K.A. Host To Province At Dance At Colonial Club Tomorrow Nite

Ball To Follow Banquet For Frat Members

Delegates From Eight Chapters Will Be Here for Convention

This week end Alpha Epsilon chapter of Kappa Alpha fraternity is serving as host to the Candler Province Convention. The eight K.A. chapters in Tennessee and Kentucky which make up the province are gathered here for their biennial meeting and tomorrow night will be entertained by the Southwestern chapter at a banquet and dance at the Colonial Country Club at 8:30.

Business and committee meetings will take up all of Saturday morning and will be followed by a luncheon at the chapter house before the delegates attend the Lynx-Volunteer football game. At this luncheon the Kappa Alpha Sponsors for the various chapters will be introduced.

The Sponsors chosen for the convention are Virginia Heppel who will represent the Southwestern chapter, Cary Eckert representing the University of Tennessee, Justine Klyce of Vanderbilt, Louise Jennings for Sewanee, Barbara Jane Robinson for Transylvania, June Bostick for Georgetown, Arabia Wooten for the University of Kentucky, and Meredith Moorhead for the University of Louisville.

The members and guests will attend the banquet where Ransom H. Bassett of Louisville, Province Commander, and Dr. W. S. Hamilton, Atlanta, former Knight Commander will speak. After the banquet the dance will begin at 8:30 with Hugh Anderson and his orchestra playing. The club will be decorated in grape-like clusters of blue balloons and at each end of the ball room will be tall candelabra with white tapers. A revolving ball will be suspended from the ceiling in the center of the room. Favors will be presented to the sponsors by the presidents of each of the visiting chapters.

Lynx Students On WHBQ Forum Program

On last Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 5, nine Southwestern students conducted an informal discussion over radio station WHBQ. The students were Frank Hammet, Charles Cable, Jimmy Collier, George Edwards, Bob Cogswell, Willis Ensign, Bill Moorhead, George Case, and James Cogswell. The question for discussion was, "Should the United States promote and participate in an international federation of democracies?" The subject was derived from the plan proposed by Clarence K. Streit, in his recent book, "Union Now."

Rev. Robert W. Jones, of the First Unitarian Church in Memphis, is in charge of the program, which is conducted each Tuesday afternoon, from 5:30 to 6:00 p.m. It is hoped that Southwestern's Nistist Club will periodically take part on these programs in the future.

EPISCOPAL CLUB ENTERTAINS

Members of the Episcopal Club entertained the children of the Church Home on Wednesday with a Halloween treat. They were brought first to the campus and then taken by members of the group to a movie. This entertainment, which was financed by donations of the various members, was the first to be given this year and proved to be a great success.

The Episcopal Club will also hold its first Corporate Communion this Sunday in the chapel at the St. Luke's Church and a breakfast will be served afterwards. Members bringing guests will please notify the president, Dan West.

Bobcats Trim Murray, 14-13; Knight Stars

Freshmen Come From Behind To Chalk Up Well-Earned Win

By JIM NEW

MURRAY, Ky., Nov. 7.—(Special to The Sou'wester)—Showing the same fighting spirit and grim determination that carried them to victory over the powerful Ole Miss Frosh, the Southwestern Bobcats surged from behind to snatch victory from the rugged freshmen of Murray Teachers College tonight. Doyle Knight, playing sensationally throughout the fray, was easily the outstanding player on the gridiron.

Throughout the first quarter, the Kentucky team, who had obviously been pointing for this encounter, were clearly superior. During this period, Sasine, who proved the whole Murray team, returned a Southwestern punt 48 yards to score for the Teachers and put them in the lead. This lead was more securely established by the extra point which was kicked by Lip-ton.

Before much of the second quarter had passed away, Captain Doyle Knight, of the Bobcats, drew first blood for Southwestern on a beautiful executed end-around lateral play. McKinney's kick was good for the extra point.

Later, after Oscar Williams, who played a bang-up game, had brought the ball into striking distance on the

REVERBERATIONS ON WHO'S WHO

An Open Letter To Dr. Cooper

(The following letter was contributed by a member of the student body. In accordance with common journalistic practice, we will withhold the name of the author, at his request. We want it clearly understood that the opinions expressed in this letter reflect the views of the author, and not necessarily those of the Sou'wester).

MY DEAR MR. COOPER:—

We suppose it isn't quite the thing to do—to sit down and send you an anonymous letter through the medium of the college newspaper, but we aren't so good at editorials and if we signed our real name, there wouldn't be much chance of getting in Who's Who next year, would there?

Frankly, Mr. Cooper, the choices made for your own little private Hall of Fame weren't even amusing this year. But we are writing to you for a purpose other than to condemn your individual choices. We are hoping that this letter will cause a change in the method of selection and may lead to a better and more representative group. May we say in passing concerning our references that any resemblance to persons living or dead is purely intentional.

First, we would recommend that the group be limited to seniors. This is done in other colleges and has been the accepted practice here until this year. What was the matter, couldn't you think of eleven seniors. And surely the three juniors who received the honor his year would prefer to have it in their senior year rather than their junior. Or do you intend giving it to them both times?

Second, we would recommend that a trial list of twenty eligibles be chosen by the Student Council and submitted to a faculty group (you'll notice we said group) with a brief resume of the things they've done in their three years on the campus. After all, the purpose of Who's Who is only to recognize one thing—outstanding leadership—and not to bring to attention your own private idea of who is who or even your idea of who is going to be who in future life.

Third, we would recommend that this faculty group would then vote on the list of eligibles and thus make the final selections.

Since we are not so sure that our advice will be followed, Mr. Cooper, we would like to suggest a few things further. In choosing a group such as this, you no doubt try to follow your own idea of air play, but it seems that you are suffering from a slight case of near-sightedness (defined in the dictionary as "seeing clearly at a short distance only").

First, in a college where the majority of the men students are town students, it would seem by the law of averages that these same students should at least be adequately represented in the selections. But we find that in the last two years only one student of male gender has come out of the sticks of Memphis and made the grade. That was last year.

Second, we find that out of the group chosen last year every one (except the town student) was a resident of Robb Hall (your old hall, by the way). This year every one was a dorm student although they were from different halls. This brings up one reason for our above suggestion, namely, that a group of several professors might be able to introduce you to some seniors you have not yet met.

Let us name a few names. Have you heard of Toni Noce? She's a senior this year, a girl in spite of her nickname. She's president of the Women's Undergraduate Board, the second highest office a girl can hold on this campus. She's also a member of the Christian Union Cabinet, Torch, Alpha Theta Phi, Stylus, Panhellenic Council, Y.W.C.A. Cabinet, and a lab assistant.

Then there's Kathleen Fransioli, a senior girl who is president of Torch, which corresponds among the girls to president of ODK. Naturally, she had to have a number of other things to gain this honor.

Look at John Young: Omicron Delta Kappa, past president of the Christian Union Cabinet, president of his junior class, president of the Elections Commission, and business manager of the Sou'wester last year. These have been some of his honors.

We would also mention Jac Ruffin. Since you did choose some seniors, maybe you didn't know that they chose him to be president of the senior class. He's also editor of the Lynx, past president of his fraternity, and holds the highest scholastic average in this school. He has also held a number of other offices.

Or what about Billy Murphy? He was editor of the Sou'wester last year, and this year is editor of the Journal, president of the

A Letter to the Editor

DEAR EDITOR:—

Although not in the position of knowing much about the situation, I nevertheless want to register my disapproval of the recent selection of Who's Who. Some of the students chosen would have undoubtedly been chosen by everyone, but there were some, and I won't mention any names, whose place on the list arouses my suspicion as to the motives in the mind of whoever selected them.

It seems to me that there is, in general, entirely too much emphasis placed on the acquisition of campus honors and offices here at Southwestern. From one standpoint, it might be regarded as ridiculous, were it not for the downright rottenness that is so prevalent on the campus, and I don't think anybody will question that.

However, since so many students seem to feel that the world will collapse unless they make this or that or the other, it would seem to follow that the whole business should be carried out in a fair and unprejudiced manner. This certainly doesn't seem to have been the case in the Who's Who selections. I don't know exactly how or why they were picked, but I do know that the whole thing STINKS. Yours in the spirit of fair play and clean politics,

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR.

A Letter to the Editor

DEAR ED:—

Ever since the selections for Who's Who have been announced, I have been wondering—wondering just exactly what is the basis for these selections. I had previously thought it was an honor bestowed upon those people who had been most active and interested in all phases of college life. I had thought it was a sort of introduction to the nation of the people on our campus who were outstanding and at the same time representative of our very best type of well-rounded students.

Some of the students chosen this time fill the above bill very neatly, but there are others—nice likeable people, but hardly outstanding on the campus—whose selection made me wonder. I'm not the only one who wonders at it; I have heard several people voice the same feelings. It seems to me that whoever chooses these people overlooked a number of others who are more deserving of the honor.

It may be that I am wrong in thinking that the above criterion is the one used. Anyway, I'd like to know just how and why these people are selected.

Meacham Elected By Honor Council

Named President To Fill Vacancy Left By Bernard Lockridge

At a meeting of the Honor Council held Saturday, Robert Meacham, a junior of Birmingham, Alabama, was elected president to fill the vacancy which had existed until this time due to Bernard Lockridge's failure to return to school.

To be eligible for the presidency of the council, a member must have been on the council at least one year previous to his election.

Meacham is a member of Chi Beta Phi, the S Club, and the Christian Union Cabinet. He is also president of the Junior Class and last year was the winner of the ODK Sophomore Cup. He has been a member of the varsity tennis for the past two years.

Harold Jones, acting president, reminded the council that there were now copies of the Council's Constitution in the library and that the matter should be pointed out to the student body.

Lynx May Take To Air Against Tennessee Vols

Dawson, Recovered, Will Take Place in Line-up Tomorrow

The Southwestern Lynx will meet their biggest big-name opponent tomorrow when last year's eastern Rose Bowl team, the University of Tennessee Volunteers, travel to Memphis. The key to the Southwestern offense will be the passing of Abe Palmer and the running of Winston Coker. Coach Ed Kubale has high hopes of upsetting the Vols after the fine showing of the Lynx against Mississippi State last week.

The passing and running of Palmer and Coker in the State game showed up well against the Maroons defenses, and it is believed that it will be as successful against Tennessee. Having had a foretaste of the Tennessee system, the Lynx will be accustomed to it for the game with its developers.

The stellar pass snagger of the Lynx will again be in the starting line-up. Luke Dawson, injured in the Howard game, will again be in service. Line defense will rest mainly on P. T. Baker, as the plunges of Foxx over center have become famous.

Spearheads of the Vols attack will be Johnny Butler and Foxx, who have rightly gained the reputation of being adept ball toters. All the combined power of the U. T. line will be poised to smash Southwestern, as the Vols are still smarting from their hard game against the University of Florida, a greatly inferior team.

Although the Lynx will go into the fray as the underdogs, they are not to be counted out altogether. In-and-out of the win column, some of their

Symphony Concert Will Be Tuesday

Prof. Tuthill Directs Lynx Students in Orchestra And Chorus

Tuesday evening, November 12 at 8:30 o'clock the Memphis Symphony Orchestra will give its first concert of the season. The Orchestra conducted by Professor Burnet Tuthill, is made up entirely of Memphis musicians. Elizabeth Jetter, Peggy Kelley, Wade McFadden, Billy Hinington, Billy Bobo, Clay Williams, Virginia Lowery, and Brenda Wilson, members of the Southwestern student body, play in the orchestra. The following alumni of Southwestern are also in the Orchestra: Hope Brewster, Ann Tuthill, and Fred Thomas.

Assisting the Orchestra will be the Memphis Symphony Chorus of ninety voices. Half of the Chorus is made up of the Southwestern Singers, who have turned out almost one hundred per cent for this event.

Guest soloist for the concert is Hubert Kockritz of Evansville, Ill. Mr. Kockritz has studied at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music where he is now head opera singing. He has also studied abroad. Mr. Kockritz is a baritone.

Tickets for the performance may be secured from Frank Hammet, Prof. Tuthill, or at the Box Office.

The program will be as follows:
Overture To The Secret Marriage Cimarosa
Symphony No. 8 in F major Beethoven
Aria, Non Pui Andrai, from The Marriage of Figaro Mozart
Mr. Kockritz
Toreador Song from Carmen.....Bizet
Mr. Kockritz and Chorus
Waltz from Eugene Onegin Tschalkowski
Orchestra and Chorus
Ballad for Americans.....

Comments

The Honor System

It became glaringly evident this week that a complete understanding of the principles upon which our Honor System is based has not been obtained by many of the students now in Southwestern.

It became evident that while the sins of commission were fully comprehended, those of omission were dismissed quite lightly. Witnesses brought before the council to testify, admitted having had knowledge of violations of the Honor System but seemingly thought it was purely a matter of choice as to whether they report it to a member of the council or not, and their choice was not to do so.

With such a synthetic interpretation of the Honor System, it cannot achieve any degree of success. As a result of the system, we are able to enjoy privileges and freedom which we would be unable to enjoy under any other plan. In return for the delegation of these rights, we must necessarily assume certain responsibilities and duties. These responsibilities will be necessary as long as human nature is imperfect. The students on the whole are fully aware of some of these duties, but as we have pointed out previously, they are quite oblivious to others. It seems to be the prevailing idea that the student's duty ends with his conducting himself honestly. Unfortunately, this is not enough to make an Honor System work. Each student signs a pledge, on entering college, on which he promises not only that he will be honest in his own work but that he will report any unfair practices which he may observe. The last clause in the pledge has undoubtedly been flagrantly ignored very recently, and yet every student has pledged himself to it just as well as the former.

The Honor System is not a possession of the Honor Council. It is an institution of Southwestern and typifies the ideals which we have made a part of this college. It is plain that the Honor Council itself cannot carry out the system and make it a success. Each student must place enough value on his own word to carry out his promise. Too many are prone to compare themselves with the least conscientious of the student body and say that if someone else did not assume his responsibility why should they. May we remind you that this is not a responsibility to be assumed. It was assumed when the pledge was signed. The question is whether you are honest enough to do what you have given your word to do.

After the Election Is Over

For the past several months, we have listened to one of the loudest presidential campaigns in the history of our country. We have witnessed the greatest mud-slinging to take place in years. We have heard Roosevelt ribbed and Willkie walked on. Few punches have been barred and there have been no referees. Last Tuesday was supposed to bring peace. For the next four years we are supposed to be able to listen to our favorite program without fear of having it interrupted to give us the pleasure of hearing some blow-hard out for all he can get; we are supposed to be able to have our representatives in the government undertake legislation without having someone holler, "Politicking," we are supposed to be able to go classes and discuss the subjects of our courses, for a change; we are supposed to be allowed to be friendly without having it thought that we have conversation in mind; WE ARE SUPPOSED TO HAVE A LITTLE PEACE.

No, we do not consider ourselves disloyal or unpatriotic, because we seem to make little of such an important thing as a national election. Instead, we do think it necessary that everyone recognize that this particular is over, not only for the benefit of our personal selves, but also for the benefit of the entire nation.

In this time of crisis, it is necessary that we act together upon those things which the majority of us decide. Not that we all have to be one mind, but all of our criticism should be constructive and not just plain "dogging." It still holds true that in union there is strength.

Lastly, there is a traditional category for those to whom this is addressed—POOR SPORT.

—R.C.

Obs. of One "R" Forthingay - Phipps. Bart. K.G., K.B.

Will some one please tell Mr. Pryor that there's a time and place for everything, but so far we haven't found a time, nor a place, for the "Pampas" hat of his. Individually, it's ghastly. Collectively (meaning on Pryor) it falls nothing short of being catastrophic. I think the odds are against him, if he's trying to get everyone else to wear one too.

While breezing over the campus we have heard several versions of the method of choice used in the selection of the Who's Who, which was brought to light last week. Although there are many conflicting theories, the following seems fairly plausible and at any rate interesting.

While waiting for the faculty meeting to start, the members of that honored group found themselves in a bit of quandary as to how they should occupy their time. Such proposals as going to the zoo, playing bingo, etc. met a host of scornful objections from the more serious members. Some were occupied with wittling on bits of wood while others busily carved their initials on the table. An air of boredom prevailed. Suddenly one of the members leaped to his feet, tossed an Ace comic book away, and screamed excitedly, "Let's choose the Who's Who for American Colleges."

"Oh jolly jolly," cried another, replacing his knife in his pocket.

With this, they all skipped gaily about the room, jousting each other good naturedly amid the singing and giggling of the less serious members. This kept up until the question of how the selection would be made was brought to the front. All frivolity ceased instantly. "Let's flip coins," suggested one. After the pros and cons of this method were discussed it was decided that there were not enough coins among the members. It looked as if things had reached a bit of a standstill until a little fellow in the corner asked in a well modulated voice, how in the world does the government get the draftees. Finally some light was thrown on the subject to the effect that it had something to do with an ole beat up fish bowl and a lot of numbers. After a few moments of discussion (the predominant logic being, what's good enough for Uncle Sam, is good enough for us) the idea was accepted.

The selection went smoothly until Giles O'Shafney's name was drawn out. "He hit me with a piece of chalk his freshman year," said an impartial professor, and the blister's name was promptly tossed into the waste basket.

After two hours the list was finally completed and the various professors tottered off to their homes, tired but happy.

Thinking back over my prep school days at Bodington-on-the-Brieth, it occurred to me that such selections were usually made on some basis of merit. It was customary at B. on the B. to alter this basis from year to year. I might say however that no such flimsy basis as the ability to have ones name drawn from a fish bowl has been used since the ghastly year 1538. One of the most popular methods of selection was a contest of balancing a broom stick on ones nose. This was used in my first form and had no small degree of success. Other methods such as imitating birds, foot races, and pinning the tail on the donkey were all acclaimed by the student body to be definitely on the peachy side of things. Perhaps it would be more cricket if some similar method was used at Southwestern.

'Tis with a sad spirit that we take pen in hand and begin to scribble this column. Sadie Hawkins day has come and gone, and we still ain't got our man. Lil Abner escaped, and we couldn't even catch Black Rufe (not even with parfum de Polecat). The Zetas pitched their brawl at the gym and all the Daisy Maes were there in full force. . . . Jeter claims she's on the trail for a man, and since Dale Botto and Tanner Davis have broken up, we'd say that Dale is too. Anyway, that's what she says. . . . We hear from our esteemed editor that there have been various and sundry complaints about the cracks appearing in ye ole newspaper about various and sundry people. We apologize, but promise to keep right on doing it. So there.

With bated breath we await the first of the season's fraternity dances. Kappa Alpha will entertain their invited guests (and the visiting KA's from other schools) with a dance at the Colonial. . . . Can it be that Queen Kitty has made another conquest. At any rate Bill Maybry has asked her to go with him. . . . We will miss Sam Fisher's being there. At Birmingham-Southern this year he has been making the gossip column regularly as 'rummy the runt'. . . . Fall Sunday came and went and we hear that Jim Andrew chose to go duck hunting to eating dinner with Ruth Logsdon. . . . Frances Gregg is going to Vanderbilt this week-end (or is it just to Nashville). Anyway she's looking for a male to go with her. Any volunteers? . . . The Misses Simonton and Wright have returned from their visit there, and Nell sports on her coat lapel the insignia of the U. S. Engineers.

* * * *

Mercer West seems to be a fast worker. After returning from a trip to Knoxville, he found a letter from a certain girl in his mail box the very next day. . . . Clay says its Marion McKee for me. . . . Miss Ann Coate Scott seems to have taken over Polkie's old guy, Hays. Or was he Anne's before he was Polkie's. Or is he anybody's, really? . . . Snap Morgan, the busiest boy on this hvar campus, and Betsy Foster always are engrossed in the most serious conversations. . . . Our former student body prexy, Henry Mobley, will be here for home coming. Will this please Cecilia Hill or won't it. . . . Neither Annabelle Paine nor Jill Witt capture a date with Percy Wilgus for this Saturday night. Amelia Mitchell was the lucky one. . . . We grieve for Wini Pritchard now that Cecil is gone. But she's taking Chevis to the Chi O. party tonight. . . . We hope our little warning about Ainslie Pryor didn't make anybody too wary.

Tom Duncan seems interested in only young girls. This summer it was a fifteen year old (alho she was a mighty big girl for only fifteen) and now he only dates freshettes. . . . From within the hallowed halls of Evergreen has sprung up, so we are told, an exclusive body calling itself Phi Epsilon, or P.U. Inferiority. Members, who wear a small gold safety pin as a sign of membership, are the freshettes in the upper east wing of Evergreen, Jane Williamson, Audrey Klemme, Evelyn Magee, Lillian Kee-see, Nadine Browne, Dorothy Alsworth, and Peggy Silliman. A P.U. Sweetheart will be chosen soon, boys, so be on your P's and Q's. If you see any of these gals, you might ask them to sing you the P.U. song.

We are cordially against these make-up classes that Dr. Archer has been sponsoring. Yesterday we saw Jean Jeter out in a car with a terrible bloody scar on her face. She said that she had been in a wreck. Then a little later Pat Davis came out looking like Frankenstein, and it was only then that that we realized that Jeter had been made up. . . . Who is the girl that Esle Henderson is importing from Birmingham? Reports sound good. . . . Ruth Crumley and Bob West seem to be getting to be a good campus couple. . . . And Bill Dewey's dancing has attracted the attention of more than one eye. . . . Clyde Malone reminds us of Charles Boyer. . . . Murphy and Waggener seem to go on in spite of time and the river. . . . Martha Earp and Gorton Berry seem to have a very lasting friendship also. . . . Is Bubber Beasley trying to beat Buzz out of Sue Potts? . . . And she's taking in a third angle in Hank Rockwell tonight. . . . Minna Potts and John Farley are steak-frying it a lot together now. . . . Wasn't it shameful

The evil that political parties do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones. Let this not be so of the Republican party simply because it lost three straight elections (we mean successive elections) for it is a great party and has furnished many distinguished leaders for our public life. We are among the last persons on earth, regardless of our opposition to it, who would want to see the Grand Old Party pass away as some other parties have done due to numerous defeats. We sincerely hope that the Republican party will bind-up its wounds and come back for a vigorous fight in 1944. We might say at this time that if we are still were in '44 we will oppose a fourth term. We hope that the Republicans will profit from the lesson of this campaign and rely on something other than their financial might in '44; this election proves that Wall street is no match for the Federal Treasury.

It is with reluctance that we turn from the national political arena to world affairs. We will view world affairs as soon as we find out enough about the situation to express an opinion (don't misunderstand us, we don't need information to form opinions). From what we can gather the Axis is striking at Great Britain through Greece, the idea being to use Greece as a stepping stone to the oil fields of the Near East and the Suez canal. The capture of these two objectives would go far in bringing Britain to her knees. This action carefully timed with an assault on Gibraltar would be a possible trap for the British navy, at any rate, the capture of these key positions would greatly lengthen Britain's line of communications with its possessions in the Far East.

Note: Any similarities between this column and Walter Lippman's is entirely his fault. Also, if the heirs of Wm. Shakespeare contemplate a suit on the grounds of plagiarism, we advise them to see our attorney.—C.C.

LYNX READY FOR VOLTS

defeats by name teams have been only by a narrow margin. In the proper spirit of loyalty, and because we really believe it, the Sou'wester gives the Lynx a good chance of upsetting the mighty Vols.

Southwestern has done well in its so-called suicide schedule, holding Ole Miss to 27-6 and State to 13-0. The time is ripe for the Lynxmen to stage an upset. On the other hand, the Vols have not shown up as well this year as they did in 1939, barely eking out a win over Duke, and being held scoreless for three quarters by a fighting Florida eleven, their 56-0 victory over Chattanooga seems just a little on the face-saving side.

A new face will be seen in play for Southwestern against the Neylanders. Buck Alpe, a sophomore transfer from Loyola, is expected to see plenty of service after his fine showing in the State game.

The Lynx' hard week of drills featured passing as an offensive element, while on the defensive side the pass defense and ground defense received a thorough working over.

In the only game between Southwestern and Tennessee, the Vols were victorious 20-0. This game was played in Memphis in 1935.

The probable starters for Southwestern will be Dawson and Edwards at ends, Waller and Heaton at tackle's, Drees and Bailey at guard, and Baker at center. In the backfield, there will probably be Andrew, Underwood, Palmer, and Conn.

about Deacon Craft trying to make a phone call in Robb Hall the other night and attempting to get his party by using two pennies stuck together, instead of putting in a nickle? We are glad that you got a good lecture, Deacon.

Snips that Pass in the Night

By SAM McCULLOCH

On one of our perennial bats around town trying to find something to object to, we ran into material in some of the most unexpected places. Who should put a scare into us up at one of America's best hotels the other night but an old classmate, Shirley Shugermann, who was shimmying all over the whole congested place. There she was, looking as much as possible like we found out Hedy Lamarr looked in New Orleans last summer—white turban and all. Shirley's been the rounds—Black and White underwear department, Paris Garter, and the rest. She said, "Listen how are you. Oh I'm fine. Yeh, listen it's just like my old mother was always tellin' me. She say, Listen, Shirley, take care of your body, that's all you've got." A sanguine personality, Shirley, but a bit of the rough and tumble type. To tell you the truth—Censored.

Strychnine cough drops of the week to the person who came to our house Fall Sunday and made off with our two best Hotel Roosevelt bath towels. The great sentimental value of them can't be understood by most people, but they were our costume at the National Ghandi Rally last summer when we wore them in the Basin Street parade. So we'd appreciate their return.

Some things that happened at the Sadie Hawkins Dance are just too good to let pass. One of the Northern contingent appeared in an Ansen 1903 bathing suit. It was too much for some of the girls; brought out the savage in others. Some of the dorm Freshettes released a jar of moths, previously trained for the occasion. Almost as good as something we heard about today from one of our old flames, Lotus Chen of the Massachusetts Institute for Selected Females. Some of the more select were completely unbridled and chased one unfortunate in a barrel all the way back to Harvard, brandishing axes as they ran.

If friend Rummy can't cook up some genteel abuse for us pretty soon, we're going to drop the feud altogether and consider ourself the uncontested victor. That is, i.s.d.h.n.w., and we meant it, too (or t.)

MENTAL MEANDERINGS

Now that the election is over and Gracie Allen has conceded, and what with everyone urging everyone to get unified, we shall stop seeing all these pungent letters to the editor and will get back to the old standard complaints on the condition of the streets, bus lines, and women's hats.

We have our own steady complaint, and that is about the Beethoven concert-goers. They never fail to jump up and start putting on their coats and to make a noisy exit before the concert is over. Such a charming artist as Miss Jamison certainly deserved better treatment.

When will Memphians learn that a concert is not like a football game and that the performance isn't over until the lights go on?

Professor Wolf tells this one on Louise Blue.

He had given the Romantic Poetry class an assignment sheet which included Wordsworth, edited by Hutchinson, with an introduction and notes by Harper.

Louise had said, "Professor Wolf, I wish you'd tell me where to find that book. I've looked all over the library and just couldn't find it."

It happens to be the textbook she's been using for past five weeks.

We are slightly more confused than usual this week. We've been reading a book printed in 1789, where every sentence looks something like this: "I am very glad to hear you fay fo, fays he."

We're in such a fstate now that we want to fcream, "For Pete's fake, pleafe ftop this fillly bufinefs."

On looking through "The Devil's Dictionary" of Ambrose Bierce this week, we discovered—pardon, discovered—some mighty pert definitions which we should like to pass on.

Positive, adj. Mistaken at the top of one's voice.

Labor, n. One of the processes by which A acquires property for B.

Comfort, n. A state of mind produced by contemplation of a neighbor's uneasiness.

Talk, v.t. To commit an indiscretion without temptation, from an impulse without purpose.

Egotist, n. A person of low taste, more interested in himself than in me.

Year, n. A period of three hundred and sixty-five disappointments.

Stylus Club, vice-president of his fraternity, and is reading for honors, besides having won the ODK sophomore cup.

And since you are choosing juniors, would you say that Kitty Bright Tipton does not merit the honor? Space precludes our listing her many achievements.

You may plead that you had to draw the line somewhere and didn't have room to take in everybody. Suppose we look at a few who have been chosen in the past and were chosen this year. Their campus biographies are listed in back issues of the Sou'wester, and in many cases they do not take up more than two lines, including the full proper name. You seem to disregard entirely leadership in journalistic and scholastic fields, and to emphasize leadership in another field. (This year there were three athletes chosen).

Last year you included a boy whose chief apparent merit was the fact that you and his father attended Harvard together; another was chosen whose chief assets were that he played football and went to Mexico with you; another because of the ability she shows in being vice-president of an intersorority and outstanding in girls intramurals, besides the coincidence that she grades history papers so well for you.

We are not casting aspersions on any individual student. But it seems to us an undeniable fact that on the basis of campus leadership, there have been too many times when deserving students were left off and less deserving students were included. In this connection, let us ask you a pertinent question. Just what is your basis of selection?

We hope that this letter will be taken in the spirit that it is offered—to correct a system that has its evident wrongs. Our intention has not been to tread on people's toes, but merely to state facts.

If this won't help correct the system, we see only one result (now that you have got out of touch with the dorm students by moving to your new home on Cypress Drive); next year's Who's Who will include just two people—your room mate, Dr. Porter, and Wiley, your butler.

Sincere personal regards,
 E. Pluribus Unum.

Lynx Shine As They Hold State To Small Score

Fumbles Kill Many Southwestern Threats, Cocke Gives Thrill

The Southwestern Lynx played a bang-up game last Saturday to hold Mississippi State to 13-0. Fumbles cost Southwestern their chance to score twice.

Holding the Maroons scoreless the first half, the Lynx threatened three times in the first quarter, only to be held by the brawny Mississippians each time. A few seconds after the second quarter kick-off, the Maroons began their march that was culminated when Sonny Bruce tossed a touchdown pass to Johnson. The Lynx received State's kick-off deep in their own territory, and lost possession of the ball when State recovered a blocked punt. Another Maroon march brought them to pay-dirt. Johnson converted, to end the scoring for the day.

The biggest thrill of the day came when fleet-footed Winston Cocke took State's kick-off on his own two and ran the ball back to State's twenty. This Lynx threat was stifled when State recovered a Southwestern fumble. While this was the real thrill of the day, there were plenty other spectacular bits of playing. Especially steady and brilliant was the playing of Abe Palmer and Jim Andrews in the backfield. At the ends, Stob Jones and Fleet Edwards turned in sterling performances. As the outcome shows, the game was extremely hard-fought and every man who played deserves a great amount of credit. With a few less unlucky breaks, the game could have very easily ended in a Southwestern victory.

eighteen yard line, Billy Speros, former Humes High star, heaved a pass into the alert Knight's open arms for the second and final score for the Bobcats. In the next moment the fate of the Lynx was decided as the methodical kicking of Bob McKinney again sailed the oval directly over the uprights. It was this extra point that gave Southwestern the win.

Still later, in the third quarter the Lynx Frosh made a last drive which was culminated by the loss of the ball through an interception by Murray on their own twelve yard line.

In the last period the desperate Kentucky team again crossed the Bobcats goal line, by virtue of a pass which was good for 32 yards and a run by Sasine for the remaining number of stripes. However, the kick was unsuccessful and the whistle blew with the Bobcats at the big end of the score.

For Murray, Sasine was easily the outstanding player, with Cyres, quarterback also playing well.

The NF's marched on this week to claim two more scalps for their collection. Last Friday the KA's fell to the tune of 14-6, and Monday the SN's lost 7-0.

In the KA game it was the Lee boys who scored 6 points in the first quarter and held this lead for three periods. However, the Costello Specials came back and made two touchdowns in the last quarter to emerge the victors.

Costello, Parker, and Watson were the winning factors in the Snakes defeat 7-0. That is, Watson (that loving man) passed to draftee Parker who loped on down to a touchdown with the aid of the excellent blocking of Costello. (I still can't understand how it happened that he really blocked Roberta Lee Johnson to clear the way.)

Last Monday in the second round game between the SAE's and KS's, it was the Lucys that edged out the KS's 12-6. Ligon's passing to Walker and Poulton accounted for most of the gains made. However, star Romine caught a forty yard pass to rack up the first six points of the game.

After tying the score in the second period with a pass, Gibson to Collier, it was Gibson that broke loose to a twenty-five yard run for a tally.

The individual ping pong tournament is drawing near the end with your intramural editor, by grace of good of luck, already in the finals. The tournament would have probably been over long ago if it wasn't for the negligence of Fowler and dreamer Stites, who as yet have not even played their second round match. Stites should be an easy winner in this match only to be defeated by Flaniken. Then in the semi-final match it should be another Flaniken victory over Hinson for the finals with-guess who?
