THE 1970 LYNX

Southwestern at Memphis Memphis, Tennessee  Volume 37

Kenny Graeber, Business Manager

Life slips away in a moment. Stop - now - whirl around and catch a moment - just as it is before it slips away. Touch grasp at the sheer excitement of Being - because existing is not enough . . . Familiar places yes - but never commonplace when we cock our heads and take time to wonder - even if it's only "Up Where?" . . .

"I became a person when people became my existence". . .
No longer are faces lost in a throng - But always some stand out - mirror-masks of fear, folly, frustration - hope - the feelings that make each of us unique . . .

I am not a face - I am real detached from the crowd I need to be alone with my dreams and despair, to develop the identity that is singularly me . . .
But alone can be lonely, too, and sometimes I need another to reach out his hand to me . . . and care that I am real . . .
"Put ones together and you create wholes" . . . working, planning, sharing with others who believe as I do . . .
I become part of a more powerful unit . . . I can't be independent always - but sometimes need a sense of belonging . . .
We can belong - if only we will take the time to become involved . . . to give a damn . . .

But because each is unlike all others, being together can cause conflict when opinions clash . . . Yet, life is more pungent when lightly salted with disagreement . . .

My moods are myriad, but they splatter my black-and-white-andgray world with brilliance
The grind bogs me under - I'm more than down, I'm Out - But a brief escape - indulgence in a simple pleasure will comfort me.

I have found that others influence me and shape my thoughts . . . They make me listen, look, laugh . . . and learn . . . It's good. I'm growing . . .

Southwestern - my life, my environment, my ptomaine . . . a fortress of learning with a place for each of us and the way we feel - and we can make it as we wish it to be - as single waves make a sea...

ACADEMICS

To delve, to experiment, to ponder, to question - these are all a part of our academic quest of learning.

The quest seems never-ending . . . lectures, self-expression, constant confrontations with the pressures that never seem to end. Never a moments rest for inner thought.

We try, we stumble, we fall We try, we stumble, we walk The academic world is one of many moods . . . a world where we are given the chance to expand our minds and imaginations to their fullest extent.

THE PRESIDENT

President William L. Bowden comes to Southwestern with a new era . . . one that yearns for academic expansion and intellectual freedom . . . a community that has taken a new outlook on education and their environment.

ADMINISTRATION

The word that strikes many tones to the different members of the college community. Our administration is composed of many understanding and concerned educators - some are not so concerned with education but with simply administration yet this has its place in our community.

M. J. Williams

President Emeritus, Dr. Peyton Rhodes

Dr. Fred Neal

Dean Jamison Jones

THE ACADEMIC COMMUNITY

The main part of Academics - the Community that makes it a reality. Southwestern gives each student as much room for educational self-development as possible. The academic environment of the college is constantly in a state of exciting transition - one that the student must be willing to move with. In these pages we will present the academic community as a whole, not by departments, for unification is an important goal of this book and of the administration of our school. We hope to empart to you the spirit of academics without cluttered copy and comment, without headings and identification.

In a collegiate world of academic turmoil and madness we hope to add some grace and simplicity to the world of academics as Southwestern.

STUDENT LIFE

The times of the year when books went back to academic shelves and overloaded desks . . . the times when life was fresh, warm, and good.

The days of carefree Fall when the pressures were just beginning Singing and yearning with our hearts, for life was special.

The year that past became a new and different way of life . . . A way of concern, folly, involvement . . . a year of total expansion.

EVERYDAY HAPPENINGS

Those small everyday events that make our days more worthwhile are so much a part of activities at Southwestern that we felt we must give credit to some of the more exciting of these events or happenings.
We regret that we could not capture all the exciting things that happen at Southwestern in the average day or week, but we have included some of the ones we know you will all remember.

Remember David Lloyd and insatiable thirst for whatever that was he was always downing. Or how our Greek groups threw themselves into campus and national politics when anything controversial came to the attention of the college. Ah yes, and how could one forget the constant presence of the "Vamp of Chi O" Mona Mizell and her constant search for the perfect bow.

Of course there were others. Mark Houston taking a study break, the beer contests at Shoneys, the SGA Costume Ball, the Alum peanut butter eating contest, and of course just plain old sleep.

David sips his daily gallon of Vodka.

The Chi O's and SAE's march on the nation's capitol to protest the war, pollution, and rush rules.

Proudly displaying her beauty metals, Mona gives the big "wink" to the Jocks on their way to dinner.

Mark Houston takes his famed 60 second study break.

The KA's make their daily 4:00 trip to the juice shop.

Alum Berry Goldberg competes in the Homecoming peanut butter eating contest.

Students begin long trip from the student center to the Refec. for dinner.

Mike Patton and Debby Sale greet guests to the Annual NSA costume ball.

Bill Matthews warns of the evils and expense of Holiday Hall.

Every day's a dog's day at Zoo U.

The SGA "Inner-Circle" emerges from their daily meeting in the grass.

Sometimes peace and enjoyment come with a new day.

SEE ROCK DODSON

Freshmen eagerly await the arrival of the "ROCK".

Excitement swept the campus during orientation as freshmen asked each other that searching question, "Who the HELL is Rock Dodson?"

Cheer up kiddies, the answer cannot be far away for the crowds are converging on the steps of the old library. The great brass band begins to play as excitement crackles through the anxious mob. Banners are waved, songs are sung, but Rock Dodson is still not in sight.
"Come on Alice, lets go back to the ND, this is the biggest put on of all time." "I'll be damned if you think I'm gonna sit here one more minute when I can be over at the SAE house participating in dirty rush." Me thinks the crowd grows tense. The band plays louder as faint shouts and yells are heard down the great driveway. In the distance comes the royal volkswagen and in a few seconds appears the beaming face of the ROCK.
"Gee Alice, I thought he was some campus god or something. Does he turn you on at all?" I'm not sure Rhodda, maybe they know something that we don't know about him, those upperclassmen are going wild over this kid."

Speeches were made and the crowds went wild with sheer and total envolvement. The rock finally left with smiles from ear to ear.
"Gee Alice, I think I know what it is . . . I'll bet he's great in bed.

Brass bands blare forth a musical welcome.

Speeches are in order as Dr. Farris praises our mighty "ROCK."

DERBY DAY

"I don't know about you, but I am not going to be drug into that pit of mush in my senior year." "Are you kidding or something?" "I can't get my legs into that sack."

So went the constant moans and laughter that accompany Derby Day every year. Sponsored by the Sophomore Class, Derby Day is held in the Fall of the year to enable the various classes to get to know one another and let them build up some class unity before the real academic year becomes a continual grind.

The same events were held with some new twists. The pie eating contest and the tug of war are annual favorites with everyone present ending up in the pit of mud in an all out mud throwing contest.

The "Flour Power" contest proved equally exciting as coeds from all four classes turned into wild screaming savages to get the most pennies from the mound of flour. The winners were all smiles and had flour from ear to ear. The egg throw started slow but proceeded into a contest of great agility and skill between the Sophomore and Senior women. The two legged race gave the seniors a chance to show what four years of Derby Days can give you in the way of experience and agility. The same old relays still proved to instill the old spirit as teams battled each other with toothpicks, lifesavers, and oranges.

As the sun set over the flagball field muddy bodies trodded back to the dorm to wash down and reappear for dinner and the Derby Dance.

Love that lemon pie - huh Bruce?

Seniors show what four years of study has given them.

Come on Wilson - it's only egg!

Some can't resist the football games.

Plenge drops another in the old basket.

ALL SING ’70

THE GREAT WATER BALLOON FIGHTS

With the first breath of Fall air or of the Spring mist the old Southwestern tradition of water balloons begin to descend from Robb Hall.

As the mania spread across the campus one soon finds it necessary to walk with an armed guard or wear a raincoat twenty-four hours a day. The water filled gifts come flying from every conceivable direction. A favorite hidout for the balloon bandits was the plaza of the student center. Unsuspecting students were continually belted with the water filled delights.
It would be hard to choose a real champion or should we say leader of the notorious tribe of sharpshooters. The Lynx took a "quickie-poll" and decided that the winner would have to be the campus wild man, John Allendorfer. John's powerful right arm has led him into many victories over his equally powerful foes. "Tell us John, what is your secret of success?"

In any case beware of next spring, for once again the dime store will run out of balloons as the fights begin again.

Jack Davis moves in for the kill against great odds.

"King" Allendorfer rushes as war begins.

A steady hand and experience are always needed.

The Tri-Deta's don't Pussyfoot around in their display!

The Chi O's take first place for their Tiga-Cola display.

HENRY VIII ORGY

The blare of the royal trumpets, the roll of drums, and the royal procession begins. Court jesters, vestal virgins (where did they find them?) the court priest, the keeper of the Seal and finally King Henry and his Queen.

As the feast began Saga brought forth tables laden with fruits, ham, turkey, suckling pig, cheeses, and other unidentified left-overs. The crowds began to feast and feast and feast. As the sun began to set, heart burn flourished among the guests of the royal court, but the orgy went on and on. Who needs food?
"Hey Bob, what in the hell is all this about?" "Don't ask me, I think the liberals are celebrating some communist holiday or something." "Yea, how come no Greeks got in the royal court?" "I wish you two would shut up. Don't you realize that the SGA is trying to stimulate communication between the students." "Who cares? Drink up.'

King Allendorfer flashes his smile to his loyal subjects.

The court jester waves to the crowds.

The king partakes of roast turkey at the feast.

LYNX BEAUTY REVUE

As the spot light hit Jim Dick the 1970 Beauty Revue began with a salute to Broadway music - "From the Era of Ziegfield to the Age of Aquarius". Beautiful girls in beautiful costumes descended silver staircases to the music of the famous follies of the 1920's.

Friday night were the preliminaries where the contestants were judged in evening gown, bathing suit, and talent categories. From the 25 contestants, ten semifinalists were chosen who then recompeted in the same categories on Saturday evening. When the final ballots were in the judges had chosen Mary Faith Grymes the new Miss Lynx. First alternate was Anne Brantly, followed by Marcia Swett, Betty Dale, and Linda Pilcher.

The pageant was composed of many firsts. It gave the college a view of a beautiful production lavishly staged by Ellen Lackey and Tommy Wolff. Many hours of hard work and planning went into the Revue and the efforts were applauded by all.

The ten semi-finalists are announced Saturday evening as competition continues.

THE GREAT JUKES

Several times a year the college community gets together to participate in that ritual known (as the E's would say) the "Juke". It takes place at Homecoming, PAN or IFC and the countless formals.

It's usually the same crowds sitting at the same tables with their same friends. Drinking the same brand of booze and getting knee walking drunk at the same time of night, usually by nine o'clock. The rest of your evening is spent stumbling around on the dance floor or in the "rest" room.
It all seems kind of meaningless, but in the end it's a great way to relieve tensions, to be close to friends, to let loose and in a strange way enjoy yourself.

Go ahead, laugh at the pictures of the drunks, but don't forget you were there too and probably was just as drunk and raised just as much hell.

Soul City provides the music for most of the great dances.

Crawling hands and sweaty bods tell the story of a long night and expectations to come.

"Oh Mike, not now, we haven't even had our first drink."

How come the freshmen can always dance past nine?

The "dynamic duo" takes over for the band as they break. Rock out big Ron.

A moment of silence in all the madness.

Who is segregating against who?

"I don't care what you say John, this character next to me is potted to the gills and keeps singing Tri-Delta rush songs."

"Children of God repent, for the end is neigh . . . and I'm so drunk I don't know where I am."

As the midnight hours approaches the shoes begin to come off.

Janette Gray is chosen Miss BUTT for 1970.

An Honor is a very unusual and sacred fact of college life. Throughout the year the community bestows on its members recognition in its various and different phases of life.

The Honor may be in athletic achievement, beauty, outstanding service, duty or any number of the ideals that the community holds honest and true. In the coming pages we will present only a few of the honors that have been bestowed in the past academic year . . . some have been omitted but this is not for lack of importance.

SPORTS

Our T.V.'s blurt forth "the thrill of victory, the agony of defeat". Such is our conception of the world of sports. Collegiate sports is a world of constant defeat . . . physical, mental, emotional . . . a world in which winning is more than a good feeling. Winning helps you through all your other troubles, it gives you an incentive for everyday living . . . it can make an academic loser a winner in the classroom and in life.

In the pages to come you will see a brief look at Sports at Southwestern. The story could never fully be told in a few pages. We hope that you are aware of the hours of sweat and work that go into these sports.

FOOTBALL

The year 1969 marked the 100th Anniversary for College Football. Although college football was 100 years old, the 1969 Lynx team was relatively new, being composed of 30 strong and enthusiastic freshmen. Two new faces were also seen on the coaching staff. Head Coach Don Lear and defensive backfield and offensive receiving coach Jim Harvey, both acquired from Middle Tennessee, coached the relatively young team to a 3-6 season.

The Lynxcats opened their 1969 football season against a powerful Austin team at Fargason Field on September 20th. Southwestern fell prey to the Kangaroos in the premier performance of the season. The Lynx proved tough on their ground game, but Austin overpowered them in the air, posting their $28-7$ victory. The Lynx received their only touchdown when Austin fumbled one of Mark Koonce's punts and Southwestern recovered the ball on the opponents' 16 yard line. Several plays later, David Allen blasted through the Kangaroo line for the touchdown, and Moon Mullins converted. Mullins brought the crowd to its feet in the fourth quarter when his 45 yard field goal looked as if it were going to split the uprights; however at the last moment, it hit the crossbar and bounced back into the field of play.

It was plays like these that gave hope for a good season.

"Moon" adds another to his record.

Burnett sets for TD-bound Lynx.

"You come back to 200 U. for this Holloway?"

Southwestern absorbed its second loss of the season at the hands of the Centre College Colonels, with whom the Lynx shared the CAC Championship last year. From the opening kickoff, this proved to be a day of defensive play for the Lynx.

Southwestern scored in the first period on a spectacular pass from junior quarterback, Ronnie Burnett to sophomore end, Todd Robbins, for a 65 yard touchdown. Unfortunately, Southwestern was unable to launch a serious drive in the last half and lost this CAC game by a score of 21-7.

The Lynx met the Washington Bears in the second CAC game of the season at Southwestern and came out victorious, 14-7.

The Bears scored first but the Lynxcats bounded back before the half and scored after a 38 yard pass from Ronnie Burnett to Moon Mullins. Tommy Sides, sophomore tailback, scored from the two yard line.

The second and final touchdown of the Lynx came in the third quarter after a 66 yard effort quarterbacked by Burnett.

The game proved to be a defensive bout with excellent plays by Dick Heien, Ken LeBlanc, and Bill McBride.

The Lynxcats, plagued by mistakes, fell to a powerful Millsaps team on October 11 in Jackson, Mississippi. At the end of the first half the score was 17-0. In the second half the Majors capitalized off two intercepted passes and consequently scored twice. The Lynx offense, however, proved to be strong. They gained 177 yards for one of the best showings, offensively, of the season.

The next weekend found the Lynx travelling to New London, Connecticut to meet the Coast Guard Academy for their Homecoming.

The result of the ensuing battle was the Academy's first win and one of the Lynx's poorer performances of the season. Constantly plagued with poor field position, the offense could only muster a 31 -yard field goal by Moon Mullins. Though holding the Coast Guard to only one touchdown, Southwestern nevertheless found itself at the short end of the 6-3 score.

The Lynx, bouncing back from its disappointing loss of the previous week, played one of their best games of the season in whipping Sewanee $36-22$ before a spirited homecoming crowd.

Freshman quarterback Robert Carter earned Southwestern a $16-16$ halftime tie with two beautiful touchdown passes. In the second half Carter turned to a ground attack, to pull away from the Tigers as freshman tailback Herman Morris responded with a crowd-appealing performance. Morris finished with 106 yards including two touchdowns. The entire Lynx ball club turned in an excellent performance as they had the Tigers chasing them most of the day.

On the first day of November, the Lynxcats used a devastating second period attack to defeat Principia $21-3$ for their third win of the grid season. A meager crowd braved the cold to watch the Lunx ground out three touchdowns in ten minutes of the second quarter.

Hey Mike, at a time like this what we need is a good Scotch and Gatorade.

Watch out, Austin-There's a bad moon on the rise.

Who ever heard of a commitment on the football field?

Everybody on the ground-Fleshpile!

That's not the way we give the Bird at Southwestern!

In the final CAC game of the football season, the Lynxcats were defeated $24-19$ by Washington and Lee University. This clinched a second place tie in the CAC for Southwestern. The first series of downs indicated that the game would be decided in the air.

In the second period, Allen evaded the Washington and Lee secondary, and Carter found him for a beautiful 64 yard scoring pass. The Cats scored again in the third period, with Herman Morris taking the ball from the eight yard line. Southwestern's final score came in the fourth period when Washington and Lee fumbled on their eighteen and Mike Sadler recovered for Southwestern. Tommy Sides drove in from the one for the final score of the game.

In the final game of the 1969 football season, the Lynxcats faced a powerful Maryville team.

Known for their powerful drives not only on the ground plays, but also in the air, Maryville provided some of the teams toughest competition of the season.

Dan Hieber, Herman Morris, and Tommy Sides provided the punch for the only scoring drive of the game by the Cats. David Woods starred in the play as he went over from seven yards to cap the march. Southwestern lost the game with a final score of $35-6$ not showing the tremendous job that the team did on the field.

The loss to Maryville gave the Lynxcats a 3-6 overall record of the season-a season that was full of defeat and victory, one in which a young team learned much of college football.

Quit worrying Dicky, Marcia didr't see you!

Bend over and let me see you make a T-D.

Is this what you "E's" call a good joke.

Oops! Missed again!

The Austin team watches as the Lynxs roll on.

Many new stars were "born" as a result of this season. However, the four-year men, the seniors, must be commended for a job well done. Those who retired from the football squad were Mike Brown, guard; David Allen, fullback; Randall "Moon" Mullins, rightend; Churchhill Davenport, injured at the first of the season; Bill Holloway, center; and Charlie Dunlap, tackle.

At the conclusion of the season the players are guests of a dinner given by the college to acknowledge their achievements throughout the past season. It is at this dinner that the coaches and the team members themselves signal out the outstanding players of the season. It is also at this time that the College Athletic Conference Directors and coaches announce the All-CAC team for the season. This year Southwestern was proud to add four names to the lineup as John Troy, Bill McBride, Mike DeSalvo, and Dick Hein were all named to this outstanding honor in the CAC.

With the 1969 season behind us, it is time that we reflect on the past season. This years annual is striving to make the student more aware of what is around him, of the different facets of campus life that pass so many by in their small world. The student should be much more aware of what this school has in its football team and the entire Athletic Department.

An unbelievable number of hours are spent each week in just preparing for a game. The team sacrifices much more that what the student body is giving it in support. Maybe in the coming year the student will become more aware.
"Hell, Coach, she said she was using the pill!"

Once again Allen penetrates through the line!

Captain-Mike Ripski

The Cross Country team finished the 1970 season with a $2-4$ record in dual meets with both its wins being over Lambuth College. Southwestern also entered a quadruple meet in which CGA finished first with 15 , Amherst second with 60, St. Anselum was third with 76 and Southwestern placed fourth with 88. Bobby Doolittle, who came out late in the season finished best in this meet for the Lynxs, and also was our outstanding runner in the CAC Tournament.

In the CAC Tournament Southwestern placed third out of a field of five schools entered. Southwestern shared the third position with Washington and Lee, but they surely would have had an easy third if Mike Ripski had not fallen and sprained his ankle.

Jim Schummard paced the Lynx throughout these meets and really gave a great performance, especially considering that he is only a freshman with three more years of college competition ahead of him. Like Schummard, this years team was primarily composed of Freshmen. With this year of experience behind them Coach Mabry feels that he should have a really outstanding group of runners for the 1971 season.

Like other sports at Southwestern, Cross Country is a physical activity that merits great strength and stamina on the part of the athlete-merit that goes unnoticed.

CHEERLEADERS

What is a Cheerleader? Those wild bundles of pep and energy that seem to keep spirit going when there just isn't any left in the stands. A Cheerleader is an unusual type of co-ed. One who is devoted to a long lost cause on most college campuses-the cause of school spirit.

Plastered red wool against your skin. Coming back to school weeks early for hours of practice a day and the sore muscles to prove it. Struggling to get some kind of feeling between those guys on the grid and the blank expressionless faces in the stands. Most of it isn't fun, it's damn hard work. Just once in a while it is really worth it. Coffee shared in thirty degree weather, numb hands and legs. Drowsy talks in the school station wagon coming home from that victory or loss. No other feeling in the world like that wild happiness of whipping into the fight song after the touchdown put you ahead!

A Cheerleader is this and much more, more of all the little things that the student body is so unaware of. We feel that it is far past time that the students begin to take notice of all that the cheerleaders do for Southwestern-of all their time, work, love, spirit, and devotion that goes into their job, a job that deserves the highest praise of every student!

BASKETBALL

A sport of which our college needs to be more aware of is basketball. Here is a team that covers many miles a season with little or no praise from the majority of the college's students. The hours of practice begin in the late fall and extend throughout the remainder of the academic year.

Though their over-all record was not as outstanding as last years, the fighting Lynx of the Court produced an over-all successful season. Throughout the year the team refused to be put down. Their comebacks were full of force and determination, they refused to be counted out of a contest.

The great teamwork of all the players molded this year's team into a fantastic working unit. Their movements and plays on the court were ones of intense harmony among everyone. Their team spirit should be an example to the entire student body . . . of this sport we should become much more aware in the coming year.

In a few short pages we have tried to capture the feeling, that spirit, that the 1969-70 Basketball team had with them through all their games. In the faces of the team we hope that you can see the fight and determination that carried them throughout a really rough season of games.

The team will truly miss the efforts of their graduating seniors, for here lies the strength of a really great team. But to the team of next season, the team of the future . . . here is where our hopes lie for an even greater and more exciting season next year.
And of course to the coaches, for their continual and never ending effort to improve and perfect the team into a smooth and polished working unit. We praise our coaches, but not enough.
And to you, the spectator. Here's hoping that next season we really support the fighting Lynx.

WRESTLING

The Southwestern wrestling made a much better showing their second year in the conference. The team was still rather young and had alot to learn about the intricate techniques of wrestling. It is a sport of great skill and often beauty and the Southwestern team often did it great justice in their team and individual efforts.

It was however a sport that was not supported by the college community and especially the students. Quite a number of games were held in the gym and were attended by very few. Here is an area where we, as the students, need to come out and support a new sport on campus.

SWIMMING

But Coach Sale, I don't know how to do a jack-knife. So what, fake it! Thus echoed the sounds through the U.T. pool as the swimming team approached its second season with Coach Debbie Sale at the head of the diving board shouting the orders to her men below. Hard work and hours of relentless practice go into making up a good swimming team. It's a hard road to go in a sport, but the rewards are tremendous. Here is a sport we should all admire.

TRACK

Hours of fall and winter practice, salt pills and sore muscles, broken bones and sprained ankles this is the part of track that we don't often see. As a matter of fact most of us have never seen much of our track team at all. Here is Southwestern second largest athletic team and the support that it receives is next to nothing. These men practice long and hard to give honor to not only themselves, but to their school.
This year's season was somewhat improved. Field events were stronger in some areas and the track events were never better. With such records we should be proud to support our team. In the future let's do so.

BASEBALL

As the first buds appear on the trees that line Parkway, the baseball team takes to the practice field to begin workouts for their new season.
Southwestern's baseball team took to the diamond this year with a good strong returning club, but added several freshmen to the team. Coach Stauffer was encouraged by the early spring workouts and as the Lynx went into their first conference game.
Returning seniors Jim Meeks, Moon Mullins, Cat Daddy, Jim Habernick, and Steve Johnson are expected to boost the team a real power in the CAC. Coach Stauffer looks forward to a winning season.

GREEKS

The Greeks play a vital and important role in the Southwestern community. These fraternal groups sponsor limitless social functions, encourage participation in academic, athletic, and social service activities on the college campus.

The Greek groups at Southwestern offer an unusual opportunity for brotherhood or sisterhood. It may not be what you are looking for, but then you don't have to join - it is there if you want to take the first step. This year has been a year of constant trial for the Greeks - they have withstood many batters and blows in a strong tradition.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

The Panhellenic Council, composed of representatives from each of the five national sororities on campus, meets regularly to discuss matters of interest to sorority women, promote good relations among the various sororities, and plan activities. The biggest task this year was to orient both sorority women and freshmen to the new system of rush. In order to better acquaint the freshmen with the Council and all phases of sorority life, numerous parties were given throughout the first

In November and December Pan conducted numerous rush clinics and discussion meetings that permitted the freshmen to ask Pan members any questions they had about the many phases of rush. Rush - Pan's biggest job of the year - was a tremendous success. The freshmen went into rush with a good attitude, an attitude that was achieved through all the many hours of hard work that the Pan members had spent on making the 1970 Rush the best yet. As soon as rush was over, Pan went to work on evaluations and plans for next year.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Intc. stervity Council, made up of the presidents of the six national fraternities and other elected delegates, directed a great deal of attention to adapting the Greek system to a new set of rules. Under the guidance of the IFC, rush was quite successful for the fraternities. All men who went for the three day rush period at the beginning of the second term were pledged. This was representative of over fifty per cent of the freshman class. In March the IFC once again sponsored "Help Week".

During "Help Week" all the fraternities, under the leadership of the IFC, participate in service projects throughout the city. Many hours of work were donated to needy organizations throughout the city. In the social part of college life, the IFC once again helped to establish workable dates for all the fraternity formals. The formals were spaced throughout the year so that the majority of the campus could benefit.

Rival intersorority Pi was founded at Randolph Macon College to recognize outstanding sorority women. Three girls are chosen from each sorority for their contribution to their own group and for promotion of good-will on campus.

With the elimination of weekly convocations, Pi introduced new members by holding weekly lunches in the Refectory. These lunches serve not only as a means of new member introduction but they also let the group meet and discuss campus events at least once a week.

This year's High Pi was Dianna Whittemore, while Pedie Pederson served as low Pi. Dianna and Pedie's main job this past year was to make Pi a more effective means of communication about all sororities. Traditional rivalries with S.T.A.B. are put aside once a year for the joint banquet. This banquet enables the two groups to get together and discuss their plans for the coming year. At this time Pi announces their new High and Low Pi's for the coming year as well as the new May Day Pi.

S.T.A.B.

The campus of Randolph Macon College was the setting for the founding of S.T.A.B. intersorority in 1899. Their unique membership includes all brunettes. Each member of S.T.A.B. is chosen for her outstanding work within one of the five campus sororities and for her promotion of friendship and the panhellenic spirit in the Southwestern community.

Emily Scarborough led the S.T.A.B.'s this year in their weekly lunch meetings in the refectory where the new members were introduced.

At the annual founder's day banquet in March Bette Dale was chosen as Founder's Day S.T.A.B. It is at this banquet that the group meets for the last time during the academic year. They try to reflect on the past year and think of new ways to improve the unity and effectiveness of the group. Like their rival group, S.T.A.B. has tried to create a organization that will promote not only greek spirit, but spirit on a campus level. It is groups such as these that make the greek system so strong on campus.

The Greeks on this campus are more than the average fraternities and sororities, they offer the community a different and often improved way of college life. They should not be disposed of by the quirk of the SGA or any other group. Their ideals and traditions should be respected like those of any other group on campus. If change is needed, then recommend change and let the groups take care of their own problems.

Be aware of a different type of person than yourself. Respect their personal wishes and their way of life.

ORGANIZATIONS

The ageless yearning to belong, to be part of the group, the organization. As humans we are trapped. We want to belong, to be part of a group, to be recognized for what we can do well, to be accepted for what we are by people we want to be near.

To be part of the rope is a good thing, but we must be aware of the part that we play in the group. One should be continually aware of the part he is playing in the group, of his contributions, goals, and hopes for the group to which he belongs.

To truly belong is a privilege of the very few.
Be aware of your convictions to the group to which you belong, dedicate yourself to its ideals, to what is stands for, to what it is trying to contribute to the college. In this way you will reap much more than you have given to the group.

HONOR COUNCIL

The oldest and most respected tradition at Southwestern is the Honor Council. It has been cherished by Southwestern students for over 100 years. Its purpose is to help maintain a community in which the right, the ethical, and the honorable are upheld not only as ideals toward which to strive but as visible goals which can in fact be achieved by all members of the community. To understand the Honor System, one has got to live it. Southwestern's Honor System is not a restriction, it is a freedom.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The Student Government Association, plagued by continual complaints, finally decided to reorganize itself. The S.G.A. underwent a reorganization aimed towards increasing the individual student's awareness of his responsibilities in the community. The student can no longer participate in their apathy by relinquishing their response-ability upon the members of the Senate. For years the student merely blamed his or hers Senator if anything went wrong or if they disagreed with a proposal. The days of the "senator scapegoat" are long gone.

The Student Government Association now consists of an executive Council, the budget committee, and a pool of secretaries for the use of any legitimate organization on campus. In this, its first year, the new form of government has proven to be more than effective. Most of the weekly battles between senators are now gone and all is quiet on the front.

WELFARE COMMISSION

1969-70 was an active year for the Welfare Commission. The most notable achievement was the sponsoring of the birth of the COOP, Commissioner Cary Fowler's pet project. The COOP is the name of the student run cooperative that carries not only the beauty and health essentials such as toothpaste and hair spray, but also art supplies, records and mixes for drinks. The idea of the cooperative has been in the making for several years, but it took the determination of Cary Fowler and Ronny Colter, the purchasing agent, to make it a reality.

The Commission has also really been helpful in getting jobs done that have just been talked about in past years. It has had milk and cigarette machines installed in the Mens Dorms as well as making sure the school finally installed washing machines in the dorms for the Men students.

With Cary Fowler's departure at the end of the first term, his successor, Bill Jones, concentrated on campus security matters-an area neglected by the administration. Tighter security for the girls dorms was initiated as well as adequate lighting for all parts of the campus.

Religious Commissioner
Chuck McNeal

RELIGIOUS COMMISSION

This year the Religious Commission, headed by Chuck McNeal has been more active than it has in years past. The most noteworthy change has been the fact that the commission has tried to expand its work not only in the purely religious nature of campus life, but also it has tried to concern itself with the overall mental attitude of the students toward religion.

The Commission challenged the Freshmen with activities such as all night service vigils and sun rise communions. Activities such as these made the Freshman stop and really look into his religion. The student was made aware that he was not only entering a new academic life, but also a new religious life, one in which he must be sure many convictions.

Chuck McNeal also helped to organize weekly Sunday meetings in the Refectory on Sunday mornings. These meetings and discussion groups were co-sponsored by near by Presbyterian churches near the campus. Again these meetings were in the form of discussions that challenged the students ideas, not only on moral subjects but political as well.

SOCIAL COMMISSION

Headed by Bill Matthews, the social commission has had a year of not only great change, but also a year of much success.

Beginning late last Spring the commission held weekly meetings of the campus leaders as well as the Greek Presidents to determine the main social events of the coming year. This meeting helped Bill and the commission to establish the social year even before it began. Ideas such of this were characteristic of the commission's entire year. Under the leadership of Bill the commission broadened its sphere of activities by helping all the various organizations on campus plan their social functions and help them from averting conflicts for parties and dances.

For the first time, the social commission has expanded its activities by setting up a co-operative program of social functions with Memphis State University. In co-operation with Memphis State, Southwestern students were able to attend The Fifth Dimension Concert as well as the Blood, Sweat and Tears Concert.

EDUCATION COMMISSION

This years Education Commission, headed by Steve Mallett, has made worthwhile contributions to the student's educational welfare in many areas.

The Commission began the year by conducting seminars for the Freshman Class. These seminars and discussion groups helped to orientate the new class on an educational basis. The seminars covered topics as what the students would be expected of by the professor, what is a tutorial?, what are class cuts, and other related topics. The seminars not only enabled the new students to meet the faculty, but also allowed the faculty to meet the new students on a rather informal basis.

Another new and creative innovation by the Commission was the establishment of the Experimental College. The idea behind the experimental college was to enable the student to participate in courses that he would not ordinarily be able to take in the normal classroom.

PUBLICATIONS COMMISSION

After beginning rather slowly, this years Publications Board finally began to make some dynamic and helpful changes in the area of campus publications.

Composed of the various publication editors and representatives from each of the various classes, the Board is responsible for the control of all campus publications. The Board is responsible for the selections of the editors of each publications and seeing that their jobs are fulfilled.

Like many of the campus organizations, the Board took time this year to stop and see where it had failed in past years. The majority of members agreed that the campus had a lack of student faculty communication. To avoid this, Brad Green established the StudentFaculty newsletter to appear each week.

INTERCOLLEGIATE RELATIONS

The Intercollegiate Relations Commission is responsible for communications between other colleges and Southwestern. This communication is handled through the National Student Assoc. and the Intra-City Councils of the United States.

Commissioner Bruce Levine, along with his commission keeps the college community informed of what is happening on other college campuses throughout the country. This challenging task is accomplished by sponsoring various panel discussions and meetings throughout the year.

Another major benefit of the Commissions work are the travel programs offered throughout membership in the National Student Assoc. These travel programs help the student to travel through the world for reduced rates on transportation, food, and lodging.

In the spring the Commission sends several delegates to the N.S.A. convention where they come into contact with fellow student throughout the nation. It is through activities such as these that the Intercollegiate Relations Commission helps the students of this school.

ATHLETIC COMMISSION

At the beginning of the Academic year the college community participated in a campus wide conference designed to eleviate many barriers of organization and communication. At the conference several suggestions were made on how to improve the Athletic Commission. Athletic Commissioner Ron Registar took these comments and tried to improve the Commission and its works.

Ron and his commission began the year by taking a serious look at the intramural program and its effectiveness on campus. Several changes were made along these lines that helped to improve the program into a more well-rounded activity for not only Greeks but also for Independents. The Commission next took a look at the leadership scholarship program and how it was presently operating. The commission found several faults with the program and suggested various solutions to the Physical Education Department and the Administration.

The Commission also furthered its investigations by taking a look at the various P.E. programs that were being offered by not only the Men's Department but also by the Women's Department. Again their findings were submitted to the Administration.

ELECTIONS COMMISSION

The Elections Commission was headed this year by Mike Storey. The Commission is responsible for all elections carried on by any campus group or organization. Hours of hard and tedious work are put in by the Commission as they act as poll judges, print ballots, certify petitions and count votes.

In years past the Elections Commission has been plagued by people not wanting to give the time to serve on the Commission. Mike Storey started campaigning for workers last spring and thusly has developed one of the most efficient and hard-working branches of the Student Government.

Membership to the Elections Commission is by election and consists of a representative and an alternate from each Greek and Independent group on campus. There are three committees of the Commission: polling, posting, and publicity. Each representative is assigned to a committee and has given jobs to perform at election times.

CONSTITUTION COMMISSION

This years Constitution Commission was headed by Carole Bandy. After serving on past Commissions, Carole rose to the office with experience that has been evidenced throughout the past academic year.

The Constitution Commission was created in order to interpret the constitution of the Student Government Assoc. in the term of the validity of its legislation. An action such as this is justified only when the commission has been petitioned to do so, either by the Student Government, the Administration, or the students.

The Commission consists of two members from the Senior and Junior classes who are appointed by the Student Government president and another member elected from each class in the Spring.

With this years reorganization of the Student Government, the Constitution Commission has been especially busy. When the basis of the new constitution was established, it was the Constitution Commission that did most of the ground work. The Commission worked closely with all involved in this important job.

S.R.C.

Formed last year to regulate student rules and act as a judiciary committee, the Social Regulations Council concentrated its main efforts on the writing of a constitution for the future.

This year is the first year the council has been able to really regulate any of the social issues on campus. It has been very influential in establishing regulations in the men's dorms and helping to see that the rules are respected and obeyed. It has been working all year on the problems of paritels in the women's dorms and was able to pass extension of hours and no hours for upper classwomen. The council works hand-inhand with the deans and administration to see that its decisions are the best not only for the student, but for the whole college community.

The purpose of the Social Regulations Council is stated as being a body through which the spirit of community among students is to be promoted. The responsibility of regulating one's own self and one's peers is great; the student body should be aware of the great task that the members of the SRC in their jobs. As a plea for the coming academic years to come the student body should be more aware of the SRC and be willing to respond to its decisions with more concern and sincerity.

M.U.B. - W.U.B.

A Commission of the Student Government Association, the Women's Undergraduate Board is responsible for coordinating campus activities for the women of Southwestern. This organization is composed of women student government senators; the presidents of the Independent Women, Panhellenic Council, Mortar Board and W.A.A.; class secretaries; dorm presidents; the cheerleading captain and two or three members at large. This year W.U.B., eager to acquaint freshmen with college life organized counselors to correspond to their freshmen counselees during summer and help them throughout orientation and the first weeks of school. They also hosted a Student Counselor Luau during orientation and a Christmas party in December.

The main function of the Men's Undergraduate Board is to select men for the student counselor program. This program is designed to acquaint new students with the campus and facilities of Southwestern and to make their transition from high school to college much easier. M.U.B. is composed of representative from the six fraternities and the independent men and is headed by the Commission of Undergraduate Men who is appointed by the Student Government Association. This years M.U.B. commissioner was Mike Ripski, a junior from Millington, Tennessee.

THE 1970 LYNX

With the publication of this book comes a new era for The Lynx. This year the book is being printed by Delmar Publishing Company of Charlotte, North Carolina. The book has many new sections to make the student more aware.

With the expanded sections comes an expanded staff with their limitless array of excuses. The staff did however work when time permitted to give the community a book that was more than a rubber stamp edition of the book in the past.

The 1970 Lynx got a new voice and face from Tommy Wolff, editor and his staff. Open-end and Geometric layout covers the expanded book. Unusual photography filled the opening sections by Jane Schmid. And thousands of photographs had to be two silly picas apart. Headlines got readers into copy that recorded the years attitudes as well as activities. Faculty members wrote paragraphs on the question: Has the academic atmosphere altered at Southwestern in the past year? Other changes: reorganization of the book back into a more standard form, more pages, a literary approach, and an expanded Beauty Revue for the campus. The only thing that stayed the same around the Lynx were salaries.

THE 1970 LYNX

The staff of this book hopes that the college community is aware of what they are trying to say. We are attempting to get you, the students and faculty, to stop and take a new look of what is around you. Of what all the various facets of this college has to offer you in the way of people, relationships, challenges and education. We feel that Southwestern has developed and matured in the past academic year, we hope that you are also aware of these changes.

THE SOU'WESTER

Under the efficient leadership of Judy Warren, the campus newspaper again entered a year of stability after a year of editorializing on the front page and irregular editions. Beginning in the third term of last year Judy took the reigns of the job of editor and returned the paper its steady old reliable self in the guise of The Sou'wester.

Judy was capable enough to get an efficient Business Manager in Karen Francis and kept the paper on its weekly edition basis throughout the year. If given credit for nothing else this should be a fact that the student body should praise.

The paper took on a new look throughout the year by including numerous letters to the editor and non-staff columns. The editorial was taken off the front page and replaced with campus news for the good of the entire community rather than a gossip column for a campus faction.

Like Judy herself says, the hours from seven to twelve are fun, but from twelve on you are in your own personal hell. It has been in these working hours that Judy and her staff have shown themselves to be capable and talented newspaper people. Their devotion to a job that carries no merit is one to which the entire community should be more aware.

GINGER

"Ginger" is a campus publication of the creative expressions of students, faculty and alumni through their own literary, artistic and photographic works. This year's editions were composed of special interviews, short fiction and non-fiction, poetry, photographs and drawings. The magazine is more than what one thinks of in the typical sense of the word. "Ginger" is the one publication where any student can actually express himself in the freest of terms. The magazine acts as a releasal for emotions and a place where the literary talents of the student can be expressed in a professional format.

DILEMMA '70

This year under the direction of Hardy Green and Neva Gibson the fifth annual Dilemma symposium was held March 12-14. Dilemma '70, In Pursuit of a Future, brought to the campus such outstanding personalities as William Sloan Coffin, Yale chaplain and war critic; John Knowles, novelist; Rollo May, psychologist-author; G. Tyler Miller, ecologist; and Major General John Chaissonof the United States Marine Corps. The symposium included not only addresses by these prominent men but also seminars, an art exhibit, and a film festival. The result of many months of work, the Dilemma Weekend involved large numbers of students in financial visitations throughout the Memphis community, such as staging in the gym.

Perhaps more than any other organization the Dilemma steering committee works with the aim of expanding the community's awareness of that world beyond the corner of Parkway and University. Dilemma offers us a chance for face-to-face encounter. And like we have become accustomed to doing all year we ignore the challenge and because there are no parties planned, we spend the weekend off campus.

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

This select commission has proven necessary to our college community as the official liaison between faculty and students. The Academic Affairs commission, hęaded by Bruce Lindsey and Sonya Chu, deals with problems arising on campus that the commission feels are detrimental to the academic atmosphere of the community. The Academic Affairs commission also serves as an important link in intracampus relations in conducting yearly course evaluations.

This year the commission sponsored a campus wide evaluation of the comp system and was influential in getting many departments to re-evaluate themselves and change their own comp systems.

STUDENT UNION

The Student Union Program Board, under the direction of Rick Hollingworth, is the governing body of the Student Center. The Board is responsible not only for the facilities and rules of the Center, but also for the activities that take place in the Center.

Throughout the year the Student Union sponsors exciting first run movies. Whenever possible, the Union sponsors dinners and nightclubs to provide entertainment on "off" week-ends.

This year Student Union has seen a development of organization as well as program this year. Emphasis has been clearly placed on trying to improve last years mistakes. The apex of the programs offered this year was Student Center Weekend. The weekend was on February 20 and 21. On Friday the students enjoyed steak dinners and a first run movie. On Saturday events filled the entire day. There were contests throughout the day involving the entire campus. In the evening a dance at the Peabody topped off the weekend when President Bowden crowned the King and Queen of the Weekend. With a year like this the Union is on its way to vast improvement.

KINNEY

In 1956 Southwestern became one of the ten colleges of liberal arts and sciences to receive a grant from the Danforth Foundation for use in a program which would further spiritual, educational and moral goals among college students. Dr. Lawrence F. Kinny, professor of Bible and Religion, was instrumental in instigating the program at Southwestern. For ten years during which he was associated with the Danforth program everyone recognized the identity of the program with Dr. Kinny's spirit of willing service to others. After his death in 1966, it seemed fitting to name the program in his memory. The name was then changed to the Kinny program.

An organization serving its community, Kinny consists of volunteer workers interested in the advance of mankind. With such agencies as the Girl's Club of Memphis, Crippled Children's Home, John Gaston Hospital, Home for the Incurables, Little City of the Mid-South, Inc., Porter Leath Home, and the Tennessee Psychiatric Hospital participating in the program, the Kinny volunteer is offered many challenges and is rewarded with great personal satisfaction.

Educating and enlightening the people of Memphis, Kinny workers have the opportunity of working with groups or individuals. The responsible volunteer need only offer love and attention to gain his own rewards.

CHALLENGE

In the late spring of 1969, Churchill Davenport and other interested students decided that the Kinny program could not possibly handle the social as well as the educational needs of the Memphis community. With this in mind, a group of interested students began to formulate ideas on how to approach the educational needs of the city's problem areas. This group of students finally arrived at an answer-Challenge.

Challenge was planned to be a student run and organized organization that would try to improve the educational deficiency in many parts of the city. For their first year of active involvement, the group chose Carver High School. This past fall the group went into action. They primarily asked for the students to come to them for help. This did work for many, but the workers soon discovered that they often had to go and ask the students if they wanted help.

Throughout the week students from Southwestern are bused to Carver to help those students who are academically in trouble. For those students who show promise on a higher level of learning, the Challenge workers act as college counselors and attempt to help the student choose and apply for college. A worker will even go so far as to help the student try and get scholarships through various foundations. These are only a few of the challenges the group has met.

DORM BOARDS

It is the responsibilities of the men and women's dorm boards are to see that the rules and regulations of the dorms are carried out. While each women's dorm has several members, the men's dorms only have a president for each dorm.

The presidents, secretaries and a rotating member from each board meet weekly as the Executive President Mary Lou McCloskey conducts the Executive Board. The Executive Board makes the dormitory rules and serves as a court for appellate cases.

Because there are no dorm mothers in the Men's dorms, the presidents of the dorms have total power in judiciary action. In close association with the Social Regulations Council and the Dean of Men rules are decided and punishment is decided upon.

S CLUB

The " S " Club is the honorary organization that is composed of all athletes who have lettered in any of the varsity sports on campus. These sports included football, basketball, baseball, track, golf, tennis, cross-country, swimming, and wrestling. The club forms the official voice of the participants in varsity sports at Southwestern. The whole purpose of the club is to foster a spirit of pride and enthusiasm among the athletes and students and to promote and develop all forms of athletics at Southwestern.

In the years past, the club has been rather inactive, but this year the organization was fundamental in the establishment of a campus swimming team and wrestling team. It is with these teams that Southwestern becomes a really well-rounded school in the CAC.

The "S" Club is also very influential in the establishment of membership in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. It is through these efforts that the club tries to stress good sportsmanship not only on the field of play, but off the field as well.

WAA

The Women's Athletic Association is the organization composed of two representatives from each sorority which sets up and handles all intramural activities for women at Southwestern. The officers include a president and a vice-president who must have been representatives for one year and a secretary who doubles as newspaper reporter. Besides setting up tournaments, WAA elects the All-Star teams for several sports and holds a Field Day in the spring for each sorority to participate in track events. The tournaments played each year include tennis, volleyball, ping-pong, basketball, softball, archery and golf. At the end of the year the sorority with the most points is awarded a trophy for over-all intramural championship.

This years president is Laura Beth Whittemore. Laura Beth has done an outstanding job in the co-ordination of the various games and in promoting the ideals of the Association. It is an unusually hard job to get five different groups of girls to agree on times and places for anything, but this is what Laura Beth has done all year.

FINE ARTS

The relatively new Fine Arts Council was established to provide understandment and enjoyment of the Fine Arts throughout the college community.

Under the leadership of Beth Marr, the council has made outstanding progress during the year. They have been involved not only in Southwestern activities but have also been active in the Fine Art programs of the Memphis community. The council has been active in promoting interest in concerts, plays, and operas that have been presented throughout the city. The members of the council have also been influential in the sponsoring of concerts not only by music majors, but by musically talented students and faculty. The most outstanding project that the Council has undertaken this year was having the Hungarian String Quartet in residence for the month of February.

SOUTHWESTERN SINGERS

Under the direction of Tony Lee Garner the Southwestern Singers are a nationally known chorus specializing not only in religious music but also in popular ballads and show tunes.

The Singers practice twice a week and increase rehearsals to many hours a week before a performance or their tour. This past winter they performed in many Memphis churches and for various civic and social groups. They presented their annual winter vespers for the college and performed on WMC-TV during Thanksgiving. This Spring Tony took the choir to Alabama, Mississippi, and Florida. This tour was composed of church and school concerts.

The Southwestern Singers practice many hours to perfect their excellent performances.

SOUTHWESTERN DANCERS

The Southwestern Dancers are made up of Joye Cobb's modern dance group. The dancers meet twice a week in the practice room in the gym to learn basic steps and learn new dances. The group is locally known for their talents in the area of interpretative dancing. They also are very capable in the areas of folk dancing and the various forms of modern dance. As previously mentioned the girls learn to interpret dance on an individual level in the area of interpretive dancing, but they are also instructed in the area of choreography.

This year the group has appeared on local television and has performed in the city. Most recently they have been active in a touring program for the admissions office to nearby high schools.

MADRIGALS

The Madrigal Singers is a student organized group that sings particularly madrigals of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries from various countries. While the selections and quality of the group sound professional, many are amazed to find that the group is student directed.

The madrigals performed several times this year for not only the Southwestern students and faculty, but also for the Memphis community. This years schedule included a performance at St. Marys Episcopal Cathedral for an International Christmas party. In addition the group sang for various other organizations including banquets, clubs and appearances on Memphis television. During the second term the singers presented their program for the "Medic Center" as well as for the student body and administration.

Membership in the Madrigals is by invitation only, with both majors and nonmajors eligible for membership.

SIGMA PI SIGMA

Sigma Pi Sigma is the national honorary physics society for college students. Sigma Pi Sigma was founded at Davidson College in 1927. The Southwestern Chapter was installed in 1964. This organization enables its members to be always informed of the latest developments in their science, both on the Southwestern campus and in the laboratories around the world. During the year this is facilitated and encouraged through regular meetings with the Society of Physics Students and by sponsoring various guest speakers on the campus.

Members of Sigma Pi Sigma are selected from among the outstanding students of physics, including majors and nonmajors. A student must rank in the upper third of his class in order to be eligible for induction into Sigma Pi Sigma. This year Tim Atkinson served as president of the honorary society.

PSI CHI

Psi Chi is a national honary psychology fraternity. The chapter at Southwestern was established in 1952. The fraternity is associated with the American Psychological Association. Psi Chi was organized to afford its members a contact with the variety of opportunities offered in the field of psychology on a professional basis. It also provides for its members and others the chance for a greater interest in and a further understanding of the science of psychology.

Membership in Psi Chi is by invitation only. Those students selected have shown an unusual interest in the field and profession psychology. Members must have at least a B average in a minimum of twelve hours of psychology. This year Gary Snow served as President of the fraternity.

BLACK STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

During its first year of official organization The Black Students Association has been one of the most organized and involved organizations on campus. Under the leadership of Julian Bolton the Association has opened up a new era of knowledge and understanding of the Blacks to the college community.

Throughout the academic year the Association has entered and participated in virtually every campus activity. The entry of Stephanie Larry in the Beauty Revue marked a first for the Beauty Revue and proved to all that Black is really beautiful.

The most dynamic undertaking of the Association was that of Black History Month. During the month of February The Black Student's Association made a concentrated effort to make the college more aware of the entire Black community through its history. Daily displays and exhibits were shown, weekly discussions and speeches also highlighted the month.

TRULY INDEPENDENT WOMEN

Fellow Members of the Southwestern Community,

On March 7 a Pub Board meeting was held to establish a final position on prepublication censorship. The result is that while maintaining a basic aversion to censorship, the Board passed a motion making it possible to recall an editor on a prepublication issue by a $3 / 4$ favorable Board vote.

No other pictures appear here because I believe this space should be used to describe what has happened from January to March 1971. I can only hope that out of this conflict will evolve a more responsible attitude toward the content and control of the aesthetics of our publications.

Hershel Lipow

At the Feb. 15 meeting of the Publications Board, Brad Green was asked to resign from the editorship of the 1969-70 Lynx. The controversy centered around three nudes that Green had photographed to fill one of the blank pages. In an effort to sample student opinion, the photographs were placed on display in the Student Center and a poll was taken in both the Men's and Women's dorms. Taking only answered questions and rounding off to the nearest whole percentage point the results were:

FEBRUARY 19th

Monday night, in a two hour battle, Brad Green was asked to resign as editor of the 1969-70 Lynx. The controversy centered around three nude pictures which Green photographed to fill an empty page in last year's annual.

Green decided that he would like to have three girls pose in the nude for one of the blank pages. He took the pictures and mailed them to the Delmar Publishing Company to be printed.

Monday night, Green and Lipow came before the Publications Board which decided that no decisions could be made without seeing the pictures. Green stated that reviewing the pictures was not relevant to the matter at hand and that the main issue was whether or not the Board had a right to make the decision of whether the pictures were or were not to be printed. He added that he was chosen editor and felt that he had the right to use his creativity without a review board judging the results.

The floor was opened for discussion and the Board presistently asked to be allowed to see the pictures. They were passed around. Although most of the members thought that the pictures were discreet and tasteful, they did feel that some people would be offended by them.

Mark Lester pointed out that there were probably people who would be offended by the photographs; and, considering that the Publications Board had "already been called on the carpet once this year" about The Sou'wester headline, he did not see that the main question was whether or not the pictures were discreet. The problem, he said, was the effect that the pictures would have on the Board of Directors and the people who read the yearbook.

Professor Ray Hill added that not only would the Board of Directors be getting the ammunition they had been waiting for, but that the community would also be adversely affected. "This is the only community where Love Story has had any trouble..."

Proponents of Green's stand argued that the pictures were insignificant. They did not feel that the majority of the student body would be offended or shocked. The significance would come from the Board of Directors' reaction to the photographs. They expressed the opinion that the Publications Board was being influenced by the Board of Directors contrary to their own feelings.
This group was also hesitant about setting a precedent by censoring the editor of a student publication. Their main argument was that since the photographs in themselves are not offensive it would be hypocritical and against their principles to censor the work of the editor.

Miss Haskell asked Green to reconsider his stand and when he replied that he would not, she moved: "Since Brad Green does not feel that he can remain editor unless the pictures are printed, I move that we ask Brad Green to resign from the editorship of the 1969-70 Lynx." The move was seconded by Jeanette Birge.

The motion was passed by a roll call vote. The vote was ten to eight.

It was voted by acclamation that Green would receive his money and that Lipow would remain as editor of the 1969-70 Lynx.

Miss Warren closed the meeting stating: "This is the only time that something like this has been brought before the Board. This is also the only time that the Board has adopted a censorship policy." The meeting was adjourned.

UNORGANIZED ORGANIZATIONS

When the moon comes over the mountain, or when ever the time is right, there are those groups of people or just certain people for that matter that seem to form unusual unorganized organizations of their own. It is to these people or persons, whatever, that these pages are dedicated. It is unfortunate that we could not include all the unorganized factions on this campus, for as you well know that would take up most of the book. But here are only a few of the more noteworthy members of this strange and often necessary portion of the campus community.

We have included that all time campus favorite-The 1969-70 Southwestern Marching-Pep Band under the baton of the imminent Tom Mobley. Then there are the rather Independent Flagball players who appear at no other time of the year. Our patriotic Veterans League that sews flags for the Veterans Club is also included. The Freshmen-Junior Flagball team is of course included, as well as Ruth Ann "Mother" Sadler who knows all and tells nothing.

The Independents leap to another victory.

When the swallows go back to Capestrano the Pep Band appears on the marching field.

The Southwestern Veteran League famous for their devotion to Mom, Apple Pie and the American Flag.

The Freshmen-Junior Women " S " Club

"Mother" Sadler warns of the evils of the SAE's. sex, and liquor.

CLASSES

So often we may seem like sheep, but there are times to conform and there are times to strike outin a slug-out with the profs or a frolic in the grass . . .

Sometimes we choose sides and plot our minds and energies against each other - each class becomes an entity.

But there are times when the artificial fences fall; and together we strive toward a common goal, regardless of muddying our principles sharing our fears and hopes and then we are One.

In Memoriam  Thomas William Bayley

1966-1970

As the Class of 1970 graduates from Southwestern, so passes an era of the school's history. Never before has a class experienced so many changes in only four short years. This is the class that can remember numerous breakings with tradition. They are the last ones to remember chapel cuts, April Fools Dances, hours for women and many other traditions.

In the last few years the changes have been swift and in rapid succession. Never before has a class been responsible for so many changes. Governmental, Organizational, and Individual changes have marked that last two years at Southwestern. As the Class of 1970 leaves, a new class has just begun. A Class full of ideas and conviction that will most likely leave their mark on the school's history.

When this class graduates they will pass by two identical statues that are in Fisher Garden. The statues are of a small boy trying to hold back a struggling swan. These statues have been there for many years and their story has always been the same. Maybe it is time that these statues be replaced by two new statues, ones that depict swans that have escaped into a new era of freedom, involvement, and change.

A closing . . . a time to reflect? To look back over the countless pages just gone by? To remember ourselves as we were this past year . . . our hopes, joys, aspirations, longings . . . a year to be aware of ...

A year a confusion, a year of bright awakening, of awareness of what we are at college for a year of political, social, and economic change for all of us.

A wareness of a year of great grief, of death, of new birth. Before us lies a new year a future, a year of promises, of hope and peace throughout the world.
We hope this book will help you to remember this very special and unusual year and the part that you played in it. If it was a small part, then expand your awareness in the year to come.

Thus ends another annual. Another yearbook to be looked at for a few days and then to take its place among the others on your shelf, to be brought down on rainy days, lonely hours, when you need to know a face, when you are about to graduate.

I hope this book will mean more to you than this. I have tried to make you aware of the beautiful and exciting times we are all living, of the school that we attend, and of the world that we are a part. I have asked you to expand your awareness . . . to become constantly aware of all you see and do every day while at Southwestern, an endless task, but one of which you will be thankful in the years to come.

I hope this does not sound foolish to you, for my meager staff and myself have not tried to be foolish in our task. As Cathrine Ann Porter once wrote "We try all our lives not to make fools of ourselves, and usually end up being the biggest fools of all." We have tried to be honest - I hope our honesty shows.

My thanks go out to those who helpd so very much with this book - Alice Cockroft, Ellen Lackey, Jackie Rutledge, Jane Schmidt, Eve Yeargen, and Ruth Ann Sadler. To the faithful friends of the '70 Lynx - Earl Majors, Sonny Reese and the ever-faithful Phil Hollis who was always there when we needed him the most. Finally my thanks to Ron Wempe and Delmar Printing Company for their time and talents in the printing of this book.

Tommy Wolff, Editor

SOUTHWESTERN AT MEMPHISA College of Liberal Arts and Sciencesfounded in 1848Memphis, Tennessee 38112

To: Students of Southwestern 1969-70
From: brad green, Commissioner of Publications 1969-70

The purpose of this letter is to explain the circumstances which have led to the publishing of the 1970 Lynx at this late date. As Commissioner of Publications I talked with the Editor of this book last spring and was assured that everything was going according to schedule. In late April the Editor informed me that the book would be a couple of weeks late since he had missed some deadlines due to unavoidable circumstances. He would also see about mailing the books to the students, if they should arrive in June.

In June the Editor graduated and little was heard from him until September when the Publications Board, under this year's Commissioner Judy Warren, investigated the matter. She was told that all of the material was in at this time. In October the Board learned that some of the copy was still missing. The Editor then stated that all of the material had not been sent in at the time of the September conversation, but that the final copy was in the hands of the Delmar Publishing Company at this time.

The Board phoned Delmar and discovered that 155 pages were still missing out of our 320 page book. Thoroughly believing that we would never see any book, Hershel Lipow and I volunteered to do the remaining work. We gave the Editor another week's extension during which he finished the remaining portion of the copy. Thus, on 30 November 1970, all of the original copy was turned in.

Hershel and I finished the book. We have done our best to proofread, make corrections, insert pictures, and pick up the loose ends of the 1970 Lynx. And,for better or for worse, the book is completed.

My sincere thanks to Mr. M.J. Williams Jr., Vice-President of Fiscal Affairs at Southwestern, and Mr. Ron Wempe, Director of Publications for Delmar's Knoxville office, for their continued support and their seemingly endless patience. And, my sincere apology to you, the students of Southwestern, for a book long overdue.

Sincerely,
