A Christmas Message to all Southwestern Alumni, Parents, and Sponsors

My wife and I join in sending each of you a personal Christmas greeting in this December issue of the Southwestern News. As we look forward happily to entrusting our job to the capable hands of Dr. and Mrs. John David Alexander, Jr., '53 and '55, on July 1, 1965, we recall with gratitude the friendships formed in over thirty-eight years spent in Southwestern and the innumerable acts of kindness and good will shown us always. These cherished memories make our Christmas wish for you a very special one. It is simply that great peace and joy and happiness will be yours, not only at this holy season, but increasingly throughout your life.

The 1964-65 session opened with a record enrollment of 925 regular and 15 special students. Homecoming and Parents' Day produced memorable turnouts of alumni and parents. Southwestern must allow enrollment to increase slowly, but our thinking still holds to a top figure of 1,200, half resident on the campus, if there are to be preserved the traditions and values of a small Christian college. The continuing need will be ever increasing financial support to do a better job for a limited and carefully selected student body rather than spreading all of our efforts too thin.

The first football game played on beautiful, new Fargason Field (north of the Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium) was won at the expense of Centre College 28 to 7. Temporary, rented bleachers are being used until funds can be secured to construct permanent stands. Freshly resurfaced, all-weather tennis courts were opened October 26, and the next track meet will be on a fine six-lane oval of new construction. Last spring the basketball team won the College Athletic Conference Tournament and the golf team won the CAC bell trophy for the second consecutive year.

Southwestern has accepted an invitation to participate in the "G-E College Bowl" color telecast to be seen on NBC-TV December 20. Watch this show and pull for our team.

By action of the Board of Directors there has been initiated an excellent program of sabbatical leaves for faculty of established tenure.

As a result of an action of the Board of Directors in March, 1963, day students qualified by character, demonstrated academic ability, and seriousness of purpose were eligible for admission at the beginning of the 1964-65 session without regard to race. Three full-time and one special Negro student (in Christian Education) are currently enrolled. At a recent meeting of the Board in October it was decided, beginning with the summer session of 1965, that both day and residential applicants, qualified as stated above, would be admitted without regard to race.

From executors of estates we have been informed of bequests that should in time provide over $750,000 for the college. People are realizing more and more that they can conserve their entire estates and project their own personalities in perpetuity by a thoughtfully drawn will with Southwestern as contingent or residuary beneficiary.

A chapter of Mortar Board, the national women's honor society, was installed in April.

Dr. and Mrs. Peyton N. Rhodes

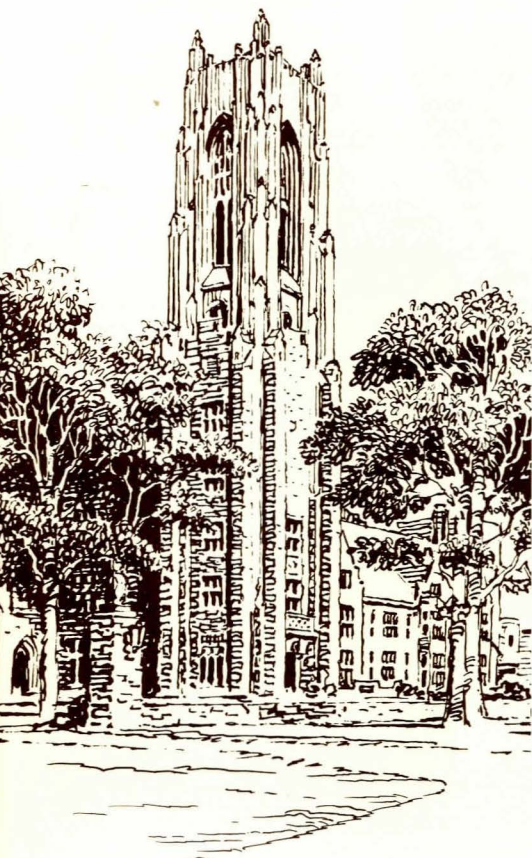

Progress continues in the expansion of teaching and research in the natural sciences. Grants applicable to equipment and current research projects are of the order of $110,000. The establishment in May of a Laboratory of Atmospheric and Optical Physics represents an unusual thrust by a small college into space studies of major importance in national defense, as well as pure physics. Research Corporation of New York and McGregor Fund have made substantial supporting grants for this work. New buildings for biology and physics and adequate provision for experimental psychology are imperative needs.

To those of us who knew him for so long, the death on February 27 of President Emeritus Charles E. Diehl represented a great loss; yet we can be grateful that the college is a monument to his life of dedication and devotion to its beginnings and growth in Memphis. In electing, on May 28, David Alexander to assume the presidency next July, the Board of Directors chose a man who will carry on ably and with vigor in the Southwestern tradition of genuineness and excellence.

Every year at Southwestern is an exciting one, filled with accomplishments made possible by the purposeful efforts of many persons, on and off campus. May every one of you share in making the college ever finer as the Christmases and New Years continue to bring you and yours every blessing.

Students to Appear on NBC-TV GE "College Bowl"—December 20th!

Dr. Jameson M. Jones '36, dean of the college, announces that Southwestern has been invited to compete on the December 20th GE "College Bowl" television program, seen nationwide on NBC-TV!

The program is telecast in color and will feature, along with the competition, a brief color movie of Southwestern, which will be narrated by one of our student panel members.

Ray Hill, associate professor of speech and dramatics, is faculty chairman of the committee which will select the panel of students; he is assisted by Dr. John Hemphill, Dr. Richard Gilliom '56, and professor James Roper '48.

General Electric will pay the expenses for the four-student team and coach. The winning college each week receives a $1,500 scholarship grant, with $500 going to the losing college. The winner is invited back the following week, and may compete in a maximum of five "games," after which they earn the title of "retired undefeated champions" and an additional $1,500 grant goes to the college.

The program originates weekly from the National Broadcasting Company's famous Studio 8H, 30 Rockefeller Plaza in New York. Students and alumni who will be in New York at that time are urged to request tickets from NBC and attend the telecast. For local viewing check your newspaper for time and station.

A Nostalgic Trek Back Homecoming—A Memory Tickler!

Southwestern's Homecoming Day for 1964 was on October 17, and perhaps the best review of that memorable date was expressed by Robert Johnson '35 in his "Good Evening!" column which appears in the Memphis Press-Scimitar:—

"When enough years have passed, there is something strangely moving about walking among the memories of youth, exchanging reminiscences and catching up to date on friends one hasn't seen in too long. Went to Southwestern's Homecoming Day, and it was almost enough to make me want to be young again.

"As he has so many times to many of us, Dr. Peyton Rhodes spoke of the college's accomplishments, old and new. The Halls of Ivy, that gentle collegiate world as we knew it two or three decades and more ago, are not the same, he said.

"The only thing Ivy about professors these days probably is that they're wearing pants too small and too short, while telling some secretary with a tight skirt and high heels how to punch a card, he said. But he said, while we like to think of our old professors as being men apart—and they were—we'd find the new breed at Southwestern measures up, and some of us might have a hard time getting through college now.

Two Reasons to Celebrate

"Alvan '35 and Virginia '40 Tate had double cause for celebration. He was Kappa Sig, which won for decoration among fraternities, and she was AOPi, which won among sororities. Having the football games back on campus, instead of at Hodges Field as they had to for a few years, makes a big difference, Alvan said. "There is a charm about walking under the trees and reliving the memories which was missing at Hodges," he said.

"Paul Calame '35 . . . especially enjoyed seeing his old roommate, Tom Jones '35, now an architect in Starkville. I missed seeing Tom. I used to enjoy sitting with him and his brother Jameson in the Js in chapel. And what I'd give for a recording of some of our appraisals of speakers!!!

"Wes Adams '27, all the way from Philadelphia, Pa., talked old times with Harry Walton '31, who played on the same team with him in the 20's, and Billy Hughes '29 and Charlie Diehl '32 . . . Mrs. Richard Lunt, the former Grace Mays '41, sister of the late and popular Rick Mays '37, came from Wilmington, Del. . . Dr. J. A. Warren '15, a retired Presbyterian minister now living in Germantown, Tennessee, was there . . . Berl Waller '42, now a successful Chevvy dealer in Clarksdale, brought his attractive daughter, a high school senior, to see his campus.

"Bill Belcher '40 was seeing friends he hadn't seen in two decades. He came to Memphis last fall to join Archer and Woodbury Advertising and his old college friend, Ward Archer '39 . . . Brothers Erskine '38 and Harold '40 Falls, with their wives, came over from Wynne, Arkansas . . . McKay Boswell '38, who held the low hurdle record for more than 25 years, was rooting for the Lynx at the Homecoming game . . . It was a fine day for the old grads."

New Members of Board Announced

Three new board members attended their first meeting at Southwestern in October. They are Earl W. Mallick, vice president South, United States Steel Corporation, Fairfield, Alabama; B. V. Bodie, vice president and general manager, Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company in Mobile; and the Rev. Mr. Stewart W. Yandle, pastor of Lakeview Presbyterian Church in New Orleans.

Two new members were elected to Southwestern's Investment Committee during the fall meeting of the Board of Directors in October.

They are: W. Porter Grace, Jr., executive vice president of Union Planters Bank in Memphis; and Early F. Mitchell, executive vice president of First National Bank in Memphis.

Vance J. Alexander and Troy Beatty, Jr., both of Memphis, were elected to honorary memberships on the Investment Committee, while B. Snowden Boyle of Boyle Investment Company in Memphis was elected chairman of that Committee. The new vice chairman is Brown Burch of Memphis.

Other Investment Committee members are Peyton N. Rhodes, president of Southwestern; Lewis R. Donelson III '38, treasurer of the college; A. Van Pritchard, Sr., chairman of the Board of Directors and the Executive Committee; with C. L. Springfield, comptroller of the college, serving as secretary; and Maury Wade '29, investment counselor.

Frank A. England, Jr., '41, vice president of England Motor Company in Greenville, Mississippi, a member of the Board of Directors representing the Synod of Mississippi, was elected 2nd vice chairman of the Corporation, replacing the Rev. Mr. Murphey C. Wilds, who recently moved to the Synod of Alabama.

A student at Southwestern who does not receive any form of financial aid actually pays 56% of the cost of instruction. The remaining 44% is provided from endowment income and contributions of the church, alumni, and corporations.

In view of the increased cost of education, Southwestern's Board of Directors has recently authorized an increase in tuition of $50.00 per semester for the 1965-66 session. Slight changes in the room fees for resident students are reflected in the following tabulation of expenses for 1965-66:

Tuition, per semester	$550.00
Activities Fee,
per semester	50.00
Board, per semester	225.00
Men's Residence Halls,
per semester	137.50 to 162.50
Women's Residence Halls,
per semester	125.00 to 175.00

A few rooms do not have air conditioning. The charge will be $10.00 less for such accommodations.

As the 1965-66 class of freshmen looms on the horizon, Southwestern faces its own rather unique "crisis" in connection with this pressure and related financial matters. In the fall of 1964, enrollment reached the all-time peak at Southwestern of nine hundred and twenty-five (925) full time students. It is anticipated that the enrollment may increase in the fall of 1965 to approximately one thousand (1,000) students. In an effort to meet this increase without impairing the quality of instruction and putting a strain on facilities which are already taxed, the college has secured additional faculty and is building with a government loan at least one additional residence hall for men, housing one hundred and twenty-four students, which will be ready for occupancy next September.

As the student body increases and additional facilities are required, other educational costs are rising, necessitating an increase in tuition as well as room charges. In addition, new programs, such as sabbatical leaves for the faculty, which have been held back for a number of years, are being instituted this fall, and this has added additional commitments to the budget, which has increased to over two million dollars during the current academic year.

Income Sources Eyed

With the prospect of increasing pressures and the need for additional funds, the college is constantly forced to evaluate its sources of income. During the current session, student tuition and fees will approximate 56% of the estimated income, 18% of the income will be derived from endowment funds, 13% from the Presbyterian Church and a final 13% from alumni and corporate contributors. It has been considered essential that each of these sources of income be increased substantially if the demands on the college are to be adequately met. As indicated above, a decision has been made to increase student tuition and fees to a level which will bring the total cost (minimum) of one year at Southwestern to approximately $1,750. We are understandably very reluctant to increase tuition beyond a certain point in view of the fact that thirty-eight per cent of our students are currently receiving financial aid of some form, and we do not feel that we can price ourselves out of the market for students in this area who are not able to pay higher tuition.

In the past fiscal year, Southwestern actually received benevolence income from its four co-operating synods in the amount of $151,649. This was an increase of more than $7,000 over the previous year, although income from the two synods of Alabama and Mississippi was actually less during this period. A significant increase in church support came, however, in the amount produced by seven churches which have now instituted a direct congregational benevolence as a memorial to a former pastor or beloved member of their church. These so-called "Chair Churches" contributed a total of $33,041 in 1963-64, and this amount will steadily increase as each church builds up the support for the Chair which it is endowing. It is to be hoped that additional churches which have substantial numbers of members and greater resources will see fit to follow the lead of these seven churches and initiate an endowed Chair at the first opportunity.

Role of the A.S.P.

The Annual Sponsors Program, under which over one thousand businesses and individuals in Memphis are contacted each fall, continues to be a significant source of income which amounted to $150,777 in 1963-64. This represented an increase of over $22,000 relative to the previous year. In addition to this amount the college received over $5,000 through the Tennessee Independent Colleges Fund, which distributes grants made to five of the major independent colleges and universities in the state from national corporations.

Role of the Loyalty Fund

One of the most encouraging aspects of additional income support has been in the area of alumni contributions. Alumni gifts in 1963 showed an increase of $21,142. The percentage of alumni contributing, however, remained substantially the same at 22.7%. This is about the national average for small co-educational liberal arts colleges.

During the current academic year, state and city chairmen for the Loyalty Fund have received materials and instructions for an intensive campaign over the winter months. An attempt will be made to contact each alumnus by personal calls, telephone or letter in addition to the direct mailings from the college.

The per cent of alumni who contribute is extremely important whenever the college is applying for grants or direct gifts from foundations and national corporations. An increasing number of these groups are requesting information as to the per cent of alumni who support the institution. The dollar amount given therefore, although important, is not as significant in many cases as the percentage of alumni who do contribute.

Looking Ahead

In the long view of the future, one of the solutions to Southwestern's financial dilemma lies in the increase in its endowment. As the following table indicates, the endowment of Southwestern has increased significantly in the past eleven years, but not rapidly enough to take care of the pressure in enrollment. As a result, the endowment per student has actually dropped from $5,500 in 1951 to $5,457 in 1962. At the same time, as you will note from the table, the endowment per student of a selected group of institutions, with which Southwestern competes in one sense, has increased appreciably in every instance.

ENDOWMENT OF SELECTED INSTITUTIONS 1951 and 1962

Institution	Endowment and Enrollment		Endowment per student
	1951-52	1962-63	1951	1962
Agnes Scott	$ 2,766,900 (457)	$10,377,551 (667)	$ 6,054	$15,558
Davidson	6,222,850 (828)	11,454,765 (989)	7,516	11,582
University of the South	3,176,353 (513)	10,423,777 (771)	6,191	13,520
Vanderbilt	31,562,071 (2886)	63,009,071 (4202)	10,936	14,995
Washington and Lee	6,370,645 (1044)	10,935,327 (1224)	6,102	8,934
Southwestern	2,607,349 (474)	4,845,784 (888)	5,500	5,457

In most cases, increases to the endowment fund have come primarily from bequests. There are very few instances in which an individual wishes to leave a large amount to an institution other than for a scholarship fund or perhaps an endowed Chair. In other words, individuals are generally interested in giving out of current income to a building fund campaign. It is therefore imperative that each alumnus consider very seriously the prospects of adding a provision to his will leaving to Southwestern a portion of his final estate. This could be done by indicating Southwestern as a beneficiary for an insurance policy or by simply giving a specific bequest or percentage of the residual estate to the college. If this gift and bequest program can be effectively developed among our alumni and other friends, it can well become the key to Southwestern's future growth and development.

With the beginning of the 1964-65 academic year, a new policy has been put into effect in connection with the printing and mailing of this publication:

1. The News will be published six, rather than four, times each year.
2. Five issues will go to all alumni who have graduated from the college in the past five years or who have indicated an interest in the college by contributing to the Loyalty Fund or Annual Sponsors Program during the past five years.
3. The December or Christmas issue will go to all alumni.

In view of the rising publication and mailing expenses, this procedure has been adopted so that those alumni who are apparently most interested in the college will be more effectively served by the News.

To Southwestern Alumni Report of the Dean of Admissions

—by Dr. Ray M. Allen

Often alumni have the opportunity to interpret Southwestern to high school students who are potential applicants for admission. A brief description of the characteristics of the present freshman class may aid you in this interpretation and in your evaluation of those persons who express interest in Southwestern. First, however, a word about the student body as a whole.

The student body of the current semester is composed of 925 regular, full-time students, and 15 special students, making a total of 940. These students come from 27 states and four foreign countries. Of the total enrollment of regular students, 497 are men (54%) and 428 are women (46%). Resident students number 512 (55.4%) and commuting students 413 (44.6%).

Presbyterians comprise over 43% (398). Three hundred and fifty-three students (38%) are receiving a total of $223,889.00 in financial assistance, of which $198,890.00 is administered by the Southwestern Committee on Admissions and Student Aid.

The freshman class consists of 306 students, 170 men and 136 women, who have come from 147 schools in 103 cities in 20 states. The largest number of students, 28, more than 9 percent of the freshman class, came from Central High School in Memphis. There are 96 students who are the only ones entering Southwestern this year from their respective schools. Fourteen students entered from Nashville; 10 each from Chattanooga, Jackson (Mississippi), Little Rock and East High of Memphis; 9 from White Station, Memphis; 8 from Treadwell, Memphis; 7 each from Miss Hutchison's and Whitehaven, Memphis; 6 each from Franklin, Tennessee, Lausanne and Messick High of Memphis, and Mobile, Alabama; and 5 each from Birmingham, Huntsville, Baton Rouge, Memphis University School and Overton High, Memphis.

Academically, the freshman class is better qualified than ever before. Of the 170 men, 107 of them (63%) graduated from their high schools in the first quarter of their senior classes. Last year the percentage was 61.0. It is even better with the women: 116 out of 136 (85% compared to 80% last year) were in the first quarter.

The average College Board SAT scores are also higher for the Class of 1968 than those of the Class of 1967:

	Verbal	Mathematical
Men, 1967	520	563
Men, 1968	531	579.1
Women, 1967	554	538
Women, 1968	580.8	558.2

Because of the increase in applications for admission during the past several years, the Admissions Committee each year faces a difficult problem in deciding which applicants to accept from a large number of qualified candidates. Including transfer applications, 847 applications were considered for admission in September, 1964. A breakdown of freshman applications results in the following statistics:

	Men	Women	Total
Freshman applications received	330	364	694
Freshman applications accepted	285	211	496
Freshmen matriculated	170	136	306

In the freshman class, 69 students have been designated Southwestern Scholars, which means that they have made at least 1200 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, were in the first quarter of their graduating classes, and were highly recommended by the officials of their high schools. Twenty of them have been awarded Honor Scholarships. Eleven Leadership Awards and three Baker Scholarships were also won in competition. Other grants have been made to 54 freshmen; 25 have received National Defense Loans; 25 are engaged in campus employment; and 23 have received a tuition credit of $100.00 as ministerial candidates or children of ministers or educators.

The Committee, in considering each candidate, carefully evaluates all available information. Special attention is given to secondary school grades, program of study, and recommendations; College Board scores; personal qualifications; and reasons for wanting to attend Southwestern. Applicants who have made positive contributions in the activities of their high schools and communities are considered by the Committee likely to continue making contributions to the college community and to society after college.

Football and Basketball Both Lynx Teams Building Up

—by "Mike" Simmons '65

Southwestern's fighting Lynx footballers underwent an extensive building program this season, with a squad composed of almost no juniors and seniors, and starting four or five freshmen every game.

Head coach Jesse Johnson, in his second year of Lynx leadership guided his team to the best Southwestern record in several years, and has big plans for the future, losing only two men through graduation next June. If all his freshmen and sophomores return, and the incoming freshmen are as good as this year's crop, the Lynx will be tough to handle and will be shooting for a top spot in the College Athletic Conference.

This year, the Lynx had their toughest schedule in over five years, with Georgetown and College of the Ozarks replaced by nationally-ranked Austin and rugged Principia. Austin was fifth in the nation in pass offense and had the No. 1 passer in the nation, Jerry Bishop, when the Lynx took the field against them. Of course, the CAC places a heavy burden on Southwestern, schedule-wise, with Washington and Sewanee annually rated among the top college teams in the nation. The Lynx lost to both this year, but managed to put on an impressive defensive display most of the game.

The Big Problem

The big problem this year was lack of a solid offensive threat, after Bert Chafin, last year's all-CAC quarterback, quit the team. Sophomore Don Hollingsworth and freshman Bruce Cook filled in at quarterback, but Johnson will definitely be looking for a good combination passer and thrower during the recruiting period. Also, a couple of big backs are desperately needed. The heaviest back this season was a 190-pound freshman.

End was a real headache, with a severe lack of experienced personnel. None will be lost through graduation, and Johnson reports that three or four big freshmen should take care of that situation. This season was played with one veteran offensive end and one letterman at defensive end.

Basketball Forecast

The 1964-65 basketball season has bright promise for being the most successful in the college's history. Don Duckworth, a young and dynamic coach, led his Lynx to the CAC crown last year, upsetting a field comprising Washington University, Sewanee, Centre, and Washington and Lee. Both Washington and Centre were nationally-ranked teams and went on to be chosen for participation in NCAA regional tournaments. The whole-season record was not impressive, but the CAC tourney was a harbinger of what's to come this year.

Duckworth's recruiting and last year's game experience yields a squad that has 10 men that could start on any team the Lynx will face this year. Lack of height will hurt in rebounding and defending against bigger teams, but the fighting Lynx have shown a lot of hustle thus far, and could easily have Southwestern's first winning basketball record.

The schedule this year is tougher than ever, with David Lipscomb, Oglethorpe, Tulane, and Hendrix replacing some of last season's easier teams.

Dr. Charles Albert Harper, on October 1, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. Ernest Wilson of Ripley, Miss., after a six-week illness. Ordained to the ministry and installed as pastor of the Presbyterian Church U. S. in Somerville, Tenn., on December 17, 1914, Dr. Harper had held pastorates in Arkansas, Texas, North Carolina, and Tennessee. He served as the first pastor of the Frayser Presbyterian Church here when it was organized in 1950. In 1957 Southwestern conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities. He had retired from the active ministry, and since 1956 had served as the Hospital Chaplain for the Memphis Presbytery. Besides his daughter, Dr. Harper leaves a son, Charles A. Harper, Jr., of Raleigh, N. C., and eight grandchildren.

Watching Downtown Airport from his office window (he practices dentistry in the Sterick Bldg.), he made up his mind to spend his lunch hours in the air. He says he took a lot of ribbing from his friends, who began calling him "Wrong Way Corrigan." Undaunted, he received his private pilot's license in 1962. In addition to local pleasure hops, he was soon making flights around the country—to attend dental meetings and to his private business enterprises. In August he and Vic Shainberg made their first over-water flight, in a single-engine plane, when they flew a Cessna 182 to Nassau and Grand Bahama Island.

Beginning with a champagne breakfast at the Summit Club and ending five days later with a "Gala Night Out" banquet and ball at the Rivermont, Memphis' "eight outstanding women who work" were honored by the Downtown Association. Annah Lee Early, president of the Southern Greeting Card Co., one of the top eight, gave as her formula, "Genuine interest in your job, a desire to do it well—and hard work."

Helen Lowrance, 1779 Glenwood Place, recently chaperoned members of the sixth-grade at Hutchison School on their annual week-end trip to New Orleans, part of the school's educational travel program. Helen, who is Head of the Lower School (grades kindergarten through six), also handles the admissions and enrollment testing for the entire school. In addition to the sixth-grade New Orleans junket, the fourth grade annually visits Nashville, and grades eight and nine alternate between New York City and Washington, D. C. Helen has been one of the teacher-chaperones for these trips ever since their inception several years ago—has also accompanied groups of the school's older girls to Europe. A recent brochure, "Your Career in Optics," published by the Optical Society of America, devotes two full pages to Southwestern alumnus David P. Glenn.

David, originally from Birmingham, Alabama, entered Southwestern At Memphis in 1956 with the firm intention of becoming an electrical engineer. At Southwestern Dave was inspired by Dr. Jack Taylor, chairman of the physics department and a noted expert in the field of infrared technology; he graduated in 1960 with a bachelor's degree in physics. He went on to the University of Florida for a master's degree with specialization in optics.

While working on his master's thesis, Dave got a part-time job at Cape Kennedy (then Cape Canaveral) with Pan American World Airways, which runs the Atlantic Missile Range for the Air Force. After receiving his master's degree he went to work full time for PAA as a Project Engineer in the Infrared Group. His varied responsibilities include helping to get out the data on missile radiation, and setting the specifications for the improved measurement equipment that his group needs to do a better job. This equipment is built to his order by outside optical firms, but putting the pieces together and calibrating it is another of Dave's jobs.
