Pan Announces Pledging Rules For Freshmen

Frat Houses Declared Off Bounds For Frosh

Pledging of men students to fraternities is under strict regulation at Southwestern. The purpose of the resident rule is to give new students an opportunity to become acquainted with the fraternity men before making an affiliation.

No new student may pledge a fraternity until he has passed twelve hours work at Southwestern. An additional stipulation is that the student must pass his twelve hours with a minimum grade point average of 1.2.

Until these requirements are met, the student may not be closely associated with a fraternity. He is allowed to enter each fraternity house for one Saturday night function other than those open to the entire student body. Fraternity members are not permitted to spend money on a new student. This is to allow all fraternities to compete for pledges on the equal basis of friendship.

Before a pledge can be initiated he must have achieved an average grade point of at least 1.75.

These rules are formulated and enforced by the Men's Pan Hellenic Council.

"S" Club Initiates New Members Today

The "S" Club, the lettermen's organization of Southwestern, held its first meeting of the new year last Friday afternoon in the Field House. The new Constitution of the "S" Club was ratified by the members, and plans were made for the year's activities.

The first part of the club's initiation of new members began this week. All candidates for membership are required to obtain the signatures of the "S" Club's twenty-seven members on an egg which will be used by the candidates in an egg-race this afternoon at 1:30 on the lawn in back of Palmer Hall. The final part of the initiation ceremony will be held next week. Candidates for membership are: Speros Vryonis, Dave Thomas, Gerald Flippin, George Bugbee, Harold Barnett, Millen Darnell, Jack Walton, John Murdock, Milton Newton, Ted Fox Paul Currie, Jack Doyle, Mark Harris, Bill Durbin, and Curtis Kent.

Freshmen regulations were discussed and a more strict enforcement of these rules by the "S" Club was agreed upon. It was also decided that the Board Committee would meet at least once each week with the Freshmen men students who fail to adhere to these regulations.

It was announced that Professor John Osman would present at the Commencement Exercises each year a medal to the "S" Club member who has made the highest scholastic average for that year. This will be called the "S Club Scholastic Award."

The Winning Score

Jack Doyle sprints into pay-dirt to rack up the winning score for Southwestern in the last minute and forty seconds of the game, while the Lynx Cat fans go wild.

New Professors At Southwestern

Two New Staff Members Added To Office Force

Twelve new professors and two staff members have been added to Southwestern's faculty this year.

Phillip Angeles, assistant professor of Spanish, studied at Lehigh University, the Sorbonne in Paris, and the Universidad Nacional de Mexico. For a number of years he directed his own private school in Mexico.

Neil F. Bruce, assistant professor of Political Science, is a native of Australia and comes to Southwestern from the faculty of Social Studies at Balliol College, Oxford. He received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Oxford.

Bernice F. Daley, assistant director of Physical Education for women, is a graduate of Tufts College and a former student at the Bouve Boston School of Physical Education. Before coming to Southwestern she taught physical culture and directed summer camps.

James J. Hagood, assistant professor of Mathematics, received his undergraduate education from Piedmont College and did graduate study at the University of Georgia and Peabody College, where he received his M.A. A former Y.M.C.A. director, Mr. Hagood taught at Peabody last year.

Robert W. Johnson, assistant professor of Business Administration and Economics, did undergraduate work at Oberlin College and graduate work at Harvard University's School of Business, where

ATTENTION

If you would like to be a member of either the literary or business staff of the Sou'wester come to the Sou'wester Office any time between 12 noon and 2 p.m. today. News writers and "ad getters" are especially needed, but other positions are also open.

Remember, the Sou'wester is your paper, and the sort of impression it makes on alumni, other colleges and other interested persons is your responsibility.

NOTICE

All fraternities and sororities wishing write-ups in the Sou'wester will turn their copy in to the Sou'wester Office not later than the dead-line, Sunday at 1.00 p.m. each week. We are not obligated to print anything which reaches us later.

Fraternities List 12 New Pledges

Fraternity Row was alive with anticipation last Saturday evening at seven o'clock when actives, worn and weary from house cleaning, imposed upon them by semester pledging, eagerly awaited prospective house cleaners for the present semester. However, brooms were carefully hidden in "Fibber McGee" closets and all exposed surfaces were freshly dusted before the new pledges were welcomed.

New pledges are as follows:

ATO: Martine Termenstein
KA: William Brunner, Richard Burton

Kappa Sigma: Milton Newton, Tom Smith.

PiKA: Bill Brennan, Donald Roe, Bill Saltzman, Joe Sumrall, Jack Walton.

Sigma Nu: Bill Akins, Hugh Brown.

STAB Intersorority Taps Emma Jane Haralson

Emma Jane Haralson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Clyde Haralson of Brownsville, Tennessee, is the first Southwestern coed to be chosen this year for membership in S. T. A. B. Intersorority. Miss Haralson appeared on the campus Friday, September 24, wearing the traditional white of S. T. A. B. with a red badge lettered S. T. A. B. at her waist. She is a member of the sophomore class at Southwestern, Study Plan chairman of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority, and a member of the Y. W. C. A.

S. T. A. B., an organization to promote better relations among the sororities, is limited to a membership of twelve brunettes and one blond. Officers are Jeanne Edens, President; Vinton Cole, Vice-President; and Sue Henry, Secretary-Treasurer. Members are Emily Rice, Jeanne Roberts and Margaret Ann Ellis.

Lynx Upset Little Giants In Grid Opening Game At Crump Stadium

Visitors Throng To Open Houses

By Helen Magee

An extra-special event of the year was open house Saturday night sponsored by the Southwestern Fraternities.

Following the victorious football game, which enlivened our spirits considerably, fraternity doors were opened and the parties were well under way before the designated time of 8:00 o'clock.

Refreshments of the various fraternities included punch, cokes, coffee, pastries and sandwiches, which were enjoyed immensely by the guest. Each house offered an excellent opportunity for filling one's capacity for these delicacies, which most people did at each house.

Entertainments such as dancing, card games, ping pong, pool, and others were participated in by the guests. Special features included talent displayed on the guitar and piano, the latter calling for group singing.

Hats off to our professors and the Wabash players who joined in the fun. Many acquaintances were made and many renewed by the alumni.

Comments were made on: That tasty chemical punch of the IKA's and KA's (dry ice content).

The cozy atmosphere of the ATO house.

That nice little patio with the Chinese lighting at the SAE house.

The demand for the green match folders at the Kappa Sig house.

The waiting line at the ping pong table at the Sigma Nu house.

Many thanks to these fraternities for such a warm welcome to Southwestern and the fine time had by all. We're looking forward to next year's open house.

CUC Presents Student Panel

The Christian Union of Southwestern met for its first discussion on Friday afternoon, September 24. Audrey Brunkhurst, Chairman, introduced the panel speakers. They were Jim Davis, who held the point of view concerning social life on the college campus; Margaret Loaring-Clark, who discussed the important aspect of scholarship; and Denby Brandon, who presented the part played by Christian activity as a link between social life and scholarship.

Jim said, "The Christian student should determine what type of social activity he shall pursue. Over-indulgence in social activities is just as bad as under-indulgence in the same field. — Social life is not to be overlooked; it is an important part, which gives him the intimate touch with humanity he needs in his future life and profession."

"Scholarship," held Miss Loaring-Clark, "is the most important part of college. We have a great privilege in going to college. College students will be leaders of the

Cats' Team Spirit Earns 19-13 Victory

The Southwestern football team began the 1948 season in a terrific manner last Saturday afternoon when it passed its way to a 19-13 win over the highly rated Little Giants from Wabash College. Although the Lynx entered the game as underdogs because of the superior weight and experience of the Indiana eleven, the home team possessed a competitive spirit which could not be broken and which would not settle for less than a victory. The contest was closely battled throughout, and the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle found Wabash plunging away at their own forty-five yard line.

Only three minutes had elapsed after the opening kickoff when Jack Doyle (after taking a lateral from Jimmy Goostree) galloped to his right, leaped into the air, and hurled a fifty-yard pass to Frank Boswell who took the ball in full stride on the Wabash twenty. Frank then turned on his jets and pulled away from the Giant safety man, Frank Roman. Bill Sparks split the uprights for the extra point, and the dumbfounded spectators could hardly realize that Southwestern lead by the score of 7-0.

Wabash took Sparks' kickoff to their twenty-three and then began a sustained march of 77 yards in twelve plays for a retaliating marker. Norm Wilson duplicated Sparks' conversion, and with the game all tied up the squads settled down to a scoreless scrap for the remainder of the first half.

Southwestern threatened in the second quarter when it advanced the ball to the Indiana twelve and again in the third period when it was halted on the twenty, but on each occasion it lacked just enough to push over a touchdown.

A quick-kick by Wabash tackle Frank Ritter placed the Lynx back on their twenty late in the third quarter. The Giants then took a Southwestern punt and moved the ball up to the Lynx 47 yard stripe. From this point Jay Gray dashed through the line, cut to his left, and

Ministerial Club Meets Tonight In Band House

The Ministerial Club will hold its first meeting for this year in the Band House at 7:00 p.m., Thursday, September 30. Professor David Sprunt will speak about Dr. Hromodka of Czechoslovakia.

The Ministerial Club is composed of those students who are studying for the ministry and of all other male students who are interested in furthering Christian fellowship and service, and Biblical discussion. There are no requirements of residence, of invitation or of religious denomination. All male students who will be invited to meet with them at this and all other meetings.

College Churches
 Welcome Students

Students who have established themselves in a real college church home have found it a rewarding experience. In these days it is seldom that we continue through life in the church of our childhood. In college we may get some valuable experience in establishing a new church home, and the chances are we shall have to do it more than once in the course of our lives.

The following are the college churches, and they welcome you into their fellowship:

- Evergreen Presbyterian Church
- Jackson Avenue Church of Christ
- Linden Avenue Christian Church
- Speedway Baptist Church
- Springdale Methodist Church
- St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Impressions

By Helen Magee

There's lots of excitement afloat these days—football, open houses, socials, etc. and with these occasions there are many personalities involved, this being the subject upon which I am about to elaborate.

First, we new students wish to thank all the old students for the nice welcome we have received. The beauty of Southwestern's campus is only surpassed by the friendliness of the people on it.

Second, we think our football team is swell. Here's hoping we beat Sewanee.

Have you noticed:

How nice the boys look with their coats on at the evening meal—
 The high spirits produced by the football victory—

All the bruises on the arms of people taking archery—

How friendly Jean Edens and Carolyn Algee are—

How funny Norma Keisling is—

How cute Ann Rollow is—

How nice Jackie Roland looks in brown—

How accomodating some people are about carrying dormitory students to church—

How hard it is to beat thirty-five people to the bookstore, when there are only eighteen books for the class—

How hard it is to stay off the grass—

Onions to:

People who talk in the library—

People who can't be depended upon—

Loud people.

OPENING CONVOCATION OF 1931 STILL TIMELY TODAY

Dr. Alfred Hume, who has for more than forty years been identified with the University of Mississippi as Professor, Vice-Chancellor, Chancellor, and now again as Professor, was Professor of Mathematics at Southwestern for the session of 1931-32. He is probably the oldest and most beloved professor on the faculty of the University of Mississippi, and he and Mrs. Hume greatly endeared themselves to everyone at Southwestern during the year he served here on the faculty. He was asked by President Diehl to deliver the address at the opening convocation in September, 1931. It is with Dr. Hume's permission that we are printing that address, which is as timely today as it was when he delivered it seventeen years ago.

President Diehl has graciously invited me to speak at this opening convocation of the college year. Being a newcomer in the faculty of Southwestern, my very first word is one of hearty congratulation to all of us who are privileged to be connected with such an excellent institution. And so I have decided to use as my subject—

KEEP CAMPUS CLEAN

1. Physically. Southwestern is fortunate in its location, having spacious and beautiful grounds amid attractive surroundings. Its buildings are marked by that solidity, permanence, strength and beauty which, by right, should characterize everything Christian. Its equipment throughout is of like character. There is nothing shoddy or cheap or ornate here but, rather, that which suggests genuineness, sincerity and simplicity originating in wonderfully wise planning and first class construction.

I am thinking of a fine spring by the side of a road in Middle Tennessee where the wide-spreading branches of a great old elm beckon to travellers to stop awhile for rest in the shade and for a drink of cool, clear, crystal water. It is just the proper spot for a family gathering or a picnic. Some one has tacked a sign to the trunk of the tree reading "If you scatter trash at home then scatter it in this place, too, for we want you to feel at home." That is hint enough for all who can take a hint to collect pieces of paper, tin cans, empty bottles, and scraps of left-over lunch that all such refuse might be carried far away from the scene.

You, too, have come to a place of refreshment, a time of peculiar privilege. You find all things about Southwestern practically spotless. Let us see to it that we keep the campus clean.

2. Morally. While there can be no question as to the duty and desirability of keeping the campus clean physically, it is vastly more important to avoid whatever scars character or stains and contaminates the soul. In particular, keep your honor bright. Some one has said that honesty is the best policy, but another has said something very much greater; namely, honesty is better than policy. Cheating is not to be tolerated. If one cannot make the grade honorably, let him not be ashamed to say so and then go out like a man with a clear conscience and with his head up. Make the Psalmist's prayer your own, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." You have at Southwestern an enviable reputation to maintain. Cherish it. You inherit an honor spirit. Preserve it at all costs as one of your priceless possessions. Yes, keep the campus clean on the inside.

3. Socially. At Southwestern the size of the student body is such that you may become well acquainted with each other and form friendships that will last and prove of untold value. "A man that hath friends must show himself friend-whole world, and what we are going to do, we should begin now. — But both social and scholastic phases revolve around Christianity as the center of life. We owe good Christian education to ourselves, to our college, and to God."

"The Christian Union's task," said Denby, "is to stimulate interest in genuine Christian activities. Unfortunately many of us have misconceptions about God. Also we talk a lot about Christian activities, but don't actually take time to listen to messages about God. Until we make this the center and fountain of power in our thought, our religious activities will not have true meaning. A valid experience of this kind will make activities real and strengthening."

Following the panel discussion refreshments were served, and questions were answered and discussed by various students who attended. There were a number of new students present, and it is hoped that the attendance will increase considerably at the next meeting.

The MISSING LYNX

My name is Crusher.

And so once again, dear friends, there creeps into the pages of this journal the academical excursions and philosophical meanderings of an old, old man; an old man now content merely to sit in his dust covered, moss grown, cold stone cell high in the upper reaches of one of the dormitories for young gentlemen upon this campus. Few are allowed to visit me now; fewer still take advantage of the opportunity when it is offered to them. My long white beard, once the haven of many tree spiders which comforted me in my long hours of solitude, is now filled with chipmunks; and the small balsam tree which once grew through a crack in the floor along side my chair has become an aged and spreading oak, which is no mean trick in itself. Alone, all alone I sit, with my chipmunks, my tree, my typewriter, and my unsexed water moccasin, Thad, who nowadays spends all his time sleeping on the typewriter roller. The heavy festoons of cobwebs which festoon the room, festoon-fashion, I sometimes weave into quaint tapestries. And I think about the times that used to be.

It was with a great deal of pleasure, then, that I welcomed into my sanctuary this year's editor of the "Sou'wester," a ritual which has come to mean so much to me in the past. A tall, rather mystic looking individual, he came, as have all editors of the past, to pay his respects, and to receive my blessing upon his efforts to be expended during this, the one hundredth year of our college's, and my, existence. He told me, many times, that his name was Pica Sweatt, and he informed me, rather preemptorily, I thought, that he would be pleased if I would continue to compose my weekly words of wisdom. He asked, also in somewhat of a commanding tone, that I address my first words to the group of new arrivals upon our beloved campus. His presumptive manner, however, I attributed to his extreme youthfulness, and with a pat upon his innocent brow I dismissed him. A kind fellow, he, and all shall be well.

And so, dear freshmen, it is to you that I now speak. Hear these remarks of an old and wiser man, and heed.

Your first duty within these sacred bounds will be to learn. I do not mean the learning that is to be found in books. That will come, but long before then you must learn to find your way around among those perpetual inhabitants of our buildings which you shall come to know fondly as "the faculty." Your first reaction will be one of amazement. Utter. Your second will be bewilderment. Also utter. But it will not be long, and you may take me at my word, before your initial opinion will give way to that now shared by everyone who has known them before—a feeling which can best be described as somewhere between amused toleration and fanatic devotion. Simply muster your patience. And wait.

You will come to know, first, our beloved president, Charles E. Diehl. You will speak of him, to next year's freshmen, as "The Great White Father," and you will learn to recognize him at once by his new hats. You will hear Waller Raymond Cooper fondly defending the "peeeepul" in American history class, you will go for long, geographical rides with him in his "little red airplane," and if you are clever you will get him started talking about his adventures while a student at Oxford. You will recoil in horror and plead for mercy whenever you hear Martin W. Storm inform you in Spanish class that "we" will have a "little quiz" tomorrow; but you will smirk with glee and never open a book when the Speech Department's huge, bumbling George Totten says the same thing. M. Foster Moose will lead you patiently by the hand through the dwelling places of the atom and into the innermost secrets of the electron up in the chemisry lab, and you will do your share in spreading the insidious rumor that his first name is Mickey. Over and over again you will listen to George R. Shipman insist in French class that he did nothing but sit in cafes and drink coffee while in France this summer; but only once will you have the nerve to call Jared E. Wenger "doctor". And when Chaplain Reveley opens his Bible class with a prayer on examination day, you'll be on your knees.

These, and many more, you will come to know. These, and many more, will come to know you. If you want to learn, they will teach you. And if you don't they will still try.

You will be forced to listen to a lot of people say a lot of things to you. This constant flood of information and advice which will constantly be breaking over your ears will by no means come all from the professors; a large part will be furnished free gratis by almost everyone with whom you associate. And you will not be harmed by any of it if you will remember only this: "Listen to everything; absorb it thoroughly; and then go off alone somewhere and listen to yourself."

What was spoken by Emerson in 1837, and which was used to close this column exactly one year ago, is in my opinion the most excellent advice which you can find to carry with you throughout these next four years:

"... meek young men grow up in libraries, believing it their duty to accept the views which Cicero, which Locke, which Bacon, have given; forgetful that Cicero, Locke, and Bacon were only young men in libraries when they wrote these books."

ly." You enjoy here opportunity for relaxation and recreation. Remember that dissipation and excesses of every kind are the opposite of recreation.

I am thinking now of an address of a splendid gentleman, later a citizen of Memphis. He was speaking to a large body of students. Among other things he said "Young gentlemen, I believe in athletics." That statement was greeted with prolonged applause. When the uproar subsided and quiet came again, he said with deliberation and calm emphasis, "I believe in athletics in bounds." That sentiment failed to meet with enthusiastic response.

The principle applies to all social diversions. However good and desirable they may be, they should not have the preeminence in college life. They should be held within bounds, and they should be kept clean whether in the dance hall or on the gridiron.

4. Spiritually. While serving another institution, I said once that when my day was done I hoped that it could be truthfully said of my administration that the moral and religious were supreme. A man's religion — his attitude and relationship to God—is the biggest thing about him.

In speaking at a school commencement, I raised the question "What is the need of the hour in the school of today?" My answer was "An education with a heart in it. Something that will teach a boy or girl, a young man or a young woman to say, not simply, "I can" and "I will", but much more important and far more fundamental than either of these "I ought."

You have at Southwestern a religious atmosphere not surpassed, so far as I know and believe, anywhere else. You have here a reverent, sane, and serious study of the Bible; pure and happy religion, free from can't and hypocrisy, with devotion to our Lord and Savior. Every effort is made here to enable you to keep yourselves "unspotted from the world."

Keep the campus clean first of all spiritually, then socially, morally, and physically.

Chapel Chimes

By Jerry Bloom

In the beginning God . . .

When we look at the world around us, we are aware of a power higher than ourselves. The world of nature and the intricate structure of the everyday things that we see are manifestations of the force that we call God. When we see the trees and flowers, the birds and animals — the lower order of things — and then contemplate the nature of man — his body and immortal soul — we know that these were made by more than human hands, that they were no mere accidents; in short, we find God. And this act of Creation did not end on the seventh day when God rested, but is going on even now.

Man's life is incomplete until he finds God and is found of God. Just as he is a part of the eternal plan and discovers for himself the presence of God, man becomes aware of his responsibility to society. Endowed with a freedom of choice, he may be a force for good or evil. Let us choose that good part.

Nothing and everything are here for all men;
 Man has to dig for the bread that he eats;
 Failure or plenty he brings to himself —
 He makes his life.

Lynx Play Sewanee Saturday In Deshler High Stadium

The Lynx gridmen, thirty-five strong, will leave here Saturday morning for Tuscumbia, Alabama where they tangle with the Sewanee team at 8:00 p.m. that evening. The game is being played in the Deshler High Stadium and is being sponsored by the Tuscumbia Park and Recreation Board who hope to make the contest an annual affair. Approximately 10,000 spectators, which will constitute a sell-out, are expected.

Sewanee will furnish stiff opposition to the Lynx who hope to keep their 1948 slate clean. The "Purple Tigers" boast 18 lettermen among their ranks, and they will be led by Captain Reed Bell who was the only unsubsidized member of the 1947 Little All-America team. Coach Bill White (from the University of Tennessee) employs the Tennessee version of the single wing formation in his offensive onslaughts.

Approximately 100 Southwestern students are expecting to follow the team to Alabama and witness the Lynx avenge the 8-0 defeat which they suffered at the hands of the University of the South on the latter's home field last fall. Curtis Kent, the Southwestern Commissioner of Athletics, has chartered a bus which will provide transportation for 37 students, and many are going in private automobiles.

The Lynx Cats should be in fine condition for this battle, for, as this article goes to press, only one team member, Lonnie Stanford, will not be available for duty. The fine team spirit exhibited by the squad last Saturday in their defeat of Wabash is counted upon to carry the Cardinal and Black to their second win of the season.

Touch Football Season Opens

The Men's Intramural Board held its first meeting of the year last Thursday and drew up plans for the touch football season which gets under way today. The games will be played on the two touchfootball fields located behind the tennis courts. All contests will begin promptly at 5:15 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays. Today's pairings find Kappa Sigma meeting the Frosh and Pi Kappa Alpha tangling with Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

A wide open race for the championship is predicted, with a slight edge given to Sigma Nu and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The former organization will field practically the same fine team which they had last fall, and the latter team will have several worthwhile additions on their squad. Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Kappa Sigma (last year's champions) will be hurt by losses due to transfers and graduations. The Independents, Alpha Tau Omega, and the Frosh are expected to have improved teams.

Mr. Bill Mabry will be the director of the intramural program this year and the members of the Intramural Board are: Don Walton, Pi KA, President; Bill Coley, KA; Paul Currie, KS; Bill Boyce, ATO; Bill Durbin, SAE; Jerry Bugbee, SN; Seros Vryonis, IND.; and Roy Page, FROSH.

The Schedule:
 Sept. 30 — KS-FROSH; PIKA-SAE

YWCA Holds Tea Honoring New Students

On Tuesday the Y.W.C.A. held a tea in honor of all new women students on the campus. The old members of the organization received the guests at the door ushering them into a gayly decorated room where dainty cakes and tea were served. After several instructive and amusing talks by Y members, the highly enjoyable open house came to a close.

This tea was the first of a number of projects planned by the Christian Union Cabinet for the coming year. Following the general theme, "World Awareness," the financial adoption of a European child and the sponsorship of a Southwestern table at the monthly, city-wide, Y.W.C.A. discussions on public affairs.

Alpha Tau Omega Held Vespers Sun.

Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, with Jimmy Cobb and John D. Reese acting as leaders, conducted the vesper service last Sunday afternoon. The text for the devotional was taken from the 43rd Psalm. A special musical number, "Spirit of God, Descend Upon My Heart," was sung by Bob Matthews, Toni Elizondo, and Reith Gewin.

All of the student body is invited and urged to attend the vesper services which are held every Sunday afternoon at five in the band house.

The Stylus "Journal" is a student magazine. Your help is needed. Deadline for Stylus "Journal" articles is November 1.

"Bedie" Crosses To Tie Up Score

 raced half the distance of the field to give Wabash a 13-7 lead. Wilson's conversion try was wide. The Lynx were not through by a long shot though. Five plays later and on the first play of the final quarter Jimmy Goostree faded back and threw a 25 yard pass to Bedford Dunnavent who hauled the ball in on the Wabash 30. "Beefie" stretched out his long legs and outdistanced the Little Giant backfield men to again tie up the score. A high crosswind blew Sparks' placement wide.

The rest of the fourth period was a series of thrusts between the 30 yard markers until Billy Joe Crissamore dove on a Wabash fumble on the latter's 25. On the very next play Goostree rifled a short pass to Jack Doyle in the left flat, and after reversing his field twice, picking up a couple of fine blocks along the way, and shaking off several would-be tacklers Doyle finally made the end zone for the winning six points as the clock on the scoreboard showed that only one minute and forty seconds were remaining in the game. The Southwestern fans went wild and the team showed their determination to prevent another Giant tally by demonstrating some vicious tackling.

It was team spirit, determination to win, and a fine passing attack which won for Southwestern. When the big Wabash forward wall would bog down the Lynx running attack, Jimmy Goostree would take to the air with beautiful strikes to very capable receivers. Despite a very strong crosswind, the little quarterback had seven completions in eighteen attempts and three of these went for touchdowns. Only one of his throws was intercepted and on this occasion he was rushed very fast and had to hurry the pass.

The linesmen, particularly Ray Ashley, Billy Joe Crissamore, and Conrad Carroll played brilliantly throughout the game, and after Wabash's first touchdown march, their running attack was usually stopped before it could get up much momentum.

The Lynx running attack showed considerable promise too. Such backs as Sam Blair, Jack Doyle, and Forrest Flaniken picked up many valuable yards and were a constant threat.

VESPER SERVICES

The purpose of this article is to acquaint new students with and to remind old students of the vesper services that are held each Sunday afternoon from 5 to 5:30 in the band house. These worship

Music Students Get Acquainted

The College of Music began its series of Wednesday night classes with a get-acquainted party, from 7:30 to 10:30, on September 22. Everybody, faculty and students, introduced himself (and herself) to the crowd, and after a talk by Dr. Tuthill the party got underway. After several games, presided over by Miss Lois Maer, Mr. Harry Edwall, and Miss Carroll Tuthill, the guests were served refreshments. An added attraction, in the form of several impromptu two-piano numbers performed by Clifford Tucker and Mr. Myers, assisted by Miss Bess Portwood and Phil Hisey, jitterbugs, proved to be the highlight of the evening.

services will be conducted by representatives of the fraternities, sororities, and other organizations on the campus. These vesper services will provide a convenient opportunity for worship for all those who desire it. All students, both dormitory and day students, are cordially invited to these services.
