Fatal Shooting Of Popular City School Teacher, Mrs. Samelen White Wilson, Shocks Friends; Husband Free On Bond!

It was topcoat weather Saturday afternoon at the graveside in fashionable Elmwood Cemetery. Members of the ROTC drill team from Booker T. Washington High School and their female sponsors formed an honor guard and shivered while standing at attention during the brief burial rites.

Two ministers, the Reverend Miller Peace and James M. Lawson Jr., delivered the body to the soil. And, that was the end for Mrs. Samelen White Wilson, a city school teacher who was found last Wednesday night.

Sitting through the ritual, an unchanging straight-away expression on his face, was John Frazier Wilson, the husband and the man charged with the slaying. He was a lonely man. Most of those there to witness the final scene were his wife's friends. He was walked to the funeral car and consoled by his pastor, Rev. Mr. Lawson. This act drew stares from several of the funeral-goers.

Hundreds had passed through Avery Chapel AME Church on East Trigg earlier in the day to view the remains and as many as could get into the small sanctuary stayed on for the 1:30 funeral service which was highlighted by invocation by Elder Blair T. Hunt, reading of the scripture by Rev. Mr. Lawson, a solo by Harold J. Whalum and an eulogy by Rev. Mr. Peace, pastor of Avery.

The Wednesday staving, around 9 p. m., of the 55-year-old Booker T. Washington High School American history teacher, stunned, shocked and electrified Memphians. Telephones rang throughout the city announcing her sudden departure from this life, prompting scores of her friends and the curious to speed to the scene of the crime. The on-rush of people and cars created a traffic jam in front of the victim's home and scores were still milling about at 11:30 that night when investigating officers finally permitted her body to be removed.

Freckled-faced Mr. Wilson, a 57-year-old furniture store employee and an officer of Centenary Methodist Church, was booked early Thursday and later freed on $2,000 bond after being bound to the state by Criminal Court Judge Bernie Weisman on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting of his wife.

Mr. Wilson told police he left their home at 1961 Quinn, went to a grocery store, and found his wife shot in the face when he returned. He said he was gone about 15 minutes.

He said he found his wife lying in the bedroom, bleeding from the face wound. He called T. H. Hayes and Sons and asked that an ambulance be sent to his home.

Mrs. Wilson was dead when the ambulance arrived and attendants immediately notified police.

Investigating officers sealed off the house to relatives and the public and spent more than three hours questioning Mr. Wilson, dusting for finger prints and searching for a pistol they believe was used in the fatal shooting. Another team of officers spent a couple of hours quizzing neighbors.

They found only a shotgun in the house and it had not been fired. A thorough search was made by police inside and outside the house in search of the murder weapon.

Several friends of the victim said Mr. Wilson telephoned them Wednesday night and announced that his wife had been shot.

The Wilson home is on a quiet street and there is very little traffic at night.

This was a second marriage for Mr. Wilson, who is employed by Heaverty Furniture Co. His first ended in divorce.

Mrs. Wilson was twice a widow before she married Mr. Wilson. She was a graduate of LeMoynes College a trustee of Avery Chapel and a member of the popular Nonchalant Bridge Club.

The funeral was directed by T. H. Hayes and Sons. Pallbearers were Otis F. Brown, Nat D. Williams, William D. Wilson, Daniel W. Durr, L. R. Fletcher and Thomas P. Hall.

The deceased was the sister of William White of Pasadena, Calif., and niece of Mrs. Willie Carr of Memphis and Mrs. Lillie Coleman of Cleveland, Ohio. She was the cousin of Mrs. Ellen Stiles, Mrs. Kathleen Dunford and Mrs. Evelyn McDonald, all of Memphis, Mrs. Johnetta Myers, Mrs. Eddie Lee Griffin and Mrs. Mae Stewart, all of Chicago, and Mrs. Dorothy Green of Brooklyn.

She was the sister-in-law of Mrs. Blanche Chaffee of Canton, Miss., and Mrs. Fleeta M. Harris of Gary, Ind.

Mr. Davis defeated Atty. Elmer B. Vaughn, 9,934 to 8,719, in a district that boasted 18,189 white voters and 16,309 Negro voters. In the Oct. 5 primary election, he was top man with 5,578 votes, topping another Negro candidate, Lonnie Briscoe, 1,650, and seven white candidates, including Atty. Vaughn who got 2,496.

Davis was supported by whites as well as Negroes in his bid for a seat on the Council. He is a staunch Democrat and a veteran campaigner and one of the most vocal civil rights fighters in the city. He was elected to the Democratic Executive Committee in 1962. He is a graduate of Manassas High, Tennessee State University and is studying for a master's degree at Memphis State.

Two other Negro candidates won seats on the Council, the Rev. James L. Netters, 39, from District 6, and State Representative J. O. Patterson, Jr., 32, from District 7. Harry Golden Warns Of Faults In Civil Rights Movement

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Publisher Harry Golden warned an estimated 200 people of a United Negro College Fund Banquet on Nov. 2 of dangers today in the civil rights movement because of changes in direction by members of its group. The nationally known Golden, who edits the Carolina Israelite, was the featured speaker at a fund raising dinner sponsored by the Tuskegee Institute Chapter of the United Negro College Fund. The noted orator called for immediate moves in a new direction if the civil rights movement objectives are to be met. Golden recently withdrew his support from the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee because of the organization's militant moves. He cited the Negro rights movement in America today as moving towards a major decline. He was quoted as saying, "Some Negroes have caused a number of white liberals to drift away from the Negro rights movement." The guest speaker related that education is the only chance that people today have in gaining success and called the United Negro College Fund, "a wonderful thing because it aids many Negroes in getting an education. Education is the key to the American Negro drive for equality as it was for the Irishman, the Jew and the Italian." A major political bloc was called for by Golden because of the political system in America. "Southern whites are the greatest blockers in America," cited the speaker. He noted how whites have used the political bloc to limit the push for equality by Negroes. "Political alliance holds the key to the future," he said. Attacking the South, the Charlotte, N. C. resident said that Southerners feel that the federal government has "too much power."

"States like Georgia, Mississippi, and Alabama," he said, "are always attacking federal welfare programs."

He viewed such programs as justice not charity. "The South has been a federal reserve for the United States as if the region is Yellowstone Park," Golden noted. He pointed out how the South never complains about federal aid for programs other than welfare and education.

In an informal discussion following the banquet Golden declared that non-violence is the only effective method to get justice. When asked why Israel did not take that position during recent conflicts with the Arabs he said, "You can't practice non-violence in time of war." He called for patience and wisdom to end all suffering.

Tuskegee Institute's chapter of the United Negro College Fund sponsored the banquet to help raise $18,000 towards a national goal of $2,500,000. It was announced by Tuskegee's President, Luther H. McCarthy To Enter Presidential Primaries

WASHINGTON—(UPI)— Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D. Minn., said Nov. 2 he might enter several presidential primaries next year to stir public debate of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, which he opposes.

A member of the Foreign Relations Committee, McCarthy said in an interview it is time for the debate to shift from Congress to a broader public forum.

He gave no idea which primaries he was considering. "I wouldn't say that I wouldn't say that I wouldn't enter and I wouldn't say that I would," McCarthy said. "I'd like to wait and see if anyone else steps in. The whistle hasn't blown yet." Such a move by the 51-year-old liberal senator from St. Paul would assure primary voters, especially dissident Democrats, a chance to express support for a "peace" candidate directly challenging the President in 1968.

McCarthy, now in the middle of his second six-year term in the Senate, generally has sided with the Foreign Relations Committee chairman, Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., in his criticism of U. S. involvement in Vietnam.

VERY OUTSPOKEN
Although McCarthy has not spearheaded any movement for an alternative to the President's policies, he is one of the most outspoken Senate Democratic supporters of intensified efforts toward a negotiated settlement of the war.

In 1964, he was among the vice presidential possibilities whom Johnson considered before he chose Hubert H. Humphrey as his running mate. The Fulbright committee meanwhile heard a gloomy report from Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg on the prospects of a peace initiative through the U. N. although

Alabama Laymen To Have Equal Representation In Philadelphia

By E. P. WALLACE
MONTGOMERY—Laymen of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, approximately 600,000 strong, will have equal representation at the 1968 general conference, which will convene in Philadelphia next May.

Through legislation activated by a general conference of the AME connection, laymen of the church were voted equal representation with that of the clergy. Among the many revisions and new proposals to be presented at the approaching general conference will be an act dealing with the general budget of the church; Dr. R. W. Mance, treasurer of the connection, Washington D. C., has sent detailed information on importance and value of such legislation, to all bishops of the church. These booklets are being distributed throughout Methodism during the series of annual conferences and other sources.

Carl L. Baldwin, formerly of Birmingham, is the publisher and executive editor of the "Lay Leader," a monthly church publication, Jamaica, N. Y. He is a former member of St. John AME Church in Birmingham of which the Rev. C. E. Thomas is the pastor.

J. D. Williams, president, AME Connectional Laymen's Organization, through his biennial reports and a committee on proposed legislation is not to bribe, hinder or defeat anyone. Objectives are to perpetuate the heritage of African Methodism. History was made by the laymen in New Orleans last summer. They laid the foundation for all future gatherings. Educational features were of the highest calibre and the election was conducted on a quiet, but strict business manner. There were no nominating speeches, no motions or combination, no seconds, no cry for recounts and no complaints. That was as it should have been, and should be in the future.

Laymen are waking up throughout Methodism. They are becoming more aware of their responsibilities, and assuming them. This is what the church needs, a strong informed working body, which will work for the cause of Christ.

Revival services will begin Monday night, Nov. 13, and continue through Friday, Nov. 17, at New Bethel Baptist Church, 2215 Stovall St. The pastor, Rev. G. G. Brown, will preach each night beginning at 7:30. Public invited.

'Miss Henderson' Will Be Crowned

LeMoyn's cross-country team is back in town after a close weekend victory over Tuskegee, 27-29, on the Alabama campus. LeMoyn's men tallied in this fashion: Robert Carter, second; Harvey Eddings, third; Jesse Chastman, fourth; William Oliver, seventh; William Hayes, 11th, and Edward Davis, 12th. The LeMoynites were due to face Tougaloo College's runners at Tougaloo, Miss., Saturday of this week, but Tougaloo cancelled out. LeMoyn will participate in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference meet at Atlanta, Nov. 17-18.

COLLEGE PRESIDENTS ATTEND MEETING IN MEMPHIS

Memphis was visited by "ROYALTY" last week when a group of AME College Presidents and their wives attended a church meeting at the Sheraton-Peabody Monday through Wednesday. The "First Ladies", a group with immense charm, enjoyed Memphis with their husbands who are frequent visitors on our "Bluff". Dinner and party food were liberally served throughout the three day meeting and many other hospitalities were extended the group. I speak of six of the nation's leaders and celebrated educators, and they were DR. "JIM" LAWSON, president of Fisk University at Nashville and Mrs. Lawson who were the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Maceo Walker at their South Parkway residence. DR. JOHN KING, a native Memphian and president of Houston-Tillotson College at Austin, Texas and Mrs. King. DR. ALBERT DENT, president of New Orleans Delta University and his stately wife, Mrs. Dent. DR. HERMAN LONG, president of Talladega College and Mrs. Long and DR. GEORGE OWENS, president of Tougaloo College and Mrs. Owens. Serving as hosts to the distinguished guests were DR. HOLLIS PRICE, president of LeMoine College and Mrs. Price. It was altogether fitting and proper that the Lawsons stop with the Walkers in that Mr. Walker is chairman of the Fisk Trustee Board having given and raised more money for the university than any single man, and I believe I am correct in saying this. Mr. Walker attended the Trustee Meeting at Fisk last week after Dr. and Mrs. Lawson left.

MRS. TAYLOR WARD IS HOSTESS TO CLUB MEMBERS AND FRIENDS

The Passport Room was the scene of a lively crowd for a swanky cocktail dinner party given by Mrs. Taylor Ward (Louise) on Saturday evening of last week when she entertained for members of the Devoie Bridge Club and a few of her close friends.

The charming matron (we understand) was assisted in receiving by her young daughter, Mrs. Utillus Phillips, Jr.

Dinner was served after a cocktail hour, after which the members played bridge.

Club members who were lucky in winning the unique prizes and were requested to make their own selections, were Mrs. Emmitt Simon, Sr., who chose an overnight travel bag. Mrs. H. A. Gilliam, a cut velvet casual hand bag. Mrs. Cuffrey Bartholomew, an umbrella and Mrs. Esther Brown, a cut velvet casual hand bag.

Other members attending were Mrs. James S. Byas, Mrs. Iris Harris, Mrs. John Outlaw, Mrs. Victoria Hancock, Mrs. Grace Young.

MRS. M. J. OWENS ENTERTAINS ELITE MEMBERS

Mrs. M. J. Owen, in her stately and gracious manner, was hostess to members of the Elite Club at her beautiful Mississippi Avenue residence on last Tuesday for their October meeting.

The stately home was decorated with red and pink roses cut from Mrs. Owen's rose garden and the festive atmosphere carried on into the dining room table overlaid with an exquisite linen table cloth.

Dinner was served after a business session. Members attending the dinner meeting were Mrs. Alex Wilson, president of the group. Mrs. Harry Haysbert, Mrs. J. A. Beauchamp, Mrs. H. A. AWARD IS PRESENTED TO MISS MARTHA FLOWERS

A picture and an article appears in the Memphis City Schools Bulletin and I quote: Miss Martha P. Flowers, English teacher at Hamilton High School, recently received a $75 award from Ginn and Company for writing a critique of the Ginn Literature Series now being used in the Memphis City Schools. In her critique, Miss Flowers emphasized the desirability of more thematic groupings in the teacher's handbook, the addition of material on the history of the English language, and the provision of an annotated teacher's edition. The Ginn representative, Mr. Richard L. Nelson, wrote Miss Flowers a letter of appreciation also, thanking her for the helpful suggestions for improvement of the series. Along with teaching English at Hamilton, Miss Flowers is also enrolled at Memphis State University working toward the Ed.D. in Secondary Education.

MR. L. B. HOBSON, principal of Manassas High School, was the guest speaker for American Education Week at Melrose High School Tuesday of this week. Melrose faculty had "Open House" for parents and patrons in the community on Wednesday.

FRIENDS OF MRS. HOLLIS PRICE were saddened over the passing away of the mother of LeMoine's "First Lady" in Yonkers, New York. Mrs. Price left immediately for her home in New York.

Because of the Trustee Meeting Dr. Price and their son, Mr. Hollis Price, Jr. (who is a professor at Southern Illinois) left two days later to join Mrs. Price to make arrangements. Both Mrs. Price's mother and father have been ill all summer.

Many Memphians heard JUDGE WEAVER at Second Congregational Church last Sunday. Many coming from Little Rock, his native home. Especially did his brother and sister beam over their visit in Memphis with Judge Weaver. The New York Judge also has a sister in Memphis, Mrs. Arnetta Martin Johnson.

MR. AND MRS. WHITTIER SENGATCKE has as their house guests last week their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Flavie Moore of Robbins, Illinois (just out of Chicago) where Mr. Moore was Councilman for four years. Mrs. Moore is a Dietetic Technician.

In town last week were SAM LAVENDER, JR., who visited his grandmother and uncle and aunt, Mrs. J. H. Lavender and Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Hobson. "TONY" WALKER, who brought six boys home from Nashville for the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maceo Walker.

THE REVEREND J. A. McDANIEL, Director of the local Urban League branch, MRS. J. S. BYAS, a board member, who went in the place of Dr. Hollis Price and Mr. Barber, a staff member, are all back after attending a Workshop for the Regional Office at Jekyll Island, Ga. The group flew to Atlanta, and on to Jacksonville where they took a bus to the resort on the ocean.

Former Vice Pres. John N. Garner Dies At 98 In Texas

By DAVID ANDERSON
UVALDE, Tex. — (UPI) — For 16 years Vice President John Nance Garner died quietly in his bed in his small white frame house, shaded by pecan trees, in which he had lived since 1948.

He had a "little touch" of pneumonia two days ago. But he apparently had recovered and plans were being made for a big 99th birthday celebration Nov. 22. Garner became ill again Monday night.

"He did not suffer very long at all," Garner's only son, 70-year-old Tully Garner, said. "He was conscious during the night but went into a coma early this morning and that was the end. When it hit him, he just started breathing shallow and just died."

MORE IMPORTANT
Garner served in Congress for nearly 30 years before he became president and said his term as speaker of the House was a far more important job.

The vice presidency, he once said, "does not amount to a hill of beans." Garner's long life spanned American history from Reconstruction to Vietnam and he lived under more than half the country's 34 presidents. One, John F. Kennedy, was assassinated on his 95th birthday.

He liked good bourbon, fine cigars and poker for high stakes. He reportedly once won $15,000 at poker in a single session of Congress. United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis called him a "labor-baiting, whisky-drinking, poker-playing, evil old man" but Garner replied: "Love is my religion."

Rise In Hungry People Noted By Church Official

ATLANTA, Ga.—(SNS)—

Regardless of the causes, there are more hungry people in the world today, more homeless refugees than at any time since the end of 1945, and the world is increasingly and decisively separating into the haves and the have-nots among nations and peoples, James MacCracken, Executive Director of Church World Service, warned today.

"During the aftermath of World War II, hunger as a visible and tangible thing was color blind, it struck savagely at white Europeans, at black, brown and yellow peoples in Africa, Asia and Latin America."

"But the white, affluent society of the Western World was amazingly efficient in wiping out hunger in post war Europe; it has remained under control or been completely eliminated."

The head of the big international relief and rehabilitation agency said

Garner died at 9:20 a. m. with his son, his granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Curry, by his bedside.

MODEST ARRANGEMENTS
Although his funeral probably will bring some of the biggest Democrats in the country, to Uvalde, arrangements were modest. A spokesman for President Johnson said he did not think the President would be able to make it.

Services will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday in Frazier's Chapel in Uvalde. The Rev. Romilly Timmons, rector of St. Phillips Episcopal Church in Uvalde, will officiate. Garner will be buried in the Uvalde cemetery.

Garner died one year and 15 days from attaining what had come to be in late years, his consuming ambition. That was to live to be 100. When Garner was 90, he gave up cigars and whiskey, both of which he loved in the belief that would help him attain his goal.

Garner spent nearly 40 years in politics, first as a congressman, from 1903-1932, including a term as speaker in 1931.

He was vice president from 1933-1941. As Roosevelt's right hand man, he helped pull the nation out of the great depression.

Garner might have been president. But when Roosevelt decided to run for a third term, Garner turned the vice presidency over to the late Henry A. Wallace in Jan. 1941, and caught a train for Texas, vowing never to cross the Potomac River again. He never did.

Soviet Union Celebrates 50th Anniversary

MOSCOW — (UPI) — The Soviet Union turned 50 Tuesday and displayed in its giant celebration parade a three-stage rocket if said could launch a nuclear warhead into orbit.

Four other new missiles appeared in the display of military might that moved through Red Square in honor of the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917. Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko in his keynote address warned that the American imperialists in Vietnam causes deep anxieties among the peoples of the world. "Imperialism aggravates international tension and the danger of a new world war."

For a hour oldest and newest in Soviet weaponry glinted in the brilliant sunshine as it passed Lenin's tomb where Kremlin leaders smiled, laughed and waved at the troops and later at nearly one million muscovites who marched past.

NEW MISSILES
The five new missiles were: — A three-stage, 120-foot intercontinental ballistic missile ICBM that the Soviets said "can be used for intercontinental and orbital launches." — A submarine rocket more than twice as long as America's nuclear Polaris.

A tracked vehicle carrying three antiaircraft rockets ideal for hitting low-flying planes. It was considered suitable for use against U. S. jets in Vietnam.

A strategic intermediate range missile with a target distance of 1,600 miles and a short-range tactical missile good within 200 miles.

The parade of power included everything from World War I cavalry and field pieces to the three-stage rocket.

BOASTS OF ROCKETS
"No army in the world has such power rockets," Grechko said.

He cited such "imperialist" nations as America, Israel and West Germany as threats to world peace. Despite the references, his speech - and the holiday as a whole - was free from rocket rattling.

The strife lay beneath the surface, emerging only in the holiday issue of Pravda, the newspaper of the Communist party. The newspaper listed the greetings sent by foreign Communist-ruled nations, China, Albania and Cuba that tragic land. But no sooner did the rains come than great floods swept across the parched fields of North India, destroying newly planted crops.

"How long can mankind expect fifteen percent of the world population to produce and consume 85 percent of the food and goods. This is the area where science, government and management must concentrate in creative and daring approaches to new and better ways of productivity and marketability.

But we cannot afford to delude ourselves any longer with the Miracle Mush dream. It's just that, a dream."

"The compassionate response by the western cultures, both governments and churches to the agony of millions in India barely held the line against the massive hunger in that country after several years of drought," Mr. MacCracken said. "An outpouring of aid and assistance by the Christian churches of the world prevented death by starvation to untold numbers in

One For Kirk

One of the surprises in 1966 gubernatorial races was the victory of Claude Kirk, a Republican, in Florida.

The boy had been selling lemonade in front of his home, earning money for his savings account. County officials closed him down because of the law that an eating establishment must furnish the public rest rooms.

The family complained to Kirk, he agreed the order was ridiculous and ordered the stand reopened. He flew to the site to be Billy Churchill's first customer the day he reopened.

Church-State Test

The Supreme Court of New Hampshire recently rendered a decision which goes to the heart of the blossoming church-state question in the United States in effect affirming the First Amendment to the Constitution which provides for complete separation between church and state.

A law had been passed in New Hampshire to allow proceeds from the state's lottery to be distributed to church schools as well as public schools. The Supreme Court ruled 4 to 1 that this was clearly in violation of the Constitution.

The implications of this decision are widespread. After many years of successful blocking action by southerners and Roman Catholics, Congress finally passed an aid-to-education bill under prodding from President Johnson.

Court tests have been initiated and the Supreme Court will eventually face the issue. Catholic churchmen and parents argue they pay public taxes, that the nation needs all the schools it can get and that aid to individuals need not be aid to schools.

At issue is the unique American system of separation of church and state, which has so long distinguished this country from the Old World, where state-financed religions play a powerful role in society, government and politics.

Gov. Romney Stops At The Republican Rubicon

Gov. George Romney, like a wiser man than Napoleon, "stops at the Rubicon to consider." For many months, he was being talked up for the Republican nomination for President in the 1968 Republican National convention.

So, up to now the candidate for the G.O.P.'s blessing is almost anybody's guess.

Governor Romney is following the pattern of wise heads in his party. He is, up to now, doing just what it was predicted he would do.

Wise men who know the pattern of the GOP have never felt that Gov. Romney was running for President. They saw somebody else in the dim shadows who might emerge where the dark horses pawed through the smoke in the dim room where candidates like Wilson, Harding and Hoover have done before him.

Who will emerge as the popular nominee of the G.O.P. will not be known until after the convention because that party has at least five good prospects, including Gov. Romney.

Kennedy And Johnson

A flurry of speculation has arisen in Washington concerning the 1968 political plans of Senator Robert Kennedy (D-NY). Because of his anti-Vietnamese war statements, which are also anti-Administration statements, and other statements critical of LBJ policies, some suspect Kennedy is preparing himself for 1968.

The Senator says he will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination next year and that he is supporting President Johnson. Nevertheless, groups have popped up in several states which are prepared to run a slate of "favorable-to-Kennedy" candidates in 1967 primaries.

The Kennedy inner circle believes there is still a chance Johnson will not run, that his health will fail or that polls by 1968 will show the President's chances so minimal that party leaders will look for another man.

Tennessee Welfare Department To Honor 118 Foster Parents

By PETER D. SIMMONS "This week," said Mrs. Anne Griffiths, supervisor, Child Welfare, "We are going to honor some very special people. These are the wonderful foster parents like Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Millener, who walked into this office over 15 years ago and said they wanted to help."

She said the Milleners said they saw the department's call for help in "The Chattanooga Observer," and felt that they could do something about it. This was in 1951 and these two wonderful people have been constant in the department's program in helping children.

HOME CARE VITAL The program Thursday night is for these 118 foster parents who care for children in their homes, when a child must be temporarily relocated from his natural parents or relatives. According to officials, "foster home care is a very vital phase of Child Welfare Services within the department."

Recognition will be extended all foster parents, with special attention to those who have served over five years. According to Mrs. Griffiths, some couples have supplied substitute family life to children, since the Hamilton County office of Department of Public Welfare commenced its foster care program in 1951.

"The warmth of family every day care to children in their home," the Observer was told, "is something social workers cannot give. Our job is to find these people who help us when the children they help, cannot live in their own parents home for many reasons."

Many of the children that have grown up in these homes have made good. Some have gotten married, some went to the armed forces and some have even finished college. This reporter was also informed that about half of the foster parents are colored.

Staff members of the department's child welfare section will present the program. Department personnel from Nashville who will attend are Commissioner Herman Yeatman, Mr. Tommy Perkins, Director of Child Welfare and Miss Rose Harris, Supervisor of Foster Care. Others will include the thirteen members of the Hamilton County Citizen's Advisory Committee of Public Welfare.

WHAT IS A FRIEND A friend is someone who likes you. Someone with whom you can really be yourself. One who appreciates the good in you, overlooks the bad in you and brings out the best in you. With a friend you can share a laugh. A secret, a viewpoint, a success or a disappointment, and a complete assortment of problems, large and small. A friend is someone who understands silence as well as words. One who is with you and for you; Stands by you and forgives you.

One who lifts you up and never lets you down; and Who makes you feel It's a pretty nice old world, After all.

Four years after the historic movement that led to the downfall of legal segregation in the South, Dr. King is back in the Birmingham jailhouse considering methods by which segregation and discrimination throughout the nation can be ended economically, socially, and politically, giving the civil rights statutes real meaning.

Atty. George White Named Deputy Equal Opportunity Officer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(SNS)— Atty. George White, who was in the private practice before joining the staff of a federal agency in Atlanta, Ga., has been named as TVA Deputy Equal Employment Officer.

THE TIP-OFF

EMORY O. JACKSON

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(SNS)— The 10th observance of College Emphasis Week, sponsored by the Jefferson County Public School System heralded the 47th annual celebration of American Education Week (Nov. 5-11).

It stretched over three days (November 1-3) and involved eight high schools with a combined enrollment of 1,305 seniors. Top administrative, staff and school leadership of the Jefferson schools were involved.

Some school principals were fortunate enough to have parents and P-T. A. leaders attend some of the colleges emphasis session. This gave the parents of the prospective sight about going to college and the to get better in college students attitudes of their children.

It seems that the Jefferson College Emphasis program will be able to survive the changes, expand and adjust to the new pressures for upgrading and purifying.

The C. E. W. staff was interested on getting ideas and suggestions from the college representative on how the get-ready-for-college program may be improved. Some of the representatives put their contributions in writing. There was an evaluation hour held at New Castle High School.

The C. E. W. program is the better off by existing. The profits which are visible tend to support such a judgment. A number of the college representatives spend considerable time visiting other similar programs. They bring with them reports and conversations about some of the standout things other school systems are doing. Also some of them bring back first hand reports on students from the Jefferson schools and what they are doing. The kind of information revealed is not likely to find its way into a formal report.

The administrators of the Jefferson Schools are aware of the vehicles provided by C. E. W. for them to do a public relations job for their schools and students. One is made to feel that the administrators are sincere in their concern for the school children. Parents and community leaders should be wised up about this, in order to determine for themselves. The point is, the school system administrators have their eyes open.

One can almost see the kind of teaching going on and the quality of education offered by listening to the questions asked by the students; the way they conduct themselves, and their response to the exposure. A teachers effectiveness can shine no matter what the family and community background of the students. It seems to me. The library, the testing system, and personality enrichment have a way of surfacing in students.

There was the suggestion that in the school that college clubs be organized. Purpose of this would be to give seniors a better opportunity to acquaint themselves with the college of their choice. It also was suggested that students be encouraged to study the catalogues of colleges. This could be made hobby reading, it seems to me.

The Tip Off made the complete tour with the C. E. W. staff and the college representatives. Some of the college representatives likened the event to a reunion. One did a kind of roll call to see who was not present this year who attended in 1966.

The high schools put hours of hard work into the C. E. W. organization. The senior list has to be prepared. In some instances juniors are members of the student groups.

called to the male students at Alden High School. All wore ties and had their shoes shined. Neatness and grooming are items which should be a part of the mental teaching kit of every teacher.

Social competence is something too valuable to be overlooked in the teaching program. Those who are involved in the job opportunity programs can understand this. Lack of good manners, absence of the civic graces, unshown personal respect, and shortage of common courtesy are hurting the job search cause of those who do not possess such qualities and who are looking for better jobs. That is why organizations like the Birmingham Urban League and the Birmingham Opportunities Industrialization Center are so vital today.

The 1967 theme of American Education Week wants to know, "How Good Are Your Schools?"

Meals would be better if there were fewer recipes and more home cooking.

During fiscal year 1967 some 489,000 post-Korean Conflict veterans and servicemen on active duty received educational training under the G. I. Bill.

MY WEEKLY SERMON by REV BLAIR T. HUNT PASTOR MISSISSIPPI BLDN CHRISTIAN CHURCH MEMPHIS, TENN.

SUBJECT: "PRAYER" TEXT: "Lord, Teach Us To Pray" Luke 11:1.

What is Prayer? In a single sentence here are several attempts to define prayer. Prayer is communion with God; prayer is talking with God; prayer is praise; prayer is a petition; prayer is being in tune with God. Prayer is all these and much more.

"Lord teach us to pray" begged the disciples of Jesus. They did not beg "Lord teach us to preach; Lord, teach us to perform miracles; Lord, teach us to be wise."

One has to learn to pray. You remember your first prayer was saying in a prayer as "Now I lay me down to sleep; I pray the Lord my soul to keep, if I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord, my soul to take."

Prayer is important. Jesus considered prayer more important than food, for the Bible says that hours before breakfast "in the morning, rising up a great while before day; he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed." — Mark 1:35.

Prayer meant more to our blessed master than sleep, for the Bible says, "and it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray and continued all night in prayer to God." — Luke 5:15-16.

ELEANOR

MISSES! The tale that I relate this lesson seems to carry—choose not a proper mate, but proper time to marry.

—Cowper

Dear Eleanor: I'm very much worried. For years I was married to a man whom I loved very dearly. Three months ago he walked away and left me, and told falsehoods on me. Altho' he says that he loves me, he refuses to give me anything or come to see me. I am 35. Should I try to find someone else and forget him? Unhappy of Birmingham

Answer: Why should you be worried about someone, who by his behavior toward you has proven that he has ceased (if he ever did) to care for you? It was bad enough for him to desert you but he was not contented with that, he slanders you. Support yourself; do not expect anything from him of his own volition. Divorce him and let the judge make the alimony. That will be a little "heart balm."

Dear Eleanor: I am 17, and have been going steadily with boys for quite a while. What I want to know is—should a girl have intimate relations with her boyfriend prior to marriage? My friends often tell me that is why I stay nervous and sick all the time. This big question often worries me. Yet, I fear that the worse will happen to me. I have never indulged in such habits. Please advise me at once. Thank you and God Bless you. Worried J. M. D.

Answer: First I advise that you go to your family doctor for a thorough check-up. Let him tell you what is causing your illness not others. Premarital sexual relation is wrong spiritually, socially, morally and physically.

Your professional beautician knows the answer...

Should every woman be a blonde?

Blonde hair is beautiful for those women whose natural coloring it flatters. But not everyone should be a blonde.

Expert beauticians know that complexion and hair color must complement each other to glamorize and bring out all the natural beauty that was meant to be. They also know that very coarse and dark hair often is resistant to drastic color changes. However, there is no doubt about slightly lighter hair adding excitement to a woman's appearance. And hairdressers know there is no better product to add a whole new appeal to every woman's look than Miss Clairol® haircoloring—extra rich Creme Formula or new extra easy Shampoo Formula.

Both Miss Clairol products lighten and color at once, combining vibrant new color with the natural pigment of the hair. So even those shades that look blonde on white hair (as shown on most color selection charts) give a variety of flattering red-to-golden brown shades on women whose hair was black to begin with.

Beauty salons are equipped to answer questions and help with hair color selection. Depend on your hairdresser to have the professional skills and the total family of fine Clairol products to make every woman's experience with haircoloring completely personal and glamorous. Should you be a blonde? If you don't really know, ask your expert hairdresser.

Morehouse Enrollment Increased To 1,026

Morehouse College has more students enrolled this semester than at any time in its history since the abnormal GI enrollments that followed World War II, according to an announcement by the Registrar, Dr. Henry C. Hamilton.

Total enrollment for the first semester is 1,026. This figure includes six junior who are now studying and traveling in Europe as Merrill Fellows and, also, a record freshman enrollment of 317. Dr. Hamilton stated that this year's freshmen have come from more than 30 states and from seven foreign countries, including Rhodesia, Jordan, Nigeria, China, Syria, Zambia, and O-Samra.

As a result of the increased enrollment, some 200 students have been forced to seek housing off campus, according to Mr. Robert West, assistant director of personnel in charge of housing at Morehouse.

Mr. West, assistant director of personnel in charge of housing at Morehouse, said that the school's enrollment has increased to 1,026.

I have always been a lively, cheerful person while my sister is just the opposite. I did the normal playful things that an average girl does, my sister always exaggeratedly related things which caused mother to scold me. Now that I have grown up and had to quit school to work.

I would like a little independence, but my mother refuses me any outlet, because my older sister doesn't desire such. I like to belong to something that will keep me occupied, so I am a member of a very decent club. But my mother says that I must withdraw my membership because sister does not want to join.

Both of us contribute to home expenses but mother demands my whole salary and gives me what she thinks I should have. My salary is $45 per week, and mother demands most of that while she demands much less from my sister who earns more.

I believe I could endure all of this if mother did not nag and accuse me of being "fast" and other things of which I am not guilty, plus make me do all the housework. Please help me, Eleanor, for I love my mother and sister and would like to enjoy my family life. If I go to my pastor, he might tell what I tell him: then I would be in for more scolding.

Answer: If you and your sister are contributing to the upkeep of the house the amount paid by each should be pro-rated according to the salary of each. I can never understand why parents can ever afford to show partiality toward their children, in spite of the fact that each individual is different from the other.

Hence, I can only advise that you have a heart to heart talk with your mother, and if she refuses to treat you on a fair basis, you as a self respecting Christian young woman must stand up for your rights and let your actions speak louder than your words.

Every Christian individual has a right to happiness; and if he or she cannot find it at home and cannot serve as a potent factor in creating an atmosphere conducive to the best welfare of all inmates of that home, then one must seek happiness elsewhere.

You have a right to remain in the club if it is conducive to your best welfare. Be sure to control your temper, be respectful in spite of your feelings; be diplomatic. Pray more, Talk less, then make your choice.

Atlanta's Pride

Gladys Knight And Pips Set For European Tour

Atlanta's "Pride and Joy" with the Motown Record Corporation in Detroit, Gladys Knight and the Pips, will begin a European tour in Nov. 23.

Motown announced that there is a great possibility that the fabulous Atlanta singing group will be accompanied by another Motown star Chubby Checker.

Gladys and the Pips, one of the most popular performing acts in the Motown stable, currently have two hit singles on the charts: "I Heard It Through the Grapevine" and "Everybody Needs Love." Their hit album also titled "Everybody Needs Love" is slated to become a best seller.

Although Gladys and the Pips, her brother Merald Knight and her cousins, William Guest and Edward Patton, working a demanding appearance schedule whenever they have time off their return to Atlanta to visit relatives and friends.

Always aware of the image they present to young people, Gladys and the Pips, take great pride in the manner that they were able to work their way up the ladder of success.

For sure there are only a few popular vocal groups who can lay claim to ever having recorded a song which went on to become a standard in the world of contemporary music.

Outstanding among the honored few who can hold this distinction of course, Gladys and the Pips, a pretty girl and three young men.

This some group, who earned an important niche in the annals of popular music with their million seller record of "Every Beat of My Heart" is today among the "young" family of exponents of the "Motown Sound."

They originally sang together in high school here in Atlanta. Gladys, however, had already been bitten by the show business bug when she became a first prize winner of the nationally televised Ted Mack Amateur Hour. Gladys and received vocal training as a classical singer beginning at the age of seven. Within a year, she was performing at recitals in New York, Florida and throughout the Southern States, in a path that eventually led her to the attention of the producers of the Ted Mack Amateur Hour.

Immediately after Gladys won first prize in the Show's competition her mother was deluged with offers to showcase Gladys' talent to an audience already eagerly demanding to see more of this talented youngster.

Among the offers which poured in was a proposal to feature Gladys in a television show of her own. However, Gladys' mother insisted that she return to her schooling and pursue her chosen career at a later date.

Gladys credits the efforts of her mother in maintaining her interest in music throughout her formative years. Through the constant assistance of her mother Gladys formed her singing group which was to shortly make its name as a household word in the music industry.

The success of Gladys Knight and the Pips has not been limited to just their record performances. The group has appeared at major theatres across the United States, in addition to a successful engagement at the 40 Thieves Club in Bermuda.

During the previous few hours that they are away from their music, Gladys and the Pips go bicycle riding a sport which they have been avid practitioners of since their engagement in Bermuda. Ed Patton relaxes by playing the drums on an instrument which he played in the high school orchestra while Merald Knight and William Guest join in on the Bongos.

Police Free Recruiter At Oberlin College

OBERLIN, Ohio - (UPI) - Hounded, not a lobbed tear gas shells and a water barrage at a crowd of 150 Oberlin College students Thursday to free a Navy recruiter trapped in his car more than four hours.

The students, their arms linked together, had surrounded the military sedan and refused to heed police orders to disperse.

About 20 policemen, highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies moved in with a water truck to break up the demonstration.

The water and gas fustillade scattered the students, many of whom were singing "We Shall Overcome" and "Hell no, we won't go," and enabled Lt. Cmdr. C. R. Smith, of Detroit to leave his car.

No injuries or arrests were scattered, many of them appeared at Oberlin City Hall and the police station to protest the police tactics.

Officers estimated about 160 students were involved in the blockade of Smith's car. More than 200 other students lined the street on sidewalks, some carrying placard protesting the war in Vietnam.

The blockade began when Smith tried to drive onto a lot around to begin two days of campus recruiting.

One large group of students immediately surrounded the car and other group paraded on the sidewalks with signs and placards.

The blockade occurred on a city block across from the school and Oberlin authorities said they had no power to stop it.

Smith spent part of his "detention" in the school's "work" for a newspaper and he told the students they were violating his civil rights and he would sue them.

Oberlin students staged other demonstrations last week when they refused to appear in campus buildings.

HEW Loans Sanders To Illinois Department Of Public Health

John W. Sanders, Jr., Director of the Atlanta District Office of the Food and Drug Administration, will be loaned to the Illinois Department of Public Health to set up enforcement machinery for Illinois' new Food, Drug and Cosmetic Law.

Announcement of the new assignment for Sanders, a graduate of Georgia Tech and the Atlanta Law School, was made today by William J. Page, Jr., Regional Director of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Atlanta.

The FDA is one of HEW's five major agencies. The Illinois agency requested Sanders' assistance.

Sanders' replacement has not been named.

During his years as director in Atlanta, Sanders, a native of Barnwell, S. C., initiated the first Inspectors' Training Conference for State food and drug personnel. This conference was a prototype course in inspection techniques widely used for state and local food and drug officials by the FDA.

Since 1963, the Atlanta District has sponsored, in cooperation with State Departments of Agriculture, pesticide workshops for growers and shippers of fresh fruit and vegetables. Industry workshops are now regularly held by districts in the Food and Drug Administration covering not only pesticides, but other problems, as well.

Sanders was graduated from Clemson University with a B. S. degree in Agricultural Chemistry and a minor in Bacteriology.

BRITANNICA REFLECTS 200 YEARS OF CHANGE

The curiosity of man and his quest for knowledge are mirrored in the 200-year-old Encyclopaedia Britannica. A backward glance from the 24-volume, 33,000,000-word current edition to the 3,000-word original edition, whose first volume came out in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1768, is revealing.

The first Britannica is as much a reflection of the life and times of its generation as the current edition. The English-speaking world of 1768 was as hungry for knowledge as we are today. It was certainly as scientific or technical-minded as we are. The first editors devoted almost one-third of the 2,639 pages in the original Britannica to scientific subjects. Of its 44 major articles, or "treatises," almost half were scientific or practical in nature. The article on surgery was the longest, covering 238 pages.

The late 18th century was a "do-it-yourself" era. For example, in its 40 pages of text on the practical subject of midwifery Britannica was as precise as a cookbook. It included illustrations that were graphic enough to enable a reader to go to assist in a delivery on short notice. Today's editors still include "midwifery" but have cut it to five paragraphs.

Further examples of the editors' conviction that utility should be a prime function of an encyclopedia were lengthy articles on "Bleaching," "Brewing," and "Applis" (beekeeping). Beekeeping, apparently, was a much admired art at that time. To quote from the article "Applis": "Mr. Wilmon, by his dexterity in the management of bees, has lately surprised the whole kingdom. He can order a swarm to light where he pleases, almost instantaneously."

"Farriery," the forerunner of veterinary medicine, ran 39 pages. Encyclopedists in the late 18th century were averse to editorializing, as evidenced by the first sentence in this article: "Farriery," they announced forthrightly, is "the art of curing the diseases of horses."

Dr. Tate Advises Teacher Strike For Pay Raise

ATLANTA, Ga. - (UPI) - A Negro education official said Thursday teachers should walk out if they don't get the $3,000 yearly pay increase promised by Gov. Lester Maddox.

Dr. Horace Tate, Atlanta School Board member and executive secretary of the Georgia Teachers and Education Association (GTEA), advised an association meeting that teachers should be putting away $25 to $50 a month in anticipation of a walkout.

"We have done enough for teaching to ask for this raise," Tate said. "We should be in a position to walk out if the raise does not come in September."

Rep. James Slippy Finlay has said he doubts the legislature would vote the full raise, and vowed that he, as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee would oppose it.

Tate said he would not recommend a merger of the GTEA with the white Georgia Education Association, unless wages were guaranteed equality.

Clay Says He's Still Champ, Joe Louis Agrees With Him

NEW YORK - (UPI) - Cassius Clay's life has turned into a long road filled with one-night stands in small towns.

Instead of a boxing ring, he's now performing behind a pulpit - "bringing the word of Allah to my brothers."

Since he was found guilty of draft evasion, Cassius hasn't seriously worked out in a gym. He claims he doesn't miss boxing, but he seemed to bask in the opportunity to get back into the ring for a workout against Joe Louis this week.

Louis never seemed to get a long too well with Clay when he was champion, but they apparently have forgotten their differences.

"Joe Louis," cried Clay as he entered the Maritine Union Gym. "The world champion."

Dressed in a dark, tailored suit, Clay climbed into the ring with Louis. Clay clowned and flicked his jab while Louis stalked him, trying to cut him off. When Louis finally managed to back Clay into a corner the two filled the air furiously, attempting to land punches while a small crowd cheered its approval.

Considers Self Champ

A few minutes after they were done, a small, paunchy guy who had been belaboring a heavy bag noticed the excitement and walked over. Squinting at Clay, he said, "I've seen you someplace. Who are you?"

"Cassius Clay," the deposed champion said.

"I don't have time to miss boxing," said Clay upstairs as he relaxed with Louis. "I'm busy every minute, traveling thousands of miles-California, Georgia, Philadelphia, Baltimore-everywhere there's a group to hear the word of Allah."

Clay, recently married to a young Muslim girl, said he had seen his bride back to the Muslim college in Chicago to continue her education but that sometimes she travels with him.

"They can have all the tournaments they want," said Clay, "but they can't have my title until somebody whips me."

I have a belt that says, 'World Heavyweight Champion,' and nobody else can have that belt until a champion is whipped, quits or dies. That's the laws of boxing."

"He's right," said Louis. "I don't want to get into this, but he's right."

Of the men still in the running for the World Boxing Association title, Clay has a preference for Jimmy Ellis, his former schoolmate and sparring partner.

"I think it's good that this tournament's giving a lot of fine young men with families a chance to earn some money," he said.

"James Ellis has about six, seven kids, and he can use the money. I'd like to see him win."

Drew Brown, the round cornerman with the nickname Bundini, walked over and slapped his palm against Clay's.

"Remember those old days," said Clay. "We had some fun." As he walked towards the door to leave, a group of youngsters coaxed him into the gym again, and he clowned through a sparring session with a Panamanian middleweight, who had "Tornado" written on his shirt.

Clay motioned a friend over to him and said, "Look around. It's not like the whole thing had never happened, none of that court stuff."

Clark Panthers To Go Against 'Bama State Hornets Saturday

Atlanta football fans will be in for their second collegiate homecoming celebration of the current season Saturday afternoon, when the Clark College Panthers go against the tough Alabama State College Hornets, from Montgomery, Ala., at Herndon Memorial Stadium.

Kick-off time will be 2 p.m. This means that the fans may look forward to seeing an array of grid queens, including "Miss Clark of 1967" and members of her court, witnessing the colorful pre-game parade and a glittering half-time show by the Clark College Marching Band, under the direction of Bandmaster Marcus M. Rowland.

The Black and Gold Hornets, who staged an impressive comeback rally to defeat the Morehouse College Maroon Tigers here two weeks ago and halted the winning streak of the Alabama A. & M. College Bulldogs, 13-7 last weekend, may return to the city unbeaten, pending the outcome of their contest with the Albany State College Rams.

MITCHELL MAY GET THE NOD AT QB. Head Coach Whitney L. Van Cleave, who started Henry Dayson in the quarterback spot against Morehouse, may give the nod to Charles Mitchell here Saturday afternoon. Mitchell is a great triple-threat and without a doubt the man who engineered the Hornets to their convincing comeback triumph over Morehouse.

Also slated for lots of action in the Alabama State lineup will be Charlie Weeks, Johnny Pleasant, Ralph Miller, Roger Hicks, Heyman Lane, John Moncrief, Lawrence Sweeting, John Matthews, Louis Chaney, Rayford Parker and other talented hopefuls.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK: Looking Back to 1867

Entry of the first railroad locomotive into Nevada in 1867, upon trackage running from the California side of the States' joint boundary, toward Crystal Peak, justified inclusion of a railroad train in the coat-of-arms of the new (36th) State. Less than a decade earlier, it remained a remote part of Utah Territory, with fewer than 1,500 white dwellers within a 100,000 square mile area.

A single mule sufficed for the transportation of the monthly mail, a contemporary resident recalled. "This primitive conveyance for carrying letters was confiscated by a Shoshone Indian, who at the same time added the scalp of the carrier to his collection. In winter, a Norwegian known far and wide as 'Snowshoe Thompson,' carried the mails across the Sierras on 10-foot snowshoes."

A gold-strike at Mount Davidson in 1858 brought herds of prospectors and the usual mining-camp followers to the region by horse, wagon, and a few were richly rewarded: the Comstock Lode quickly proved richer than anything found in California. Within three years, Virginia City grew with hopeful seekers of wealth to the most populous place west of the Mississippi River.

Some treasure the Lode yielded was put by its recipients into the Central Pacific R.R. that stretched through Nevada in 1867 to meet the Union Pacific and provide the first all-railway transportation from Atlantic to Pacific.

Undefeated Tuskegee Wrecks Miles 28-0

TUSKEGEE, Ala. - Tuskegee Institute remained undefeated as the Tuskegee Golden Tigers defeated Miles College Golden Bears 28-0 in a homecoming game played before a record crowd at Tuskegee. Leading the victory for Tuskegee was junior fullback Arthur Brown who scored two TDs early in the game to give Tuskegee the lead.

Tuskegee's season record now is 6-0-1 and Miles College has a 3-2 record. Tuskegee is first in the B division of the SIAC.

Ralph Jenkins had 137 yards rushing and 5 yards passing for 142 yards in total offense to lead Tuskegee. From Miles: 37 Robbott teams, James Love of Tuskegee Institute had 50 yards in passing to lead both teams. Jenkins now has 666 yards rushing in five games.

Brown ran off tackle to the seven and on the next play Jenkins went to the two. Brown dashed up the middle on a hands off from Reynolds for Tuskegee TD. Cecil Leonard kicked

In the next period Brown scored again after Jenkins carried the ball 31 yards to the one. From this one, the Jackson, Mississippi, resident keyed off left guard to score from the one. Leonard booted the extra point and Tuskegee lead 14-0.

QB Sylvester Robinson ran two consecutive plays late in the second period and scored for Tuskegee. On the next play the Jr. QB from Brookhaven, Mississippi, scored on a QB sneak from the one. Cecil Leonard scored the extra point.

Tuskegee Institute (total TD came in the fourth period when flanker James Love scored on a 50 yard reception. Tuskegee threatening to score but a penalty at the 8 carried the ball back to the 23. Love, from Corinth, Mississippi, caught a pass from Robinson for Tuskegee Institute's final TD. Leonard kicked the extra point.

Tuskegee had 287 yards rushing while Miles gained minus 10. Miles picked up 90 yards passing while Tuskegee Institute had 78. Miles was accurate on 7 of 17 passes to Tuskegee Institute's 7 of 27.

PRIVATE SEGREGATED SCHOOLS ENROLL ABOUT 40,000 PUPILS

NASHVILLE, TENN. - Private, segregated schools in the South have enrolled about the same number of pupils this fall as last year, according to the magazine Southern Education Report.

Enrollment in approximately 200 private schools established to escape desegregation in the public schools amounts to about 40,000. The number of schools remains generally unchanged, after a sharp increase in the two years immediately following passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Jim Leeson, director of information and research for Southern Education Reporting Service, writing in the November issue of the magazine, said that a discussion of private schools in the South primarily concerns five states: Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Virginia. All but 11 of the segregated private schools are in those states, and the others are scattered in Arkansas, Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee. Two southern states, Florida and Texas, do not have any such schools that can be identified as having been formed as an alternative to desegregation.

Georgia has a tuition-grant law on the books, adopted as a constitutional amendment in 1961, but the law is inactive. The legislature appropriated $2 million for grants the first year but later required local participation and gradually reduced the annual appropriation to nothing. Gov. Lester Maddox has said he wished it were constitutional to use public funds to finance 100 private schools in Georgia.

Federal efforts, on a state-by-state basis over the years, have knocked out of the use of state tuition grants for segregated private schools in Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, North Carolina and South Carolina. Alabama and Louisiana quickly came up with substitute legislation providing grants and they again came under legal attack.

Correspondents for SERS noted, however, that a several private schools in various Southern states were organized with the desegregation threat being only one of the underlying reasons or as an unstated but understood factor. In any event, to survive and remain segregated, these schools must overcome increasing obstacles from several directions -- federal court rulings against state tuition grants, the competition of public schools, pressure to deny tax exemptions to segregated schools, and the continuing need for financial support.

In the past, many of these schools have depended on state tuition grants for their support, but this source of revenue has become increasingly less dependable.

Judge Refuses To Bar Press From Hearing Of AWOL Soldier

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. - (UPI) - A judge refused Wednesday to ban press and public from a preliminary hearing for a young AWOL soldier charged with the murder of two 17-year-old Tallahassee girls.

Circuit Judge Clyde McCord ordered the Friday hearing open after weighing arguments of possible prejudice against the guaranteed right of an accused to a public trial.

"This is a preliminary hearing, not a trial," said Murray Wadsworth, court-appointed attorney for Robert Scott Sanders, 21, who is charged with hacking, knifing and shooting Kaye Granger and Alyn Wood to death last month.

determine if there is probable cause to hold an accused for grand jury action. Press coverage, he argued, would "very probably" make it impossible to pick an unbiased jury if a murder trial is ordered.

"We might have to wait two years until the people forget what they have read," he added. McCord took judicial knowledge of the fact that the American Bar Association has suggested that rules governing news coverage of preliminary hearings take into consideration the possible prejudicial nature of some evidence.

But he said an accused has the right to waive a preliminary hearing and added "no such rule has been adopted in Florida and if the practice of open hearings is to be changed, it should be done by rule adopted by the Supreme Court."

Johnny Unitas Leads Colts Over Packers. By United Press International. Johnny Unitas threw two touchdown passes 51 seconds apart late in the fourth period Sunday as the Baltimore Colts rallied to beat the Green Bay Packers 13-10 and remain the only unbeaten team in the National Football League.

Unitas connected with a 10-yarder to Alex Hawkins cutting Green Bay's lead to 10-6 with 2:19 left and passed 24 yards to Willie Richardson for the winning points with 1:38 remaining.

Loe Michaels missed the extra point after the Colts' first touchdown, but the Colts recovered the ball on an onside kickoff on the Packers' 34. Three plays later, Unitas ran six yards for a first down on a fourth and six situation and on the next play made the winning toss to Richardson.

The victory enabled the Colts to retain their one-game lead in the Coastal Division of the Western Conference with a 6-0-2 record compared to the 5-1-2 mark of the Los Angeles Rams, who scored a 17-7 triumph over the San Francisco Forty-Niners Sunday.

Don Meredith Wings Cowboys Over Falcons

DALLAS — Don Meredith returned from a month's idleness to hit Dan Reeves with two touchdown passes and Don Perkins climbed over the 5,000 yard career rushing limit Sunday to power the Dallas Cowboys to a 37-7 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

The victory coupled with defeats of Philadelphia and Washington shored the Cowboys two full games out front in the National Football League's Capitol Division with a 6-2 record and left the Falcons with a 1-6-1 record in the Coastal Division.

Reeves scored four of the Cowboys' touchdowns: two on passes of 60 and 7 yards from Meredith, and two on one-yard smashes. Middle linebacker Lee Roy Jordan got another Dallas touchdown with a 33-yard interception rumbuck and the Cowboys got a safety in the final period when Jethrough smothered Randy Johnson in the end zone.

The Falcons, who won their first 1967 NFL game last week at the expense of the Minnesota Vikings, moved the ball well on Johnson's passes but only once were they able to take it in that on an eight-yard Johnson-to-Billy Martin pass in the third period. That one was set up by a 42-yard interception rumbuck to the Cowboys 23-yard line by Falcons defensive back Ken Reeves.

Perkins gained 111 yards rushing to push his career total to 5,038 yards to become the 10th man in NFL history to pass the 5,000-yard level. He failed to score, but his running kept the Falcons' defense off balance for the key plays.

Reeves, who beat off the sometimes-jinx that hits players featured on the cover of national magazines, caught six passes for 114 yards and ran 15 times for 42 yards.

Meredith, who has been sidelined with a fractured rib and pneumonia complications for a month, seemed to pick up the lagging Dallas offense and completed 10 of 26 passes for 157 net yards. The Cowboys outgained the Falcons' 324 yards to 223 yards and were always in command.

Johnson hit 18 of 35 passes for 157 yards, but suffered three interceptions, two of which the Cowboys turned into touchdowns.

Falcons' linebacker Tommy Nobis whose defensive play had carried the Atlanta club to its lone victory, put on a fine show for his home state fans with 13 tackles 10 of them unassisted. But, he didn't have enough help.

Clark Faces SIAC's Best For Homecoming Saturday

BY ALFRED R. JOHNSON shoot for than just winning." Epps can recall many times that a Clark team has been "the speller", therefore, a victory Saturday will not be a surprise but just another to that "speller" ink.

Clark's homecoming opponent Saturday afternoon at Herndon Memorial Stadium, is the only undefeated, untied team in the SIAC and not by choice.

Nothing is more challenging to Epps than to play a team that has yet to lose, especially with Clark at home and before alumni, former students and friends who will participate in the flowery festivities.

Coach Whitney Van Cleve's 7-0-0 record has been no fluke. The Hornets have faced two of the better teams in the league, namely, Fort Valley and Alabama A & M, the defending SIAC titleholders.

Clark, having a week off, should be in fairly decent shape for the contest. Most injuries have healed since the last encounter with Morehouse.

"We're up against a good football team, Saturday," Epps said in reference to homecoming. "Anytime you're undefeated around this time of the season means that you're in pretty good shape."

"We're also hoping though that this will be our best weekend of football this season," said Epps. "And we're practicing as hard as if it was the championship game."

"I don't think I'll like anything better than to stop that winning streak," noted the head man. "With this type of record, it simply means that we've got more to

How Does It Feel When An NFL Expansion Team Wins 1st Game?

How does it feel when your expansion team wins its first regular season game in the National Football League? Let's take a look.

Nurse Van Brocklin (Sept. 17, 1961, Minnesota's first-ever game) a 37-13 victory over Chicago with a fumble from Richardson passing for four touchdowns and scoring another. "You'd have to say Francis did the job — fumble for this day at least. He's got to be our No. 1 quarterback. The team has confidence in him. The team well, I rate our material as good as the Bears. The game is played mostly on the line (happily his head). Our kids really gave it to 'em."

Tom Landry (Sept. 19, 1961, same day as Van Brocklin's first victory, Dallas beats Pittsburgh 27-24 at Cotton Bowl) on a 23-yard field goal by Allen Green at the final gun after Cowboys had gone winless — 11 losses and one tie — in 1960, first season in league. "After all this, that final minute was the longest I've ever watched in my life. It seemed like an hour. We won by a landslide. I have very little to do with the long pass (the winning field goal was set up by a 41-yard pass from Eddie LeBaron to Billy Howton). Howton said 'Let's throw it up' and I said 'ok, let's'."

Norb Hecker (Nov. 26, 1964, Atlanta Falcons beat New York Giants 27-16 at Yankee Stadium as Ed Giant Drive Wheelwright rushes for 41 yards and catches two TD passes from Bobby Johnson, snap play nine-yard, going straight. "From the beginning we thought we could win some games this year. This part went to my confidence, it could beat the Giants. All week I drilled into the team our game plan, which was simple. I told them we had to take that opening kickoff and score and keep the pressure on them. If we kick off, we had to stop them and then score. This was the first time we forced an opponent to play our game — and our game was a conservative offense and ball control."

And now Don Rears (coach of the 1957 expansion team, the New Orleans Saints, who won in their eighth game — 31-24 over Philadelphia at Tulane Stadium on Nov. 5, 1957). "This one was a long time coming, maybe it was overdue. Everyone at our last four games, we've either had the lead in the third quarter or had a good chance to win and let it get away. When they started coming back I thought — 'here we go again' — but (Gary Cooney's TD pass to (Walt) Roberts gave us breathing room. We've needed to hold the ball more on offense to give the defense some rest. We did it this time and the guys were able to stop them when it counted." The Saints lead in no major statistical categories but they've won a factor in seven of their eight games and had threatened to win for a month — in a 27-21 loss to New York where the winning Giant drive was kept alive by a penalty for 12 Saints on the field in a 14-10 loss to Dallas when they fumbled at the Dallas 8 with a minute to play; in a 27-13 loss to San Francisco after leading 13-10 well into the second half; and in a 14-10 loss to Pittsburgh after leading 10-0 into the fourth quarter.

"This is a dedicated, hard-working bunch," says Rears. "I'm delighted for them."
