The Student Says

QUESTION

Do you think that a senior should be given an examination on his major subject before he can obtain his degree?

ANSWERS

Harry Morris, senior: Certainly not. That would be too much trouble and anyway, if a senior passes his major all through the years, I don't think any more obstacles should be put in his way.

Jeanne Reeves, sophomore: No. I might be a senior some day and, anyway, most people don't make their major subject their life's work.

Billy Smith, senior: Certainly, it's the only way you can find out whether you have any knowledge of your subject or not.

Cary Eckert, sophomore: Golly no. I think if anyone manages to pass an exam in it once a year, that's enough.

Annelo Cato, freshman: Well, now I tell you, I don't think so. And then it might be a good idea to keep the seniors busy. But if they do have to take one I hope it gets abolished by the time I'm a senior.

Billy Murphy: I don't know, I'm just a junior. Come around next year. I'll be senior.

This week Southwestern, and in particular the athletic department, has lost a devoted and loyal supporter. But the loss is greater than that, because many of the students of the college have lost a friend. It is not necessary to speak of the time and effort he expended in Southwestern's behalf, for we would be repeating what everyone already knows. It is often the case that those who will be missed the most are the ones who are taken away. We know that as the members of the "S" Club and the students of the college take advantage of the holiday today, many a heart is saddened by the realization that Frank Jackson is gone.

JOURNALISM CLASS SHOWS MURPHY HOW

Akers Edits This Issue; Plesofsky In Charge Next Week

By LANCE ANDREWS

When, in the course of human events it becomes necessary for a journalism class to attempt the publication of an actual newspaper, the result is certain to be uncertain. This issue you are now reading (we hope) has been produced through the combined efforts of a group of Prof. Lee's Fourth-Estaters-To-Be, and the main question as it went to press was: Will the readers allow us to put out the Sou'wester next week after seeing this week's issue? We embryonic Brisbanes had a premonition of something amiss when Editor Murphy visited the class the other Friday and gave every indication that he intended to linger awhile by appropriating Prof. Lee's swivel chair, thereby forcing said Prof. to seek a seat in the front row in which to throw his lean but learned torso. Mr. Murphy is, of course, the epitome of editorial edification, and literary gems constantly exude from his prolific cranium. Naturally, any class would be delighted at his presence. At least, that's what Murphy said.

Now Southwesterners and New Yorkers have something in common. Both are blase. Therefore, the fact that an albatross and a raven were sitting outside the window at this time and along with vulture Murphy

The Aloof Mr. Jim Hammond Writes On Daylight Saving

Our press car pulled up in front of a rather unprepossessing little house in North Memphis. Marchbanks, my photographer, started hauling cameras, bulbs, tripods, film, and other impediments of the newspaper "flash-boy" from the rumble seat. After thinking a moment I decided against taking any pictures; after all, it isn't customary to photograph seances, and what would this be called but a seance? Marchbanks seemed mildly disappointed when I instructed him to leave his equipment in the car, but with his usual attitude of subservient resignation he dismissed it with a shrug and followed me up the steps and into the house.

In case you may be wondering what I, a third-rate reporter, would be doing at a fortune-teller's establishment, I might explain that my editor had sent me to interview a certain Madame Zodka and to enlist her psychic aid in determining the outcome of the daylight savings controversy. In short, he wanted to beat the other papers on the story and resorted to this as a "means to an end."

Madame Zodka's houseboy, clad in the regalia of a sultan's slave, ushered us into a draped antechamber. We sat down nervously, and in a few minutes the curtains parted, revealing Madame Zodka in all her mystic splendor of the East! She bade us gather 'round her crystal ball; suddenly the lights dimmed, and the good Madame began to chant:

"Inform your readers to make no late dates for the night of Sunday, May 12th, for upon that night Joshua Chandler hath commanded Time to leap forward one hour in Memphis. Every citizen of this metropolis will forfeit one hour of his life to the will of Joshua Chandler! One hour . . . one hour." Her voice faded into silence, and as suddenly as she had appeared Madame Zodka was gone. As her material self vanished before our eyes, I had the presence of mind to shout after her, "Charge this to the Sou'wester."

Marchbanks and I wasted no time. We careened out of the house, down the steps, and into the car. Fifteen minutes later we were banging out the following story on two of the

DIEHL DELIVERS ADDRESSES

Dr. Diehl attended the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Assembly of American Colleges in New York last Saturday and was present Thursday at the annual meeting of the Trustees of the General Assembly of Presbyterian Churches in the U. S. and Presbyterian, Inc., at Charlotte, N. C. Tomorrow Dr. Diehl will preach at First Presbyterian Church at Birmingham, Ala., and in the evening at Woodlawn Presbyterian Church there.

Sou'wester's fleet of 1940 Remingtons:

"May 13th will be a true blue Monday. At 12 o'clock midnight, Sunday, May 12th, every one of us students will be forced to advance the hands of our respective timepieces one hour (by decree of Joshua Chandler). Haggard and worn, we will stumble into chapel on that momentous dawn . . . "Ape Cavender and Elizabeth Holder, growing at each other in the dim half-light. Sam Fisher and Robert Goostree, pulling each other's hair and kicking one another up the steps to Palmer Hall's second floor. K. B. Tipton, her usually flawless facial decoration an early-morning shambles, being pursued half-heartedly by Gentleman Frank England and Fearless John McGrady. Needless to say, they are not what would be called sartorially perfect—at least not today.

"If only Joshua could be present to see what havoc his evil scheme has wrought on our hitherto happy little campus—if only he could see, perhaps Memphis and its immediate vicinity would be spared the tribulations of readjustment into the daylight savings system. Ah, well, once this hurdle has been dispensed, we may settle down gradually to another routine of less darkness to sleep in, less moonlight to neck in, and more daylight to work in! We wish you the best of luck."

Three Initiated By Local Chi Beta Phi

Meacham, Long And Elias Were Initiated By Scientific Fraternity

Tau chapter of Chi Beta Phi, national scientific fraternity, initiated Robert Meacham, Kurt Elias, and Charles Long Tuesday night at their regular meeting in 205 Science Hall. Newly elected officers of Chi Beta Phi are: John Kier, president; Orville McMinn, vice-president; Ned Hermann, corresponding secretary; John Flanniken, recording secretary; and Charles Long, treasurer.

Plans were discussed for a steak fry to be held some time in May.

The organization, recognized by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is limited to students who are majoring in chemistry, biology, physics, or mathematics and who have passed at least twenty semester hours in science with a high average.

Talks and demonstrations are given at the regular monthly meetings by members of the organization.

PROGRAM ON MEXICO GIVEN

The Spanish Club met in room 204 of Palmer Hall at seven-thirty Wednesday night.

W. W. Dillard, Sr., exhibited and discussed some relics and souvenirs he brought back from his trip to Mexico. Mina Cavett told of her visit in Mexico and Wilma Serber analyzed the construction and authorship of several famous Mexican poets.

James Hammond!" For the first time Mr. Hammond seemed desirous of shunning the limelight, and slunk so far down in his chair that his backbone got hurt on the edge. "Mr. Hammond, you will compose a feature on the good or bad qualities of Daylight Saving Time!"

"Yeah, and make it humorous," added Murphy, the stooge. "You know, sumpin' really funny about people getting up in the dark and stumbling over chairs and stuff." The entire class was at a loss to see what was funny about folks cracking their shins, but at that moment even Benny at his best would have had the same effect as a death in the family.

When it was obvious by their downcast looks that all had been assigned an odious task, Murphy asked the professor not to dismiss the class until he could make his exit. Even this precaution did not safeguard him from the wrath of his victims, for as he carried his carcass through the doorway a well-timed eraser caught him in the nape of the neck. Do you suppose Dean Johnson heard the highly uncomplimentary appellations we ascribed to Murphy as he crawled down the hall?

Women Student Governing Board

Our hat's off to the women for the wide-awake action they are taking in the formation of a Women's Governing Board. At recent class meetings, plans for the board carried by a large majority of 110 to 7. The board, we feel, is bound to succeed with such hearty support, and it certainly deserves success, for it inaugurates a very necessary and helpful program.

The purpose of the board is to knit the women students more closely together by classes. There is a lack of class spirit at Southwestern among the upperclassmen. With such laxity, the woman student misses a great deal of college life which can and should be obtained. The board plans to promote class activities, athletic, philanthropic and social. A program will be formed for inter-class athletic contests similar to the intra-murals. The gym classes are, on the whole, composed of girls in the same college year, and it will be easy to make teams from girls who are accustomed to playing together. Then, too, the junior and senior do not have as much athletics and exercise as they should for health's sake now. It will give them the opportunity to participate in sports and further their own class at the same time.

But the greatest advantage of this class unity is to be seen in its relationship to the women who have no association with other organizations on the campus. It will give them something with which to affiliate themselves.

The philanthropic part of the program will be centered in social service work at the negro settlement, plans for the founding of which are being made by the Christian Union. This will be done by classes and will be valuable experience in training and developing the individual.

Suggestions for class entertainments, such as concerts and plays presenting talent from members of the class, are under consideration.

As part of the program, the board will assist in the orientation of freshman girls. This will place a responsibility on the upperclass women and develop them, as well as help by giving advice and guidance to freshmen, not only the first few weeks, but throughout the year. The board will set the standards in campus life and activities for women students—standards formed by the women themselves.

The formation of class unity and spirit is not for the purpose of raising boundaries and drawing distinctions. On the contrary, it is a pulling away from the petty boundaries which now exist. The classes will meet and be presided over by the secretary-treasurer of the class, who will have a seat on the board. The entire women student body will have a voice in the actions of the board and be represented.

Membership on the board is to be composed of the president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the Women's Undergraduate Society, the presidents of Torch, the Women's Athletic Association, Evergreen Hall and the Pan-Hellenic, and the secretary-treasurer of the four classes of the student body. It will act in conjunction with the Dean of Women.

The only restriction placed upon board members is the requirement of a "C" average. This is made for two reasons: first, it is not fair to any girl to ask her to assume the responsibilities of membership to the extent of neglecting her personal scholastic standing; second, a "C" average is not an exceedingly high one, and the board feels that its members owe it to the college to maintain such an average.

Since there is at present no thoroughly functioning student governing body for women, the formation of the Women's Governing Board is both appropriate and opportune. It deserves the co-operation and support of the entire women's enrollment.—F. L. A.

Third Consecutive S Club Day

We feel that the "S Club Day" is important enough to call to your attention once again.

Today Southwestern is holding its third consecutive "S Club Day," and it is being celebrated by a holiday. The faculty is giving this holiday in order to allow the students unlimited participation in the athletic events and attendance of them. It is up to every Southwestern student to be on hand at each event. While not as old as some of our annual campus affairs, "S Club Day" is becoming a Southwestern tradition, a tradition whose future depends on today! The spirit and attendance of today's games will determine whether or not the college continues the practice of devoting an entire day to athletics.

The holiday is not a holiday from school, but a holiday at school. There are to be a large number of features in "S Club Day"—features which have a very wide variety of attractions, and there is not a person at Southwestern who will not find something he, or she, is interested in. The tournaments will be in both men and women's athletics and include tennis, volleyball, softball and a track meet with Vanderbilt. One of the volleyball games will be between faculty members and students. The entire day is provided for, with lunch served in the dining room at a reasonable price. But for those who are not particularly interested in sports and athletics, there are to be other attractions. The queen of the S Club will be crowned in chapel services conducted by the club this morning. She was formally announced at the dance last night and will reign over the day's activities.

Our school is not the large type, where a third or fourth of the enrollment can remain obviously indifferent to what is going on. We are a small college, and therefore our campus activities need the support of each and every individual student. We are so small that we each have a responsibility and a part in things. Surely we will not let ourselves or our school down.

The S Club is composed of the boys who have made their letters in varsity athletics. They have represented us in sports all year. They have stood for Southwestern to the outsider, and we should be behind them one hundred per cent. Because they aren't galloping down the field today with the pig-skin, or pounding the hardwood for basketball goals, doesn't mean that we should not give them that same support we would if they were. Let's show them that our loyalty does not begin and end on the field.—F. L. A.

Missing Lynx

From the Campus Chain

Since the abdication and retirement for purposes of contemplation of Mr. McBurney necessitates the elevation of a successor to the place of chief scribe and critic par excellence, we bring forward our candidate with high hope. He is none other than that affable young editor, Nilly Willy Murphy. Of course he's the dark horse in this race running against such winners as Robert Price, Jac Ruffin and B. Belcher. But then if you've been reading his recent letters to Hendrix, all of which have been veritable paragons of vituperation, you'll understand why we pin our colors on his bridle. He's incomparable and unquenchable.

Last Sunday's Vesper Service impressed us as being as thoroughly enjoyable as a Vesper Service can decently be without forfeiting its dignity. Dr. Kenaston delivered a down-to-earth discussion on the possibilities of this age being "on the road to ruin." His quotations came from sources as far apart as Amos and Billy Sunday. The choir surpassed themselves, especially on the "Alleluiah" song, and Prexy Emmett Kelley was at least a foot taller than any one else on the platform.

Bland Cannon may tell you that he got that stiff leg from having it pulled so much, but the truth of the matter is that he has had five stitches taken across his knee. It seems he tripped over second base and ripped the dermis of his patella. No, Elise was not chasing him!

We realize that both the MVPA and the Goulash affair have received sufficient publicity, but Dr. McIlwaine brought to our attention the fact that the original idea of having no dates and sexless breaking at a dance began at last year's MVPA meeting. Or at least the Goulash's debut on this campus came about that way.

Lynx Chat

Your little lovable (?) lynx kitten was snoozing soundly on her strawberry satin chaise lounge when Pandemonium plunged into the boudoir. Dream bubbles of +'s in chemistry burst. Eggs a la goldenrod and crisp curling bacon tid-bits were gobbled hastily, and encased in a cellophane slicker, your lil' lynx kitty cat skidded out the door in goulashes for the Goulash Dance rather resembling "Puss in Boots."

At the Kappa Delta Dance . . . President Deola looking extremely "frou-frou" in white ruffles while receiving numerous congrats . . . Dorothy Esch getting a rush from old grads as well as from the present inhabitants of our fair institution . . . Justine Klyce and Richard Allen popping balloons . . . Paula Harris, in long pearl earrings, getting a whirl from the stags . . . Scientist Woolsey breaking on former Pres. Jean Walton . . . Surprise of the evening was when one of the girls asked Barney Gallagher if he was a freshman—he's still mad.

To "Buzz" Slusser go congratulations for that picture of "Goosie" and Anne Worten; it's a glittering gem of photography. Buddy McNeese seems to have given his share of Worten stock to "Powerhouse" Lynch. And Henry says we can just quote him as saying that he's "settled down." But then what about that trip Miss Worten made to the University of Arkansas last Sunday, which was Henry's birthday? You figure it out from there.

With Jimmy Hammond's swell sense of humor, over-abundance of cars, and that gleam in his eye, not to mention his all-around suitability (?) . . . why does he go with "Rosie" Davis instead of one of our "campus darlings." By the way, have you ever tasted a "Hammond Special" at Pete's? . . . Delicious . . . um—m!

What is Bruce Buchman getting out of his hermit act? . . . at least the fairer sex of this campus would like to know? Have you heard that Bruce is drinking water out of bottles these days?

Every week something startling happens!!! Current shock is Strother and Arabia's break-up. This should be good news to many of our campus swains. It seems that Bob Black got a head start on the others at the Goulash Dance. . . Parker pins Potts—Potts takes Mobley to Goulash Dance—Wetherbee takes Parker . . . Oh, well—maybe they're just a bunch of broad-minded people! . . . Of course you've seen Peggy Carlross' new maroon convertible. It really is a knock-out. . . Flash!!! Seven of our dormitory boys were sick this week-end . . . what manner of malady is this? . . . We wonder!!!! . . . Society Notes

KATE WEAVER

It seems that the four Zetas who went down to Mississippi State last week-end had a wonderful time, and also the good work of installing their seventy-ninth chapter. This is the second chapter installed in Mississippi in two years, another having been installed at Ole Miss last year. Benny Joyner went down Thursday to make preliminary arrangements, and Marie Palmer, Dorothy Hammond, and Arnelle Cato drove down Saturday, in time for the dances. The ceremony was held Sunday morning, and was conducted by Mrs. Harold Helper, National President. The Southwestern officers had charge of the Ritual.

The Kappa Delta Mothers' Club entertained last Friday with a tea. The honorees were the wives of the faculty. Mrs. Herbert Esch was in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Lawrence Akers, retiring president; Mrs. T. H. Durham, incoming president; Mrs. George Clarke Houston, retiring vice president; and Mrs. E. P. MacNichol, incoming vice president, were in the receiving line. The tea was held in the Kappa Delta lodge, and the table was decorated with purple and white iris, yellow tulips and candles. The active chapter's president and vice president, Deola White and Ruth Lee, poured.

The members of the YWCA were entertained with a tea in the Kappa Delta lodge Tuesday afternoon. New members who were installed afterwards are: Mary Elizabeth Harsh, president; Jean Walton, vice president; Marion Dickson, secretary; and Toni Noce, treasurer.

Chi Omega held initiation in the lodge Monday night. Those initiated were: Mary Louise Ingram, Betsy Fauntleroy and Cornelia Garrott.

At their regular meeting Monday night, April 22, Epsilon Sigma chapter of Sigma Nu elected officers for the coming year. The new officers are: Boyce Johnson, commander; Hays Brantley, lieutenant commander; Ed Martin, recorder; Bobby Rhodes, treasurer; Robert Goostree, chaplain and reporter; Ed Nesbitt, historian; and Hays Brantley, Panhellenic representative.

Retiring officers are: Billy Smith, commander; Ed Nesbitt, recorder; and Hays Brantley, reporter. Hays Brantley and Bobby Rhodes were re-elected.

To make up for not having any library notes this week, we suggest that you read a book which we found Hays Brantley pondering over the other day. The cover of the book said, "The Woo House Where You Can Get a Ton of Woo, 100 lbs. at a Time!" (Really, Mr. Brantley.)

Reading Institute With Summer School Is Offered

Credit In Education To Be Given For Work Of The Completed Course

The Reading Institute, a new educational feature at Southwestern, will be held in co-operation with Southwestern Summer School during its first week, June 18-June 22. Officers of Administration and Staff are Dr. Charles Edward Diehl, President; Dr. A. Theodore Johnson, Director of Summer School; Annie Beth Gary, Registrar; William Kottmeyer, Director of the Reading Laboratory Institute; Dr. Winifred K. Magdsick, D. M. Hilliard and Dr. W. Likely Simpson.

One of the chief features will be the study of new methods of ascertaining and dealing with various types of reading deficiencies. Outstanding experts in the field of the teaching of reading will discuss the anatomical, psychological, and hygienic aspects of the reading process. The measurement of reading, by means of eye-movement photography and reading graph analysis, will be thoroughly presented. Two instruments will be used and demonstrated, the Metronoscope and Ophthalm-O-Graph.

The theory and practice of the remedial reading program, with special emphasis on its practical aspects, will be thoroughly developed. A graph of the eye-movements of each person attending the conference will be presented to him and analyzed upon request.

An outline of lectures, demonstrations, and discussions is available in the registrar's office. Full opportunity for discussion will be afforded. Individual conferences will be arranged if desired. The Institute will begin on Tuesday afternoon and continue through Saturday noon.

Registration will be held in the Registrar's office June 18, from 10 to 1 o'clock, or may be handled by mail. One hour's credit in Education will be given to all who satisfactorily complete the week's work. A final test will be required of those desiring this credit.

The registration fee of seven dollars will cover admittance to all discussions and demonstrations. Students regularly enrolled in the summer session for a full course may enroll in the Reading Institute for a fee of four dollars. Out-of-town people will be lodged in the dormitories for the sum of eight dollars. Reservations must be made at least one week in advance.

Southwestern Netmen Down Arkansas 9-0

Defeat Mississippi College, Millsaps To Start Winning Streak

The Southwestern Lynx took their first matches in tennis on their trip to Jackson and Clinton, Mississippi, where they met the netmen of Millsaps and Mississippi College. The Lynx racquetballers downed Millsaps on Monday, six matches to one. Then on Tuesday Mississippi College was the victim by a score of five matches to one.

In the battle with Millsaps, which turned into an utter rout, Bob Meacham was the only Lynx to lose a match. Epperson of Millsaps defeated the Southwestern No. 1 man, 6-4, 5-7, 8-6.

Meacham's singles match, and the doubles match played by Jimmie Collier and Lewis Wellford went by the board to Mississippi College. The singles score was 2-6, 6-3, 7-5. The doubles match played by the number three and number two men, was lost by the score of 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

Both of the singles matches lost by Meacham were extremely close. The members of the team that made the trip were Bob Meacham, Cecil New, Malcolm Hinson, Jimmie Collier, and Lewis Wellford, Dr. P. N. Rhodes, faculty sponsor for tennis, accompanied the team.

The Lynx tennis team continued on its victorious march by soundly trouncing the invading Arkansas Razorbacks Saturday. The final score was Southwestern nine matches, Arkansas none. So overwhelming was the defeat that the Razorbacks only took one set of one match. This, for the benefit of our non-tennis-playing friends, is practically a total rout.

CECIL NEW DEFEATS PRO

Wednesday night in the Southwestern gym, Cecil New defeated Mr. Marsh, New York champ, 21-10, 21-9, 21-13. Mr. Marsh challenged Cecil to a game, and offered to place a small (?) bet on the side. Cecil accepted, bet and all. An estimated crowd of 150 watched the match. There is a return match pending.

MENTAL MEANDERINGS

Things We Like: Little girls with pigtails. . . Large brightly flowered handkerchiefs. . . Making "A" on a paper for Dr. Townsend. . . Badminton and ping-pong. . . Watches with black faces and dots instead of numbers. . . The miraculous way in which Jane Arden and Dick Tracy always manage to get their man. . . The novels of Rafael Sabatini. . . Great big heavy bath towels. . . Collie dogs. . . The Pete Smith movie shorts. . . Indirect lighting. . . The dour remarks of Franklin P. Adams and the saucy repartee of Oscar Levant.

It was a good anecdote Harry Martin had in his column, but we couldn't help feeling he had got off to a wrong start with the sentence: "For Oscar could have been Rochester is he would."

Things We Don't Like: Dusty windows . . . tables that rock back and forth . . . cracker crumbs in bed . . . dandruff . . . the advent of flies with summer . . . books from the library stacks with ancient cobwebs thereon

. . . gum on our shoes . . . paint in our hair . . . people who, when you happen to glance up casually, are staring a hole through you . . . Travel-talks of places where the fellow in back of us has been—the one who keeps exclaiming, "Say, remember that building with the windows," and "Why that's the place we spent a quarter for a hamburger!"

Something we never knew till now—that there was a play with six acts. It's Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird." And now that we are shorn of our illusions, we wouldn't be a bit surprised if there were just scads of them lying around.

It's not that we dislike Mr. Pegler, but that picture of his that accompanies his daily column—the one without eyebrows—positively frightens us. We were all ready to suggest a "Fund for Raising Eyebrows for Westbrook Pegler" when we happened across a photograph that proved indubitably that he possesses a fairly decent crop. Of course, we hate to admit we were all wrong, but we still think it makes him look like a distant relative of Frankenstein's creation.

Memphis may now consider itself a most fortunate city. It has acquired the ace of funnies—namely, Blondie.

Perhaps it's presumptuous of us, but we can't refrain from recommending "Strange Cargo." The boys may not enjoy seeing Joan Crawford with frizzed hair and sans make-up, but the girls will go for wild-eyed Clark Gable, looking as messy as the most confirmed of he-men. But what we really base our praise on is that cast of super-derelets, including "Inform-er" Peter Lorre, "Man of Strength" Albert Dekker (Dr. Cyclops), "Wife Poisoner" Paul Lukas (whom we firmly believe will steal the show), and Eduardo Ciannelli.

It's still a novelty, but those fluorescent carpets at the New Malco give us the weirdest feeling (maybe we should have taken more science and gained a nonchalant, logical outlook on these things). But you just look down at your feet when you're on the way out. You'll feel funny when you discover you've got purple feet, too.

Southwestern Beauties To Be Selected May 3

For The Lynx

Four beauties will be selected for the LYNX between the first and second of the three one-act plays to be given by the Southwestern Players in Hardie Auditorium May 3. Each sorority group will enter two contestants. Jo Meux and Cecilia Hill will represent AOPi; Jeanne Reeves and Dale Botto, Tri-Delta; Deola White and Margaret Moyer, Kappa Delta; Barbara Jane Robinson and Marie Palmer, ZTA; Elizabeth Yawn and Doris Cullins, non-sorority. Chi Omega contestants have not yet been chosen.

Pictures of the four beauties, together with those of Virginia Waggener, Miss Southwestern, and Kitty Bright Tipton, April Fool Carnival queen, will make up the beauty section.

At the meeting of the Baptist Club on Thursday Mrs. John McCall talked on "Christian Living." The next meeting will be held Monday in the Bell Room, and Dr. C. B. Bateman will speak on "The Relationship of Higher Learning and Christian Teaching."
