HONOR COUNCIL BALLOTING HELD

Presidential Nominations To Be Held Monday

Nominations and elections were held this morning following chapel for Honor Council members from the three classes returning next year. Runoffs will be held tomorrow morning if necessary.

Monday morning nominations will be made during the student assembly for all student body officers. The president of the student body, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and the president of the Publications Board will be nominated. Voting will be held Tuesday with the polls to be placed in the hall outside of chapel. The polls will be open until 1 o'clock and will be kept by members of the election commission. Runoffs in the elections will be held Wednesday morning.

On the following Thursday, class elections will be held with next year's sophomore, junior, and senior classes electing their presidents, vice-presidents, secretary-treasurers. One member to the Publications Board will be elected from each class.

Eleven members of the Honor Council will be elected today, and the members of the class of 1940 will be chosen next fall. This year's Council nominates two candidates in each class and members returning next year are automatically nominated. Both the senior and junior classes have four representatives, three men and one woman, while the sophomores have two men members and one woman representative.

DRAKE READS PAPER TO CHI BETA PHI

Richard Drake read a paper on "Polaroid, the Magic Glass" before Chi Beta Phi last night. He also read this paper recently before the Tennessee Academy of Science.

Plans of Chi Beta Phi for the rest of the spring include a picnic on Saturday, May 7, and a liquid air demonstration by Dr. Rhodes and members of the Physics Department about May 15th.

TO STATE MEET

The next competition that Southwestern tennis team will engage in will be at the state meet at Sewanee. The Lynx are defending champions.

WHO WILL RIDE THE BAND WAGON?

By WARD ARCHER

Three powerful political party machines are marshalling their forces for the zero hour tonight at 6:30 when the final test will come. Elections officials are already making plans to break the results of the elections gently so that the danger of revolution will be lessened. Candidates have spent the last few days in last desperate attempts to win over doubtful votes. Mere speechifying and cigar passing which characterized the first stages of the campaign have given way to more petulant baby-kissing and backslapping.

To make predictions in such an election as this is to take too big a chance of losing whatever prestige as a political prognosticator one has. And besides prestige this writer does not care to hazard his share of the pork barrel, which in this election will probably consist in having the satisfac-

COMMENCEMENT WEEK SPEAKERS ARE SELECTED

Dr. E. J. Goodspeed Will Deliver Address

OUTDOOR SERVICES

Senator Pittman Is Alumnus And Honor Guest

Dr. Edgar Johnson Goodspeed, renowned principally for his co-editorship of the American translation of the Bible, and Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, will speak at Southwestern during graduation week.

Dr. Goodspeed will deliver the commencement address on June 2. The exercises will take place in a temporary open-air amphitheater to be constructed on the campus near North Parkway. The structure will seat approximately 2000 persons.

Senator Pittman is to be guest of honor at the annual alumni celebration. A graduate of Southwestern in the class of '90, he will speak at the alumni banquet on June 1.

Beginning to practice law in Seattle in 1892, he soon attained political prominence and in 1912 became United States Senator from Nevada, which position he has held ever since. He has been president pro-tem of the senate, delegate to the World Economic Conference, London, 1933, and chairman of the committee on platform and resolutions of the Democratic National Convention. Southwestern conferred on him an honorary LL.D. in 1919.

Dr. Goodspeed, who has been head of the New Testament Department at the University of Chicago since 1923, has degrees from Denison University, Yale, Chicago, and the University of Berlin. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi social fraternity, and Phi Beta Kappa.

His "Story of the New Testament" has been translated into both Japanese and Chinese. His other works include a scholarly volume on "Greek Papyri in the Cairo Museum." In collaboration with J. M. P. Smith he has produced his two most famous works: "The Bible, An American Translation" in 1931, and "The Short Bible" in 1933.

LYNX HISTORY IN RADIO PROGRAM

SOUTHWESTERN IS HOST TO EDITORS OF PREP PAPERS

Dr. Diehl Welcomes Guests At Luncheon In Neely Hall

DR. JOHNSON SPEAKS TO GROUP TONIGHT

Officers Elected At Final Meeting; Prizes Awarded

Delegates from high schools of the Mississippi valley arrived this morning to attend the Mississippi Valley High School Press Association Convention here today and tomorrow. This annual meeting, which was started three years ago, is to further interest in and promote better high school papers.

The delegates will be welcomed today by Dr. Charles E. Diehl, president of Southwestern, at a luncheon in Neely Hall, after the visitors have toured the campus. Then, at a plenary session, Ted Northington of the Commercial Appeal staff, will speak on "Staff Cooperation."

This year, instead of having professional writers talk to the delegates, members of the Sou'wester staff will hold discussion groups concerning editorials, feature stories, news stories, advertising, and sports. Martha Shaeffer, Jane Adams, John Quanty, Ward Archer, Louis Duffee, and Harvey Heidelberg will be in charge of these groups.

Delegates will witness the weekly Southwestern broadcast from Hardie Auditorium after the discussion period.

A reception by the Women's Pan Hellenic Council is to be held following the broadcast.

Dean A. T. Johnson will speak at the banquet tonight in Neely Hall. Clark Porteous, former editor of the Sou'wester and Press-Scimitar staff writer, will conduct an open forum tonight.

Tomorrow morning, the discussion groups will be continued.

Luncheon tomorrow will be followed by reports of the discussion groups, presentation of the newly elected officers, and the awarding of prizes for the best high school papers and the best news story on the convention.

Logan Mooney, Tech High School, Memphis, is acting president of the convention. Thomas Fuller is in charge of the arrangements and Prof. Gordon Siefkin is advisor.

EPISCOPAL CLUB HEARS BISHOP

"The only real challenge to the terrible condition of the world today, with its sense of futility and hopelessness, is that of the young people united by faith in Christ," declared Bishop James M. Maxon to the Episcopal Student Club at its annual banquet Monday night, "a faith emphasizing the worth of a single personality, which can be developed only through the self-sacrifice of a cross, and for which through the cross there is no failure."

The Episcopal Club will meet next Tuesday night, May 5, at 7:30; the place will be announced later.

DISPLAY CASES FOR MARINE COLLECTION

Four large museum cases were purchased recently by the Biology Department. These cases will house the marine collection.

This collection is one of the finest of its kind in the South and was assembled by Professor C. L. Baker and his assistants last summer.

The cases were put together by N. Y. A. workers under the direction of Mr. Rollow.

CHOIR TO SING

Professor Tuthill announced this week that the Southwestern choir will sing Wednesday, May 7, at the Nineteenth Century Club in co-operation with National Music Week.

Applications for editors and business managers of Southwestern's 1936-1937 publications must be in the bursar's office by 6 P.M. Tuesday, May 5, announced the Publications Board yesterday. Professor C. G. Siefkin has been selected to replace Professor W. R. Cooper as one of the faculty representatives on the Board.

The posts to be filled are the editor of the Sou'wester, the editor of the Year Book, the editor of the Journal, the business manager of the Sou'wester, and the business manager of the Year Book. Students will be allowed to apply for any number of these positions on the same application. The application must state the positions in the order of preference. A candidate listing only one office will automatically become ineligible for the others. All additional information about the candidate's qualifications and abilities should be listed on a separate sheet. The selections will be announced in the later issues of the Sou'wester.

Welcome, High School Delegates

For the third time in as many years, Southwestern welcomes delegates to the Mississippi Valley Press Association meeting to its campus.

As guests of the college, you have free reign to visit any and all of our buildings and become acquainted in any way possible with Southwestern. We hope you will feel free to ask any member of the student body or faculty to show you around, or otherwise give you aid.

The program has been arranged solely for your convenience and benefit, and we will not feel successful if one of your wants goes unfilled.

Make yourselves at home, delegates. We welcome you.

Continue The Journal

Dickie Thomas comes forth with a letter to the editor that, to me, hits the spot. He is perfectly correct in asking why The Southwestern Journal has been discontinued and in advocating its reinstatement.

Perhaps the Publications Board is justified in cutting down the annual appropriation set aside for the publishing of the literary magazine, but certainly not in squeezing it entirely out of existence. As Thomas says, a literary publication of its nature has a definite place on the Southwestern campus, and while not well known to all of the student body, it is truly appreciated by many students.

We hope the Board will see fit to revive—or permit revival—of The Southwestern Journal, under the editorship of Maurice Carlson, who has done a bang-up job during the course of the year.

A Needed Addition

A course in Parliamentary Law is advocated through the editorial columns of The Emory Wheel, Emory University. The need for such a course is certainly not limited to the campus of the Atlanta institution.

The vast majority of Southwestern students are clumsy in the art of Parliamentary procedure, in spite of the fact that the daily student assembly is carried on under this system.

An editorial writer of The Wheel says:

We feel that a course of Parliamentary Law is needed at Emory since such a course would be of immediate as well as future value to almost every student. In this day of "boondoggling," "filibustering," and chicanery on the floor as well as in the chair, it seems evident that a practice of the dignified rules of Parliamentary procedure is becoming a lost art.

Therefore, since a university is the training ground for later life, such a course would give to students interested in campus activities, with an eye to public affairs, opportunity for further sound preparation for leadership by being grounded in one of the fundamentals. Too, everyone today needs to know Parliamentary Law more so than ever before. Few are the individuals who are not called upon to preside at some time or another in this era of the committee system.

What he has to say is applicable to our situation, and we suggest a Parliamentary Law course to the curricular committee.

Attend The Banquet

Again we urge all men students to attend the annual gridiron banquet to be held tonight in Neely Hall. No more worthwhile function is held during the course of the college year.

At no other affair do you get quite the same setting and atmosphere of good natured fun, enjoyed by both faculty and students. Here is something you have access to only once a year—take advantage of it.

We might say the women's Curling Iron Banquet is of the same character and of equal value to the co-eds. May both affairs be well attended.

Unnecessary

Increasingly annoying are becoming the many unnecessary and would-be-funny announcements made by various student body members at the regular student assembly periods.

A student's time is valuable, even that early in the morning, and often he dislikes to sit through such foolishness.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Thomas C. Fuller, Editor, The Sou'wester, Southwestern.

Dear Editor Fuller:

The Southwestern Journal was just coming to the point from which it might have grown into a review of as much worth and importance as The Sewanee Review, when the Publications Board strangled it. And I don't think The Southwestern Journal deserved strangling. A good many college literary magazines deserve throttling. But The Southwestern Journal was not one of them.

Ever since I saw a stray copy of the Journal before I came to college, it has held my interest. It was one of the things that drew me to Southwestern. It was the medium through which Professor McLwaine introduced me to a man in North Carolina who has become one of my best friends. It helped me to overcome "publication-consciousness."

The new policy of allowing outsiders to submit material was one of the elements that helped make the Journal what it was. And the discriminating editing of Carlson was another thing that was shaping the Journal into a distinctive publication. Unfamiliar writers were introduced to Southwestern students, and Southwestern students were introduced to the outside. It was a good "booster" for the college, as good as a radio broadcast or a football game, and more permanent than they.

I am not pleading for myself. I shall not be here next year. But there will be those in the future who will want a medium for publication of serious work. The college isn't going to publish bulletins for them, and the Sou'wester isn't the place. They deserve to have a medium available for this service during student-years.

I wish the Publications Board would reconsider the matter. We spend a lot of money on things less important, and of less lasting value. Southwestern is big enough to support a good literary magazine. Why make The Southwestern Journal just a pleasant memory, when it can become one of the chief means of exhibiting what Southwestern is capable of doing? I hope the Journal will be published next year.

Sincerely, RICHARD A. THOMAS.

Views NEW BOOKS Reviews By THOMAS McLEMORE

Dr. Monk has just presented to the library a copy of his recently published book, "The Sublime in Eighteenth Century England," a study of the theories of literary and artistic criticism of that period, with especial reference to their search for that elusive quality known as the sublime, which started with Longinus about 1674, and ended with the rise to fame of Wordsworth in the first half of the nineteenth century.

In this book, Dr. Monk shows how this search for the sublime caused and bridged over the transition from neoclassicism to romanticism. This is a book for scholars, and it is doubtful if it ever will be popular with a great number of people, but certainly it is a book that should be read by every intelligent person who possesses an interest in the literature and critical thought of eighteenth century England.

Out of the ordinary run of recent additions to the library is "Consider the Heavens," by Dr. F. R. Moulton, a not too technical presentation of the main facts discovered by the science of astronomy, for those who have not the time to go into a detailed study of the subject. Everyone has seen the stars and the planets, and wondered about their composition and motions; this book tells briefly and interestingly just such information, facts that will enable the reader to converse intelligently on the topic of our earth and its relation to the universe. New, up-to-date books such as this, popularizing science, are one of the great needs of our library.

Another valuable addition to our library is a collection of essays, entitled, "The Movies on Trial," edited by William J. Perlman. These nineteen essays, by as many authors, together comprise a discussion of the main needs for reform in the motion pictures, and the steps now being taken to accomplish these reforms. In view of the number of shows each of us attend, this is a book which should vitally concern us all. "Look away," by James H. Street,

Happenings of '35—

Editors and business managers for Southwestern publications next year were chosen this week by the Publications Board. Tommy Fuller will succeed James Meadow as editor of The Sou'wester and Louis A. Duffee will be business manager. Rayford Herbert will edit the Senior Year Book with Robert Williams serving as business manager. Maurice Carlson will again act as editor of the Journal.

Nominations for the president of the Student Body will be held Monday in chapel. Voting will take place in the book store between the hours of 9 A.M. and 1 P.M.

McLemore Elder, Tom Jones, Sarah Elizabeth Gemmill, and James Meadow have been elected to the 1934-35 Hall of Fame by the Student Council.

Southwestern's undefeated tennis team defeated Mississippi State without a loss. Ledsinger, Dunlap, Barefield, and Butler played the singles for the Lynx.

The Southwestern student body will be affiliated with the National Student Federation of America for the 1935-36 session, after action taken by the Student Council on Tuesday morning.

During the past week a concentrated effort has been made by leaders of the student body to make the students take notice of the fact that something must be done by them to improve the conduct in the library.

ON THE AIR

By RANDAL MacINNES Broadcasting a program over the air is quite interesting, but there is a lot of work involved. Did you ever stop to think that for every minute given on the actual program, nearly fifteen minutes is spent in rehearsal? And as soon as the broadcast is over, you have to start the same thing all over again. But, then, it's still lots of fun.

And now just a word about this week's broadcast. Southwestern will no longer go on the air at its usual time of 7:45 o'clock. Due to a time rearrangement by the National Broadcasting Company, WMC's schedule has been turned "topsy turvy." Every program originating in the Southern states has been changed as far as time is concerned. Result: Southwestern loses its 7:45 spot on Friday afternoon. So be sure to either come out and actually see the broadcast in Hardie Auditorium, or else tune in at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Each successive program is getting better and better, for each week the members of the dramatic cast are getting more used to the "mike" and the musicians are picking up their cues more promptly. Last week there wasn't a single "Dead Spot" on the program, and that is something. If you think this is easy to avoid, turn on your radio, and see how many "dead spots" you can find during the course of the evening.

COLLEGIATE GLEANINGS WORDS AND THEIR MEANING Amazing to the supposedly accurate mind of a newspaper man is the constant case with which certain specific words in the English language are bandied about with an apparent knowledge of what the words mean. We speak of such words as "Communist," "red," "pacifist," "socialist," and even "Republican" and "Democrat." College students are supposed to be above the average in intelligence due their higher education. They, above all others, should be careful in their choice of words. —Alabama "The Crimson-White." ELECTION ROUND-UP The nearness of the year's end is never more keenly felt than when activities on the campus begin electing officers for the next session. There is a strong tendency among those belonging to various societies to lay more stress upon a man's popularity than upon his ability when considering him for office. He needs more than that—he must have intellectual and administrative ability. —Loyola University "The Maroon." CLUBBED TO DEATH Not that it is likely to do a great deal of good, but the National Student Federation of America struck a noble note at its recent convention when the delegates poured their wrath upon the multitude of petty "honorary" organizations which infest the average campus. It is written that when two Americans are banded together on a desert island, one immediately seizes a gavel and raps for order, but were these two college students, no less than 20 organizations would soon be flourishing like the green bay tree. —L. By JOHN QUANTHY

Have you heard of the latest in cornerstones. It wasn't a creation of Paris, nor even New York; but it was the brain-child, more or less, of a bull-session after an ODK meeting.

It seems that talk was centered about the new tennis field house, it being generally agreed that there should be some elaborate ceremony upon laying the cornerstone. Ah, but not an ordinary cornerstone for them!

Having two professors around it wasn't long before brains were clicking as if in the fourth dimension.

"We'll have a tailor-made cornerstone," mused Prof. C. G. Siefkin.

"And we'll put writing on it," suggested one of low brain power.

"Anybody can put writing on it," snapped Dr. P. N. Rhodes. "We'll put writing IN it!"

Thus the new idea of what the well-dressed building will wear in the way of cornerstone was born.

The cryptic "writing" mentioned above will be found according to Dr. Rhodes, in about 4000 A.D.; for, he says "Didn't they enter King Tut's tomb and find papers?"

The paper, written in India ink, is stuffed in a milk bottle. (We hope they know what a milk bottle is in 4000 A.D.) The milk bottle lies right now in its crypt in the cornerstone of the field house all prepared to be "discovered."

We were lucky enough to get a copy of the paper and here's a copy: Time: about ten minutes of 3:00 P.M., April 24, 1936.

This building was erected in April, 1936, to serve as a strong and slightly storage place for tennis equipment.

The Student Council of Southwestern appropriated $125 to cover cost of labor and materials other than stone, the last being donated by the College. The actual construction was carried out under the able direction of J. A. Rollow (26), superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Tennis is a major sport at Southwestern. The team has been defeated but once in the last four years of collegiate competition.

Eight clay courts are located on a plot some 250 feet square west and northwest of this building.

Following articles included in bottle: One copy of Sou'wester for April 24; Clippings about tennis from Commercial Appeal of 23rd and 24th; Southwestern car sticker; Calendar pad from Alumni calendars for 1936; One 1936 penny, very shiny; Red and Black ribbons; Ten pictures of various buildings; Student handbook; An assortment of bulletins showing pictures of college, courses, etc.

We noticed in one of the paragraphs of the paper in the milk bottle that the team was only defeated once in four years of collegiate competition.

But to take what some may think is a pessimistic outlook into the future of Southwestern tennis we are prone to be slightly dejected over the situation.

The main reason for negative emotion is that three star Lynx racquet-ers will pack their swatters in mythical moth balls—at least as far as collegiate competition is concerned.

Dickie Dunlap, who recently snapped out of it long enough to play number one again, will get his degree. In the same boat are Dorsey Barefield and David Flowers, two other Lynx stars.

The reason for this altruistic agitation could easily be neutralized if we had a crop of promising freshmen coming up.

For several years we have had no outstanding player of the caliber of Woody Butler, Dunlap Cannon, or Dickie Dunlap. This was proved by the fact that recently the freshmen tennis team won only one match from the C.B.C. tennis team.

When we spoke to Dr. Rhodes about this he explained that the Athletic Department was making it as desirable as possible for good tennis players to come to Southwestern by keeping the best courts possible and by otherwise creating a desirable "tennis atmosphere."

Winnie Winchel—

Dear Folks:

The reason that this thing is in the form of a letter is that I'm too weak from the shock of seeing one of my works of art in the paper last week to meet you all face to face. I shall try again to enlighten you with news of the chosen few. "It's Been So Long" that I really don't know wheer to begin—I'll start with Woody Butler. Of course you all know that he is an SAE, works in the store and incidently hangs around the tennis courts, but do you know that each day he is thinking of his Sunday nights when he can be at the Country Club with his li'l LOVE? . . . that young Johnson lad who was nominated for the ugliest man and whose taste runs to brunet Chi O's was the recipient of ONE red rose each day of the convention . . . Two other Chi O's are so tired of it all that they decided to leave school but to keep it a secret from their Families—To do this they come out here every day and go to Chapel and then spend their time studying humanity as taught by the ed's of this institution in the store and under the trees . . . At last some of our more ambitious youths have found their vocation and life's work—they hand out sandwiches and cokes, etc. Where? at Terrace Fountain. Incidently they can use all the tips you can spare and some you can't . . . Although the editor says it isn't so I wonder why peepul still persist in telling me of the recent marriage between a KD and a KS. You know Tommy didn't believe it about Claudine and Palmer either, so I still wonder . . . And there is the Tri Delt and the SAE who, though there is nothing serious between them, are seen constantly together—they do look nice too, she so dark and he's a blond—wonder if she ever said "I'm gonna Bate-man hook for him" (please don't hate me for that cause I've always thought puns were the spice of life . . . here's another—I wonder if that Barton boy in having a Battle winning his girl . . . and another . . . wonder if the younger Smith brother is Macon any time with Rebecca or is she just Laughlin right up his sleeve) . . .

Ho, hum, I could go on this way forever but I'm afear'd to, so fare-thee-well.

WINNIE WINCHEL.

History tells us that when Christopher Columbus' sailors took tobacco back home with them everybody hailed it as one of the first new pleasures in years.

Today tobacco gives more pleasure to more people than ever before.

Many different claims are made for tobacco, but most everybody agrees on this . . .

Smoking is a pleasure and the cigarette is the mildest and purest form in which that pleasure can be enjoyed.
