Students, Parents, Alumni Will Share Two Fall Events

Be It Ever So Pleasantly Nostalgic There's No Time Like Homecoming

What's nicer than the prospect of a good football game on a beautiful, sunny, crisp October day?

Add to this the pleasurable pride of revisiting your own Alma Mater, meeting and visiting with old friends and former classmates—and you've got some sort of a superlative in enjoyment.

This is yours for the taking—and more besides—at Southwestern's HOMECOM-ING October 20.

The opponent is Washington and Lee, which Southwestern soundly trounced at its own Homecoming last year at Lexington. So there will be a goodly contingent of W & L alumni lined up as rooters on the other side of the field, and many of these you will know, too.

It looks like the perfect set-up for one of the most spirited and exciting days in Southwestern's football history.

Hundreds of alumni are expected from all over the Mid-South for the full day's events.

Sororities and fraternities will bring all their college humor and dexterity to the ingenious lawn decorations which always lend color to Alumni Day. Judging will take place during the mornings and trophies will be presented during intermission at the dance that evening by alumni president Oscar Hurt.

The Alumni Luncheon, sponsored jointly by the Southwestern Men of Memphis and Southwestern Women of Memphis, will be held at noon in the Adult Education Center of Burrow Library.

Members of the football team of 1926 and their wives will be honored guests. Wes Adams, who lives in Philadelphia, is in correspondence with all team members trying to effect the reunion roundup.

All the fraternities will hold open house after the game.

Grand finale will be the Homecoming Dance from 8 until 12 o'clock in the Mallory Gymnasium.

The joint efforts of Goodbar Morgan, alumni secretary, and Robert Neil Templeton, student commissioner of social activities assure you of a memorable and happy experience—a day well spent.

Address your inquiries and reservations to Mr. Morgan in the Alumni Office.

Come Feast on Books Varied Menu Planned

The Book Festival at Burrow Library, Oct. 15-20, once more will bring distinguished speakers and films to delight book lovers of the Mid-South and a wide range of interesting exhibits for browsing to the heart's content.

Prof. Thomas H. McDill, Jr., of Columbia Theological Seminary will head a seminar on Religious Life in Books Tuesday afternoon.

The Poetry Society of Tennessee will present readings and memoirs, including selections about Oscar Wilde. Participants will be Mrs. Frank Sturm, Mrs. Jones Ross, Mrs. Albert Rickey, Mrs. A. P. Kelso, Mrs. Charles Reber, Kenneth Beaudoin, and Dr. Marshall Wingfield.

The Annual Dinner of the Friends of Burrow Library will be held Thursday night. All alumni are invited.

Dr. Julian P. Boyd, editor of the Jefferson Papers, will give an address, "Thomas Jefferson, Bookman, Librarian, Archivist," following the dinner.

The dates of the festival are planned to include Homecoming Day so that alumni on the campus will have access to the exhibits during their visit.

Books will come to the Alumni Luncheon, too, in an address by Dr. Alfred O. Canon, "Back to Books."

The festival opens at 12:30 the afternoon of Monday, Oct. 15, with messages from Mayor Edmund Orgill, Neville Frierson, chairman of the student committee; and Dr. Jared E. Wenger, chairman of the faculty committee for the library; Oscar Hurt, Jr., president of the Southwestern Alumni Association; Edward F. Thompson, president of the Friends of Burrow Library, and Dr. Jay W. Stein, librarian.

You are cordially invited to the opening and to the entire festival—to come and bring your family and friends.

Parents Are Invited To Taste Campus Life

How many parents would like to share their children's college life with them—to observe them in their daily activities, their classes, their contacts with faculty and campus friends!

Southwestern inaugurates this year a special day dedicated to this opportunity—PARENTS' DAY—Saturday, November 3.

Dr. Robert P. Richardson, Southwestern's vice-president in charge of development, who has had four children of his own in various colleges, conceived the idea of setting one day in the year in which all students' parents would be especially invited to the campus to meet their children's friends—their professors—and other parents.

Registration will be from 8 until 9 a.m. in Room 102 of Palmer Hall.

Parents will be invited to attend classes with their sons and daughters, to meet and talk with their faculty advisors, and to visit the residence halls in which they live.

They will be guests of the college at a luncheon at 1 o'clock in Neely Hall, the college dining room. Presiding will be Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, Southwestern president and father of a current student. Speaker will be Dr. A. P. Kelso, long time Professor of Philosophy, who has also been a Southwestern parent.

Afternoon and evening hold a store of interest and entertainment which parents will share with their sons and daughters—the football game on Fargason Field with Howard College and, in the evening, the student show, Talent Night.

Dr. Richardson urges all parents to come early so they can participate in all events.

Working with him on arrangements is Don Parker, president of the student body.

Martha Sullivan Heads Southwestern Women

The Southwestern Women of Memphis elected officers for 1956 at a luncheon meeting held in May. Mrs. Charles Cannon Sullivan (Martha Tabb) is the new president. She will be assisted by Mrs. J. T. Murff (Frances D. Smith) as vice-president; Mrs. J. C. Lewis (Jeanne Edens) as secretary; and Mrs. Ben Waller (Virginia Finch), treasurer.

MEET SOUTHWESTERN'S NEW FACULTY AND STAFF

Four Southewestern graduates return to the campus this year as members of the faculty and staff, bringing with them a string of degrees and honors which they have accumulated during absences of varying lengths.

Other distinguished faculty members have been added to maintain Southwestern's traditionally high faculty—student ratio and to help handle increasing enrollment.

Professor M. Boyd Coyner, like many American presidents, much of American history, Southwestern's president, and many of the other good things in this world, bears the mark "Made in Virginia."

Mr. Coyner got his A.B. and M.A. degrees at "The University" and will receive his Ph.D. this summer, also at Charlottesville. His thesis, which is now in preparation, will treat a co-founder of the University of Virginia and a former owner of the famous old Virginia home, Bremo. Gen. John Hartwell Cocke was an eccentric, a large slave owner who was opposed to slavery, and an ardent temperance man, not like Mr. Jefferson in this respect, according to legend.

Mrs. Coyner is the former Betty Gilmer, daughter of a Hampden-Sidney professor. She enjoys painting, does some portraits, and also employs the brush, as well as the sandpaper, in her hobby of collecting and doing over old furniture. The Coyners live at 340 N. McLean and have a four-year-old son.

Mr. Coyner is a classical music devotee and plays the piano a bit himself.

The family sport is camping out and they made an extensive camping trip through the Blue Ridge this summer.

Mr. Covner is Assistant Professor of His-

Dr. Jack Howard Taylor's return to Southwestern has made two sets of grandparents very happy.

Remember Jack?

Dr. Taylor was known as plain "Jack" on the campus back in the early '40's when he divided his time between a physics major and a pretty co-ed. Sarah Virginia Sparr, who decided to forego the A.B. for the Mrs.

Their two Memphis families, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Taylor and Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Sparr, join Southwestern in welcoming back the Taylors and their three sons, Jack, 10, Billy, 7, and Charles, 4, who already are registered at Southwestern in the appropriate classes.

In his student days Dr. Taylor was president of Chi Beta Phi, a member of O.D.K. and the tennis team.

During the interim, he served as a lieutenant in the Navy doing research work at the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington. He returned to Southwestern briefly to teach physics, later got his Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University, and taught at the University of the South.

He has also done research for the E. I. Du Pont Company.

He comes to Southwestern from the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, where he was a consultant in infrared to the Optics Division. This summer he was sent to Hawaii to survey the possibility of studying infrared transmission of the atmosphere between the two mountain peaks, Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea. He will return each summer to do reseach work for the Naval laboratory.

He is Associate Professor of Physics here. The Taylors are living at 1776 N. Parkway.

Professor Franklin M. Wright, new Assistant Professor of History, is happily settled in the faculty apartments at 699 University and finds his present situation more congenial than his former one in Memphis. He lived then in the Cattle Barn at the Fair-

That was back during Warld War II when he found himself stationed with the Quartermaster Corps of Second Army Headquarters, which made use of the Fairgrounds Buildings.

Mr. Wright, a native of East St. Louis, Illinois, holds A.B. and M.A. degrees from Cornell University and is a candidate for the Ph.D. at the Johns Hopkins. He spent two years at King's College, London, on a Fulbright Scholarship and it was in England that he picked up a yen for hiking and horseback riding. He's currently combing Memphis for an available horse.

His other interests are many—politics, classical music (he plays a little piano, too) ballads and folk songs-fly fishing.

It's Coach Now

It's Coach Frank L. Horton now, and he's actually coaching a few of his old Southwestern teammates. For the new basketball and baseball coach got his Southwestern A.B. in 1955 and went to the University of Tennessee for his M.S., which he received this

While in Knoxville he coached high school basketball and directed the city recreation program at Norris, Tennessee.

Seniors still on the campus remember him well as a four letter man-basketball, football, baseball, and cross country, during his own recent college career.

Coach Horton grew up in Knoxville and the great Tennessee athletic tradition has helped to spark his interest in sports. He came to Memphis in time to play football and basketball for East High, but Tennessee remains his favorite team - except Southwestern William J. Gravesmill comes to the Music Department as Instructor in Music History and Theory, just after two years in the Army. He holds both B.M. and M.M. degrees from Oberlin College.

With the appointment also as organist and choir master at Grace-St. Luke's Episcopal Church, his musical cup brimmeth over, but he is still, athletically speaking, a fish out of water.

Born and bred in Akron, Ohio, a city of lakes, and having been on his college swimming team, he finds himself a little out of his element in the drouth area. But he's still looking and inquiring hopefully for lakes.

Tennis, camping, historical fiction are among his many interests and he's an Agatha Christi addict, too.

Two and Two Didn't

Professor Robert R. Bishop, frankly, started out to be an accountant but found he couldn't add, shifted to foreign trade, which served as a spring board to the Spanish language and Hispanic culture, now his special field of study.

Both his A.B. and M.A. have come from the University of Chicago and he will get his Ph.D. there this spring. He comes to Southwestern from L.S.U., where he taught for the past three years.

Mr. Bishop also picked up a speaking acquaintance with Japanese during a year spent in the army's Area and Language Program. He had planned to study Spanish but the quota was filled and he was assigned to Japanese. He served also in the Signal Corps and the Military Police.

Book collecting and binding have been his long time hobby and he owns a fine collection of Spanish books and microfilm and facsimile copies of rare 17th century manuscripts.

The Bishops and their four children, ranging from 7 to 2, live at 340 N. McLean. Their principal "family activity," he says, is getting three of the children off to three different schools each morning.

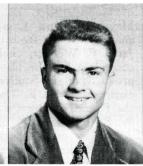

When they're somewhat better settled, Mrs. Bishop plans to do graduate work in occupational therapy or social work, fields in which she has long been interested.

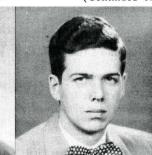

Mr. Bishop, you may have gathered, is the new Assistant Professor of Spanish.

She Fiddles But Nothing Burns

Miss Derry Deane of Pontiac, Michigan, is the new Instructor in Violin. She holds the B.A. from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester and the M.M. from the University of Illinois at Urbana and has studied and traveled abroad for two summers. She studied in England last year on a Fullbright scholarship.

She is an omnivorous reader, an avid photographer, and something of a specialist in American (and a little French) cookery.

Dr. Frederick D. Pultz comes to Southwestern in a dual role as Director of Vocational Counseling and Associate Professor of Psychology and Education.

He received his A.B. from Washington and Lee, his M.A. and Ph.D. in guidance from Ohio State University, has been a public school teacher and principal, an intelligence officer in the Air Force for four years, and Associate Professor and Registrar at King College at Bristol, Tennessee. Most recently he was Assistant Director of the Division of Adult Education at the University of Louis

Dr. and Mrs. Pultz (she's a former director of religious education) have three sons. Their home is at 710 N. Evergreen.

Four Memphians who are eminently qualified in their respective fields have also been added as part-time faculty members.

W. Ross Junkin, who taught business administration at Southwestern from 1936 to '45 but left the ivied halls to enter public accounting, returns this year to lecture in accounting.

Mr. Junkin, a native of Toronto, Canada, got his A.B. at the University of Toronto, came to the states to do his graduate work, and stayed on after obtaining his M.A. at Cornell University. He is also a C.P.A., a member of the firm of M. O. Carter Co., and an elder of the Evergreen Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Junkin live at 2261 Henry and have a son and a daughter.

He Teaches, Practices, Studies

Dr. Neil Shelton, Chief of Clinical Psychology at the Lamar Veterans' Hospital, will lecture in psychology. He holds an A.B. and M.A. from the University of Cincinnati and Ph.D. from the University of Chicago.

For most people that should be enough degrees. But Dr. Shelton has become so interested during his work in Memphis in the psychosomatic aspects of tuberculosis that he now plans to go for his M.D., which he feels will afford him added usefulness in this field.

Dr. and Mrs. Shelton and their three children live at 4803 Hummingbird Lane.

Plus Values of Liberal Education Sustained By Renewed Contact

"The objectives of liberal education are not simply reached automatically at the end of four years but represent a lifetime of learning," Dr. Alfred O. Canon, Southwestern Dean of Alumni, told new students during orientation.

"As future alumni of Southwestern you will be urged and encouraged to continue on the high road of continuing liberal education.

Helping alumni to continue on this high road will be the chief objective of Dr. Canon, a Southwestern alumnus himself, in his new post with the college and the Adult Education Center.

Southwestern, it is believed, is unique in the acquisition of a dean of alumni. Since his appointment, many have asked, "What IS a dean of alumni?"

He is an adjunct, not in any sense a replacement, of the active alumni office headed by Alumni Secretary Goodbar Morgan. He will work in conjunction with it, the office of development, and the entire college.

Dr. Canon

Dr. Canon is currently getting acquainted with alumni all over the Mid-South, encouraging their participation in the adult education program and learning from them what type of activities they would like for their alma mater to offer them. He will work towards organization of alumni and their friends to stimulate interest in some form of continuing education. He will work with the alumni office to acquaint them with the many current activities on the campus in which they might find interest and pleasure.

Dr. Canon described college to the freshman class as an opportunity for technical and vocational training PLUS certain intangible values. These PLUS factors, he said, are the objectives of the liberal arts education. He named them:

1. To acquire true and significant knowledge of man's history, culture, environment and his physical and biological nature.

2. To develop the ability to use the English language to participate in campus and community activities, to think independently and critically, to make value judgements, and to handle a foreign language.

3. To understand people and be able to work effectively with them, to appreciate the differences that exist between peoples and cultures, and to understand and appreciate man's potentialities in relation to God's

4. To create a faith in God, in fellow man, and in oneself. These three faiths should help to establish an adequate sense of values and to develop an affirmative attitude toward life and commitment to a high ideal.

Has every graduate gotten all this out of college? It doesn't come all wrapped up in your diploma, to be sure. Sometimes it appears, bit by bit, years later as you meet new stimuli or new challenges.

Revisiting the wellspring, Southwestern believes, helps the alumnus to sustain those PLUS benefits he has derived from his liberal arts training-helps him continually to broaden his horizon—to live more fully and effectively.

Few have the time these days to "go back to school" in the sense of time consuming credit courses. Some who have been out of school for a long time feel they are "too out of practice" to learn readily.

The adult courses can be tucked into even the busiest schedule, meeting only once a week or in alternate weeks. Many husbands and wives have found in them a happy new mutual interest.

They are discussion type meetings—no quizzes—no exams. Participation in the discussion is entirely voluntary, so you are welcome to talk when you feel informed or inspired or simply to listen if you prefer.

It's an experience—not a task.

Why not ask Alf Canon about them?

time basis, is Mrs. H. B. Evans, 426 S. High-

Mrs. Evans' husband is head of the English department at Memphis State College and she also taught there for nine years. A native of McLemoresville, Tennessee, she received her A.B. from the University of Chattanooga and B.S. from George Peabody College. She is active at St. Luke's Methodist Church, where she teaches a Sunday School class, and in the A.A.U.W.

The Evans spent the past summer touring Europe and the British Isles and indulging in one of their favorite hobbies, color photography.

A lawyer and amateur actor, A. G. Burkhart, Jr., will be Instructor in Speech. Mr. Burkhart also has taught speech at the U.T. Extension Division for ten years.

He holds a B.S. from the University of South Carolina and M.A. and LL.B. from the University of Tennessee, is a member of the firm of Burkhart and Busby. He served in the Navy during World War II.

Mr. and Mrs. Burkhart live at 1300 Vicoscia Road. He's an occasional golfer and together they enjoy working with antique furniture and roses.

Two more Southwestern graduates return in key staff posts-Dr. Alfred O. Canon as Dean of Alumni and John C. Turpin, Jr., as Assistant Registrar.

Add to these Mrs. W. M. Cone, the new Director of Service Projects, and Mrs. Carl W. Weber, Assistant to the Alumni Secretary, and you've met the new additions to Southwestern's growing family.

Dr. Henry J. Bassett Dies at Maryville

Dr. Henry J. Bassett, brilliant scholar and beloved professor of Latin at Southwestern for 16 years, died August 20 at Maryville, Tennessee., where he had lived since his retirement in 1945.

Dr. Bassett of the inquisitive approach, the gold rimmed spectacles, and the prominent Phi Beta Kappa key was a well known figure, not only at Southwestern but also at Second Presbyterian Church, where he taught a men's Bible Class for many years; at the Kiwanis Club, where his attendance record was almost perfect; and at the Claridge Hotel, where he lived in Memphis.

His range of interests was almost as extensive as his circle of friendship and his sphere of influence on the minds of all sorts of people.

During five trips to Europe he gathered a collection of more than 8,000 mounted post-cards which he believed to be the largest in the United States.

He was educated at Maryville College, Princeton University, the American Academy in Rome, and the University of Michigan, where he received his Ph.D. degree in 1920.

His total years of teaching numbered 40.

Disjecta Membra

Traditional at Southwestern is the use of student workers on the P.B.X. switchboard. They make fine operators, once they get the hang of it but service is pretty spotty during the first week of college as new student operators acquire the knack.

One conversation went like this:

Party: "May I speak to Erma Reese?" Operator: "Where would I find her?" Party: "In Dr. Rhodes' office.

Party: In Dr. Knodes office.

Operator (aside to supervisor): "Who's Dr. Rhodes?"

We'll Be A Houn' Dog

Reliable informants reported this month to this column a spectacular chase through mid-town Memphis involving Elvis Presley and Annie Beth Gary. Annie Beth, as everyone knows, was graduated from Southwestern (with first honors in her class) in 1928 and later served the college as registrar for a number of years.

Witnesses to the chase reported Elvis' Cadillac in the lead, with Annie Beth overtaking him at several intersections along the route at which enthusiastic demonstrations occurred.

The informant added that the Gary car was packed full of young nieces and nephews, who hardly gave Annie Beth a choice in the matter.

Mrs. Alumni

An eavesdropper would probably have wondered why the busy college president would be taking time to explain at length to a delivery man what alumni are.

That's what Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes was doing in the deserted third floor of Palmer Hall late one afternoon.

Seems the man wandered into the presi-

LYNX BUILD SOLID STRENGTH TOWARD HOMECOMING CLIMAX

Rick Mays began the season with an aggregate of potent factors from which to mould the 1956 Lynx team—a solid core of veterans, a sprinkling of returning non-lettermen, and the impetus of five consecutive victories.

Admittedly, this was the most promising group of pre-season gridders on campus since before World War II, for the squad had all the requisites for compiling a winning season, and then some.

Experience was present at every position, with 18 returning lettermen, and ten players who had previously manned starting spots in Lynx elevens. The squad was a bit slim, 35 players, for a college team, but Mays felt it was deeper in helpful members than any other of recent campaigns. "We'll go this fall without any tourists," he said. "Every

Four Generations At Southwestern

In the family history of a Southwestern senior lies also the history of the college.

When Connie White graduates from Southwestern in June she will be the fourth generation of her family to do so. It all began when her great-grandfather, John J. West graduated from Stewart College in Clarksville in 1867. Thirty years later in 1897 her grandfather, L. Newton Byers, graduated from Southwestern Presbyterian University, Clarksville. Then Laura Byers (now Mrs. Thomas P. White and Connie's mother) entered Southwestern while it was still in Clarksville and during her years as a coed saw the college moved to its present site in Memphis. She graduated in 1927. Connie will get her degree in June, 1957, rounding out perfectly the interval of 30 years between each graduation.

dent's office asking for "Mrs. Alumni." The president's curiosity and his natural teaching instinct compelled him to pursue the matter to a satisfactory conclusion.

It developed the Alumni Office had called the Salvation Army to pick up a collection of waste paper. member of the squad can definitely help us in games."

Nor is this team without individual stars. Quarterback Billy Young, a member of the Little All-America squad in 1955, and Co-Captain of the present Lynx, is capable of playing for anybody's eleven, as is John Martin, 195-pound speedster who plays either fullback or halfback. End Bobby Rose and guard Robert Neil Templeton are as fine individual performers as you'll see on any small college team, and center Jim Breazeale, the other team Co-Captain, seems headed for a banner season as he begins a fourth straight year in the Southwestern starting lineup.

So on through the team, with former starters holding every post except the half-backs. Four letterman tackles, with average weight of 210 pounds, share duty almost equally, as do three guards, all former regulars. Halfback, the only spot void of returning first stringers, has a quartet of young speedsters vying for top honors, and any of the four rate as starting potential. Alston Jones and Charlie Ames, a pair of Holly Springs, Mississippi, sophomores, C. D. Kilpatrick, another second-year man, and junior Shep Crigler alternate duties at the halfback posts.

But the most striking quality of the present Lynx is the winning tradition that is evident in their every action. The 1955 grid squad ran up a string of five straight wins by the season's end, and the current team kept right in step by rolling over Sewanee 27-7 in the season opener for consecutive victory No. six. Even more important than the win streak, as such, is the fact that this team expects to win, and that in itself is quite a change from the trend of recent seasons.

On October 20, Southwestern meets the tradition-steeped Generals from Washington and Lee on Fargason Field in the 1956 Homecoming tilt. Last year's game resulted in a 33-12 win for the Lynx, the first decision ever between the teams, and the Generals will be barring no holds in trying to even up this particular mark. Just how far the Virginians have come in their rebuilding program since reviving football in 1954 will be interesting to note, for Washington and Lee is out to have good football teams, and at the earliest possible date.

So, all factors point to a rousing battle this Homecoming Day. All-out football played by top small college squads is a treat for any Saturday, and this will be no exception. The chance to re-new old acquaintances and see former classmates is an added inducement. Plan to be in the stands for all the activity, and be there early, there won't be many vacant seats.

Former Southwesterner Is Taken By Death

Dr. Roy Lee Davis, who was public relations secretary at Southwestern from 1942 to 1950, died August 14 at his home in Little Rock after a heart attack.

In his early life, Dr. Davis traveled extensively and taught in Russia. He became a Presbyterian clergyman in 1929 and served as pastor of churches in Charleston and Wynne, Arkansas, and in Los Angeles.

At the time of his death he was executive secretary of the Arkansas Synod of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.

Commitment, Craftsmanship Are Dual Aims of Program

Beginning with the Fall term Southwestern initiated a three-point program set up under a $30,000 grant received this summer from the Danforth Foundation.

As the first phase of the program a full time vocational guidance service was made available to all students for the first time on this campus, and placed under the direction of Dr. Frederick D. Pultz who comes here from the University of Louisville. Vocational testing of incoming students already has been accomplished with a view of using the test results to help give direction to the individual's college career and aim it directly at his life work. The tests, which reveal the student's aptitudes, will be used as a basis for special counseling later on in an attempt to discover the type of occupation which promises the individual student the greatest personal achievement as well as offering him the best opportunity for service to his community. It is expected that the test findings will influence the choice of curriculum and that the student will concentrate on those subjects most useful to his special abilities. It is hoped that the guidance service will encourage students to stop wondering about their careers and start planning for them while still underclassmen.

The second phase of the program, expanded Christian service projects, is designed to prepare students for leadership in the years after they leave college. With the cooperation of Memphis churches and social agencies students will have opportunity to train for teaching in Sunday school; for recreation leadership; and for direction of children's choral groups; as well as other work with certain social agencies.

Shortly after the opening of the present term a group was selected from volunteer students and assigned particular projects on an individual basis. They then entered a seven week training program consisting of one and a half hours each week. A larger group is being allowed to observe methods and procedures in Christian service. Both are under the direct supervision of Mrs. W. M. Cone of Memphis.

As the third point of the Danforth program the faculty voted to include themselves by added commitment to their vocation of Christian teaching.

In announcing the three-fold program Dr. Jameson M. Jones, dean of the college, said that in carrying it out the ideas of commitment and craftsmanship will be kept uppermost at all times. "By commitment," he explained, "we mean life service rather than lip service to moral and religious ends. By craftsmanship we mean the sense of a job well done for its own sake." In concluding Dr. Jones stated, "To say that these values are hardly dominant in contemporary society would be a gross understatement. A program undertaking to build them into the life of undergraduates will meet a real need."

with the Alumni

CLASS OF 1929

The president of Southwestern's Alumni Association, Oscar Hurt, Jr., has qualified as a member of the 1956 Million Dollar Round Table of the National Association of Life Underwriters. He has won this honor for six consecutive years, placing him among the national leaders in life insurance

Southwestern will be officially represented by Dr. Claud B. Bowen, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Greensboro, North Carolina, at the formal dedication of Wake Forest College's new campus at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, on Friday, October 12.

CLASS OF 1930

McGhee Moore, broker of cottonseed and soybean products, has become associated with Standard Commission Co., Memphis brokerage firm. Mc-Ghee, a broker since 1934, is returning to a firm with which he had connections early in his career. After attending Southwestern he was employed about six years with Swift & Co., then joined Standard Commission. He is a member of the Memphis Board of Trade and lives at 1624 Harbert.

CLASS OF 1932

Dr. James G. Hughes is one of the founding members of a newly organized National Council on Infant and Child Care. Formed to promote accurate public understanding of development in pediatric medicine, the council includes leading physicians from 17 universities and children's renters. Dr. Hughes is author of a textbook,

Pediatrics in General Practice and recently was commissioned by the Rockefeller Foundation to study pediatric education in Brazil. He is a director of the American Board of Pediatrics and medical education committee chairman for the American Academy of Pediatrics.

CLASS OF 1934

Painter Carroll Cloar has joined the faculty of the Memphis Academy of Arts, teaching classes in oil painting. His paintings, lithographs and water colors are in collections of the Brooks Memorial Art Gallery, the Metropolitan and Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Library of Congress, and Brocklyn and Newark, N. J., museums. Cloar, whose talent has impressed critics from New York to California, was made an honorary member of Phi Beta Kappa at a ceremony here last spring.

CLASS OF 1935

The Rev. Robert L. Walker, a convert to the Catholic faith, was ordained to the priesthood in the Dominican Order at Washington recently. After receiving his A.B. from Southwestern, he attended the University of Michigan where he received a doctorate in English language and literature in 1942. He taught at the University of Michigan, University of Detroit, Holy Cross College of Worcester, Massachusetts, and Boston College. He entered the Dominican novitiate at St. Rose Priory, Springfield, Kentucky, in 1949. For the past three years Father Walker has been studying theology at the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology last year.

CLASS OF 1936

Newest thing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Graeber is William Mims, born June 1. The other children are Geri, 10 years; Lewis, III, 8 years; and Clark, who is 4 years old.

As anyone of his friends could have told us 20 years ago, Maurice Carlson is a leader. Any prophecies that were made then have certainly been fulfilled. Maurice is vice-president of the Universal Life and Accident Insurance Co. of Dallas, and this summer served as general chairman for the 3rd annual Southwest Management Conference in Dallas. The conference, drawing from six Southern states, is the largest Management Conference in the country. Held Sept. 7 and 8 it offered a program of sixteen top notch speakers representing as many life insurance companies. It is good to see Maurice fulfilling the promise he gave here on the campus so many years ago.

CLASS OF 1937

Replacing the gold maple leaf with a silver one is Toto Houts who is now a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve. Toto is an instructor for the armored branch of the 3059th Army Reserve School. When out of uniform he is with E. H. Crump and Co. in the Insurance Department.

CLASS OF 1938

The two Boswell boys, John and Steve, now have a little baby sister, Margaret Jeanne, born August 31. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. McKay Boswell, Jr.

Taking office as newly elected president of Memphis Underwriters Association is James Breytspraak, chartered life underwriter for Aetna Life Insurance Co. He also is new president of the Memphis Travelers' Aid Society and recently received the National Quality Award presented in recognition of outstanding service to clients by the National Association of Life Underwriters and the Life Insurance Agency Management Association.

Add one to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Edward McDonald: Leigh Anne was born May 12. The other children are Ketti, a proud 11 years, and Melissa, a lucky 7.

CLASS OF 1939

George F. Humphrey is now a Chartered Life Underwriter after successfully completing all examinations this summer. He is associated with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

It is now a family of five children for Mr. and Mrs. Bethel Thomas Hunt. Robert Frazer, born June 6, is the latest addition. Others are Bethel Thomas III, who is 9; Mary, 6; and twin girls, Louise and Helen, who are 4.

Florida in June beckoned to Roberta and Waddy West and away they went to Four Mile Village on the beautiful stretch of powdery white sandy beach between Panama City and Fort Walton. With them, of course, were their three youngsters, Waddy III, 5, Missy, 3½; and Dunlap, 2. Mrs. West is the former Roberta Wellford, class of '43.

CLASS OF 1940

You may now address John A. Pond as "author" though his book will never be a best seller. John, a member of Goodyear Atomic Corporation's analysis and design department at Portsmouth, Ohio, is co-author of Modern Trigonometry with William A. Rutlege, University of Tulsa. The idea for the book was conceived while they were teaching at Auburn. "It came during a coffee break," says

Jane and Janet arrived at the Lloyd Parkers' on June 27 as delightful duplicates. The twins boost the family census to a lucky seven, the other children being Spencer, age 8; Virginia, 6; and Amy, 4.

CLASS OF 1941

An authority on nuclear physics is Dr. William O. McMinn who has received an advancement from Assistant to Associate Professor of Physics at Clarkson College of Technology, Potsdam, N.Y. Orvill has his master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees from Indiana University and also attended Colorado School of Mines. A former physicist for the French Atomic Energy Commission Laboratory at Sacaly, Seine et Oise, France, he worked with a group building the 5MV Van de Graff machine in France before going to Clarkson in 1953.

Keeping the family in perfect balance by his arrival on August 27 is Gerald C. Marshall, second son and fourth child of Mr. and Mrs. John D.

Marshall.

Dr. William Benson Bobo, who after graduating from Southwestern attended Louisville Presbyterian Seminary and Ole Miss and received his medical degree from the University of Illinois, was married this summer to Dr. Betty Ruth Glasgow. The bride received her bachelor of science, master of science, and doctor of philosophy degrees from the University of Missouri, where she was a member of Sigma Xi and Sigma Delta Epsilon honorary societies. She has been research associate at Alton Ochsner Foundation Hospital and Tulane Medical School. The couple will live in Clarksdale, Mississippi, where Bill has his practice.

George W. Grider, x'35, has been named president of Memphis' Good Local Government League, a new group organized last year for political action. He also served as campaign manager in the election of Edmund Orgill as mayor of Memphis.

George Grider became a hero's name during World War II when he distinguished himself as a submarine commander and it is gaining heroic proportions now for useful citizenship.

He is a lawyer, associated with the firm of Burch, Porter and Johnson, is chairman of the Memphis-Shelby County Chapter of the Red Cross, and busies himself with many charitable and civic activities.

Although the U.S. Naval Academy has first claim on George as an alumnus, Southwestern, too has a minor claim as he went here briefly before entering Annapolis.

He also has been an interested participant and leader in Southwestern's Great Books program.

CLASS OF 1942

The Rev. Robert E. Cogswell, '42, minister of Midland Presbyterian Church, University City, Missouri, has been involved in a $105,000 building program for the church which was completed this spring. An educational addition was made to the original structure which also was renovated and rebuilt. Robert lives at 1420 Waldron Avenue, University City, and is the father of two children, Kathy, 8, and Roby, 5.

Marion McCain Maury made her appearance into the world at Baptist Hospital June 13, claiming as her happy parents Mr. and Mrs. Richard Maury of 2453 Union Avenue, Memphis.

took place on June 21 at Lindenwood Christian Church. After a wedding trip to Nassau, the couple set up their home at 1116 Poplar. Irma is society editor of The Commercial Appeal and Erich is an attorney, associated with the law firm of Waring, Walker Cox and Lewis.

CLASS OF 1948

Born the eighth month eighteenth day was Steven Lowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert B. Thornton (Anna Louise Rother).

A little late, but still news to this office is the word of Dorothy Fuller's marriage to The Rev. Earnest Rudder Knox on October 9, 1955. Mr. Knox, who studied at Bethel College, Vanderbilt University, and the University of Alabama, is now minister of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in South Pittsburg, Tennessee.

The Rev. Samuel R. Fudge has accepted a post as head of the Presbyterian Church's orphanage in Monticello, Arkansas, assuming his new duties Sept. 15. He leaves the pastorate of First Presbyterian Church, Covington, Tennessee, where he has served for the past three years bringing many improvements to the church.

Sonny Connell is attracting a lot of attention in Broadway circles as one of a trio of young men who have been successful where other producers failed in persuading Mrs. Eugene O'Neill to allow her husband's last play, Long Day's Journey Into Night, to be produced in the United States. Frederick March and his wife have selected it to mark their return to the Broadway stage. Sonny and his partners, Theodore Mann and Jose Quintero, have been getting enthusiastic reviews in the New York papers for their highly successful revival of O'Neill's The Iceman Cometh which played this summer at the Circle-in-the-Square just off Broadway.

Marilu H. McKinney is teaching math and science in Orlando, Florida. Her new address is 3416 Grant Blvd.

After the name of H. C. Pitman, Jr., goes D.D.S., the degree he received in June from the University of Tennessee College of Dentistry

Recipient of the Phi Delta Law Review Medal was Joe Meux, who studied for the bar at Vander-bilt University School of Law in Nashville. The medal is presented to the staff member, other than the editor, selected as having done the most outstanding work in the Review during the school year. It was presented to Joe at the annual Law Day celebration in April, which was highlighted this year by an address from William O. Douglas, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. Joe has recently been admitted to the Tennessee bar. It was another musical honor for James Venner Cobb this summer when he appeared as guest soloist with the Atlanta Pops Orchestra in a program of arias from Puccini's "La Boheme" and "La Traviata." Prior to his Atlanta engagement he was in Memphis reviewing voice technique with Neumon Leighton. Did any of you see him on the Ed Sullivan show June of '55 when he appeared as winner of the Army Talent Review? From that appearance he joined an entertainment unit which toured Alaska, Japan, Hawaii, Formosa, and Korea. He is married to the former Barbara Hill of Graham, N.C., who was a former pupil of his when he taught voice at Flora MacDonald College.

Come income tax time next year Lloyd Burkett can add another exemption to his return. Lloyd Wayne Burkett, third child, first son, was born August 15, and is certain to provide fun for his two older sisters and pleasure for mother and dad.

For the second consecutive year E. Denby Brandon, Jr., has been honored with the National Quality Award presented by the National Association of Life Underwriters in recognition of his outstanding service to policyholders.

A good letter from Marvin S. Shinbaum, Captain, Marine Corps, tells of another move, this time to California and the Navy Post Graduate School at Monterey for three years of aeronautical engineering leading to a B.E. degree and the possibility of a master's in math. Says Marvin, "It's a rare opportunity and one for which I'm humbly grateful . . . The Marine Corps continues to be a firm and stern but generous taskmaster, and I make this move with determination to credit both corps and alma mater on the coast." With that attitude, he will.

It's a third child, second daughter, for Robert and Florence Haverty, born May 16 and named Cynthia Wilbourn Haverty. We suspicion that brother Robert III, age 3, and sister Adele, 5, are as proud of Cynthia as her mother and father. Florence attended Southwestern in the class of '51.

John Edward Norwood was married to Lynn Berry of Memphis in June. The bride is well known in art circles in Memphis. She attended Memphis State College and received her bachelor of Fine Arts degree from the Memphis Academy of Arts. She is a member of Phi Alpha Beta, honorary art fraternity and was vice president of the student body at the Academy. Before her marriage she served as registrar at the Academy.

Eugenia Jane, age 2 is still beguiled by the arrival of brother Carter Pendleton Munson on August 9. Eugenia and Carter are the children of Lousie (Carter) and Fred Munson.

Four Southwestern alums are on the faculty of Memphis University School this year. Cyril Pipkin teaches mathematics and science; David Morelock, who has been an instructor at Tulane University, will teach modern languages; Charles Mosby, who did graduate work in piano with a minor in geography, teaches both these subjects at the local school for boys; and John Nail is the new teacher of English, Bible and social sciences.

A letter written by Thomas Jefferson has been presented to Southwestern by Mrs. Roy N. Douglas of Memphis, an alumni of the college, and will be on exhibit with other Jefferson papers in Burrow Library during the annual Book Festival Oct. 15-20.

In this letter which is dated "Jan 17'10" Mr. Jefferson wrote, "I observe that the H(ouse) of R(epresentatives) are sensible of the ill effect of the long speeches in their house on their proceedings. But they are a worse effect in the disgust they encite among the people and the disposition they are producing to transfer their confidence from the legislative to the Executive branch, which would soon sap our constitution."

Writing to "The honble John D. Eppes, Congress," Jefferson proposed a rule to be adopted by Congress "to remedy the eternal protraction of debate," which indicates that at least one of the problems of Congress hasn't changed in the last
