COURSE DESCRIPTION

Commonly, the Middle East is represented as a homogenous bloc of authoritarian, Arab, Muslim, fundamentalist, anti-modern, patriarchal states and societies unable to change. Hence, when the Egyptian people forced a 30-year dictatorship down within 18 days, it came as a surprise to many. What was even more puzzling was the fact that the Egyptian “people” were composed of groups as diverse as leftists, Islamists, Christians, soldiers and liberals. Therefore, the objective of this class is to understand this heterogeneity of the Middle East. To do so, we will first cover the history of the Middle East as well as the international and domestic developments that define Middle East politics today. Starting with the second section, we will look at major actors and themes that influence Middle East politics, such as Iran, Turkey, Arab-Israeli conflict, political Islam, democratization, gender, economy, and minorities. Lastly, we will look at different components of US foreign policy towards the Middle East and the effects of these policies.

COURSE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

As a result of taking this course, you will be able to:
• gain knowledge about the history of the Middle East
• learn about international and domestic influences on Middle East politics today
• question and analyze common biases from a critical perspective
• learn about themes and actors that define Middle East politics
• understand and evaluate US foreign policy towards the Middle East
• articulate their own opinion on debates concerning international politics
• debate and engage in dialogue respectfully
• relate what they have learned to their own political environment

REQUIRED TEXTS

• All other readings will be available online on Moodle (moodle.rhodes.edu) under “Files” for this course, and on the Academic Sharing Drive.
COURSE POLICIES

Honor Code: It is understood that the students will observe the honor code of Rhodes College. All papers and exams should be your own work. Any evidence of academic dishonesty or plagiarism will result in a failing grade and notification of college officials. Plagiarism is the use of someone else’s information or ideas without proper citation. If you wonder if something should be cited, it probably should. This applies to materials read even if you do not use them directly in the paper. We also highly encourage you to check the Writing Center’s page to learn more about plagiarism: http://www.rhodes.edu/writingcenter/9164.asp. If you have questions about plagiarism, you can also talk to me directly.

Diversity and Collegiality: This course draws students from a variety of widely diverse ethnic and cultural backgrounds and hold different values. Because a key to optimal learning and successful teaching is to hear, analyze, and draw from a diversity of views, the instructors expect collegial and respectful dialogue across disciplinary, cultural, and personal boundaries.

Disabilities: Every effort will be made to accommodate students with disabilities. To do so as effectively as possible, students who need special accommodations should identify themselves to the instructor at the beginning of the semester. If you have a documented disability and wish to receive academic accommodations, please contact the Office of Student Disability Services at x3885 as soon as possible.

Counseling: If you would like to receive individualized support with time management, test anxiety, stress, and general learning skills, please consult the Student Counseling Center at x3128.

Writing Center: We highly encourage you to visit the Writing Center before you turn in your written assignments. This will improve your writing skills. The Writing Center can be reached at: http://www.rhodes.edu/writingcenter/

Laptops and cell phones: Students who use laptops in class must do so exclusively for the purpose of note-taking. Surfing the web, emailing, instant messaging, or playing computer games in class conveys disrespect to your fellow students as well as the instructor, and can be disruptive for the entire class. Please turn off your cell phones before the class begins or put them in silent mode. Text-messaging is not acceptable while class is in progress.

Attendance and Participation: Sessions incorporate frequent informal writing and discussions related to formal course assignments. Due to the interactive and participatory nature of this course, attendance at each class session is required. We expect students to arrive on time and attend the full class period. We also expect you to come prepared for class discussions. There will be unannounced pop-quizzes throughout the semester. Students with extracurricular activities (athletics, mock trial, religious observances etc.) that will require them to miss one or more classes during the semester should talk to me in advance of their anticipated absence. If you miss a class, it is your responsibility to acquire lecture notes from your classmates. Needless to say, infrequent class attendance will negatively impact your class participation grade.

Handouts: We will distribute handouts on various writing assignments and exams 2 weeks prior to the assignment/exam date. It is your responsibility to acquire those handouts if you miss class.

Course webpage: If you have problems with Moodle or Academic folders, please use the Help Desk at: helpdesk@rhodes.edu
COURSE ASSIGNMENTS

Midterms and Final: There will be 1 midterm (September 30) and 1 final (Dec 14, 8:30am). We will hold review sessions before each exam. Study guides and guidelines for all the exams will be distributed in class later in the semester.

Opinion Pieces: Students are expected to prepare 3 sets of 4-page (Times New Roman font, size 12 pt, double-spaced, with up to 1” margins) opinion pieces on a given political question distributed in class (due on: September 9, October 14, November 18). These pieces should (1) argue in favor of a political stance, (2) reference class readings and lectures, (3) refute alternative viewpoints, and (4) cite two outside sources (Wikipedia, MSN Encarta, Britannica Online are NOT acceptable sources.) Details on this assignment will be distributed at a later time. We highly encourage you to read the Writing Center’s guide for effective writing for this assignment, at: http://www.rhodes.edu/writingcenter/9076.asp

Literature Review: Students are expected to submit a 10-page page (Times New Roman font, size 12 pt, double-spaced, with up to 1” margins) critical literature review composed of at least 10 academic resources (due October 28). Details on this assignment will be distributed at a later time. We highly encourage you to read the Writing Center’s guide for effective writing for this assignment, at: http://www.rhodes.edu/writingcenter/9076.asp

Participation: The participation grade for the course is not a given but is earned, and is composed of three components: (1) keeping up with the readings, (2) submit two one page, single-spaced reflection on any news article (from the news sources below) pertaining to Middle East Politics anytime during the semester, and (3) active participation throughout lectures.

Feel free to bring news items relating to the international relations to discuss into class. For instance, you will benefit greatly if you read on a regular basis from the BBC World News (www.bbc.co.uk), Foreign Policy Magazine (http://blog.foreignpolicy.com), or Al Jazeera (http://english.aljazeera.net/).

THE DATES FOR EACH ASSIGNMENT ARE INDICATED WITHIN THE COURSE SCHEDULE AND AT THE END OF THE SYLLABUS.

Make-up Exams: Make-up exams will not be offered except in rare circumstances. Should you have an unanticipated emergency that causes you to miss the scheduled exam, contact me as soon as possible by email or telephone. Note that you may be expected to provide evidence (e.g. a doctor’s note). I also reserve the right to require students to take a make-up exam on a specific date.
Incompletes: A grade of "I" ("Incomplete") will be given only under special circumstances following discussion with the instructor.

Late Work: Late work will be downgraded by a grade for each day late, e.g. a B+ assignment will be downgraded to a B after 1 day late, to a B- after 2 days late, etc. - Unless there is a medical emergency. Do not email your work, we need hard-copies.

Absence: Excessive (as determined by the instructor) absences may result in a diminished (or failing) course grade.

COURSE EXPECTATIONS

• Please make it a point to complete the assigned reading before the week we discuss. You will learn more from this class and it will be more interesting to you if you are prepared.
• It is very likely that during the semester all students will discover perspectives with which they agree or disagree. To facilitate such discoveries, the course requires that abrasive attitudes toward others be left at the doorway.
• I will be happy to discuss individual student progress at any time.
• This syllabus is subject to change. Please check your emails regularly for announcements.
