note that while the course's success will depend largely on class discussion, there are many ways to participate. Those who speak often will not automatically receive higher grades than more quiet students. If you seldom speak in class, you can participate by making more frequent contributions to online forums or contributing more actively in small groups.
    - In all cases, contributions to discussion (in class and online) should demonstrate careful reading of course materials and must be respectful of other students' ideas and points of view. For information on the attendance policy, see below.

Additional Notes

Class preparation: Please read all materials carefully before you come to class. Bring questions about what is difficult or confusing to you. Also come prepared to share your thoughtful insights and responses. It is your responsibility to notify me before classtime of any problems completing readings or assignments. While time spent completing readings and assignments will no doubt vary from student to student and from day to day, you should expect to spend several hours preparing for each hour that you are in class. See helpful tips on time management at <http://www.rhodes.edu/12089.asp>.

Honor code: All work must adhere to the honor code: "As a member of the Rhodes community, I pledge I will not lie, cheat, or steal, and that I will report any such violation that I may witness."

Plagiarism and academic integrity: The Rhodes College Honor Council Constitution defines plagiarism as follows: "Cheating includes plagiarism; specifically, it is the act of using another person's words or ideas and representing them as one's original work. This includes, without limitation, using information from any source without proper reference, getting ideas or words from a classmate's paper, failure to properly punctuate direct quotes, and obtaining a paper from someone else. Ignorance is not an excuse for these violations. It is the student's responsibility to consult the professor, an Honor Council member, or writing handbooks for procedure for properly acknowledging sources." Barret Library offers the following advice for avoiding possible plagiarism (<http://www.rhodes.edu/barret/15554.asp>):

- Acknowledge and cite all sources properly.
- Use quotation marks around words that are not your own.
- Properly introduce and indent longer quotations that are not your own.
- Use footnotes or endnotes to acknowledge another's words or ideas.
- Do not paraphrase too closely.

Please note also that all writing in English 325 must be original work produced specifically for this course. No paper or portion of a paper—even if revised—may receive credit if it has already received or will receive credit in another class. Please ask me or a Writing Center staff member if you have any doubt about even a small portion of a paper that you have produced.

Attendance: As the official Student Handbook explains, Rhodes College “considers interactive engagement with other students and the professor, in a structured setting, to be one of the essential and central components of the academic program. . . . Absenteeism is not to be taken lightly” (<http://www.rhodes.edu/studenthandbook/2176.asp>). Regular attendance is thus expected and counts as a part of your participation grade. Three tardies will be treated as one absence. In addition to the effect of absences on your participation grade, after three unexcused absences, your overall grade may automatically be reduced by 2 percentage points each day, down to 60%. (In other words, a student will not fail on the basis of attendance alone, but poor attendance could theoretically reduce a grade as low as D-.) For example, if your course average at the end of the semester is an 80% and you have 4 unexcused absences, your course grade will be lowered to 78%. I will take roll or distribute a roll sheet at the beginning of each class. I will have a sign-in sheet for late arrivals at the front of the room. Please note that it is your responsibility to sign the sheet if you arrive late in order to avoid recorded absences. Absences and tardies may be excused only if I have been notified ahead of time and outside of class. If you miss class, be sure to check the course website for missed material or assignments. Students whose reasons for absence raise privacy concerns should seek assistance from the Office of Student Affairs: <http://www.rhodes.edu/campuslife/1186.asp>.

Computer problems: Please be aware that computer and printing problems will not serve as an excuse for late assignments. Back up your hard-drive files frequently, and always keep a second hard copy of your assignments.

Special Accommodations: If you require any disability-related accommodations, please contact me as soon as possible. I am more than happy to help make any necessary arrangements. If you have not already done so, please contact the Office of Disability Services: 901-843-3885. For further information, go to <http://www.rhodes.edu/disabilityservices/default.asp>.

Library Reserve: Occasionally, books that might be especially helpful for your research may be placed on reserve in Barret Library. Books to be used for article reviews will also be held on reserve. For information on using Library Reserves, go to <http://www.rhodes.edu/barret/4446.asp>.

Additional Resources: Success in this course and others is likely to be enhanced with careful time management, good study habits, and a general sense of well-being. The Counseling Center offers free and confidential counseling to Rhodes students: <http://www.rhodes.edu/counselingcenter.asp>. In addition, helpful links and information on such issues as test anxiety, procrastination, homesickness, study skills, and stress are available at <http://www.rhodes.edu/12077.asp>.

Extenuating Circumstances: If you need to discuss extenuating circumstances, please arrange a time to meet with me or contact me by email. Please avoid using the time immediately before and after class to ask for special arrangements. Information on late penalties can be found under course requirements.
