Bellingrath gift: giant boost for scholarships

Southwestern has launched the largest scholarship program in the history of the college thanks to a major endowment from the late Walter D. and Bessie Morse Bellingrath of Mobile, Alabama, for whom the scholarships will be named

"The Bellingrath Scholarships will be among the most prestigious in the ' predicted President James Daughdrill. "The beneficence of the Bellingrath-Morse Foundation will help maintain the excellence of Southwestern in its educational mission to our students."

The Bellingrath - Morse Foundation gift is the largest in the college's history. Southwestern receives four-sevenths of the Foundation's net income from investments valued at approximately $39 million. The college's share of the income will run about $1.5 million

Mr. Bellingrath, who was awarded an honorary degree from Southwestern in 1951, was a Presbyterian layman and personal friend of the late Dr. Charles E. Diehl, Southwestern president and founder of the college's Memphis campus, and of Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, President Emeritus of the college. Bellingrath started one of the first Coca-Cola Bottling Companies and built the Mobile enterprise into a thriving business. His wife Bessie Morse fashioned a large tract of uncultivated Alabama land into the now famous Bellingrath Gardens which opened to the public in

Mr. Bellingrath established the Bellingrath-Morse Foundation for the benefit of Southwestern, Huntingdon College in Montgomery, Ala., Stillman College in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and the two churches where the Bellingraths were members. The foundation guidelines require the colleges to teach Bible and Biblerelated courses to all students.

George Downing, Chairman of the Bellingrath-Morse Foundation, said he was delighted that Southwestern had chosen to honor the Bellingraths in the new scholarship program. "Southwestern is certainly one of the top churchrelated colleges in the country," Downing emphasized. "These scholarships will make Southwestern available to many outstanding and deserving young men and women - and attract the nation's best students to Southwestern."

The scholarships are particularly timely because of projected cuts in federal and state aid, according to Dr. Ray Allen, dean of financial aid and government relations at the college. "With rising costs of college education, the large scholarships will add to the overall financial aid program, enabling us to meet the financial needs of students as well as to award merit scholar-

Allen said the college will award each year four Bellingrath Scholarships with a four-year value of more than $38,000 each and eight Morse Scholarships with a four-year value of more than $26,000 each. The first Bellingrath and Morse Scholarships will be awarded for the academic year 1983-84.

The college's financial aid program will additionally include another 100 merit scholarships. Last year Southwestern students received total financial aid well in excess of $2.8 million.

Southwestern alumni, Presbyterian ministers and friends of the college will participate in regional nominations for the Bellingrath and Morse Scholarships as well as for the sought-after Hyde and Goodrich scholarships already established at Southwestern. Alumni clubs in major metropolitan areas will help coordinate the regional nomination program.

"The gift has the effect of doubling the income of the present $15 million endowment of the college," according to Mr. Frank M. Mitchener, Jr., Chairman of the Southwestern Board of Trus-

The additional endowment will count toward the college's $50 million capital campaign, according to campaign chairman Charles P. Cobb, a Memphis attorney. "We still have much work ahead of us to complete the $50 million campaign, a campaign totaling $65 million when annual gifts are included," Cobb said. "But the Bellingrath endowment puts the total gifts and pledges received to date at $41 million. This boosts us toward success.'

'This generous endowment assures that Southwestern's ideals of academic excellence and church relationship will be strengthened," said President Daughdrill. "We will make great strides in preparing our students to be leaders in the twenty-first century."

Farris gambles, wins on frontier fiction

The West - or rather, the Western novel - has risen again, yanked from an eight-year dormancy by Jack Farris, the Texas-born, Arkansas-bred English professor who has taught at Southwestern for more than 20 years.

"Me and Gallagher," Farris' third novel, was published in late August by Simon and Schuster. And in the few months between acceptance and release, the book has plucked the ripest of literary plums. Literary Guild picked it as the alternate selection for fall, and Heinemann's, a leading publisher in Britain, has purchased publishing

For "Me and Gallagher," Farris journeys further west than the rural Arkansas that dominates his earlier works. The book is set in 1863 in Virginia City, Montana, a backwater town burdened with gold-seeking rowdies and a lawless sheriff and his deviant deputies who terrorize the community.

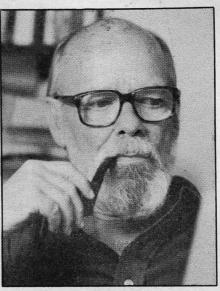

Grubber Graves, a fifteen-year-old orphan who links up with a rugged frontiersman named Gallagher, narrates the tale of how the Vigilante Movement was born in the state and the part that he, Grubber, played in its creation. Grubber's unadorned chronicling of the rough times and even rougher characters in his world offers fresh insights into a spirited period in American his-

It's a story of traditionally law-abiding men fighting violence with violence. As was pointed out by the normally taciturn Gallagher, enlisted to lead the vigilantes' fight against the unsavory deputies/road agents: "It's either vigilante law or no law atall . . . you don't reason with a clutch of rattlesnakes."

But the story is more than fisticuffs, shoot-outs and swigging gin in a saloon. It's a story of self-discovery, of growing up and accepting fate, of facing death with dignity.

The seed for "Me and Gallagher" was planted a number of years ago when Hollywood screenwriter Abby Mann asked Farris to find an obscure Western character about whom to write a screenplay. Some local research by Farris' wife Anna uncovered a character named X. Beidler, a teen-aged boy involved in the birth of the Montana vigilante movement. Beidler became the Grubber Graves of Farris' novel.

Farris traveled to Montana several times to research the vigilante movement, and began working on a screenplay and later a book about the subject. He shelved the project for a while, returning to it two summers ago. Less than a year ago, Farris submitted a manuscript to alumnus John Boswell '67, a literary agent. Boswell sent the book to an editor at Simon and Schuster, and within five or six weeks Farris had word of its acceptance.

"I went back through and read the whole manuscript again. I never have done that before," said Farris, who conceded that this was one of his best works.

Even so, Farris didn't expect bookpublishers to agree so quickly. "Publishers are spooked as hell about fiction by unknown writers. Fortunately, I have an editor and an agent who will take a chance on a quality work.'

The fate of the book is particularly surprising considering its subject matter, Farris explained. "If fiction is undergoing perilous times, western fiction is in double jeopardy," he said, noting that the western film died eight years ago.

Farris, who holds a B.A. from Ouachita College (Arkansas) and an M.A. in literature and philosophy from the University of Michigan, had his first novel, "Ramey," published in 1953. It was the basis of an NBC television movie, "The Greatest Gift," which spawned a television series, "The Family Holvak." "A Man To Ride With," his second novel, was published in English, Dutch and German.

Two years ago Farris' first stage play, "Into Thy Narrow Bed," met with considerable acclaim in its premiere staging at Memphis' Circuit Playhouse. He has begun work on a fictional treatment of the play.

Kresge challenge grant is music to campus ears

The college has been awarded a $200,-000 challenge grant from The Kresge Foundation of Troy, Mich., to construct and endow a $2.4 million music building on the campus, according to President James H. Daughdrill Jr.

Plans for a major music building were announced in October 1981, when anonymous donors provided major gifts for its construction. To date, $1.6 million of the total cost has been secured. The Kresge gift requires the college raise the remaining $600,000 needed to build, furnish, and endow the building. The deadline for acquiring the $600,000 is September 15, 1983.

The Kresge Foundation, one of the country's ten largest foundations, was established in 1924 by the late Sebastian S. Kresge. Kresge was founder and chairman of the board of S. S. Kresge Co., a syndicate of dime stores that later became the K-Mart Corp. The Foundation, which awarded more than $28 million in grants this year, is not related to the K-Mart Corporation or any other organizations or corporations.

In 1957 The Kresge Foundation awarded Southwestern $24,000 toward the addition of a north wing to the Refectory.

"This $200,000 challenge grant from Kresge represents national recognition of Southwestern's quality and growing academic reputation by another major foundation," said Pres. Daughdrill, referring to an earlier $200,000 grant from the Pew Foundation in May. That grant helped to purchase a new computer for the college.

"The Music Building is urgently needed," according to Margaret Hyde, chairman of the Music Building Committee. "There has been gradual deterioration of our fine instruments due to inadequate heating and air conditioning, obsolete plumbing and wiring, and major structural weaknesses in the Music Department's current housing—a converted apartment building across the street from the campus."

Southwestern's proposal for funds was one of 1,449 that The Kresge Foundation considered in 1982 and one of 132 that was awarded a grant. "Assuming that the college raises the necessary funds to qualify for The Kresge Foundation grant, it will be the second largest contribution received for the music building," said Donald Lineback, dean of development at the college. The grant also is considered part of the college's ten-year $50-million capital campaign, launched five years ago, according to Lineback. The capital campaign lists the music building as a top-priority item.

"Foundation grants are made to nonprofit institutions in the areas of higher education, health care and related services, the arts and humanities, social services, science, conservation, and religion," explained William Lipscomb, program analyst for The Kresge Foundation. He said most grant recipients had raised initial funds toward their respective programs before requesting foundation assistance. Grants are issued on a challenge basis requiring raising of remaining funds, thereby insuring completion of the projects.

The two-story, 15,000-square-foot music building will combine all instruction, practice and study in one building and stand between Southwestern's new McCoy Theatre and Tuthill Hall, forming a performing arts triad. Metcalf Crump of Taylor & Crump Architects, Inc., will serve as architect of the building. He also designed the McCoy Theatre. Southwestern has engaged the Memphis construction company of Martin, Cole, Dando, and Robertson to build the structure, which will feature the Gothic sandstone walls and slate roofs traditional for the college.

The facility will include 15 practice rooms, a large hall for classes and chamber music recitals, a library and 18 faculty studios. Most rooms await donors for whom they will be named.

Homecoming means fun, football, reunion revelry

The October 30 Homecoming and Class Reunion Weekend "should be one of the biggest and best ever," according to Margaret Johnson Thomas '63, coordinator for the annual alumni weekend.

"We have a wide range of enjoyable social and sporting events planned throughout the weekend, including coffee with faculty members, a gala reception or two, some marvelous meals and a Homecoming football game," Mrs. Thomas said. "This is all in addition to the many class reunion parties scheduled for Saturday night." Of particular interest, she said, will be the alumni premiere of the college's new audiovisual presentation. This multiprojector slide-and-tape show will be unveiled in the new McCoy Theatre on the Saturday morning of Homecoming.

As worked out by the Homecoming Committee, the final schedule calls for the major alumni weekend to get underway Friday, October 29, with a 5:30-7:30 p.m. cash bar reception in the Briggs Student Center. Southwestern President James Daughdrill and Alumni Association President Margaret Jones Houts '40 will host the reception and the catered dinner to follow in the Refectory.

Saturday morning coffee with fellow alumni and faculty members will be augmented by guided tours of the campus, a student Homecoming float parade, a meeting of the Golden Lynx — those alumni who have already celebrated their 50th Reunions — and the unveiling of a specially commissioned painting of a Lynx by noted wildlife artist Imogene Farnsworth '66.

But the big event on Saturday will be the noontime luncheon, Mrs. Thomas said. "We're planning a marvelous buffet luncheon featuring famous Memphis barbecue, and we're planning to hold it outdoors in the beautiful Fisher Garden, where most of us went through graduation ceremonies. It should be a perfect setting."

The luncheon will be followed by the annual Homecoming football game, this year pitting Southwestern against conference rival Principia.

Among those celebrating special anniversary class reunions that evening will be the Class of 1957, holding its 25th Reunion Party at the home of classmate John Maxwell, and the Class of 1932, marking the Golden Anniversary of its graduation with a dinner party at the Memphis Country Club.

Other classes with committees working on special reunion parties include 1937, 1942, 1947, 1952, 1962, 1967, 1972 and 1977.

In addition to campus-wide festivities, Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity will hold a centennial celebration honoring its 100th year on campus.

Building assumes donors' name

The major donors of the soon-tobe-constructed music building on campus shed their anonymity shortly before the "Today" went to press, agreeing to allow the college to name the $2.4 million structure for them.

The building that will house the college's music department will carry the name "Hassell Hall" for the Clifton, Tenn., family that provided the major funds for its construction. The donors are two sisters — Pauline Hassell Nicholson and Frances Hassell Wade—and their brother, Thomas F. Hassell.

According to Charles Cobb, legal counsel for the Hassells and a Southwestern trustee, the three benefactors have a high regard for the college and the graduates it produces, as well as an interest in scholarship and music.

Pauline Hassell Nicholson, a widow, was at one time a pianist in New York City. Her brother, Thomas F. Hassell, was prominent in the lumber business in Wayne County, Tenn., before his retirement. Frances Hassell-Wade, along with the other two Hassells, is active in the Presbyterian Church, Cobb noted.

The original construction and furnishings estimate was $1.5 million, but that grew to $2 million when the college discovered that a new quarry of Arkansas fieldstone would have to be opened to match Hassell Hall's outer walls with other buildings.

Bellingrath gift makes 1982 a year long to be remembered

Late summer is a quiet time on a college campus. The pace slows to a normal workday. There is more time to think and time to feel.

Only the crepe myrtles are in full regalia, making University Street and Charles Place look like giant cosmetics counters with every known shade of rose and red. The sprinklers whirr rhythmically, steadily measuring their green circles, and chipmunks seem to gather courage to range farther from home.

Late summer is a time of totaling up and assessing, a time of writing annual reports and annual objectives.

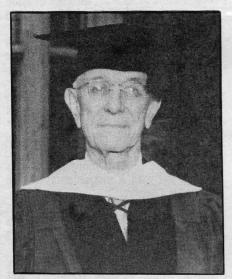

This past year has been one that will be remembered as long as the history of Southwestern is told. The addition of over $15 million to our endowment through the Bellingrath trust is news matched only by Southwestern's opening in Memphis.

During the last three years of planning and working together with the Bellingrath-Morse Trustees, we have visited Mobile often. I think we have gotten to understand the vision of Walter D. Bellingrath, just as we at Southwestern understand the vision of Charles E. Diehl.

On our most recent trip to Mobile, Libby and I were taken on a tour of the Bellingrath Gardens by Mr. and Mrs. George Downing. He was a long-time associate of Mr. Bellingrath and is chairman of the Bellingrath-Morse Foundation.

You feel a certain sympathy between the Bellingrath Gardens and the Southwestern campus that surely goes back to the friendship between Dr. Diehl and Mr. Bellingrath. Call it vision. Call it beauty or excellence. Call it whatever you will. There is a harmony about both places. You feel, as Wordsworth, "with an eye made quiet by the power of harmony, and the deep power of joy, we see into the life of things."

Biographer Howard Barney wrote these words about Mr. Bellingrath,

Walter Bellingath receiving honorary degree from college in 1951.

As I See It

James H. Daughdrill, Jr. President

"His writings reveal not only many interesting facts of his early hardships and simple pleasures but also facets of a complex, fascinating personality whose self-doubts, anxieties and spirituality soften, in retrospect, the crust of his successful business career.'

It was in 1922 that Walter D. Bellingrath first donated funds for scholarships to church-related colleges. Sixty years later, in July 1982, the Southwest-ern Trustees voted to perpetuate the memory of Walter and Bessie Morse Bellingrath by establishing the largest merit scholarship program per capita in the United States.

The Bellingrath endowment will assure that Southwestern will be one of the nation's finest colleges of liberal learning, and we pledge a careful stewardship of their investment.

Young Walter Bellingrath, in a letter to his mother in 1892 wrote, "by God's help I am going to try to make the world better and brighter by being

He did. And we are grateful.

Forum probes people's views on national issues

The college's Continuing Education Center is waging war on the "silent majority syndrome" afflicting Memphians. A five-session "National Issues Forum" this fall will explore three significant areas of national concern - inflation, jobs and productivity, and social security and retirement - and will relay the opinions of participants to national lead-

"This is kind of a grass-roots program," said May Maury Harding, director of the Continuing Education Center. Southwestern is one of about 50 sites in the nation where issues forums are being held. After the forums, senior national policy makers will meet at the Gerald Ford Presidential Library to review the questions and opinions generated by the local forums.

The series, which starts Thursday night, Sept. 30, will call on local leaders, economists and jobs experts to lead some of the talk sessions

Topics of other continuing education fall courses include Oriental art, creative writing, great literature, field trip photography, religion, and much more. "Biblical Archaeology," a slide and discussion series that attracted capacity crowds last winter and spring, will return with Religion Prof. Richard Batey sharing his summer '82 slides of New Testament archaeological sites.

Brochures detailing the fall courses at the Center are available by writing or calling the Continuing Education Office on campus.

Cost-cutting plan earns honorable mention

The college won an honorable mention in this year's Cost Reduction Incentive Awards Competition sponsored by the National Association of College and University Business Officers.

Institutions all over the country submitted entries based on cost reduction programs they had implemented during 1981. Southwestern's entry dealt with recovering interest on tuition checks held by the college during the summer. By establishing a specific power of attorney, the college was able to deposit and earn interest on the checks, rather than holding them until students re-

Annual Report of Giving

1981-82 For Southwestern At Memphis, July 1, 1981 - June 30, 1982 A special section to the August 31, 1982 "Southwestern Today."

Gifts to the college come in all shapes and sizes, but they have one thing in common. Directly or indirectly they enhance a Southwestern education.

Although the books pictured above are borrowed from the Walter Armstrong Rare Book Collection, they represent one area that benefits from your contributions: the library. Books, new equipment, scholarships, faculty salaries and much more are made possible by your gifts. Thank you.

Inside the "Report"

- Alumni donor ranks grow; participation far exceeds national average (story, page A-2).
- Capital campaign receives largest amount of gifts ever (story, page A-2).
- Youthful phone corps finds receptive audience (story, page A-4).
- Devotion to former college president spurs big interest in Diehl Memorial effort (story, page A-10).

1981-82 Report_____

Annual gifts hit million dollar mark

The combination of restricted and unrestricted annual gifts to the college climbed past one million dollars for the first time in Southwestern history. On June 30, the close of the 1981-82 fiscal year, receipts stood at $1,073,292, a 12.4 percent jump over last year.

The Southwestern Fund, made up of all unrestricted gifts, moved past its goal of $779,000 to a year-end total of $779,842. Fund Chairman John Whitsitt reported a 10.2 percent increase in gifts over the previous year.

In all, 4,415 alumni, trustees, parents and friends contributed to the college. The highest percentage of alumni contributors ever - 35 percent of all alumni placed Southwestern 89 percent ahead of the national average in alumni support.

"The Southwestern Fund is a critical factor in maintaining a balanced budget for the college because the Fund supports current operating needs," Whitsitt explained. "The success of the Southwestern Fund this year helped push the fiscal record to a full decade of balanced budgets for the college. Few colleges or universities can match that record."

Southwestern Fund dollars go toward instruction, research and student services. Library books, scholarships and sophisticated new science equipment are additionally funded through annual gifts.

Each division of the Southwestern Fund reported increased giving. Alumni chairman Katherine Smythe '53 announced $290,572 in alumni gifts, 37.3 percent of the Southwestern Fund total. An additional $48,124 in unrestricted alumni gifts counted toward the trustee and staff divisions.

Two phonathons, held in Memphis during the year, boosted the alumni division totals significantly. During the October phonathon, alumni volunteers secured $112,000 in pledges from classmates during eight nights of calling. The April student-led phonathon attracted an additional $34,000 in alumni pledges.

Regional phonathons in Nashville and Little Rock also boosted annual fund gifts from alumni and parents by an additional

Highlights of other divisions include:

- . The Trustee division, headed by Norfleet R. Turner of Memphis, pushed past its goal of $180,000, completing the year at $186,992, a 10.3 percent rise over last
- Parent/Grandparent giving, under the leadership of chairman Wilford Caulkins, advanced to $47,175. New donors made over one-third of the parent gifts.
- The Memphis Community Campaign, chaired by Memphian Richard Rantzow, jumped 17 percent to $156,902, thanks largely to new participation in the major donor clubs.
- · Campus giving, with Biology Prof. Robert Amy as chairman, surged ahead 27 percent. Contributions totalled $13,435.

Outstanding support of the Southwestern Fund has won recognition for the Classes of 1941, 1965, and 1969. These classes will receive the following alumni awards, to be presented by President Daughdrill at Homecoming October 29-30.

The Goodbar Morgan Award for increased participation: Class of 1941, Mrs. Ruth Pouncey, chairman.

The President's Award for the largest total gifts: Class of 1965 ($13,936), Mr. W. Michael Drake, chairman.

The Rollow Award for the greatest percentage increase in giving: Class of 1969 (70% increase in pledges), Mr. H. Neil Arnold, Jr., chairman.

Also, for the second consecutive year, the Class of 1971, with Mrs. Deborah Dorman as chairman, had the largest number of donors - 113.

Campaign tallies tell story of commitment

Southwestern's ten-year $50 Million Commitment campaign gained considerable momentum during the year. In January capital giving surged past $20 million, signaling the end of Phase I of the campaign and the start of Phase II. By the fiscal year-end June 30th, the total amount of campaign gifts had swelled to $35,800,357 since 1977, with an additional $5 million in Southwestern Fund and restricted annual gifts received during the same time pe-

The fiscal 1981-82 share of a major gift from the Bellingrath-Morse Foundation (Alabama) was $1,070,000. (See story, page 2 of the "Today"). Moreover, 342 other donors gave $5,017,986 to the capital campaign in 1981-82. "This is the largest amount of gifts made in any year of the campaign," said Charles P. Cobb, chairman of the Southwestern Trustees' Development Committee and head of Phase II of the campaign.

Capital gifts are crucial to the college, according to Pres. James Daughdrill. They build the endowment, help finance dormitory and building renovation, construct necessary facilities, and provide scholarships, professorships and money for research, among other things.

At a dinner celebrating the success of Phase I of the campaign, Pres. Daughdrill told major donors that the ten-year campaign is "the most exciting and rewarding campaign I have ever been a part of. Your commitment inspires those of us who work and learn at Southwestern to be all the more committed to Southwestern's mission." He commended Frank M. Mitchener Jr. for his leadership as chairman of the campaign's first phase.

Phase II of the capital campaign, announced last October and begun in January, aims to raise total capital gifts of $50 million by 1987 and an annual gift total of $15 million by the same date. Whit Brown, chairman of S. C. Toof Company of Memphis, is working with Cobb as vice chairman of Phase II of the campaign.

"Your commitment inspires those of us who work and learn at Southwestern to be all the more committed to Southwestern's mission."

In addition to the Bellingrath-Morse gift, prominent additions to the capital campaign during 1981-82 include:

- A beguest of $600,000 from the late E. H. Little of Memphis.
- · Fourteen newly-established scholarships; additions to existing scholarships totaling approximately $50,000
- Two planned bequests by trustees of $700,000 and $500,000

• Three anonymous gifts totaling $909,-900 for the Music Building; additional outright gifts for construction totaling $100,-

Charles E. Diehl Society

The Charles E. Diehl Society was founded to honor the person most responsible for the growth and development of Southwestern. It recognizes those who are dedicated to the future of higher education and to the life of the college.

During his thirty-two years as President of Southwestern At Memphis, Dr. Diehl built an outstanding record of accomplishment in higher education. He moved the college from a town to a city. He formulated an educational program. He established the commitment to genuineness and excellence which has been Southwestern's guiding principle through the years.

In Dr. Diehl's words, "Southwestern has an honorable heritage. It will, with the loyal cooperation of us all, continue to be one of the comparatively few remaining citadels of learning which has not bowed the knee to Baal, which seeks not merely the good, but the best."

Those named below have, through their loyalty and generosity, ensured that Southwestern will continue in the mission established by Dr. Diehl.

Membership in the Charles E. Diehl Society includes those individuals whose annual support of Southwestern is ten thousand dollars or more (Founding Member) and five thousand dollars or more (Associate Member), unrestricted for basic current operating budget purposes.

Red and Black Society

Alumni and friends of Southwestern whose unrestricted gifts for the year are $1,000 or more become members of the Red and Black Society. Members of the Red and Black Society are recognized at an annual dinner honoring these special friends of the college.

Phoning for Funds

Students reach out and touch alumni

Nobody speaks better for Southwestern than its students, judging by the recent success of two student-led fund-raisers.

This year 16 percent of the student body participated in fund-raising, securing $39,331 for the annual fund through the alumni-parent phonathon and the Graduate Gifts Program, a drive directed by and to graduating seniors.

The spring phonathon, organized and led for the first time by students, had its largest volunteer phone corps ever. Alice Marie Clark, '84, Peter Rooney '84 and Ted deVillafranca '83, who chaired the phonathon, rounded up 140 student callers.

The key to the phonathon's success, according to the student chairmen, was the Southwestern experience common to students and alumni.

"The alumni not only shared with us what Southwestern was like in their years, but also they are very eager to hear about campus life today," said phonathon chairman Alice Marie Clark.

Dr. B. B. McCaa Jr., '60 of Ithaca, N.Y., wrote that his caller, senior Carolyn Camp,

"(My student caller) was co charming that I pledged and hung up the receiver before recalling that I had already sent a check to the Southwestern Fund."

was "so charming that I pledged and hung up the receiver before recalling that I had already sent a check to the Southwestern Fund." Ms. Camp secured $1,776 in pledges, winning a friendly competition among students for most dollars raised in an evening.

The Graduate Gifts program, initiated three years ago to boost Southwestern Fund giving among new graduates, drew annual fund pledges from 50 percent of the senior class. That was up from a 31 percent participation rate in 1980 and a 37 percent rate in 1981. Overall 35 percent of the college's alumni give annually.

Through the Graduate Gifts program, senior class leaders call on classmates to stress the importance of yearly giving. This year's campaign "laid the groundwork" for strong and long-standing support of the Fund by the Class of '82, said Rob McRae, a June graduate from Chattanooga and chairman of the graduategiving drive.

Sophisticated scientific equipment is necessary for teaching and research. Your gifts to the Southwestern Fund help defray the costs of high powered microscopes such as this and assure that Southwestern students leave college with a working knowledge of today's technology.

Key to capital gift terms

Capital gifts help build the permanent endowment and improve the physical plant at Southwestern, while annual (Southwestern Fund) gifts provide for the current operation of the college. Both are important.

A summary of capital gifts by class is included in the alumni giving pages this year. The amounts of each type of capital gift show the five-year total for the $50 Million Commitment.

The two categories of capital gifts are outright and planned gifts. Outright or immediate gifts have a present value to the college. Planned gifts, also called deferred gifts, have a future value. By far the majority of capital gifts throughout the history of the college have been in the form of planned gifts.

Abbreviations for capital gifts:

IN: Insurance Policy. (This includes the face value of life insurance policies. The donor may deduct his premiums if Southwestern is owner and beneficiary.)

IP: Irrevocable Planned Gift. (This includes charitable gift annuities, charitable remainder trusts, life estate contracts, and all other irrevocable provisions. The donor may realize a significant tax benefit while providing for himself and his family.)

MB: Matured Bequest. (Includes all funds distributed to Southwestern through wills and trusts where the funds are in probate or have been distributed outright to the college.)

OG: Outright Gift. (Includes gifts of present value such as cash, stocks and bonds, real estate. Gifts of closely-held stock provide particular benefits to the

RP: Revocable Planned Bequest. (Includes will provisions and revocable trusts discovered or confirmed during the campaign term. Will provisions may be simple bequests or testamentary trusts.)

Volunteer spirit matched to particular projects

While the $50 Million Commitment is a broad campaign to secure capital funds, many of its goals deal with very specific projects. Thus, an alumnus like Waddy West '39 who wishes to pay tribute to the late President Charles Diehl, can funnel his efforts into such a memorial project. Trustee Margaret Hyde can transform her love for music into work on a new music building on campus.

"Volunteers are excited about focusing their efforts on a single capital objective which they can follow through till complete," explained Dean of Development Don Lineback. He said that volunteers can align themselves with projects that personally interest them rather than with the general campaign for increasing capital assets.

The Diehl Memorial Committee, chaired by West and launched during the past year, aims to erect a statue of Charles Diehl, surrounded by a courtyard, in the front of campus at the point where a line from the Avenue of Oaks intersects a line from the front of Burrow Library. The memorial, which will include special lighting and plantings along the Avenue of Oaks, had received 65 percent of its $160,- 000 goal by July 20.

"This statue represents the love and devotion and debt that we owe Dr. Diehl," said West, commenting further on the large number of gifts received, a gauge of Dr. Diehl's impact on alumni and college friends. "The donors span more than a generation of students and friends who admired Dr. Diehl," West said. Gifts have ranged from $10 to $12,500.

As of July 20, the Music Building Committee headed by Miss Hyde had received 75 percent of its $2,399,480 goal for construction and a maintenance endowment. Gifts in memory of Dr. Burnet "Papa" Tuthill, long-time chairman of Southwestern's music department, boosted that total significantly.

Additional project committees include the Library Committee — to endow collections, make new acquisitions and renovate the stacks in the library - and committees on faculty development, a new residence hall and scholarships.

Mike Cody '58, a partner in the Memphis law firm of Burch, Porter and Johnson, is chairman of the Library Committee. He will be assisted by Elizabeth Rodgers Dobell '58 and John H. Quinn Jr. '58.

Where there's an updated will there's way for new tax savings

By Winton C. Smith, Jr. '65 Legal Counsel

The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 provides dramatic new opportunities for you to obtain a Will which transfers your estate free of federal estate taxes. Your family will not receive the benefit of these tax savings, however, unless your Will is written or revised to take advantage of the following important changes in the

New Marital Deduction

You can now leave your entire estate to a surviving spouse free of federal estate taxes. Your current Will was probably written to take advantage of the old law where you could leave the greater of $250,000 or one-half of your estate to your spouse free of federal estate taxes. Your current Will probably states that you leave the maximum amount allowable to your spouse in order to qualify for the federal marital deduction with the rest in trust for your spouse and children.

These Wills, if written before September 12, 1981, will be interpreted to give only $250,000 or one-half to the spouse. Therefore, the remaining half of the estate will remain subject to the federal estate tax. It is important to remember that you must review your current Will with your attorney to be certain that it is properly written to transfer your estate to your spouse free of federal estate taxes.

> Exemption Equivalent Trust

The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 contains a new unified credit which protects a 1982 estate of $225,000 from federal estate taxes. This unified credit is gradually increased over the next five years to the point where a $600,000 estate in 1987 will be free of federal estate taxes. The credit-protected amount will pass free of federal estate taxes regardless of whether or not it qualifies for the new marital deduction and thus is later included in the surviving spouse's estate. Therefore, it would be wise to ask your attorney whether you should leave the maximum amount allowable to the spouse except for the credit-protected amount, which could then be left in trust for your spouse. The trust assets would then go to your heirs free of federal estate taxes in your spouse's

Gifts To Southwestern

The new law is designed to enable you to transfer more of your assets free of federal estate taxes to your heirs. Thus you should review your Will with your attorney to provide the maximum benefits for your family and other heirs.

While you are reviewing your Will, we hope you will consider a provision for the college. The new law eliminates the federal estate tax for many estates, which may provide an opportunity for you to include Southwestern in your Will in a manner which you have wanted to do for some time. For larger estates, the estate tax charitable deduction continues to encourage your provision for Southwestern by providing additional tax savings for your gift to the college.

We would welcome an opportunity to talk with you and your advisors about the many opportunities to include Southwestern in your Will and thus continue your support for the college.

Winton Smith, a '65 graduate of the college, joined Southwestern as legal counsel in 1976. He has worked primarily in the area related to the tax consequences of charitable gifts and has led many seminars on the subjects of estate planning and planned aifts.
