by Dr. Roper and Dr. Patterson, and will cover the cultures of India, China and Japan, primarily through literature, philosophy, art, religion and history. The course is rather than prospective oriental specialists.

Dr. Patterson sees the addition of the course to the Southwestern curriculum as part of the trend by colleges who have increased their offerings in oriental studies because "their graduates are living in a world, rather than a national or even Western culture."

The next step, according to Dr. Patterson would be the addition of an oriental language, probably Mandarin Chinese, to the curriculum. In lieu of the oriental course being offered next year, a one hour tutorial on the Chinese language will be taught concurrently by Dr. Patterson.

Protest Mullifies Results Of Council Rep. Election

A protest filed in regard to the Senior Class Representative election was upheld by the Elections Commission, nullifying the results of Wednesday's election and causing a new run-off election to be held Monday.

which voting will be preferential. This procedure was followed in the sophomore class representatives Junior Class, where nine candidates from a field of seven. Other candiran for Student Council Representative and two were eliminated in Wednesday's election.

But in the senior class, with only eight candidates running, the Elections Commission decided to bypass the rule in order to save holding an election simply to eliminate the eighth candidate. When a protest was lodged, however, the Commission had no choice but to uphold the Code.

Lee Brown, Liz Currie and Eleanor Lawrence had been proclaimed the victors in the Senior Representative race. Other candidates were Chris Drago, Sue Hearn, Frank Luton, Lee Marshall and Roy Selvidge

'Blood, Toil, Tears and Sweat

All the ballots have been counted and elections are over for another year. The Student Council stands almost completed, and at the moment it seems that the election fervor has carried over, and that many candidates are really trying to live up to all their campaign

But so far it's been relatively easy for Council members to retain their enthusiasm. So far they haven't met with the setbacks that can make an organization run out of gas. They haven't run up against the brick walls of tradition or the administration. They haven't tried to push into action students who feel they have too much to do already-who don't care what the Council does, or use it for a convenient scapegoat for all the evils that plague the school. And they haven't spent hours of time working on their programs or projects when Eight Weeks' Tests were awaiting them the next day.

Now that they are on the inside, they see everything from a different perspective. They may realize that some of their proposed programs are impossible, or at least so difficult that putting them into action takes many times the work that they had planned on. They soon realize that now they are part of that Student Council "machine" which carries the campus around in its hip pocket and cares so little about the interests of the average stu-

Realizations and setbacks such as these are enough to slow the momentum of any wouldbe go-getter. But if the Student Council is even to justify its existence it must not be stopped by all the monkey wrenches that lie in its path. Many Council members, if they do a good job, are in for harder work than they ever dreamed they would do when they first offered their names for consideration. It is up to them to put however much effort is required into fulfilling the duties of their new office. If they fail to at least partially overcome all of the seemingly insurmountable obstacles in their path, they have failed in their duty to the Student Council, to the students, and to the college.

Admissions Policy Change Arouses Little Comment Among Students, Others

The Southwestern Board of Directors' decision to consider all applications without regard to race met with surprising lack of excitement from either students, alumni or parents.

Student opinion was characterized by a mere acceptance of fact which was neither exuberant nor grudging. President Rhodes reported receiv-The lecture, at 8 p.m. in the Adult | ing "fewer than expected" unfavorable replies to the decision from alumni and parents.

Rhodes added that high admissions standards and tuition fees would still make it difficult for Negroes to enroll.

The Admissions Board reported that although there had been several inquiries by Negroes concerning admissions policy, prior to the Director's decision, only one application from a Negro has been received in recent years.

A special committee of the Board made a detailed study of admissions policy and filed a report at its Spring meeting, along with a resolution to admit all qualified students regardless of race. The report included results of a questionnaire sent to 15 Southern colleges similar to Southwestern to determine response of their faculty, students, parents and alumni. A number of Southwestern professors and students also were queried. In all cases, the report concluded, the reactions were far more favorable than unfavorable.

David Watts Wins Space Filler' Title

David Watts, whose name appeared in 16 news articles and whose picture appeared four times in the Sou'wester, was elected 'Space Filler of the Year' April 6 by the Sou'wester editorial board.

Watts is most famous for his vork on the Student Council. As over the Red and Black Conventions, and earlier in the year he became widely known because of his proposals, one to end hazing and another to amend the legislative process of the Student Council Constitution. His minor accomplishments include being elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and Phi Beta Kappa, and receiving the first Root-Tilden Law Scholarship ever given to a Southwestern student.

Although elected in time for the April Fool Issue, this year's "Space Filler" was not announced then because of lack of space in the paper.

In addition to his ability to get his name and picture in the paper, Watts was selected for this honor because this story (six inches) just fills the space left over in this column, and because whenever his name appears in the paper his mother send copies of the Sou'wester to friends and relatives all over the country.

HOW TO SEE EUROPE FOR ONLY $300 A DAY: NO. 1

Summer vacation is just around the corner, and naturally all of you are going to Europe. Perhaps I can offer a handy tip or two. (I must confess that I myself have never been to Europe, but I do have a French poodle and a German shepherd, so I am not entirely unqualified.)

First let me say that no trip to Europe is complete without a visit to England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Lichtenstein, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Russia, Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania, Crete, Sardinia, Sicily, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Lapland, and Andorra.

Let us take up these countries in order. First, England.

The capital of England is London-or Liverpool, as it is sometimes called. There are many interesting things to see in London-chiefly the changing of the guards. The guards are changed daily. The old ones are thrown away.

Another "must" while in London is a visit to the palace of the Duke of Marlborough. Marlborough is spelled Marlborough, but pronounced Marlboro. English spelling is very quaint, but terribly disorganized. The late George Bernard Shaw, author of Little Women, fought all his life to simplify English spelling. They tell a story about Shaw once asking a friend, "What does g-h-o-t-i spell?"

The friend pondered a bit and replied, "Goatee."

Shaw sniggered. "Pshaw," said Shaw. "G-h-o-t-i does not spell goatee. It spells fish."

"How is that?" said the friend.

Shaw answered, "Gh as in enough, o as in women, ti as in motion. Put them all together, you get fish."

This was very clever of Shaw when you consider that he was vegetarian. And a good thing he was. As Disraeli once remarked to Guy Fawkes, "If Shaw were not a vegetarian, no lamb chop in London would be safe."

But I digress. We were speaking of the palace of the Duke of Marlborough—or Marlboro, as it is called in the United States. It is called Marlboro by every smoker who enjoys a fine, rich breed of tobaccos, who appreciates a pure white filter, who likes a soft pack that is really soft, a Flip-Top box that really flips. Be sure you are well supplied with Marlboros when you make your trip abroad. After a long, tiring day of sightseeing there is nothing so welcome as a good flavorful Marlboro and a footbath with hot Epsom salts.

Epsom salts can be obtained in England at Epsom Downs. Kensington salts can be obtained at Kensington Gardens, Albert salts can be obtained at Albert Hall, Hyde salts can be obtained at Hyde Park, and the crown jewels can be obtained at the Tower of London.

The guards at the Tower of London are called Beefeaters because they are always beefing about what they get to eat. This is also known as "cricket" or "petrol."

Well, I guess that about covers England. In next week's column we will visit the Land of the Midnight Sun-France.

Wherever you may roam in Europe and in all fifty states of the Union, you'll find Marlboro ever-present and ever-pleasant-filter, flavor, pack or box.

Cindermen Capture First Union Wallops In SW Invitational Meet

In the hard, see-saw battle the Lynx were in third place after the morning's field events. Freshman Buddy Ratcliff was the top contributor with a first place broad jump of twenty-two feet. Along with Buddy, Russ Didelot, Tod Eustis, and Randy Kyle added to
