Dr. Lyons Receives HEW Study Grant

Dr. Harold Lyons, professor of chemistry, has been awarded an additional $15,334 grant by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for continued study of the chemistry of the aging and disease processes in the human intervertebral disc.

Dr. Lyons, along with Dr. Douglas H. Sprunt, professor of pathology at the University of Tennessee Medical School, seeks to determine the metabolic defects which may lead to the common malady known to the layman as a "slipped disc."

The research is sponsored by the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, and started with a study of discs removed at autopsy and at surgery for repair or "slipped discs." The research has now extended to a study of discs removed from "mummies."

Dr. Lyons, at a scientific meeting last year, learned a large field of "mummies" have been naturally preserved in Nubia, a former territory along the upper Nile. Discs from these "mummies," dating from 200-950 A.D., have been sent to Dr. Lyons for study.

Assisting Dr. Lyons in this research is Mrs. Joe Autry, a 1965 Southwestern graduate, Fay Quinn, 1961 graduate of Southwestern, and Joseph McCord, a prospective 1966 honors graduate in chemistry.

"Sing-Out '66 Held At Coliseum Tonight

The Mid-South Coliseum will be the scene of "Sing-Out '66" tonight at 8 p.m. Memphis State University and The Press-Scimitar are sponsoring the two hour song fest which will be composed of patriotic numbers designed to stimulate an increased spirit of national pride in the youthful audience.

There are 135 young people in the "Sing Out '66" company, with over a hundred making stage appearances. All are high school and college students who are traveling all over the nation to promote the "moral rearmament" program. They are devoting time and effort to this cause because they feel that there is a dearth of patriotism in many of today's campuses. Hoping to correct that problem, they gathered some top student talent from all over the country together, wrote their own songs, put together some skits, and set out to as many American campuses as they could afford to visit. Enthusiasm and patriotism are their bywords, and music is their medium.

The movement has been prompted by the recent Vietnam demonstrations and the general lack of national enthusiasm present at some of our colleges and universities. The theory behind "Sing-Out '66" is that by seeing a group of nice looking, intelligent students in favor of the United States, perhaps some of the indifferent and misinformed stance.

Tickets to the program have been distributed free at Southwestern all week by Sam Highsmith. Prior to tonight's performance the Sing-Out party visited numerous Memphis high schools, and sang at a flag raising ceremony at City Hall.

College Mourns Passing Of Dr. Kinney; Memorial Services Observed At Idlewild

By Ed Yarbrough

One of Southwestern's most beloved personalities, Dr. Laurence F. Kinney, died last Tuesday at Baptist Hospital following a prolonged illness. Chairman of the Bible department and a pioneer in adult education in Memphis, Dr. Kinney will always be remembered for his unselfish dedication to the education of young and old alike. He was 63. Funeral services were conducted at Idlewild Presbyterian Church by Dr. David Alexander and Idlewild minister, Dr. Paul Tudor Jones. Classes were suspended Wednesday so that students and faculty members could attend the memorial services.

Dr. Kinney began his work at Southwestern in 1943 when, due to the accelerated draft call of the War period, he was presented with the unusual problem of teaching young men who did not know if they would even be in class from one week to the next. But he adapted to the anxious situation with an ease that earned the respect of all his colleagues, and somehow made his courses applicable to even the men who must have been worrying about their futures in the classroom. Dr. Kinney never failed to consider the student first in all matters of education, often to the exclusion of his own interests.

As one of the founders of the Adult Education Center, Dr. Kinney developed the unique ability to lead a discussion by posing questions that made the participants discover the answers for themselves. Many Memphians still remember those first days of the adult education program and Dr. Kinney's significant role in its success story.

In more recent years Dr. Kinney was Director of the Academic Relations of the AEC and a leader in the Institute for Executive Leadership. Active in civic affairs, he was a popular speaker with local and Mid-South organizations, having served as moderator of the Memphis Presbytery. In 1962 he wrote a denominational study of First Corinthians called NOT LIKE ORDINARY MEN which has been praised by both students and theologians.

After obtaining a bachelor of arts degree from Hampden-Sydney college where he also received an honorary degree, Dr. Kinney earned the bachelor of divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary. He received his master of arts and doctorate degrees from the University of Virginia. Later he did further work at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland, and in 1957 traveled and studied in Palestine.

Dr. Kinney was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha, the Southern Society for Philosophy and Religion, National Association of Biblical Instructors, and was a past president of the Presbyterian Education Association of the South. His writings alone establish him as an eminent Bible scholar and interpreter, but for Larry Kinney scholarship was always both a means and an end in building Christian lives through the inspirations of meaningful human relationships. His passing is mourned by all who knew him and his work, but his memory will live on as a brilliant example for future generations.

Dr. Kinney was born at Montgomery, West Virginia, and before coming to Southwestern taught at the Presbyterian School of Christian Education at Richmond, Virginia. His mother, who survives him, still resides in Huntington, West Virginia. Also, he leaves his wife, Mrs. Kathryn P. Kinney, a daughter, a son, and three sisters. Burial was in Memorial Park.

Famous Cellist Janos Starker To Present Concert In Hardie

Janos Starker, one of the world's greatest cellists, will present a concert in Hardie Auditorium at 8:15, Thursday, April 28. Southwestern students may purchase tickets which are on sale in the Adult Education Center at half price ($1.50).

Starker made his professional debut at the age of ten in his native Hungary. In 1946, he developed a dislike for the political atmosphere of Hungary and left his chair as principal cellist of the Budapest Opera and Philharmonic Orchestra. In 1948 he accepted an offer from conductor Antal Dorati to come to the United States where he became the first cellist in the Dalls Symphony.

A year later, Starker began serving in the same capacity at the Metropolitan Opera and in 1953, he left the company to join the Chicago Symphony under Fritz Reiner.

During his years with the Chicago Symphony, Starker made numerous forays into the solo concert field. One of these exploratory trips took him to Europe, where he encountered a major triumph. Now, Starker devotes part of each year to touring Europe and appearing at the major Music Festivals of the world. His world travels have taken him on tours to Africa and Japan. Since 1958, Starker has been a member of the faculty at Indiana University, where he continues to train hopeful young cellists and to imbue them with his love for the instrument.

"Tops Pops In Op" Will Pop Top On The Ops That Hop To The Top

"Top Pops in Op" is this year's theme of Zeta Tau Alpha's annual Talent Night. Translated into standard English it means Top Popular Entertainers in operation. The program will be held tonight in Hardie Auditorium and is scheduled to begin promptly at 8:07 P.M. An admission charge of 50c for students and $1.00 for adults will be collected at the door. The proceeds will go to the Cerebral Palsy Fund, which is the national philanthropy of Zeta Tau Alpha.

The judges for Talent Night are: Bill Kendall, manager of the Guild Theater; Mrs. Thomas P. Lane, a local music teacher; and Charlie Brown, manager of the Bitter Lemon.

A special feature will be an introductory dance to the music of Michal Olatunji and his drums of passion.

The Pikes will lead off the group entrees with a jazz combo composed of Chuck Shaw, Dale Underwood, and Jim McKnight. The group calls itself "We Three." They will play "The End Crowd," "Exodus," and "Cast Your Fate to the Wind."

The next entry will be 22 AOP's singing "Let's Go Fly A Kite."

Mark Gilly and Mike Hendrick—the "Dynamic Duo"—will play the piano duet "Ledgendo" from Dvorak.

"Let Us Entertain You" will be sung by eight Chi Omega's.

The ATO combo calls itself "The Mothers." Consisting of John Yearwood, Tommy McDow, Steve Cole and Hank Fonde, they will play "Charades" and "The Girl From Ipanema."

The Sigma Nu's have a barber shop quartet which includes Jim Stewart, David Blankenship, John Harrell, and Bill Ward. They will sing "Carolina in the Morning" and one other number.

Fourteen Tri-Deltas will form a song and chorus line singing "If You Don't See What You Want."

The Kappa Deltas have a song and dance number planned.

Among the individual entrees are Betsy Springfield who will sing "Where Is Love" and "Who Will Buy."

Bo Graham, a guitarist, plans to sing some folk songs. Mackie Gober will do a piano medley and Walter Howell, a saxophone medley.

Sharon Ann Hales will sing and dance such numbers as "Second Hand Rose."

Bob Fischbach will play three guitar numbers, "Angie," "Ticklin' the Strings," and "Michelle."

Other individualists include Bowdre Banks, who will do an organ solo, and Jim Fowler, who will sing "Chilly Winds," and "Long Chain."

Other judges deciding on the winners will be a freshman foursome of Zetas, including Martha Bettis, Cindy Vincent, Carolyn Carter, and Ann Frye, who also plan to play and sing.

Talent Night should prove to be a creative, artistic, and imaginative "happening." SO GO CREATIVE—GO TALENT NIGHT—TONIGHT!

French Literature Student Receives Fulbright Grant

Fulbright advisor, Professor Franklin Wright, has announced that Donald Hugh Windham has recently been awarded a U.S. Student Fulbright grant for the 1966-1967 year.

Windham is a senior from Memphis, majoring in French literature and minoring in mathematics. Under the provision of the grant, he will study French literature as a graduate student at the University of Besancon, Faculty of Letters. His tuition, living allowance, and travel expenses for the academic year are covered by the grant.

Draft Test Deadline Set For Tomorrow

The deadline for applications for the Selective Service College (deferment) Qualification Test is tomorrow, April 23, 1966. Forms may still be obtained at the Selective Service System offices in the seventh floor of the Federal Office Building at Main and Poplar downtown. The test, while not mandatory, is recommended for any undergraduate who believes his class standing might not qualify him for a regular 2-S classification. A score of 70 or above is considered passing, and those who pass can count on some protection from immediate re-classification. The test will be given at Southwestern on May 14, May 21, and June 3.

The Last Straw

Indifference can be an irresistible, yet a highly destructive posture to assume when it comes to participation in a politically free community. We tend to praise the enthusiast in government, no matter what his doctrine may be, because he at least does and says something and thereby promotes the overall process of decision-making. But one important distinction differentiates the radical, the conservative, et al. from the mere dissenter; the various terms applied to shades of liberalism at least imply groups which conform to the system and present no fundamental treat to democracy as an ideal.

At Southwestern we have an unhealthy plethora of critics who specialize not in indifference but in antagonism. They have more concern for their own image before a clique than for the entire structure of student government. It is true that such an attitude seldom encourages a following but it can do irreparable damage when it is allowed to flourish despite the fact that the author is not, and never will be, even minimally concerned about the real issues before the Senate. In short, we have developed a bad habit of listening to people who would rather talk through their hats than throw them in the ring.

One of the things that characterizes a successful experiment in self-government is a consensus of concern for its ultimate welfare. Machines, vote-grabbers, and peripheral knippers must be opposed by genuine supporters of the Student Government Association and its ideals, or we can never hope to have a workable system here. The only way to have a benign effect on the cancer of apathy and irresponsible dissension is to look for ways to prove what we believe in particular cases where the SGA is subjected to unfair ridicule. When was the last time you defended your vote on an important issue? If you do not care what becomes of the SGA, then you are not laughing at Bo, Don, or Eleanor when you assert your coolness before the crowd; you are laughing at yourself.

Briggs Student Center Dedication Features Guest Speakers, May 3

Dr. David Alexander will be inaugurated as President of Southwestern at Memphis on Tuesday, May 3, 1966, according to Mr. A. Van Pritchard, chairman of the College's board of directors and executive committee.

A series of impressive campus events will precede the inaugural ceremony, which will be held at 2:00 p.m. on the south terrace of Richard Halliburton Memorial Tower.

On Monday, May 2, at 2:00 p.m., the newly completed Thomas Winston Briggs Student Center will be dedicated, and its facilities will be revealed during conducted tours. This completely air-conditioned building, providing a usable floor area of 22,000 square feet, will house a student snack shop, the campus post office, seminar rooms, student publications, a 30-station modern language center, and several modern spacious lounges.

Dr. Edgar F. Shannon, Jr., President of the University of Virginia, will headline a program for selected guests at a dinner on May 2 in the Student Center at 6:30 p.m.

Registration for the official delegates to the inauguration begins at 8:30 a.m., Tuesday, May 3 in the Richard Halliburton Memorial Tower. At 10:00 a.m. a special convocation will be held in Evergreen Presbyterian Church, for students, delegates and friends of the College, at which Dean of the College Jameson Jones will preside, and Dr. Taylor Reveley, president of Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia will speak.

At 11:45 a.m. (on May 3) a luncheon will be served in the William Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium for official delegates, their wives, the faculty and special guests.

The inaugural procession will proceed from the Palmer Hall cloister and move to the south terrace of the Richard Halliburton Memorial Tower, where the inaugural ceremony will take place at 2:00 p.m. An audience of approximately 2,000 is anticipated for the program which will include music by Mr. David Ramsey, College organist, and the College Choir, directed by Dr. Vernon H. Taylor.

Following the prelude, Dr. Paul Tudor Jones, pastor of Idlewild Presbyterian Church, will give the invocation. Mr. A. Van Pritchard will say a few words of welcome, after which the Southwestern student body president, Don Hollingsworth, will present greetings from the student body.

Greetings from the Alumni Association will be presented by Mr. James M. Breytspraak, president of the Association, and greetings from the faculty will be rendered by Dr. Jameson Jones, Dean of the College.

Mr. E. T. Williams of Oxford University, Warden of Rhodes House and Secretary of the Rhodes Trust, will deliver the installation address. Dr. David Alexander, following his induction as president, will deliver his inaugural address. The benediction and ringing of the Tower bell will conclude the ceremony.

An inaugural reception will follow on the south terrace of Palmer Hall.

Working long hours to ensure the success of the events is the inaugural executive committee, composed of Dr. Fred W. Neal and Dr. Jack U. Russell, co-chairmen, assisted by Dr. M. L. MacQueen. They have the support of faculty and staff members, their wives, alumni, students and members of the board of directors.

Piano Recital Tonight

The College of Music will present a faculty recital tonight at 8:30 at the College featuring Charles Mosby, pianist. Mr. Mosby will play Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 109, Chopin's Barcarolle, Opus 60 and Scherzo in B Minor, Opus 20, and Carlisle Floyd's Sonata, a recent work written in 1957.

President's Appointees Oked By Fearless Student Senate

At this week's meeting the Student Senate approved these presidential appointments: Brady Anderson and Nibs Stroupe were appointed to the Constitution Commission for terms of one and two years respectively. Joe Heflin (1 year), Carol Caldwell (2 years), and Ming Morgan (1 year) were appointed first, second, and third alternates to this commission. Tom McDow and Elaine Rhodes were appointed to the Student Center Program Committee, and Aaron Foster was appointed as MUB assistant.

The Senate also approved the proposed budget for the 1966-67 session. The total budgeted for next year is $2,717.75.

A bill was passed for the appointment of a men's undergraduate board to assist the Commissioner of Undergraduate Men with his duties. This board shall consist of one rep-

0081½

Taking advantage of one of those rare moments between missions Your Agent 008½ was lounging under an oak tree (Quercus Acornis) behind the Refectory musing languidly over past exploits and the beautiful women he had known and loved. Casting his perceptive eyes across the freshly verdant spring landscape, he breathed deeply of the enigmatically sweet, warm breeze and stomped out a cigarette butt in a daffodil. His spell of reverie was broken, however, when a dark shadow briefly crossed that pleasant vista. Snapped back to reality, Your Agent observed that a large, ominously black lorry had backed into the loading area of the Refectory. 008½, mindful of his never-ending duty to the Students of Southwestern and his weekly paycheck, sauntered up to the back of the truck and saw inside a large cargo of wooden crates, unmarked and foul-smelling. Prepared for a quick Karate thrust if need be, Your Brave Agent offhandedly questioned the driver, "Bringing in a fresh load of chickens for Sunday dinner?" The driver's lips curled in a sickening smirk as he grated in the answer: "Naw, buddy, these here are dead cats." Whereupon, he tossed off the first crate onto the waiting dolly.

Letters to the Editor . . .

DR. KINNEY

Dr. Laurence F. Kinney died April 19, 1966—a man who loved and served mankind.

I was in the last section of Man students to have Dr. Kinney as a discussion group leader. We were studying a combined unit on the Greeks and Romans. As we took up the philosophy of Socrates as reflected and elaborated by his disciple Plato, it became apparent to us in our study of Euthyphro that Dr. Kinney employed the method of negative inquiry about which he was instructing us—we also saw that he was a living embodiment of a man with the Socratic mission.

Before our class one day, a group of students was in his office, each student, in turn talking to Dr. Kinney. We learned later that these students had done poorly on the previous Man Quiz and that Dr. Kinney was explaining to each where he had gone wrong.

These are the only personal instances to which I can point and say, "I knew that man." However here are some things I have heard about Dr. Kinney.

Annually, Dr. Kinney treated his advisees to dinner at his home.

Dr. Kinney was much in demand as a discussion group leader—he was flown to the west coast and paid a substantial sum to lead a discussion on how to lead a discussion.

Dr. Kinney has been characterized as one of the "Men Who Made Southwestern."

Although he was dying of terminal cancer and having been advised by his physician to stop teaching, he refused to retire and continued to serve Southwestern.

I am only a freshman, one who had a minimum of contact with this man, and if I saw the great humanity in him, I can only imagine what he must have meant to some of you upperclassmen.

I feel very helpless, wanting to do something and feeling unable to do it. I ask all of you to join me in being thankful for men like Dr. Laurence F. Kinney and in striving to make Southwestern what he saw it to be.

INAUGURATION DAY

On May 3, 1966, an historic event of great significance for Southwestern will occur—the inauguration of Dr. John David Alexander as President of Southwestern at Memphis. In only a year's time we have come to respect and enjoy Dr. Alexander. He has brought new life and vitality to our campus, he has widened our educational perspectives, and more than anything else, he has been a friend to each of us.

We will witness on May 3 an influx of dignitaries from across the United States and even from across the Atlantic. These people will be here to represent their various educational institutions at the inauguration of one of the country's youngest college Presidents.

This day will be the time for the students of Southwestern to show their respect for and appreciation to President Alexander.

OVERHEARD IN LYNX LAIR

New DILEMMA Chairman: What about the theme?

Friend: Laurie told me that you wanted this one railroaded through committee. (Shows theme)

DILEMMA Chairman: Yeah, we need to get this one pushed through so we can get those idiots to vote on it.

Apparently all those who chosen to work under Mr. Burch have been reduced to "idiots" in Chairman Burch's eyes. DILEMMA '67 is no longer in the hands of Southwestern students, but is Mr. Burch's toy. It is recommended to those "idiots" with whom Mr. Burch has condescended to meet to locate for Southwestern students a new chairman who is perhaps less contemptuous of his fellows.

THANKS FROM BOB

To the Faculty, Students, and Staff of Southwestern College:

Bob Poole and family wish to express their sincere thanks. Your generous gift and concern is greatly appreciated. The warmth of your friendship shall never be forgotten and will be with us always.

Present plans are to go into business in Memphis. We are fortunate to have our very loyal and able assistant, Mrs. Council ("Blondie"), remain with us.

We are grateful for having had the opportunity of being with you and serving you these past nine years. They have truly been golden years. Hoping to keep in touch with our many friends.

Sincerely,
Bob Poole

British Under-Minister To The United Nations Explains UN's Important Role In World Peace

By George Atkinson

Last Thursday Sir Roger Jackling, Under-Minister with the British delegation to the United Nations, spoke to interested students on the importance of the U.N. in world politics and the role of the United Nations in achieving world peace.

Sir Roger cleared up much of the enigma that shrouds the U.N. due to the constant debate in this country on the U.N.'s usefulness to the United States and whether or not it has become more than a mere sounding board for Soviet propaganda.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson, in his address to the United Nations, Sir Roger pointed out, presented the essence of British policy, which is that it is most advantageous for Britain that the world be stable and peaceful and that it be a world in which free trade and exchange can be carried out without obstruction because England is a nation of tradesmen and depends upon free exchange for its economic existence.

In answering critics of the U.N.'s peacekeeping role in the world, Sir Roger pointed out the assumption of the charter was that the permanent members of the security council, the most vital body of the U.N., would act in concert, if world peace were threatened. While this has not been done, a war on the scale of the that with Germany and Japan has not started; and this is what it was designed to stop. Even in smaller conflicts, the United Nations has been instrumental in bringing about peace. Examples of this can be found in the situations that developed in Cyprus, Kashmir, the Congo, and the confrontation between the Arab world and Israel. In the Malaysian crisis a veto was cast, but Malaysia did gain international support which brings us to what Sir Roger believes is the U.N.'s justification for existence.

He believes that the U.N. is valuable for bringing conflicts to the discussion table instead of to the battlefield where there resides the threat of escalation to nuclear holocaust. In the time of the "Balance of Terror", where no nation can claim complete superiority over another, the hope of the United Nations and the world is that the United Nations will be an arena of common sense through discussion which will bring to bear the force of world opinion that no government can ignore. For nations as never before are interdependent on one another economically and politically. A threat to the peace of one nation is a threat to all. It is in this light that the U.N. is a paradox: it is indispensable as a forum for world trouble before it has become effective.

Another area of criticism that the would-be destroyers of the U.N. make is that it is a sounding board for Soviet propaganda. But Sir Roger pointed out that it can be used by the West just as effectively in this manner.

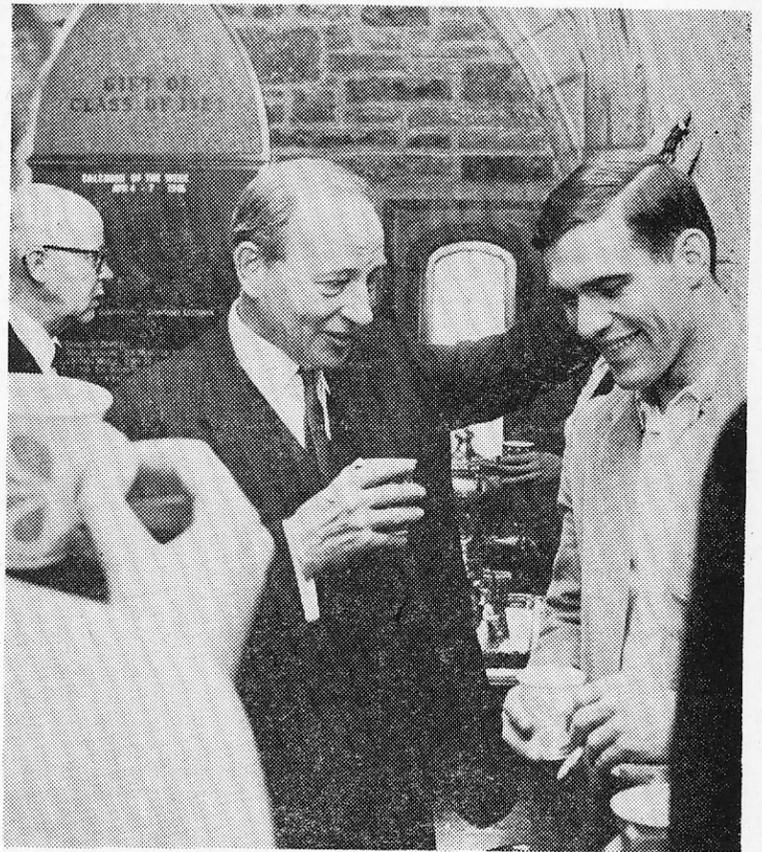

The major challenge for the U.N. today, Sir Roger Jackling explained, besides its being a forum of world opinion, lies with the some fifty emerging nations, primarily the ones in Africa. The world today is still primitive, with two-thirds of the population with a low, low income and living standard; therefore, in a hard environment.

These nations, because of the fast communication of our age, want the affluence that has only been enjoyed by the Western man. They want, in an immeasurable number of years, to gain comparable standards of living. But these nations, whose economies are far from diversified, will be more of a challenge to habilitate than was raising the western European nations out of the disaster of World War II to industrial production.

The skills and know-how in Europe were there after the War. It is the technical knowledge that these underdeveloped countries do not have and these are the keys to their economic growth. To keep these nations from falling under totalitarianism and becoming tools of the communists is paramount. Therefore, we must eliminate illiteracy in these areas of rich and untapped natural resources.

One of the more significant observations made by Sir Roger was that the East-West cold war is irrelevant to these new countries. They believe that the U. S. is so intent on stopping communism that the financial aid given them is not so much an end but a means to prevent communist overthrow fomented by weak economies. This is indeed understandable. It is only through making life more tolerable for man that a stable world becomes conceivable, and peace obtainable.

SIR ROGER JACKLING and Mike Whitaker engage in a friendly discussion of politics as Mike enjoys a bit of the British Under Minister's dry humor to accompany the customary coffee and cookies.

Lusty Conflagration Threatens KS House As Firemen And Frats Dash To Rescue

For those of you who firmly hold to the conviction that nothing exciting ever happens at Zoo U., it is my hope that you attended the Kappa Sigma Open House last Friday Night, 7:15-7:35 P.M. In case you missed the affair, however, here is an eye witness account.

At approximately 7:10 P.M., five minutes before the outset of the open house, smoke was seen billowing upward through the holes in the roof of the KS house. Bravely searching the source of such, I found Rick Eckels burning incense with Gail Woodville in the water heater closet. Matters soon got out of hand and by 7:11 a large fire broke out in the water heater closet and spread throughout the house. Quickly sizing up the situation, Ricky Thomas and Richard Hayley started a two man glass brigade, and it was not long before they were both put out. In the back, Don Munch was using a little fire water also. In the meantime, super-cool Franklin Sanders had locked himself in the bathroom in order to decide what kind of image he was going to create for himself for next week.

By 7:15 P.M. things really began to move. Fireman's Local 143 arrived on the scene and smashed out the windows. Bill Brooks and Andy Johnson were also smashed. Outside Grand Master Jim Cole was busily at work with an insurance policy in one hand and a flame thrower in the other. George Abraham, who always has something in his bag for everyone, was having a ball directing fire fighting operations. By 7:20 a large crowd had gathered around the house shouting "Jump! Jump!" at Didelot and Houts, who were praying on the roof. Greg Smith subdued Cole, although he got burned for the second time in his life. The Nu-Nus flew by and rescued Didelot and Houts, but collided with the Pike fire truck. Tommy Gaines broke through the back wall and rescued Saunders, who was stewed in the toilet. He looked quite flushed. Saved from the holocaust was the Dean Diehl Memorial Pool Table, thanks to water left over from the KA flood of '63. By 7:35 P.M. conditions quieted down considerably and the party quickly broke up. Later the smoke began to settle around Palmer, pierced only by the Tower lights and rapturous melody which rang forth from the KS house as Aaron Foster led the brothers in "Ain't Gonna Need This House No Longer", a sure winner in All-Sing '66.

Last of Film Series Will Be "The Fall"

Final film in the Adult Education Center's "Filmmaker as Philosopher" series will be "The Fall" in Spanish with English subtitles to be shown at 4, 7 and 9 p.m., Friday, April 29.

This is the first film by the highly acclaimed Argentine director, Leopold Torre Nilsson, to be shown in Memphis. Maintaining a constancy of theme, Torre Nilsson examines a young girl's search for values in a puritanical environment. The action takes place in a most peculiar household an centers about four very unconventional children who care for, but apparently hate the irneurotic mother. The girl tries to make something of a life for herself, but is slowly drawn into the weird and defiant world created by children.

Student admission is seventy-five cents; adult, one dollar.

Sometimes a big and powerful university goes down at the hands of a meager college. Ole Miss is athletically powerful; Southwestern is generally weak. When the two schools met Tuesday it was not the reenactment of Aesop's "The Lion and the Mouse," instead it was sheer skill, strength, and determination matched so evenly that it wasn't until the last doubles match was over that Southwestern emerged victorious.

Certainly football is the undisputed first with the Mississippians, but as members of the SEC the state university of 4,000 would seem a severe threat to any college of a thousand. No matter what the reasons, Southwestern's tennis squad is HOT this season. They defeated the Rebels on March 28 at Oxford 6-3, the first time a Southwestern tennis team has beaten them at home in over ten years. They have beaten one of the strongest powers in the Mississippi Valley, Washington University, 5-4, and now they have taken their first two straight victories from Ole Miss in many a season 5-4.

Coach Derrick Barton, head tennis coach, suffered a rather serious ulcer attack last weekend. He has been hospitalized in the Baptist Hospital. Team captain Currie Johnston handled preparations in the Tuesday match and for his official scorer he drafted the Athletic Director, Coach Bill Maybry.

Track Coach Freeman Marr who started with 22 thinclads is down to 16. It didn't bother him or his faithful members—they went undefeated for their regular season. Their 93-53 victory at Sewanee handsomely lowered their lofty noses, and clinched Southwestern's 50th dual meet victory. Quite an accomplishment for this oftentimes lethargic campus.

Once again Barry Boggs has proved his decathlon abilities by scoring over 19 points a meet for the Lynx. His specialties are the broad, high, and the triple jump. He is also valuable in the 100 yard dash, the 440 yard relay, and the one mile relay. Of more recent achievement is the 330 yard intermediate hurdles. The rewards have been appropriate: twice Barry has been selected by the coaches of the College Athletic Conference as the Outstanding Track Athletic, once his freshman, and once his sophomore year.

Intramural Action Proceeds Apace As Softball, Golf Follow Handball

In intramural fraternity sports, action has been extremely competitive this spring.

First of all, in badminton Sigma Alpha Epsilon took first place, as veteran John Boswell led the Sig Alphas to victory.

In handball the competition was particularly strenuous. Taking first place in the handball individual tournament was Independent Bob Morris, as the SAE's took the team competition.

The SAE team was led by Bick Johnson and Bert Chafin, who played number one and two for the Sig Alphas and by Tim Greaves and Will Hayley, who played doubles. The SAE's went undefeated in the league action in team play.

However, in the individual tournament, Bob Morris was too tough for Johnson and took first place in two straight games. To get to the finals Morris defeated Bert Chafin, pre-tournament favorite, and Johnson beat Tim Greaves in a close two-out-of-three series.

Intramural golf will be played April 26 and 28, Tuesday and Thursday, with the tee-offs starting promptly at 1:30 at Audubon Public Golf Course.

Softball action has gotten underway and the schedule for next week is:

JUNIOR BARRY BOGGS has been the stalwart leader of the Lynx cindermen this year as he has taken quite a few firsts in the high jump, broad jump, and triple jump. The Lynx are preparing for the Southwestern Invitational Relays to be held Saturday, April 30.

Lynx 9 Defeat Hope College But Error Plague Sags Record

By Vince Vawter

The Southwestern Lynx started the Easter vacation on the right foot but since a 6-4 win over Hope College, the Lynx have yet to win a game. On April 7, the Lynx again played host to the Flying Dutchman from Holland, Michigan and were set back 2-6. April 12 saw the Lynx drop two games to Calvin College by scores of 0-6 and 1-14. The Lynx were held to 7 hits while Calvin smashed out 26. Another doubleheader was played with Quincy College from Quincy, Ill. on April 14, and again the Lynx saw no victories. Both ends of the doubleheader were dropped by scores of 0-8 and 3-7.

On April 16, the Lynx, trying hard to get back in the win column, played Lambuth College of Jackson, Tennessee to a 3-5 score. The Lynx were again plagued by errors, giving Lambuth the win with no earned runs.

Infielder Randy McKean leads the team in batting with a .364 average while outfielder Bob Croker is second with .318. John Farese, hitting at a .271 pace leads the team in stolen bases with 8. The doubles and triples categories are lead by Bubba Clark and Bob Dickson with 4 and 3 respectively.

In the pitching department, Steve Turner has a record of 3-4 and Jim Mitchell is next with 2-4. Mitchell leads the pitching staff with 38 strikeouts while Bill Smith has the lowest earned run average of 1.86.

Southwestern is 5-11 for the season and has 7 games left plus the CAC tournament in St. Louis. The first away game for the Lynx will be played tomorrow in Jackson, Tennessee. Lambuth College will be their opponent.

Lynx Netters Edge Ole Miss With McCarty-Ramsey Win

Earlier this season the Lynx tennis team defeated Ole Miss 6-3 in Oxford. On Tuesday, April 19, however, it appeared that the Rebels would make good their revenge. The first three singles matches went to the visitors as did the first doubles match. Then freshmen Nick Ramsey, Ken Stanley, and John Richardson took the number three doubles and Ramsey teamed with sophomore Hayes McCarty to take the number two doubles decision and the meet.

The victory left the Lynx with an 8-4 record for the season.

Results: Singles
 Brad Havius (M) over Arnold Drennen (S), 6-2, 10-8
 Mike Baier (M) over Hayes McCarty (S), 6-4, 8-6.
 Dan Turnell (M) over Currie Johnston (S) 6-4, 6-3
 Nick Ramsey (S) over Bill Havius (M) 6-4, 4-6, 7-5
 Ken Stanley (S) over Floyd Suizer (M) 6-1, 6-1
 John Richardson (S) over Hap Woodson (M) 6-1, 6-2

Maybry Clarifies Intramural Rules

Athletic Director William Maybry clarified the relations between varsity and intramural sports yesterday to avoid the confusion that has risen this spring and in the past seasons. When an official practice starts a letterman in that sport or anyone out for that sport at the present time is ineligible for all intramurals while that sport is in season.

Everyone thinks that this is aimed at individuals. It is not; it is a very important rule which has been followed for twelve years for the protection of our varsity sports.

Several mistakes have been made in the past and several releases signed that were against this rule, but in the future this rule, Coach Maybry said, will be strictly enforced.

Student Body Votes To Select SAU Officers & Track Queen

A vice-president and seven class representatives of the Student Athletic Union will be elected in a general election held today. Also the 1966 Track Queen and two Princesses will be chosen from a field of ten nominees. The results of the Track Queen selection will not be revealed until the Southwestern Invitational Track Tournament on April 30.

The ballot had Richard Strautman and Jim Cardaman running for Vice-President of SAU, and Mary Jane Riegler will run unopposed for Secretary-Treasurer. Jim Whittington, who was elected Commissioner of Athletics in the recent student government poll, automatically assumes the presidency of SAU under a new consolidation rule passed last year in the Senate.

Also competing for posts in the Union are:

One girl and one boy representative will be selected from each class, except in the Junior class which has only one aspirant.
