The earliest form of a wheelbarrow, it's believed, was designed around A.D. 200 by Chuko Liang, a general in Chinese Imperial Army. Its purpose was to transport large quantities of military supplies along narrow embankments.

*Dear Reader, at a certain point they stopped making the notebooks I keep.
I decided to have them fabricated.
The minimum order was 1000.
I realized that if I used them at my current rate they would run out in 2028.
This gave me pause.
I decided to make a coffin
/ notebook case for the storage
of the yet to be used notebooks.*

Dear Reader, after I had used the notebooks from the top shelf of my coffin / notebook case I decided to make drawers for my children. I made these drawers so the top drawer of each would fit into the now empty shelves of my coffin / notebook case. From time to time I put things into these drawers and when I need to use the coffin these drawers will be returned to Nelle's and Emma's drawers.
