The Southwestern String Quartet will present the last of its three concerts this Sunday, December 17, at the Memphis College of Music. The program will begin with Three Songs by Arturo Grimani, followed by the String Quartet No. 5 by Dvorak. The concert will conclude with the String Sextet by Brahms, and the String Quartet by Romantic Promenade by Robert B. Lee. The ensemble has given several concerts and will return to their regular schedule in January.

The door to the Student Union was propped open by a chair, and as I entered, I could hear the sound of music. It was a lively scene, with students dancing and chatting. The room was filled with a sense of excitement and energy. I walked over to the band and introduced myself to the conductor, who welcomed me and gave me a tour of the facility. I was impressed by the talent and dedication of the students, and I hope to work with them in the future.

The winner of this week's award is Emily Jefferson, a junior at the University of Tennessee. Emily has been a fighter from the first day of school. She is a member of the Student Council and has already shown a great deal of leadership potential. Emily is known for her dedication and commitment to her studies, as well as her involvement in extracurricular activities. She is a true role model for all students at the University of Tennessee.

It was one of those dreary afternoons in July when a little girl sat on the steps of the post office, staring absently at the sky. She had only recently arrived in town, and the newness of it all was overwhelming. She had been told that this town was a place of adventure and opportunity, but she couldn't help feeling a bit lost and alone.
