Danforth Graduate Awards Available

Dr. Lawrence Kinney has announced the Danforth Graduate Fellowships. The Danforth foundation is a family trust fund established in 1927 by Mr. and Mrs. William Danforth. The present program wasn't inaugurated until 1951. The purpose of the fellowships is "to encourage the education of young people particularly in cultural and spiritual aspects."

Appointment is made annually to fifty men preparing for higher education who, at the time of applying have had no graduate study. A fellow, however, may hold other fellowships. Anyone holding two appointments becomes a Danforth Fellow without stipend until the other appointment lapses.

Three Southwestern Men

Men interested in natural and biological sciences and the social sciences are particularly encouraged to apply. Men interested in other fields may also apply. Southwestern has had three appointees, Fred Link, Wayne Todd, and David Alexander. Todd and Alexander are

Higgason Awarded Little All-America

Jimmy Higgason has been awarded an honorable mention on the Little All-America football team. He is the first Southwestern player since Gaylan Smith to make this mythical team.

Higgason, a sophomore, made several long runs this year in helping the Lynx attain their best record since before the war. Last year he made that memorable 100-yard run that beat Hendrix for the only win of the season.

Choir and Orchestra Give Vesper Service

The Southwestern Singers will give their annual Christmas program Sunday afternoon, December 12. The vesper service will be held at 5:00 at Evergreen Church. The Choir will sing the Christmas Oratorio by J. S. Bach, under the direction of Dr. Burnet C. Tuthill. This oratorio is for orchestra, chorus, and soloists. The soloists will be Bobbie Thomas, Jean McFarland, William Akins, Joe Rhodes, and Billy John Woods.

St. Louis Critics Praise Singers

by Diana Warren

"Meet Me In St. Louie" was the cry of 80 Southwestern Singers as they boarded two Greyhound buses Thursday, December 2, at 1:30 p.m. As usual, Dr. Wolf was on hand with his "ever-ready" camera. Shouts of gladness rang from the buses as the singers left the Southwestern campus to sing two performances with the St. Louis Symphony under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann.

"Oh, panic, I left my tux at home; I brought everything that goes with it except the coat and pants!" So, when the greyhounds needed a rest a telephone call was placed to "Mother!" by (guess who) — Jack Funkhouser, of all people.

At 5 o'clock we arrived at the First Presbyterian Church in Caruthersville, Missouri, where we were served a delicious dinner by the women of the church. Our hostess was Mrs. Jackie Coker Blanton, a 1954 graduate of Southwestern. After dinner we had a good ole fashioned hymn sing around the piano.

At the performance we sang "Requiem" by Gabriel Faure, "Swing Low," "Balm In Gilead," "O Sacred Head," and the "Alma Mater." Afterwards the young people of the church entertained us with ping-pong, records, and refreshments. We then disbanded for a short rest in the home to which we had been assigned.

Sooie Pig

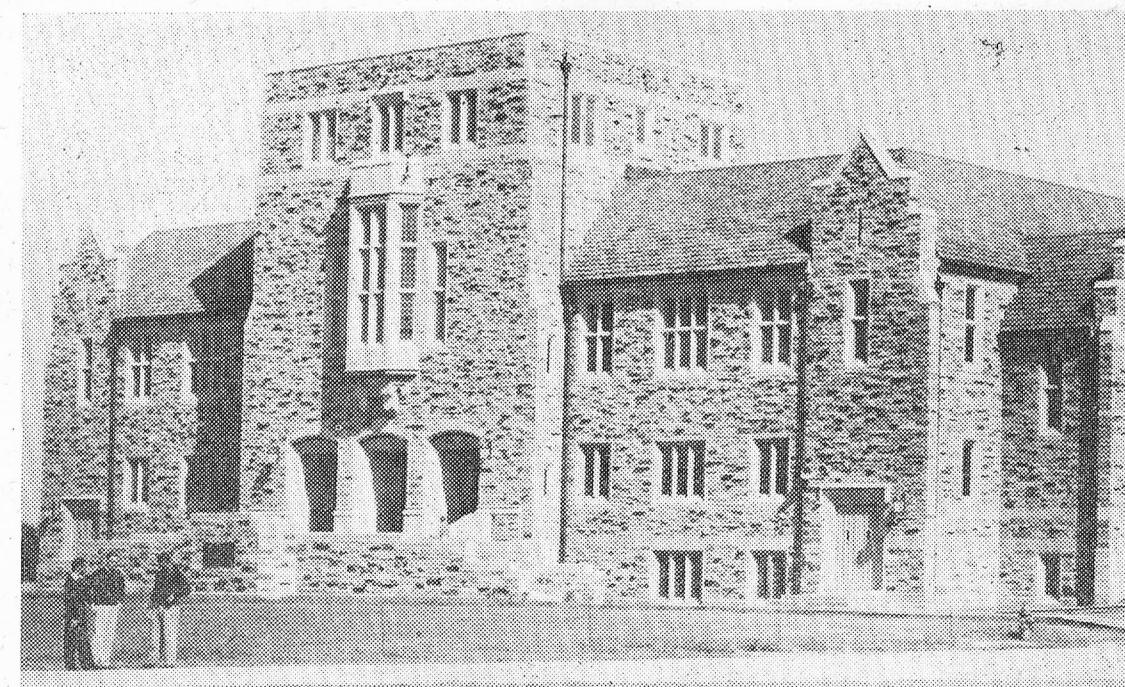

The dogs, greyhounds that is, were up before the birdies Friday morning, for at 6:00 a.m. we were on the road again. Protests were heard from the "sleepy heads," but the "wide awakes" got the upper hand, so singing and "parlor" games prevailed 'til the journey's end. You might have wondered about some people if you had caught a glimpse of the back seat, but really it was only "Mama Tut"

One of the show places of the Campus, the Mallory Gymnasium will have its formal dedication tonight. This beautiful structure, made possible by friends of Major William Neely

Mallory, will long be a prized possession of students of Southwestern. Although the gym has been in use since this September, the formal dedication will see Sewanee vs. Davidson and Southwestern vs. Ole Miss.

Mallory Memorial Gymnasium To Be Dedicated Tonight

Facilities Are "The Finest In This Country"

The new gymnasium is a source of pride, not only to old students, but to new students as well. To upperclassmen, however, the new athletic plant, with its many facilities and up-to-date equipment, means the realization of a dream. These students remember the era of "The Barn," a "temporary" structure that served as athletic fieldhouse for Southwestern from 1925 through last year.

The Nation's Finest

"There may be larger gymnasiums in the country, but certainly no finer," says Southwestern president Peyton Rhodes. "Every piece of equipment necessary to an athletic department either has been installed or is planned for."

The new gym is located in an ideal position. In its immediate vicinity are two baseball diamonds, six tennis courts, and the football practice field. Only a short distance away are the football field and cinder track.

Worth A Million

When fully completed, the new gym will have cost over a million dollars, and will consist of four levels. The first level consists of a half basement with two sunken handball courts, headquarters for visiting athletic teams, women's physical education dressing rooms, lounges for men and women faculty members, athletic offices, Lynx dressing rooms, and class rooms.

On the second level, or main floor, is found the basketball court, four badminton courts, two indoor

Celebration Honors Southwestern Alumni

Tonight Southwestern's new $700,000 gymnasium will be dedicated to the memory of William Neely Mallory, and forty-one Southwestern alumni who died in World War II.

After a music program by the Southwestern band, the invocation will be given by Dr. Paul Tudor Jones, '32, pastor of Idlewild Presbyterian Church.

President Peyton N. Rhodes will give the welcome and introduce the principal speaker, Edwin Foster Blaire, a former classmate and a lifelong friend of the late Mr. Mallory.

Mr. Blaire is a member of the New York State Bar Association, Phi Beta Kappa, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Phi Delta Phi. In addition to having been director and secretary of more than a dozen corporations, he has been President of the Hotchkiss Alumni Association, President of the Rip Van Winkle Foundation and Fairfield Community Chest.

Following the speech, the band will play the Alma Mater and Dr. Charles Edward Diehl, President Emeritus will pronounce the benediction.

Benefactors

The dedication is made possible by a committee of Major Mallory's friends in Memphis and the Mid-South who, under the leadership of Mr. Robert B. Snowden, decided to honor their friend by donating a new gymnasium to the college which he served so well. Athlete, churchman, patriot, and philanthropist, Major Mallory was killed in the last days of World War II.

An All-American fullback in his college days, "Memphis Bill" Mallory was voted by his classmates, "The Man Who Did Most For Yale." In 1934 he received from Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce a "Distinguished Service Award" for his outstanding civic and charitable activities.

Legion of Merit

In World War II he was presented the Legion of Merit for a tactical plan which contributed greatly to the success of the Italian campaign. For seventeen years prior to his service in the war, Mr. Mallory served Southwestern as Advisor on Athletics, member of the Board of Directors, and treasurer.

WF To Carol

This Sunday Mrs. J. Q. Wolf will give a program of Christmas carols. She will illustrate her program by playing the carols on a set of old glass goblets. She has given the program before and everyone enjoyed "Bess's Bells" so much that she was asked to give it again this year.

After the program the group will go caroling to the shut-ins of the church. After caroling there will be a party in the WF room. There will be refreshments, decorations and a blazing fire. Anyone who is fond of Christmas carols is invited to meet with WF Sunday.

For Heroes Proved

"Glory and triumph!
Hail, heroes, Hail!
Glory and triumph and peace to every fallen warrior.
Heroes fallen in righteous war,
To you is given honor immortal.
Angels guard you forever more
In realms of glory and peace eternal.
You dwell now with the blest,
Ever at rest.
Live in our hearts, memories bright,
Glorious heroes who fought freedom's fight.
Glory and fame to the brave who gave their lives for Freedom.
Glory and Honor forever in heaven's eternal kingdom.
Glory and Honor to the brave.
Glory, Honor, Eternal Life!"

This is the text of the "Apotheosis" from the "Grand Symphony for Band," by Hector Berlioz, which will be performed at the dedication of the Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. In our hearts and memories are written, in addition to the distinguished name it bears, the names of forty-one Southwesterners who gave their lives for their country while serving in World War II.

How Great the Price?

It is fitting that the structure which is dedicated to their honor is one which will be used to strengthen men and women for lives of service. From earliest recorded history until the present day, nations have recognized the importance of health, and particularly the fitness of their youths. Ben Johnson once wrote: "O health! health! the blessing of the rich! the riches of the poor! who can buy these at too dear a rate, since there is no enjoying this world without them?" Indeed the price of the health of a Southwestern student is hardly comparable to that paid by those who made it possible for us to enjoy the blessings of this free land.

Our Physical Mortality

Herbert Spencer reminds us that "the preservation of health is a duty. Few seem conscious that there is such a thing as physical mortality." As each new generation passes through the Mallory Gymnasium, life will become a little more hectic, the pace a little faster. We must prepare now to meet the strain of the future.

Perhaps those who use these new facilities for the first time will never be called upon to make the supreme sacrifice for their country. Perhaps we shall soon forget the actual names of those whom we hail this day. Yet every time we enter the portals of this memorial, let us remember that it is dedicated to "heroes proved in liberating strife, who more than self their country loved, and mercy more than life."

The Jefferson Hotel in St. Louis will never be the same, for that is where we next took up our abode. Soon after our arrival windows were raised and "The Alma Mater" resounded from all sides of the hotel. After a dash of salt and pepper, and, oh yes, a sandwich, we rushed to the Kiel Auditorium for our first rehearsal with the St. Louis Symphony. After rehearsal, St. Louis and the rest of the day were ours. The choir members scattered in various and sundry directions. The movies "This Is Cinerama" and "A Star Is Born" attracted many of the songbirds.

Parties

Friday night it was whispered throughout the Jefferson Hotel Drugstore that there was going to be a party in room 319, and a party there was. It was kept going by Al Marques, Dan Adams, Ada Jane Walters, Bobbie Thomas, Sara Seisinger and others who partied at intervals during the evening.

Saturday morning dawned with a rehearsal in view, so sleepy singers took their places once again in the Kiel Auditorium. Saturday afternoon was free time, and various sources of entertainment were pursued. Sight-seeing, shopping, and a visit to Forest Park occupied most of the choir members. At 8 o'clock tuxedos and rustling, white evening dresses containing choir members boarded the buses for that first performance.

Favorable Review

The following is quoted from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat about the performance: "The chorus, pretty as a picture in contrasting white for the girls and black for the boys, showed every evidence of excellent training. The diction was a joy, and the Latin text posed no difficulties. Further it was the ability to dig down into such phrases as "Requiem aeternam dona eis, Domine—Grant them eternal rest, O Lord," that made this performance so compelling."

During the intermission of the Saturday night performance Charlie Kennon presented Dr. Golschmann with a sweater on behalf of the Singers.

"Miss" is Mrs.

The soloists, Shirley Russell, soprano, and Martial Singer, baritone added the professional touch to the "Requiem." Both choir and orchestra were mystified when Miss Russell came on the stage wearing a mink stole, but after curiosity had killed the cat, the mystery was solved.

Harriet Byrd and Graham Hickey, with their magic piano were the highlight of a party attended by most of the choir members on the hotel mezzanine after the performance. Charlie Kennon's dancing, Mary George Beggs' rendition of "The Man That Got Away," and green cigars, plus the usual Southwestern clowns added "joy" to the party.

Sing and Run

Sunday morning the beautiful St. Louis churches were attended by the choir members. At 3 o'clock we made our second appearance with the Symphony. At intermission, with a quick change of clothes, and hurried goodbyes to the orchestra members and Dr. Golschmann, we bade farewell to St. Louis and began our journey home.

When the bus motors began to purr, so did the voices of the choir members, not in the same key or on the same song, but nevertheless purring. The "parlor" games also began again—this time such things as Ghost, Who Am I? and Rhythm. We do hope Bob Dickie, Ann Hixon, Bennie Ann Haven, Emmett Buford, and Bill Hunt know the alphabet by now.

The things which we learn through athletics today will be of great value to us in future years, and our future success may well depend on how well we have absorbed the teachings brought to us by athletics.

But before we can even begin to elaborate on the value of sports, we must bring forth the one element necessary to all things accomplished. That, of course, is hard work. Unless we are willing to work hard to attain those things which we seek, we will amount to very little—either in athletics or in any other phase of life.

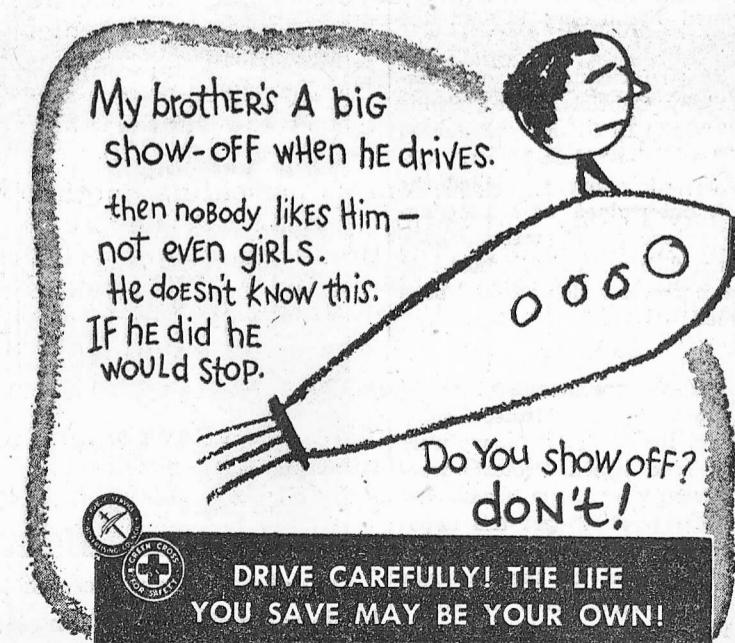

The competitive spirit which is developed by participation in sports cannot help but prove valuable to us in later years. In our economic system the main theme is competition. We compete in business, we compete in love, and we most often compete with ourselves. It is needless to say we do not always win those things for which we compete, and therefore we need above all to be able to accept victory or defeat in the most honorable way. Without participation in athletics many of us would find this a most difficult thing to accomplish.

Spirit of Cooperation

The development of the competitive spirit is by no means the only asset to be obtained from sport. No matter what we undertake in life we will have to work with someone or in cooperation with someone. No athletic team in the world could be a success without each team member cooperating with the others to the extent that the team acts as a single unit. Each team member has a job to do, and unless each job is done properly, the team, whether a business team or an athletic team, will surely fail in an attempt at success. Team play—there is no victory without it! Going hand in hand with cooperation is loyalty. If we are loyal to that of which we are a part, then there is no doubt that we will cooperate. For disloyalty there is no excuse. Of course, we cannot speak of sport without bringing up the element of fair play. If we gain nothing out of athletic participation but an unswerving sense of fair play, then every moment of hard work will be well paid for. Without fair play there is no honor, without honor there is no success. All in all, athletics are a lot of hard work, but also they are a lot of fun. I really know of no other way a person can learn so much and have such a good time doing it.

Carter's directing of "When The Saints Go Marching In" while standing in "the" line made us all glad we had stopped. "Papa" also called the next town to warn them that we were stopping to eat soon and to be prepared. At 9:30 p.m. we finally got to eat and dance in order to keep the buses lively the rest of the night.

When Buddy Whiteaker and Ronnie Markette could take it no longer they climbed up on the luggage rack to take a nap. But did anyone sleep? No! We were "graciously" entertained by more intellectual games and various other things until we finally reached Southwestern at 1:30 a.m. Monday morning.

DRIVE CAREFULLY! THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN!

On The Town

Mr. Scott Byrd, who usually has this column, has unfortunately been called out of town by his fictional Aunt Myrtle. She inconveniently lives in Haiti, so he's taking a Caribbean Cruise so he'll get there in the speediest possible time. To those of you not clever enough to have an Aunt Myrtle in Haiti, you can always go ON THE TOWN—and you need no excuse—just money.

There are lots of things to spend money on this week—movies, music recitals, dance bands, and plays. The cinema screens offer a variety of "scintillating entertainment," some of it old—some new.

The Bodies Beautiful

At Loew's State, a new MGM musical, "Athena," is playing, with a lot of stars and things. It's all about a physical-culture loving family, and Jane Powell loves Edmond Purdom, Debbie Reynolds loves Vic Damone; and Louis Calhern stands around. Mr. Universe is in it, too. Maybe he and Mister Calhern can stand around and look at each other.

Loew's Palace is offering a double bill of Joan Crawford, which is an awful lot of Joan Crawford, unless you really like her. One of them is "Torch Song" of 1953, in which she sort of dances, and the other one is "A Woman's Face" of 1941, in which she gets a scar on her face. In both of them she has a chance to dramatize like sexy.

The Press Favors Linda

At the Strand is "This Is My Love." From the ads in the paper, this looks inviting, and Linda Darnell is in it, which makes it look even more attractive. The picture is based on unfaithfulness, and is in Pathé-color. On second thought, it doesn't sound so attractive.

"Cry Vengeance" is another melodrama, which is playing at the Warner Theatre. It stars Mark Stevens and Joan Vohs (whoever she is), and has little to recommend it except that Mister Stevens gets a scar on his face, too. He and Joan Crawford—somebody missed a bit in not billing "Scarface" this week and making it a threesome.

An Old Timer

The Ritz, which has gone back to old and art films, is showing "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," a 1940 production starring Charles Laughton, Maureen O'Hara, and an outstanding cast. This picturization of Victor Hugo's old war-horse got good reviews when it was first released, and has been acknowledged the best of the many films made from this book. Walt Disney's nature film, "Water Birds" is billed with it. "Victory At Sea" starts Sunday. This fine film, made up of the NBC-TV series, is notable for its stirring narrative, its electrifying photography, and its exciting musical score by Richard Rodgers.

For music lovers, the Memphis Sinfonietta is presenting its second concert of the season, Friday night at 8:15 in Goodwyn Institute Auditorium. Urico Rossi, a violinist from New York, will be the soloist.

Singer's Christmas Concert

The Southwestern Singers, our beloved choral group recently dubbed "The St. Louis Kids," give their annual Christmas Concert at Evergreen Church at 5:00 Sunday. They will perform parts I and II of Bach's Christmas Oratorio, with the Southwestern Orchestra.

The return of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo to Ellis Auditorium Sunday at 3:00 p.m. has set all ballet addicts to babbling excitedly. Maria Tallchief and Frederick Franklin will perform the Grand Pas de Deux from "Don Quixote." Other numbers are "Coppelia" and "The Mikado," based on Gilbert and Sullivan's Operetta.

Memphis State, darn 'em, is presenting another good play Friday and Saturday nights—"The Crucible," by Arthur Miller. The production sounds very interesting, and among the large cast is MSC's half of the Williamson twins, Eleanor. Drama fans, take notice.

Go For Broke

If you still have a few dollars left after going to all these things, and are inane enough to want to spend them, too, you can go to the Skyway and dance. Hal McIntyre opens Monday with his lovely vocalist, Jeanne McManus.

Now that you're completely broke, go to classes for a while until next week-end when you can all go down to the sea in ships to welcome Mister Byrd back from Haiti, and go ON THE TOWN again!

Campus Parties Express Students' Pre-Holiday Spirit

Parties, parties everywhere—and not a drop to drink. But there will be plenty of good food at the fraternity houses Monday night and the sorority lodges Tuesday night when the Greek groups give vent to their overflowing Christmas spirits in pre-holiday informal get-togethers.

The SAEs will celebrate with a date dinner from 5:30 to 8 given by the Minerva Club. The fun will begin when the members bestow small gifts on their dates and brothers.

Stag Parties

ATO and KA will exclude the ladies from their merry-making. The ATOs will hold a stag supper with exchange of presents, while the KA alums join the actives for a get-together following the Monday night meeting.

The PiKAs will carol with their dates from 6 to 8 in the lodge. Piker (the possum) will probably be decked with a red bow in the holiday manner.

For the AOPis, Founders' Day coincides with their Christmas party Tuesday night from 7 to 9 at the Peabody with dancing afterward. Their alumnae are in charge.

The Mothers' Club and alumnae are sponsoring the Zetas party. Each member will take a gift for the sorority lodge.

KD will have a decorated Christmas tree. Annelie Albritton will be Santa Claus and give out the presents.

Tri-Delt will hold its annual Pine Tree Party with the alums in charge. Each member of the sorority will donate a gift or money for a present for the lodge.

The Chi O Christmas party, sponsored by the alums, will have the true Christmas spirit. Members will take presents of food, clothes and toys to be given to a needy family in Memphis.

Marine Recruit Team To Visit School in January

A recruit team from the United States Marine Corps will visit Southwestern January 21, 22, and 23, 1955. While on the campus they will speak with men students interested in the Marine Officer Programs.

Eligible men may enroll in one of two schools: the Platoon Leaders Class or the Officer Candidate Course.

Students in PLC training attend class during two summer vacations from college. This training is conducted at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Virginia. It is designed to provide the initial leadership development and necessary military instruction to prepare men for appointment to commissioned rank in the Marine Corps.

The Officer Candidate Course is for college graduates. Candidates selected are enrolled during their senior year in college or after graduation. The OC course is a ten week training course held at the Marine Corps Schools.

Upon completion of either of these courses, the trainee is appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve.

YWCA Will Have Christmas Party

The Y.W.C.A. will have a Christmas party at its next meeting Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 in the Alpha Omicron Pi lodge. This meeting will have a two-fold purpose: (1) to celebrate the coming Christmas season and (2) to work on scrapbooks and decorations for the sickrooms of shut-ins here in Memphis.

The members expect to enjoy themselves at the party while at the same time participate in helping others. All town students are requested to bring old magazines which will be used in making the scrapbooks. As this is one of the Y.W.C.A.'s big projects of the year, all members are urged to attend.

Pan Council Meets

The Women's Panhellenic Council met Tuesday, December 7, at the Kappa Delta house. Purpose of the meeting was to discuss plans for the Pan Workshop which is to be held some time in March.

At this workshop representatives of the various sororities get together and discuss their problems and ways of improving the organizations.

Present at the Panhellenic meeting were the presidents and representatives of each sorority, their alumni advisers, and the Dean and assistant Dean of Women.

German Student Writes To Dean

Dean Eleanor Bosworth recently received a letter from Suse Josenhans, Germany exchange student who studied at Southwestern in 1950-51. Suse worked two years upon her return from the United States and is now completing her degree at the University of Tübingen.

"I think it is extremely important to visit foreign countries," Suse writes. "How else should we understand other nations—and our own country, since I believe that in order to get to know and judge your own country you have to view it from the outside as well as the inside . . .

"My brother was in the Eastern (Russian) zone (of Germany) in September and was greatly impressed by his visit. Not only because there is a low standard of living. This would be the lesser evil. But the feeling that you are constantly under control, constantly watched, and the rigidity with which everything is directed by the government and the Communist Party must be horrible."

Miss Bosworth would like to speak with anyone who wishes to correspond with Suse and other German students.

Lynxcats Lose To Birm.-South 93-82; And Howard, 86-64

Southwestern's 1954-55 basketball team began the season by losing its first two games against Birmingham-Southern and Howard at Birmingham. Southern stopped a second half comeback by the Lynx to win 93 to 82 Friday night. Howard led 45 to 29 at the half and built it to 86 to 64 in the second period.

Against Birmingham-Southern, Johnson's men could only show 24 markers at halftime to Southern's 29. At one time late in the first half they had a thirty-three point lead over the Lynx, but the second half drive led by Bobby Jackson, who scored twenty points in the second period, almost made up the deficit.

At the end of the game Gillom, Winslow, Kaylor, Jackson and Young were all sitting out with five fouls, but the score was even on the other bench where five Southerners were also out of action via the foul route. Jackson led the night's scoring with 26 points while Bill Ensor of Birmingham-Southern was close behind with 25.

Howard, even more potent this year than last, made things tough for the Lynx all the way, although the visitors perked up quite a bit in the second half. Marvin Breeding and Bill Karrh led the winners with 21 and 17 points respectively while Carlisle and Jackson paced Southwestern in defeat with 18 and 316 tallies each. Southwestern was again hard hit by fouls as Jackson, Winslow, Kaylor, and Lawhorn fouled out. Karrh and Faught did the same for Howard.

The foundation stresses the sense of teaching as a religious vocation. While church membership is not required, most Fellows at present are affiliated with some denomination. The Fellow may choose his school, provided it is an accredited institution.

The Danforth Foundation offers financial assistance to its Fellows according to individual need, limiting the annual maximum grant to $1800 for the single man, and $2400 for the married man. Fellowships are renewable. Men are encouraged to apply, even though they may have no financial need in order that they may participate in this "relationship of encouragement."

tennis courts, bleachers with seats for 1200 people, and offices for the athletic director and varsity coaches located off the playing area. In the balcony are five class rooms and 800 more bleacher seats. The top level is unfinished, but has space for apartments.

Blueprints have been drawn for additions to the main building which will include a swimming pool of Olympic specifications, a rifle range, and a raised floor 120 feet by 60 feet for dramatics and dances.

From the outside, the gym is an imposing edifice in the traditional stone gothic style, with many narrow gables and a slate roof. The stone is irregularly finished for a more pleasing effect. The windows are divided into many panes, some of which are stained. Broad stone steps ascend to the front entrance of the gym.

MALLORY GYM DEDICATED

One of the show places of the Campus, the Mallory Gymnasium will have its formal dedication tonight. This beautiful structure, made possible by friends of Major William Neely

Mallory, will long be a prized possession of students of Southwestern. Although the gym has been in use since this September, the formal dedication will see Sewanee vs. Davidson and Southwestern vs. Ole Miss.

Modern Gym Replaces 'Temporary' Structure

The new gymnasium is a source of pride, not only to old students, but to new students as well. To upperclassmen, however, the new athletic plant, with its many facilities and up-to-date equipment, means the realization of a dream. These students remember the era of "The Barn," a "temporary" structure that served as athletic fieldhouse for Southwestern from 1925 through last year.

Neely Mallory Gymnasium is named for and dedicated to Mr. Neely Mallory, perpetuating his name on the campus that he loved so well. Mr. Mallory was an All-American fullback at Yale in 1923, and he served as coach, business executive and treasurer for Southwestern. He was killed in an airplane accident late in World War II.

The Nation's Finest

"There may be larger gymnasiums in the country, but certainly no finer," says Southwestern president Peyton Rhodes. "Every piece of equipment necessary to an athletic department either has been installed or is planned for."

The new gym is located in an ideal position. In its immediate vicinity are two baseball diamonds, six tennis courts, and the football practice field. Only a short distance away are the football field and cinder track.

Worth A Million

When fully completed, the new gym will have cost over a million dollars, and will consist of four levels. The first level consists of a half basement with two sunken handball courts, headquarters for visiting athletic teams, women's physical education dressing rooms, lounges for men and women faculty members, athletic offices, Lynx dressing rooms, and class rooms.

On the second level, or main floor, is found the basketball court, four badminton courts, two indoor

Southwestern Has Excellent Program Of Varsity Athletics

With amateur athletics, as such, being pushed out of existence in a great majority of the nation's colleges by over-emphasis, we at Southwestern are exceedingly proud of the strictly love-of-the-sport level of participation in which every boy at Southwestern may engage.

Here no athletic scholarships are given, and no incentive, aside from good coaching, now wonderful facilities, and good organized competition, is offered to put men on the playing fields. As we are beginning to prove in most of the inter-collegiate sports, no incentive is necessary.

There are no dead spots in the athletic program, for at least one sport is in full swing the school year around. At the apex of sport activity, in the spring, four inter-collegiate sports are on the move.

In the fall, football naturally takes the spotlight. The team under the new leadership of Coach Rick Mays, who is ably assisted by coaches Wright and Germany, has taken on a new look, and it is fast becoming a team which resembles those great ones of old which Southwestern once fielded.

The newest sport on the campus, cross-country, was introduced this fall under the direction of Coach Glenn Johnson. A seven-man team races against other teams over a course of three to four miles for the lowest total number of place points. The cross-country boys compiled a fine record for their first year, and are expected to go out

Ceremony Will Honor Southwestern Alumni

Tonight Southwestern's new $700,000 gymnasium was dedicated to the memory of William Neely Mallory, and forty-one Southwestern alumni who died in World War II.

After a music program by the Southwestern band, the invocation was given by Dr. Paul Tudor Jones, '32, pastor of Idlewild Presbyterian Church.

President Peyton N. Rhodes gave the welcome and introduced the principal speaker, Edwin Foster Blaire, a former classmate and a lifelong friend of the late Mr. Mallory.

Mr. Blaire is a member of the New York State Bar Association, Phi Beta Kappa, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Phi Delta Phi. In addition to having been director and secretary of more than a dozen corporations, he has been President of the Hotchkiss Alumni Association, President of the Rip Van Winkle Foundation and Fairfield Community Chest.

Following the speech, the band played the Alma Mater and Dr. Charles Edward Diehl, President Emeritus pronounced the benediction.

Benefactors

The dedication is made possible by a committee of Major Mallory's friends in Memphis and the Mid-South who, under the leadership of Mr. Robert B. Snowden, decided to honor their friend by donating a new gymnasium to the college which he served so well. Athlete, churchman, patriot, and philanthropist, Major Mallory was killed in the last days of World War II.

An All-American fullback in his college days, "Memphis Bill" Mallory was voted by his classmates, "The Man Who Did Most For Yale." In 1934 he received from Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce a "Distinguished Service Award" for his outstanding civic and charitable activities.

Legion of Merit

In World War II he was presented the Legion of Merit for a tactical plan which contributed greatly to the success of the Italian campaign. For seventeen years prior to his service in the war, Mr. Mallory served Southwestern as Advisor on Athletics, member of the Board of Directors, and treasurer.

"He was a man of honor, characterized by his modesty, kindness, a wholesome sense of humor and charm of personality."

Old Gym Being Dismantled

Does anyone need a slightly used gym? Southwestern has one for sale. Freeburg Brothers, real estate agents, are now in the process of tearing down Fargason Fieldhouse. Most of the materials salvaged will be offered for sale. Some of the building material will be used to repair certain buildings around the campus. The cleared space will be leveled and used for parking.

For Heroes Proved

"Glory and triumph!
Hail, heroes, Hail!
Glory and triumph and peace to every fallen warrior.
Heroes fallen in righteous war,
To you is given honor immortal.
Angels guard you forever more
In realms of glory and peace eternal.
You dwell now with the blest,
Ever at rest.
Live in our hearts, memories bright,
Glorious heroes who fought freedom's fight.
Glory and fame to the brave who gave their lives for Freedom.
Glory and Honor forever in heaven's eternal kingdom.
Glory and Honor to the brave.
Glory, Honor, Eternal Life!"

This is the text of the "Apotheosis" from the "Grand Symphony for Band," by Hector Berlioz, which was performed at the dedication of the Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. In our hearts and memories are written, in addition to the distinguished name it bears, the names of forty-one Southwest erners who gave their lives for their country while serving in World War II.

How Great the Price?

It is fitting that the structure which is dedicated to their honor is one which will be used to strengthen men and women for lives of service. From earliest recorded history until the present day, nations have recognized the importance of health, and particularly the fitness of their youths. Ben Johnson once wrote: "O health! health! the blessing of the rich! the riches of the poor! who can buy these at too dear a rate, since there is no enjoying this world without them?" Indeed the price of the health of a Southwestern student is hardly comparable to that paid by those who made it possible for us to enjoy the blessings of this free land.

Our Physical Mortality

Herbert Spencer reminds us that "the preservation of health is a duty. Few seem conscious that there is such a thing as physical mortality." As each new generation passes through the Mallory Gymnasium, life will become a little more hectic, the pace a little faster. We must prepare now to meet the strain of the future.

Perhaps those who use these new facilities for the first time will never be called upon to make the supreme sacrifice for their country. Perhaps we shall soon forget the actual names of those whom we hail this day. Yet every time we enter the portals of this memorial, let us remember that it is dedicated to "heroes proved in liberating strife, who more than self their country loved, and mercy more than life."

GO LYNX GO! These are the bywords of the Cheerleaders who live or die for Dear Ole Southwestern each week as a Lynx team goes to do battle on the athletic fields. These students are the backbone of the cheering section which gathers to cheer the Lynx down the path of victory.

Intramurals

This trophy went to the fraternity with the highest number of points at the end of the Intramural season. Points were awarded on the basis of participation in a sport, final standing in a sport, and attendance at the Intramural meetings. The trophy would be kept for one year by that fraternity and then presented to the current Intramural champion. The trophy was to be retired if won by the same fraternity for three consecutive years. The winner of the trophy the first year was Sigma Nu. In 1936 a runner-up traveling trophy was added. It also was first won by Sigma Nu.

SAE Wins Twice

Two Traveling Trophies have been retired, both times by Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The first one was retired in the late 1930's and the second one in the late 1940's. Other fraternities winning trophies are Sigma Nu in 1935, 1952, and 1953, ATO in 1936 and 1954, and Kappa Sigma in 1937.

The War curtailed Intramurals considerably, but the ROTC unit that was here then did have some Intramurals. In 1946 Intramurals began full-scale operation again. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the powerhouse of the late 1930's, again was leading the field. They won the Traveling Trophy every year until they were stopped by Sigma Nu in 1952.

In 1950, when varsity athletics was at its lowest point, the Intramural sports were just about as strong as the varsity sports. But fortunately varsity athletics was on the upswing the following year and Intramurals became what it should be—a program for non-varsity men.

New Rules

In 1952, the present eligibility rules were put into effect. These rules prohibited a man participating in a varsity sport from playing Intramurals while that sport was being played.

The year 1953-54 could well be described as the most exciting year in the history of Intramurals. Sigma Nu, who could retire the Traveling Trophy if they won it once more, and Alpha Tau Omega, who had won the runner-up trophy for the past two years, were just about even when softball began. Because of too many injuries, touch football had been cancelled, and volleyball became the second sport. Tennis had been won by SAE a couple of weeks before. ATO won the volleyball championship without losing a game. SAE won the basketball championship, losing only once, to ATO. SN won the badminton by beating ATO in the last match.

The Climax

Then came softball. The winner would also receive the Traveling Trophy. At the end of the regular season, SN and ATO were tied for the championship, both having beaten the other once. The championship game was played before a fine crowd and the game was even at first. Soon, however, ATO broke loose and the SN pitching couldn't stop their batting power. ATO won the game and the Trophy.

The intramural program for this year has one major change. The traveling Trophy has been retired by Intramural Director Bill Mabry. Coach Mabry feels that without the Trophy there will not be any forced participation in sports by fraternities who do not really have a good enough team to merit participation.

The Intramural system now is much better organized now than it was in the 1930's and '40's. Teams have to have standard shirts for their players, referees and umpires are paid for working a game, and the flagball and softball fields are in good condition. Flagball has just been introduced this year in intramurals.

Women's Intramurals

Women's Intramurals began about the same time as the men's. At first basketball was the only sport played. Soon, when softball became popular throughout the country, it was added to the program. Then volleyball, badminton, and track were added.

THE SOUTHWESTERN BAND, under the direction of Jack Funkhouser, has been on hand for all the home football games and one of the out-of-town games. The band has furnished a very important part of the School spirit which has been evident more this year than in times past. The band will also furnish the music for the dedication of the new Neely Mallory Gymnasium.

Hoosier Glenn A. Johnson, Athletic Director of Southwestern, readies his roundball squad for a rugged season. Coach Johnson voices confidence in his squad and believes Southwestern to have "The finest athletic program in the south."

Glenn Johnson Heads Athletic Department

Everyone connects Indiana with basketball, and here at Southwestern everyone connects both the state and the sport with Athletic Director Glenn A. Johnson. Coach Johnson was born in Huntington County, Indiana. He spent his childhood on his father's farm. Upon reaching high school age, he entered the high school in Huntington, Indiana. There he participated in basketball, baseball, and track.

Upon completion of his high school career, Coach Johnson entered the University of Indiana, where he majored in economics and sociology. At Indiana, Coach Johnson earned numerals in four sports his freshman year. During his sophomore and junior years Coach Johnson earned letters in basketball and track.

The beginning of Coach Johnson's senior year in college coincided with the beginning of his coaching career. Due to family financial difficulties, he transferred from the University of Indiana to Huntington College in Huntington, Indiana. Here he accepted, while still a student, his first coaching job, which paid fifty dollars a month plus expenses. He served both as player and coach of the baseball and basketball teams. At Huntington Coach Johnson received his Bachelor of Arts degree.

Upon completion of college, Coach Johnson accepted a post at Bloomington High School, Bloomington, Indiana, as athletic director and coach. He continued his graduate work at Indiana.

In 1929, Coach Johnson went to Columbia University, where he received his Master's degree in physical education. Then followed ten years of coaching in New York State. Immediately prior to World War II, he was coaching at Mansfield State Teachers College, Mansfield, Pennsylvania. The beginning of the war meant a decline in large scale college athletics. Therefore Coach Johnson returned to his native Indiana to become head coach at Arsenal Technical High School in Indianapolis. His next position was at Canterbury College at Danville, Indiana, where he remained six years. Then followed a three year term as coach at Bethany College in West Virginia. A veteran of thirty-three years of coaching experience, Coach Johnson is in his fourth year as Southwestern's athletic director.

Commenting on Southwestern's athletic program, Coach Johnson has just one thing to say, "It's the finest athletic program in the South!"

and win next year. The basketball team has moved into its new home, and is showing promise of being a fast, high scoring machine. With the loss of only one varsity player last year and supplemented with some new top material, Coach Johnson has the makings of one of the best teams in a long time.

This spring the baseball team will go into action backed by a new potent pitching staff and many new freshman infielders and outfielders. Coach Johnson's starting nine should pack a real punch and should be equal to any team they face.

Across the road on the cinders, the thin-clads will be ready to show what they have. The team will be starting nearly from scratch and it presents an opportunity for every man on the campus.

Under the coaching of the Memphis Country Club's pro, Pat Abbott, and in connection with the facilities of the Memphis Country Club and the Colonial Country Club, the Southwestern golf team has an environment which could be envied by any golf team in the country. They play an impressive schedule and go on a tour of many of the southern colleges each year.

Last but far from least is our T.I.A.C. champion tennis team. Under the superior coaching of the former English Davis Cup's number one, Derrick Barton, last year's team came out in the win column against most of the large southern colleges. During the season the team makes a swing through the south playing such teams as Alabama, Georgia, Auburn, and Emory.

Aside from varsity athletics, a well rounded program of inter-fraternity sports runs throughout the year. Flagball, a variation of football, is played during the fall, and is followed by volleyball and ping-pong. The fraternities also compete in basketball, tennis, golf, softball, and handball. Handball, the newest intramural sport, is made possible by the new gym which houses two fine new courts. The gym floor is equipped to handle nets for tennis, badminton, and volleyball, and with the addition of the new wing, the gym will become the home of a full size pool which will add sports to both the varsity and intramural scenes.

Every person who receives a degree from Southwestern must go through two years of the physical education program. Under the direction of Coach Mabry, the program offers many and varied sports with which the classes become familiar. The new gym has added to this setup tremendously.

All in all, we may proudly say that, with the existing facilities plus the new gym and a great coaching staff, the athletic program at Southwestern ranks with the finest.

Campus Challenges

Lee Weed

"S" Club President

The things which we learn through athletics today will be of great value to us in future years, and our future success may well depend on how well we have absorbed the teachings brought to us by athletics.

But before we can even begin to elaborate on the value of sports, we must bring forth the one element necessary to all things accomplished. That, of course, is hard work. Unless we are willing to work hard to attain those things which we seek, we will amount to very little—either in athletics or in any other phase of life.

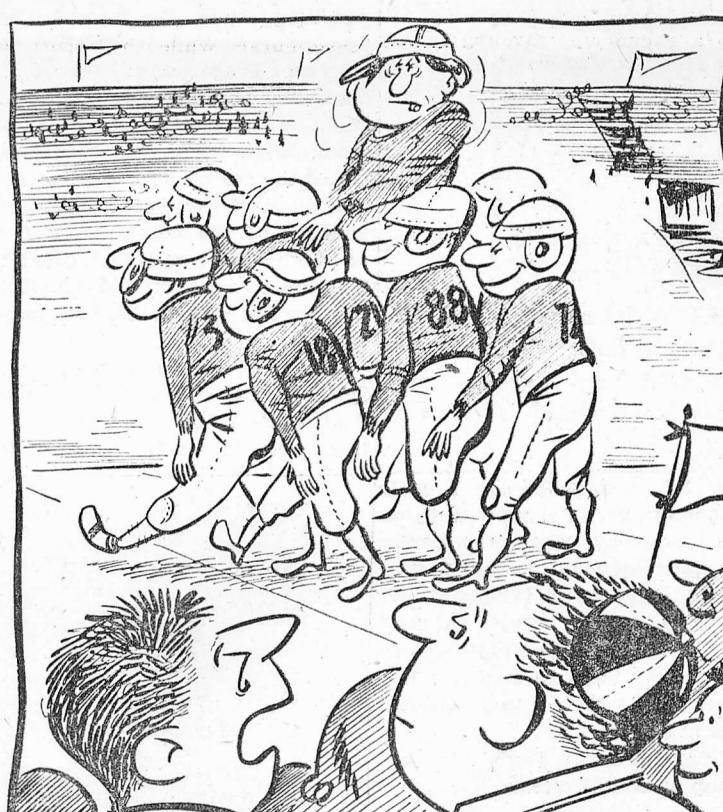

The competitive spirit which is developed by participation in sports cannot help but prove valuable to us in later years. In our economic system the main theme is competition. We compete in business, we compete in love, and we most often compete with ourselves. It is needless to say we do not always win those things for which we compete, and therefore we need above all to be able to accept victory or defeat in the most honorable way. Without participation in athletics many of us would find this a most difficult thing to accomplish.

Spirit of Cooperation

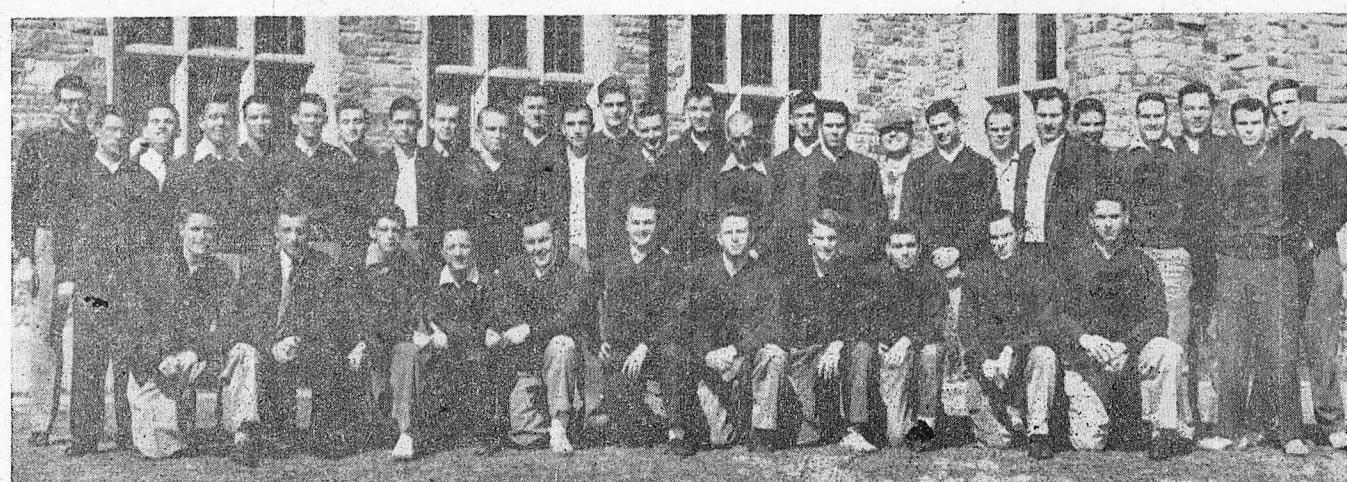

The development of the competitive spirit is by no means the only asset to be obtained from sport. No matter what we undertake in life we will have to work with someone or in cooperation with someone. No athletic team in the world could be a success without each team member cooperating with the others to the extent that the team acts as a single unit. Each team member has a job to do, and unless each job is done properly, the team, whether a business team or an athletic team, will surely fail in an attempt at success. Team play—there is no victory without it! Going hand in hand with cooperation is loyalty. If we are loyal to that of which we are a part, then there is no doubt that we will cooperate. For disloyalty there is no excuse. Of course, we cannot speak of sport without bringing up the element of fair play. If we gain nothing out of athletic participation but an unswerving sense of fair play, then every moment of hard work will be well paid for. Without fair play there is no honor, without honor there is no success. All in all, athletics are a lot of hard work, but also they are a lot of fun. I really know of no other way a person can learn so much and have such a good time doing it.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"Naww, he wasn't the hero of th' game—he got his pants ripped off on th' last play."

THE WEARERS OF THE BIG BLOCK "S". These men are those who have lettered in varsity athletics at Southwestern. This is not just an idle group, they award trophies to outstanding athletes on the campus and also handle the concessions at the intercollegiate events. The highlight of their activities is the dance that they sponsor.

Better Season Brightens Southwestern Grid Hopes

Southwestern had the best year in football this season that it has had since pre-war days. Finishing the year with three wins and four losses, the Lynx gridmen showed marked improvement with each game they played. Coach Rick Mays, in his first year at Southwestern, certainly deserves much credit for the development of the team, as do his assistants Oscar Wright and Reg Germany. The fact that only two seniors were members of the squad makes the future look bright.

Lose Opener

The Lynx dropped their first game 26-7 to the Mississippi College Choctaws, after leading 7-6 at the half. Halfback Jimmy Higgason and Fullback Johnny Martin turned in some fine running, but lack of depth in the line caused by injuries showed up on the hot afternoon. The Choctaws won easily during the second half, led by the running of Bobby Dottley.

Centre, the second opponent, dropped Southwestern 14-0, although the Lynx defense looked much better. In the end the heavy Centre line proved a little too much. Southwestern's offense still wasn't moving.

First Win

Against Hendrix the next week, however, the Maysmen found themselves with a 33-13 win. After the Lynx scored only seven points in the first half, quarterback Billy Young set up scores with his passing, and handed to Martin or speed merchant Higgason as the occasion demanded. Martin made three touchdowns, Higgason ripped off 53 yards for another, and field general Young sneaked over for the other.

The Millsaps Majors tripped the Lynx 41-13 in Jackson. Southwestern ran three times as many plays as the Majors and had many more yards gained, but could not turn the yardage into enough touchdowns. Higgason and end Bobby Rose scored the touchdowns. The Lynx defense just could not seem to check the strong Millsaps offense led by quarterback "Red" Powell.

Two Straight

In the next two ball games Southwestern proved hard to stop with victories of 33-7 over Howard and 32-19 over Sewanee. The team played like a smooth-working machine with two almost equal teams of Southwesterners alternating on the field. Jimmy Higgason turned in one of the greatest one-man performances in the history of the school as he ran one, 25, and 31 yards and was on the receiving end of a 57 yard pass play to score four touchdowns. Halfback Jim Turner made the other. Young ran the team well, passing accurately to Turner and Higgason.

Martin, quarterback Crawford Street, Turner, and Higgason all got into the scoring against Sewanee with Higgason making two touchdowns (one on an 82-yard run) and the others one apiece. The entire Southwestern bench was again in the act as the Lynx seemed to roll at will.

In the last game against the year's toughest opponent, Louisiana College, the boys put up a great fight before losing 47-27. The injury of Higgason early in the first quarter was a definite hindrance to the Lynx backfield, but two touchdowns by halfback Smokey Russell and one by Martin along with three conversions by Young put the Southwesterners in the lead 21-7 at the half. The potent Wildcats were just too much after halftime thought, as they showed the offense that carried them through the last six games of their tough schedule without a loss.

Without a doubt, football is looking up at Southwestern.

THE HARD HITTING ELEVEN engaged in combat for the honor of the school. The back seen in action (above) is Jimmy "Digger" Higgason who received the honor of being mentioned for Little All America.

Fine Coaching Staff Guides Lynx Football

Rick Mays, Oscar Wright and Reg Germany have done a fine job with Southwestern's 1954 football team.

Rick Mays brought an outstanding record in athletics to Southwestern. While attending Central High School in Memphis, he lettered in football, basketball, and tennis. After graduating from Central he continued his participation in these sports at Southwestern.

Mays began coaching in the mid-1930's. He coached at Tech and Central in Memphis before the War. During World War II with the Marines he was on the coaching staff at Camp LeJeune, North Carolina, and Camp Pendleton, California. Before coming to Southwestern this year, Mays was backfield coach at Central.

Insurance Agent

In addition to his coaching duties, he is branch manager of Lamar Life Insurance Company in Memphis. For his efforts on behalf of the Company, he has been awarded two vacation trips to Mexico and the Caribbean in past years.

Coach Mays is married and has one son who goes to Bellevue Junior High School.

Line Coach Oscar A. Wright, who is now in his second season with the Lynx hails from Nashville. His college years were spent at Vanderbilt where he played on the varsity football team. After college came three years as a member of the Naval Air Corps.

Wrestling Coach

Following his discharge Mr. Wright returned to Vanderbilt as wrestling coach. His "spare" time was spent coaching football at Duncan Preparatory School in Nashville. Later he accepted a position as the football coach at Itta Bena, Miss. where his 1948 team closed the season with a 8-1 record. For the next three years he was a member of the coaching staff of the high school at Biloxi, Miss. In 1951 the Biloxi team was fourth in the Mississippi Big Eight Conference.

Coach Wright says that he is "pleased to be associated with Southwestern." He believes that the team showed much determination to improve this season and will be mechanically better next year. When not occupied with his two children or his favorite hobby, football, he may be found at the Ediphone Company.

"I've been around football for most of my life, as player and coach, and I like it better than anything else." Reg Germany, line coach for the Lynx, has proved this statement by devoting numerous hours to practice for over ten years in striving for perfection.

A Marine

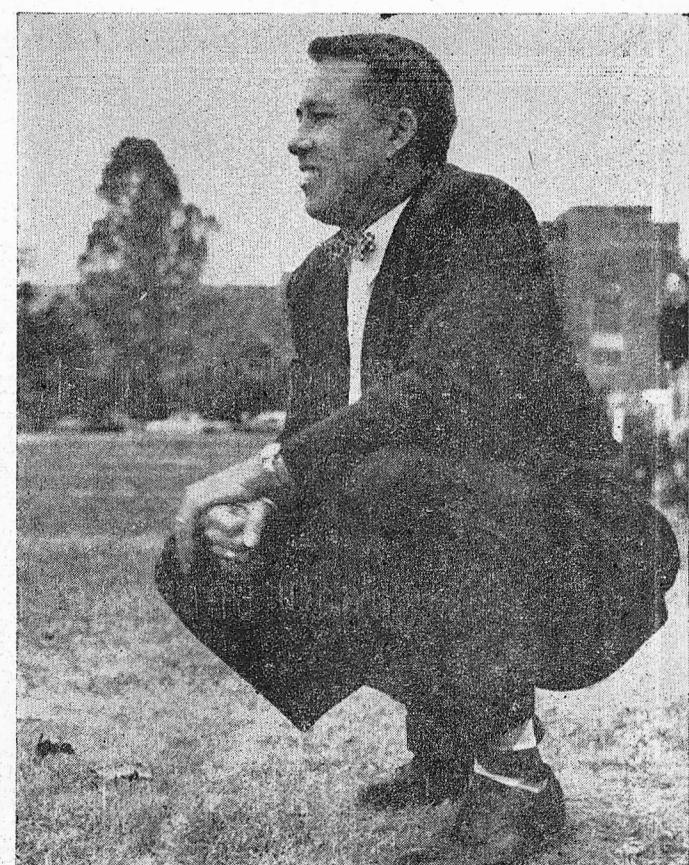

After graduation, Reg will serve two years in the Marine Corps. Upon completion of his tour of duty, he would like to teach economics (his major at Southwestern) and coach a high school football team, preferably in Memphis.

"A good coach has an opportunity to influence a boy's life tremendously," Reg replied when asked why he desires to remain in football as a coach. "I want a chance to help boys all I can."

Since Reg lettered for three years at Southwestern and one at Arkansas State, he is well-qualified in the fundamentals of the game. With Arkansas State he played in two bowl games: the Refrigerator Bowl and the Tangerine Bowl. Moving over to Southwestern, he was elected "Most Valuable Player" on the Lynx squad in 1952. In 1953 he was "Most Valuable Lineman," captain of the Lynx team, and won honorable mention on the national Kappa Sigma Fraternity All-America squad, which included such players as Paul Cameron of UCLA and Joe Fortunato of Mississippi State.

Three Sport Man

Reg has also lettered in golf and baseball at Southwestern. This year, besides serving as line coach, he is also vice-president of the student body, president of Sanhedrin, and chairman of the Elections Commission. He is a member of the S Club and Kappa Sigma fraternity.

"STOP UP THAT HOLE AT GUARD!" These might well be the words of Coach Oscar Wright as he surveys his charges, the Lynxmen who work from end to end on the Football team of Southwestern.

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED THE EASE with which the tennies team goes through its paces? Of course you have, and the man in the background is Derrick Barton, the Mentor of the men of the net. He is also the athletic director of the University Club of Memphis.

Former Davis Cup Player Derrick Barton Coaches Intercollegiate Champs

In 1947 Derrick Barton, top amateur and number one Davis Cup player of England, arrived in New York. He was quickly employed by Davidson and was placed in charge of their tennis program. In 1952 he was engaged by the University Club of Memphis as athletic director and tennis professional. From that time on, the tennis life of Memphis has been greatly accelerated and improved through his influence.

1952 also saw him added to the coaching staff of Southwestern. In addition to being placed as tennis coach he was worked into the Physical education program so that every man at Southwestern could obtain his valuable coaching.

Plenty of Work

He is a full-time coach as is evidenced by his daily presence with the tennis team. He coaches the team on the outdoor courts as long as weather permits, then moves with the team indoors. Last year practice was held on the indoor courts at the fairgrounds. This year the practices are held in the new gym with the aid of modern indoor equipment.

Not only is Derrick one of the most popular faculty members, but he is capable of producing winning teams. Last year's Tennessee Intercollegiate Conference Champs had a record of 9 wins, 7 losses against the big schools of the south.

Being a top man in his field, a well liked faculty member, and an outstanding coach are his prime qualities. With men like this in our athletic system it is no wonder that ours is among the best.

Maybry Helps To Build Full Athletic Program

When he graduated from high school, Bill Maybry had no idea that athletics were going to be so important in his life. He had been too small to play any sports in school, but he was interested in athletics. Things began to change in his four years at Southwestern.

Coach Maybry was born in Florence, Alabama, but he has lived in Memphis all but five years of his life. He attended Central High School in Memphis and upon graduation he enrolled at Southwestern.

Letterman

In Southwestern he began participating in athletics by playing in Intramurals. He was Intramural Manager of his fraternity, Kappa Alpha, for three years and in his senior year he was Student Intramural Director. He also lettered in track and basketball.

Coach Maybry graduated from Southwestern in 1942 with a BA in history. Soon after he joined the Navy and served for four years. He was put in charge of intramural athletics aboard his ship. The men played volleyball, basketball, and touch football aboard ship, and when in port they played softball.

He was discharged from the Navy in 1946. Since athletics had played such an important part in his life while he was in college and the Navy, Coach Maybry decided to go to George Peabody College in Nashville and work for an MA degree in physical education. Upon receiving this degree, he attended Arkansas State Teachers College where he taught history and physical education in a high school which was part of the college.

Back to Southwestern

It was while he was here that he received a call from Dr. Diehl asking him to return to Southwestern as Assistant Director of Physical Education and Director of Intramurals. He came here in 1947 and has been here ever since.

The long title that he has explains only part of the work he does. He is trainer for the football team, freshman basketball coach, and golf coach. Coach Maybry has either added to or improved many parts of the Intramural system. When he came here, there was very little organization to the system and there was little spirit demonstrated.

To remedy this he set specific starting times for the games and secured better refereeing by paying the referees a dollar per game. The playing fields were in bad shape when he arrived, and he gradually improved them. Now Coach Maybry is planning to add more individual events to the program. This year he has added horseshoes and shuffleboard and hopes to add bowling in the next year or two.

Madelyn Richardson Is Women's Gym Instructor

Anyone having trouble with English should drop by the office of Madelyn Richardson, Associate Director of Physical Education. She is experienced in the general field of athletics, but she took her major in English from Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Virginia.

Miss Richardson grew up in Memphis and attended Hutchison's, a school for girls. She was outstanding in the athletic program, winning a cup for sportsmanship, and receiving in her senior year a cup for the best senior athlete. She also played on the Virginia State Hockey Team.

With the Kiddies

After her college days Miss Richardson taught in several day camps for small children, instructing them in swimming, tennis, and all kinds of crafts. Her next job was instructing children in kindergarten.

She taught gym at Hutchison's, where she had served as athletic associate in her prep school days.

Having gained so much experience in this field, Miss Richardson started teaching gym at Southwestern three years ago. This is the first year she has taught full time, however, and with her fencing club, and her own "Columbia Day Camp" she has a busy schedule.

Miss Richardson says that her idea is not to make professional athletes out of the girls at Southwestern, but to give them an idea of various sports. "Being exposed to so many sports," she says, "A girl can at least gain enough knowledge to speak intelligently about them, and find out what sport she will enjoy participating in."

Joye Thompson Leads Modern Dance Group

The Modern Dance Group was established as an extra-curricular activity for advanced modern dancers by its instructor, Joye Thompson, last year when she became a member of Southwestern's faculty.

The dance group presents several programs throughout the year. Recently they performed two dances to Negro spirituals at the Adult Education Center in connection with a series of lectures on the evolution of the dance. At the end of February the dance group, which is composed of Joanna Kindig, Jean McLean, Harrylyn Graves, Mary Frances Bowlin, Margaret Reddin, Ann Hart, Beth Etter, Mary Jane Crutcher, Janice Boyden, Carolyn Marsh, Elaine Dees, Mary Walton Glass, Suzanne McCarroll, Sissy Eizer, and Virginia Walton, will give its interpretation of S. S. Bemelman's "Madelaine" at the annual Ballet Society Concert.

Mirror, Mirror on the Wall

Joye Thompson gives instruction in exercises, and also in modern dancing for beginners in a specially designed room in the gym; it has one wall covered by mirrors—every dancer's delight.

A former Southwestern co-ed, Mrs. Thompson studied here her freshman and sophomore years. She then transferred to Randolph Macon where her interest in modern dancing first began.

Joye has taken dancing since childhood and since graduation from college has specialized in modern dance and ballet.

Taught in Texas

After having toured the Southwest with the Edith James-Alexandra Danilova School of Ballet and serving as guest instructor at six Texas colleges, she joined the staff of Southwestern and established the modern dance class.

Besides teaching at Southwestern she teaches modern dance at Hutchison's girls school, Jewish Community Center, is Fashion Coordinator for Franklin Simon. All these duties serve to make Joye a rather busy woman, but she always has plenty of time for her favorite job—the "upbringing" of her two children, Tommy and Lisa.

AH YES, THOSE OF US WHO CAN'T PLAY on the varsity teams are sure not left out thanks to the highly developed Intramural program which can bring out almost as much feeling as the varsity games.

YOUNG LADIES WALKING IN THEIR SLEEP? No, most definitely not, but instead it is the class in modern dancing to which Joye Thompson is giving so much of her time and effort. This is a well liked and very good part of the women's Physical Education Training.

THE BASKETBALL TEAM IS ALMOST INTACT after graduation and promises to turn in an excellent season this year. In the above picture Dave Kaylor screens and John Lawhorn drives for the bucket. Good prospects coming up really make for an optimistic outlook.

Lynx Cagers To Show Height And Experience

The Lynx roundballers are now into full swing practicing under the direction of Coach Johnson. With the completion of football season last week and addition of five players from the grid squad, the twenty-three man roster is complete.

Tonight and tomorrow night the men will go on the road to engage Birmingham Southern and Howard in the first two of their twenty-one regularly scheduled games. (This does not include a tournament in Jackson, Mississippi, during the Christmas holidays.)

The prospects are more favorable this year than they have been in many moons. After showing vast improvement last year with ten wins and eleven losses, the Lynx have all of last year's squad, with the exception of 1952-53 Captain Benny Lamberth, returning. These returnees include "Buster" Carlisle, who led the team in scoring last year with over twenty points a game and will captain this year's team; Dave Kaylor, a starter from last year at forward, now slated to play guard his senior year; Bob Jackson, junior forward back from last year's starting five; Sophomore Jim Winslow, starting center from last season; Junior John Lawhorn, a starting guard returning; and last year's captain and playmaker, Frank Horton. These six should be much improved with a year of play together under their belts. Winslow at 6'5", Jackson at 6'4", Lawhorn at 6'2", and Kaylor at 6'1" also sound encouraging from the height angle. Newcomers who should be deciding factors in the success or failure of this team are 6'5" Dick Gilliom, who comes to Southwestern with two years of experience at Centenary, and 6'1" Bill Fly, a sophomore transfer from Tulane. Jim Turner, a Junior, returns to the varsity after sitting out last season with a broken foot. Senior Jerry Wood and Sophomore Harry Heidelberg are two other varsity squad members who have had experience on the Lynx freshman team.

Coach Bill Maybry has a good-looking crop of freshmen, some of whom Coach Johnson may take away from him. Notable among these are All-Memphis Billy Young, a good set shot and floor man, Stoney Maxwell, who stands 6'4" and had a good high school record at Dyersburg High School, and Neil Denley from Glen Allen, Mississippi, who stands 6'4" also and shows promise. Other Memphis boys include Jettie Bowen from Treadwell, Mike Cody, Walker Wellford, and Eddie Horton from East, and Ralph Shinbaum, Dan Bryan from Houston, Texas, Richard Dortch from Jackson, Mississippi, John Nordenson from San Diego, California, and Neal Whitelatch from Trumann, Arkansas, round out the first year men.

 tennis courts, bleachers with seats for 1200 people, and offices for the athletic director and varsity coaches located off the playing area. In the balcony are five class rooms and 800 more bleacher seats. The top level is unfinished, but has space for apartments.

Blueprints have been drawn for additions to the main building which will include a swimming pool of Olympic specifications, a rifle range, and a raised floor 120 feet by 60 feet for dramatics and dances.

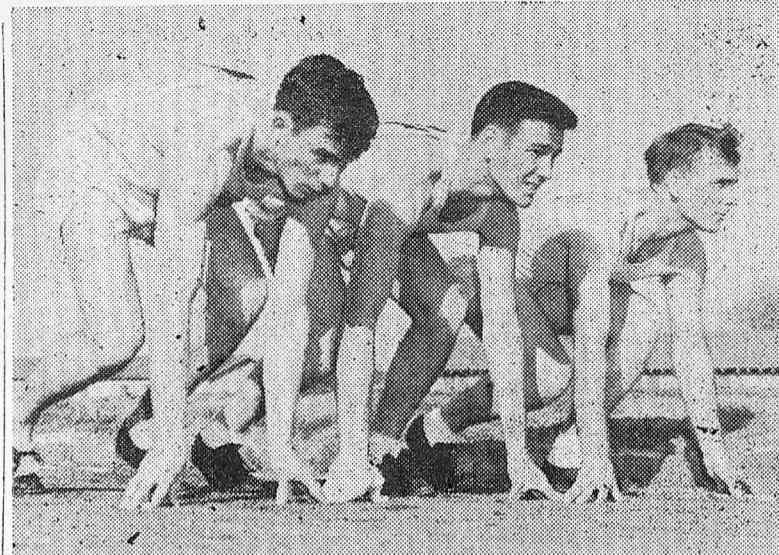

From the outside, the gym is an imposing edifice in the traditional stone gothic style, with many narrow gables and a slate roof. The stone is irregularly finished for a more pleasing effect. The windows are divided into many panes, some of which are stained. Broad stone steps ascend to the front entrance of the gym.

The women's Athletic Association governs the Intramural Program. It came into being in the mid 1930's. It has three officers and one representative from each sorority and one from the Independent Women. Its main functions are to set up rules and schedules and assign timers and scorers for the sports. It also chooses an all-star team from each sport. At the end of the year the WAA chooses those girls who are to be admitted to

Pan-Olympics.Outstanding Women

Pan-Olympics is an honorary organization that honors girls for participation and outstanding ability in Intramurals. Beginning this year only juniors and seniors will be invited to membership. Also beginning this year each member will receive a blazer. Money for these blazers is raised by the WAA by selling peanuts and popcorn at the football and basketball games.

Jane Burns Campbell, Miriam Townshend, Carolyn Williamson, Jenny Hurst, Sallie Myhr Thomas, Mary Rodriguez and Mary Rogers.

More to Come

The Intramural program this year started off with volley ball which was won by AOPi. Basketball will begin about the middle of February. There will be softball in April. In May a field day will be held. It will contain a track meet, archery, ping pong, and badminton.

WITH THE COMING OF SPRING the minds of young people also turn to the game that has come to be known as the national pastime. Here on the campus the baseball "fever" also takes hold in a big way. Yes, jeering the umpire goes to a certain extent.

ton. In the past these were all separate events.

In addition to Intramurals, there is a varsity volley ball and basketball team. These girls are chosen after the Intramural sport is over and play outside teams.

Both the men's and the Women's Intramural programs are operating very successfully at the present. There is a bright future for Intramurals at Southwestern. Participation is very high and attendance at the games is good.
