IF YOU DON'T, YOU CAN . . . easily and quickly learn your way around in a foreign language at Southwestern's International Language Center.

If you travel for pleasure, it will be much more rewarding if you are able to converse with citizens of your host country.

If you travel for business, it's obviously to your advantage to know what's being said around you and be able to communicate your ideas. (Your company will probably underwrite your effort, too.)

Whether you're learning from scratch or just brushing up on a long unused tongue, you can do it pleasantly - as rapidly or as slowly as you like - in a private booth equipped with especially adapted tape recording equipment. You listen, you speak, and then you play back the master voice and your own for comparison.

There is no charge for the course but a nominal service charge is made for the tapes ($1.00 to $1.50 each) which may be taken home if desired. Purchase of the text which accompanies the course is recommended but not required.
