

Fifth Annual
Women's Studies
Student Symposium
March 26, 2008

CALL FOR PAPERS

On Wednesday, March 26 the Women's Studies Program will host its fifth annual student research symposium, featuring moderated sessions of scholarly and creative presentations by Rhodes students. As always, this event will showcase the exciting work our undergraduates are doing on gender-related issues across disciplines.

Deadline: Monday, February 25

One-page typed abstracts should briefly describe the proposed topic and explain how it relates to the field of gender studies. They should also include the student's name, contact information, and a working title. Proposals for poster sessions, creative exhibits and performances are also welcome.

Papers should be between 7-10 pages for a 15-minute presentation and should engage in gender analysis. Students need not be Women's Studies minors to participate. Please submit abstracts to Prof. Leslie Petty (English, pettyl@rhodes.edu) or Prof. Judith Haas (Director of Women's Studies, haasj@rhodes.edu)
