Alumni Assume Major Roles in First Southwestern Annual Support Program

A total of $75,000 in gifts and pledges from individuals and corporations had been turned in to the Southwestern Annual Support Program on April 15, and there was definitely more to come from this initial effort.

The mid-month returns indicated that volunteer solicitors, alumni and friends of the college had reached the halfway mark toward the $150,000 goal, with less than half of the cards reported in.

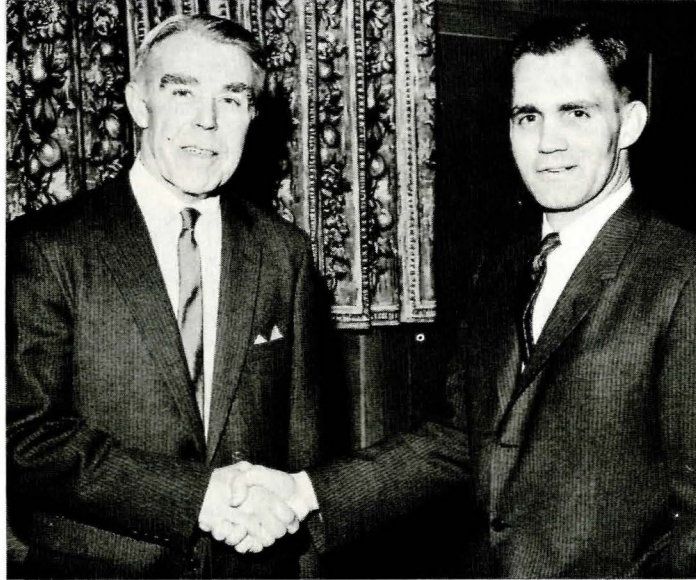

William H. Bryce, Jr., class of '47, general chairman of this trail blazing effort, said it is going well. Planned as an on-going, year long program with the intensified effort during the latter part of March, there is little doubt of its ultimate success.

The warm reception accorded the program by both the volunteer solicitors and the prospects on whom they called has been a happy experience for all concerned, said Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, president. "It has strengthened and reaffirmed the long existing feeling of mutual responsibility and helpfulness between the city and the college, and we believe that it has set the pattern for future annual support to the college, which will help enable us to continue and expand our service to the city."

This annual support, he said, will fill the gap between the college's budgetary needs and its total income from student fees, income on endowment, and support from churches, foundations, and other corporations and individuals. It is amply precedent, he pointed out, by numerous other progressive cities which furnish continuing support to the privately endowed colleges and universities in their respective communities, like Dallas and S. M. U., Houston and Rice, St. Louis and Washington University.

Dr. Frank Hugh Sparks of New York, president of the Council for Financial Aid to Education, gave Memphians a sound reason for supporting Southwestern and at the same time confirmed for alumni, from an outside source of authority, what has long been suspected. He rated Southwestern in academic excellence in the top five percent of American colleges, or, as he said later, "in a whipping cream position among institutions of its kind."

Dr. Sparks spoke at the kick-off dinner

Both President Peyton N. Rhodes and William H. Bryce, Jr. '47, general chairman of the Southwestern Annual Support Program, remembered when . . . when not too many years ago Dr. Rhodes was the physics professor and Bill, who is now president of his own firm, Bryce Packaging Co., was just a struggling physics major. "I think what moved me to take this job (the chairmanship)" he remarked at the dinner, "was that same moving force which has moved Southwestern these past ten years." He referred, of course, to P. N. R. (See story on Page 2)

March 21, which had been preceded by several organizational meetings for the various divisions and was followed by two report meetings during the same week. All of these were breakfast meetings and all enthusiastically attended.

Master minding the program with Bill Bryce were his co-chairmen E. B. LeMaster and Ellis T. Woolfolk, Memphis businessmen who have had a long and active interest in the college, and vice president for development, Dr. R. P. Richardson, class of '17.

It's Undermerchandized

Southwestern has been undermerchandized, said Bill Bryce, and he steered the effort toward "selling" the Memphis public on the college as a dynamic force which is a stimulus to existing business and a powerful attraction to new industry, toward persuading Memphis business and industry to give the college continuing support out of their own self interest.

This was a new and highly successful ap-

Alumni Day Opening Event Of Commencement Series

Saturday, June 4, will be Alumni Day—a time to renew old friendships, visit youthful haunts, catch up on the news, and generally enjoy the campus atmosphere.

In charge of the day's activities is James N. Clay III '51, vice president of the Southwestern Alumni Association in charge of reunions. Key planners also include Dr. J. Arthur Womble '35, president of the Alumni Association, Charles Sherman '35, chairman of the Class of 1935 Silver Anniversary Committee, Dr. Alfred O. Canon '44, dean of alumni, and Goodbar Morgan '31, alumni secretary.

Registration will begin at 10 a.m., and the morning will be spent in informal visiting around the campus.

The luncheon at noon in Catherine Burrow Hall, sponsored by the Southwestern Men of Memphis, will honor the men of the graduating class, members of the class of 1935 celebrating their 25th reunion, and their wives and husbands. William D. Haynes '48, is president of the Southwestern Men of Memphis.

Other classes which will have special tables at the luncheon are the Class of 1940, celebrating its 20th reunion and other classes ending in 0 or 5—that is, 1955, 1950, 1945, 1930, 1925, 1920, 1915, and 1910.

Immediately following the luncheon various class meetings will be held at appointed places on the campus, and spectator sports as well as participating contests will be held during the afternoon.

All during the day voting for three vice presidents of the Alumni Association will be in progress. To be elected for two year terms are the vice president in charge of finances, the vice president in charge of ministerial relations, and the vice president in charge of the alumnae. Out of town alumni will receive their ballots in the mail and should return them by mail by June 3. Memphis alumni will vote on the campus on Alumni Day.

The Alumni Supper will be held on the South Lawn at 6 p.m. with Art Womble presiding. Results of the election will be announced during the course of the program. The graduating class and their parents and members of the class of 1935 and their families will be guests of the Alumni Association at the supper.

Other officers of the Alumni Association are Ira Pyron, Jr., '48, vice president in charge of public relations, Ewing Carruthers '39, vice president in charge of finances, the Rev. Christy Morgan '51, of Covington, Tenn., vice president in charge of ministerial relations, and Mrs. Alvan F. Tate (Virginia Mangum '40), vice president in charge of the alumnae.

Catherine Burrow Hall Jammed For SW Annual Support Program Kick-Off Dinner

SOUTHWESTERN'S THANKS

By Peyton N. Rhodes

You could not hire Bill Bryce to do what he is doing for Southwestern at any price. He is far too busy looking after his own young business, which requires personal attention and supervision. Yet, because he does not have time for anything else and because no amount of money would induce him to do more than he is doing anyway, he has been willing to take on the chairmanship of Southwestern's largest and most ambitious annual support fund for the year 1960.

An older Memphis businessman who is not an alumnus recently said to me, "How many Bill Bryces are there around here?"

I replied that, frankly, that was a tough question, but that more than a hundred of our own boys have brought their loyalty and their own varied talents and approaches to bear on the success of this effort. Bill must have gotten some of his ability and dogged persistence from his courses in physics; anyway, I like to think that I did him no permanent harm when he was here as a student.

Teachers do not have too many satisfactions in this life and certainly do not often enjoy an overdose of comforts and luxuries, yet there is nothing that can compare with the satisfaction of seeing former students of Southwestern take places of outstanding leadership in difficult tasks in Memphis and other communities.

One of the most thrilling events of my long sojourn here was the kick-off dinner on March 21, 1960, of the Southwestern Annual Support Program. Bill Bryce and Dr. Frank H. Sparks, president of the Council for Financial Aid to Education, were the key figures at the head table, but among the many key figures elsewhere in Catherine Burrow Refectory were Southwestern alumni in great numbers, all filled with a sense of urgency and purpose to accomplish the goal which had been set. Whether or not we get the last dollar we aspire to this year, or whether we achieve our ultimate objectives later, Bill Bryce will have the distinction of firing the imaginations and setting the pace for many who will follow him in annual tasks of leadership. He has the thanks of everyone at Southwestern and the admiration of all who have had any part in this effort.

proach and one which has, indeed, helped many to see Southwestern in a new light.

"Clean up" operations will continue as long as any work on prospect cards is still incomplete. Some corporations prefer to do their giving at the close of their fiscal year, which may be mid-summer or fall. So the support program, though concentrated in March, is extended throughout the calendar year to accommodate every fiscal schedule.

Two Thirds Are Alumni

Two-thirds of the force of 150 volunteer solicitors were alumni, the rest prominent business and professional men of Memphis who have been associated in some way with the college.

All four of the division chairmen—James D. Collier, John C. Whitsitt, E. Denby Brandon, Jr., and Waddy West, Jr.—are alumni.

Co-chairmen were alumni Edward C. Boldt, Dr. Robert K. Armstrong, and George Grider, and non-alumni, R. D. McCallum, Harry A. Wellford, H. Buckner Potts, Edmund Orgill, and O. D. Bratton. Mr. Orgill holds an honorary degree.

A group of 23 non-alumni leaders, headed by chairman of the board, Sidney W. Farnsworth, chairman of the executive committee, A. Van Pritchard, and Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, president, working in Division I included Toof Brown, Arnold Klyce, Norfleet Turner, Frank Crump, Frank Pidgeon, Jr., Sam

Nickey, Jr., Edward J. Meeman, Sidney Genette, Brown Burch, A. E. Hohenberg, John E. Brown, Vance Alexander, B. Lee Mallory, Jr., E. J. Goldsmith, Jr., Martin Condon, Herbert Shainberg, Bayard Boyle, and William F. Bowld.

Alumni in this division were Dr. W. J. Millard, L. Palmer Brown, Wallace Johnston, Walker Wellford, Jr., R. Grattan Brown, and Maury Wade.

Division II

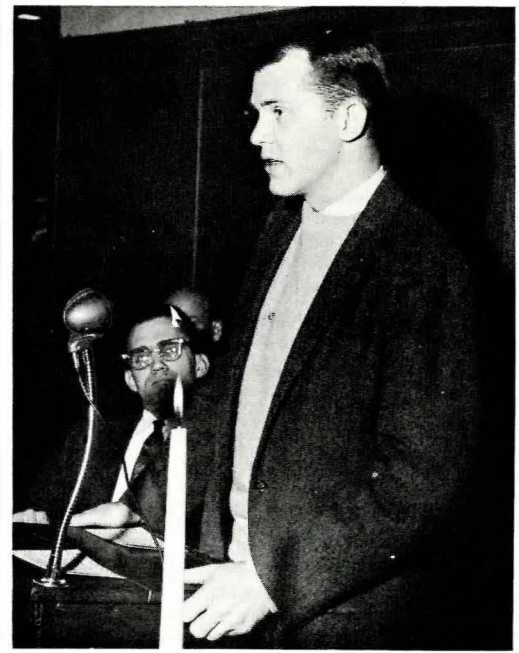

Other workers were:

Alumni: LeRoy Montgomery, Louis Weeks, Jr., Oliver P. Cobb, Jr., Harry E. Cobb, Harold High, Thomas A. Buford, Dabney H. Crump, Jr., Edward F. Thompson, William T. Walker, Ira W. Pyron, Jr., Charles Sherman, Lewis Donelson, III, Harte Thomas, and Dr. Hubert K. Turley.

Franklin C. Ellis, Jr., Rick C. Mays, Sam Mays, Oscar Hurt, Jr., Malcolm Perry, Charles Riegle, Henry Springer, Dr. John D. Hughes, William J. Armstrong, Dr. W. Edward French, Dr. Moore Moore, Jr., William F. Hughes, John W. Gray, Jr., and Mercer

More than 100 attended the kick-off dinner March 21.

Allen Reynolds, president of the Student Council, told workers what Southwestern means to the students.

Division III

Alumni: Charles M. Crump, James F. Springfield, S. Shepherd Tate, Frank M. Campbell, Vernon Bruce Buchman, Charles Sullivan, Jr., Franklin Kimbrough, E. B. (Ted) Fox, Jr., Jack Kelly, Judd Williford, James M. Breytspraak, Wells Awsumb, J. McKay Boswell, Reg Germany, Jr., Al Wunderlich.

Goodlett Brown, Jr., William B. Mills, II, T. Herbert (Billy) Smith, Cecil E. Warde, Jr., Dr. Arthur Womble, Jr., Charles H. Freeburg, Comus Kelly, Dr. Thomas J. White, Jr., Wallace H. Mayton, Jr., Fred Dickson, Jr., Fleet Edwards, David Gibson, John

Non-alumni: Erich W. Merrill, Alexander Dann, Jr., Arthur Halle, Jr., William G. Farr, and Robert W. Sanderson.

Division IV

Alumni: Fred Beeson, John Maxwell, Tom Tosh, Jimmy Walker, Walker Wellford, III, Sam Blair, Barney Gallagher, Dr. Sam B. Anderson, Jr., Duke J. Moody, J. T. Houts, Don G. Owens, Joe Q. Tribo, Jack Hilzheim, Roscoe A. Feld, Jr., Allen Hilzheim, Joe Clay Meux, John V. Weise, Leigh MacQueen, William V. Lawson, George M. Russell, W. Hamilton Smythe, Don A. Ramier, Lee B. McCormick, Ward Archer, John Millard, Jr., and Daniel D. West.

Non-alumni: Phil Baldwin, Bruckner Chase, Ed Lipscomb, J. Thurston Roach, Dr. Horton DuBard, Charles M. Collins, and Robert T. Garnett.

With characteristic vigor, enthusiasm, and wit, Dr. R. P. Richardson '17, vice president for development, carried the tremendous responsibility for getting the program ready to roll, then helped to give it the final push at the kick-off dinner. He introduced the well received idea of breakfast meetings for the workers—a long time custom in China, where he and Mrs. Richardson lived and worked as missionaries for 28 years.

From the Ivy-Covered Tower

By Alfred O. Canon, '44, Dean of Alumni

Spring finally hit the Southwestern campus this month after what seemed to be a rather long but pleasant winter. With the advent of warm weather and the Easter holidays the thoughts of students and faculty turn to plans for the summer.

In preparation for a week's seminar which will begin on June 17 at Dauphin Island, Alabama, the first group of "Fellows" in the American Alumni Seminar for Public Responsibility met in the Catherine Burrow Rectory on Wednesday, April 6, to receive their reading assignments. The seminar director, Dr. Ross Pritchard, chairman of the Department of International Studies, gave each participant his ten-pound, 650-page set of readings which will be the basis for the June discussions. Among those who staggered away from the meeting under the weight of their literary load were Southwestern's three Fellows, Mrs. Erich W. Merrill, '47, Mrs. Robert M. McRae, Jr., '43, and Clark Porteous, '34. Other institutions participating in the seminar are the University of Arkansas, Birmingham-Southern College, Columbia University, Dartmouth College, Harvard University, University of Pennsylvania, Randolph-Macon Women's College, Smith College, University of the South, Sweet Briar College, University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt University, University of Virginia, Washington University, Washington and Lee University, Wellesley College, Davidson College, Princeton University, Southern Methodist University, Vassar College, and Yale University.

Taylor's Tour

—Also heading south for the summer is a rather unusual scientific caravan headed by Jack H. Taylor '44, chairman of the Department of Physics. Jack and his associates including four students will be on their way to Florida to work for several months on a research project for the Air Force Cambridge Research Center. The four students will be working under a National Science Foundation Grant which ties in with their research and class program at the college. In preparation for this project the Department of Physics is now building a $100,000 portable infrared observatory which will house the equipment for this project. On one end of a 24-foot government surplus military trailer there will be a destroyer gun mount which will support a 30-inch diameter infrared tracking telescope. The center of the trailer will contain an electronics house, protecting the recorders which are used in tracking. On the far end of the trailer there will be a solar telescope with a 30-inch diameter mirror, which is five inches thick and weighs approximately 300 pounds. Part of this equipment was used in the United States Air Force project which Dr. Taylor and Prof. Joe Freymuth took to the Canary Islands last summer for the observation of the solar eclipse. It is anticipated that this portable observatory can be taken to any part of the world in order to study atmospheric phenomena. The group may go to Alaska next year where certain phenomena may be studied.

This equipment will be finished during late May, and it is now anticipated that it will be on exhibition during Alumni Day on Saturday, June 4. Pictures of the laboratory and further details in connection with this project will be carried in subsequent issues of the Southwestern News.

Development and Planning

—A few of us will still be around this spring, however, as new projects along with routine responsibilities continue to keep us rather busy. During the past month the president appointed a Committee on Development and Planning which consists of eight members of the faculty and two students elected by the Student Council. The committee which is headed by the dean of alumni will consider such areas as the development of the campus, use of existing facilities and future needs, the future requirements for a student body of one thousand, the public relations program of the college, and the financial support which the college receives from various sources. One of the initial projects of the committee has been to make a survey of the buildings and facilities on the campus in order to anticipate present and future needs as the student body rapidly increases over the next five years to the anticipated limit of 1,000. The members of the committee include in addition to the chairman Dr. R. L. Amy (biology), Dean Jameson M. Jones, Dr. Daniel D. Rhodes (philosophy and religion), Dr. R. P. Richardson, vice president for development, Dr. L. L. Scott (math), Dr. J. H. Taylor (physics), Dr. V. H. Taylor (music), and students Ed Albright and Lela Garner.

Summer Programs at the Adult Education Center —For the benefit of those of you who live in or near Memphis we might list a few of the ideas which are being developed by Miss May Maury Harding '48 director of programs for the Adult Education Center. She and her staff are working on a program of psychology in literature, along with a program which has been inspired by a book entitled "Philosophy for a Time of Crisis." Another popular offering this summer will be the new course, "Politics 1960," which has been offered this spring semester to a group of 72 persons. There will also be discussion groups on contemporary novels and the first and possibly third year Great Books Series.

One of the most interesting developments for the summer will be a new program which Prof. Ray Hill calls "Adventures in the Arts." In this new thrust of the center young people under the direction of Ray Hill assisted by Prof. Henry Madden of the art department and others will explore the arts of painting, sculpture, drama, music, dance and film. Included will be screenings of such film classics as "The Mikado," "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Oliver Twist," and "Great Expectations." Eight to 12 year olds will meet Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays while 13 to 16 year olds will meet on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays. The cost is $30 for the eight weeks course which begins June 20. As registration is limited to 30 in each group, we urge you to call soon and reserve a place for your youngster. There will also be Great Literature groups this summer offered for high school and college age people in the Memphis area.

The Adult Education Center is planning a residential seminar on the week-end of July 29 at Petit Jean State Park in Arkansas. There will also be a discussion leadership seminar on the campus for our Mid-South friends and alumni during the week-end of August 26. If you would like to have additional information about any of these programs, please write May Harding or me and we shall be happy to supply you with all the details.

Summer Reading

—In line with a recommendation made by a group of Danforth seminar faculty participants last summer the faculty under the leadership of Dean Jones is preparing a reading list which will be handed out to students at the end of the spring semester. The list will include books which the students are encouraged to read during the summer and we would be delighted to furnish you with a copy of the list upon request. Along this line alumni may be interested in a recent list of books which Dr. Laurence F. Kinney, chairman of the Department of Bible and Religion, calls "An adequate religious library for laymen." Dr. Kinney prepared this list at the request of the members of the T.K. Young class which he teaches at Idlewild Presbyterian Church. It includes the Holy Bible, Revised Standard Version (Nelson); Westminster Historical Atlas to the Bible (Westminster); The Layman's Bible Commentary (John Knox Press); The Westminster Dictionary of the Bible, Davis and Gehman (Westminster); Daily Bible Study Series on books of the New Testament, (Continued on Page 8)

Old Tradition Revived — April Fool Play

That most delightful of days, April Fool, was commemorated with all the pomp, circumstance, and foolishness due it with a play and a dance this year at Southwestern. For the first time in several years the student body was treated to a student-written, student-directed, and student-acted play, which was in the noble tradition of farce and wit. Entitled "Suddenly Last Midsummer's Night," it was in the main a take-off on campus life, well-salted with cuts at students, faculty, and tradition, and starred the "12 Bad Men," senior boys who were first gods with real beards and then buxom dorm cuties, well-shorn.

Mary Beth Marr, a junior from Blytheville, Ark., who wrote and directed the play, appeared as Puck, the mischievous fairy who thwarted the gods' designs on the dorm cuties. With local humor and fun rampant, the play was well-attended and will add countless lines to campus jargon.

Neely Mallory Memorial Gym was cleverly converted into an Egyptian panorama for the dance. The foyer was transformed into an eerie tomb with mummies lining the walls, two candidly holding hands to prove that love goes beyond the grave. Obelisks and pyramids surrounded the dance floor which was eyed by two large and ominous mummies suspended from the basketball goal.

Jimmy Curtis of Memphis and Clara Stephens of Laurel, Miss., King and Queen of the Court, were ensconced upon an impressive gold, purple and white throne from which they viewed the frolic of their elaborately costumed subjects. Best group costume went to Mary Regen of Lebanon, Tenn., and Morris McCastlain of Memphis, who appeared as the infamous duo, Sebastian and Violet, from the movie "Suddenly Last Summer," and were accompanied by four wing-flapping blackbirds. Best girl's costume went to a winsome gingerbread cookie, while best boy was a ballooned bauble from the popular song, "Baubles, Bangles, and Beads." The "pot of gold" and the "end of the rainbow" teamed up to take the couples prize.

After the festivities the merry revelers jumped on the pyramids and dived through the paper foyer panels, and left saturated with joy from their Fool's day, already hatching costume plots for next year's madness.

W. S. Beasley Dies, Director 15 Years

W. S. Beasley, prominent Columbia, Tenn., business man and churchman who had been a member of Southwestern's Board of Directors for 15 years, died suddenly at his home on March 26.

Mr. Beasley

He was the only Presbyterian layman who had served on the boards of all four of the synod's institutions, Southwestern, Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Monroe Harding Children's Home, and NaCoMe Conference. He served actively as an elder for many years in the First Presbyterian Church of Columbia.

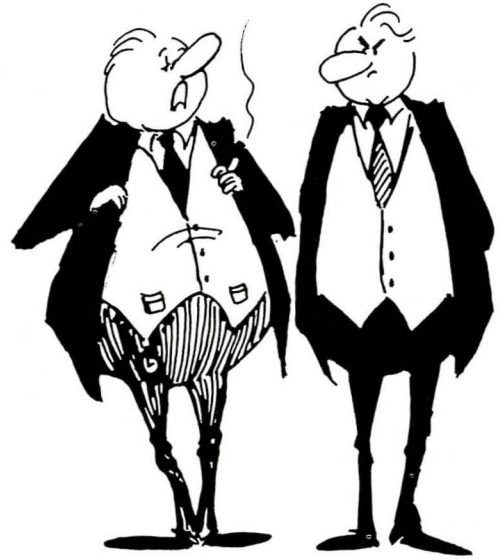

Mr. Beasley, who joined the Southwestern board in 1945 and served on several of its committees, was president of the Columbia Produce Co. Mrs. Beasley also visited the campus frequently, accompanying him to Memphis for the board meetings. He also leaves a son and a daughter.

Alumni Reunions As A Student Sees Them

—By Bette Baumgarten '61

"I TOLD you I left it in the Beta Phi window my junior year!"

"Oh, I think it's a fine building, President Lee, but as a business man—we do have to be practical, you know—I sometimes wonder if all this is really necessary. Now when I went to school . . ."

"Oh, how lovely! I used to be your fraternity sweetheart!"

"Oh, Henry, our old spot! It's just too much . . ."

"And then, son, after we got up here . . ."

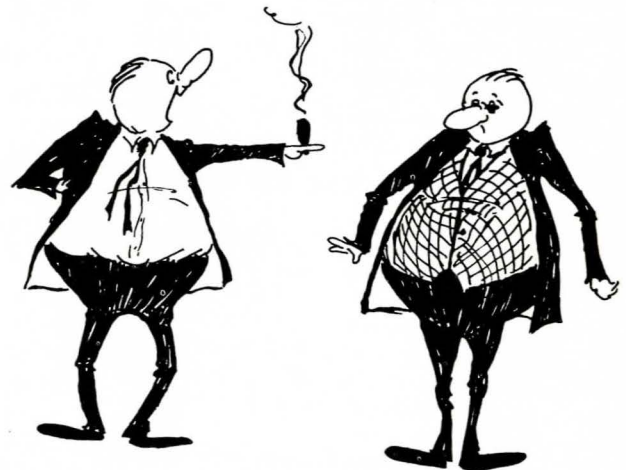

"Hee hee, and remember when we used to drop water-bags on the Dean!"

"Oh, now, Professor Harris, try one more time — Class of '24'"

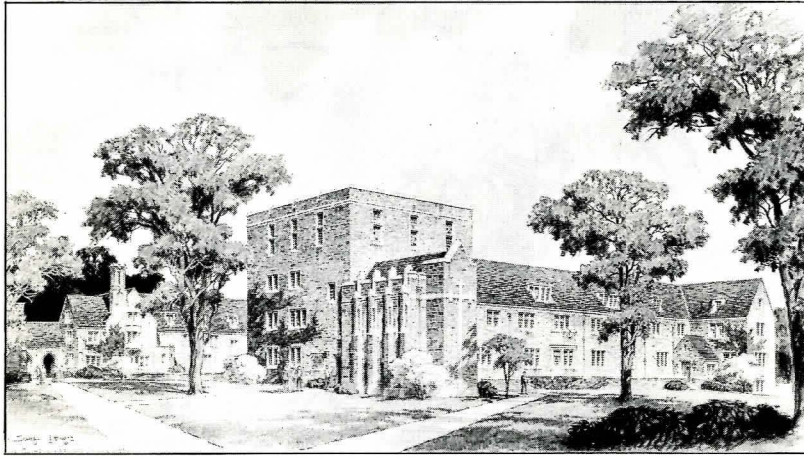

"And dream such dreams as old men dream and visions young men see . . ."

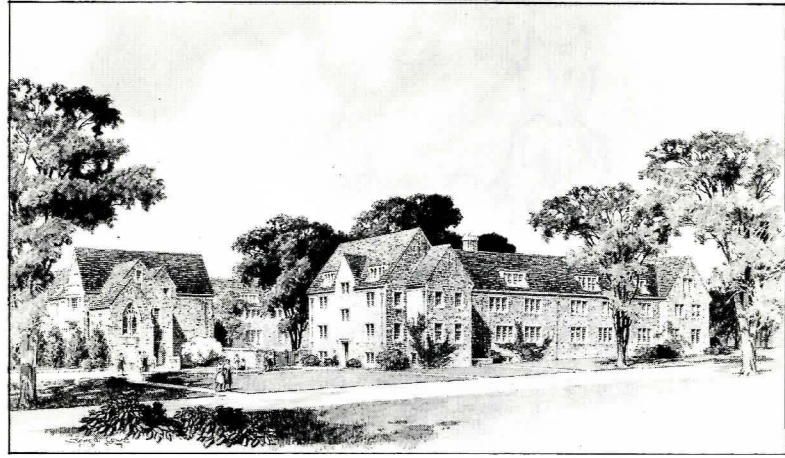

"Hoo, boy, YOU sure have changed!"

Two New Residence Halls Will Accommodate 171 Students in 1961

Men's Residence Hall

Women's Residence Hall

CONSTRUCTION ON EXTREME EAST, WEST SIDES OF CAMPUS

Two residence halls, one to accommodate 105 men and the other, 66 women students, are under construction on the Southwestern campus.

The new men's hall will be parallel to University Street on the west side of the campus and will complete the residence group which includes Robb, White, and Ellett Halls.

The women's hall on the extreme east side of the campus will be parallel to Freshman Women's Hall and connected to it by a covered cloister, which will also serve as a screen at the northern end of the proposed landscaped quadrangle and patio. Voorhies Hall is at the south end.

The two halls will be of the same Arkansas field stone and Vermont slate and in the collegiate Gothic style which is characteristic of all the college's permanent buildings. Architect is H. Clinton Parrent, Jr., H '59, of Nashville. Contractors are Canfield and Scarbrough Construction Co. of Memphis.

Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, president, says it is hoped that at least one may be ready for occupancy by the semester beginning in February, 1961.

Total cost including furnishings will be an estimated $950,000. A loan from the Housing and Home Finance Agency will furnish $600,000 of the funds required.

TWO FRIENDS OF DONOR AUGMENT ART COLLECTION

Art treasures ranging from antique Chinese ginger jars to fine wood sculptures have been added to the Jessie L. Clough Collection through the interest of two of its long time supporters, the late Mr. S. DeWitt Clough and Miss Willie C. Johnson.

Both were friends of the late Miss Floy K. Hanson, donor of the collection and her sister, Miss Etta D. Hanson, who is now its curator and arranges the revolving exhibits in the Burrow Library Treasure Room.

Mr. Clough, brother to Miss Jessie L. Clough, was a resident of Chicago having been director, vice president, chairman of the board and honorary chairman of the board of Abbott Laboratories. He received an LL.D. (honorary) from Knox College in '41 and at the time of his death was consulting honorary director of Cresar Library in Chicago. He served as vice president of the American Heart Association, having been awarded the Gold Heart in '54, and as managing director of the Chicago Heart Association, having been awarded the Gold Oscar in '56. Mr. Clough visited the Southwestern campus in April, 1959.

At Mr. Clough's death in January a memorial fund was set up in his name by his friends and business associates for the purpose of adding to the collection. A part of this fund has been used for the purchase of two blue-white ginger jars, one from the 17th century K'ang Hsi Period and the other from the 18th century C'hin Lung Period. A maroon and gold brocaded emperor's robe was also selected by Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes on a recent trip to New York.

In the present Treasure Room exhibit are a number of choice items willed to the collection by Miss Johnson, who died in August. Among the valuables left by her are a massive "Breton" dresser, a fine antique clock, seven pieces of fine European glass, more than 200 years old, and four bits of choice wood sculpture.

Two Are Honored By Phi Beta Kappa

Dr. Robert C. Meacham '42, professor of mathematics at the University of Florida, was named to honorary membership in Southwestern's chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and initiated along with Hodding Carter, distinguished Greenville, Miss., editor-author, and nine undergraduate members in course March 24.

Dr. Meacham and his family, Mrs. Meacham (Katherine Miller '43) Robert, 13, Kathy, 10, and Andy, 6, will move to St. Petersburg, Fla., this summer, where he will become chairman of the department of mathematics at the newly established Florida Presbyterian College.

In addition to his teaching, Dr. Meacham has served as consultant for the Sperry Gyroscope Company and the RCA Missile Test Project at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla.

Joseph Scianni of Memphis has recently been made an associate producer in the Masterworks Department of Columbia Record Company. Howard Hanson with the Eastman-Rochester Symphony Orchestra has recorded Scianni's latest composition, "Music for Quiet Listening," on the Mercury label. He also introduced last year Scianni's Symphonia Breve, a work which was praised by New York critics. Says Scianni of his compositions, "I do not wish to express any philosophy nor comment on our time. I simply want to create a world within the music that is ordered and complete, with something more than counterpoint, harmony, rhythm and form—something I call 'soul.'" Dr. Scianni got his doctorate at the Eastman School of Music.

Latham Daniel is going up, up in the insurance business with Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. He's been named manager of the office here. Latham started with the firm in 1956 as a brokerage consultant and for the past two years has been assistant manager. He is a member of the Memphis

When Art Derr '50, packs his bag for a business trip he has to take clothing for both tropical and frigid climates, the executive suit for visiting city sophisticates, and his khakis and suitable shoes for tramping around lumber camps and gold mines.

As area manager for Firestone in charge of distribution of all Firestone products in an area covering all of Central America and the West Coast of South America, Art encounters many forms of transportation and a variety of accommodations, including a rain barrel for washing and an adobe hut for sleeping, he said on a recent visit to the campus.

He has developed a cast iron stomach and an addiction to the export business, which he is "in to stay."

Art has learned a lot in three years at his present post—to stick to tea and other drinks that you can be sure have been boiled—to fried foods because there's safety in boiling grease—and to the things the natives eat like rice and beans—as well as miscellaneous small but important facts like do eat lobsters at noon but don't at night, because they are brought in early in the morning and there's no refrigeration.

The Derrs and their sons Conrad, 6, and George, 4, live in Panama City and would like to have a call from any Southwestern friends who happen over that way.

Mrs. Derr is the former Nancy Shelton, a Memphis State University graduate. The whole family was in Memphis during the winter visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Shelton of Brunswick. Art was living in Odessa, Wash., when he attended Southwestern.

Life Underwriters Association. He, his wife, and three children live at 1743 Cherry Road.

CLASS OF 1950

Mark A. Harris is now a member of the board of directors of Monticello Insurance Co. He, his wife, and two children, Mark and Frances, live at 223 Leonora Drive.

A double tragedy apparently took the lives of Mrs. Kenneth W. Orgill, Jr. (Nancy Wilson) Feb. 11 and her husband, two weeks earlier. Both were assumed dead under identical circumstances, the finding of their two automobiles parked on the Memphis-Arkansas bridge and accounts of witnesses who saw persons fitting their respective descriptions leave the cars and jump from the span into the Mississippi River. They leave two children, Kenneth Willins III, 5, and Elizabeth Ellett, 4. Nancy is the daughter of Gilbert B. Wilson, Jr., '12 and a sister of Mrs. John N. Spain (Mary Beth Wilson '46) of Grosse Point, Mich.

SOUTHWESTERN ALUMNI AT NASHVILLE

It was a goodly crowd of Southwestern alumni who got together for dinner preceding the performance of the Southwestern Singers in Nashville Feb. 28.

The meeting and the concert were held at the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

The Singers presented a program of sacred and secular music, implemented by a small group of musicians from the college orchestra and faculty. Louis Nicholas, '34, Nashville Tennessean music critic, praised the performance as "varied and relaxed in tone . . . maintaining a nice balance, pleasant tone quality, reasonably good diction and commendable fidelity to pitch." He also had kudos for the orchestral group. The program was of special interest to Nashvillians since Dr. Taylor, before coming to Southwestern, was a member of the Peabody College faculty and the Nashville Symphony.

To Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Atcheson, Richard Bryan, Jan. 22, in Memphis. The Atchesons have another son, Robert.

To Mr. and Mrs. David O. Thomas (Mary Elizabeth Hickman '54), David Ormonde, Jr., Mar. 5, in Memphis. Mary Elizabeth and David also have a daughter, Rebecca Lloyd, 2½. David is an account executive with The General Outdoor Advertising Co.

To the Rev. and Mrs. John D. Alexander (Catherine B. Coleman) of San Anselmo, California, John David, III, Jan. 12.

The Rev. and Mrs. Donald W. Kaller (Frances Geraldine Pritchard '54) are in Patrocinio, Minas Gerais, Brazil, doing missionary work for the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Kaller writes of a recent series of special services that he participated in which included a study on stewardship of life, time and goods, and instruction in sanitation, farming, eating habits, and disease prevention. According to Mr. Kaller, superstition is rampant, especially about foods; the natives won't eat oranges and bananas on the same day, they won't feed babies anything but milk for the first year, they eat no vegetables at all. They are also plagued by certain insect-borne diseases, and have no idea of sanitation.

The Kallers are busy learning Portuguese as they teach their new neighbors improved ways and philosophies of life. Their main message is that they love their work and the country.

They have two children, Anita and Lisa.

CLASS OF 1952

Mrs. John Thomas McCallen (Ann Henderson) has reported to the News office the death of Nancy Diane Dennison of Stone Mountain, Ga., in July, 1958. Part Time Specialists Bolster Recent Athletic Resurgence

By Jerry Peters '60

Southwestern may well be headed for an athletic renaissance.

Up until World War II, Southwestern was a major sports figure in the South, participating with some of the biggest of universities. But with the war virtually all athletic activity was discontinued.

When varsity competition was resumed after the war, it was on a strictly non-subsidized basis and the Lynx teams for some years too often got the back seat view. More recently Southwestern has restored itself to the position of a respected small college power in seven of its intercollegiate sports—baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf, tennis, and track—in spite of its non-subsidizing policy.

It is no coincidence that the Lynx have made this surge behind a revamped coaching staff, which can justly be described as "one of the best ever assembled in small-college circles." Although Southwestern's coaching staff only includes three full-time members, it is bolstered by seven "part-timers," giving the Lynx a total of 10 top-flight coaches. With this large and capable staff, each sport and each individual are given the maximum attention needed.

The three full-time coaches are athletic director Bill Maybry, Woody Johnson and Derrick Barton. In addition to handling the physical education classes, Maybry coaches cross country and golf, Johnson basketball and baseball and Barton golf.

Taking time out from their regular jobs and generously giving much time to Southwestern athletics are coaches Rick Mays (an insurance agent), Floyd ("Preacher") Roberts (a high school teacher), and Ross Pritchard (head of the International Studies department) in football; Freeman Marr (a lawyer) and Bill Lawson (an insurance agent) in track; Pat Abbott (a country club pro) in golf and Grover Bowers (a trucking line agent) in baseball.

In these 10 men Southwestern has the advantage of a tremendous sum of experience, both as players and coaches.

For examples, Barton was a well-known Davis Cup tennis player and at one time the No. 1 player in England—Abbott a professional golfer who has played in all the big national tournaments—Johnson a great college athlete in three sports and later a pro baseball player—Roberts a colorful halfback at Tulane—Bowers a great Memphis Chick who moved on to the major leagues—Mays a standout speedster on some of the greatest Lynx football teams—Marr a star runner during Southwestern's finer hours in track—and Pritchard an all-Southwestern Conference halfback at Arkansas.

As for coaching experience, Johnson, Mays, Roberts and Abbott have all been in the business for more than 20 years; Maybry, Pritchard and Barton over 10, and Marr, Lawson and Bowers at least five each. Athletic director Maybry has top seniority with 12 years on the Southwestern staff. Barton and Abbott have each put in eight years here, Mays six, Marr and Pritchard five, Lawson four, Johnson three, and Roberts and Bowers two.

At Southwestern, the records of these fine men speak for themselves. For instance, during the 1958-59 athletic year Lynx teams participated in 93 contests and won 47.
