Southwestern Flavor Spices Homecoming

Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, defining "the compleat alumnus" at the Homecoming Luncheon Nov. 4, achieved a rapport with his audience which must mark an all time high in presidential homecoming talks.

He left them clamoring for copies of the speech which consisted, alas, of a few semi-legible pencilled notes on yellow scratch paper of two different sizes.

The many ad lib asides and diversions will survive only in the minds of those who heard them. One which floats readily to the top of the consciousness is his comment on the root word of the term alumnus—alere, meaning to nourish. The dictionary doesn't make it quite clear, he said, who should nourish whom.

Dr. Rhodes has a deceptive way of giving a precisely planned and carefully constructed address in such a pleasant, relaxed, and rambling sort of style that the listener sometimes wonders if he knows exactly where he is going. As he travels the route of his outline he seems to find surprising and bewildering discoveries and delightful excursions along the way, sharing them with the audience. He not only reaches his destination in triumph, but he makes the most of points of interest along the way. Many have commented on his effective technique.

Speaking seriously, Dr. Rhodes said that our concept expressed by the terms "alumnus" and "homecoming" are typically American. There is no such idea, activity, or relationship in the European or Asian universities. The word "alumnus" stands for a very special and American sort of tie.

The Southwestern alumnus he defined as the continuing image of Southwestern.

"What sort of image does the alumnus produce? Izaak Walton told about the 'compleat angler'—how can one characterize the 'compleat Southwestern alumnus?'"

What One Isn't

"Alumni are not just semi-sober individuals who turn up once a year with loud hatbands and pennants to die under the stands for the team. In an age where the ignorant are cocksure and the informed are full of doubt, one can't afford that sort of alumni."

Three activities characterize the "compleat alumnus," he said.

"He REMEMBERS his past as an undergraduate with appreciation of those who made that phase of life possible for him and can recall many meaningful (to him) events, contacts, or friendships. Remembrance might mean the broken sentences, long gaps, and 20 foot leaps of the mind of Kelso—the

LOYALTY FUND ALMOST DOUBLES LAST YEAR'S 1961 PARTICIPATION SHOWS SUBSTANTIAL GAIN

Gifts large and small, from alumni old and young, swelled the 1961 Loyalty Fund to dimensions almost double those of last year, which was the greatest on record.

The 1961 total given by alumni was $65,804. The number of persons giving was 1,345, also the largest ever.

A graduate of last year who is now in graduate school sent a dollar, along with a note which said, "I can't send much now, but I'm going to always send something."

A retired minister who was in the class of 1893 and who had visited the Memphis campus only once sent a stock certificate valued at $14,500, and he wrote:

"It affords me much pleasure to send you the enclosed certificate. It has been a long time since I left old SWPU, but I cherish the happiest memories of my student days there, of the splendid men who at the close of last century composed the faculty, of the fine moral atmosphere and the valuable lessons I learned.

"This enclosure is in deep gratitude for the past, in happy appreciation for the success of Southwestern, and with an earnest prayer for a great future."

A graduate of Southwestern's first year in Memphis sent in a check for $1,000, which he said he hoped would "total all the mental promises I have made over the years to send $5—$10—$25—and sometimes $50."

Then there was the regular, loyal, dependable givers who send each year $10, or $50, or $5, or $1,000, according to their own individual ability or concern. And there was one of these, or rather two, a man and wife, who usually give about $200. They had an unusually good year so they sent an extra $1,000.

And this is the essence and meaning of the Loyalty Fund—the constant interest and concern of the college's alumni expressed in thoughtful gifts to help meet its various needs.

Of the $65,804 total, $17,000 was in unrestricted, or unspecified gifts; $14,000 was for the proposed Student-Alumni Campus Center; $10,500 was for the Burrow Library; $16,379 was in gifts from alumni to the Annual Support Program, $3,440 was for the Science Fund; $2,440 for the Rick Mays Memorial; and the remainder was designated for class gifts, Gaylon Smith memorial, Malory Gymnasium, Scholarship Fund, and Sponsors of Southwestern.

The 1961 total of $65,804 represented a close to 100 percent increase over the 1960 figure of $36,611 and the number of givers was 1,345 in contrast to the 964 of 1960.

Goodbar Morgan, director of alumni affairs, attributed much of the increase to the activity of area and class chairmen, which helped substantially in broadening the participation.

He cited Mrs. Edward D. Simmons (Ruth Park '34) who headed a new program of solicitation among the alumnae of Memphis and area chairmen Dr. John M. Slaughter '40 of Birmingham, Robert S. Edington '50 of Mobile, J. L. Jerden '59 of Atlanta, William N. McLean '58 of New Orleans, Jere B.

Nearing completion is the Moore Infirmary, which was provided for by bequest of the late Dr. Moore Moore, secretary of Southwestern's Board of Directors and college physician for many years.

Class agents and presidents who also aided substantially are Wes Adams '27, Frank Heiss '28, Mrs. James Challen (Linnie Sue Gary '29), F. H. Heidelberg '30, Auvergne Blaylock '31, Murray Raspberry '36, Mrs. Downing Pryor (Janet Tucker '38), Mrs. Frank Preston (Carolyn Carroll '41), Mrs. J. H. Class Percentages

The class of 1936 walked away with honors for the top percentage of participation with 45.6 percent of its membership contributing — more than 10 percent above the next highest group.

The class of 1939 came second with 34 percent and 1934 and 1931 tied for third with 32.7 percent. Close behind them were 1927 with 32 percent and 1932 with 31.9 percent.

Other classes ranking in the top ten with their percentages, were:

1929—29.7%
1941—29.4%
1938—29.1%
1946—28.6%

1960—8.6%

Among the classes prior to 1926, while the college was located at Clarksville, there were 68 contributors from a total of 280 known and located alumni, making the group participation 24 percent. Most of those who gave are regular, loyal supporters who contribute each year, Mr. Morgan said.

Bellingrath Hall Dedicated

George E. Dowling Speaks

George E. Downing of Mobile, long time associate of the late Walter D. Bellingrath and chairman of the board of trustees of the Bellingrath-Morse Foundation, told much of the biography and philosophy of the founder of the world famous Bellingrath Gardens at the dedication on Oct. 18 of the new men's residence hall at Southwestern which bears his name.

Some 150 members of the faculty, students from the Mobile area, and members of the board of directors and President's Council were present for the late afternoon dedicatory service at the north entrance of the new building.

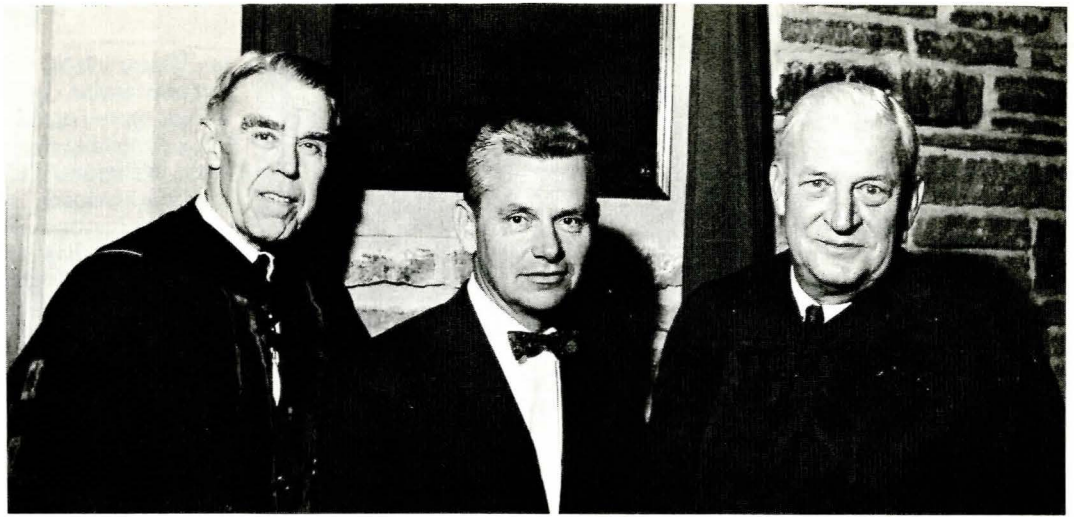

Mr. Downing spoke of Mr. Bellingrath's early life in Atlanta and Castleberry, Ala., where his family owned a turpentine business, and of a letter which he wrote to his mother at the age of 23 soon after his father's death. He promised: "I will say, by God's help, I am going to try to make the world better and brighter for my being here."

Career Established

Mr. Bellingrath first entered the wholesale brokerage business in Montgomery, later acquired the franchise rights for bottling Coca-Cola in Montgomery, Mobile, and surrounding area, and moved to Mobile in 1904 to assume management of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. there, which he continued to head throughout his life.

He was a director of the First National Bank of Mobile and of the Mobile Press Register and was one of the four founders of the Waterman Steamship Corporation. He was active in the Mobile Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, and Community Chest, and was a deacon in the Central Presbyterian Church for many years.

He credited his wife, the former Miss Bessie May Morse, with the idea for the Bellingrath Gardens, which they built together and lived in for many years, Mr.

Downing said.

Foundation Purpose

"In the establishment of The Bellingrath-Morse Foundation, Mr. Bellingrath recognized the value of a Christian education and provided that the income from the operations of the Gardens be devoted to the intellectual and religious upbuilding of young men and women of our Southland, as well as to foster and perpetuate those Christian values which were recognized by our forefathers as essential for the building of a great nation."

"In furtherance of this thought he gave all his property to The Foundation in order that there might never be a time when the Gardens should fail financially or the worthy purposes of The Foundation cease to be carried out.

"Looking toward the accomplishment of his plans and purposes he recognized Southwestern as one of the leading institutions of the country and made it the principal beneficiary of The Foundation."

In conclusion Mr. Downing quoted from the Preamble to the Declaration of the Foundation written by Mr. Bellingrath:

Education Essential

"It was not by accident that this great nation came into being and achieved its marvelous development. The men who laid its foundations believed in God, and in the necessity for living in obedience to His laws. They were men of faith and character, who pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor for the carrying out of their ideal that a 'government of the people, by the people, and for the people should not perish from the earth.' They recognized that education was essential for a democracy, that enlightened moral manhood was the goal for men in a free self-governing society, and that, therefore, religion and education belong together. They realized that democracy, education, and the principles of Christianity are closely related: that the first depends upon the other two."

"I believe," said Mr. Downing, "we can all agree that with God's help, he brought into reality his dream of making the world a better and brighter place."

These Scholars Make Up Southwestern's Distinguished Bible Faculty

Beginning in this issue a series of picture presentations of various departments at Southwestern, the NEWS introduces on this page members of the Department of Bible and Religion.

Southwestern, the first college in the nation to institute Bible study as a degree requirement, has acquired a faculty which is outstanding for its academic attainment as well as its religious commitment.

The six professors in the department are, ordained Presbyterian ministers holding both B.D. and Ph. D. degrees and all serve as supply ministers in Memphis and Mid-South churches many Sundays each year.

Southwestern believes that the broadening experience of study in the Holy Land and of various religions in their native settings adds extra dimensions to the teaching of Bible and religion. Almost every summer one or more of the Bible faculty does on-the-spot research in some phase of the history and culture of Christianity and other religions.

Laurence F. Kinney, above, chairman of the Bible Department, holds an A.B. and an honorary LL.D. from Hampden-Sydney, a B.D. from Union Theological Seminary of Virginia, and a Ph. D. from the University of Virginia. Biblical archaeology is one of his specific fields of study and he's photographed with an ancient scroll and other materials from Israel. Dr. Kinney occupies the Albert Bruce Curry Chair of Bible and serves as director of academic relations for Southwestern's Adult Education Center. He is a native of West Virginia, a member of the Memphis Presbytery, Synod of Tennessee.

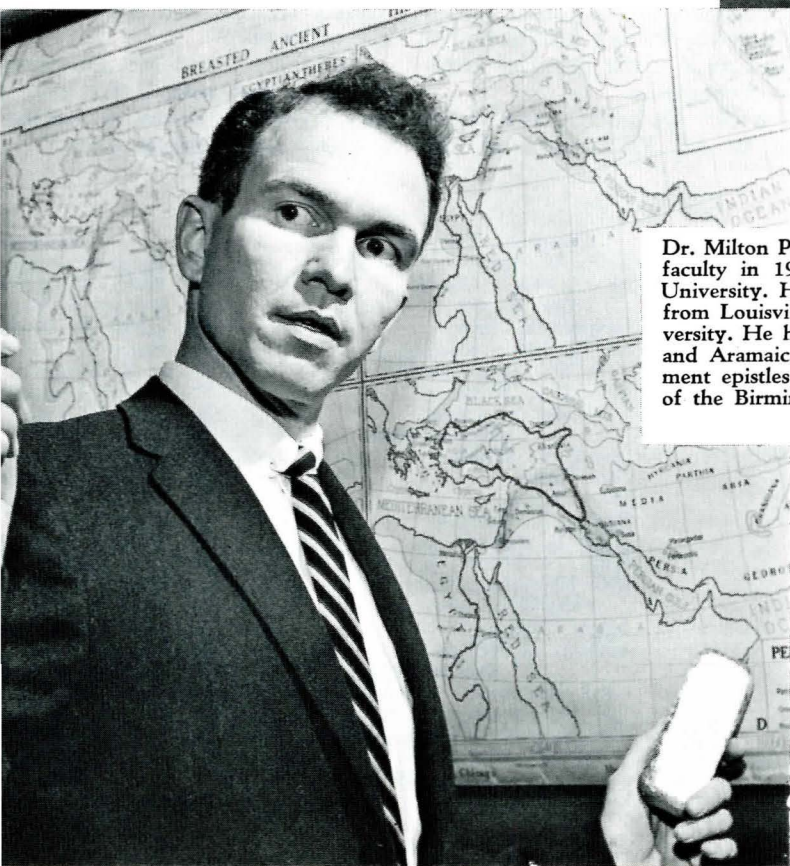

Dr. W. Taylor Reveley, above, is dean of admissions and records and also professor of Bible and Christian Education, holds an A.B. from Hampden-Sydney, a B.D. from Union Theological Seminary of Virginia, and a Ph. D. from Duke University. He studied the history and culture of ancient and modern Israel and viewed many of the archaeological sites in the Holy Land during the summer of 1960. He also has visited some 60 college and university campuses in America to promote the Faculty Christian Fellowship Program. He lived in North Carolina in his pre-college days and is a member of the Red River Presbytery, Synod of Louisiana.

Dr. Robert G. Patterson, above, associate professor of Bible and college chaplain, holds the W. J. Millard Chair. He received his B.A. degree from Washington and Lee University, a B.D. from Union Theological Seminary of Virginia, and the Ph. D. from Yale University. Dr. Patterson spent most of his youth in China, where his parents were Presbyterian missionaries, returning to the United States just before World War II. He will study East Indian history and culture at the Osmania University in Hyderabad, India, on a Fulbright grant during the coming summer. He is a member of the Memphis Presbytery, Synod of Tennessee.

Dr. Jameson M. Jones, above, a Southwestern graduate, is dean of the college and professor of moral philosophy. He received his B.A. from Southwestern in 1936, his B.D. from Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, his Ph. D. from Duke University, and later studied at Oxford University in England. He was dean at Centre College for 10 years before returning to his alma mater in 1955. Dean Jones, an accomplished amateur painter, also teaches certain classes in art history and analysis. He is a member of the St. Andrew Presbytery, Synod of Mississippi, and a native Mississippian.

Dr. Milton P. Brown, Jr., left, associate professor of Bible, joined the Southwestern faculty in 1960 after teaching and serving as chaplain at Washington and Lee University. He holds an A.B. degree from Birmingham-Southern College, a B.D. from Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, and a Ph. D. from Duke University. He has made an intensive study of the Biblical languages, Greek, Hebrew, and Aramaic, which have aided his research and analysis among the New Testament epistles and other documents of the early Christian period. He is a member of the Birmingham Presbytery, Synod of Alabama, and a native Alabaman.

Juanita Goodman, left, director of Christian Education at Evergreen Presbyterian Church is also instructor in Christian Education at Southwestern. She was graduated with honors from Southwestern and received her M.A. degree from Duke University.

Dr. Fred W. Neal, right, professor of philosophy and religion and occupant of the R. A. Webb Chair, came to Southwestern from Mississippi State College in 1958. He was born in Oregon and, as the son of Presbyterian missionaries, lived as a child in Africa and in many different sections of the United States since. He holds an A.B. from Lewis and Clark College, a B.D. from the Chicago Theological Seminary, and the Ph. D. from the University of Chicago. He will be co-director of the Southwestern Seminar Abroad next summer in Greece and Israel. He is a member of the Memphis Presbytery, Synod of Tennessee.

loping gait of Dean Johnson—the fire cracker in the sack of flour in Robb Hall.

“As a prominent inscription on the Archives Building in Washington says, ‘All Past is Prologue,’ which freely translated means ‘You Ain’t Seen Nothin’ Yet’—and so the compleat alumnus doesn’t want to live in the past. He must participate in the future.

“The compleat Southwestern alumnus PARTICIPATES in the present of Southwestern with pride and understanding loyalty. He keeps abreast of what is going on and is quick to defend his college from detractors. His constructive criticism of the present student body (who seem so silly and young and foolish and ill dressed to him) the faculty, staff and administration, is tempered with concern and restraint and based on careful acquaintance with personally gathered facts instead of rumors and casual reports.

No Bowl of Jelly

“No college can make everybody happy all the time about everything. If it did, it would be a sort of ever vibrating bowl of jelly, quivering between successive impacts. No Southwestern alumnus could tolerate such an alma mater.”

Finally, he said, the compleat Southwestern alumnus “PROVIDES for the future students (as he himself was provided for) by considered acts of planning to insure that the needs of the college will be met by gifts and bequests of his own or which he has been instrumental in bringing about on the part of non-alumni.

“There is no one in a better posture” (This is a new term, he explained parenthetically. Everybody has a posture now, as well as an image.) “to influence someone to make an enduring investment in Southwestern than one who is himself the continuing image of a similar, earlier investment.

“After long thought I have definitely concluded that a good college is the most enduring of all human institutions, more than churches, hospitals, monuments, and an entity with a soul and a personality. It is as near eternal as anything I have been able to think of.”

Concluding, Dr. Rhodes borrowed from John Masefield’s Tribute to the English Universities, changing only a few words to adapt it to the picture of Southwestern.

“There are few earthly things more beautiful than Southwestern. It is a place where those who hate ignorance may strive to know, where those who perceive truth may strive to make others see; where seekers and learners alike, banded together in the search for knowledge, will honor thought in all its finer ways, will welcome thinkers in distress or in exile, will uphold ever the dignity of thought and learning and will exact standards in these things. It gives to the young in their impressionable years the bond of a lofty purpose shared, of a great corporate life whose links will not be loosed until they die. It gives young people that close companionship for which youth longs, and that chance of the endless discussion of themes which are endless—without which

Homecoming Personalities

Ann Fumbanks of McKenzie, Tenn., Homecoming Queen, was escorted by Perry White of Vicksburg, Miss., commissioner of social activities.

youth would seem a waste of time.

“There are few earthly things more splendid than Southwestern. In these days of broken frontiers and collapsing values—when every future looks somewhat grim and every ancient foothold has become something of a quagmire, where Southwestern stands, it stands and shines; while it exists, the free minds of men, urged on to full and fair inquiry, may still bring wisdom into human affairs.”

Alumnus Furnishes “P’s”

In another of his asides, Dr. Rhodes said he tried to find another word for “remember” beginning with a “P” to complete the alliterative effect with “participate” and “provide.”

Sometime later in the mail came a “pod full of P’s” from the Rev. Eric Mount '57, of Crossett, Ark., who apparently had been pondering the problem profoundly.

Eric compounded the alliteration with his entry: (speaking of the compleat Southwestern alumnus, of course)

1. permanently possesses precious pieces of the past.

2. persistently participates in the present

3. paternally provides for posterity.

Awards to Three

Typifying the “compleat alumnus” of which Dr. Rhodes spoke were three present who were awarded framed prints of Southwestern buildings by Dr. Alfred O. Canon '44, dean of alumni and development, for recent outstanding service to the college. He cited the activities of Mrs. Ed Simmons (Ruth Park '34) for heading a successful fund raising effort among the Southwestern alumni of Memphis and Dr. David Edington '34, and Tom Huckabee '35, both of Mobile, for heading their local Southwestern Club and recruiting highly qualified students for Southwestern.

A Compleat Success

Despite the scattering of events in off campus locations, hundreds of alumni and others flocked to the campus to see the fraternity and sorority lawn decorations, 225 attended the luncheon, and about 3,000 (equivalent of a full house on Fargason Field) were on hand at Hodges Field for the football contest with Sewanee in the afternoon.

Sigma Nu and Chi Omega won first prizes and K.A. and Kappa Delta took seconds. Judges were Mrs. B. G. Brown, A. L. Aydelott, and Mrs. Dixie Wallace.

Homecoming royalty and their escorts were Ann Fumbanks of McKenzie, Tenn., Homecoming Queen, with Perry White of Vicksburg, Miss.; Lyde Ella Conner of Ripley, Tenn., Football Princess, with David Watts of Memphis; and Blair Gilmer of Clifton Forge, Va., “S” Club Princess, with John Kimbro of Marks, Miss.

Rick Mays Memorial

Just before the players came back on the field after the half time, Dr. W. Edward French '39, president of the Southwestern Alumni Association, presided at a brief memorial interlude for Rick Mays '37, head coach at Southwestern for the past seven years who died in a fishing accident last summer.

Dr. French presented to President Rhodes a check for $2,500 representing gifts from many friends, admirers and former classmates for an appropriate Mays memorial on the campus.

Southwestern lost a hard fought football game, 27-12, and the Orgill Cup went to Sewanee for the fourth time. The Lynx also have held it four times during the eight-year series, so next year the contest for the cup starts with past performance even.

Scholarships to Two

George M. (Smoky) Russell '56, president of the Southwestern Men of Memphis, presented at the luncheon the organization’s annual scholarships of $100 each plus a cash award of $25 each to two Southwestern seniors, Jimmy Finley of Adams, Tenn., and Glenn Hays of 1403 Tutwiler, for outstanding campus citizenship.

Homecoming festivities were concluded by open houses at all the fraternity lodges after the game and the annual student-alumni dance, which was held this year at Rainbow Terrace.

From the Ivy-Covered Tower

By Alfred O. Canon, '44, Dean of Alumni and Development

1961 has been a significant milestone for Southwestern at Memphis. During the past 12 months two new residence halls have been completed and occupied. Bellingrath Hall now houses 106 men, with East Hall accommodating 66 women. These two additions to the campus provide badly needed space for the record enrollment of 812 full-time students which entered the college this year. As alumni are aware, this is the largest enrollment in the history of the college. There was approximately a 14% increase in the student body from the fall of the previous year. Much larger than actually anticipated, this enrollment would not have been possible had it not been for the two dormitories which had been started.

It is now anticipated that one additional residence hall for men will be completed — possibly during the next five-year period when the enrollment at Southwestern should reach a peak of approximately 1,175 students.

Two more buildings were started in 1961. The $135,000 Moore Infirmary which was made possible through a bequest from the late Dr. Moore Moore, Sr., has been virtually completed. The interior of the building is being finished and the slate roof is being put on as this column is written. Sidewalks have been laid and gutters poured which will make this a most attractive addition to the campus as soon as landscaping is completed. This greatly needed facility adjoins the north side of Catherine Burrow Refectory and enables hot meals to be provided with maximum ease and efficiency from the kitchen which serves the two dining halls. (Photograph on Page 1.)

Dr. Canon

One of the most significant changes in the Southwestern landscape was made with the start of construction on the $650,000 Halliburton Tower and attached tower building which are provided through the generosity of Mr. Wesley Halliburton and the late Mrs. Halliburton in memory of their son Richard. The Tower will provide a beautiful memorial room and display cases for art exhibits as well as an attractive entrance and reception area for visitors to the campus. The second floor of the building will house offices of the Dean of the College, the Dean of Men, the Dean of Women, and various staff personnel. The third floor is devoted to the Office of the President with the Office of Development being housed on the fourth floor. Heating and cooling machinery is housed in the fifth floor of the Tower proper with the remaining area of the Tower unavailable for office or similar use. When completed in the fall of 1962, this will be a significant landmark for the city of Memphis, as well as for the Southwestern campus. It will rise 125 feet—approximately 11 stories above the ground. As alumni can well imagine, this will be a rather unusual change in the setting provided by Palmer Hall, Robb, Science Hall, and the familiar surrounding buildings.

Plans for Center

Plans for Center

The year 1961 also witnessed the completion of the basic plans and design for the Student-Alumni Campus Center. This will be constructed near the south end of Fargason Field and will, therefore, necessitate the removal of the football field, track and stands to a previously designated area on the northwest portion of the campus. Removal of this field and subsequent construction of a small modern stadium for athletic events will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. The Student-Alumni Center itself will necessitate an expenditure of $300,000. It is designed to provide lounges and recreational area for students, as well as meeting places for students, alumni groups, etc. The center will have a snack bar which will seat 125 students, an attractive bookstore, offices for student organizations such as the Student Council, Honor Council, Student Publications, and one large meeting room on the second floor which may be subdivided into smaller meeting areas. Alumni who remember the rather cramped and underground atmosphere of the present Lynx Lair can fully appreciate the need for and desirability of such a center. Approximately $20,000 has been received during 1961 toward the construction of this building. Efforts are being made to interest alumni and parents, as well as other friends of the college, in providing special gifts for this project. It is hoped that many alumni will wish to make a contribution to this (in addition to their regular contributions to the 1962 Loyalty Fund) and gifts are welcomed in memory of a friend or relative whom the donor might wish to honor in such a significant way. Suitable recognition will be provided in the building for such contributions. If alumni, parents, and other friends respond enthusiastically to this appeal in 1962, it is possible that construction may be started on the Center the latter part of this year or in the early part of 1963.

Increased Endowment

Another interesting development in 1962 has been the increase of about one and a half million dollars in total assets. Part of this increase, of course, has been due to the construction of the four buildings previously mentioned. Funds for two of these are provided through bequests of long-time friends of the institution while other funds for the two residence halls were provided in part through a government housing loan. There was a very significant increase in the endowment, however, due to a $300,000 grant from the Fund for Adult Education, which included Southwestern along with 10 outstanding universities in the United States and Canada in a program of terminal grants which closed out the operations of the Fund on June 30, 1961. The endowment addition is being matched by a similar withdrawal from endowment funds on the part of Southwestern, and the total fund (or the income of it) will be used for the continuation of the outstanding program which Dean Granville D. Davis and Professor Laurence F. Kinney and their colleagues have developed in the field of continuing education for adults. Such a grant is a rather unusual recognition of the position which Southwestern holds throughout the country in this rapidly expanding area of education.

One final word must be added to round out this picture of 1961 and this is the essential part which alumni and friends of the college in Memphis have played in sustaining and expanding the college's program with their financial assistance. Alumni outside of Memphis may not be aware that for the past two years business and industrial leaders in Memphis have contributed over $100,000 each year for the current operations of the college. In the year which has just ended approximately 600 corporations or individuals contributed a total of $120,000 to the operating budget of the college. In addition to this, the Loyalty Fund, as reported on page 1 in this issue of the News, reached an all-time high of over $63,000. Out of this total amount of $185,000 there is approximately $10,000 which is counted in both funds by virtue of the fact that alumni who operate businesses in Memphis contribute to the Loyalty Fund through the Annual Support Program. There is also included in the total figure of the Loyalty Fund for 1961 the $20,000 which has been contributed by alumni and parents toward the erection of a Student-Alumni Campus Center.

This means that a net amount of $155,000 in round numbers has been received from alumni and interested friends in Memphis toward the operation of the college's program during the current fiscal year. Until the Southwestern endowment can reach a point where it can sustain a greater portion of the operating budget, support of this nature along with that provided by the Presbyterian church in the four Synods of Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Tennessee, is essential for the continued operation of a college program of quality and excellence. The faculty, students, and administration are most grateful to alumni, as well as to the business community of Memphis and to the church, for such loyal cooperation and effective indications of their interest in and support for this college.

A Forward Look

If 1961 has been a significant step in the progress and development of Southwestern, 1962 may be an equally important year for the future of the college. It is anticipated that the enrollment will increase in the fall of 1962 by approximately seven to 10%. This will mean an enrollment of close to 900 students in September. Plans must, there-

Freshmen Highly Rated Many Sons and Daughters

Southwestern's freshman class is one of the more academically promising in the nation, according to a recent study by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. The colleges taken into consideration were those attended by Merit Scholars.

About 92 per cent of Southwestern's freshman class maintained a high school average of B minus or better, as against 76 per cent for the entire group. 35 per cent held A averages, while only 22 per cent of the full group showed such grades.

Of this class, 23 are sons and daughters of Southwestern alumni.

Another point of interest is that 25 per cent of Southwestern's freshmen intend to work toward the Ph. D. or equivalent as compared with 22 per cent for the entire group.

The colleges under comparison, Malcolm Evans, registrar emeritus, points out, are a very select group—those chosen by Merit Scholars, who may go to any college they wish.

Sons and daughters of Southwestern alumni in the class include Wade Montgomery Baine of Montevallo, Ala., son of Dr. Rodney Baine '35; Susan Mitchum Ball of Germantown, Tenn., daughter of Mrs. Dudley Mitchum (Catherine Orr '37); Kathryn Ann Carroll of Memphis, daughter of the late Mrs. David S. Carroll (Mary Catherine McGuire '39); and Samuel Cutter Carfer of Harlingen, Tex., son of Samuel Carter, Sr., '39.

Ruth Mitchell Davis of Memphis, daughter of Mr. ('41) and Mrs. Earl Pritchard Davis (Ruth Mitchell '42); Marion Judith Emery of Dallas, Tex., daughter of Mrs. John A. Emery (Virginia Hoshall '37); Patricia Ann Gladney of Homer, La., daughter of Dr. James F. Gladney '38; Margaret Ann Harwood of Memphis, daughter of W. H. Harwood '39; and Dineta McCormick of Germantown, Tenn., daughter of Mr. ('33) and Mrs. Claude H. McCormick (Dorothy D. Smith '33).

Robert Alexander McLean of Memphis, son of Mrs. Albert Alexander McLean (Harrriet Pond '39); James A. McNeill of Memphis, son of James S. Southwestern Joins Athletic Conference With Sewanee, Centre, Washington & Lee Southwestern announced early this month formation of a new athletic conference which will include also Centre, Sewanee, and Washington and Lee.

Cardinal principle of the new College Athletic Conference will be "that all participation in sports by members of its teams shall be solely because of interest in and enjoyment of the game."

Financial aid is barred completely for encouragement of participating in sports and each member college takes full responsibility for upholding their standards of academic qualification for all players. No eligibility rules were set.

Southwestern Chairs

No. 1916-14 D

No. 1834-5 D

The distinctive Early American chairs shown above with the Southwestern seal in gold and cardinal red have been designed for the homes and offices of Southwestern alumni and can be ordered from the Alumni Office.

Both are made of Northern Yellow Birch with DULUX ebony semi-gloss finish and trimmed with thin gold lines.

Sample chairs can be seen in the Alumni Office, but orders will be shipped directly from the manufacturer with shipping charges C.O.D. ($3 to $9 per chair according to weight and distance.) Remittance should be made to the college with the order and chair number, shown above, should be specified.

The arm chair, left, measures 20 inches across the seat and has cherry arms in natural finish. Price $35.

The thumb-back chair, right, is 17 inches wide. Price $20.

They are made by S. Bent & Bros., Inc. Orders should be addressed to Goodbar Morgan, director of alumni affairs at Southwestern.

Weeks of Memphis, daughter of Mr. ('37) and Mrs. Louis B. Weeks, Jr., (Mary B. Hunt '40); and Martha Celeste Wilson of Bossier City, La., daughter of the Rev. John M. Wilson '47.

There also were six sons and daughters of alumni who entered this year as transfers:

Marjorie Raymond Coleman of Memphis, daughter of Mrs. F. W. Coleman (Marjorie Raymond '33); Sarah Mitchell Cunningham of Memphis, daughter of Mrs. W. J. Cunningham (Lorinne R. Mitchell '31); Barbara Everett of Memphis, daughter of Dr. B. E. Everett '46; John Krenkel Lawo, Jr., of Memphis, son of Mrs. J. K. Lawo (Virginia Davis '32); Jane Dean Sohm of Whitehaven, Tenn., daughter of Mrs. J. J. Sohm (Jane Dean '58); and Judith Lain Watt of Humboldt, Tenn., daughter of Mr. ('38) and Mrs. James T. Watt (Marietta Leath Morris '38).

The New York Times said of the new alliance, "Without fudging, this gets right to the heart of what constitutes 'proper conduct of intercollegiate sports as defined even by those who stray from the line in practice. If enough other institutions adopt and live up to these principles, the N.C.A.A. in future years will not have to waste so much time on such gnat-slapping proposals as barring outside competition in basketball."

Athletic Director Bill Maybry '42 said he and Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, president, have long sought such an alliance with other colleges of academic standing and athletic philosophy like Southwestern's. One or two other colleges are expected to join the conference.

fore, be worked out fairly soon for the erection of additional science laboratories and classrooms to relieve the increasing pressure which is a handicap to effective teaching in this area. It is hoped that the Annual Support Program will bring in at least $150,000 in corporate and individual contributions during the year and that the Loyalty Fund can be sustained at a figure of approximately $50,000, with additional contributions by alumni to the Student-Alumni Campus Center Fund.

Along with these physical and financial developments there are slowly evolving certain basic changes in the curriculum and degree requirements. New faculty must be found to augment the present group, and a few faculty and staff members will be retiring each year during the next five years. Alumni can, therefore, visualize the problems which are involved in the expansion of the college through its ultimate enrollment of approximately 1200 students. In the October 1961 Bulletin of Southwestern President Rhodes asked and answered the question "When will Southwestern be completed?" In one of his concluding paragraphs he expressed his thoughts in this fashion: "In my thinking, Southwestern will be completed as a liberal arts college of exceptional potential when the plant has been augmented as described, with a current value of some eighteen and one half to twenty millions, when the endowment funds have been at least tripled, and when the current support is increased as stated above." This seems to be a tremendous goal, but as one looks back over the past year and the past decade, it is not difficult to visualize the eventual realization of this vision for a college with an exceptional faculty, an outstanding student body and some of the most attractive and beautiful buildings of any campus in this country. Alumni can look with pride on an institution which has grown in such a fashion during the past months and years without sacrificing the high ideals on which it was founded.

Frank Jemison Likes ECM

Frank Jemison '41, came back from Europe SOLD on the European Common Market.

Mr. Jemison

Traveling with 30 men from various parts of the U.S. who are fellow members of the Young Presidents organization, conferring with businessmen, observing the economy, and considering business opportunities. Frank visited all the participating countries—France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Italy, Luxembourg, and both East and West Germany—as well as England and Switzerland during the three weeks air tour.

There's no doubt about it, he says. Business is booming. He believes, too, that economic cooperation eventually will lead to political cooperation. As tariff barriers disappear, so will the obstacles of national interests.

He urges students to learn French, Italian, and German for he sees "tremendous opportunities for American trade in Europe and an increasing demand for multi-lingual businessmen and women."

The select group with which he traveled also had an audience with Pope John on his birthday Nov. 25, in company with a group of Austrian cardinals, saw The Wall in Berlin, and negotiated the checkpoints without incident.

The organization is made up of men who have become presidents of substantial corporations before the age of 40. His company, W. D. Jemison & Sons, Inc., engages in real estate development, residence and general construction, and motor hotel operations. Frank also is president of the National Association of Holiday Inns.

Hospital of Tomorrow

The Rev. Donald J. MacGuire '45, of Montgomery, Ala., is building, with his brother, Dr. Hugh C. MacGuire and associates, a small experimental automated hospital which may revolutionize hospital planning and patient care.

There will be no kitchen, no bathrooms, no laundry, and no operating rooms.

The circular unit, accommodating 22 patients in private rooms around its circumference who are under constant surveillance from a central monitoring post, is scheduled for completion in the spring. It is envisioned as the pilot unit in an ultimate complex of hospitals and complete medical center on a 2,200 acre plot at Tuskegee, Ala.

The building, constructed of two layers of aluminum with plastic filling in between, features a double shelled roof which admits filtered sunlight, slide-back ceilings for individual rooms, and storage bins beneath movable floor panels.

Each patient's room opens onto the peripheral hallway which encircles the building on the outside and also into the sterile area inside the ring of rooms which is used for surgery, post operative, and intensive care.

Each room will be equipped with an electronic modular console containing bathroom facilities, food freezer and cooker, electronic equipment which signals the patient's blood pressure, temperature, and other body variables to the central nursing center, and two-way television communication between patient and nurse at the station.

Patients will use disposable cellulose fiber "linens" and will eat meals, flipped from freezer to cooker by push button, on disposable dishes.

Donald MacGuire, who is executive secretary of the Atomedics Research Center, says that when the model hospital is complete and mass produced, the 22 bed units will be available at a cost of about $10,000 including electronic equipment, and can be set up within a few weeks time.

The project has been widely publicized in hospital and medical periodicals.

These I Recommend

For those inadvertently trapped in fallout shelters, wounded in after-Christmas sale stampedes, or driven to the printed word by the malfunction of coaxial cables, the staff of the Burrow Library recommends three good books, says Albert M. Johnson '30, librarian.

Mr. Johnson

He adds the following comments to those of Southwestern professors whose book preferences have provided the basis for the "These I Remember" book displays in the library:

Swanberg, W. A.

Citizen Hearst: A Biography of William Randolph Hearst.

Not content with the wealth to which he was born, William Randolph Hearst launched his career as a newspaper publisher at the age of twenty-three. Capitalizing upon the appeal of the vulgar and the sensational, he amassed such a following that it was within his power to dictate national policy. He spoke of the war with Spain in 1898 as "The Journal's war", and he was far from wrong. At the height of his career, he owned twenty-six daily papers, eleven magazines, mines, ranches, Manhattan real estate, and lived in feudal splendor in San Simeon, his castle on the California coast, which cost him a cool $6,000 a day to maintain. The late 1930's saw the disintegration of his empire, and the bitter fact that he found himself 126 million dollars in debt was a blow from which the aging tycoon never recovered. Mr. Swanberg has written with strict impartiality, but has left no facet of Hearst's life unexplored. The story of the man who was a legend in his own lifetime makes excellent reading.

Schorer, Mark

Sinclair Lewis: An American Life.

Main Street, which appeared in 1920, firmly established Sinclair Lewis as a voice of America. Then followed Babbitt, Arrowsmith, Elmer Gantry and Dodsworth. Lewis refused the Pulitzer Prize for Arrowsmith in 1926, but was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1930. Although he continued to write up until his death in 1951, his fame rests on the novels written prior to 1930. Schorer's biography emphasizes the personal tragedy of the author's life. At college he was the fellow nobody wanted to room with. He strove for acceptance, but was repeatedly driven back to his own kind, the eccentric strays and lonely grinds. When fame came to him, he still remained one of the most unhappy, haunted, tormented men who ever wrote. He was physically ugly, a failure as a husband and father, an alcoholic, and—most tragic of all—a man who was both acutely lonely and alone from his early youth in Sauk Centre, Minnesota, to his pitiful death in a Rome hospital surrounded by strangers. In his writings he struck out against the two targets that formed the staple of his satire: the standardization of manners in a business culture, and the stultification of morals in a middle class society. But in spite of his penetrating analysis of the culture of his time, Schorer points out that "he was a writer who staunchly refused—as far as one can tell—ever to take one good hard look into himself."

It is a pleasure to recommend an unusual and entirely delightful book. This is the

by Carroll Cloar '34

Once upon a time there was a little girl whom I shall call Xenia. She lived on the coast of France, in the vicinity of St. Lo. She was mean and spritey, but she was a smart little girl, and cute as a bessie bug. One day she wandered down to the beach and there she encountered a monster. He had two noses on one side of his face, three eyes, and two or three mouths, all full of teeth. Little Xenia was not afraid of the monster. She was not only mean and spritey, she was also very brave. "Monster," she said, "This is a private beach. What are you doing here?" The monster said, "I am not a monster. I am an artist's model. I work for Picasso, and if you will take the time to look at me you will see that I am really quite story of an actual Japanese inn, which has been kept by eighteen generations of the same family. Its history traces the social history of Japan through four centuries, and its story is so beautifully told that to read it is to lose one's self in a world apart. The author, who went to Japan with the American Occupation, discovered the inn as soon as it was declared "on limits" to Americans. He continued to visit it during his eleven year stay in Japan. His friendly association with the innkeeper, the priests, and residents of the village made it possible for him to get the necessary information. But it is his love affair with Japan that has enabled him so completely to convey the mood of the country and to have made of Japanese Inn the thing of sheer delight that it is.

Cloar, a nationally known artist, concluded a recent talk on modern art at the Brooks Art Gallery with this little story.

beautiful." So Xenia, who was really quite fearless in addition to having a very high I.Q. sat and stared at the monster for the better part of an hour. Finally she said, "Thing, or whatever you are, I can see now that you are not really a monster. You are friendly and kind and absolutely harmless, and I am sure you are good to your parents, if you have any, but you will never, never convince me that you are not ugly."

The monster, or whatever he was, was very upset over these what he considered ill considered remarks and began to cry. Tears were streaming from all three eyes and he started running out to sea, and the last Xenia saw of him he stuck up his hand above the water and waved at her, all eight fingers.

Textile Collection Show

A collection of fine textiles, robes, and garments from Greece, Turkey, and the Middle East recently given to Southwestern by Miss Adelene Gilfillan and her sister, Mrs. Marion L. MacQueen (Grace Gilfillan '27) will be shown in the Treasure Room of the Burrow Library during February.

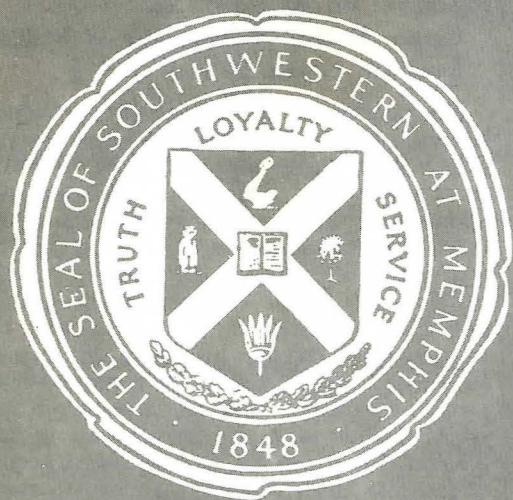

The new acquisition was given in memory of the late Miss Adelene Moffatt, New York artist and collector and aunt of the donors. The college owns several paintings which were gifts of Miss Moffatt also.

Miss Etta D. Hanson, curator, said alumni are especially invited to come and bring their families and friends.
