A swift trip to Paris was offered to rushees by members of Zeta Tau Alpha. The tres gai company included typical American tourists, a typical (?) French painter and a typical (!) French model.

Editors To Meet With New Students

Students interested in doing any kind of work on either the Lynx or the Sou'wester are invited to meet with the Editors and Mary Rodriguez, Commissioner of Publications, in Room 100 of Palmer Hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The college newspaper and annual are run by volunteer staffs and many new students are needed this year.

What's New At Zoo U.

All the old students on campus are noticing the many improvements made during the past summer. Much of the credit for the work goes to Mr. Rollow and his work crews, who have done everything from interior decorating to chopping down dead trees.

Robb and White Halls have been given new coats of their usual light green paint, and the tattered slipcovers on the chairs have vanished.

Orientation Gives New Students First Look at Southwestern

by Emory Johnson

There are a number of words which would serve to describe my impression of orientation. A few of them are rush (two kinds), tests, tours, names (hundreds, all disconnected from the correct persons), shoes (in a pile on the floor, naturally), dust (or mud, take your pick), and best of all, getting acquainted with the most wonderful people and the most wonderful school imaginable.

PRC News

The Protestant Religious Council held their annual retreat September 11-12, at Bear Creek Lake. Representatives from the Baptist Student Union, the Canterbury Club, the Methodist Student Fellowship, the Westminster Fellowship, the Religious Seminar, the YWCA, and the PRC, officers as well as the advisor, Dr. Dan Rhodes, and Mrs. Majorie Gilliam attended. Plans were made for the coming year.

Among those plans coming up soon is the Hearth Supper Sunday, Sept. 19, at five o'clock, to which the entire student body is invited. From the Hearth transportation will be provided to the various denominational groups for their programs.

Dorm Worship will begin Wednesday night, Sept. 22. Charlene Jayroe will be in charge of Voorhies. A group from Voorhies will lead a service at Evergreen, Wednesday night at 10 P.M.

Beginning Oct. 1, a series of chapel programs will be held by each of the four denominational groups as well as by the Religious Seminar and the YWCA.

Religious Emphasis Week will be held Oct. 24-27 with Dr. W. A. Benfield from Louisville as our speaker.

I don't know what the boys were doing Monday night, but if they were having as much fun as we girls had at the party the counselors sponsored, they were well provided for. The entertainment at that party in the basement of Voorhies was especially good.

Of course, the mixer Tuesday night was a wonderful opportunity for all the freshmen and transfers to meet each other and also lots of upperclassmen. George Hearn, Mary George Beggs, Lloyd Templeton, and Harriet Byrd helped make the evening especially enjoyable, and I know all of us want to thank the Student Council for planning such a good time for us.

Dynamite

Tuesday morning we were presented with adorable little red books the color of dynamite sticks, and with contents nearly as explosive! There is a section called 'Freshman Regulations' that is really something to read. (And believe me, you had better!)

The less said about the tests, the better. To most of us, they represent a necessary evil.

I tried to find out what the boys did while we were being rushed so hard last week, but all the replies were vague. I hear they were being pretty rushed quite a lot, too.

I could talk to you all day, but the look the editor just gave me tells me I'd better say 'bye now. He can't let a frosh say too much, you know.

Southwestern's Orientation is a wonderful thing. It really instilled in me the feeling of being part of the school. From now on, my motto will be

Class of '54

Is no more.

Class of '58

Is strictly great.

TRYOUTS HELD FOR "THE MISER"

Tryouts are being held this afternoon in the Speech Shack for the season's first play, "The Miser." Parts are open for eight men and three women, and all interested students are invited to meet with Professor Hill to read through the play.

"The Miser" is by the French playwright Moliere, who authored "Tartuffe," the closing play of the Spring semester. As the title suggests, "The Miser" is the story of a man who is extremely careful with his money, and of his efforts to marry the members of his family to wealthy people.

The play will be presented during the week of Homecoming.

KAPPA DELTA

Kappa Delta entertained new students at an angel-type rush party featuring assorted angels plus a hardworking devil who effectively provided an un-angelic note.

September Song

*"Oh it's a long, long time
From May to December;
But the days grow short
When you reach September."*

Where were you and what were you doing in May of this year? A lot of things have happened since then, and many more changes will be made before December is upon us.

High school days were drawing to a close for many of you—days you perhaps thought could never be equaled for activity and pleasure. Now you're at Southwestern and, by the end of 1954, you will have discovered that high school only whet your appetite for college days.

Those of us who are returning to the lair after the summer's vacation feel the brush of passing days, too. In December we'll be a little more mature, know a few more friends, have a bit more knowledge, and be generally better prepared for life than we were in May. Yes, it is a long time from Spring to Winter.

Yet, suddenly, we're aware that the long summer days are gone. Our vacation has ended and it's time to begin serious study once again. When the Autumn weather turns the leaves to flame, one hasn't got time to wait for "next semester"—the time is now. The exam period is nearly five months hence, but a strong beginning now will save us a lot of trouble then. And these few vintage years we spend at Southwestern are the most important ones of our lives—there is much to gain, but also much to lose.

As the days dwindle down to a precious few, we become a part of the age old pattern. How will our portion of it look? . . . Truth, Loyalty, and Service are the fundamental precepts of Southwestern—let's let them also be the libretto of our "September Song."

Can You Do It?

The Sou'wester needs anyone who is interested in putting out a really topnotch student newspaper this year. If you have had experience on a high school paper, in writing, typing, proofreading, business management, or make-up; if you have any journalistic ability or inclination, please sign your name to one of the lists which are being circulated around the campus.

Sou'wester Policy

(The following is a condensed statement of the Publications Board policy for The Sou'wester.)

The Sou'wester will, at all times, attempt to be the honest voice of the Southwestern student body, of the faculty, and of the various college and student administrative bodies.

The Sou'wester will not be a "gripe sheet" to air personal grievances or campaigns.

The Sou'wester will, in a responsible manner, accuse, defend, or promote—as the situation may be. This activity will, at all times, be conducted on a highly constructive plane. Statements made in the form of news accounts or editorials in the Sou'wester will be substantiated at all times.

The Sou'wester will not contain columns of the "back fence gossip" types. Campus social news will be featured in sorority and fraternity columns especially reserved for that purpose, and in other articles as the editor sees fit. Cheap tales and personal tattling concerning the social lives of the students or faculty will have no place in the Sou'wester.

The duty of the Editorial Staff of the Sou'wester will be to inform, criticize, and recommend, in a straightforward, constructive and unbiased manner.

There will be no racial or religious prejudices expressed in the pages of the Sou'wester.

Re-Pate-tion

Southwestern is a rather unusual institution established way back when, for some reason or other. As it came down through the years, it began to spread out here and there until it finally had a building on most of the far-flung corners of the campus.

The new freshmen will need to know what some of these edifices are since most Southwesterners have to enter them at least once during their college career.

Fargason Field House:

This humped old structure, with its hallowed covering of green and brown mold, has been a temporary gymnasium since 1929. After mulling over several ideas on what to do with it (how many ideas can you get in 25 years?) the high muckety-mucks decided to keep it around for show until about 1959 and then sell it to antique dealers board by board.

Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium:

One of the bright spots of the campus, the new gym is reached by safari through Southwestern's private dust bowl. The coaching staff plans all its athletic strategy there while marooned during the rainy season.

Palmer Hall:

This administrative and classroom building is located squarely in the center of scenic Palmer Lake where the Science Building staff has succeeded in breeding the largest mosquito known to man.

Voorhies Hall:

This is the home of the upper-class girls, the campus branch of the YWCA, and the Argyle Knitting Union, Local 103. Voorhies is also known as the home of the "Passion Pits," four little rooms where happy Southwestern couples indulge in bridge games, popcorn popping, and other convivial habits.

Burrow Library:

New, modern, and air conditioned, this building is every Southwestern student's pride and joy? There one should study, maintain a dignified silence, and be very, very good. Unusually naughty freshmen are sometimes fed to the librarians.

We see no need to mention the dining hall and the Liar. They are well known and beloved by all. (Won't you join me at the Parkside for dinner?)

TODAY'S COUPLET:

Girl's who listen to Mr. Dior
Will stay in the dorm for evermore.
THE LAIR PHILOSOPHER REPEATS:

Many a college student who thinks he has drunk at the fountain of knowledge has really only gargled.

WHAT'S NEW

In their places are found the bright red and green plastic fabrics which add color to the rooms and life to the chairs, all of which have been rebuilt. Evergreen can boast more improvement than almost any other building at Southwestern. The whole building has been painted, the bathrooms improved, curtains have been hung in the hall windows, a new linoleum has been laid in the kitchen, and a stove has been added for a little home cooking.

The long awaited portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Burrow arrived last week and are now hanging in the lobby of the library. Downstairs the Adult Education staff is enjoying the new air conditioning unit installed only a couple of weeks ago. Behind Burrow, the parking area is clearly marked by new curbs, and everyone is rejoicing that the new walks have been laid, thereby putting an end to muddy feet.

The Lair has lost the bulky counters and has replaced them with a small fountain built into the wall and machines which sell coffee.

—with Scott Byrd

Well, here I am again at the start of another utterly mad year; but after this last hectic week, I don't know whether to tell you to go "On the Town" or to say, "You've had it."

Rather than brood about it, however, I'll just give you a run through of some of the places to go right now and let you make the decision. At the Peabody Skyway for the next three weeks will be Dean Hudson and orchestra to provide music for you dancers. Ann Lorain will be their songstress, in case you just want to watch. Of course, the Parkside is going full blast these nights, if you're after a mixture of a little food and drink and much talk.

The current down-town movies offer quite a variety. Following on the lumbering, overdressed heels of THE EGYPTIAN at the Malco is ON THE WATERFRONT, whose credits almost read like some sort of Who's Who. Elia Kazan directed, Budd Schulberg wrote the script, Leonard Bernstein composed the score, Boris Kaufman photographed it. The stars of this expose of traditionalized murder and racketeering in the waterfront unions are Marlon Brando, Karl Malden, Eva Marie Saint, and Lee J. Cobb. Need more be said?

Sinatra Plays Thug

To prove that there's plenty of ham on the famous skinnybones, Frank Sinatra plays a thug in SUDDENLY at the State. The film revolves around a plot to assassinate some U. S. President or other in a little town conveniently called Suddenly. (The better to give the movie a name, my dear.) Sterling Hayden is also in the cast and possibly does some acting.

Fans of J. Fred Muggs may be interested in GORILLA AT LARGE at the Strand. Cameron Mitchell and Anne Bancroft star, but I don't know which one has the title role. At the Warner, Randolph Scott portrays (according to the ads) "the man who tackled the toughest killers after everyone else gave up." Any takers? Also in THE BOUNTY HUNTER is Dolores Dorn, who "gave the Bounty Hunter a different kind of reward," whatever that means. Lana Turner, Clark Gable, and Victor Mature are in BETRAYED at the Palace, and I have nothing to say about it.

Garbo and Harlow Coming

Also of interest to movie lovers is the series of classic American films at Burrow Library. A ticket to the five movies is only two dollars, and it may be obtained through the Adult Education Department. The series includes Greta Garbo as CAMILLE and Jean Harlow as BOMBSHELL.

Among the attractions—other than sporting events—which are headed our way in the next couple of months are Rodgers and Hammerstein's THE KING AND I, Yma Sumac of the multi-octaves, Opera Theater's production of THE BARBER OF SEVILLE, an outstanding Sunday series of old films on WHBQ (including BODY AND SOUL and A DOUBLE LIFE), a new movie technique called VistaVision, and the dedication of Mallory Gymnasium.

But now isn't the time to consider the shape of things to come; now is the time for all good men to go ON THE TOWN! And these good men better make sure the girls are along.

To The New Students . . .

(Welcoming address at the Freshman Mixer, Sept. 14)

To the new students of the College I bid a sincere welcome to Southwestern in behalf of the Student Body; some of whom you know, the others you will soon know. I welcome you to the Spirit of Southwestern. It is a uniquely friendly spirit. You will make friends here—friends that will last forever.

I welcome you in behalf of the Student Council. This group has been elected not only to serve those who have elected them, but also you who are new to the campus. We are interested to know your feelings on the issues that will come up this year. We seek to be an official expression of campus opinion.

Your first year at Southwestern will be a memorable year. We wish you an abundance of good times and worth-while experiences.

Steins Have Full Summer

Busy summer days. And so have had the Steins—Dr. and Mrs. Jay W., that is. Besides looking after the ordinary everyday duties which awaited them at the Library, they found time in these few summer months to organize a student chorus and present one in a series of theatrical productions.

It was, and still is, the Steins' belief that the reading of music is one of the essentials of a well-rounded education, and that unaccompanied part-singing can be as entertaining as instrumental music. Thus, early in June the Steins brought together a group of young students, and formed the Summer Singers at Southwestern. From an extensive variety of selections studied during their twice-weekly meetings the Summer Singers presented in mid-August a Summer Evening Musicale, a program consisting of melodies and harmonies of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

In July responsibilities—and fun—doubled, when Mrs. Stein directed the first local performances of Peter Ustinov's successful comedy, "The Love of Three Colonels." The Summer Theatre, as it was called, under the sponsorship of the Southwestern Drama Department (Ray Hill) and the Memphis Adult Education Department, presented the play in arena style on two consecutive nights in the basement of Burrow Library. Able and familiar performers, such as Ann Brown Field, Carolyn Marsh, Allen Bates, Bill Burch, Ray Hill, and Mr. Stein himself, prompted Edwin Howard of the Press-Scimitar to speak well of the "artfully done" production.

Busy summer days draw to a close, but at the mention of Future Plans the Steins' reaction suggests strongly that business will not dwindle, regardless of atmospheric conditions.

Meet The New Profs

Ten new faculty members, including two associate professors, have been appointed to fill vacancies and meet expansion needs at Southwestern. Eight departments—education, English, mathematics, music, physics, psychology, Romance language and sociology—are affected.

Education

Dr. Perry D. Scrivner, chairman of the department of education and psychology at Arlington State College, Arlington, Texas, has been named associate professor of education.

An English major graduate of Birmingham Southern College, he received his master of arts degree in religious education from Emory University. Dr. Scrivner, who is writing an introductory text in American education, took his master's degree in the philosophy of education from Yale. His doctoral dissertation, "The Development of the Common School Idea in American Education: 1800-1845," was made at the University of Texas.

Dr. Scrivner went to Arlington in 1949 after serving as a high school principal in Alabama, and instructor in English at New Haven, Conn., an accountant for E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., an extension specialist at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn and a training officer for the Veterans Administration.

Psychology

Named associate professor of psychology was Dr. Myrtle Corliss Nash of Springfield Garden, N. Y. She had held an assistant professorship at Drake University, Des Moines, since 1952.

A Graduate of Swarthmore College, Dr. Nash received her master's degree and doctorate from Bryn Mawr. She also studied at Columbia University. Dr. Nash has served as an assistant in the educational department at Bryn Mawr, research associate at Union College in Schenectady, N. Y., and catalog order office manager for Montgomery Ward.

English

An alumnus, James E. Roper, son of Mrs. Joseph A. Laguzzi of 799 North Watkins and Eugene A. Roper Sr. of Jackson, Miss., returns to the campus as assistant professor of English.

Campus Challenges

Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread, and your labor for that which satisfieth not? Harken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good and let your soul delight itself in fatness—Isaiah 55:2.

Build your dream of durable stuff, and it will never fade.

Build your dream of bubbles, and it's gone before it's made.

Now is the time for dreams. For new students there's an entirely different life ahead and even for the old students, there's a new year. This year is the year. You have big plans, ambitions. You're going to do so much, and work so hard, and be such a big success, and . . . But wait a minute. Don't let your excitement choke your dream! So often we wake up to find we've knocked ourselves out working for something that seemed so important at the time. But instead of a dream we've had a nightmare.

Let's not look back at the end of this year and see a string of events that have amounted to nothing. The important things in life are not how popular you can be, how many offices you can get, or how you can make your fraternity or sorority the best. That kind of glory is quick to die. The glory that counts is His, and you need but ask and it will be given.

That's a funny thing about life. The vital and important things are accessible to everyone, and yet, so many of us spend all our time searching for the wrong things in life. We work and then have nothing when all along we could have the best in life if we would but take it. The lasting, lovely things in life are free. Don't waste this year on bubbles, but reach for the Highest. It's there for the asking.

For a cap and bells our lives we pay,
Bubbles we buy with a whole soul's tasking.
'Tis heaven alone that is given away,
'Tis only God may be had for the asking.

—James Russell Lowell

Ann Barr

He was a Rhodes Scholar for two years after his graduation from Southwestern in 1948. Mr. Roper held the Sterling Fellowship at Yale from 1951-52 received his master's degree in 1951. He has completed academic requirements for the doctor of philosophy degree at Yale and soon will conclude his dissertation on "William Blake in the Thought of William Butler Yeats." Mr. Roper has an outstanding record at Southwestern.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS LOOK FAVORABLE

Since August 30, Coach Mays, his staff, and his Lynx have been doing yeoman work at building a team the school can be proud of. The first practice was held on the 30th, and two workouts a day were staged from then to the time school opened Monday, Sept. 13. The squad is working out now at 3:30 in the afternoons.

Football Clinics

On September 4 Southwestern sponsored its first Junior Football Clinic. Two hundred youngsters were present and were given Lynx Cat Buddy buttons which will admit them to the Southwestern games free. The nine prep head coaches were present and gave instruction to the boys. Six new footballs were given away to the boys who won in contests in running, kicking and passing. At lunch afterwards the prep coaches met with the Lynx coaching staff and talked about having another such clinic next year. The high school mentors pledged full support.

On Saturday, September 11, six of the squad members gave a football clinic in a live TV show. They demonstrated the way Coach Mays' Multiple T offense works and how it differs from a regular straight T or a split T. On the afternoon of the 11th, four hundred people watched the Lynx in a practice game in which the squad was split into two teams. Monday, September 13, another football clinic was held, this time for the Southwestern Men of Memphis. The entire squad was introduced and did some demonstrating.

For the first three weeks of practice Jack E. Caskey, Jr. helped the regular coaching staff. Jack helped Coach Mays with backfield work in the past and Rick values his ability very much. Jack is a fine football player and is in Vanderbilt. Oscar Wright and Reg Germany are working with the line and Coach Bill Maybry is serving as trainer and helping with the ends. The scouting will be headed by Director of Athletics, Glenn Johnson.

Squad Members

The squad now consists of 35 boys with perhaps two or three more to report soon. This does not include Louis Zbinden and Andy Gandy who have had to drop from the squad with injuries. Louis, who comes from McCallie in Chattanooga, reinjured his back, and Andy Gandy from Memphis was forced to drop with bad ankles. Thus far the line is light and inexperienced but has shown much improvement. The fact that there is only one senior lineman, Jim Jones, a tackle, is very encouraging. The competition is stiff for all position and Coach Mays stated that he intends to use thirty boys in every game.

The ends include Tom Tosh, a junior, captain of the team, sophomore J. E. Edens, who along with Tosh is a returning letterman, freshmen Bob Rose and John Dunlop of Memphis, Sammy Shaifer from Leland, Mississippi, and Buck Wade from Batesville, Mississippi. At tackle Jim Gillis and Joe Clarke are returnees along with Jones. New candidates are Charles Sullivan of Tunica, Mississippi, and Dave Simpson and John Kopsinis of Memphis. Returning guards are junior Gerald Smith, sophomores Gordon Robertson and Dick Brankstone, and Roxie Lee, who previously lettered here in the backfield and has just returned to school. Freshmen are Bob Templeton of Memphis, Dick Crawford of Jonesboro, Arkansas. The Centers are Earl Browne and Jim Breezeale, both of whom have played a year of football here. Browne is a junior and Jim a sophomore.

In the Backfield

According to Coach Mays the back looks especially promising and

Lynxcats Show Strong Defense Against Navy

Southwestern's renovated football team tried its wings Friday night in a practice game against Memphis Navy. The score was 14 to 0 in favor of the strong Navy squad.

The game, which was supposed to be nothing more than an informal scrimmage, turned out to be a game in the true sense of the word. Referees were on hand and time was kept. The only rule which was not observed was that of limited substitution.

Southwestern took the opening kickoff and, mainly by the running of Higgason and Martin, pushed to within the ten-yard line, where we lost the ball on downs. On a fumbled punt Navy was given a chance to score from inside the five yard line. The Southwestern line showed fine defensive form in a goal-line stand which stopped Navy cold.

Carroll, a freshman, round out the contenders for the job.

The first regular season's game for the Lynx will be held here at Fargason Field on October 2 against Mississippi College. It will be the third contest of the year for the Mississippians.

During the second quarter Southwestern showed a defensive spirit that has been a long time lacking. They held the big, powerful Navy squad no less than four times inside the ten. Heidelberg's punting in this quarter got us out of hot water twice. His punts for the night averaged about fifty yards.

Very little yardage was gained around our ends as Tosh, Edens, Dunlop, and Shaifer played good defensive ball. Our pass defense showed up as weak against the good passing of Wallace, but more practice and work should remedy this. Our line had much to show on defense at times, but seemed unable to open holes in the big Navy line as they stopped us time and time again. The backfield, as Coach Mays said, looked as if it had everything and ability in all departments.
