JACKIE ROBINSON

Jackie Robinson Quits Baseball

NEW YORK - (INS) - A national magazine revealed Saturday night that Jackie Robinson, recently traded by the Brooklyn Dodgers to the New York Giants, has decided to quit baseball "for good."

Look magazine, in a copyright article in the issue which hits the news stands next Tuesday, reported that Robinson is ending his diamond career to take an executive position with Chock Full O' Nuts a restaurant chain.

When his trade from Brooklyn to the Giants was announced Dec. 13, Robinson declared he was going to do all he could "to provide the Giants with a spark."

A GREAT CAREER ENDS The retirement of Robinson, 34, brings to a close the career of another baseball great. One week ago Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians announced he was hanging up his glove.

In the Look magazine article Robinson, the first Negro to play in the major leagues, declared: "I'm through with baseball because I know that in a matter of time baseball would have been through with me."

"After you have reached your peak, there's no sentiment in baseball. You start slipping and pretty soon they're moving you around like a used car."

"You have no control over what happens to me. I have made my living playing baseball for the last twelve years. Now I'm quitting the game for good. There shouldn't be any mystery about my reasons."

VERY LITTLE SECURITY "I am 32 years old with a family to support. I've got to think of my future and our security. At my age a man doesn't have much future in baseball and very little security. "It's as simple as that."

The magazine declared that Robinson's new job would be as vice president in charge of personnel relations for the restaurant chain.

His decision to quit the game creates quite a problem for the Giants. The Polo Grounders have lost key players to the draft and had planned to plug one hole by using Robinson at first base.

Manager Bill Rigney also stated that he would use the veteran as his clean-up hitter behind Willie Mays.

He was traded for southpaw Dick Littlefield at an estimated $30,000. At the time of the trade Robinson said he would try to help make the Giants into "pennant contenders."

A GREAT COMPETITOR During his career, Robinson was a great competitor. He helped the Dodgers to six pennants and one world championship.

Funeral Rites Held For Floyd Cawthon Here

Last rites were held here Sunday afternoon from the Church of Christ, 585 Vance, the Rev. A. J. Colston, pastor, for longtime postal service worker Floyd J. Cawthon, Sr., 56, who passed suddenly last Wednesday at his residence, 780 Josephine, in the Orange Mound community.

Mr. Cawthon, a veteran of World War I, had worked for some 25 years in the Motor Vehicle Section of the local postal set-up.

Born in Henderson, Tenn., Mr. Cawthon in Sept. 1918 married the former Miss Viola Williams before moving to Memphis in 1923.

A member of the American Legion and the National Alliance of Postal Employees, the late Orange Mound resident is survived by his widow, two sons, Floyd Jr., farmer and instructor at Melrose High School, now studying in California, and Gwendolyn Cawthon, a recent graduate of Lincoln University of Missouri.

Two grandchildren, Floyd, III and Stephen, and two daughters-in-law Mesdames Arnette and Dolores Cawthon, also survive.

The S. W. Qualls funeral home is in charge of funeral arrangements.

Memphians Attend Sigma Gamma Rho Boule In D. C.

Back home from attending the Twenty-Fourth Boule of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority are Mesdames Mary Brooks, Rosa Ford, Marie L. Adams, Edna A. Amos, Jeanette Davis, Mildred P. Riddick, and Miss Mattie Walker. Miss Walker retained her place on the Board of the National Body and Mrs. Brooks was elected to the Nominating Committee of the National Body.

These ladies report one of the best meetings in the history of the Sorority and the largest delegation of recent years which came from as far west as California, Arizona, and Colorado and from all other sections of the country.

The Washingtonians went all out to entertain the body with many glamorous affairs, most of which were held in the Grand Ball Room of the Willard Hotel (noted for housing many former presidents and army generals) where most of the delegates were housed and all business sessions were held.

The public meetings was held in Rankin Memorial chapel on the campus of Howard University. Mrs. Anne Hedgeman, Assistant to the Mayor of New York City was the speaker. Mrs. Hedgeman spoke on the Sorority theme "ACCEPTING THE CHALLENGE OF THIS NEW YEAR."

Mrs. Hedgeman is a woman of wide experience and many travels, being distinguished herself by not having lost the "common touch."

This was prevalent throughout her address. Greetings were given by members of the Washington Pan Hellenic Council, the American Council of Negro Women and the American Council of Human Rights.

The meeting closed with a "closed" banquet held in the Grand Ball Room of the Willard. The members bade goodbye looking forward to their next Boule to be held in the Grand Old City of San Antonio, Texas.

TEFFIN, Ohio - (ANP) - Negro students at Heidelberg College as well as other Negro residents, can not get haircut in this community.

MEMPHIAN HELD FOR DEC. 29 AUTO-DEATH OF 8-YEAR OLD GIRL; OTHER CHARGES - 45-year-old Oscar Ellis, 907 Wellington, accused driver of the car which struck and instantly killed 8-year-old Mary Noble Coffield at Walker and Porter, Saturday, Dec. 29, was held to state on a second-degree murder charge Friday during a traffic court hearing before Judge John T. Colton.

Judge Colton also fined Ellis $51 each on charges of driving under the influence and leaving the scene of an accident.

The defendant is also being held to state on the two additional charges. His bond was set at $3,200.

HURLED 91 FEET - During the hearing, Officers testified that the accident occurred when Ellis, who was speeding west on Walker, struck Mary Noble Coffield, daughter of Mrs. Almeta Coffield, who was walking north at the intersection. Force of the car's impact, hurled the child 91 feet into a Bus-stop sign, police said.

Ellis, according to officers' testimony then slowed his car down, looked at the prone child, then quickly drove away. The defendant is then said to have driven his car home, parked it, and then left on foot.

APPREHENDED BY POLICE - Police said they got a description of the car driver from witnesses and later arrested Ellis who was seen walking at McLemore and Third. Ellis later failed a drunkometer test at Police Headquarters, officers stated.

BUS SEGREGATION FOR FLORIDA IS OUTLAWED BY DECISION IN MIAMI

Matter Already Settled, Federal Justice Declares

MIAMI - (INS) - A Federal Court Judge in Miami Thursday declared the bus segregation laws of the State of Florida and the city of Miami unconstitutional.

Judge Emmet C. Choate, in ruling on a case brought against the Miami Transit Co. Oct. 12 by four Negroes, declared the U. S. Supreme Court has already settled the question and added: "I have no hesitation in saying that these segregation laws are unconstitutional and hence are unenforceable."

Meanwhile, the city commission met in an emergency session which lasted only 10 minutes. The commission ordered City Attorney George Okell to study the decision and render a proposal of action in the next few days. Okell said he was opposed to taking legal steps merely "for the purpose of delay if nothing can be accomplished from it."

Judge Choate surprised both parties in the suit, which was handled by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The judge told G. E. Graves, Jr., NAACP attorney for the four plaintiffs, Mrs. Maggie Garmon, Mrs. Eleanor M. Fair, Mrs. Alice Jackson and Mrs. Gloria Matthews, that "the courts have already ruled on the power of a state or city to say there must be segregation in buses."

He added: "ALREADY SETTLED "If this is merely a suit to determine the constitutionality of segregation in buses, that has already been settled by the Montgomery (Ala.) case."

In Tallahassee, the Florida capital, Gov. LeRoy Collins said Judge Choate's ruling "may have some effect on the attitude of the people and in that sense will effect the state."

The governor Tuesday night suspended operation of Cities Transit, Inc., the Tallahassee bus company which began unsegregated seating recently. Gov. Collins was given such powers by the last state legislature.

After handing down his decision, Judge Choate asked Lee Worley, attorney for the Miami Transit Co., "what do you think about that?" (his decision)

Morley replied that he was "inclined to agree in substance."

Officials of the NAACP hailed the verdict as a "tremendous victory" in the South's segregation battle. Graves said he felt that integration on Miami buses can proceed "immediately."

At the same time, Assistant City Attorney Jack Smith warned that anyone who tried "to use force to make a Negro sit in the back of a bus will be in contempt of Federal court."

Octavio Cuevas, assistant general manager of the bus company, declared that the coaches would continue to operate on a segregated basis until the court's formal opinion is received. "We are still bound by our franchise," he said, "and we will have to wait until the city directs us to disregard the sections of the franchise and municipal ordinances requiring segregation."

Judge Choate gave the city 10 days to contest the case if it wishes to file an answer disputing the constitutional question. Graves said he would file a motion in 10 days for a summary judgment which would make today's ruling a formal opinion.

Clinton Jarred By Explosion

CLINTON, Tenn. - (SNS) - Local authorities are at present baffled by the third in a series of recent explosions which rocked nearby Foley Hill Negro residential section Thursday night.

Authorities were reported searching for clues which might link the explosions to the recent arrest of 16 persons arrested in December on Federal charges of interfering with integration at Clinton High School.

Anderson County Sheriff Glad Woodward is reported to have had a few "hints" of the explosions which have occurred at the headquarters buildings of the White Citizens Council and the other which took place beneath the bridge at Clinch River.

DAMAGES R. R. PROPERTY - Southern Railway property and the home of Joe Brown which is located some 300 feet from the site of the blast were reported damaged, by police.

Police said the plaster fell in Brown's home.

Clinton Police also reported that the explosion "ripped up several feet of the railroad right-of-way, but that the damage was slight. Residents said that a Southern train was passing at the time of the blast.

Police officer Jess Braden believed the charge to consist of about three sticks of dynamite.

LeMoyne Alumni Day, Feb. 10th

Spacious Bruce Hall will be the setting for the annual ALUMNI DAY of the LeMoyne College Alumni Association which will be held on Sunday, February 10th, at 5 P. M.

This program should be one of the most unique to be presented on Alumni Day in as much as it will be centered around talent from the faculty of the college and from the alumni of the city. It will be a program that all friends of the college should look forward to with great anticipation. Outstanding talent among both groups is no problem - it is wide and varied. The response is most gratifying. Some of the participants will be given at a later date.

Miss Martelle Tripp is program chairman and she is going all out to make this one of the outstanding programs of the season. Mrs. Maggie Ratcliffe is chairman of the telephone committee; Mrs. Mildred Hodges, chairman of ushers; Mrs. Ruby Porter, chairman of invitations; Mrs. Edna Swingle and Miss Jewel Gentry have charge of publicity; Mrs. Ann Hall, reception chairman; Mrs. Charles P. Roland, general chairman; L. V. Johnson, president of the Memphis Chapter of the Association.

CRAWFORD, Miss. - (ANP) - Fire of unknown origin gutted a three-room tenant farm house here last week and took the lives of three children, Dorothy Louise Jackson two and her twin three-year-old brother and sister, William Earl and Mattie Pearl.

The fire occurred on P. Roland Hairston farm three miles east of here. Five other persons managed to escape from the burning building.

SENATORS SEEK FILIBUSTER BAN

SENATOR IRVING M. IVES (R-N.Y.) joins in a news conference with Sen. Paul H. Douglas (right) in which both men vowed support to modify the filibuster rule in the Senate. They said that failure to change rules allowing unlimited debate would rule out any "meaningful" civil rights legislation. Southern Senators violently oppose the move. Ives reported that a "very influential" White House official has given him "strong encouragement." (International)

LeMoyne Receives Invitation To Danforth Foundation Meet

President Hollis F. Price has announced that LeMoyne College has been invited to be a member of the first Institutional Summer Workshop, given by the Danforth Foundation.

The Workshop will be held at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, New York, July 8 to August 3, 1957. Kenneth I. Brown, Executive Director of the Foundation, is asking that each participating college send a quartet of representatives, including a dean or a major administrative officer, and three faculty members chosen from the larger departments.

All of the twenty-five colleges asked to participate will be undergraduate colleges (although some have graduate divisions), below 1-200 in student body, regionally accredited, which are highly respected for their efforts to improve academic standards and to increase scholastic competence.

The Workshop is to be an experimental endeavor to see if a foundation like the Danforth Foundation can be directly helpful to institutions like LeMoyne, working toward increased academic usefulness and a still richer college experience for their students.

It will include lectures, seminars, and tours designed to meet the specific needs and desires of the member colleges.

L. O. Swingler Makes Polio Plea

Your help in the March of Dimes is requested by Lewis O. Swingler, Memphis, Tenn., executive secretary of the Abe Scharff YMCA, in his endorsement statement.

"During my editorship of two new papers in Memphis, it was my opportunity to be closely associated with every March of Dimes campaign in my community since the very inception of this humanitarian crusade. Nothing within my experience as a journalist of L. O. Swingler ferred me greater challenge to render newspaper service at the highest level.

"Now that I am engaged in Y. M. C. A. work, I am primarily concerned with a constantly expanding circle of young people. The physical development of the youth through the YMCA will not be complete until such health barriers as infantile paralysis have been conquered and eradicated.

"I am especially interested in the breadth and extent of scientific research which is bringing such relief to thousands of polio victims and the Salk vaccine which promises to prevent thousands of others from ever becoming victimized by the dread ailment.

"I consider it a privilege to offer my endorsement to the March of Dimes, now in progress."

M. W. Weathers Funeral Rites In Mississippi

Last rites were held Monday afternoon, 3 P. M., in the Belle Flower Baptist Church, Grenada, Miss., for Memphis resident, Matthew W. Weathers, 76, who passed last Wednesday morning at John Gaston Hospital after being hospitalized for 12 hours following a stroke.

Mr. Weathers, born to the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Weathers in Grenada, moved to Memphis in 1946 and resided at 442 E. Foote Park with his widow, Mrs. Minnie Weathers.

A retired groceryman, Mr. Weathers, a member of St. John Baptist Church, Vance Avenue, Memphis, had been ill for nearly a year and a half following a previous stroke.

The Memphis resident a former Oddfellow, was interred in the family owned Weathers Cemetery following funeral services held in the church which was founded by his father.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Minnie Weathers; sons, W. C. Weathers, civic and fraternal leader and staff member of the Memphis World; James Weathers, N. C.; daughters, Mrs. Estelle Kemp of St. Albany, N. Y., and Mrs. Mar-

Oklahoma Honors Junior Rotarian

MADRID, Okla. - (ANP) - Marvin Jeffers, 16-year-old high school senior was chosen as Junior Rotarian for the month of December in Madrid.

Jeffers is the first Negro in the city to be thus honored, and a check made shows that maybe he is the first in Oklahoma to achieve Rotary honor.

Supt. Jimmie Fox said Jeffers was the unanimous choice of the body.

Vandalia K. & N. School Ends Successful Project

If the countenances on the faces of the instructors and little pupils at Vandalia Kindergarten and Nursery School seem unusually cheerful these days, the basis for it all might be laid to the culmination of two recently sponsored highly successful projects promoted by the groups.

Due to their combined efforts, the Vandalia school through fund raising efforts, made scores of local underprivileged children very happy with gifts of candy, fruits, shoes and sweaters, respectively, during this past Xmas.

The credit balance on the recently installed fence surrounding the school - an urgently needed safety factor - has been paid off. A sizeable balance of money on hand will not be used to affect much needed improvements on the school buildings.

RAISED $611 ON PROJECT The issues relative to the problem in hand took on the project phase with the sponsoring of a king-queen contest among the pupils for the necessary fund-raising purposes.

Thanks to the generosity of the school's friends and general public, monies collected reached the appreciable total of $611.00.

Little Miss Maria C. Fladd and Leslie Washington are the institution's reigning royalty due to having raised the most money, respectively, during the project.

Vandalia Kindergarten and Nursery School, located at 3078 Johnson, was established some six years ago by Mrs. Lillian Scott who is assisted in still work by Miss Ethel Prioleaux.

As a reward for their outstanding efforts, the pupils will be given a king-queen banquet Jan. 11 at the school.

Future plans call for presentation of a play, titled, "Rock A Bye Baby," slated for showing during the first week of May.

Recipe of the Week

by Louise R. Prothro

PET MILK HOME ECONOMIST

One of the foods that has really zoomed to popularity in recent years is SPAGHETTI AND MEAT BALLS. Everyone seems to love plump, juicy meatballs and tender spaghetti in a rich, spicy, tomato and mushroom sauce. Of course, in a highly-flavored dish like this, it's especially important to have a really good recipe. And that's just what my Pet Evaporated Milk recipe for Spaghetti and Meat Balls is! The sauce has just the right, rich flavor, and the meatballs are extra juicy and tender because they're made with Pet Milk. You see, Pet Milk holds the meat and crumb mixture together, sealing in the good juices and helping to give the meatballs a rich, all-gent flavor. For that reason you get four generous servings from only one pound of ground meat. Ordinary milk wouldn't do it, of course but Pet Milk does because it's concentrated to twice the richness of whole milk. Next time you treat your family to SPAGHETTI AND MEAT BALLS, make them my Pet Milk way. I know you'll be pleased!

SPAGHETTI AND MEAT BALLS
1 lb. ground lean beef
1 cup Pet Evaporated Milk
2-3 cup fresh bread crumbs
2 1/2 Tablespoons salt
1 Teaspoon pepper
1 Tablespoon hot fat
1 can tomato soup
4 Oz. can mushroom stems and pieces, undrained
1/2 cup finely cut onion
1 clove garlic, finely cut
1 Tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce
4 quarts boiling water

Mix well in a bowl the beef, milk, crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. With wet hands, shape meat mixture lightly into 16 balls. Brown meat balls slowly on all sides in the hot fat in a skillet. Mix in a bowl the soup, mushrooms, onion, garlic, Worcestershire, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Pour mixture around browned meat balls in skillet. Cover and cook over low heat 15 minutes. Meanwhile, cook spaghetti in boiling water and 2 tablespoons salt until tender. - Serve hot meat balls and sauce over the drained, hot cooked spaghetti with grated Parmesan or Italian-style cheese, if desired. Make 4 servings.

Medical Journalism Awards Now Available

NEW YORK — The Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation announced the opening of the eighth annual Albert Lasker Medical Journalism Awards competition (January 5). Newspaper stories, magazine articles and radio-television programs dealing with medical research or public health during 1956 are eligible. The deadline for entries will be February 11, 1957. Inaugurated in 1949 the three Medical Journalism Awards have been increased this year from $1,000 to $2,000 each. Included with each award is a citation and a silver statuette of the Winged Victory of Samothrace, symbolizing victory over death and disease. They will be presented to the newspaper writer and magazine writer who have written during 1956 the best articles—series of articles, editorials or columns dealing with the improvement of public health or the prolongation of life through medical research or public health programs. The radio-television award will be presented to the best program or series of programs in this field broadcast over a station or network during 1956. A committee of eminent journalists, laymen and physicians will judge the entries. Articles and scripts will be rated on the basis of accuracy, significance, timeliness and proficiency in the translation of technical information into lay language, and skill in arousing and holding the average person's interest. The Foundation seeks especially to recognize journalism that contributes to a better public understanding of medical research and health programs relating to the diseases which are major causes of death or disability—especially heart diseases, cancer, mental illness, arthritis, blindness and neurological diseases. The winners of the 1956 awards were: Newspapers - Selig Greenberg, staff writer, the Providence (R. I.) Journal and Evening Bulletin for his series of articles, February, 1956, on "Hormones: Revolution in Medicine"; and Mrs. Joan Geyer, staff writer, the Provo (Utah) Daily Herald for her series of articles, May 1955, on "The Secret Sickness - Mental Illness". Magazines - Steven M. Spencer, associate editor, The Saturday Evening Post, for his article, "Mystery of the 'Blinded Babies'", published in June, 1955. Television - "The March of Medicine", documentary film and television series produced by Smith, Kline and French Laboratories Philadelphia, over the National Broadcasting Company network. Entries may be made by individual writers, editors or executives. As many entries as desired may be made, provided articles have been published and programs have been broadcast during the calendar year 1956. Entry blanks and other information may be obtained from the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation, Chrysler Building, New York 17, N. Y. Entries should be forwarded to the Foundation not later than February 11, 1957. The 1956 winners will be announced by the Foundation early in the spring of 1957.

UN ADOPTS WAIT AND SEE POLICY

UNITED NATIONS N. Y. — (INS) — United Nations diplomats are convinced that it is best to "wait and see" how President Eisenhower's plan for resisting communist aggression in the Middle East will be spelled out in its process through Congress. Mixed reaction ranged all the way from resentment by some Middle Eastern countries to contention by Western representatives that American threats of Soviet direct or overt aggression in that area will be eased once Mr. Eisenhower's standby authority has been granted. Many believe the U. N. while confronted with a difficult position in any fight involving major member nations, would respond favorably to any U. S. intervention in the Middle East if there were a clear cut case of aggression by Russia and an appeal for help by the invaded nation. Arab leaders at the U. N. almost unanimously look upon the proposal as a "blank check" for American intervention in the Middle East. Those immediately registering opposition were Syria, Jordan and Egypt. Yugoslav circles likewise displayed dislike for the Eisenhower plan. Egyptian foreign minister Mahmoud Fawzi who is at the U. N. for the Assembly and for new direct talks through the good offices of Dag Hammarskjöld with the British and French on the status of the Suez Canal, declined comment after listening to the broadcast of the President's address. Hammarskjöld sat in his 38-story office at U. N. headquarters to follow the Presidential words with exceptional care, cognizant of the continuing great role for the U. N. in the Middle East enunciated by the President. India's V. K. Krishna Menon, in a rarely cautious mood, said that Mr. Eisenhower spoke as the head of state and that consequently all comments on his address must be reserved for highest levels in New Delhi.

21 CITIES IN THE SOUTH END BUS SEGREGATION

A spot survey by the Southern Regional Council disclosed that 21 Southern cities have ended compulsory segregation on local buses without difficulty. The cities are: Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Fort Smith, and Hot Springs, Ark.; Charlotte, Greensboro, Durham, and Winston-Salem, N. C.; Knoxville, Tenn.; San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Dallas, Texas; and Richmond, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Petersburg, Charlottesville, Fredericksburg, Lynchburg, and Roanoke, Va. In every case the desegregation took place without court action—usually by a change of policy on the part of the transit company involved. The changes caused no incidents of violence or organized protest. The experience of these twenty one cities contrasted sharply with recent developments in Montgomery, Birmingham and Tallahassee. There, non-segregated seating on local buses has been met by both official resistance and sporadic violence by lawless elements. In most of the cities checked, the SRC found that many passengers continued to follow the customary pattern of separate seating. But passengers are free to sit where they wish, and some degree of mixed seating is found in each of the cities reported. In most cases, desegregation of local buses dates back to April, 1956, when the Supreme Court dismissed an appeal from the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals which held the

Indian Diplomat To Speak At Hampton

HAMPTON, Va. (Special) — "In the Middle East" is the subject of Hampton Institute's first All-College Assembly program in 1957, to be held in Ogden Hall on Thursday, Jan. 10, at 7 P. M. The speaker will be the Persian-born diplomat, author and teacher Dr. Nasrollah S. Fatemi, now associated with Fairleigh Dickinson University at Teaneck, N. J., as professor of Social Science. As a diplomat, Dr. Fatemi represented Iran at the United Nations, and in 1948 was the Iranian delegate to the Conference of the U. N. Economic and Social Organization. He was also a member of the Majlis, the Iranian Parliament, and one time Governor of the Iranian province of Fars. Prior to his present position, Dr. Fatemi was Professor of Oriental Culture and History at Princeton University from 1950 until 1955. He is author of several books on the Middle East, among them "A Diplomatic History of Persia and Oil Diplomacy: Powderkeg in Iran." He also was the publisher of a literary magazine and a daily newspaper in his native Iran. Dr. Fatemi received his graduate education in the United States at Columbia University and the New School for Social Research; New York.

21 CITIES IN THE SOUTH END BUS SEGREGATION

Columbia, S. C. bus segregation ordinance unconstitutional (S. C. Electric and Gas Co. vs. Sarah Mae Fleming). Although the ruling directly applied only to Columbia, a number of transit companies operating elsewhere voluntarily revised their regulations. Following is a brief city-by-city account of present bus practices: Little Rock, Ark.: The bus system has been desegregated, with Negroes frequently sitting at the front of the buses. Pine Bluff, Ark.: Negroes sit in all sections of the buses. Fort Smith, Ark.: Segregation signs are no longer on the buses, but generally Negroes seat from the rear. Hot Springs, Ark.: Although segregation is not enforced, Negroes tend to sit together at the rear of the buses. The situation is similar to that in Fort Smith. Charlotte, N. C.: Integrated seating has been more in evidence since the ruling in the Fleming case, but separate seating was not strictly enforced prior to that time. Mixed seating is found on all routes. Greensboro, N. C.: Mixed seating is in evidence on all routes though many Negroes continue to sit toward the rear of the buses. Durham, N. C.: Similar to the situation in Greensboro. Winston-Salem, N. C.: All bus routes have been desegregated, in

Powell Will Push Bill On School Construction

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Democrat of New York, said Wednesday that he will again offer his amendment to deny Federal funds for school construction to school districts which are not complying with the Supreme Court decree to desegregate public schools. At a press conference Powell said he will confer with Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and other Administration leaders to see what kind of Federal aid-to-education program they are working on and if it looks feasible, he will put his amendment into a separate bill. "That is what Sherman Adams suggested to me," Powell said. Adams is the Assistant to President Eisenhower. Powell added that he will not put his amendment into a separate bill unless he is assured that it will be brought before Federal aid to school construction legislation. Asked whether he would incorporate the Javits suggestion into his amendment, Powell said he had asked Thurgood Marshall, special counsel of the NAACP, and J. Francis Polhaus of the Washington Bureau of the NAACP to advise him on it. Senator-elect Jacob K. Javits suggested to Powell that his amendment provide that no Federal funds should be given to school districts which have been ordered by a court to desegregate its schools and have not done so. The Powell amendment would deny funds to any school district which is not complying with the Supreme Court decision, whether or

Robbery Suspect Killed In Escape Attempt At Stockade

FORT MEAD, Md. — (ANP) — Sgt. Third Class Vernon L. Dillard, 25, who had recently been arrested in connection with an $807 robbery, was shot and killed last week when he tried to escape from the main stockade here. Dillard, arrested in Annapolis shortly after he had been arrested in connection with the robbery, was shot in the chest during the Dec. 22 robbery of a Western Union office at the fort. According to the FBI, half of the money taken in the robbery was recovered. The rest was said to have been spent on clothes and a wedding ring. Dillard attempted to escape while being returned to the stockade after trying to reach his home by telephone. He is said to have been shot after trying to snatch a carbine carried by a guard. He ran through the main gate and was shot by the guard. The bullet passed through his back and chest.

40,200 Fell To Traffic In 1956

BY NED H. DEARBORN (President National Safety Council) CHICAGO. — (INS) — The National Safety Council has just announced that America, the nation of great civilization and regard for its fellow man, has piled up a traffic death toll in 1956 of 40,200 — an "all-time high." How could this happen? Why did it happen? Fundamentally, of course, because more people are driving more cars more miles than ever before. Actually, it happened because too many people who were driving cars shouldn't be behind the wheel of a car at all and because a lot of nice people who honestly want to drive safely just don't think hard enough about what they are doing in traffic. It also happens because some public officials and law enforcement agencies still aren't doing as much as they can to keep the wrong kind of driver from getting on the highway, and to get him off the road once he has proved he doesn't belong there. Who's to blame most for this big toll? You and I, the ordinary, average citizen. Before you start to deny that, give yourself this little quiz test: Do I belong to my local Safety Council? Do I work actively to support it? Do I contribute to it? Do I demand, support and accept rigid enforcement of the traffic laws not only for the other fellow, but for myself? Have I done anything to show my police department or my public officials that I would back them to the hilt in any sincere, ethical effort to make it tough for erring drivers and pedestrians? Have I contributed any time, effort or money to making my community safer? What's your score? Don't forget that your public officials and your police officers are literally public servants, and that they simply can't do the job you want them to do in traffic enforcement, as in anything else unless they have your support. They are going to do just about the kind of a job you insist upon, and that you will help them do. By and large, public officials and traffic law enforcement officers are doing a good job, and an increasingly better job. They performed superbly over the New Year's holiday. I am firmly convinced that traffic law enforcement never has been as uniformly good throughout the country as it is today. But it will be lot better if you — the driver and the citizen — will do better yourself? Set a personal example behind the wheel of your car in care, courtesy, common sense and regard for

Along The Sports Trail

BY SAM BROWN

The New York Giants can boast of two of the most popular Negro players in the major leagues, and players rated among the top performers in natural ability in Jackie Robinson, recently acquired from the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Willie Mays their own fleet-footed hard hitting outfielder.

Mays and Robinson will give the Giants the gate attraction the Polo Grounders have needed to compete at the gate with the Dodgers and the Yankees for the patronage of the nation's largest city. Attendance at the Giants games has suffered since the departure of Leo Durocher, which seemingly took away the last of the representatives of the old Giant's spirit.

Robinson will be of great value to the Giants both on the field and at the gate. At 36 he has perhaps two more years of play, good for maybe 100 games a season, and his worth at the gate cannot be estimated. There are those who feel that the $50,000 salary paid by the Giants and his $30,000 salary are insignificant when compared with the gate appeal.

The Giants will likely get all their money back plus spring training expenses during the exhibition season through the south. One thing that has been brought out in connection with Robinson's personality and ability, you either like him or dislike him, there is no middle ground. Whether you like him or not, somehow, one admires his aggressive play and sincerity. Many fans' loyalty to the Dodgers stemmed from the Robinson personality.

Willie Mays will benefit by the presence of Robinson in the Giants lineup, as the "Say-Hey" Kid needs someone of the Robinson nature and make up to inspire him and bring out the best of his ability. In many ways Robinson and Durocher are alike. It was the presence of Durocher that was responsible for the stellar performance of Mays. The fleet center fielder didn't appear to be same after Durocher left.

With these two top performers in the lineup, the Giants will be hard to handle next season. Although, Robinson has just about passed his prime, he is still a good man to have around. He is not as fast as his feet as he once was, yet he can still take care of the job. As Harry Carey, the radio announcer of the St. Louis Cardinals games, "He has many ways to beat you, he beats you running, he beats you with his hitting, he beats you with his fielding and he beats you thinking."

Then too, the inspiration he gives to the other members of the team is one of those intangibles on which it is hard to place the proper value. Mays will get the necessary incentive to play his best and reach his greatest potential. Some of his peak, and that he needs something or someone to bring out the best in his ability.

We are not claiming a pennant for the Giants next season, but we will predict a first division berth for them and maybe a contender. Two players cannot make a team, although on the other hand two players can hurt, but whether the Giants win or not they will have two of the most colorful Negro players in the game to help swell the attendance, and after all that's where the help means most. The Giants front office will welcome that.

Many followers of the Dodgers will find their loyalty being switched to the Giants because of Robinson. For years hundreds of fans of the mid-south have journeyed to St. Louis to see the Dodgers, but just recently it was called to our attention that many of these same fans are making plans to see the Giants and Jackie Robinson.

Harlem Magicians To Play Here Sunday January 13th

Marques Haynes, the world's greatest dribbler, co-owner and co-star of the Magicians, is a great ball handler and play making artist and a power house on the defense. Both Goose and Marques are the No. 1 box office attractions in professional basketball today and demonstrated this last year by attracting more than 750,000 fans to a schedule of 179 games.

Haynes averaged 30 points per game during the highly successful tour last year and literally proved to his fans that he has no equal as an all-around star. The incomparable Haynes started his rise to fame and glory at the basketball ladder at Langston University near his home town of Sand Springs, Okla. He began his dribbling performance under the tutelage of his older brothers and then flourished out as the top star.

Haynes stands 6 feet and weighs 175. He is married and has one daughter. His charming wife, Marquetta has proven to be one of the inspiring motives in Haynes' rapid success. Special student reduced tickets at Goldsmith's Central Ticket Office. Along with Goose Tatum, co-

Southern Bell Names Three Vice-Presidents

The division of the Southern Bell Company's nine-state operations into two administrative organizations set up along geographical lines and the appointment of three vice presidents to new executive positions were announced Wednesday, January 9, by Ben S. Gilmer, President of the company.

The two administrative organizations will be designated East and West and each will be headed by an operating vice president reporting to Mr. Gilmer. Their headquarters will be in Atlanta.

Frank M. Malone of Atlanta now Personnel Vice President, will become Operating Vice President-West, with responsibility for operations in five states — Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Kentucky and Tennessee.

S. S. Stone, of Charlotte, now North Carolina Vice President and General Manager, has been appointed Operating Vice President-East. He will direct the company's operations in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

William A. Thompson, of Birmingham, now Alabama Vice President and General Manager, has been appointed Personnel Vice President with responsibility for personnel relations throughout the company's nine states.

The changes are effective immediately.

Mr. Gilmer said the new administrative setup, a further decentralization of the company's top executive management, was a "natural step to keep pace with the South's rapidly expanding communications requirements. Telephone-wise, many of the states we serve are almost as large today as the entire company area was not so many years ago. The prospect is for continued rapid expansion. As we grow in response to the South's growth, our aim is to keep sensitive to individual state and community needs and pattern our services to their special requirements."

- Each of the executive appointees
- 1. Walter C. Gilliam, president, Atlanta (Manassas).
  - 2. Gloria Massey and Milton Fletcher.
  - 3. Alice Harmon and Carol Gholston (Manassas).
  - 4. Charles Floyd and Barbara Gatin.
  - 5. Dorothy "Chicken" King and Walter Rice.
  - 6. Shirley Ward and Melvin Brown (Manassas).

Washington Stadium Low Bid Received

NEW STADIUM FIGURE $135,339; TO SEAT 5,000

The C. C. Clinton contracting firm, with a low bid of $133,539, will build the new Washington High school stadium, it was announced by the Board of Education Saturday.

The board announced that the new stadium will seat 5,000. The Clinton firm was low bidder among 13 other companies.

High bid was $173,331. Architect E. L. Harrison designed the new plant.

The new stadium will replace the old stands now situated on the field west of the school. New plans call for five sections of stands on the west side and three on the east.

Body Of South Bend Indiana Man Found

BLYTHERVILLE, Ark. — (INS) — The body of a South Bend, Ind., man, stuffed in a cotton picking sack, was found by three hunters Saturday under a bridge about four miles south of Blytheville.

The victim was identified as Fred Taylor, 36, by his companion, Harry James, 31, of South Bend, who was held on an open charge.

Mississippi county sheriff Wilfred Berryman said James admitted beating Taylor to death in an argument, stuffing the body in the sack and throwing it under the bridge, but no charges had been filed.

The sheriff quoted James as saying he and Taylor bought a car together in South Bend, Taylor went to Blytheville, and James followed in the car.

The body was wrapped in a bed-sheet.

Rule 22 Provides For Minority Control

From now on, and possibly to the adjournment of the current session of Congress, our readers will hear much of Senate Rule 22. In that we all might get better acquainted with this spectacle as well as its consorts — who would make what was meant an American principle, a barrier to the American expression of free government at the behest of free people.

Rule 22 is that highly prized concept of "unlimited debate" on a question not pleasing a minority who envisioned that there are not enough votes to allow the American test come to pass on a measure.

Rule 22 might be classed as the Raven; the one Poe lamented in his famous poem when he said — "Take thy beak from out my heart Take thy form from off my door."

Southerners have found it the one refuge to which they can fly in time of trouble, — when the rights of free people are gasping for a chance; when measures meant for the declaration that a new day of free people demands a new day of free and unlimited circulation on the part of all people, hurl their forms across the challenge of history.

Rule 22 was possibly made famous through the Bilbos, John Sharp Williams and others too well known of this generation who disgraced the Senate in what was termed as a silly talkfest, that weapon of the minority in defeating what is possibly majority expression on a measure.

Rule 22 is threatened just now with its old adversary, closure; something many of the law-making bodies regret to implement. It would take a two-third vote to successfully challenge this pet resource for those whose strategy is to survive through some form of minority control.

It is plainly seen that an un-Democratic motive lies beneath any such structure where a bare 33 Senators can veto the wishes of 63.

The recent poll taken by the Gallup Institute of Public Opinion would disclose that the majority in the country is against Rule 22, which is self-suggestive that there is a wholesale desire for the activation of a Democracy. The poll also showed that the highest score against the change of this rule comes up from the Southern States, where it is well and widely known that a position of positiveness on the part of the South, rather than a negative attitude would not have netted this painful result.

The late Senator Taff's position back in 1953 was the effect that argument in favor of the basic issues would be more effective than against the rule itself. Several night sessions were held in 1953 and while this was a heavy taxation on the physical strength of the Senators, it was the one way to wear down a condition based purely upon a motive to effect minority rule which is un-Democratic and a two edged sword, sufficient to work in a destructive fashion.

Important questions like the Suez Canal situation and the drive for order in the Middle East, all might some day be at the sufferance of this 33 minority, apt to spring into a talkfest at any instance.

Be it said here and now, as to the President's Civil Rights legislation, it is believed that it will be passed when the gesture is posed and the word passed along. Senator Knowland, Republican Senate leader, has indicated this and with a liberal wing of such men as Senator Lausche of Ohio, there need be any fears of peril for the Rights program.

Therefore, it is fortunate at this time the insistence for change of the rule is high above the fog-belt of party politics. It is the arrival of the nation at the cross-road where it must speak its sanction for or against majority rule, the heart-throb of the Republic.

South Studies Plan For Handling Bias

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Legislators meeting this year in at least nine southern and border states will consider laws dealing with school segregation, Southern School News said here today.

Meanwhile, said Southern School News, one additional school district (Norman, Okla.) has been desegregated, bringing to 672 the number of districts which have begun or accomplished the desegregation process. Some 3,000 more remain segregated.

The types of legislation to be introduced and the affected states include: Pupil assignment — Tennessee, Texas and Arkansas. Compulsory attendance law revision — Georgia, Texas and possibly Maryland.

Tuition grants for private education — Texas. Restrictions on or investigation of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People — Georgia, Texas and Florida. Reference requirement for college admission — Alabama. "Free choice" of schools — Tennessee.

Legislators in Missouri, Maryland and Delaware, where desegregation is under way, were expected to get bills designed to hasten the process.

Southern School News is published here under direction of a group of southern newspaper editors and educators as a nonpartisan, fact-finding agency.

The publication noted that, despite the U. S. Supreme Court decisions against school segregation, eight southern legislatures had adopted 107 measures — 84 of them last year — since 1954 in an effort to retain segregation.

REVIEWING THE NEWS

BY WILLIAM GORDON Managing Editor Atlanta Daily World

From Salem To The Deep South...

If Salem, Massachusetts stands out for anything at all, it's for its famous "witch hunts," the horrible persecutions as a result of superstition and fear.

Someday, someone will write a history of the old South, and one should not be surprised if superstition is found to be at the base of many of its ills.

It was the usual cold and cloudy New England winter day when we visited Salem. There were many historical sights that took us back to the days of the classroom, but what stood out most in my mind was the small photograph of the judges' chambers dangling loosely on the wall of an old building.

"This is where many of the decisions were decided," the guide told us. She was talking about the witch trials.

"But the climax came," the guide said, "when a close relative of the judge was charged with practicing witchcraft." This practically broke up the famous witch trials of Salem. And so the story goes.

Whether it be witch hunting, or the antics of the Ku Klux Klan, all evil movements will eventually die, many on their own momentum.

Kesselman writes in his book, All Manner of Men, that mob violence once prevailed in New York City, almost to the degree of the old South. Mob violence continued until a similar case, to that of the Salem incident, emerged to bring shame on the "right people." Those who usually create the "Frankenstein" are often struck down by its might. And history has a way of repeating itself.

The other day a White Citizens Council headquarters building in Clinton, Tennessee was bombed. The story of Klan beatings among whites is still clear in the minds of many. Klan beatings drew national attention on this hate group. The result was that the Klan put itself in the outlaw columns and even die-hard segregationists saw the validity of curbing its power.

Hate, superstition and fear, just don't work together for any substantial good. The shootings and the bombings in Alabama are going on with little effort to halt them. Obviously, the people who foster such methods are themselves, cowards, representing the extreme, frustrated, and confused portion of a community, slow to conform. But the great evil here is not entirely in the ignorant and superstitious, but more so in those who stand by and permit the ignorant to operate. With this in effect, we can be sure of one final solution, the same as the judge in Salem or the people in New York who permitted mob violence. The monster, created through neglect will eventually revenge itself — not against Negroes or other minorities, but against those who permit mob rule to operate. The time has come when it is not so far from Salem to the deep South.

congressional subcommittee investigation of District schools after the subcommittee majority issued its report and recommended a return to segregated schools. The report was attacked by the two minority members as dealing with sordid headline items almost entirely.

FLORIDA — A desegregation suit in Dade County (Miami) was dismissed from federal court for the second time because of a lack of a factual, controversial situation. Another suit attacking the new desegregation laws still is pending. Meanwhile, the new Pupil Placement Law, adopted in July, was described as beneficial in that it required teachers and principals to learn more about the home background of the students.

GEORGIA — Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, chancellor of the Georgia university system, testified in a case brought to win admittance of a Negro to the University of Georgia law school that henceforth his policy would be to consider any eligible Negro who was academically qualified. The case now hinges on whether Horace Ward, the plaintiff, was denied admission because of race or scholastic qualifications. Meanwhile the NAACP made its records available to Georgia tax examiners after the Atlanta branch president was jailed (for two hours) and a $25,000 fine was levied in contempt case against the organization.

KENTUCKY — Federal district court orders in desegregation cases involving Clay and Sturgis called for desegregation plans to be submitted to the court by Feb. 4. If ruled out the "immediate" desegregation sought by the NAACP. In Louisville, a young segregationist from Detroit was denied admission to the city schools. Supt. Omer Carmichael, who was praised by President Eisenhower for desegregation, then was criticized by teachers' union official as being "anti-integration."

LOUISIANA — New legal weapons designed to remove Negroes from state-supported universities and colleges (some 200 attended four of seven state institutions during 1956) were to be used this month. Preparations were made for hearing on Jan. 9 the appeal from the district court ruling ordering desegregation of Orleans Parish schools.

MARYLAND — The first appeal of a local school board's decision which had barred a Negro pupil from a school ended with the school board rescinding its original decision and admitting the student, as the second such case moved up to the State Board of Education. Baltimore, meanwhile found that 80% of its schools had mixed classes as compared to 50 last year.

MISSISSIPPI — Segregation was still intact at all levels and no suits had been filed as 1956 ended. The state's Negro-white equalization program was stepped up under a decision by the state supreme court holding that final authority for approving school district reorganization plans rest with the State Board of Education.

MISSOURI — Kansas City desegregation continued "smoothly" and quietly after a minor flareup and threatened student strike last spring. The Commission on Human Relations reported in Webster Groves a controversy with some segregationists over whether the St. Louis suburban community should build one inferior high school or two.

NORTH CAROLINA — A bill attacking pro-segregation legislation adopted last year was filed in Caswell County as legislators prepared for the 1957 regular session with the possibility that the 1956 Pupil Placement Act might be reviewed.

OKLAHOMA — Norman White schools accepted two Negro students at the high school level in September, bringing to 183 the number of Oklahoma districts having begun desegregation. It was learned during December a case court in Oklahoma City, largest school district in the state, found that 3 per cent of the city's 48,117 white students and 15 per cent of the 6,334 Negro children were in mixed classes.

SOUTH CAROLINA — A white high school band director was severely beaten by a group of hooded men who accused him of having made a pro-integration speech. Otherwise, racial tensions on the eve of the 1957 legislative session were considerably less than a year ago. No new major legislation on the segregation-desegregation question was expected. The U. S. Fourth Circuit Court in a decision ordering hearing of a Columbia transportation suit linked bus cases with the education cases by ruling that the Brown and Bolling cases "left no doubt that the separate but equal doctrine had been generally repudiated."

TENNESSEE — New outbreaks of violence at Clinton led to the arrest of 16 pro-segregationists under a federal court order and the temporary closing of the school. Tennessee legislators prepared for the 1957 session which will receive proposals for pupil assignment laws "free choice" selection of schools and measures to leave to the local boards the questions of when and how to end compulsory segregation. Associates of Gov. Frank Clement said the administration would introduce a program of its own.

TEXAS — A federal judge in Dallas, holding that the Supreme Court school segregation decision was based on "modern psychological knowledge" rather than law ruled for segregation. Dallas schools need not be desegregated at the present. Still another desegregation suit was filed in Houston, the nation's largest segregated school district. Eleven measures and a constitutional amendment bearing on the segregation-desegregation issue were expected to be introduced in the state legislature.

VIRGINIA — The U. S. Fourth Circuit Court affirmed district court orders calling for an end to segregation in Charlottesville and Arlington County schools. As the Pupil Assignment Board authorized by the legislature last summer went into operation state officials and financiers undertook to show investors that Virginia school bonds are in no way affected by anti-integration legislation.

WEST VIRGINIA — Of 13 colleges and universities responding to questionnaires, eight reported declines in Negro enrollment, four reported increases and one reported no change.

CHAPTER 11 "The young man hummed past me, his heels beating a frenetic rhythm on the sidewalk. He was a good looking kid, but at the moment his face was clouded with trouble. This boy looked as though he should have been laughing it up with the crowd at the corner drug store back home. I hoped my hunch was wrong; as I watched him over my shoulder I hoped he would turn into one of the other houses on the block. But it was Anita Farrell's apartment house he went into. As I entered the vestibule the inside door was just settling back into its frame. I re-opened it an inch or two and listened. Footsteps were thudding on the stair carpeting. They stopped, and I heard a strong, rough voice say, "Where you headed, son?"

MY WEEKLY SERMON REV. BLAIR T. HUNT PASTOR MISSISSIPPI BLVD. CHRISTIAN CHURCH, MEMPHIS

BROTHERLY LOVE TEXT: "Let brotherly love continue," Heb. 13:1 "WHAT IS BROTHERLY LOVE? It is God's universal currency. We have placed the image of the son of God, written in the blood of Calvary. When this currency, brotherly love, fails to win, there is nothing else you can offer."

Love is God's derriek-hook. Sometimes we have burdens that we cannot lift by main strength. They crush us. Have you ever seen workmen build large railroad bridges? Yonder is a big stone that is to be placed in a certain position. No man can lift it. But they place the machinery and fasten the hooks of steel. And a little child can turn the wheel. The stone is lifted and placed in position. So with the burdens of life. What would, at other times be burdens become joys? When we place under them the hook of love. Love is divine magnetism. Jesus had no trouble in reaching the masses. He loved humanity. People are attracted by this divine power of love.

"Love is the heart of christianity. If my doctor were to tell me that I had organic heart trouble, I would understand that meant danger of sudden death. So many of us are suffering from heart trouble. And we are in danger of sudden death. Love is the badge of christianity. We become members of secret orders, and only those who know the secrets of the order can understand that we are members. But Jesus says, "By this shall all men know that you are my disciples, because you love one another."

Love is the eleventh commandment. You may say, "I did not know that you had but ten commandments." But Jesus says, "A new commandment give I unto you; that you love one another." If I love you as I love myself, I will never misrepresent you. I never told a lie on myself in all my life. I will never tell a lie on you, if I love you. I would not cheat myself. If I love you as I love me, I will not cheat you.

Love is the hope of christianity, and it is infallible. Why, should I love you? Because you are my brother. God has made of one blood all the nations of the earth. "Now abides faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love." Why is love the greatest? Man believes, but God does not. Man hopes, but God does not. Man loves, and God loves. Love is the greatest because it is the divine element. God is love! Remember, when everything else fails, love wins. Let brotherly love continue!

"Sure they do... Rhinebeck Place. That's what they told me over the phone." "This isn't 9, son. It's 11." "Oh, sorry..." I let the door swing closed. I hurried out of the vestibule of number 11 and into the vestibule of number 9. The name Martin was not under any of the mailboxes. I kept moving until I was safely in the vestibule of number 7, but my precaution was needless. The young man didn't think it necessary because of the motion of visiting the phantom Martins. He breezed right past number 9 on his way toward Christopher Street.

I set out after him. I knew now that the apartment he was interested in was Anita Farrell's. The first step in discovering why would be to find out who this young man was. He turned left on Christopher toward Sheridan Square. I went as far as Christopher, then stopped, realizing that I mustn't follow him. He hadn't expected to find a policeman on duty at Anita's apartment. I hadn't, either. There was a possibility that Steve would make the same mistake. I would have to wait for him here, warn him against blundering into the police as the young man had.

I was beginning to worry about what was taking Steve so long when a cab pulled up to the curb and stopped. The driver leaned out at me. "You Mrs. Barton?" "Yes." "Hop in. Your husband sent me to pick you up." "Pick me up... where is he?" "At the Feather Club. If he's gone when you get there, you're to ask the bartender for a message."

I didn't get this at all. "Was my husband sober?" "Far as I could tell." "Where was he when you saw him?" "Outside the Feather Club. I was parked there. What's wrong... don't you want me to take you to him?" "Well... yes, I suppose so. I got into the cab. "This is nice of you, thanks." "It's an easy ten bucks. Thank you."

Ten dollars. That was important money in our family. So it was important that I join Steve at the Feather Club. I hoped it was more important than finding out who the young man in Anita's place was, and why he was there. The Feather Club was a tourist trap on Seventh Avenue below Sheridan Square. It was too early in the evening for the nearly naked ladies whose blown-up pictures decorated the front of the joint to be in action. I got out of the cab and headed for the silver door between the girls. Steve stepped out of it to meet me. He drew me to one side.

"Connie, the guy's inside." "What guy?" "The one we're looking for." "But, Steve, how do you know?" "He was down at Rhinebeck Place..." "You've been there already?" "Sure, and he was hanging around number 11. Then he got into the yard behind it from Greenwich Street, but something scared him away..." "The cops," I said. "There's a cop on duty there." "Oh," Steve said. "And anyway, he isn't the one I phoned you about. My guy was there, too. And the cops scared him away."

"What?" "That's a real popular spot, Anita's apartment." "Tell me about your guy." I told him about my guy, and I said, "Now you tell me about your guy." "I've told you all I know. Except that I followed him here... he's here now." "We've got to know more." "Yes, Connie, I may be prejudiced, but I think he'd just love to tell you all about himself." "Oh? Oh, yes." I had forgotten I was a blonde. I got out my lipstick. "Describe him for me." "He's at the bar... sitting right in front of the cash register."

"Don't go far away, Steve." "Don't worry about that." I waltzed into the Feather Club, spotted the cash register and climbed up on a stool two, down from the man in front of it. The bartender accosted me. I ordered a sherry. I looked in the mirror at Steve's man. He was looking at a lousy redhead at the far end of the bar. I had competition. My first impression of the man was that he was proud of himself. He liked his looks, the cut of his clothes, the debonaire way he smoked his king sized, filter tipped cigarette. Actually, he was handsome after a rather blatant fashion. I couldn't tell how tall he was, but he was slender, dark, and he had big brown eyes, bedroom eyes, a bedroom with a Hollywood sized bed in it. It was with surprise that I noted he did not have a mustache. He definitely gave the initial impression of having a well-waxed, Adolphe Menjou type mustache. He turned his sleek head and caught me examining him. I let my eyes linger admiringly on his face a moment. I almost smiled at him, but not quite. I let him know that I, while not totally inaccessible, would be a challenge to his allure. Then I dropped my eyes. I took a dainty sip of my sherry. I sneaked a glance at the red-haired woman. She was glaring at me, and I knew that I was in.
