Council to Discuss Their Constitution

The Student Council voted Tuesday night to begin consideration on changing the present constitution of the Council.

Judy Simono asked that the changes be made in it, and members decided that considerations would be made after they had had time to study the constitution in its present form.

Also in the Council's Tuesday meeting, Cyril Hollingsworth appointed two committees, the Inter-City Council Committee and the Speakers Committee. Dan Daniels and Roger Hart were appointed chairmen of the two committees respectively.

Daniels' committee will consider the possibility of forming an Inter-City Council with representatives from the Memphis area colleges and universities. The Speakers Committee will be responsible for finding recommendations and ideas for future speakers on the Southwestern campus.

PLANNING FOR NEXT WEEK'S Political Emphasis Week are members of the Young Republicans from left, Myrna Schaap, Vivienne Guest, and Butch Saunders. Both the YR's and Young Democrats will play leading roles in the week's activities which include speakers from the campus as well as from Memphis.

Campus Coeds to Contend For Best Dressed Award

By SHARON MCKEEHAN

Twelve of the best dressed girls on campus will compete for the title of Southwestern's "Best Dressed Girl" during the month of February in 1964.

The Sou'wester, in cooperation with Glamour Magazine, will sponsor the event for the second year to select one representative from Southwestern to enter in Glamour's national contest to choose the ten best dressed girls in America.

Each sorority and the Independent Women will choose two girls to enter in the contest. Tentatively there will be two on-campus judges and two off-campus judges who will decide the winner.

The campus contest winner will be photographed in a day-time campus outfit, an off-campus day-time outfit, and an evening dress. Photos will be sent to Glamour for judging in the national contest.

If the Southwestern winner is chosen as one of the ten finalists, she will fly to New York next spring where she will be photographed by Glamour for a summer issue featuring the best-dressed coeds, and will spend a week "on the town" as a guest of Glamour.

Criteria for judging by both Southwestern and Glamour include good figure and posture, good grooming, proper use of make-up, clear understanding of fashion type, imagination in managing a clothes budget, a workable wardrobe plan, a suitable campus look, individually in the use of colors and accessories, an appropriate look for off-campus occasions, and poise.

President's Council Will Meet Monday

Southwestern's President's Council will hear about the physics department's solar expedition and get "A Student's View of Southwestern" Monday night at their winter banquet in the Burrow Refectory at 6 p.m.

Dr. Jack Taylor, head of the physics department, will tell the group about Southwestern's exploits in Alaska during the solar eclipse this summer.

Three students will speak to the Council on the different phases of Southwestern life. David Bird will talk on athletics, K. C. Ptomey on the honor system and Cyril Hollingsworth on the academic system.

The Madrigal Singers will provide entertainment for the group.

Stylus to Publish Twice This Year

Harvey Goldner, editor of Stylus, announced this week that due to an almost unprecedented literary Renaissance on this campus, Stylus is going to put out two issues this year—one at the end of this semester and one in the spring.

All poems, prose, etc. for the first issue should be turned in to Harvey Goldner, Johnny McQuiston, or Jack Deaver by the Christmas holidays so that they can be properly edited and illustrated.

Young Democrats, GOP's Ready for Confrontation

Political Emphasis Week, sponsored by the Young Democrats, Young Republicans and Student Council, will begin Monday and last through Friday, with chapel speakers, films, discussions, displays and a campus-wide political poll on the agenda.

In explaining the purpose of PEW, Student Council President Cyril Hollingsworth stated that "the student council feels it is important that the student body consider politics and political parties in general. Also, we hope that this week will strengthen the Young Democrats and Young Republicans on our campus, because we think national issues are best raised among students through these channels."

Representatives from the Young Republicans and the Young Democrats will speak on their respective parties in chapel Monday and Tuesday. Vivienne Guest will represent the Young Republicans, and Lee Marshall and Johnny McQuiston will speak for the Young Democrats.

A film, "Where Were You?" will be shown by the Young Republicans Wednesday night at 7 in 101 Science. The film deals with the ways of attaining political office.

Two Memphis politicians of each party will lead a discussion and answer questions from the floor at a seminar in the AEC, 7:30 Wednesday night. Cyril Hollingsworth will moderate.

A student political poll will be held in the east end of Palmer from 9 to 3 Thursday. The questions on the poll appeared elsewhere in the Sou'wester.

Display of "party propoganda" will be seen in the library during the entire week.

Rush Registration Is December 12-13

All men students interested in pledging a fraternity may register for rush, the Interfraternity Council announced today. Registration will be held Wednesday, December 11, until noon Thursday, December 12.

Rushees may see C. Hendricks, Lester Goodin, or Tommy Brooks and pay the two dollar rush fee.

Fraternities will pledge Friday, December 13. All men students who did not go out for formal rush or who did not accept bids during formal rush are eligible.

Madrigal Singers Prepare For Christmas Programs

The Madrigal Singers will usher in the Christmas season by presenting a program of various Christmas songs in chapel December 17.

Southwestern students will also be able to hear the a capella group in chapel Wednesday, December 18 and Sunday, December 15, when they will sing Christmas carols about 11 p.m. at the dormitories.

Tuesday selections of the Madrigals, who are under the direction of Tommy Vanden Bosch, include "An Infant Has Come," "Hodie, Christus Natus Est," "The Holly and the Ivy," "We Wish You a Merry Christmas," "Oh Magnum Mysterium," "The Wassail Song," and "Lo How a Rose Ere Blooming."

The Madrigal Singers' record album, which includes most of the above selections, will again be sold for $4. John Mehrling, Madrigals business manager announced. Girls should contact Lou Banks Fulton or Anne Maclin, and boys should see Harvey Caughey to purchase their albums.

The Madrigals will spread Christmas cheer not only at Southwestern, but throughout the community. On Sunday they will be the program at Second Presbyterian Church. They will sing at the Southwestern Presidents' Council meeting Monday.

The busy group will also sing at Calvary Episcopal Church on Tuesday and at Idlewild Presbyterian Church next Friday.

Committee Panel To Visit Humes

The High School Visitation Committee has received three more replies to its letters sent out offering college information in the form of panel discussions for high school students.

Susan Smith, chairman of the committee, said that Humes High had replied "yes" to the letter, and the other two schools had replied negatively. It was mentioned that there has been little result or enthusiasm for this project because many high schools have their own college emphasis programs.

The committee will present a panel discussion to the Humes High students next week.

GETTING INTO THE SPIRIT of the season are, from left, Dana Delugach, Ed Sneed, Peggy Frye, and Jimmy Miller. The Christmas Carols they are listening to will be heard many times over before the entire campus heads home for two weeks of study at Christmastide.

★ Letters to the Editor

CURRICULUM COMMITTEE

Dear Mr. Milner,

In reading your letter in the last issue of the Sou'wester concerning the Student Council curriculum committee, I find it difficult to separate your criticisms of the committee from the diatribe against "self-perpetuating Honor Councils" and "liberal student governments" which envelops them. But in endeavoring to do so, I will disregard the framework in which they are set as simply your customary mode of expression.

First I might insert that this committee has not at any time in the past and will not in the future consider any aspect of the Honor System here at Southwestern. Though you had no way of knowing this, the statement in the Sou'wester to the effect that the committee would consider the Honor System was a misprint of what should have been honors program.

Secondly in the latter part of the letter you gave voice to the belief that Southwestern students are apathetic. In this I would tend to agree with you, though not to the extent of which you seem convinced. In such a context the selection of committee members was made, not with the idea of weighing it with liberals, but rather with the idea of getting those students who were most interested in this area and who could at the same time contribute to the committee. Without going into an evaluation of each member's beliefs and thoughts on various matters I would say that this committee is composed of a representative cross-section of the student body in so far as it is possible to obtain such a diversification.

Finally I would ask you to bear in mind that the committee is in no sense legislative. Its purpose is to conduct a thorough study of the various aspects of the college's educational program chiefly by means of comparison with other colleges and universities. Whatever results it achieves will be presented both to the Student Council and to the student body.

ANTI-MISSISSIPPI POLEMIC

I have observed with delight the concern shown by some of my fellow students over the educational standards of Southwestern, which will be hurt if Negroes are admitted. It is good that there should be this concern. I would like, however, to call to the attention of the college community one glaring problem which has heretofore been unrecognized and which needs to be examined—the problem of Mississippians.

Allow me to say that I have nothing against Mississippians per se; some of my best friends are Mississippians. But the fact remains that Mississippians are inferior. This can be demonstrated scientifically.

The schools in Mississippi are admitted to be the worst in the nation. It is quite plain that it is not due to any lack of money—there is plenty of money in Mississippi. Witness: the pirating of industry from her sister states by the building of plants with state and local governmental money (Socialism!). It is instead, the innate inferiority of Mississippians themselves which causes their schools to be so poor. Even if Mississippians wanted their schools to be better it would not be possible, for the fact remains that the material with which the Mississippi Educational System works is inferior.

One sign of intelligence in men is a sense of history. Even a small child learns after putting his hand in the fire not to do it again. The Mississippians do not have this sense of history. They have evidently forgotten the debacle of 1861-65. Witness: Ole Miss last fall.

Another proof of the inferiority of Mississippians is that if it were not for the altruism of the other 49 states Mississippi would still be mosquito infested swamps and beast filled pine barren hills. Witness: the only worthwhile capital improvements in Mississippi are the federal highways and federal built levees.

As it has been plainly pointed out the Mississippians are an inferior people. Steps, therefore, should be taken to preserve Southwestern's scholastic standing by excluding Mississippians. Anyway, would you want your sister to marry a Mississippian?

USNSA Disaffiliations Increase As 'Prestige' Schools Withdraw

Philadelphia (CPS)—The United States National Student Association (USNSA) has suffered a rash of disaffiliations recently, which, according to National Affairs Vice-President Joel Sharkey "are common in the fall, when each school is faced with the NSA membership dues."

The latest addition to the list of disaffiliations is the Senior Advisory Board of Yale University which voted Nov. 13 to end Yale's affiliation with USNSA.

Commenting on the disaffiliation of Yale and Dartmouth, both Ivy League schools, Sharkey said that the withdrawal of the two "prestige" colleges was not a serious blow to the prestige of USNSA.

Sharkey was further critical of the actions of the two schools, "If they are unhappy with present policies of NSA, they are certainly not going to accomplish anything by withdrawing. If the more conservative schools choose to disaffiliate because of disagreement on political issues, the result of their action can only be the further liberalization of USNSA policies."

At Ohio State University, USNSA lost a referendum to bring Ohio back into the association by a vote of 3065 to 1447. Ohio disaffiliated early last year. This year's student leaders were working to get Ohio back but lost in the vote last Wednesday.

Earlier in the month, Antioch College Community Council voted to withdraw from USNSA. One of the main reasons for the Antioch vote was the failure of the Antioch delegation to obtain individual memberships rather than student government membership as now exists.

At the time of the Antioch attempt, during the annual USNSA Congress, delegates from Antioch stated that the school would probably withdraw if the reform was not passed. It did not pass and the association was expecting the Antioch disaffiliation.

Vanderbilt University's student senate voted in late October to disaffiliate from USNSA. Bob Brame, sponsor of the move, said that USNSA is "ignoring its watchword of academic freedom and democratic processes."

USNSA is a confederation of over 350 student governments that claims to be the most representative group in the United States. As a national union of students, it is recognized by over 80 other national unions that participate in the International Student Conference.

Better 'In' Than Red

By Jeff Greenfield, Editor, The Daily Cardinal, University of Wisconsin

Every year J. Edgar Hoover troops grandly up to Capitol Hill to pick the pockets of the American taxpayer; and every year the FBI's deity details the machinations of the internal Communist campus conspiracy, spreading its tentacles throughout the Halls of Academe from Harvard to Berkeley.

This is, of course, absolute nonsense. The Communists don't stand a chance of winning over college students. And the reason for this failure is obvious—they dress badly.

It is a universal truth that college youth's interest in an issue varies inversely with the degree of intelligence required to understand that issue. Thus, an argument over the best way to open a beer can will arouse infinitely more interest than will, say, a dispute over the implications of the agricultural tariff levels of the European Common Market.

A movement must, therefore, cultivate its superficial appeal—otherwise it is doomed. The college audience demands of proselytizers not a better world, but a cooler world; not a chance for self-fulfillment, but a chance to be sophisticated; not a land of milk and honey, but a land of properly mixed martinis.

The Communists are completely lacking in any such appeal. When was the last time you saw a Red spinning around town in an Avanti or an XK-E? Or smoking Gauloises? Or dres-

When Gus Hall addressed a packed Union Theater audience, he was doomed to defeat with baggy pants, mis-matched shoes, and a wide tie. This was no threat; this was obviously a Loser, totally divorced from his environment. Whatever revolutionary mystique there was about the American Communists collapsed as soon as its leader made his appearance.

Daniel Rubin, the Party's youth leader (who ought to know better), had the sheer effrontery to wear what looked like a triple-breasted horror with huge lapels, laughably pleated trousers, and a weave that can only be described as bamboo. No self-respecting college youth would think of attaching himself to a Party sporting such garb.

(These failures may be contrasted with, for example, Malcolm X, a Black Muslim leader who spoke here wearing an immaculately cut ivy-league suit and streamlined tie. It is obvious that this movement is in far greater danger of winning youthful converts; not because it is right, but because it is In).

No, Mr. Hoover, the Red danger is virtually nil, at least on our campuses. When Gus Hall, or Ben Davis, or Herbert Aptheker, is seen whipping down Langdon Street in his T-Bird, attired in a Botany 500 and a Hathaway, then we'll know the putsch is on. Till then, cool it.

USNSA Initiates POLBACK To Aid International Studies

PHILADELPHIA (CPS)—As another of its educational services to member student governments and other student programming organizations on campus, USNSA has announced here that it is initiating the Political Background Project (POLBACK), a new concept that is designed to interest student governments desiring to improve their campus international programs.

According to NSA, the purpose of POLBACK is to provide the American Student with current information, through sets of political background papers to be used in seminars or as background for campus-wide programs.

NSA says that each set of these highly specialized papers is designed to serve as a flexible basis of educational campus projects, the exact form of which will depend on the aims of the programmer.

According to Director Michael Schwartz, graduate of the University of Wisconsin, POLBACK will provide information and analysis ordinarily unobtainable elsewhere, such as material of immediate concern to those students interested in the complicated political problems facing students of foreign nations.

According to Schwartz POLBACK papers include on-the-spot evaluations by USNSA overseas representatives and student delegations, carefully researched papers and materials from the Secretariats of the World Assembly of Youth and the International Student Conference as well as other private and governmental agencies.

In addition, each POLBACK topic is to have a supplementary bibliography, as well as film, pamphlet and speakers' lists.

Any student organization on a member campus of USNSA may request the student government to make POLBACK available to it, Schwartz said.

The organization should make its selection from the latest POLBACK announcement, and when ordering should indicate the specific selection and the quantity desired, he said. It should also indicate the general nature of the program and the way in which the material would be used.

On tour of the U.S.A. is a trio of Viennese folk singers. They will be on campus this Saturday night at 7:30 at the KD lodge.

The city-wide Baptist Student Union is sponsoring the event. There will be no admission charged.

Along with the featured trio, there will be an Indonesian candle dancer and several other international performers.

Meredith Straw Poll Cancelled by Council

Because of the day of mourning proclaimed by President Johnson for the late John F. Kennedy, James Meredith was not invited to speak in Memphis November 25.

In a decision reached at a meeting the night of November 22, the Student Council cancelled the straw vote which was to be held the following day. The straw vote was to have decided whether Meredith would be invited by the Student Council. There are no plans at present to extend another such invitation to Mr. Meredith.

Pat Dickson Is KS Sweetheart

Pat Dickson was announced as Kappa Sigma sweetheart for this year at the Kappa Sig Open House held on November 22. Pat, a KD from Memphis, succeeds Ruthie Black, Chi Omega, as sweetheart.

In addition to her studies as a senior chemistry major, Pat has been active in her sorority as past scholarship and membership chairman; in honoraries as secretary-treasurer of Pi Intersorority and historian of Torch; and in publications as past business manager of the Lynx.

Morris Heins, G.S. and Publicity Chairman of Kappa Sig, said, "We want to express our deep appreciation to outgoing sweetheart Ruthie Black for helping us and doing such a fine job."

Alpha Tau Omega and Delta Delta Delta copped All-Sing trophies in the annual event held November 23.

Sigma Nu and Zeta Tau Alpha were second.

The Independent Men, winners last year, and the Tri-Deltas were invited by Dr. Vernon Taylor, head of the music department, to join the Southwestern Singers in a future TV performance.

SNCC Chairman Sees Civil Rights Split Soon

CHICAGO (CPS) — Chairman John Lewis of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) foresees a near-future split within the civil rights movement between SNCC, CORE and the militant groups and such conservative organizations as the NAACP.

In a CPS interview last week, Lewis discussed several aspects of the civil rights movement and the SNCC position within it.

"All the groups will always be united in purpose and goals," said Lewis. "The split will be over techniques in achieving these goals. Such a split would harm the movement only temporarily, if at all," he added.

Lewis, the senior officer of SNCC, reported that there is a feeling of resentment in the group toward Martin Luther King. He said that SNCC feels Rev. King should remain in the South more and engage in the working activities of the movement rather than going out on so many speaking tours.

Lewis said King is resented for stepping in on several occasions to take credit for leading demonstrations that had in fact been led by others. "He goes in and stirs the people to act," Lewis explained, "and then leaves them alone to face the police. You must stay and work with them."

Lewis nevertheless acknowledged King as a great leader of the people who could be very effective in activities like the voter registration drives. "The people all follow him," he said, "but they are beginning to know who is really doing the work down there."

Lewis agreed with King's statement that unless significant changes are made in the South by next summer there is likely to be widespread violence there.

"This mood was evident in Birmingham," said Lewis, "after the funerals of the children who were killed in church." He went on to say that King's refusal to call for more demonstrations in Southern cities was also resented.

"I think," said Lewis, "that he is afraid they will lead to violence now. However, SNCC doesn't plan on calling demonstrations of its own. They will be concentrating their efforts on voter registration drives in Alabama and Mississippi in the coming year."

Discussing the March on Washington, he agreed with the "Nation" article that called it "a huge irrelevancy."

"It was very respectable and fashionable," Lewis commented, "and everyone went home feeling he had done his part for civil rights. He said that when he and the other leaders met with Kennedy later that day, 'he acted like it was his march, exclaiming about the great turnout.'"

Turning to the civil rights bill, Lewis said that if passed it still won't give any protection to SNCC workers in the South from police brutality. He fears that if the passage of such a watered down version does go through, everyone will be convinced that enough has been done and things can be slowed.

Lewis is disturbed by general apathy among whites and Negroes, both North and South, "especially northern Negro students. It is getting border all the time to keep a non-violent attitude as white brutality continues."

All students interested in study abroad are to meet at 3:30 p.m., Friday, December 13, in the faculty lounge of the Burrow Library, Dean Jameson M. Jones announced today.

Those attending will "have an opportunity to get information and exchange views."

Savings Bond Scheme Hits Southwestern; Postal Authorities Question Its Legality

by HARVEY CAUGHEY

College America's newest get-rich-quick scheme exploded onto Southwestern's campus this week, with dozens of students considering taking part.

The scheme is a chain letter variation which is supposedly legal since the "letters" or lists are not passed through the mails, although postal authorities in several states have termed the scheme as possibly "unlawful."

The scheme works like this: a student buys a list containing the names of eight other people and a $25 U.S. savings bond for $37.50. He gives the bond to the person at the top of the list, and makes two other lists, omitting the name of the receiver of the bond and instead inserting his own name at the bottom.

He then buys two more $25 bonds for $18.75 each. (The bonds are not worth $25 for ten years.) Attaching one bond to each list, he sells the lists to two other people for $37.50 each, thus immediately regaining his original investment. If the chain multiplies without being broken, each participant in the chain will receive bonds worth $6,400 in seven years.

Participants in the scheme claim it is not illegal, and various rumors are rampant that several Memphis lawyers have expressed agreement with this opinion. By federal law chain letters involving money may not be transported by use of the mails. The fact that the lists are passed by hand and not by mail nullifies all possibility of the scheme's illegality, say the proponents.

But a Memphis postal inspector voiced a contrary view Wednesday. "If the mails are used in any part of a scheme such as this," he said, "it is illegal under federal law."

He explained that this included transporting the bonds themselves by way of the mails to the number-one person on the list.

In addition, a similar statute prohibits transporting the lists or the bonds from one state to another.

According to the Associate Collegiate Press, the "bond scheme" has spread, among other places, at various Kansas universities, at Notre Dame and other Indiana colleges, and supposedly is about to mushroom at Wisconsin University. Postal authorities in Valparaiso, Indiana, concurred with Memphis authorities concerning the illegality of mailing the bonds.

A Treasury Department spokesman in Valparaiso, reports ACP, said that such schemes do a distinct disservice to the savings bond program. Southwestern economics professor Lewis Amis said, however, that no real burden is placed on the Treasury by such schemes, primarily because "the chain breaks down before the volume becomes great enough to have an effect."

"Chain letters are like gambling," Mr. Amis continued, "in that money is taken out of one person's pocket and placed in another."

The arguments in favor of the scheme are extremely convincing. All one has to do to "break even" is to find two other people interested in buying in, and there seems to be a great chance of making money. But several facts cannot be ignored.

The first is that money is not created by this scheme. The chain is limited, if by nothing else than the finite number of people in the world. Thus every time one person wins, someone eventually has to lose to counterbalance it.

Secondly, there are various interesting mathematical points concerning this and similar multiplication progressions. Such as: the number of big winners and the volume of their winnings increases proportionately with the number of those who lose or only break even; 510 people must continue the chain from your branch alone if you are to secure maximum profits, a single person breaking the chain can cost you from $25 to $3,200 of your profits, depending on his position relative on the list to you.

Catledge Speaks on 'Thaw' In East-West Confrontation

"Every detail of conflict, trouble, and even joy in this world falls in that pattern," stated Turner Catledge, referring to the "East-West Confrontation." Mr. Catledge, Managing Editor of the New York Times, addressed Student Assembly Wednesday as the sixth speaker in the Free World Issues Series.

Because "there is a thaw of some kind going on," we may expect some changes in world relations. "The threat of war is receding," he said and therefore enemies are getting friendlier. Allies are finding less and less to bind them together.

The confrontation currently is between the United States and Russia, and "so long as the U.S. and Russia have a joint monopoly on nuclear weapons, it will stay this simple. But there are other forces in operation. England and other countries, for instance, want nuclear weapons. No such country," stated Mr. Catledge, "expects to be able to sustain a war; they do, however, want the power of being able to say that they can start one. 'DeGaulle may even want France to become a third power."

"We've had a change of guard," he said with reference to President Johnson. "Mr. Kennedy was an intellectual; Mr. Johnson goes at things rapidly." He "acts with rapid calculation" and is a "very practical politician." Mr. Johnson may be "bolder" in the cold war.

Lauding Kennedy's actions in Cuban crisis, Mr. Catledge stated that he didn't take advantages that Khrushchev would have taken in the same position. Khrushchev, in the Managing Editor's opinion, was thoroughly convinced that we were ready to go to war. And Kennedy's restraint was "very impressive" to the Russian Premier.

Commenting on United States policies, Mr. Catledge "would suggest that we use more intellectuality than we have in the past." "You've got to think in reasonable terms, intelligent terms, ever, ever digging deeper."

Mr. Catledge, who spoke here in 1957 also, is an honorary Southwestern alumnus, having received a Doctor of Humane Letters degree June 5, 1951. He has been with the Times as Managing Editor since 1951.

CPS Newswriter Examines College Construction Bill

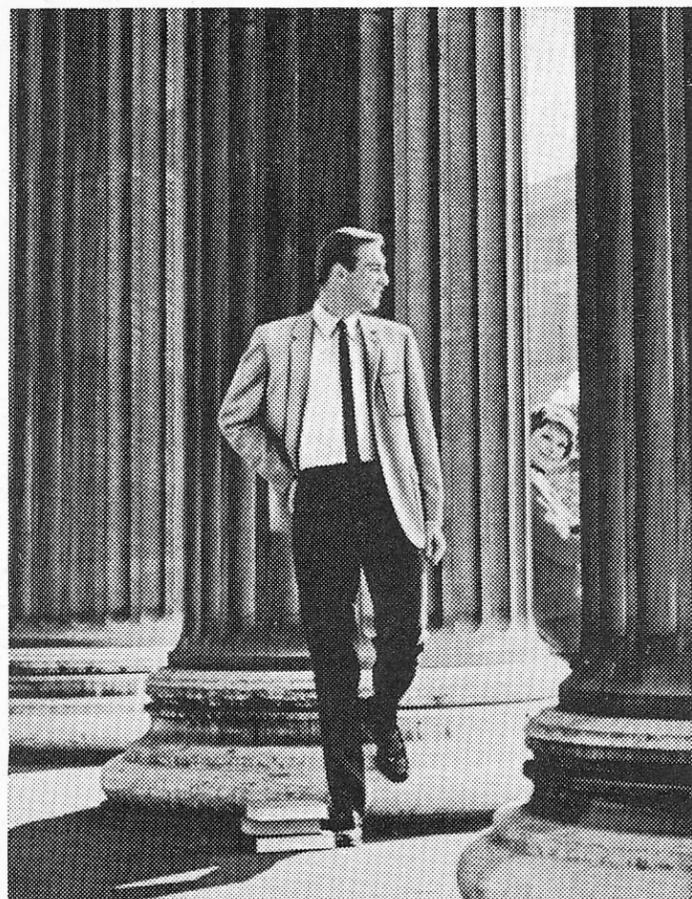

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Like so many other things in Washington, the College Construction Aid Bill awaiting final Senate action is vastly different than what meets the eye.

Superficially, the bill to help build college and university facilities authorizes loan and grants of $1.2 billion. In reality, however, it authorizes $2 billion—$8 million more than its price tag.

Approved by a House-Senate Conference Committee, the bill sailed through the house last week and now awaits the attention of the Senate, which may seriously slow its journey to the White House.

The last line assures the program of reaching about $2 billion in five years unless congress took the unlikely position of killing the program in its fourth year.

The hidden price tag, however, is not as upsetting to the bill's critics as is the "came blanche" of use for federally constructed classrooms.

Lynx Will Face Lambuth In First Home Cage Tilt

Next Tuesday, at 8 p.m., the Lynx basketballers, led by Aubrey Smith, Carl Fisher, and Gary Sharp, will return home for their opener here against Lambuth College of Jackson, Tennessee. The Lambuth Squad last year defeated the Lynx twice, by 99-58 and 86-55 scores, in posting a 13-10 won-lost record.

Coach Duckworth is hopeful that the Lynx can overcome last year's 30-and-40-point deficits, but sees a close game all the way because of returning Lambuth talent.

The athletic department urged students to attend the game, using their Student Activity Books to get in free. Those forgetting their books may see the game for a 50c admission charge, small by college standards.

In the SW-sponsored Dixie Tournament, the Lynx, last year's champions, will open at 9:00 next Friday night against the Millsaps Majors, who are led by big (6'8") Fred Rendfrey and high scoring 5'6" guard Phil Converse.

The preliminary game that night, at 7 p.m., will feature Little Rock University vs. Lambuth, in what is expected to be a high-scoring contest, as both teams are capable of hitting the bucket with amazing accuracy.

The opening night winners will be paired off for the championship at 9 p.m. Saturday, with the consolation game starting at 7 p.m.

Coach Maybry would like to announce that over the Thanksgiving holiday the basketball floor was refinished, and is ready for the upcoming season. Coach Maybry requests that students please do not walk, or play, on the court with street shoes.

Last year, the Lynx' Aubrey Smith tied the Dixie Tournament scoring record in leading the Lynx by the Millsaps Majors and Little Rock University to the title. He has already scored 29 points in a single game this year and is expected to continue his high-scoring spree.

Trophies will be awarded the first, second, and third place winners, with the last team receiving the game ball as a prize. An All-Tournament Team will also be selected, as well as a Most Valuable Player.

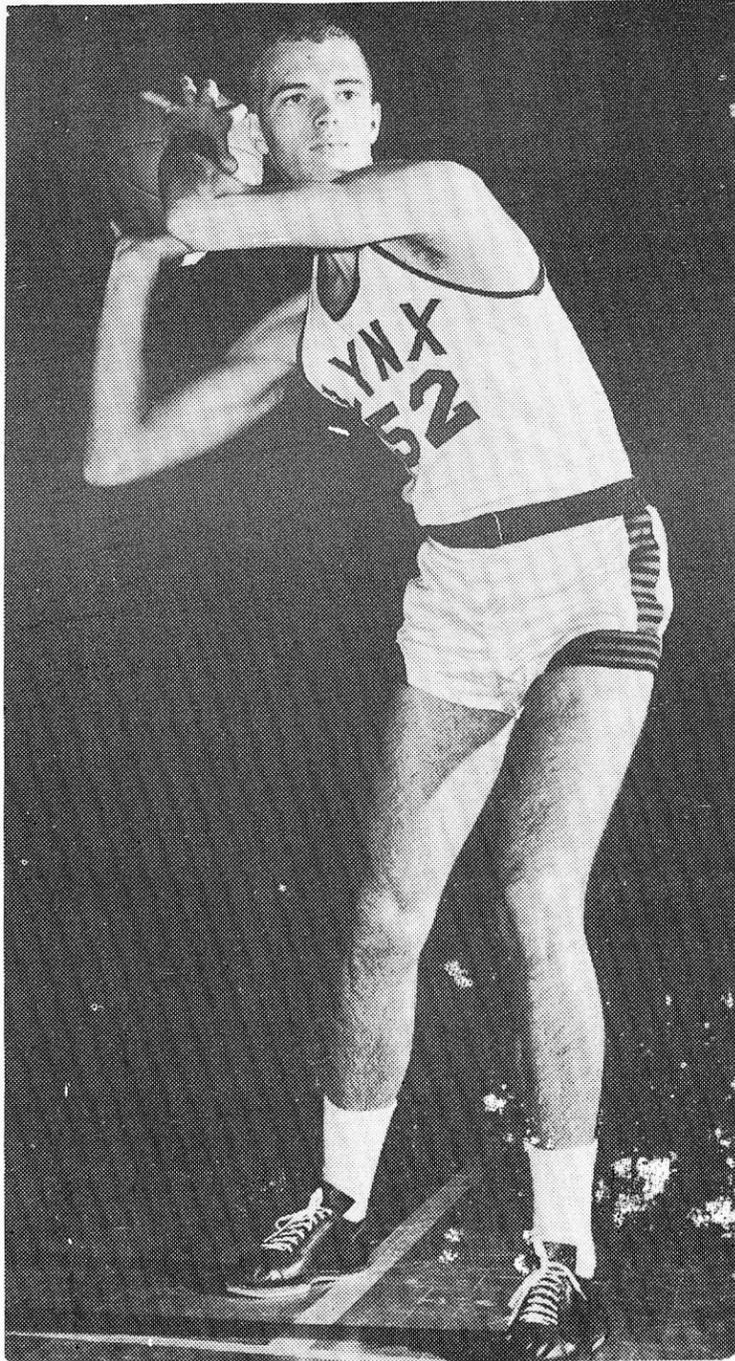

Fall Sports Banquets To Begin December 11

The cross country banquet will be held on December 11.

Next year's captain will be announced, and letter sweaters will be awarded. Also the most valuable player will receive an award.

The banquet for the 1963 Southwestern football team will be held on January 15.

George "Smokey" Russell, an alumnus, ex-football player, and Memphis insurance executive, will be the guest speaker. Professor Jack D. Farris will be the Master-of-Ceremonies. Lettermen will be awarded their letter sweaters.

LYNX CO-CAPTAIN AUBREY SMITH scored 29 points in one of the two losses suffered by the team in the Citrus Tourney this week. Auburn is expected to lead the Lynx to a much improved showing this season if the team can keep up their scoring pace of the first two games. Smith led the team in scoring last year and was second in rebounding.

INTRAMURAL VOLLEYBALL

Sigma Nu Takes Over Lead In Both Leagues With Wins

Sigma Nu scored victories in both "A" and "B" leagues last night to give them undisputed possession of first place in both circuits.

The "A" team Snakes downed the previously undefeated Kappa Sigs, and in the "B" league the same fate befell ATO, victors in their first two outings.

Tonight, battles for second place highlight action. In the "A" league KA and ATO, both of whom have lost only one game, clash in the feature. The tied-for-second-place Kappa Sigs play twice-defeated but fast-improving SAE.

In the "B" circuit Kappa Sigma and ATO will battle for second place. Both have lost only to Sigma Nu. In other games the "A" league Sigma Nu's meet the Independents and the "B" league Snakes vie with PiKA. Also, the KA's and GDI's play a "B" league tilt.

ATO appears to be the only serious threat left for the Snakes in the "A" league. Their only loss was to Kappa Sigma Wednesday, and they could throw the race into a three-way tie by upsetting Sigma Nu next Tuesday. The KA's have lost only to Kappa Sigma, but thus far have encountered no other tough opposition.

Sigma Nu's two victories in the "B" league were over what figured to be their toughest opponents. SAE, who lost its opener to ATO, but came back strong against KA and PiKA, may improve enough by next Thursday to upset the Snakes in their meeting.

Cagers Average 94.5 Points But Lose Twice in Florida

The Lynx basketballers returned home Wednesday night after a disappointing but not completely unhappy road trip to Florida and the Citrus Tournament.

In their first game of the season, against highly-touted Florida Southern, the Lynx, led by Carl Fisher, Gary Sharp and Ed Taylor, were ten points behind with three minutes left before Coach Duckworth decided to gamble on the zone press against the taller opponents. The Lynx' inexperience hurt them, as they fell farther behind, losing by a marathon 113-90 score.

The next night, against a fine Rollins, Florida, squad, the Lynx, led by Aubrey Smith, Jack Tilton and Sharp, were tied at 93-93 at the end of regulation play. Then, with three seconds left in the overtime, a Rollins guard broke a 99-99 tie with a bucket, and the Lynx fell in a real heartbreaker.

The scoring average for the Lynx was 94.5 per game, and for the opposition, 106 per game. The Lynx' Gary Sharp, a freshman, was selected as an All-Tournament guard.

Seldom in the past years has there been the outlook of a high-scoring Lynx squad, and it seems that the Lynx fans are in for a real treat when the team returns home.

Coach Duckworth has selected his "Fighting Lynx" for the first two games. Against Florida Southern—Offense, Carl Fisher; Defense, Gary Sharp. Against Rollins — Offense, Aubrey Smith; Defense, Gary Sharp.

Coach Duckworth also said that due to Jack Tilton's outstanding contribution in the Rollins game, he may be moved up to starting forward, with 6'2" Carl Fisher going to guard to lend an experienced hand there.

Zumstein Is Tops In Cross-Country

Ronnie Zumstein and Sigma Alpha Epsilon won top honors yesterday in the intramural cross-country meet.

Zumstein, running for SAE, set a new record of 12:09, for the two mile run, edging out Sigma Nu Vern McCarty with a burst of speed in the last fifty-yards.

The Sigma Alphas and the Snakes were the only two fraternities that had enough men finishing to count for scoring. SAE came out on top thirty-three points to thirty-five points for SN. Low score wins in cross-country meets.

The first five finishers were Zumstein, McCarty (12:11), SAE's Sandy Myatt (12:32), SAE's Bruce Bourland (12:35), and Kappa Sigma's Ronnie Davis (12:44).

The times of the first eight finishers this year proved to be better, than the winning time of last year's meet (13:33). McCarty, Bourland and Zumstein were also in the top five finishers last year.

Bert Chafin Breaks CAC Passing Marks

Although the Lynx failed to post a CAC football win in this past season, individual standouts left their marks on the final statistics.

Quarterback Bert Chafin, a sophomore who will be back next year, led the conference in passing. He completed 58 of 120 attempts for 895 yards and eight touchdowns, and a passing percentage of .483.

Chafin's strong right arm broke three conference records in passing formerly held by M. L. Agnew of Sewanee. In total offense Chafin was second with a total of 1,095 yards gained.

Senior fullback Randy Kyle was third in rushing among the conference backs. On 81 carries Kyle picked up 433 yards for an average of 5.3 yards per carry.

Halfbacks Bill Harwood and Scott Halford finished fourth and sixth respectively among the pass receivers. Harwood had 16 receptions for 272 yards and one touchdown. Halford caught 12 for 131 yards. Harwood was fifth in punting, kicking 28 times for 920 yards and a 32.9 average.

At the present time the Lynx are working in a weight program. Spring practice will probably begin in February.
