The following alumni are in charge of the activities under the direction of Chairman Darnell: Registration—Goodlett Brown, Jr.; Balloting for Association Officers—Ed Willis; Athletic Events—Bill Coley and Jud Williford; Tickets for Supper—Forrest Flaniken; Attendance—Forrest Flaniken; Dance and Entertainment—Bill and Sarah Loaring-Clark Flowers; Publicity—Frances Crouch; Garden Party, Monday, June 1—Polly Minor Lemmon and Lucille Hamer Amis.

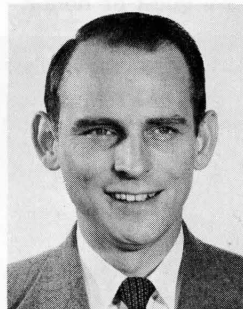

Classes due to hold reunions on Alumni Day this year are '52, '48, '43, '38, '33, '28, '23, '18, '13, '08, '03, '98, '93, '88, '78.

As is the custom now, special emphasis is placed on the celebration of the classes observing their fiftieth and twenty-fifth anniversaries. These classes are 1903 and 1928. A luncheon honoring members of these two classes, their wives or husbands, will be given by the Southwestern Men of Memphis on Alumni Day.

Balloting For Alumni Officers Is Under Way

Southwestern alumni will elect a new president and two new vice-presidents on Alumni Day, Saturday, May 30.

Candidates for president are Bob Ruffin, Jr., '30, and Bob Amis, '48. Candidates for vice-president in charge of Public Relations are Luther Southworth, '29, and E. Denby Brandon, '50. Tom White, Jr., '39, and Jimmy Collier, '43, are the candidates for vice-president in charge of Reunions. Officers elected will serve for two years. Retiring officers are S. Shepherd Tate, '39, president; Waddy West, '39, vice-president in charge of Public Relations, and Dr. Robert O. Black, '42, vice-president in charge of Reunions. Other officers of the Association, who have another year to serve are R. Grattan Brown, '29, vice-president in charge of Finances; the Reverend Wayne W. Gray, '26, vice-president in charge of Ministerial Relations, and Polly Minor Lemmon, '27, vice-president in charge of the Alumnae.

Bob Amis

Bob Ruffin, Jr.

Alumni residing outside of Memphis will vote by mail. Ballots must be marked and mailed in time to reach the Alumni Office not later than May 27. Memphis alumni are not eligible to vote by mail, but will vote on the campus on Alumni Day.

No special function is planned for the other classes, but the Alumni Office asks all the classes to make plans for some kind of function on the campus on Alumni Day. The fullest cooperation will be given to those classes desiring reunion celebrations of some kind, and we strongly urge that these be held.

Included with those classes celebrating a reunion this year will be the Class of 1952, which will observe its first reunion. This is the first time any class has observed a reunion the first year after graduation, and we think it will prove to be a popular move with this class and those that follow.

Secretary Goodbar Morgan urges alumni to make their reservations for the supper immediately. The cost—a dollar per person.

Athletic Heroes Of Bygone Years Feted

On March 10, Lynx athletic heroes of the last three decades were dined and celebrated in the biggest party ever held for Southwestern athletes. Gaylon Smith, looking as young and well-conditioned as ever, flew down from Cleveland, Ohio, and old Lynxmen trooped in from all parts of West Tennessee.

The place was Neely Hall and the hosts were the Southwestern Men of Memphis. The main speech was given with vigor and humour by T. Walker Lewis. Special guests were David Bloom of the Commercial Appeal, former coaches John Miller and Al Clemens, "Dr. Nick" Pappageorge, owner of the Southwestern Grill, and members of the current teams.

Several days before the dinner, reservations were closed at 150, the capacity of the dining hall, and a number who wanted to attend were disappointed. Although the dinner is now two months in the past, it is of interest to so many former students that a summary of it is given herewith.

Never before had such an impressive company of old Lynx warriors assembled, and they provided a joyous—almost uproarious—evening. The following account mentions only the men who were present and some of the major athletic events associated with them.

Rick Mays, president of the Southwestern Men of Memphis, who dreamed up the idea of the party, was master of ceremonies. For an hour and a half, he kept the old stars telling tales of triumph and defeat and humorous predicament.

Milton Hawk played football in 1925 in the first game staged on Fargason Field, and his team ended the season with an excellent 7-2 record. In the following spring Oscar Hurt pitched the first baseball game played on the Fargason Field. The Lynx won every game that he pitched. Charles Terry also played in that first game.

In the fall of 1926, Vern Baumgarten, center, Joe Pickering, guard, Bob Ruffin, halfback, and Milton Hawk played on the good team that held Ole Miss to a 27-32 score.

The 1928 team, also a good one, was coached by Neely Mallory, in whose memory the new gym has been named. Members of that team were Charles I. Diehl, "City" Thompson, Jimmy and Johnny Hughes, and Bill Walker. In the following season Johnny Hughes played five complete games with a broken arm; Herbert Newton scored or passed for four touchdowns against Sewanee; and the immortal Harold "Chicken" High,

"Rick" Mays, who was President of the Southwestern Men of Memphis, dreamed up the party and presided over it.

"Dr. Nick" Pappageorge, who has served the Lynx for twenty-five years at his Southwestern Grill, was a guest of honor.

T. Walker Lewis gave the diners many a hearty laugh and much wise comment in his story of V.P.I. teams of 1904-08.

Four of the Twelve Iron Men who beat Vanderbilt in 1936 swap reminiscences: Henry Hammond, Orley Nettles, Levon Self, and Clay Nickels. Captain Toto Houts and Porter Chappell (see p. 3) were members of the same team.

a sophomore, who became one of the all-time greats in Lynx football, scored on a pass from Newton. Also on that team were Eliot "Cotton" Perrette and Claude "Windy" McCormick.

The team of 1931 was one of the greatest. Newton and High were still in the backfield, and Art Womble, Toxey Fortinberry, and Bill Pickens were in the line. The Ole Miss game was the high point of the season. The Rebels led, 20-0 at the half, but the Lynx fought back with three touchdowns to tie the score, 20-20 at the end.

The '35 team saw a number of new faces, among them backfield men Clay Nickells, Rick Mays, and Don Owens, whose average weight was about 140 pounds. Other members of the team were Porter Chappell and Toto Houts, who were to become standouts. The best game that year was a 7-7 tie with Howard's strong team, which had tied Alabama.

In 1936 came the most memorable victory in Southwestern football history, the 12-0 win over Vanderbilt, in which only twelve Lynx took part. Henry Hammond, Clay Nickells, Levon Self, Captain Toto Houts, and Orley Nettles were among them. The Vanderbilt offense was thrown off stride all afternoon by the Lynx 4-4-2-1 defense, at that time unheard of. In scouting Vanderbilt, Coaches High and Mays noticed that one of the backs invariably tipped off the direction of the play. With this information as a guide, one of the Lynx ends dropped back from the five-man line and served as a fourth line-backer.

During the first decade in Memphis the Lynx had their hours of outstanding success in other fields than football. On the 1929 basketball and tennis teams Billy Hughes was a standout, rating the All-SIAA team as captain. He played the No. 1 spot on a tennis team that beat Ole Miss.

High and Newton were outstanding on the track as well as on the gridiron.

In a game against Ole Miss the 1935 basketball team overcame a 20-4 handicap to win, 50-46; one of the boys who engineered that upset was Jim Breytspraak. With men like Gaylon Smith, Virgil Cox, Levon Self, and Al Wunderlich on the team in the next few years, the Lynx five continued to play winning ball, defeating Ole Miss easily in a pair of games in 1939.

In 1935-8 McKay Boswell and Henry Turner were making history on the track, McKay in the hurdles, and Henry in the mile. McKay set a Tennessee Intercollegiate record in the low hurdles.

The best tennis teams came in the years 1934-36 when Professor Rhodes was coach and Dunlap Cannon was ace of the squad. Playing the best college and university teams in the area, Southwestern lost but one match in three years and that to the championship Tulane squad, 4-2. At that it was very close all the way. Dunlap was defeated only once — by Ernest Sutter of Tulane, Southern Intercollegiate champion.

The 1938 football team was probably the best of them all. Gaylon Smith, Captain Orley Nettles, Ed French, and Oney Ellis were members of the team that defeated Union, Sewanee, Chattanooga, Loyola, Birmingham-Southern, Millsaps, and Mississippi State. In the last game Gaylon made his most famous run, a seventy-yarder off-tackle which set up the winning touchdown. He was chosen on the Little All-America that year.

During the years immediately preceding the war the Lynx had other strong teams, which several times came close to major upset victories. Their best bid was in 1940 against Clemson, a bowl team that had already won the Southern Conference championship. The Lynx led 12-6 up to the very end, but in the last ten seconds Clemson tied the score, and the game ended 12-12. Beryl Waller, All-Dixie Conference tackle, and Jack Conn, back, were in that game. During the same fall the freshmen had an outstanding team, climaxing their season with a win over the Ole Miss freshmen. Billy Speros caught the winning touchdown pass; in the following year, the last before he entered military service, he played good varsity ball on a team that broke even against strong opposition.

The post-war football teams had their days of victory against traditional rivals. On those teams were Frank Boswell, Beefy Dunavant, Sam Blair, Alan Smith, and Forrest Flaniken.

The best of the post-war teams was the 1947 track squad, with its great relay quartet. Two of the four were Freeman Marr and Frank Boswell, who had a part in setting the present 3.24.5 record for the mile, a record which clipped six seconds off the old Southwestern mark. Officials of the Penn Relays seeded the Lynx foursome seventh in the nation when there was some hope that the boys would enter that meet.

From kickoff to final whistle the dinner was a great show. It demonstrated in a dramatic way the rich athletic tradition that the Lynx have created during their twenty-seven years in Memphis.

Alumni Are Generous In Support of College

The staunchest supports of Southwestern are, of course, its alumni. In ways without number they champion the College and its varied interests and activities. Every year they give generously of their money in support of a number of college-related projects. Burrow Library To Be Dedicated Next Fall

One of the main academic events of the session of 1953-54 will be the dedication of the Burrow Library, Southwestern's new million-dollar building, in the early autumn.

Plans are being laid now for the celebration, which will be of considerable magnitude and importance in the college world. The events will cover the greater part of a week, with the formal ceremonies concentrated in one day.

The ceremonies will be held on the terrace in front of the library. There will be, of course, a formal academic procession, music, and addresses. Brief salutations will be offered in behalf of the four synods which support Southwestern, of the City of Memphis, and of the College, followed by the main address by a distinguished speaker unannounced at present.

Class Of '52 Leads In Gifts To Alumni Fund

The 1953 Alumni Fund got under way several weeks ago. The response to the first appeal is gratifying, but it is going to take a much greater participation in the Fund by our alumni to bring Southwestern's percentage of participation up to a respectable figure in comparison with other colleges and universities.

As we have stressed in the past, we are mainly interested in getting a large number of our alumni to contribute. No alumnus should hesitate to make a contribution on the ground that he can afford to give only a nominal amount. The amounts of the donation are not published, but the names of all contributors are printed, regardless of the amount given.

Some members of several of the classes, disappointed at the poor showing of their respective classes in the Alumni Fund, have written letters to their classmates encouraging them to help their class percentages by sending in contributions. This activity shows a fine spirit, and we hope members of other classes will do the same or something similar for the improvement of the standing of their own classes.

As we go to press, the Class of 1952 is leading in the number of contributors. The Classes of 1951, 1946, 1940, and 1930 are tied for second place. In third place are the Classes of 1949 and 1939. Tied for fourth place are the Classes of 1950, 1948, 1937, 1934, and 1932.

While the 1953 Alumni Fund may still be in its infancy, it is to be hoped that by Alumni Day, May 30, we will be able to give a good report on the progress of the Fund. Gratz Brown, the Alumni Association's vice-president in charge of Finances, is confident that last year's 8% participation in the Alumni Fund by our alumni will be surpassed this year.

Donations may be designated to the Living Endowment Fund, Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium, Scholarship Fund, or General Fund.

Unusual Plays Feature Spring Theatre Program

In celebration of International Theatre Month, Alpha Psi Omega, Southwestern's honorary dramatic fraternity, in cooperation with the Ballet Society of Memphis, presented The Cabalist of Dorrance, a new play by Maurice Tei Dunn, March 19, 20, and 21. The author came down from New York to attend the opening.

The play, a poetic fantasy, is an imaginative plea for peace. Set in the mythical province of Dorrance, it is the story of the struggle between the idealistic necromancer, Acheron, and the power-hungry new Governor of Dorrance. Aided by two evil spirits, Ydoine and Maligore, the Governor becomes the most powerful tyrant in the world.

Involving as it did a ballet sequence and a number of mysterious effects, the play was one of the most ambitious undertakings Southwestern has ever tackled theatrically. Alpha Psi Omega was fortunate in obtaining
