Profit and Loss: White Privilege and Its Consequences for Racial Equity and Justice

November 18, 7 p.m.
Bryan Campus Life Center
McCallum Ballroom

Free and open to the public

This lecture will explore the daily systemic advantages that come from being a member of the dominant racial group and the substantial consequences paid by society for the maintenance of such privilege. This speech answers the questions:

- “Why should I as a white person to fight against racism?”
- “What can I do?” in that fight

Special attention is paid to the way in which “divide and conquer” tactics have been used throughout the years to prevent working class and poor whites from joining with people of color to eliminate the inequities that weaken them both.

Co-sponsored by the Departments of Anthropology-Sociology and Psychology and the Office of Multicultural Affairs.
