Nine Additions To Faculty and Staff

Richardson, Gibbs, Nall, and McQuiston Are Among Seven Alumni Back At Their Alma Mater

The 1951-52 college year sees a number of changes in the faculty and staff of Southwestern. There are four changes in the staff: the Rev. Robert Price Richardson has become Vice-President in charge of the Office of Development; Julian Nall has been named new Field Representative of the College; Glenn Johnson has succeeded Al Clemens as Director of Athletics; and Miss Eleanor Bosworth, who has been Assistant Professor of History for several years, will divide her time between the department of history and the office of Dean of Women, in which she has now assumed her duties as Assistant Dean.

On the faculty proper there are only two newcomers, Norman B. Gibbs, Assistant Professor of Bible and philosophy, and James R. McQuiston, Assistant Professor of English, both of whom taught at Southwestern in the recent past.

In the Department of Music there are three additions: Robert H. Warmack, of Rosston, Arkansas, who will instruct in violin, John Murry Springfield, of Memphis, who will teach first year theory, and Robert J. L. Matthews, who will teach band and brass instruments. Mr. Springfield and Mr. Matthews will be graduate assistants.

Two additional graduate assistants have been appointed: Mrs. W. H. Marsh, of Laurel, Mississippi, in Biology, and Madelyn Richardson, of Memphis, in Physical Education for Women.

Dr. Richardson, New Vice-President

One of the most important additions to the staff made during the last decade was the recent appointment of Dr. Richardson, alumnus and former missionary to China, as Vice-President. He is the grandson of one of the most revered professors in Southwestern's history, Robert Price, Professor of History from 1882 to 1912.

Dr. Richardson, known to everyone as "Pete" during his student days, graduated from Southwestern Presbyterian University at Clarksville in 1917. Dr. Diehl, who had recently assumed the presidency of the college, asked him to remain with his alma mater as coach. This was a logical appointment, since he was one of the few men in the history of the college who were proficient in the four major sports.

After serving two years as coach, Mr. Richardson entered Union Theological Seminary, in Richmond, where he got a degree in theology and a strong desire to become a missionary to China. In the summer of 1923, he left the States with his bride of three months, the former Agnes Rowland, of Augusta, Georgia, and located in east-central China. He served as a missionary there for nearly twenty-eight years, excluding the interruption caused by World War II.

Upon the invasion of China by the Japanese, his wife, three sons, and one daughter were sent to the States, but he remained at his post until the Japanese took him prisoner. For six months he remained in custody, but was released on the first exchange of prisoners with the Japanese and sailed on the "Gripsholm" to rejoin his family in America.

He served with Church World Service and U.N.R.R.A. from 1945 to 1947 in China. In the fall of 1947, he resumed his missionary work there. Again, however, his work was interrupted, this time by the Communists, who successfully shackled missionary endeavor in China. He returned home in the spring of this year.

Dr. Richardson succeeds the Reverend David Sprunt in charge of the Office of Development, Mr. Sprunt having been granted a leave of absence to pursue advanced theological studies in the seminary at Richmond.

The new Vice-President is hard at work, spending much time on the field and taking the measure of what needs to be done. He is well aware of the importance and magnitude of his responsibilities and is working at his job with an athlete's vitality and an alumnus' love of his alma mater.

Session of 1951-52 Promises To Be One Of Best

The college opened for its one hundred and third year on September 18, with every prospect for an excellent year of work and progress. The student body, a few under five-hundred, is smaller than is desired, but somewhat larger than was anticipated last winter. Colleges the country over are registering a decrease in number of students, as a result of the large number of men of college age now in the armed forces. The trend is well indicated by the proportion of men and women in the student body. In place of the usual 60-40 ratio of men to women, there are now 55 women for every 45 men in the college.

Among the encouraging features of the new session is the quality of the 200 new students. Aptitude tests given during the orientation period show that the new group is slightly superior to last year's entering class, which was perhaps the best up to then.

The opening Convocation was on September 22, with Professor A. P. Kelso the speaker. His address was on the subject of education as the means of discovering one's potentialities. He pointed out the dangers in "institutionalized education," which he said were comparable to those of institutionalized religion. True education is stirring a student into a discovery of his interests and abilities, and Christian education is the recognition that intelligence has a divine mission in human society.

During the second week, the regular round of classes was begun, and the sororities and the fraternities held their annual saturnalia, concluding with the pledging of new members.

Program for Nurses Introduced

At least one important innovation is in progress on the campus. The Methodist hospital is sending all of its student nurses to Southwestern for the required program of academic instruction.

Forty-three of the girls are now spending most of their mornings on the campus, in classroom and in laboratory. Thirteen of them began their course in the summer and are now completing the work. The remaining thirty are carrying the full program of five subjects and will complete the required sixteen hours this semester.

The course consists of sociology, psychology, chemistry, microbiology, and anatomy-physiology.

According to the agreement with the hospital, a new class will begin and complete the course of study every semester.

The results of the summer course proved satisfactory to both college and hospital, and it is believed that the project as a whole will prove beneficial to all concerned.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

Julian Nall—Field Representative

Mr. Nall, a Memphian, is an alumnus of Southwestern of the Class of 1943. He majored in physics and mathematics and received his Bachelor of Science degree with distinction in both subjects.

Following his graduation he served three years with the Navy, attaining the rank of lieutenant, j.g. While in service he attended Princeton and Massachusetts Institute of Technology for training in the field of radar. For a year and a half he saw active service in the Pacific on the battleship New York and took part in the campaigns of Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Upon his release from active duty he re-entered M.I.T. and received his Master of Science degree in physics in 1948.

For the next two years he was a member of the faculty of Southwestern as Assistant Professor of Mathematics. During the past year he has been associated with his father and brother as a member of the firm of H. C. Nall & Sons, of the Cotton Exchange Building in Memphis.

Announcement has already been made in these pages concerning Mr. Johnson's appointment as Director of Athletics. On page four of this issue an article appears on his initial steps toward strengthening Southwestern's athletic program.

Norman Gibbs—Bible

Mr. Gibbs is returning to the faculty following a three-year absence at Duke University, where he has been working on his Ph. D. degree in Religion. He is an alumnus of Southwestern of the Class of '32 and of Louisville Seminary of the Class of '35. He was in the ministry from 1935 until 1943, holding pastorates in Natchitoches, Louisiana, and Rawlings, Virginia.

In 1943 he volunteered as Chaplain and went on active duty with the Army Air Forces. His principal overseas assignments were in the Philippines, Okinawa, Ie Shima, and Japan. He was awarded the Battle Star for participation in the campaigns of Luzon and Okinawa. At the time of his discharge he had attained the rank of major.

During his stay at Duke he served as Chaplain of the Presbyterian youth organization on the campus and held several supply pastorates in Durham and other communities near the University.

He is the author of several articles on religion and related fields which have appeared in the Christian Century, the Presbyterian Survey, the Associate Reformed Presbyterian and The Chaplain. His wife is the former Virginia May Surber, of Louisville. Lee, fifteen, and Mary, nine, complete the family.

McQuiston, Back from Chapel Hill

Professor McQuiston received his A. B. degree from Southwestern in 1947, graduating with honors in English. During the following year he taught freshman English in the college and directed publicity in the Office of Public Relations.

For the next three years he attended the University of North Carolina and did part-time teaching in the English department. Last spring the University conferred upon him the Master of Arts degree. His thesis was in the field of early Renaissance literature.

At Southwestern he will be in charge of publicity, in addition to carrying on his teaching duties.

His wife, Dr. Elise T. McQuiston, an alumna, is a practicing physician in Memphis.

Warmack—Violin

Mr. Warmack assumes the position made vacant through the resignation of Mary Jane Kirkendol, who left Memphis this summer to accompany her husband, Dr. E. C. Kirkendol, to Charlotte, North Carolina, where he has established a new dental practice.

A native of Arkansas, Mr. Warmack earned his Bachelor of Arts degree at Hendrix College at Conway, on a four-year music scholarship. The University of California at Los Angeles conferred the Master of Music degree upon him in 1949. He has been a pupil of Glen Swan, has had special study with Stephen De'ak and Alice Ehlers, and has received coaching from Albert Spalding.

Since his arrival in Memphis last August, Mr. Warmack has been in considerable demand in music circles: he has become a member of the Young Artists' Concert management of the Memphis and Mid-South Piano Association, has joined the College of Music's Faculty Trio with Phyllis Thornburg and Myron Myers, has performed with the Mem-phs concert Orchestra at Overton Park Shell, and has been presented in recital at the Memphis College of Music.

John Springfield—Music Theory
Mr. Springfield received his Bachelor of Arts degree with distinction in music at the Commencement exercises at Southwestern the past June. He was assistant conductor of the Southwestern band and a member of the Southwestern Singers. His father, Mr. C. L. Springfield, is bursar and business manager of Southwestern.

Matthews—Band and Brass Instruments
Mr. Matthews, who received the Bachelor of Music degree in June, graduated with distinction in public school music. He was president of the Southwestern Singers and the Southwestern band, and during his senior year he assisted Dr. Tuthill as conductor of the Singers. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. J. L. Matthews, of Canton, North Carolina.

Jane Marsh—Biology
Mrs. Marsh, the former Jane Aucott, of Laurel, Mississippi, received her B. A. degree from Southwestern in June of 1950.

During the following year she went with her husband, William H. Marsh, a Southwestern alumnus of the Class of 1949, to New York, where he studied in Columbia University. While he was in graduate school, Mrs. Marsh served as Technical Research Assistant in the Department of Neurology of Cornell University Medical College and the New York Hospital. Mr. Marsh now teaches at the Presbyterian Day School in Memphis.

Madelyn Richardson—Physical Education
Following her graduation from Miss Hutchison's School in Memphis, Miss Richardson attended Mary Baldwin College, of Staunton, Virginia, and became prominent in all branches of athletics. During her senior year she won a cup for outstanding accomplishment in sports. During the same year she was named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. In Memphis she has served as gym instructor and has taught at the Hutchison Country Day School.

Walker Wellford Named Director
Walker Wellford, Jr., member of the Class of '29, has been named Memphis representative for the Synod of Louisiana on the Board of Directors of Southwestern.

Mr. Wellford's appointment fills the vacancy left by the resignation of T. Walker Lewis, member of the Board for eleven years.

For years Mr. Wellford has been one of Southwestern's most loyal alumni and friends. He served as president of the Alumni Association from 1938 to 1940, and in financial campaigns has invariably given effective service. During the Building and Endowment Fund Campaign he and Billy Hughes, also of the Class of '29, captained ten alumni teams that brought in over $48,000 in contributions. He is a Presbyterian and an elder in the Idlewild Church.

Mr. Lewis, whom Mr. Wellford replaces, rendered service of very great value to the College.

Construction of Burrow Library Is Under Way

Work on Southwestern's Burrow Library began on October 1, and at present steam shovels and other heavy equipment are busy turning up earth for its basement and foundations. It is to be located southeast of Palmer Hall—nearer North Parkway than either Palmer or Voorhies Halls.

Contract for the building was let on September 12, with the Harmon Construction Company of Oklahoma City the low bidder. This company is also building the $1,500,000 Le Bonheur Children's Hospital in the Medical Center in Memphis.

The library, as is well known, is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Burrow of Memphis. Mr. Burrow, a member of the First Presbyterian Church, has served on the Board of Directors for some years and since 1945 has been Treasurer of the college.

Plans for the building were drawn up by the architectural firm of Walk C. Jones and Walk C. Jones, Jr. The building will be large and will be one of the finest libraries for undergraduates in the country, with all modern innovations of importance and with more than adequate space and equipment.

It will be a large building, about 200 by 125 feet, the largest on the campus besides Palmer Hall. In addition to reference and reading rooms, it will contain six tiers of stacks with twenty individual study desks in each, a combination lecture hall and exhibition room, a classroom for playing records, six small listening rooms, two seminar rooms seating twelve students, and ten small conference rooms.

In each tier of stacks there will be a carrell sound-proofed for typing, and on the main tier, readers for microfilms and microcards.

Automatic elevator service will be provided, and the main floor is to be air-conditioned.

It is to be expected that there will be delays in construction, as steel will be difficult to obtain, but optimists on the campus hope that the new library will be ready for use by June of 1953.

Coach Johnson Calls Signals; The Play Works

Coach Glenn Johnson, new Director of Athletics at Southwestern, has taken up his duties with vigor. The immediate job confronting him is to develop a program of athletics at Southwestern that will appeal to the men of the college and give sports their rightful place in the Southwestern scheme of things. He visited the campus for the first time in mid-July and spent the greater part of a month in acquainting himself with the local situation. On September 1 he returned with Mrs. Johnson.

One of his first steps was to take a poll of returning athletes. What he discovered could have proved a disappointment: several of last year's athletes have graduated, several are in the army, and a few have transferred to other colleges. But the coach is not a man to use the crying towel. An optimist by nature, he looked at the assets column and not at the liabilities. In the former he found the names of several returning basketball men, seven to be exact, and a number of prospects among the students then considering coming to Southwestern. By means of spirited letter writing and visiting, he got in touch with the veterans and then wrote or called on the list of prospects. He now feels that he has the nucleus of a team on which to rebuild Southwestern's fortunes in basketball.

Since the opening of the college, he has been agreeably surprised at the interest in sports on the campus, as a result of which he expects Southwestern to have varsity teams in track, baseball, tennis, and golf, in addition to basketball. He is particularly well pleased with the interest in track, a sport in which he is much interested and in which he has had a great deal of success. At Bethany College, West Virginia, whence he comes to Southwestern, he twice won the state track meet.

He has no predictions to make about the return of football to Southwestern but is hopeful that in the not distant future the Lynx will again field a team on the gridiron.

Put down in your book these two points about the new coach: he is a genial person, with a twinkle in his eye and a genuine liking for people; and second, he likes work.

For a time this fall it looked as though Southwestern might have a football team—contrary to the decision reluctantly but definitely reached last spring.

Last month about thirty men on the campus decided that they would like to play, and it seemed possible to schedule two games for late October. The matter was seriously considered by the faculty Committee on Athletics; however, it seemed too late to condition the squad and teach it a sufficient number of plays to assure a worthy showing.

Dorothy Fuller, '48, Is Subject of News Story

Dorothy Fuller, Class of 1948, is the subject of a feature article in a recent issue of the Birmingham (Ala.) News. An expert in the art of making stained glass, Miss Fuller is said to be the only artisan of her craft in the Birmingham area.

The article deals with her introduction to the art and with the process of stained glass making. Some of the highlights of the story follow:

After her graduation from Southwestern, Dorothy became interested in glass work and took a job in a Memphis concern which makes stained glass. There she learned to lay out windows, paint them, and cut and glaze the glass.

Showing an aptitude for work of this kind, she worked on the windows of the First Presbyterian Church of Little Rock, and made the stained glass window for the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority lodge at Southwestern. She also worked on the Rose Window in the Trinity Methodist Church of Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

Last spring, she did research in Richmond, Virginia, on religious symbols and their relation to the beliefs of the different denominations, and on week-ends went up to Washington to read in the libraries on the art of stained glass.

She now has a studio set up in the basement of her father's home, which is fully equipped for the various processes involved in her art.

She uses hand-blown glass, with the bubbles and other irregularities, that give it individuality. The glass is obtainable in various colors. She first designs her windows on a small scale, fully colored, and then makes a full-sized pattern. Every separate piece of glass is drawn on the pattern. Next, she traces the pattern on glass and cuts out each small piece with special scissors.

After the glass has been sized, Dorothy paints directly on the glass the figures she has designed, such as faces and forms, using special paint. The painted glass is then fired in a kiln, heated to 1,400 degrees, so that the paint and the glass completely fuse.

Then the individual pieces of glass are fitted together with lead strips separating them, and with black cement used along the strips to make the window water-tight and secure.

The window is then ready to go into its place.

Dinner-Dance Planned By Alumni For Nov. 10

Plans for the Southwestern Alumni Association's fall meeting are rapidly taking shape. This function, a dinner-dance, will be on Saturday, November 10, at the University Club.

S. Shepherd Tate, President of the Southwestern Alumni Association has appointed the following committee chairmen: Dr. Robert O. Black, General Chairman; Waddy West, Jr., Publicity; Elizabeth Jones Breyspraak, and James Collier, Attendance; William E. Ducease, Decorations; McKay Boswell, Tickets; and Goodbar Morgan, Reservations.

This meeting, which will take the place of the traditional Homecoming celebration, will serve as a reunion for all Southwestern alumni.

Later this fall the student body is planning a celebration on the campus, to which all alumni will be invited. It will include fraternity open houses, a basketball game between Southwestern and most probably Arkansas State, and a dance in the Gymnasium. Details for this event will be sent to all alumni later.

The alumni get-together at the University Club on November 10 promises to be a gala affair. A delicious dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. Dr. Robert P. Richardson, '17, for years a missionary in China, who recently was appointed Vice-President in charge of Development at Southwestern, will be the principal speaker. He promises to leave his gloves at home as he talks about Progress and Development.

Following the dinner and Dr. Richardson's talk, there will be dancing from 9 until 12. Bill Justis, x'48, and his orchestra, will furnish the music. The dress for the evening will be semi-formal, and tickets for the entire evening will be $2.50 a person.

In order to assure a reservation for yourself and sit with friends you wish to be with, you positively must make reservations. There will be individual tables and you or someone in your party must reserve a table. You may write or call the Alumni Office, 7-1800, and make your reservation.

The Schaeffers Like Europe; And Vice Versa, We Hope

Gene and June Schaeffer, '49 and x'46, have written enthusiastically about their summer tour in Europe.

After spending the past year in New York City, where Gene is working on his M.A. in Public Law and Government, they took off on June 25 for France. The first stop was LeHavre, France—then Southampton, London and Oxford, England. From England they went to Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Italy and back to Paris, which Gene says "was the last and certainly the best stop on our Grand Tour." In fact, he ran out of superlatives describing the "No. 1 enchantress among old world cities." However, Gene and June's enthusiasm for Florence, Italy, and a few other Italian cities ran Paris a close second.

"In my own humble opinion," writes Gene,

Rome is something pretty special. We would like to have had a month there instead of the week we actually spent. Let me say by footnote to Italy that in addition to its more widely publicized artistic, historical and scenic attractions, it also has some of, if not the best-looking women in the world."

Gene will complete work on his M.A. next May, after which he and June will probably return to Memphis. Their present address is 525 W. 113th St., New York 25, N. Y.
