NIGHT COURSE PLANS ANNOUNCED

Fees Reduced to Half

Fees for Southwestern evening courses next September will be reduced to half those prevailing in past years, according to plans announced recently. Tuition next year will be $5.00 per semester hour, or from $7.50 to $15.00 per semester course. Formerly, night class tuition was $10.00 per semester hour. Classes will again be held downtown in the classrooms of the University of Memphis Law School at 156 Madison Avenue. However, two series of popular lectures, one in the Psychology of Personality and one in Contemporary World Politics will be held on the College Campus. These classes meet only one evening each week. Nearly all of the courses given downtown will meet twice weekly.

Accounting, Public Speaking, English, American Government, Marketing, Bible, and Modern Languages are among the courses being offered for the first semester. Final registration for night classes has been scheduled for the evenings of September 16 and 17.

C.P.A. Review, Sept. 4

Beginning September 4 and extending through the first two weeks of November, the Extension Division will offer a review course for accountants intending to take the Tennessee C.P.A. examinations in Memphis next November. The review which will cover the major fields of the C.P.A. examinations will be held for two hours on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings. Charles M. Crump will conduct the review of Commercial law. Mr. P. K. Seidman and associates will have charge of the review of Accounting, Auditing, and Taxation.

FACULTY MEMBERS RECEIVE GRANTS

Two members of the Southwestern faculty are the recipients of grants from the American Philosophical Society which enable them to continue research projects during the summer recess. Professor J. Henry Davis is spending the summer at the Carnegie Institution research station off Key West, Florida. Dr. Ogden Baine received his grant to continue research in organic chemistry, which he started a year ago at Iowa State College. He is spending a portion of the summer at that institution.

President Charles E. Diehl will lead a panel discussion on the subject "Competition Faced by the Church College" at one session of the Annual Conference of Church Related Colleges, Southeast District, to be held at Asheville, N. COLLEGE RECEIVES $5,000 ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP

Memorial to William E. Spadow

Southwestern has received a gift of $5,000 to provide for an annual scholarship of $200 to a junior or senior at the College who has shown himself or herself exceptionally interested and proficient in Chemistry. This scholarship is endowed by Mrs. Florence Gage Spadow of Memphis in memory of her son William Eastman Spadow and should be an encouragement to students because the young man who inspired it was a brilliant young scientist and a splendid magnetic personality. He was born in Paris, France, where at the age of 17 he received a B.A. in Sciences and Modern Languages at the Sorbonne. Following the death of his father he came to America and continued his studies at the University of Denver, receiving his American B.A. He then went to Columbia University for more advanced work, graduating with a Master of Arts degree and one for Electro-Chemical Engineering. While there he distinguished himself both by his progress in the scientific world and his helpfulness to younger students. He was watching an experiment of such a group when he was killed by an explosion due to the carelessness of others, November 17, 1922.

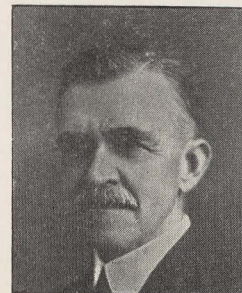

Dean Pegram who had been his professor at Columbia wrote "We have had great pride in him as a student, strong admiration for his ability and its accompanying modesty, and great hopes as to what he would accomplish and the high credit he would reflect on this University."

Southwestern feels that an award in memory of such a young man will be a great inspiration because he was an exceptional student as well as an ideal citizen in the college community. This gift is both a distinguished recognition of the academic worth of Southwestern and an indication of confidence in the ability of the youth of our community.

CIVILIAN PILOT TRAINING CONTINUES THROUGH SUMMER

Continuing its program of co-operation with the Civil Aeronautics Authority in the nation-wide plan for training civilian aviation pilots, Southwestern has a class of thirty students taking ground school and pilot training during the summer session. This class constitutes the full quota of students assigned to Southwestern by the Authority. The summer course is being offered free of any cost to the students taking the training, the government bearing all expense. During the past school year, a fee of $40.00 was charged those taking this work. Dr. Claude R. Fountain, formerly of the physics department at Peabody College, and visiting professor at Southwestern during the summer session, is giving the ground school instruction.

LEMASTER RETIRES FROM SOUTHWESTERN BOARD Lewis Named to Vacancy

MR. LEMASTER

Mr. E. B. LeMaster, for sixteen years a director of Southwestern representing the Synod of Louisiana, resigned recently because of ill health. Identified with the interests of the College since 1920, Mr. LeMaster, who is president of the H. L. Guion Real Estate firm in Memphis, was active in the negotiations to secure the campus site when Southwestern moved to Memphis. In 1939, O.D.K., campus honorary fraternity elected him to honorary membership in recognition of his outstanding service to Southwestern. In recognition of his long term of splendid service, he was named director emeritus, on his retirement from the Executive Committee of the College.

MR. LEWIS

To replace Mr. LeMaster as Memphis director for the Synod of Louisiana, the Moderator of that Synod appointed Mr. T. W. Lewis of Memphis. Election of the Memphis director to fill Mr. LeMaster's unexpired term will be made at the meeting of Synod next September. Mr. Lewis is president of the Lewis Supply Company and of the Y.M.C.A. in Memphis. He is also a member of the international Y.M.C.A. Council. For the past five years he has headed the initial gifts committee for the annual support fund campaign of Southwestern in Memphis. Like Mr. LeMaster he is an honorary member of O.D.K. Both he and Mr. LeMaster are elders of the Idlewild Presbyterian Church.

WARBURG ANALYZES THE WAR SITUATION

Three Alternatives For U. S. Commencement Speaker Says

In a world torn by war, there are three alternatives for the U. S., in the opinion of Mr. James P. Warburg who delivered the Southwestern Commencement address on June 11. The U. S. can (1) throw in its lot with the Allies to prevent their defeat, either by giving aid or ultimately going to war, (2) give up the Allied cause as lost and prepare for the worst here, or (3) decide that it will be impossible to oppose a victorious Hitler, and seek to come to terms with him.

Professor Amacker, who is chairman of the Southwestern faculty committee on examinations, will devote his time to the analysis and evaluation of various types of college examinations.

PRESBYTERIANS MAKE PLANS TO EMPHASIZE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Recommendations by General Assembly

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., at its meeting in Chattanooga in May, adopted several important recommendations concerning the relation between the Church and its colleges. The Committee on Christian Education recommended that the Synods and Presbyteries which control educational institutions make careful studies of the location of institutions, their educational work and financial resources and that the Executive Committee on Christian Education and Ministerial Relief co-ordinate the results of such studies for the entire Church.

The Standing Committee on Stewardship and Finance also made several recommendations relating to Presbyterian Colleges. It was proposed that the meeting in May 1941 be designated as the Christian Education Assembly. Furthermore, it was recommended that the church years 1941-42 and 1942-43 be set apart as a period during which special emphasis be placed upon Christian Education, through a program of publicity during the first part of the period, and through efforts to build up adequate financial resources of the institutions during the second part. The Executive Committee of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief was directed to appoint a special Committee to plan and execute the general program, such plans to be presented to the various synods for their endorsement at the fall meetings in 1940.

Warburg

Adopting the thesis that an Allied defeat would constitute a challenge to national safety and the American way of life, Warburg based his three alternatives upon an analysis of four facts:

1. Hitler's aim is to destroy the whole philosophy of life known as Western civilization, to establish totalitarian ideology as well as German political power, and to annihilate freedom of every description.

2. Germany believes that might makes right, and Hitler's conquests can only be stopped by an armed force stronger than his own.

3. Neither sated ambition nor exhaustion will contain a victorious Hitler in Europe. Resources of conquered empires will increase his strength.

4. If the Allies are defeated we must expect either destruction or surrender of their fleets.

Since U. S. defense has always assumed the existence of a friendly British fleet in the Atlantic, we would be left in a weak position, if Allied defeat removed this fleet. In fact, Mr. Warburg stated that surrender of the Allied fleets would leave the U. S. incapable of supporting the Monroe Doctrine, and that such surrender would open the doors of Latin America to Hitlerism. It was this prospect of having to protect our boundaries with the present inadequate defense forces which led the speaker to examination of his three alternative policies for the U. S.

Mr. Warburg rejected the alternative of coming to terms with Hitler. He said that the totalitarian system could not permit Am-

CLOAR RECEIVES FELLOWSHIP

Carroll Cloar, '34, has been granted an Edward A. MacDowell travelling fellowship, it was learned recently. The fellowship which is a competitive award carries a stipend of $1,500, and under ordinary circumstances would permit Cloar to spend a year in Europe. Due to war conditions, however, Mr. Cloar is compelled to remain in this country. He will spend part of his time travelling through the West.

Several months ago, Cloar had six of his paintings in a group show of watercolors at the Art League in New York. One of his lithographs was in the recent print show at Philadelphia. For the past several years he has been studying art in New York City.

James Hughes Goes to Oklahoma

Dr. James Hughes, '32, has been appointed instructor in post-graduate work in Pediatrics in the State of Oklahoma. He is lecturing and holds clinics in the several districts into which the State has been divided. Hughes was chosen from a number of applicants and his work will continue for about a year and a half. When this work is done he plans to return to Memphis to practice Pediatrics. His wife, the former Jane Barker, '32, and his young son Allen, are with him.

erica to remain a stronghold of freedom and democracy, and the price of terms with Hitler could only be for the U. S. to become a totalitarian state itself.

As between the alternatives of helping the Allies to the utmost or giving up the Allied cause and preparing for home defense, Mr. Warburg stated that the choice depends upon which method appears to offer the U. S. the best means of defending itself. It must be left to those in authority to determine what chances the Allied cause has of succeeding with aid which we may give.

Several preparations can and should be made by every individual citizen, however. First must come a recognition that we shall all have to make sacrifices to meet the danger of totalitarianism. Secondly, everyone must do his part as a defender of freedom. The individual inclination to shrink from fighting to protect our system when the crisis comes must be overcome, Mr. Warburg stated.

That war may involve a temporary renunciation of freedom and democracy was recognized by the speaker, but he drew a clear distinction between temporary adoption of dictatorial methods for the duration of a war and a nation which adopts these methods in peace as a normal way of life.

Mr. Warburg's point was that one of the surest ways of losing freedom and democracy permanently would be for the U. S. to adopt a policy of isolation in the present crisis. In complete isolation, "we could only maintain ourselves—if we could maintain ourselves at all—by having our whole nation geared to self-sufficiency and national defense, which means governmental control of all the processes of production and consumption—government direction of all the details of our daily lives. We could only conserve our peace by being constantly prepared for war, and we should then truly run the risk of permanently altering our national way of life."
