MALLORY GYMNASIUM DEDICATION DECEMBER 10

Students Rewarded For Delay Of Twenty-Nine Years

Although the entire college community will join wholeheartedly in celebrating the dedication of the new Mallory Memorial Gymnasium, the happiest of the celebrants will be the students. Ever since Southwestern came to Memphis in 1925, they have used the Fargason Field House, a wooden structure with steel frame, which from the beginning was regarded as makeshift. During recent years in particular it proved too antiquated and too small to serve its purpose effectively. It was designed for basketball, but the playing floor was smaller than it should have been, and there was never room to seat even the entire student body at the games.

When the $2,500,000 Building and Endowment Campaign was launched in the middle forties, one of the great needs advertised was a gymnasium. Upon the death of Major Mallory in the crash of an airplane in 1945, a group of his friends, headed by Col. Robert B. Snowden, of Memphis and Hughes, Arkansas, sponsored a special drive for funds to be used to construct a memorial gymnasium which would be named in honor of Major Mallory.

It was most appropriate that he should be memorialized in this way. Since his college days at Yale, where he was captain of the football team and all-America fullback, he had been deeply interested in sports. Not long after his return to Memphis he coached at Southwestern the greater part of one season without pay when Southwestern lost its coach early in the season. In later years and until his death he was Treasurer of the College and one of its loyal friends.

The Building and Endowment Campaign was brought to a successful conclusion in 1947, but because of the inflation that followed the war, the sum earmarked for the gymnasium proved insufficient to erect a $700,000 building. There was deep disappointment among the students when it was realized that the contract could not be let for the gymnasium until additional funds had been provided.

By the autumn of 1952 sufficient funds were on hand, and an announcement was made that construction would begin about the first of January 1953. The contract was let on December 18, 1952. It was found necessary to eliminate from the plans the east wing of the building, which was to house, among other things, the swimming pool. This wing, costing an additional $300,000, will be constructed as soon as that sum has been

Edwin F. Blair, New York Attorney, Will Speak; Lynx Will Meet
Sewanee; Basketball School, Basketball Doubleheader December 11

A two-day celebration will mark the dedication of the William Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. At eight o'clock on the evening of December 10, the formal dedication ceremonies will be held, followed by a basketball game. And on the following afternoon and evening a basketball clinic and a basketball doubleheader will be staged.

A crowd of some fifteen hundred is expected to attend the ceremonies on the evening of December 10. The principal event on the program will be the address of Mr. Edwin Foster Blair, prominent attorney of New York City.

Mr. Blair and Neely Mallory were roommates during their college days at Yale, and there began a friendship which continued until Mr. Mallory's death in 1945. Mr. Blair is known in Memphis, since he was a frequent visitor in the Mallory home.

The program will get under way promptly at eight o'clock with music by a Southwestern band. Following the Invocation by Dr. Paul Tudor Jones, '32, who has recently become pastor of the Idlewild Presbyterian Church in Memphis, President Peyton N. Rhodes will deliver a brief address of welcome and will introduce Mr. Blair.

Then following his address and the singing of the Alma Mater Hymn, President-Emeritus Charles E. Diehl will pronounce the benediction, and the dedicatory ceremonies will conclude. Members of the Mallory family will occupy seats of honor during the ceremonies.

Immediately after the conclusion of the formal part of the program, basketball will take over, with Southwestern meeting the University of the South (Sewanee) in the Dedicatory Game.

The public is cordially invited to attend these festivities. No admission fee will be charged.

The celebration will be continued on Saturday, December 11, when a Coaches' School and an Officials' Clinic will be held on the playing floor of the gymnasium from two to four-thirty p.m.

Basketball officials of the Mid-South and college and high school coaches and players have been invited to attend this Clinic as guests of the college. Coach Danny Miller, of Davidson College, will discuss the various techniques of the offense in basketball, and Coach Lon Varnell, of the University of the South, will discuss the defense. Basketball clinics are a familiar experience to Coach Varnell, since during a tour of Europe with the Sewanee basketball team three years ago he gave numerous talks on the sport in several different countries. In the course of his remarks he will relate some of his European experiences. The speakers will welcome questions and comments from players and guest coaches during this session.

A discussion of basketball rules will follow, led by the Mid-South Basketball Officials Association. The Southwestern freshman team and one of the high school teams of this area will then demonstrate various kinds of fouls, near-fouls, and correct play.

At five p.m. the coaches who have attended the clinic will be guests of the College at dinner. Glenn Johnson, Director of Athletics at Southwestern, will be in general charge of the Clinic.

At seven-thirty o'clock in the evening a basketball doubleheader will be staged, with Sewanee meeting Davidson, and Southwestern meeting the University of Mississippi.

The admission fee will be one dollar for adults and fifty cents for students. Visiting coaches and teams from the Mid-South area will be guests of the College at the doubleheader and will sit in a special section reserved for them.

The public is invited to inspect the building at any time Friday and Saturday from nine in the morning until ten-thirty in the evening, except during the dedicatory ceremonies.

Edwin Foster Blair

Concerning Mr. Blair, Speaker At the Exercises

Mr. Edwin F. Blair, prominent attorney of New York and member of the firm of Hughes, Hubbard, Blair, and Reed, holds two degrees from Yale, the B.A. and the LL.B. He received the latter cum laude and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

He is regarded as one of Yale's most loyal sons, largely because of his distinguished service on at least a dozen important committees and organizations which have furthered the interests of the University. Among these are a number concerned with athletics, including the Yale Board of Athletic Control, on which he now serves as chairman, and the Football "Y" Association, in which he is a director and of which he has been president. He has also acted as director on the board of the University and has held positions of importance during campaigns for funds. In recognition of his various contributions to his alma mater he was given the Yale Medal for Service in 1953.

In the field of finance he has been very prominent, having served as director of various corporations and foundations, such as the Packard Motor Company, which he now serves, and the Sister Kenny Foundation, to name only two of many.

He is a member of the New York Bar Association and has served on its Executive Committee.

World War II Heroes Honored In New Gymnasium

The new gymnasium is a memorial not only to the distinguished man whose name it bears, but also to the forty men and one woman who gave their lives for their country while serving in World War II.

In the foyer of the building is a large metal plaque bearing the following names:

Gymnasium Marks New Day In Intercollegiate Sports

Followers of the Lynx, young and old, believe that the opening of the Mallory Memorial Gymnasium heralds the beginning of a new era in athletics at Southwestern. The College will continue to pursue with energy and conviction its policy of strictly amateur sports, and from this policy there will be no deviation. But the new gymnasium is giving an emphasis to athletics which Southwestern has not known for nearly fifteen years.

Not only the college, but the public and sports-minded high school students as well, have been attracted by this re-emphasis upon athletics. Attendance is already on the increase at football games; the male population of the student body shows a marked increase this year; and student interest in athletics is now higher than at any time since the beginning of the First World War. In September of this year a number of good high school athletes enrolled of whom the coaches had no advance notice and who therefore received no encouragement from the coaches in choosing Southwestern—a response which indicates the appeal which the athletic program (among other things) is making to such students.

In all five intercollegiate sports increased interest and brighter prospects are in evidence. This year's football team is the best since 1941, when Beryl Waller, Kenny Holland, and their colleagues were holding Southeastern Conference teams to margins of seven to ten points. Some three dozen men are on the football squad, all are solid players, and some of them are in the class of the men on the team of '41.

Basketball prospects have not been so bright in many years. Perhaps it can be said that from the standpoint of the material on hand, this is the most promising squad within memory. Last year's starting five and all but two members of the entire squad are back in uniform on the maplecourt. They are materially strengthened by a freshman crop that is outstanding in numbers, height, and experience.

Clyde Carlisle, Belcher, La.
Highest Scorer Since Blakemore

The baseball prospects are, in Coach Johnson's opinion, the brightest of all. The addition to the squad of three good pitchers and a number of able "gardeners" is the basis of his optimism. Only three men are missing from last year's team.

The tennis season will begin next spring with the state championship cup resting securely—for the time being at least—at the College. Three members of the championship team will be back, and Coach Barton will have plenty of promising material among the freshmen and the also-rans of last year.

The golf squad of 1955 will include all the old familiar faces and will be strengthened by several enthusiastic newcomers.

The track team is not expected to show great overall strength, but several individual performers should be outstanding. The squad will be small numerically, but the quality is believed better than in several years.

All in all, the picture is more interesting than at any time since the beginning of World War I.

January 5, 1953, the first day of college after the Christmas Holidays, was a most happy occasion for the students as well as for other members of the college community. With several hundred spectators looking on, a brief ceremony was held and ground was broken for the new gymnasium. Mrs. Barton Lee Mallory, mother of Neely Mallory, turned the first earth and in that act inaugurated a period of rapid activity on the part of the contractors (instead of the usual period of delay between ground-breaking and actual construction).

Following the plans drawn by H. Clinton Parrent, Jr., of Nashville, Tennessee, the

Vocational Guidance Center For High School Students

A Christian Vocational Guidance Center is being established this fall on the campus of Southwestern under the sponsorship of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church.

The purpose of the Center is (1) to provide vocational counseling for the church; and (2) to give tests on mental ability, vocational aptitudes, interests and personality which will be of great value in guiding young people in the choice of vocation.

The program is so laid out that the greater part of the counseling and guidance will be conducted by the individual church. The plan calls for the church to offer a period of training and guidance lasting from one to two years, in the charge of Sunday School teachers, adult advisors, or vocational aides chosen through the church. After this period of training, which will conclude when the young people are in the junior or senior class at high school, they may report to the Guidance Center at Southwestern for further counseling and for the tests mentioned above. When fully established the Center is expected to offer distinctive and valuable services to the youth of this Presbytery.

Dr. Perry D. Scrivner, of the Department of Education, will act as coordinator of the Center. He will be assisted by Dr. E. L. Queener and Dr. Myrtle C. Nash, of the Department of Psychology.

There are only seven such Centers in the South, all under the sponsorship of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church, contracting firm of Canfield, Badgett, and Scarbrough went forward rapidly with construction and turned the completed building over to the college in June of this year. Since the opening of the fall term of college students have made full use of its equipment—at times have thronged it. And how do they feel about it after their long wait? Delighted!

Rev. John L. McKinstry Tells of First Football Teams

J. L. McKinstry, '03, of Blue Mountain, Mississippi, tells this interesting story of how football was introduced to Southwestern.

The scene is, of course, Clarksville, Tennessee, and the date 1898. Up until then sentiment on the campus was belligerently anti-football. A favorite topic of debate, at least on the affirmative side, was "Resolved that football should be abolished." A minister, speaking at the Chapel service declared, "I'd rather have it said that my son was kicked to death by a mule than to have it said that he was the champion football player of the world." We students mentally applauded his sentiments.

But then one day, we were told by Ikey Briggs, of Franklin, Tennessee, that a team from a prep school had challenged us to a game of football on the following Saturday. We couldn't turn down a challenge, so we got up a team and stole the game.

Soon the faculty voted $500 to improve the college grounds for football games, and we were off. I recall a game with Russellville, Kentucky, whose center, "Little Willy," looked like a bale of cotton rolling down the field he was so big. Briggs, our quarter, 125 pounds, collided with him and was so upset physically and emotionally that he sat down and cried. In a home game, George Currie, Hattiesburg, Mississippi, was carrying the ball, and when he was trapped, the tallest man on our team, George Cheek, of Selma, Alabama, picked him up and ran for a touchdown. Others on our team were W. H. McIntosh, of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, and Charlie Allen, of Newbern, Alabama. In our third year, Fielding Yost, Coach at Vanderbilt, challenged us to a game but we were never able to arrange a date.

In those days we had only three downs to make ten yards. Forward passes were not allowed. We played strictly for sport and footed all our expenses.

During their fourth year of football, the Southwesterners swept the field. As I recall, the boys won just about every game they played.

In my three years (I played right guard) I never saw but one man seriously hurt. T. Q. Richardson of Smyrna, Georgia, butted the coach in the head and knocked him unconscious. However, I did see boys play possum in order to get a drink of water and some fresh air.

I doubt if the Lynx of today get as great a kick out of football as we oldsters did when we played it the hard way.

Book Festival, November 4-6, Was Well Attended

Southwestern's first Book Festival, presented by the library on November 4-6, achieved a success in which the college takes considerable pride. A series of exhibits of old books, new books, rare tomes, literary landmarks, first and rare editions, fine bindings, volumes of color engravings and prints, histories of bookmaking, and books by Memphis authors and Southwestern alumni were among the exhibits. A large number of visitors were attracted to the Burrow Library during the three days of the festival, whose purpose was to stimulate wider reading and ownership of books and to increase appreciation of their historical and contemporaneous importance.

Special exhibitions were contributed to the Festival by publishers, retailers and jobbers. Editors, authors, reviewers, and librarians throughout the Mid-South participated.

Movies on printing and bookmaking were shown, forums and informal book sessions were held, and an organization called the Friends of the Library was initiated for the purpose of encouraging the building of libraries and the wider reading of books throughout our area.

The outstanding exhibit was a collection of rare Shakespeareana loaned by the Folger Shakespeare Library of Washington, D. C., and containing first editions of the Bard's dramas. The most valuable item in the collection was a copy of the First Folio (the first collected edition of Shakespeare's plays), edited by Shakespeare's friends and published in 1623, seven years after his death. When such volumes are bought today they bring as much as $50,000. Copies of the Second, Third and Fourth Folios were also included in the collection, as were early editions of several individual plays, such as The Merry Wives of Windsor, published in 1619.

Another outstanding exhibit was the famous Zahn collection, which has been shown around the world. Otto Zahn was a world renowned bookbinder of Memphis who made his reputation while working with the S. C. Toof Company of Memphis.

The 1898 football squad, probably the first to represent Southwestern on the gridiron.

At the luncheon: Milton (Red) Wray, '51, James Roper, '48, Joanne Cunningham, '54, William T. (Bill) Walker, '32, Alan Babin, x'50, Martha Dean Babin, x'52, Mrs. Peyton Rhodes.

Don Ramier, x'32, Mrs. and Mr. Leslie Nicholson, Olivia Browne, Henry Loeb, and Denby Brandon, Jr., '50. (The three next to Denby were judges in the Lawn Decorations Contest.)

The stands during the Homecoming Game show that interest in football is on the increase. 1954 attendance is well ahead of 1953.

Perhaps you can spot some of your classmates in these pictures.

Familiar faces aplenty are also to be found here.

The Centre College football fleet sails into the Zetas' front yard and wins a prize for them. The lawn decorations were all excellent.

HOMECOMING, October 16, got under way with an informal luncheon (held largely for the convenience of out-of-town alumni). More than expected attended, about 100, with Bob Amis, Alumni President, anchoring the head table. Guests were the Homecoming "Royalty," and the judges of the fraternity-sorority lawn decoration contest (won by Tri-Delta and Sigma Nu, with Zeta and ATO runners-up). Centre downed the Lynx, 14-0, in a top-notch football game. Well-attended open houses were held by the fraternities from 4 to 6. The dance, enjoyed by many students and many alumni—more than any of its predecessors—was the best ever, probably because it was held in the Mallory gymnasium.

Mrs. W. L. Meux

Mrs. W. L. Meux Sponsors Move To Benefit Southwestern

Mrs. W. L. Meux, of Whitehaven, has shown once again that she is one of Southwestern's best friends among Presbyterian women. When she was made Chairman of Christian Education of the Women of the Church of the Synod of Tennessee she laid plans that are expected to result in great benefit to Southwestern. Her idea was to promote among the women of the Synod of Tennessee an honorary society to be called Sponsors of Southwestern. All who are willing to give a dollar a year are to be considered Sponsors.

She laid her plan before the women of the Synod, and they were so taken with it that they agreed to send her among the women of the other three Synods that support Southwestern to promote the idea. She has now appeared at meetings of the women in these Synods. The meetings were held at the First Church in Ruston, Louisiana, the First Church in Tupelo, Mississippi, and the South Highland Church in Birmingham, Alabama.

A committee of the women of Alabama will visit the campus in 1955 and select a project for the year. All funds raised by the women in the four synods will be used for the project so selected. In 1956 the choice of a project will rest with the women of Louisiana, in 1957 with the women of Mississippi, and in 1958 with the women of Tennessee.

Possible projects include furnishings for the women's dormitories, landscaping (campus beautification), redecoration of men's dormitories, and reconstruction of tennis courts.

Mrs. Meux has long been recognized for her work in the Church. In her own community of Whitehaven, a village near Memphis, where she lives in her ancestral home, she has given of her time and means without stint in religious endeavor.

Her activities in larger areas of denominational work have been literally too numerous to list. She has been head of the work of the women in the Memphis Presbytery and has been prominent in their work in the Synod of Tennessee and in the South.
