New Book To Feature Viewpoint Of Southerners, Reconstruction

TALLAHASSEE — The South may not rise again, but the Negro's feelings of the State of Georgia and reconstruction may be presented in a different viewpoint in a new book to be authored by an English professor of American history.

Dr. Alan Conway, a visiting professor of American history at Emory University from the University of Wales, is rewriting the history of Georgia during the reconstruction era.

"Maybe I can give a different viewpoint of this whole era," the Fulbright Fellow told a Florida A&M University audience recently. There have been several views of the South written by Southern and Northern whites and Negroes, he said.

Dr. Conway feels that there has been some doubt about the authenticity of the American historians' writings about the Negro after the Civil War. He raised several questions concerning statements made about the Negro and organizations seeking to aid ex-slaves after the war between the states by Americans. "I wonder if they have been objective, he queried.

African Leaders Discuss Problems

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (INPA) — Two African leaders discussed African problems with President Kennedy Wednesday.

Tom Mboya, trade union and political leader of Kenya, and Kenneth Kaunda, president of the United National Independence party in Northern Rhodesia, paid a courtesy call to Mr. Kennedy but said they had an opportunity to discuss with him in some detail "the political and constitutional problems facing our various countries and East and Central Africa generally."

Mr. Mboya told reporters that he had the opportunity to explain to Mr. Kennedy the "present constitutional deadlock" in Kenya and the position Africans were taking in respect to Jomo Kenyatta, whom the whites in Kenya convicted and imprisoned as the alleged leader of the so-called Mau Mau, a movement designed to drive the whites from Kenya.

Mboya said the President was very interested to know the facts about Kenya, especially as regards his position since 1952 and his arrest, trial, and restriction.

Kenya has recently been released from prison and exiled to a remote spot where his only visitors are those approved by the Kenya Government. Apparently, he is soon to be permitted to return to his home, but the Kenya Government has said he will not be permitted to engage in politics until constitutional questions involving independence for Kenya are settled.

Mboya said he imputed the President for his interest in the African student program and asked for further assistance in bringing more African students to the United States to study in the college and universities.

During the Presidential campaign, President Kennedy arranged for the Kennedy Foundation to make $400,000 available for bringing a number of African students to this country. At the time, former Vice President Nixon was trying to get the State Department to finance the project.

Mboya said the President was very sympathetic to the idea of bringing African students to this country.

Minister Ordered Turned Over To S.C. Authorities

NEW YORK — (ANP) — An acting State Supreme Court Justice last week denied a writ of habeas corpus to a Negro minister seeking to escape a South Carolina prison term on a conviction of vehicular homicide involving an elderly white man.

Justice J. Irwin Shapiro directed that the Rev. Waller M. Cavers, an AME2 minister, be turned over to South Carolina authorities. However, he suspended the order for ten days to permit the defendant's attorneys to seek the writ from the Appellate Division.

Justice Shapiro took the mandatory action of revoking Carver's $3,500 bail and ordering his back to the Queens County Jail pending the outcome of the appeal.

Swindling Charged To Prominent L.A. Pharmacist, Wife

LOS ANGELES — (ANP) — A prominent pharmacist, John D. Gardner, 56, who operates the Imperial Pharmacy was out on $20,000 bail last week, on a charge of swindling the county of sums for prescriptions that may total as much as $50,000.

His wife, Mrs. Eddie Gardner, 31, who was arrested with him was released on $2,825.

Authorities accused Gardner and his wife of faking names of patients and doctors on prescriptions submitted for payment to the Bureau of Public Assistance on the agency's "free medicine" program for the elderly.

On checking back on several dozen of these charges, the authorities claimed they had found that the doctors whose names appeared reported they had made out no such prescriptions and the patients denied that they had received the medicine.

It was estimated that there are some 5000 or more prescriptions involved and that each one has to be checked out before the actual amount of the alleged fraud can be determined.

Sunday School Lesson

WHEN GOD'S WISDOM PREVAILS

International Sunday School Lesson for April 30, 1961.

MEMORY SELECTION: "Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, let not the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches; but let him who glories glory in this, that he understands and knows me, that I am the Lord." — (Jeremiah 9: 23-24).

LESSON TEXT: Job 42. Continuing our study of the Book of Job, the purpose of our lesson today is to show how knowing and trusting God are our best resources; and to point out the inadequacy of material values as compared with those derived from faith in God as revealed through Jesus Christ.

The story of Job has quite a happy ending. Job, through his trials, came to a personal realization of his own inadequacies. He was unable to solve the great problems that troubled him. But in these experiences, he came into a rich, new relationship with God. The three friends who had given him such little help were censured, but at Job's request they were forgiven. Job, in fact, has passed from the stage where his knowledge of God was secondary to the stage where it was primary. Before, he had only heard of God; now he has had first-hand experience with Him. For Job, this experience was "the beginning of wisdom."

Suffering often does this. In the quest for a solution to the perplexing problems that it raises, suffering is often the pain by which a person comes into a new, deeper, more personal relationship with God. This is not to say that the suffering was sent to achieve this; it is only to observe that it often has this effect.

We can, almost daily, look around us and see those who are, materially, better off than we, ourselves, or others of our acquaintance. But we can also be discerning enough to see that material wealth is not true richness. One person whom we know can literally, to our way of thinking, "have everything," and yet be an unhappy man; while another, by material standards, can be the most poverty-stricken of human beings, and yet have a richness of spirit, a deep inner content, that is denied to his more fortunately placed brother.

Blessed are the persons who seek first the kingdom of heaven, who are rich toward God as was Jesus Christ. Blessed are they who can glory in a saving knowledge of God through Jesus Christ — who, like Job, no longer know God by hearsay, but by personal experience. They feel people have richness that are rare. They feel at home in the universe. They feel secure in the knowledge that they are known and treasured, wanted and loved. They know someone whose wisdom is omniscient, whose power is omnipotent, whose righteousness is absolute, whose justice is perfect, whose mercy is unfailing, and whose name is Love.

God does not eliminate the problems of such people, thereby making it a case of smooth sailing through life. He does, however, help solve their problems. He does not give them immunity from trouble. In God they find resources with which to meet and master trouble, as Job did. God does not spare men from peril, hardships and suffering. He enables them to use the thorns and goads of life for growth in wisdom, courage and love. And should they in folly wander into error and peril, the Shepherd with nail-pierced hands ever seeks them with promptings of truth and holiness. Should they in blind perversity fall into sin, there is One who hung on a cross, who awakens remorse, speaks pardon, and offers grace for a new beginning.

A summons to love God as we know Him in Jesus Christ, speaks through all that is nobler in us. Only as we answer this call can we feel at home in the universe. If we do this, quite unexpectedly we shall find ourselves to be truly millionaires — in the only way that matters.

Kennedy Warns That U.S. Has Its Limits

KENNEDY WARNS THAT U.S. HAS ITS LIMITS—President John F. Kennedy delivers a sharp warning that the United States "will not hesitate" to intervene in Cuba against the threat of "outside Communist penetration." He said America would not be lectured on intervention "by those whose character was stamped for all time on the bloody streets of Budapest." In addressing American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington, Kennedy said U.S. restraint "is not inexhaustible."

Students Charged With Peace Breach In Jackson, Miss.

JACKSON, Miss. — (ANP) — Four Negro college students last week were arrested on breach of peace charges for their unsuccessful attempt to ride in "whites-only" seats on a city bus. This is the second demonstration on the part of Negro students here to end color bars in recent weeks.

Jackson police identified the four as George Anne Washington, 20 of Jackson, Doris Ruth Bracy, 19, of Raymond, and Walter H. Jones, 18, of Forest, students at Jackson State College and Johnny Barbur Jr., 21, of Greenwood, a student at Campbell college here.

Chief of detectives M. B. Pierce said the students were released on $500 bond each. Bonds were posted by Dr. W. E. Miller and Cornelius Turner, both Negroes.

The two men and two coeds boarded a city bus on Capitol St. in the main part of downtown Jackson. They said later they planned to ride to the Municipal Park Zoo.

Before the bus left, police were summoned, and an officer boarded the bus and told everyone to "move on." Some white passengers responded, but the four Negro students did not move. They were arrested without incident.

NAACP Seeks Change In Federal Housing

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Negroes have been excluded from 98 percent of all Federal Housing Administration homes built since 1946, an NAACP spokesman charged here last week in hearings before the U.S. Senate Sub-committee on Housing.

Juvenile Delinquency

Men who boss confidence rings follow a definite pattern in recruiting and obtaining the services of young girls. In every part of the country the adults who are engaged in confidence games have made an effort to get teen-agers.

The Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans' Administration during the last 27 years have been responsible for the all-white suburbs that ring our cities, Wood said. He warned, however, that Federal-aided housing programs have spawned a pattern of residential segregation and discrimination that "rips this nation like a vise."

They work in teams of three—two old veterans who will take a third girl along, and start to break her in and teach her the tricks. Whenever a job is to be pulled, there are always calls from one operator to another operator from Los Angeles to Cleveland to New York — and there is that constant contact through telephone calls.

Wood declared that on a national basis, Negroes constitute 56 percent of the families being displaced and that in urban areas, Negroes constitute more than 50 percent of the families confronted with displacement. "The Constitution, the statutes, the innumerable court decisions and the will of the people — all mandate that federal funds and federal credit must not be used to strengthen or entrench practices of racial or religious discrimination," Wood concluded.

The grants will enable the professors to complete work on their doctoral degrees during the coming year. The Faculty-Fellowship program was established in June 1959, by a $300,000 grant from the General Education Board. Now in its third year of operation, the program provides financial subsidies to UNCF college professors who are already candidates for Ph. D. degrees.

Apparently, it was a pretty good system because in about five cases in which she was arrested it always turned out to be mistaken identity. After her hat and glasses were taken off and her hair-do changed to the way she usually wore it, a photograph showed how she actually looked.
