RHODES COLLEGE

2000 North Parkway
Memphis, TN 38112

Two are better than one. After just rounding the corner of the wall the orientation leaders work together to ride the two person bike.

Play time. Charles Hooker takes a break to spend a little time with his newly found friend.

Bid Day fun. Brooke Burris takes a moment to glance around and see her new Chi Omega pledge class.

Ten more to go. Rhodes students relax by the pool while making sure the swimmer gets to the other end of the pool to complete his laps.

Match point. This group of students takes advantage of some spare time by enjoying a game of volleyball.

Enough of recess. Exhausted by the activities at Playfair, these students take a moment to relax together.

Destined for Broadway. Entertaining the first year students, these orientation leaders show off some of their dancing abilities.

Where's the gothic stone building? Patrick McCarroll and Nyleva Corley try to find their way around the campus together.

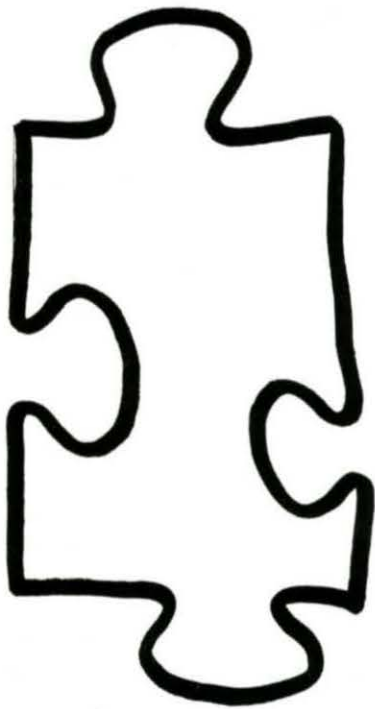

Ooh- look over there. Rossanna Punzalon and Jenny Beth Harris take a moment to admire Rhodes' beautiful campus.

Classes? Who needs classes when you can sit out on the back forty and just relax.

F R I E N D S H I P

Friends Forever. JohnBrownlee, Charles Shafer, Patty Fitzgerald, and Mike Gonda enjoy the festivity of Field Day .

Happy Hoe-down. Carol Culpepper and Beth Webster model their ask me! shirts to the first year students.

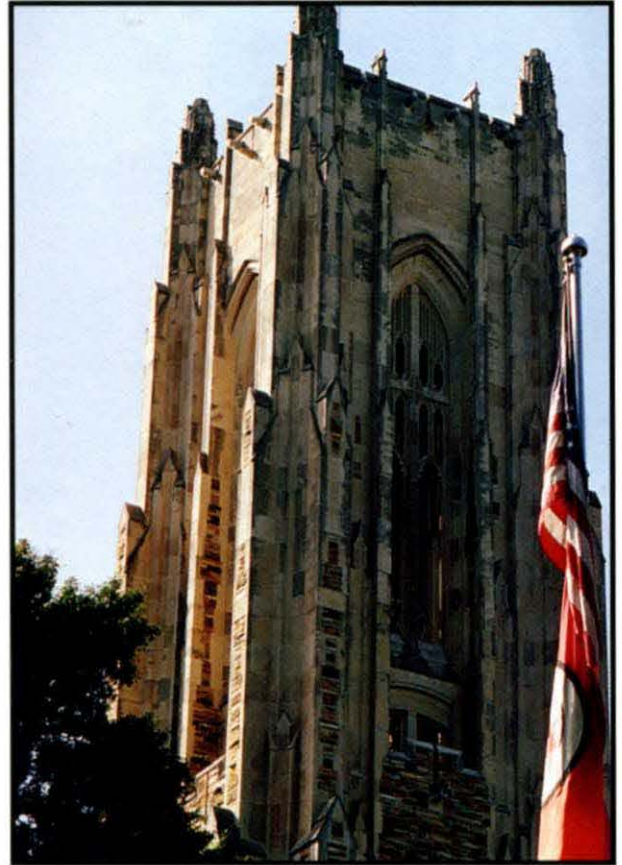

Miss America. Alex Rogers, a future Miss America struts her stuff for all to catch a glimpse.

U N I T Y

Muscle men. John Oliphant and Chuck Cordona show off their wonderful physiques while taking on the pose of muscle men.

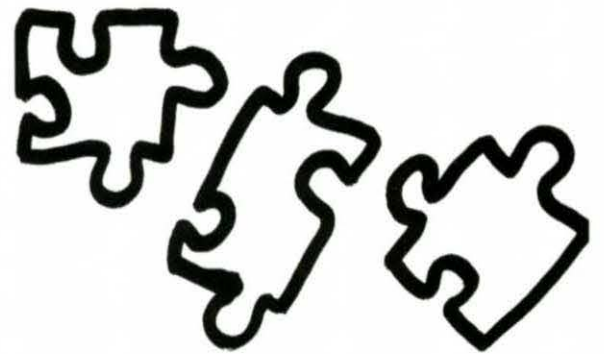

Symbol of pride. The Rhodes Haliburton Tower is always one of the first things noticed on campus.

Getting started. The orientation leaders help the first year students adjust to Rhodes life.

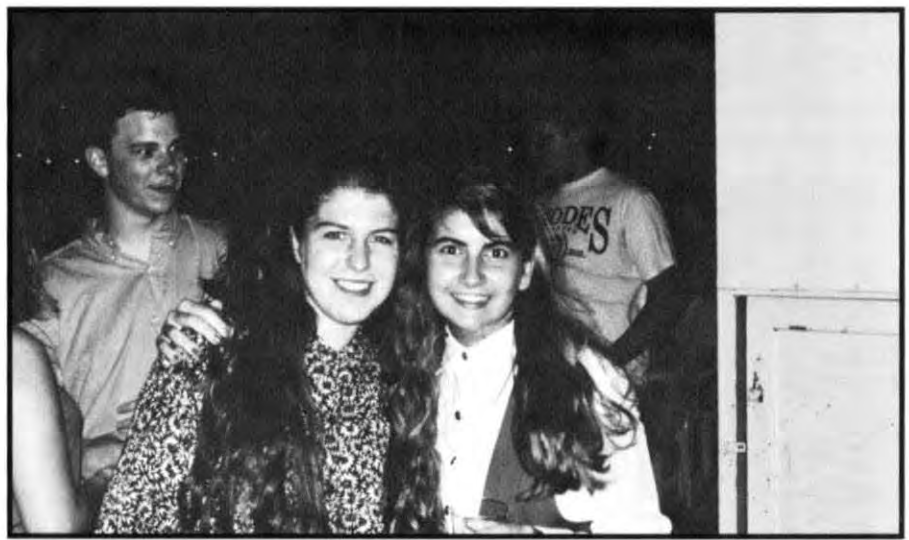

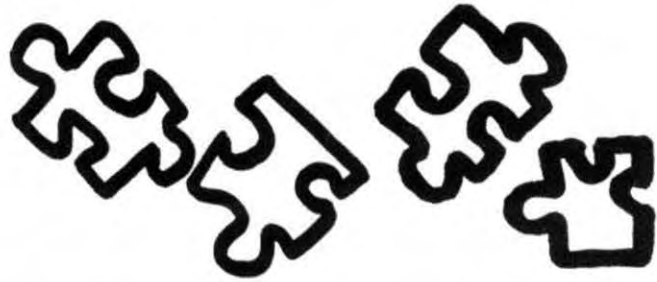

Running of the Bulls. The men prepare themselves for the women's Bid Day run with water artillery this time.

Let's make mud pies. Both Webster and Erin Coleman pretend to be disgusted by the mud at Field Day. Of, course, we know they had a blast!

Picture time. New acquaintances, Jennifer Larson and Loretta Lambert, are enjoying the excitement of Cruise In.

Gathered at the amphitheatre. The "first year" students anticipate the excitement of the year.

You're home. The Chi Omega pledges are greeted by their new sorority sisters on Bid Day.

Pitch the key. The orientation leaders sing the alma mater to greet the new students.

Together
Forever

A Place To Belong

Welcome to Rhodes. The class of '96 gathers in the amphitheatre to kick off Orientation.

Shake it! The Orientation Leaders entertain the new students with a traditional Rhodes dance.

Anew home. Irmtraud Bertsch, Sybille Hoffman, and Jacob Abraham get acquainted during the Cruise In.

Ask them! Suzanne Gaverick, Les Johnson, and Bess Feagin line up for fun.

Getting muddy. Chad McGee, Katherine McCaa, and Trish Adair enjoy a little mud on Field Day in the Back 40.

You can do it. Mahara gives instructions for ice breakers during Play Fair.

Yuck. Beth Webster plays dirty on Field Day.

Around and around. Dizzy Lizzy on Field Day.

Count Faster. Derri Stroud, Danita Weary, Ellen Collins, and Amber Tate wait to get their Orientation group number!

Floating away. Cal Meeks, Lynn Dillard, and Hillary Keller enjoy the Cruise In.

"First year student"? What's wrong with the word "freshman"?

Friends Together

Got your nose! Chuck Cardona and Mindy Simon defy the saying "You can pick your friends. You can pick your nose. But you can't pick your friend's nose!"

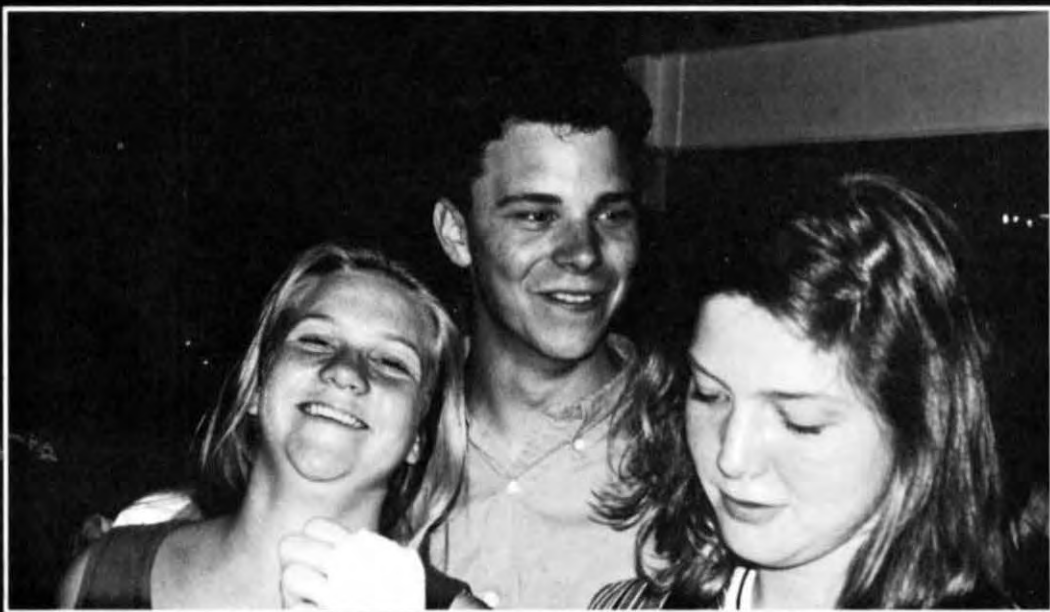

Joined at the shoulders. Corey Saba, Jane Brigden, and Karen Huddleston are linked to the end.

Do you really think so? Joey Thomas wonders what was in the Rat's Chicken Supreme.

Fun times never end. Sarah Wolford, Stephen Deusner, and Whitney Earhart are having fun by spending time together.

How about football, guys? This group is trying to decide whether just to hang out on the back 40, or to actually do something.

What better to do? Laura Fleming is enjoying some time in Fisher gardens with several others.

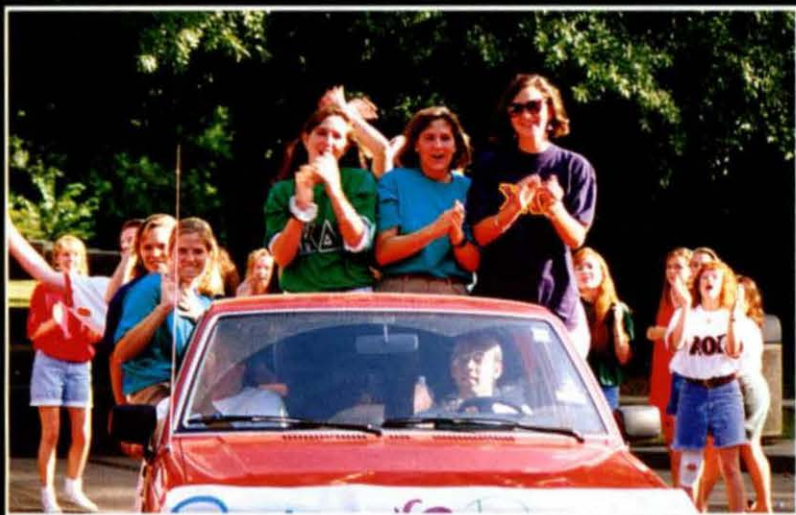

A Perfect Fit

All together now! Look at those AOP smiles!

Smile. Holly Jackson, Kara Eliot, and Laura Stephens in a Delta pose.

Here comes the Parade. Don Price chauffeurs the Rho Chis down sorority row.

Welcome home. Lane Clements gives a warm welcome to her new Chi Omega sisters.

Are you ready? Anxious rushees listen as Merry Taylor and Kerri Miller welcome them into Greek life.

Smile and Say Cheese!

How much longer? Marcie Allen and Shannon Simpson just want to get the show on the road.

Cheer time. Gimmie an 'A' / Gimmie and 'O' / Gimmie a 'T'.

Go ΔΔΔ. Keep Running! We're all the way at the end!

Join the fun. Onlookers Trish Adair and John Oliphant find this an exciting day to join the fun.

Come on! You're a KA now!

Just a little further. Allison Watt runs into the open arms of the Gamma Phi's

Finding the Right Places

The Pool! Some students have found their way to the pool, only never to leave again- Who needs classes anyway?

Now what? All these girls found Palmer, but can't get in. Do we venture to try to find another door?

Hey can you help us? We found Williford; but, how do we find our rooms?

The perfect place. David Luchin and Amy Brooks have both found the perfect place to sit for a while. From the amphitheatre they can see everything that's going on in the center of campus.

Come on. Fisher Gardens is this way. Hurry or you'll miss the speech.

Bits and Pieces

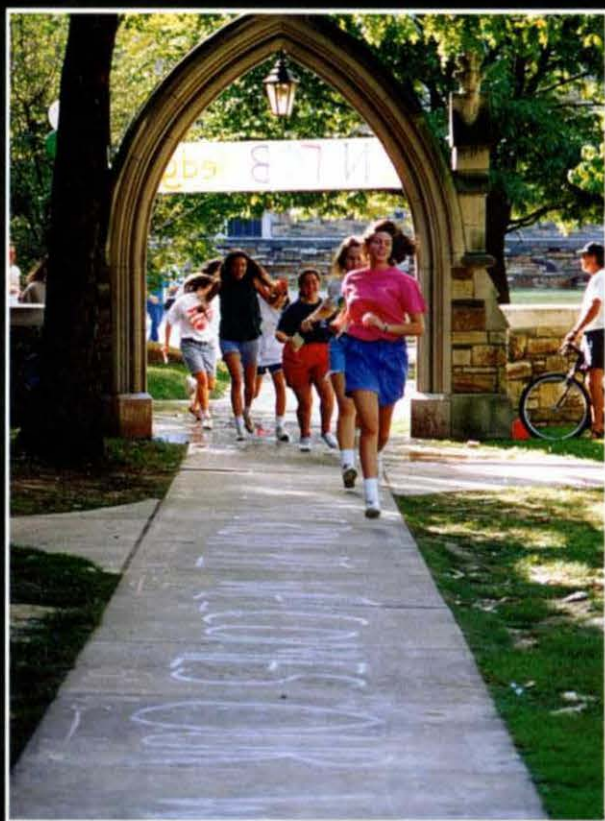

Classes start soon. Enjoy while you can!

Together. Caroline Love, Cass Wetsell, and Whitney Luckett enjoy the closeness of Williford.

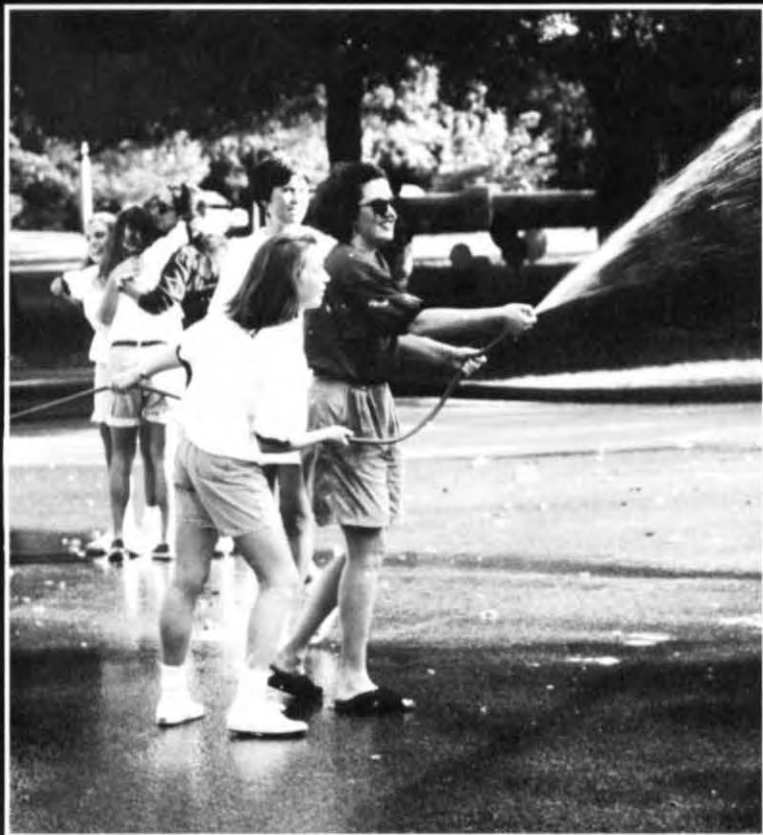

You've got to be joking. Do we really have to read this stuff?

Run Home! Carrie Skinner leads the way on Bid Day.

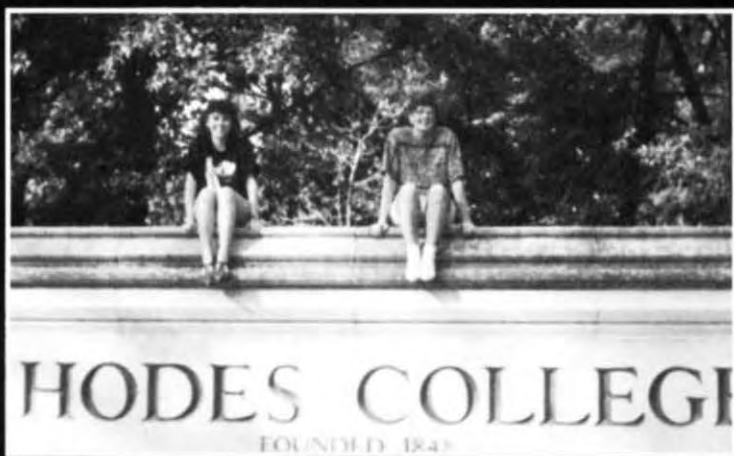

Power of the lecturn. Don Price says, "Don't ask me!"

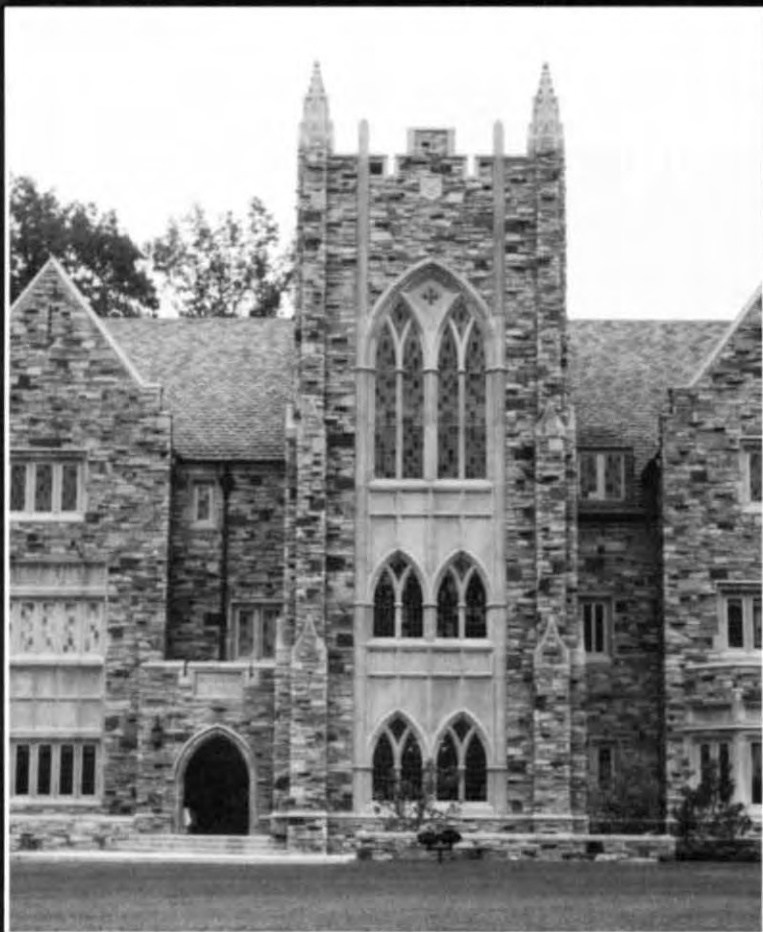

What's the matter, boys? You can dish it out, but you can't take it?

What a room. John Dickens and Scott Hearnberger smile over the rubble!

Smile! Debie Rudder has found a favorite picture - taking spot!

Buckman the beautiful!

Business and pleasure! A class takes advantage of the beautiful day outside.

Don't fall off! The ATQ's prepare their traditional Bid Day welcome.

What time are they running? The ΣΑΕ's await the arrival of their new brothers.

Run like hell! The men make a mad dash for their houses.

COME TOGETHER

Men's Bid Day

By all accounts, Men's Bid Day was a success this year. As one Greek man put it, "Rush was a real rejuvenation of Greek life!" The numbers ended up like this: KA with 13 pledges, ΠKA and KΣ both with 17, ATΩ with 21, and ΣAE with 25. Despite the rainy weather, having to move the music and celebrations inside the student center, everyone seemed to enjoy Bid Day.

Follow me! Frank Long leads the new KA pledges home.

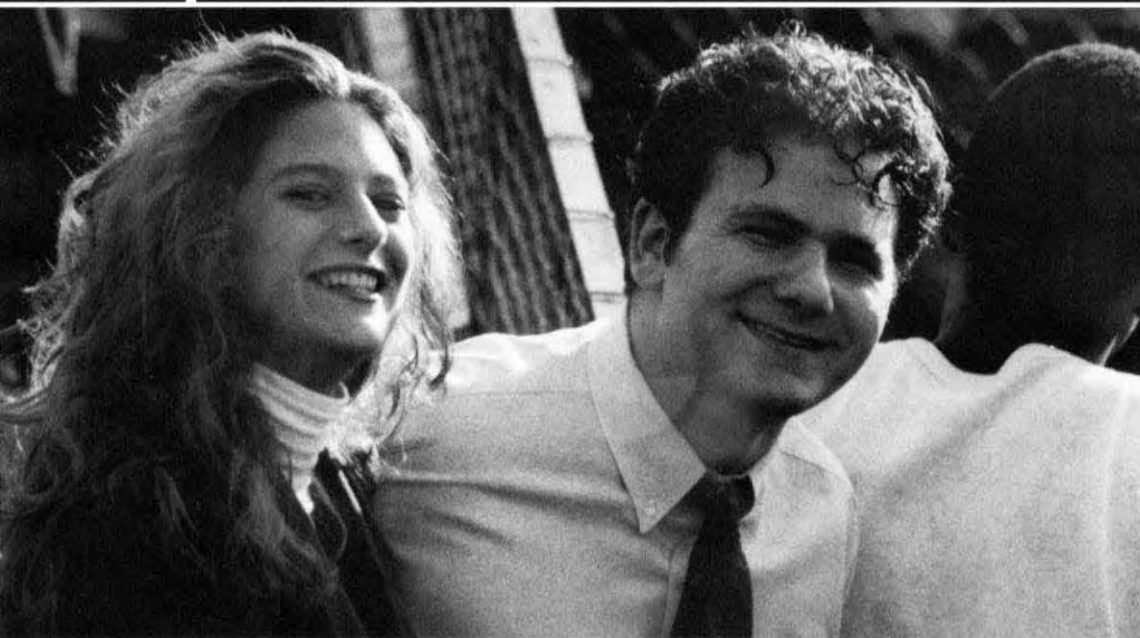

What a sight! Rebecca Robertson looks on as the men rush by in a whirlwind of excitement.

Smile guys! The ΠKA's take time out of Bid Day festivities for a pic.

We're #1! The KSA guys are abounding with anticipation for the Lynx win.

The crowning. Drew Henry, Mr. Rhodes, and Silva Gitsas, Miss Rhodes, join on the field for a few picture taking moments.

Homecoming 1992

*H*omecoming is one of the most treasured times at Rhodes College. It is a time of togetherness, nostalgia, school spirit, anticipation, and victory. It is a time for everyone to get involved and enjoy the game. The afternoon game was filled with thrilled Rhodes' fans as the Lynx won. It is always an excitement to win homecoming. Alumni from all over the United States came back to see the Lynx defeat Washington University. It was a wonderful moment for all. The cheerleaders were energized, the Pep Band was fired up, and the crowd was buzzing. They all waited until halftime to find out who Mr. and Miss Rhodes were. Silva Gitsas and Drew Henry were selected to these titles.

After an exciting successful day, the students were able to participate in the Homecoming dance. It was held at The Raquet Club. Indecision played throughout the night. The dance was a huge success.

The togetherness of the student body and the intensity of everyone's school spirit were definitely factors of one of the best Homecomings!

How much longer? This group of students are eagerly awaiting for the return of the game after half time against Washington University.

Go LYNX! Cathy Carls takes a moment from cheering to watch the Rhodes Lynx as they are about to score a touchdown.

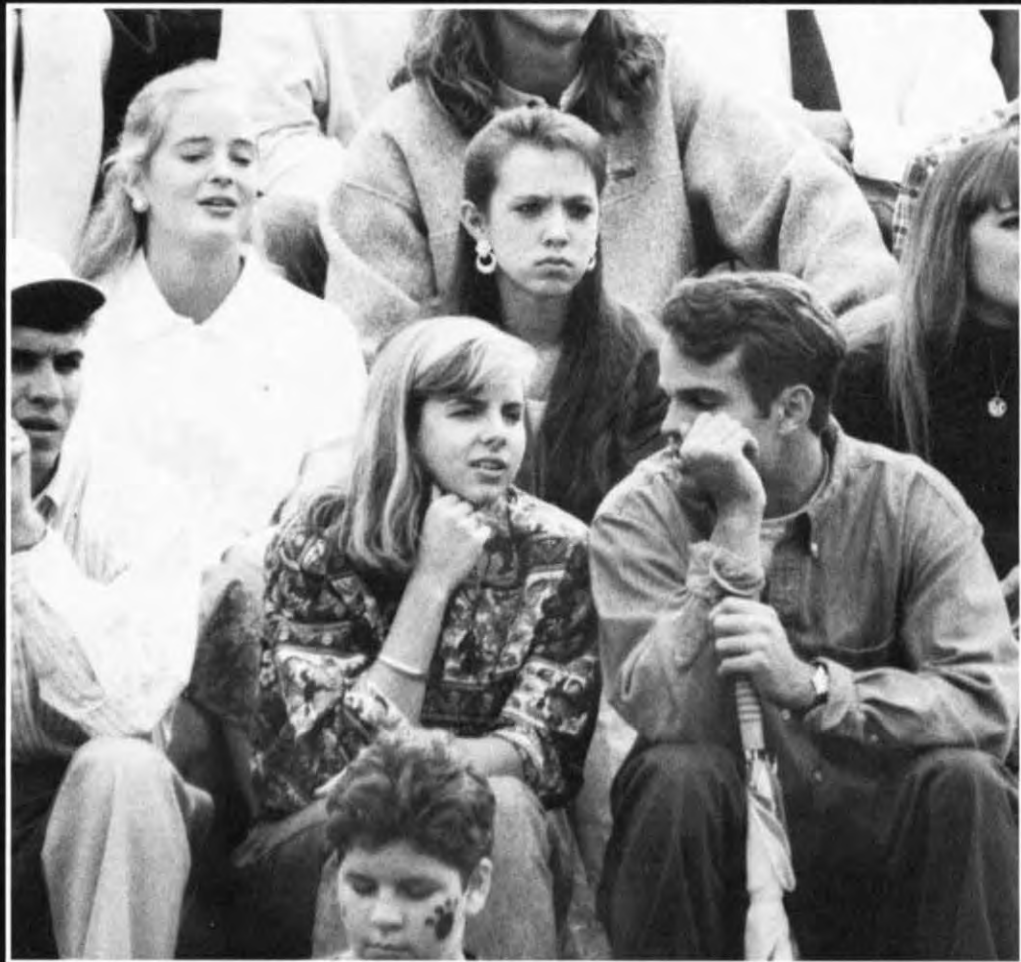

Stay back. Logan Germann, in his cool shades, displays his interest in the Lynx as he stands up to cheer.

You won't tackle me! Drew Robinson shows his running ability as he gains yardage for the Lynx against Washington University.

What did that whistle mean? Cassandra Wilborn, Elizabeth Knight, and Tim Ballard attempt to figure out why the Ref just sent Rhodes back five yards.

Player's view. You've heard of bird's eye view how about player's eye view? Now you know what it feels like to look up in the stands and see them full!

Last Minute cramming. Frank Long explains some notes to a friend just before class.

How peaceful! Harper Cook takes advantage of beautiful Oak Alley to study.

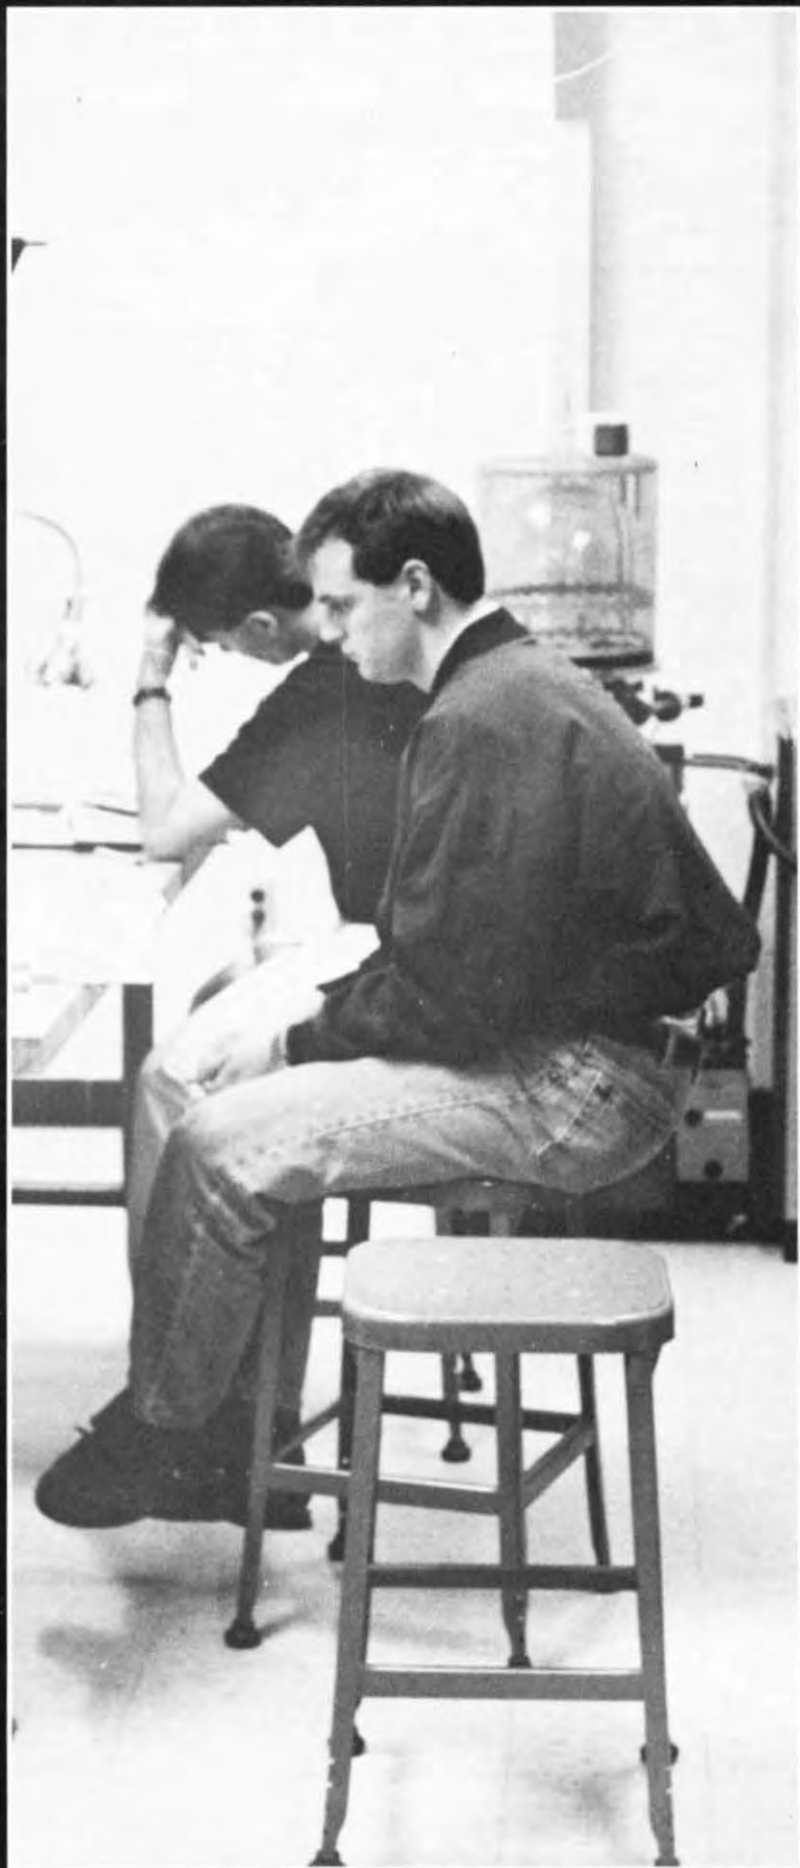

What great mail! Gretchen Crow rejoices over a care package from home during mid-term week.

What language is this? Jason McFarland concentrates in the foreign language lab.

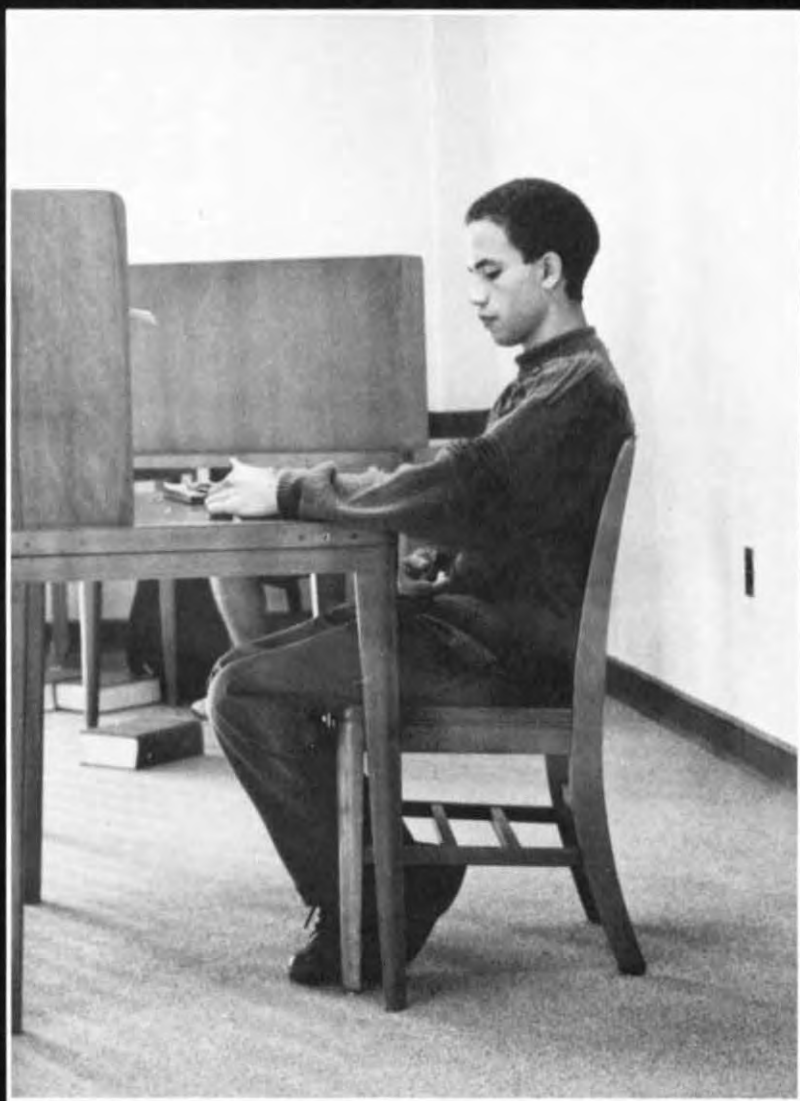

PULLING IT TOGETHER

Studying for exams

Studying for midterms and final exams is probably the most stress-inducing episode of a college student's life. Locations of studying vary greatly. While some people prefer the austere silence of the library, others take advantage of the natural beauty of the campus. However, no matter which location one chooses, everyone seems to be able to find that perfect place for pulling it all together!

Studying hard! David Assaf looks deeply involved in studying for exams.

Science minded! Billy Godbold is only one of many who spent countless hours in labs preparing final projects.

Whether a place of work, sleep, music, quiet, laughter, or laundry, the dorm gives students a place to enjoy.

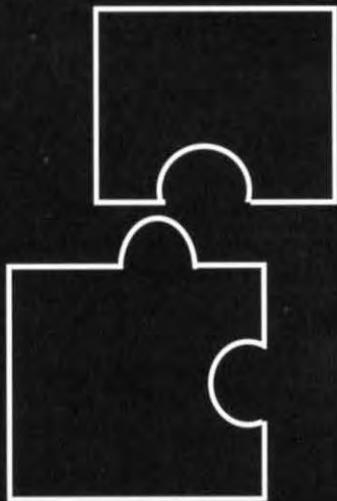

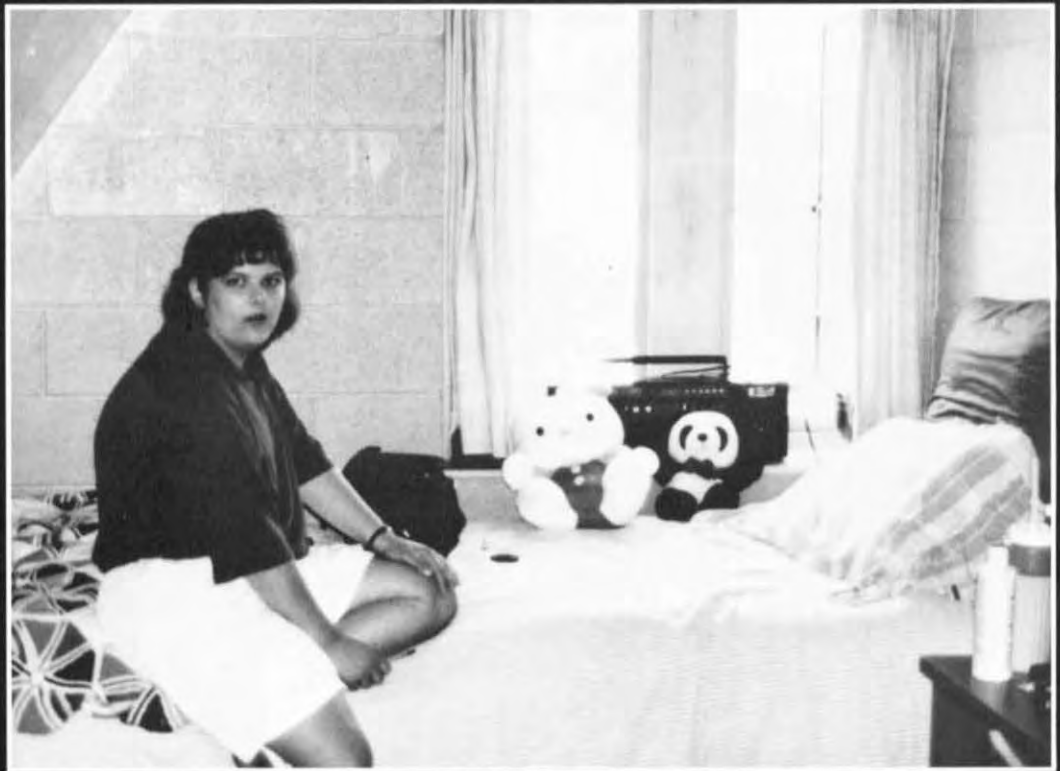

LIVING TOGETHER

A part of your world ... The Little Mermaid goes into Elizabeth Timmons's room, longing to be liberated from the Aquarium.

What a cute couple! Troy Roddy and Cathy Carls enjoy spending lots of time together- even though they live on opposite sides of the campus.

Hangin' out. Elizabeth Young seeks refuge from year-book stress in the solace of someone else's room.

A sink of my own? Even with community bathrooms, you could still luck into a sink and mirror of your own, if you choose your room wisely.

Be environmentally aware. Thais Davenport takes advantage of the can recycling bins in her residence hall.

What an R.A.! Patty Fitzgerald, third floor Robinson resident advisor, gets ready to go on duty.

Comfy and cozy. John Dickens sports shades and a pipe as he curls up in a friend's bed.

Star '80. Many students and faculty members attended the Inaugural Women's Studies film series. Attendance grew each week.

Welcome back! The simplicity of this southern statement says it all.

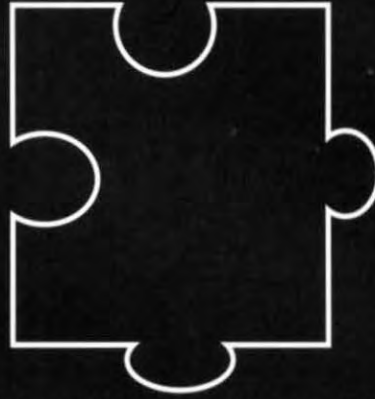

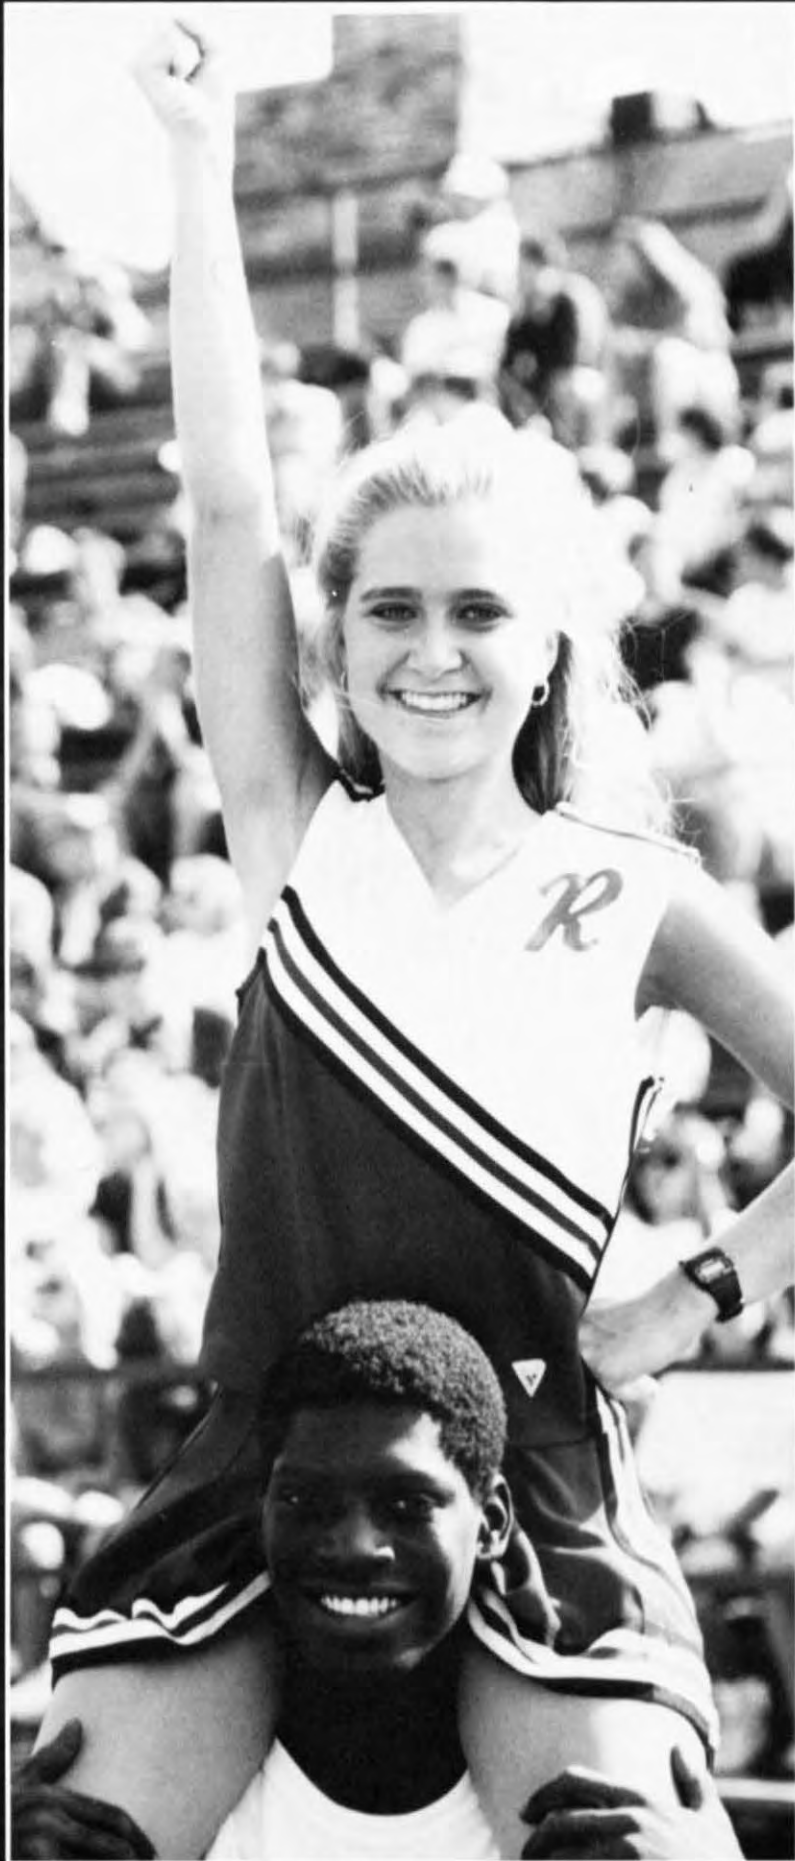

Study hard! Diane Melby looks deep in study.

Go RC! The Lambuth Eagle sprays water on the Lynx mascot. Could be a fight soon!

Piece by piece

Students and extracurricular activities

No matter what the interests, students can always find a variety of things to do or get involved in!

But did you hear? Meryll Taylor joined many other students in Cabaret this fall at the Kit Kat Club.

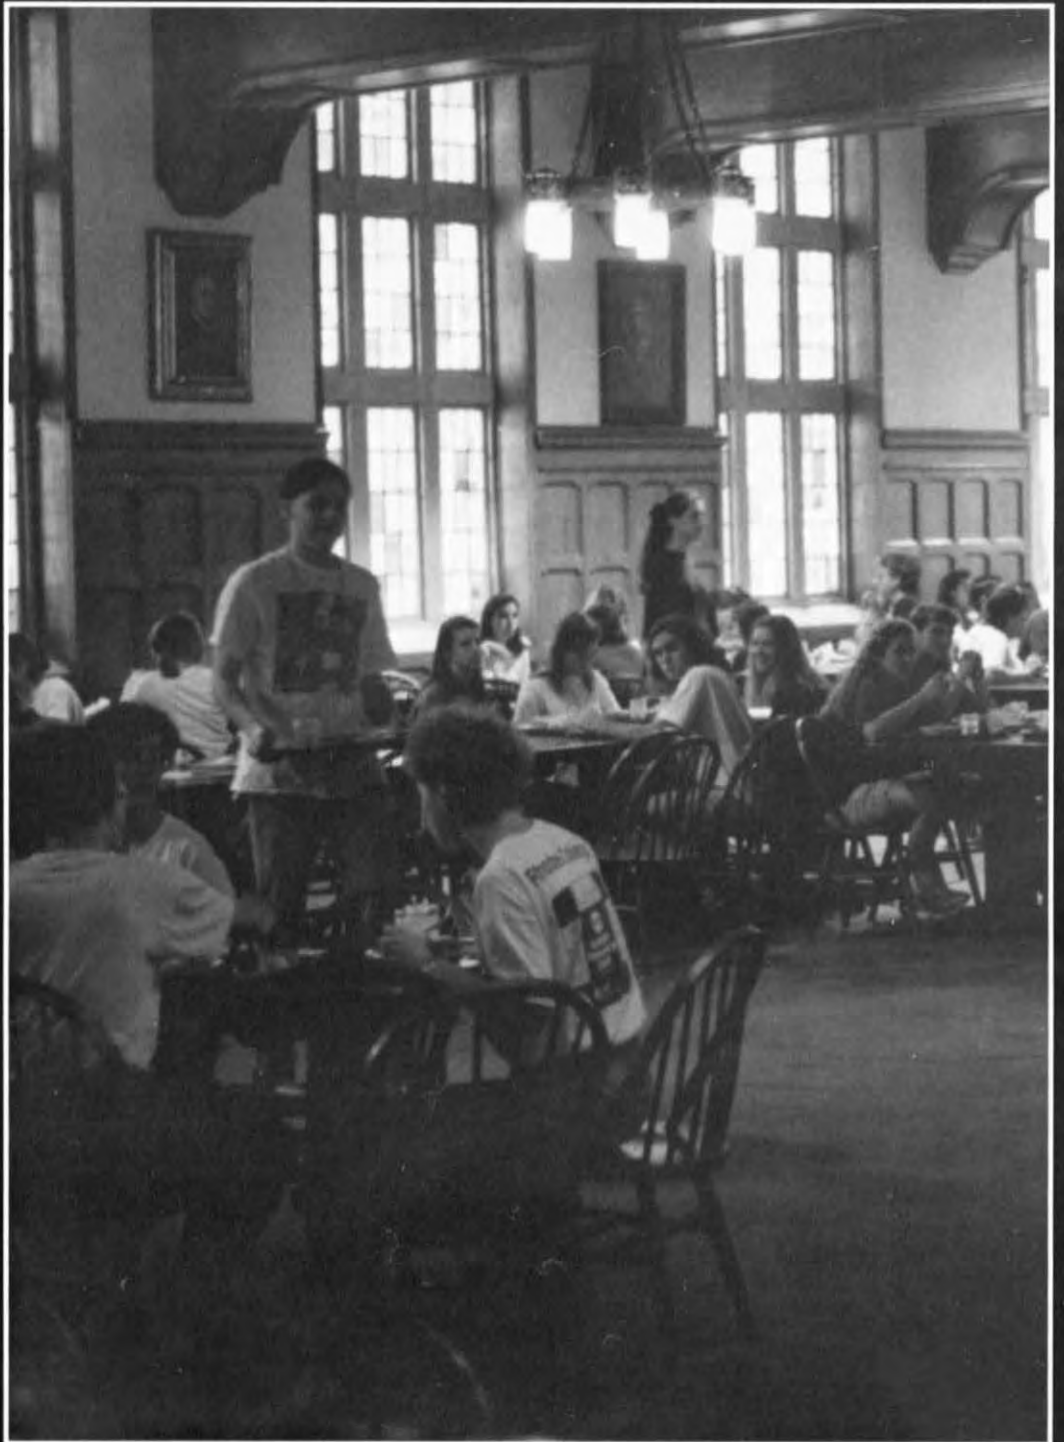

What great cheerleaders. Mandy Griffith and Herman Wilkins help to cheer the Lynx cats on to victory.

Community volunteering. This year, the Kinney Fair helped students learn about the activities they can get involved in to help others. Kinney is a beneficial organization that many Rhodes students like to participate in.

Ampitheatre bands. The Linny and Finny band sang at the Kinney Fair this year. The music was appreciated by the students as they became excited about Kinney.

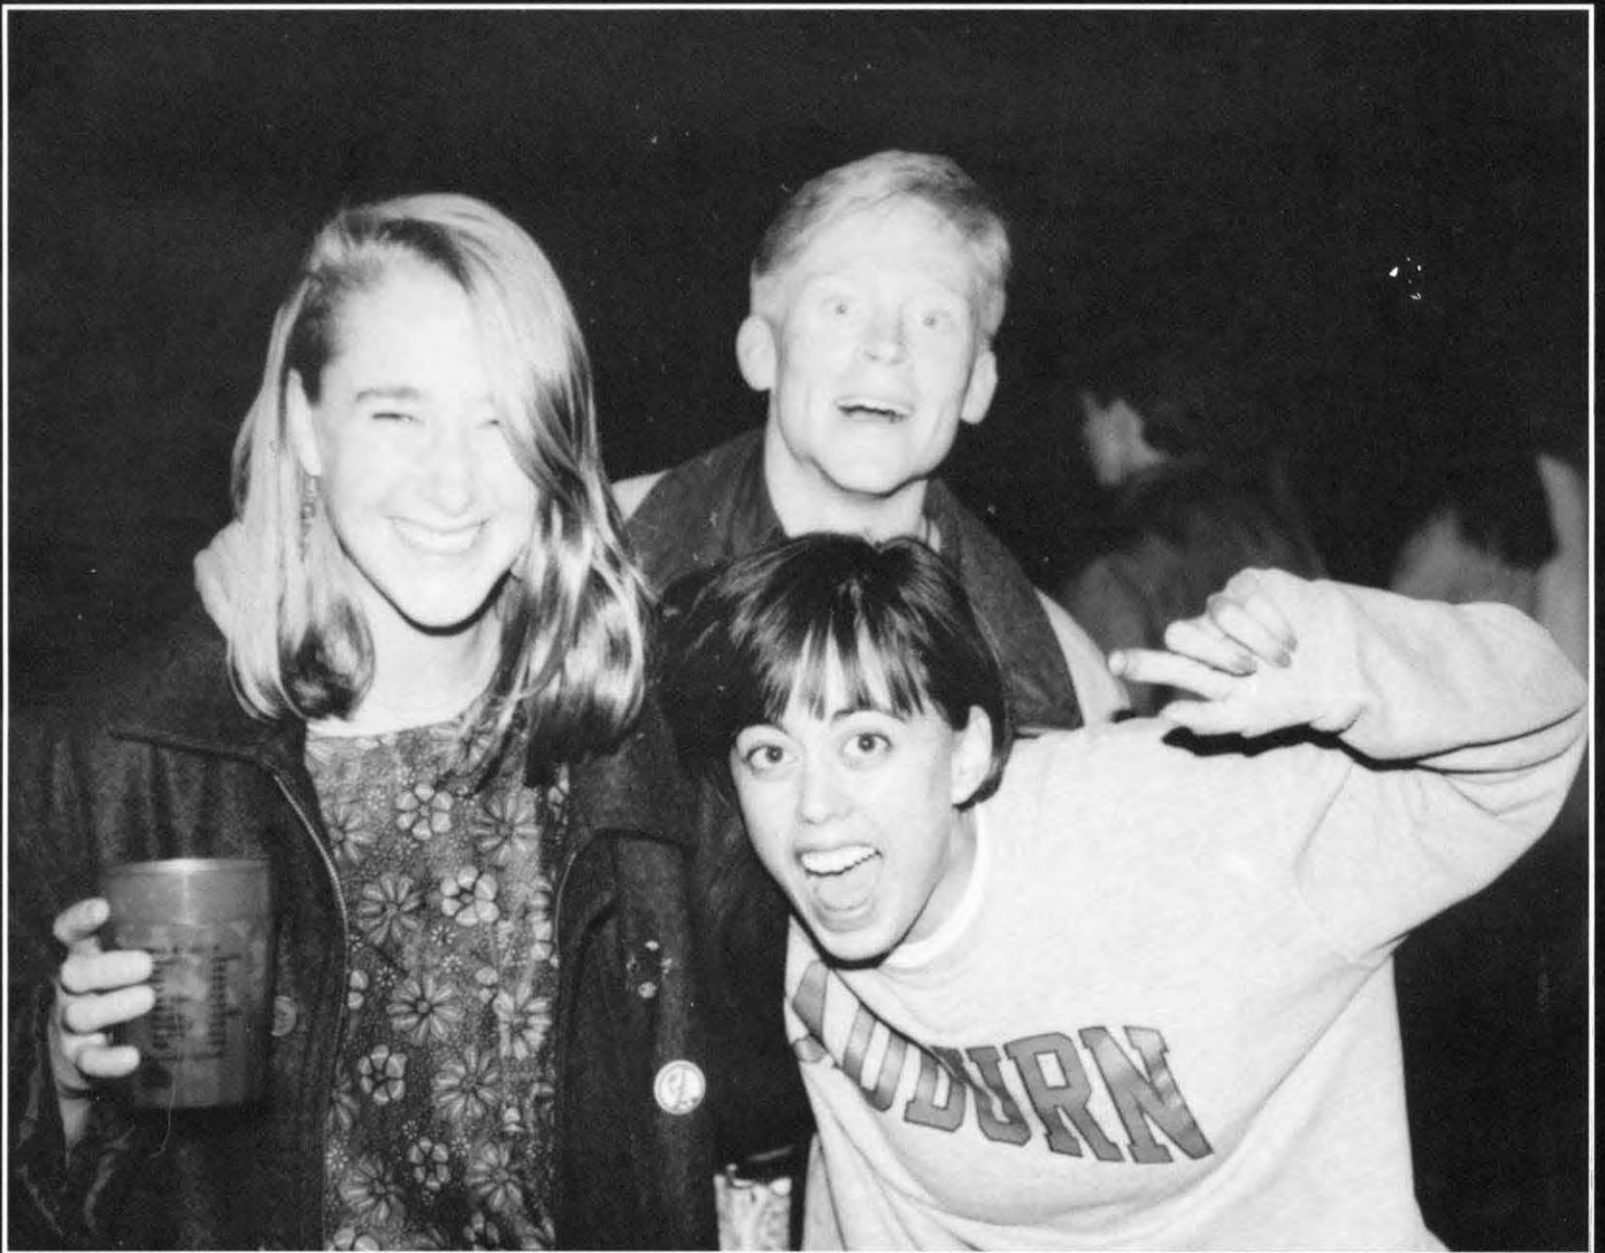

Networking. The well known Rat is a favorite of most Rhodes students, whether they go to eat, socialize, or study, the refectory is used by most everybody.

Fun on Campus

From Kinney Fair to Pep Rallies, to social events, full time students learn how to find full time fun

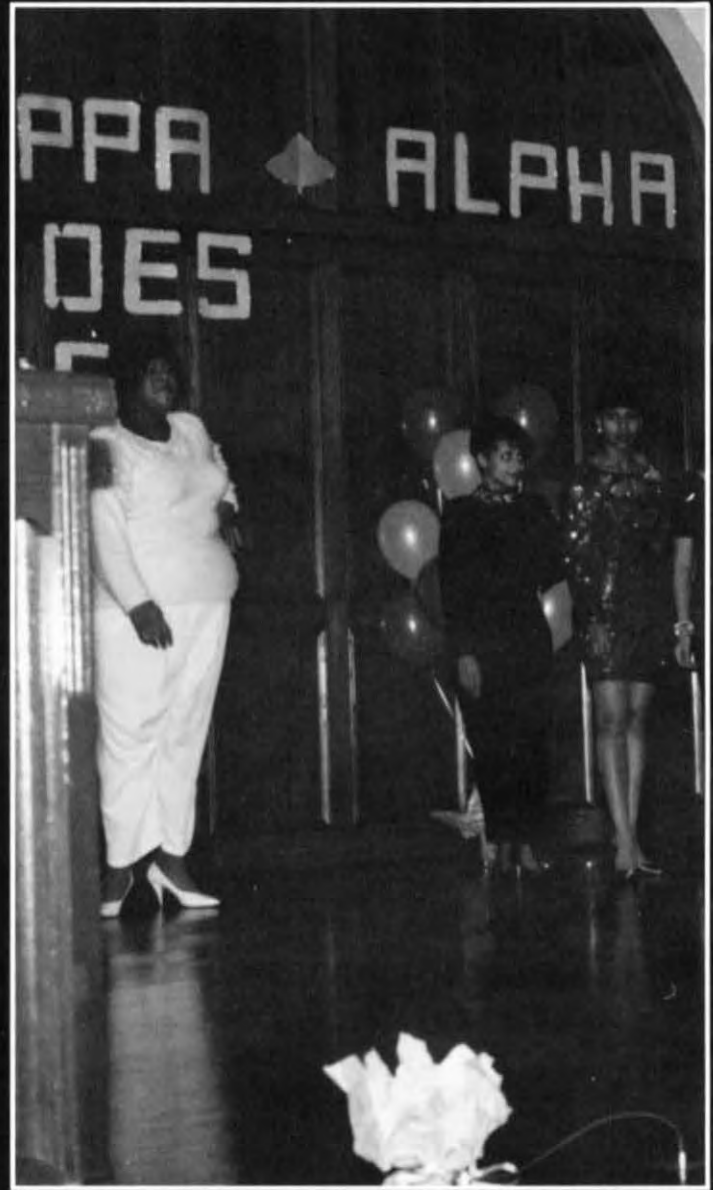

Pep Rally fun. This group of students exemplifies their school spirit as they cheer at the pep rally. The pep rally held before the last home game, against rival Centre College, was a huge success.

Counting the days. Seniors Wendy Walters and Carlyn Merz pull up their roots from Rhodes.

Around the Campus

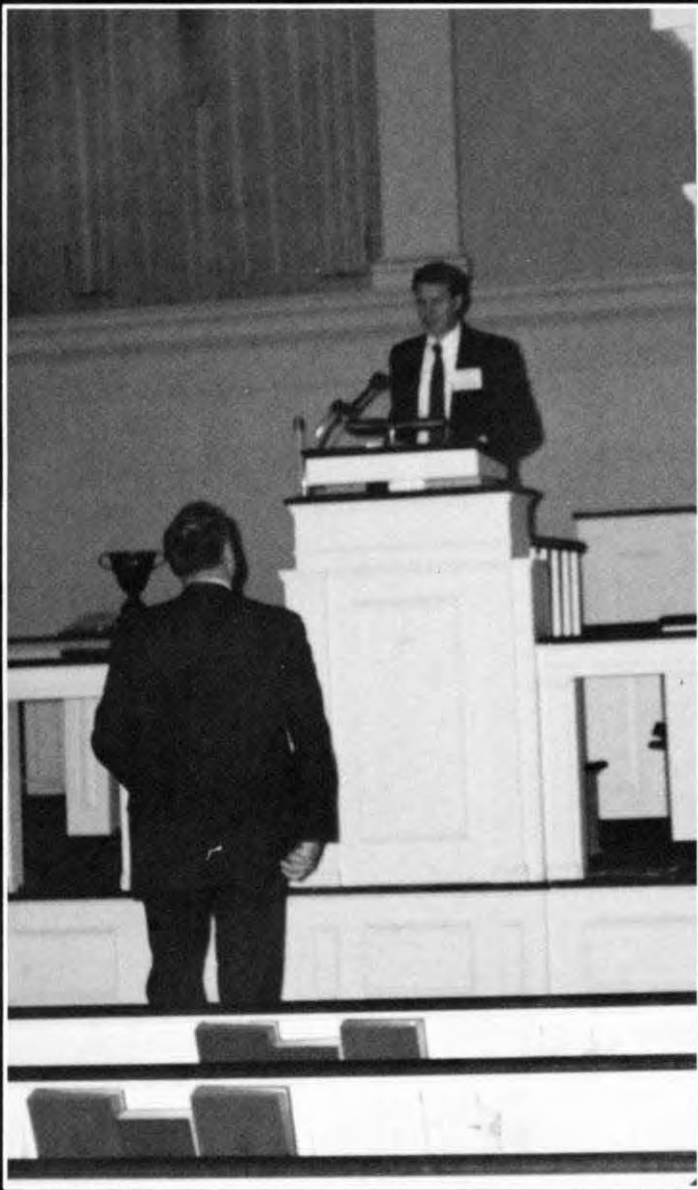

Think pink. Alpha Kappa Alpha members present the annual Shades of Pink Fashion Show.

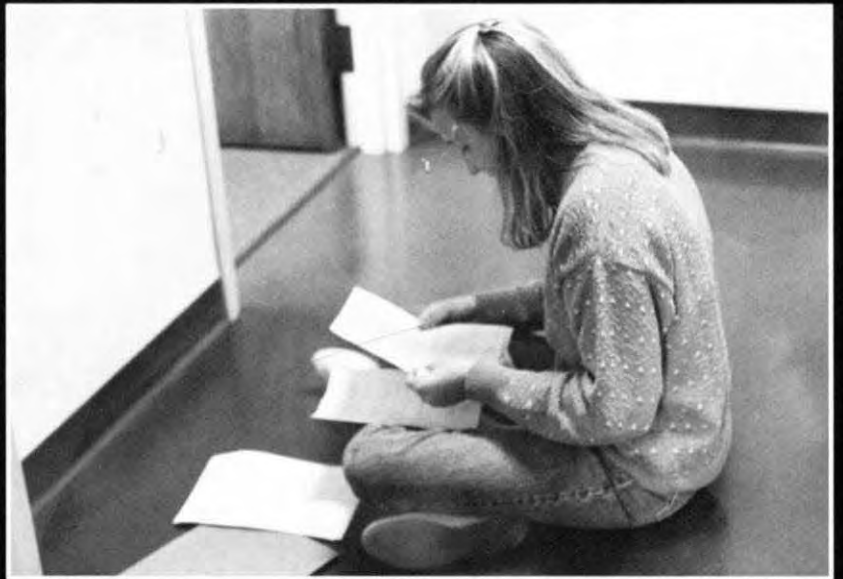

New event. Women's Studies Students enjoy the Women's Inaugural Film Series.

It's Fred and Dino! Clyde Henderson admires the dinosaur who has now taken residence at Rhodes. Do you think Dino has to pay room and board?

Get 'em Dave. Dean Dave Wottle speaks to the pro-studs at Evergreen. Dean Wottle's work in the admissions office enables Rhodes College to receive top students from all over.

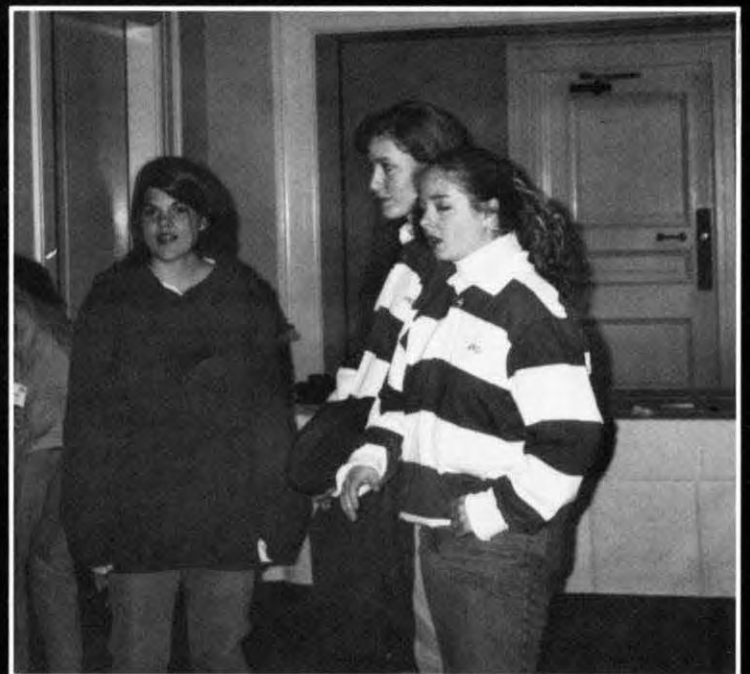

Shhh. Halie Clouse enjoys the quietness of the Buckman hall studying just before a test.

Rocky, pizza, and God. Kim Crowell, John Little, Katherine Randall, and Rob McMillan participate in College Connection, also known as pizza bible study.

V.I.P. Gandhi's grandson, comments on the movie "Ghandi" to some Rhodes students.

Tours, tours, and more tours. ARO leaders Dorian Jones, Beth Webster, and Frances Patrick enjoy meeting "Pro-Studs" from all over the U.S. at the ARO Open House.

Memphis: Our home away from home

Yum Yum. Many Rhodesians can be found at TCBY getting yogurt during a study break.

A nite out. 616 is a favorite of most students. They enjoy listening to many different types of bands here.

Going down the Mississippi. One cannot come to Memphis without taking a River Boat Ride.

Eating out. The Rendez Vous is a great place to take visitors and friends.

Not much longer. Amy Hill and her friend wait for their Hot Fudge Pie to arrive while eating at the North End.

Lion tamers. Debie Rudder and Amanda Coe enjoy visiting the zoo after taking the afternoon off.

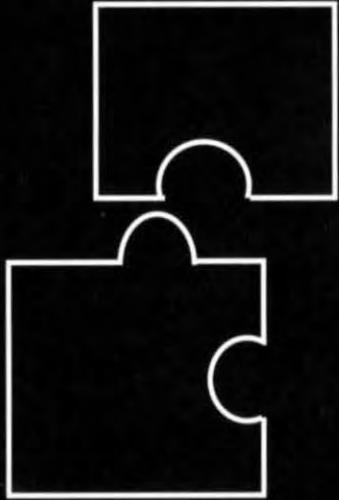

A well visited corner. Huey's, which has great hamburgers, is a well-known hangout for Rhodes students.

Play time. Overton Park brings out the kid in Alan Burton

EATING TOGETHER

Break time. Elise Eidemeller and Tori Togner relax in the Pub to grab a snack before hitting the books.

Yum Yum. Laura Benson, Jeanette Davis, Andrea Hood, and Kyla Sawyer eat their delicious dinner in enlightening company.

Tv time. The Monday night movie and french fries help to relieve the stress of beginning another week.

Afterwards. Susan Nagel and Shay Sabom enjoy a little extra time in the rat after finishing their diner.

Hits the spot. Marlinee Clark smiles really big after taking a sip of her soft drink.

Dodge ball. Orientation leaders plan their strategy for attacking the first year students during their weekend marathon outside.

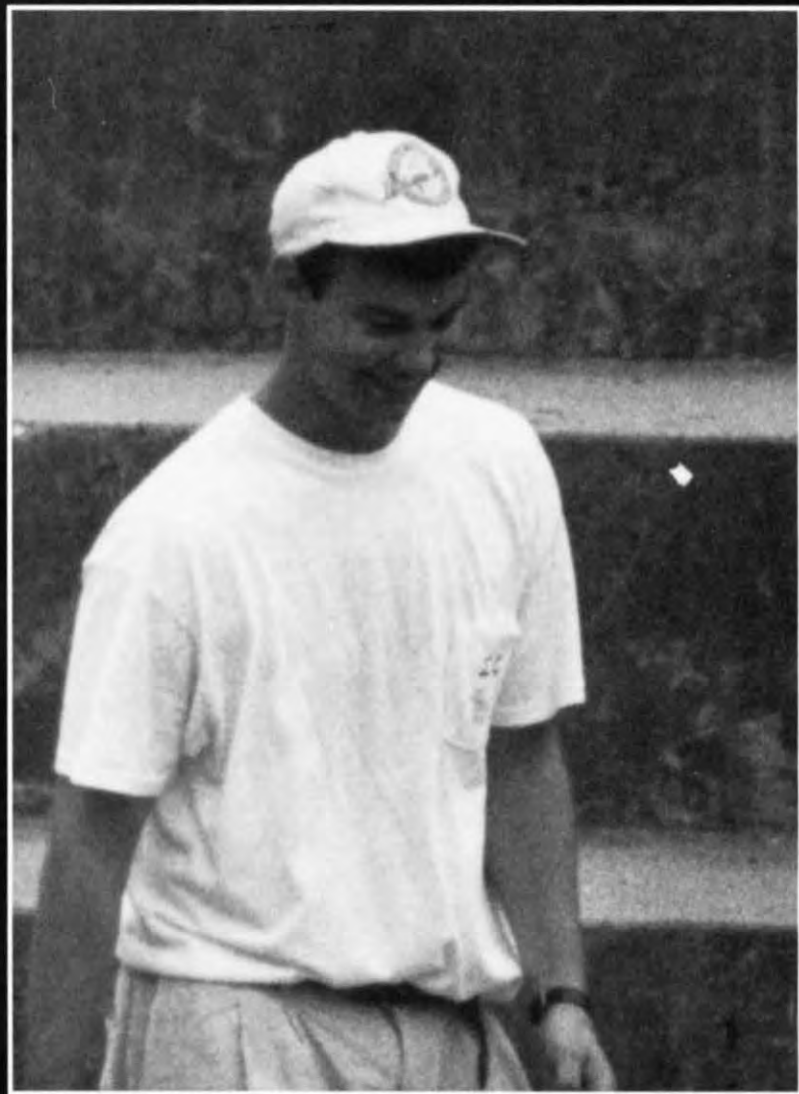

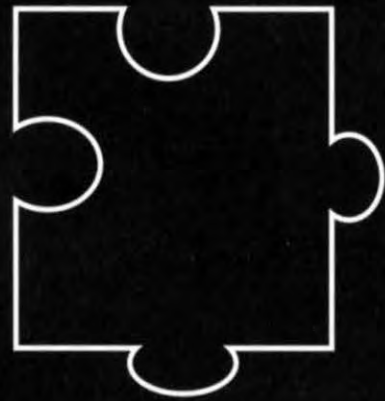

Stone building? Slate roof? Where are we going?

That looks fun. Play Fair entices these onlookers to join in the games.

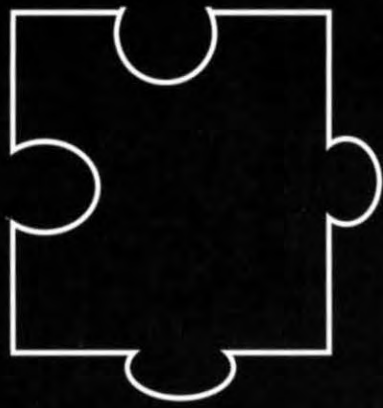

Playing Together

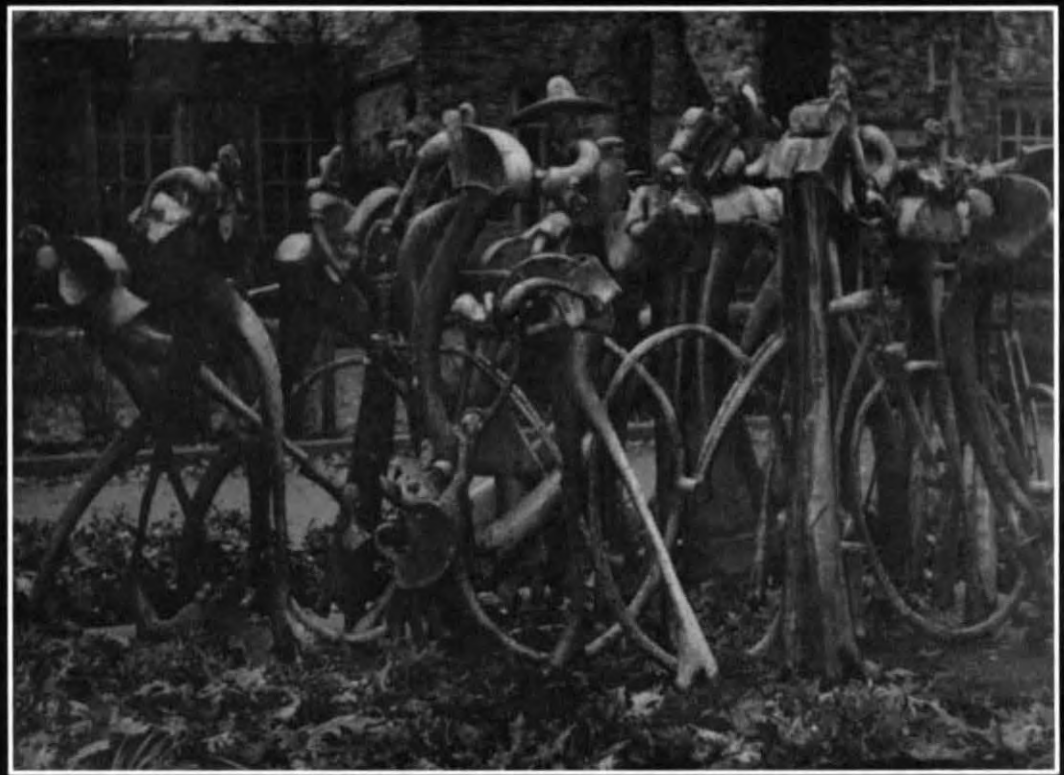

Amphitheatre blues. Thomas Johnson looks for someone to play with

What form. Look at amazing Allison Wemmers serve the volleyball. She went on to help her team win.

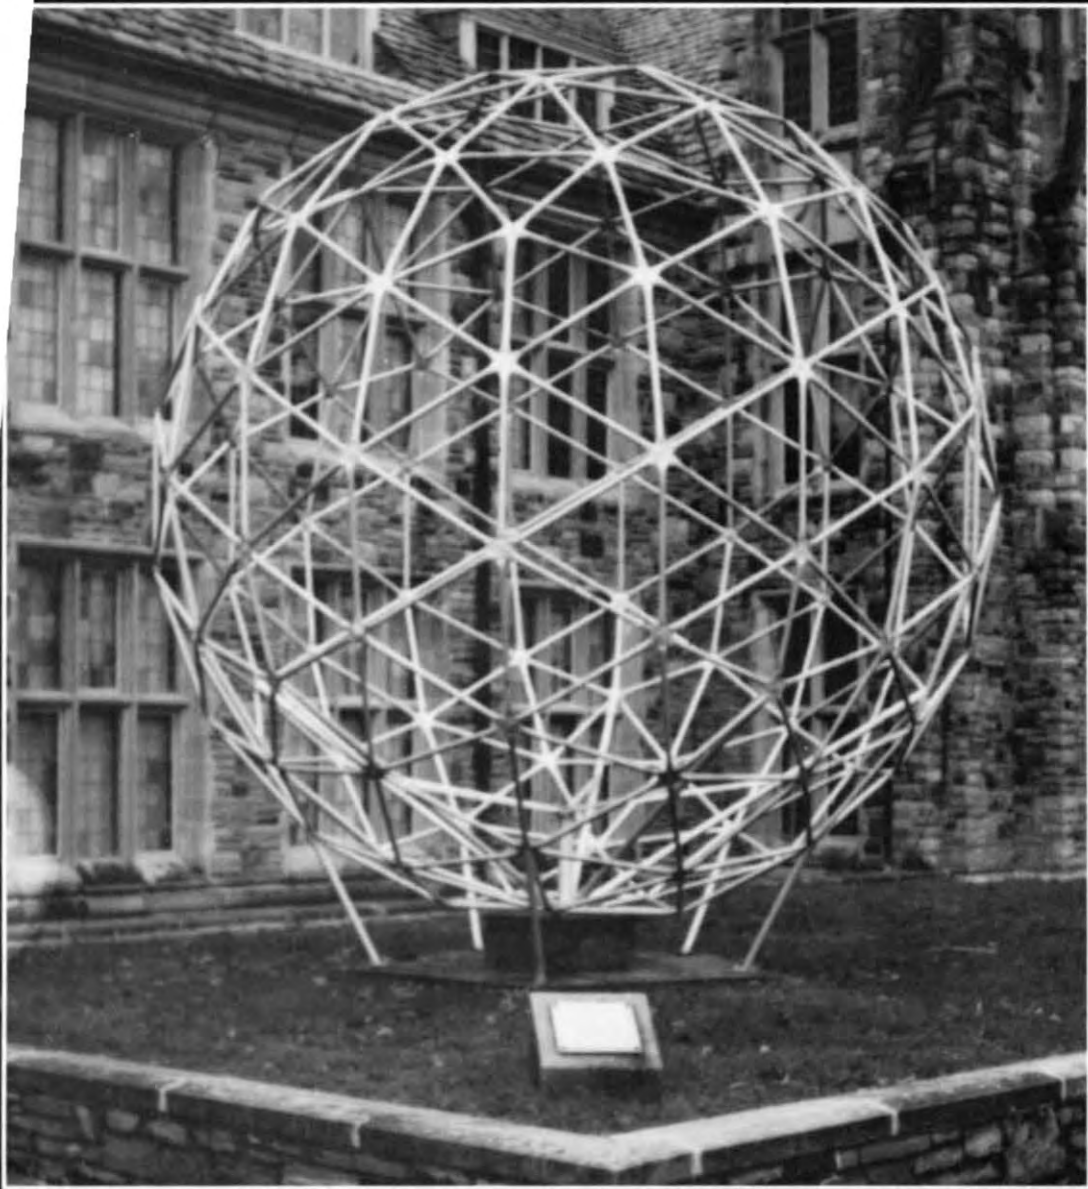

Major Pieces

Long legs! This complex sculpture has everyone asking- What is it?

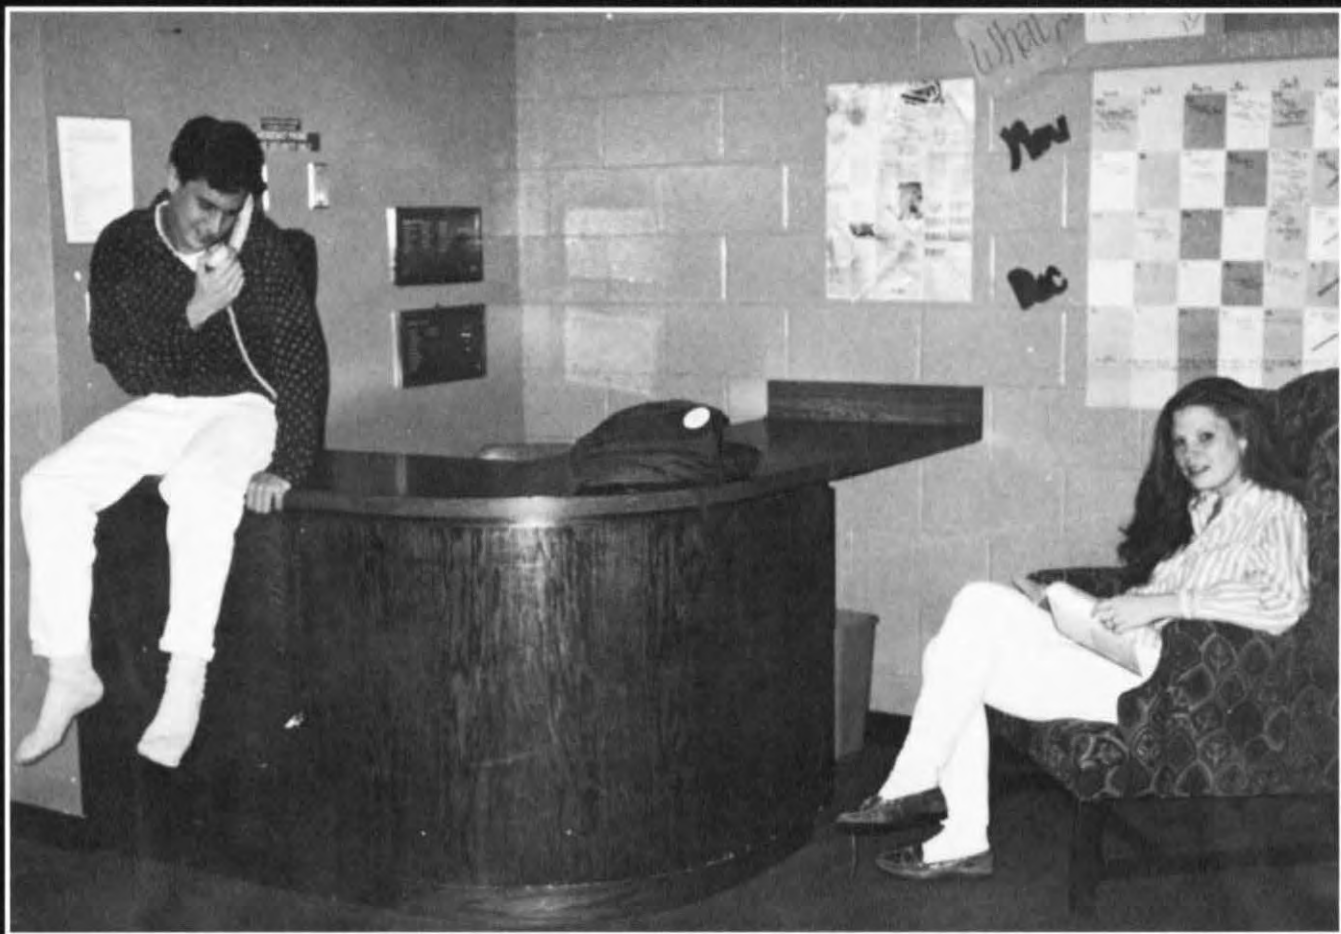

The man of many seasons. The larger-than-life Diehl guards the library.

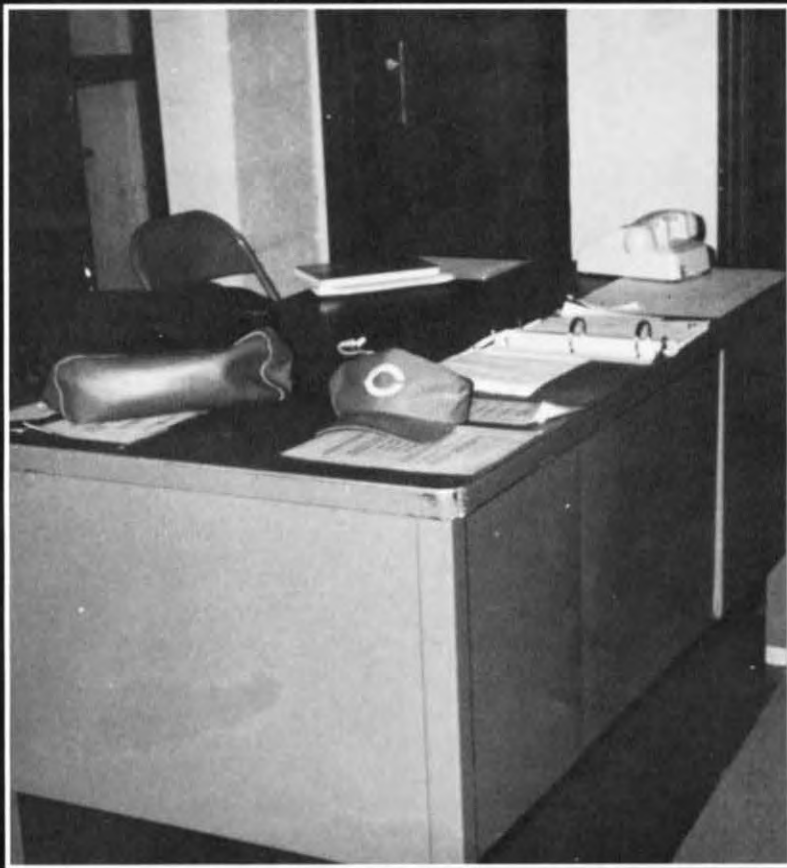

Geo dome. What a temptation! What's the fine for climbing this thing?!

L-Y-N-X. Lynx, Hell Yes!

Protecting us all. Nikki Rosenkoetter looks up from her studying to make sure that we aren't someone who shouldn't be entering the dorm. She's also monitoring Hunter West to keep him off the phone. Oops- he won!

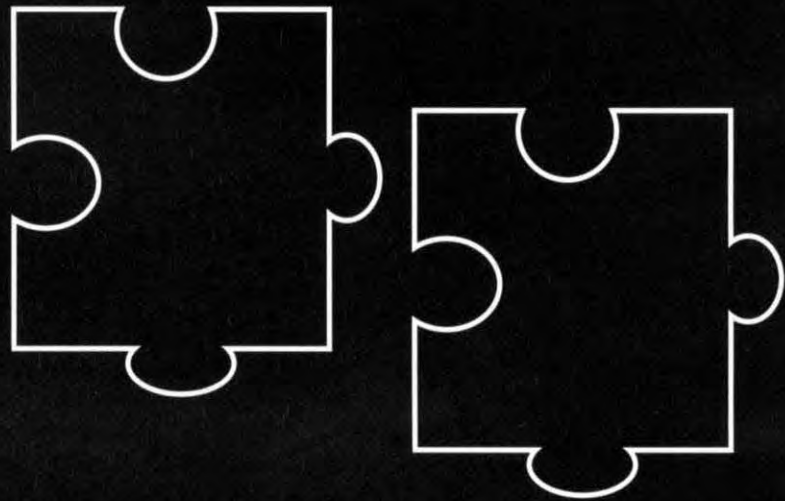

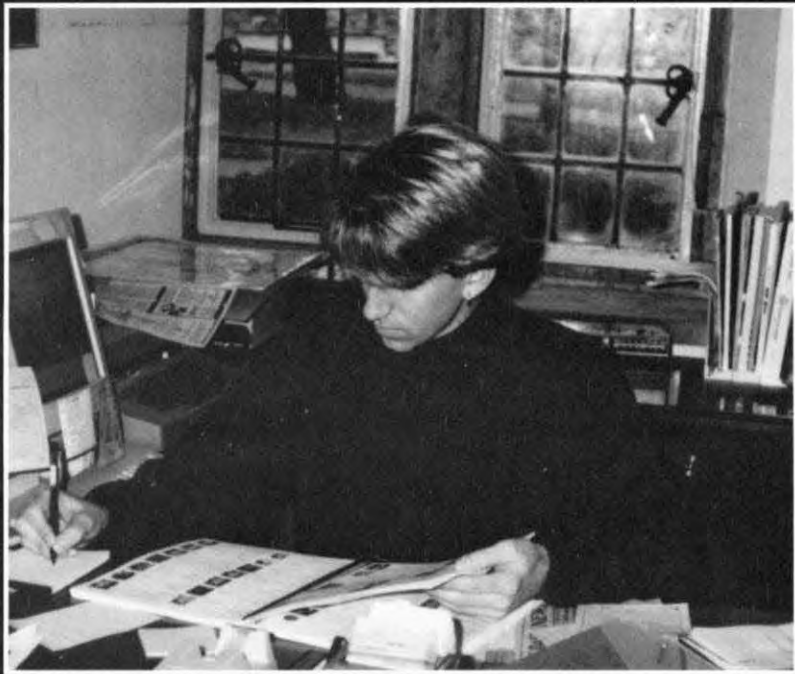

What a sight! Here stands the infamous desk in the gym. Where, you may ask is the work-study student? Running laps for being late!

How interesting. Stephen Deusner attempts to file this paper, but exactly what it is he'll never know.

WORKING HARD

Work-Study puts demand on students' time

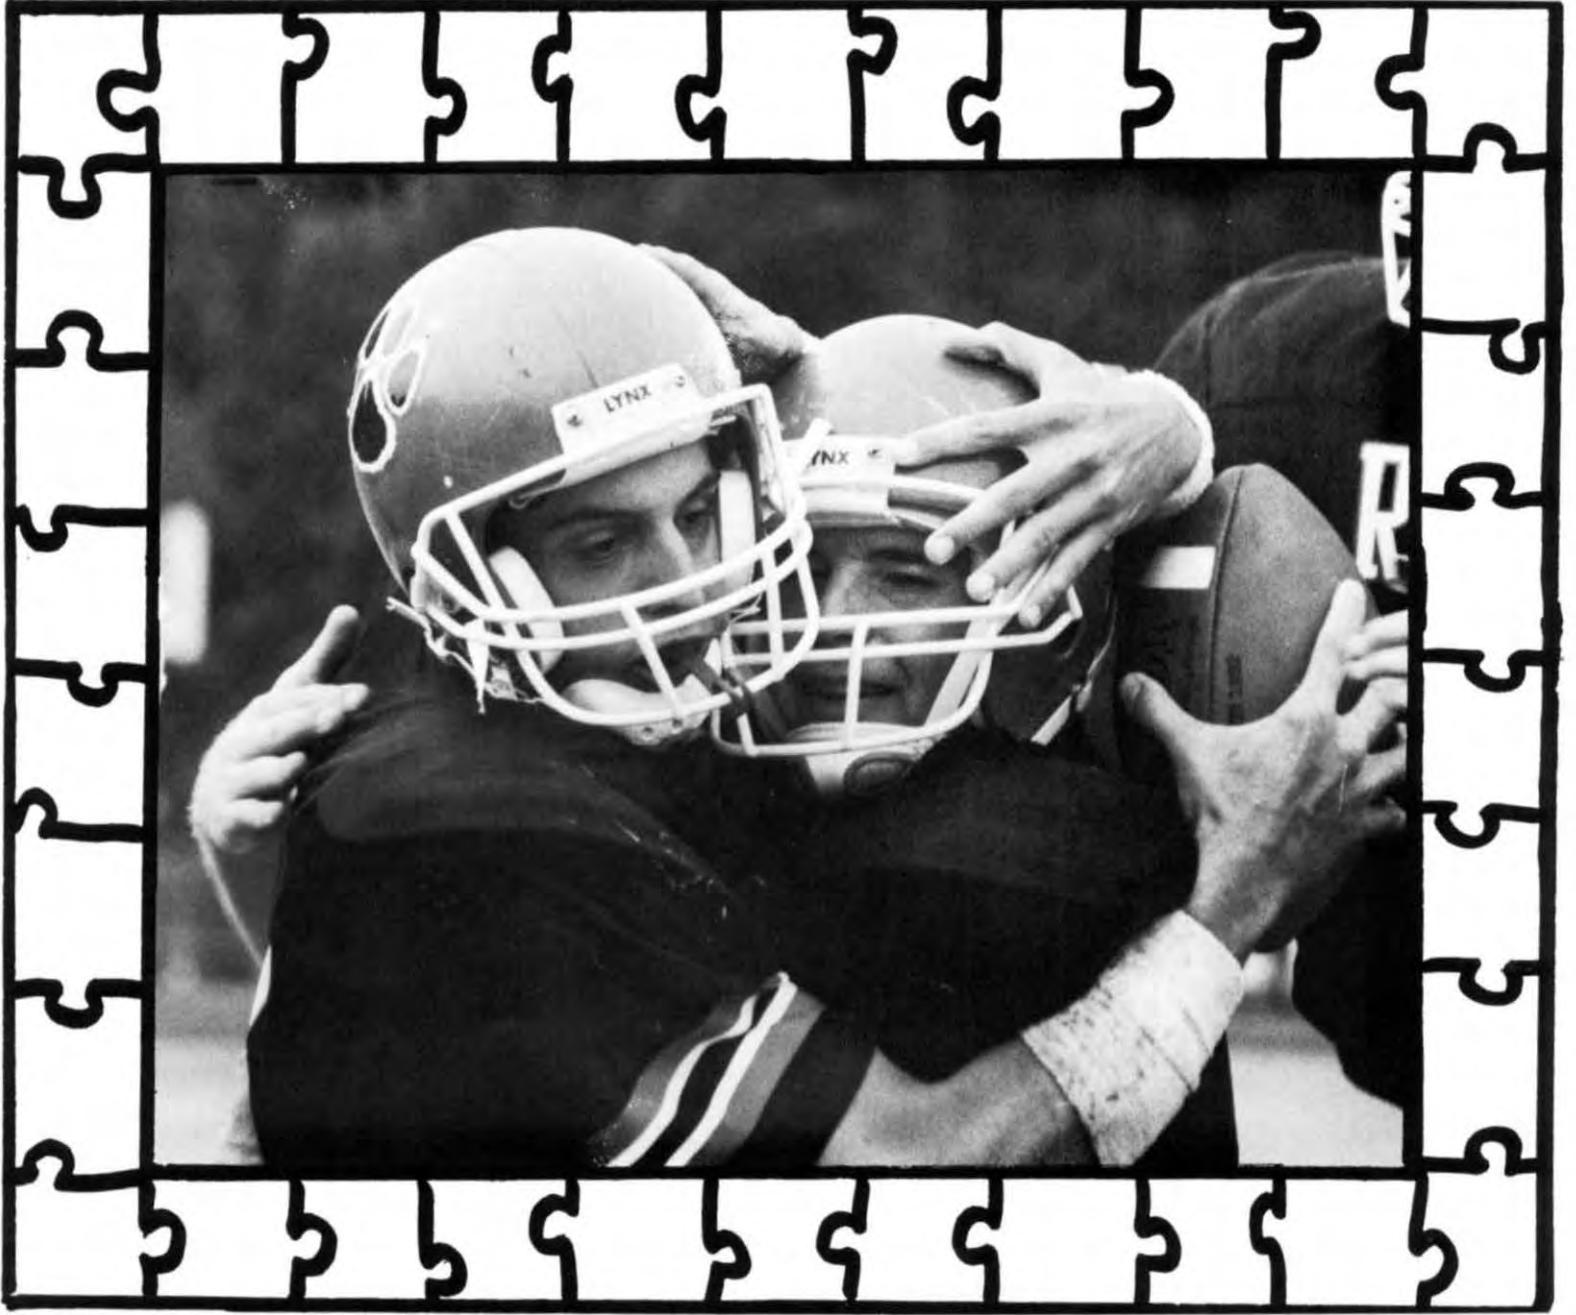

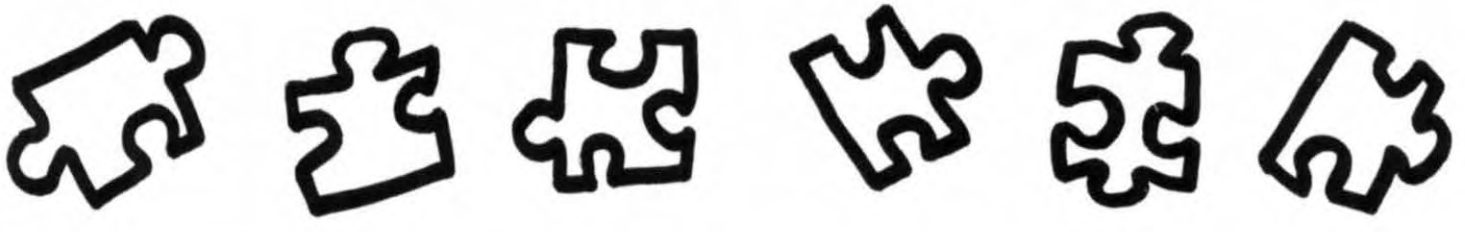

Making lists. JB Cormier is getting all the students' phone numbers that college relations needs. This is just one of the many fun jobs he ges to handle on occasion.

Package for me! Andrea Jones is one of the lucky people who get to make our day when we recieve a package. What a great job in the mailroom-bearer of good boxes.

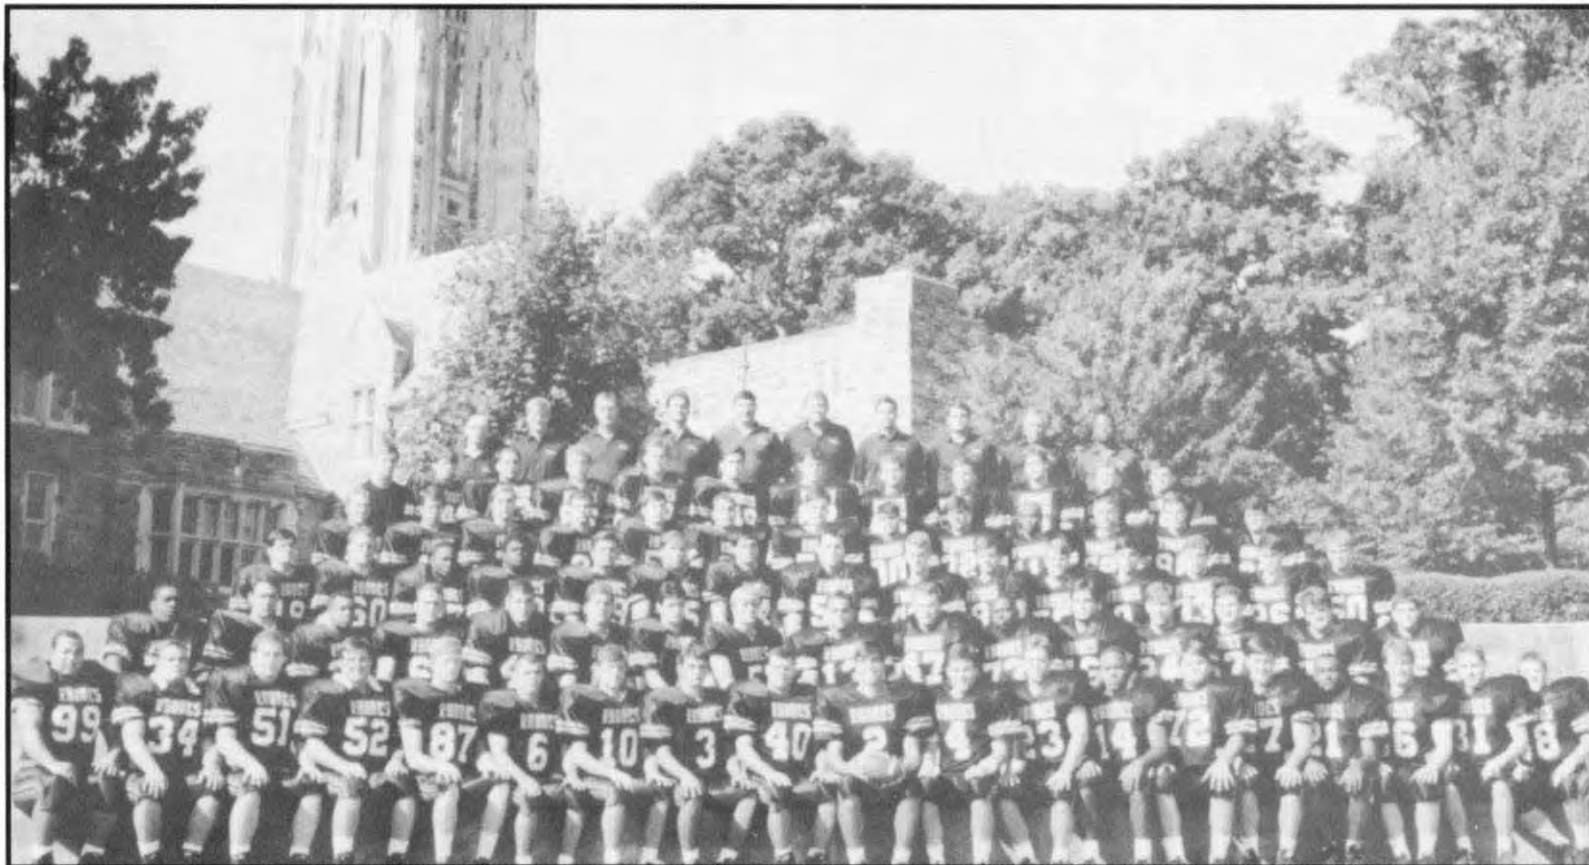

Security? Mike Rushin and Taylor Tagg try to appear strong and mighty, yet friendly. What a scary sight to see upon entering Buckman.

Rhodes' Football Tackles a Tough Season

The '92 Lynx entered their season with a tough ten-game schedule ahead of them, which included long road trips to Los Angeles, San Antonio, and Maryville, TN.

The team attacked their opponents full force. Lead by 18 seniors (of which 10 were returning starters), Rhodes once again showed their dedication to excellence on the gridiron. Season highlights included victories at Claremont, CA, at home vs. Davidson, a memorable homecoming vs. Washington University, and senior running back Greg Ritter's new school single season rushing record of 1226 yards. SCAC awards included: Drew Robinson- Offensive Player of the Year, Greg Ritter- Offensive Back, Brian Tierney- Offensive Linemen, Brian Vandegrift and Demetri Patikas- Wide Receivers, Ryan Mire- Linebacker.

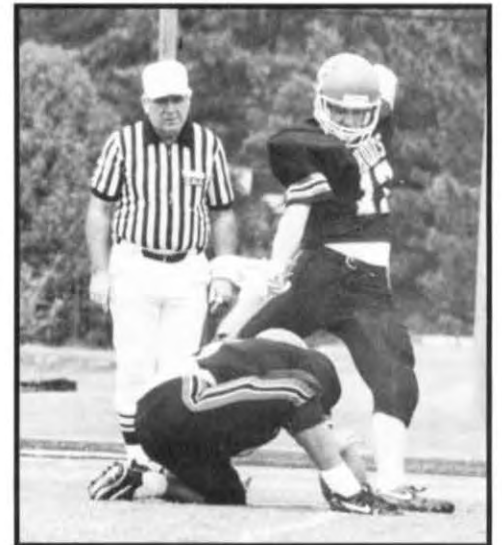

Touchdown! Jeff White celebrates with Brian Vandegrift after he scores six points for the Lynx.

Middle: A strong line holds the opponent for no gain.

Bottom: Drew Robison shouts the play to the offensive line.

Right: Lynette Breedlove and Karen Marr converge for a powerful double block.

Rhodes' Volleyball Sets Up Another Great Season

Rhodes' volleyball has become a dominating force in the conference since Julie Bowen took the head coaching job three years ago. In just three short seasons the Lady Lynx have compiled a 60-31 record and have captured three conference championships.

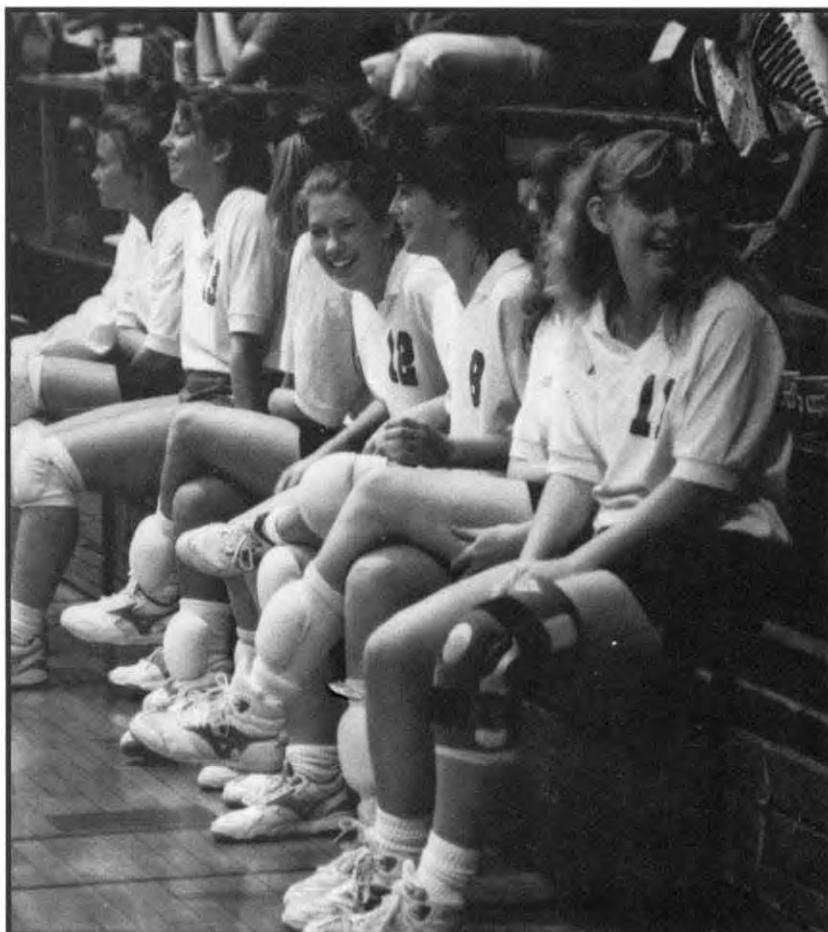

The Lynx started their season with eleven returning players against tough NAIA and Division II schools, and now the team looks forward to the next conference championship and a successful season. Among the returning players were All-Conference selections Lynette Breedlove, Katie Braden, and Tori Taugner. Other returning starters were Stephanie Prachniak and Carlyn Merz along with veteran players Tara Odle, Allison Wemmers, Jane Anne Alwood, Alicia Lartigue, Karen Marr, and Elise Eidemiller. The team was further strengthened by the dedication of the three first year players, Karla Clingan, Hillary Keller, and Jamie Roeling.

Cross Country

Drenched in rain and anxiety, the Lynx break for the first turn in the home meet in October.

Billie Ann Snodgrass outlasts her UT Martin opponent. Billie Ann, the top runner for the Lady Lynx, was named to the All SCAC team.

Felix Vazquez sighs in relief as he crosses the finish line.

This was a developmental year for the Rhodes Cross Country Team. The team was full of new faces, particularly on the women's squad. However, it didn't stop Rhodes from winning the SCAC Men's Conference Title for the third year in a row. The women improved from a last place finish last year to a good third place finish this year.

The women's team had two seniors, Elizabeth Lowe and Tracy Nelson, and very few were returning veterans. Freshman Billie Ann Snodgrass, Jennifer Farringer, Kristin Oswald, Elizabeth Irvin, and Meredith Neer all rose to the occasion to give Rhodes Cross Country some feminine running prestige. Billie Ann Snodgrass was an All-Conference runner this year. Also providing leadership were sophomores Pam Baugus, Gwen McCarroll, and Bonnie Binkley.

It is hard to imagine how much better this team is over last year's team. Rhodes was extremely competitive with the other teams in the Conference, as seen in a four-point loss to Oglethorpe and Sewanee at Regionals. However, the team came back to beat Millsaps, which had beaten them earlier in the year.

On the men's side, Freshmen Jon Michael Morgan, Felix Vasquez, and Bancroft McMurphy all provided some inspirational leadership by each leading the team at some point in the year. Vasquez and McMurphy were both All-Conference athletes, and they were joined by Sophomore Eddie Dieppa who improved much over last year to help lead the team.

Juniors Scott Haines and Edgard Cabanillas were able to guide the young team, with help from last year's All-Region runner and two-time All-Conference athlete in Cross Country, James Westphal, who graduates this year. Freshman Miles Bogner and Sophomores Tom Oberding and Ken Phelps all gave what they had to make the team successful this year.

Overall both teams are very young, but are steadily improving. The men's team dominated the Conference this year and looks to doing much better than the sixth place finish at Regionals this year.

Edgard Cabanillas grimaces as he fights for the finish line.

The determination shows as the women's team prepares for the upcoming meet.

Soccer

The men's soccer team had a very successful 1992-93 season. They had a young team, no graduating seniors, and played a lot of NAIA and Division II schools to improve their team even more. Captains Matt Westphall, Everette Herring, and Justin Klenstinski provided leadership and superb playing skills. The team beat Oglethorpe 3-2 at the conference tournament, then went on to beat Trinity 3-2 in a shootout for the conference title. By playing more Division II schools next year, they hope to be invited to the NCAA tournament at the end of the year.

Will Jackson bites his lip while trying to get the ball from the other team.

The other team thinks they are about to get the ball since we seem to be faced the wrong way.

Rhodes concentrates on the ball determined not to allow a goal.

Rhodes players can jump the highest as seen here.

Rhodes sends the ball on a journey towards the goal to score a point.

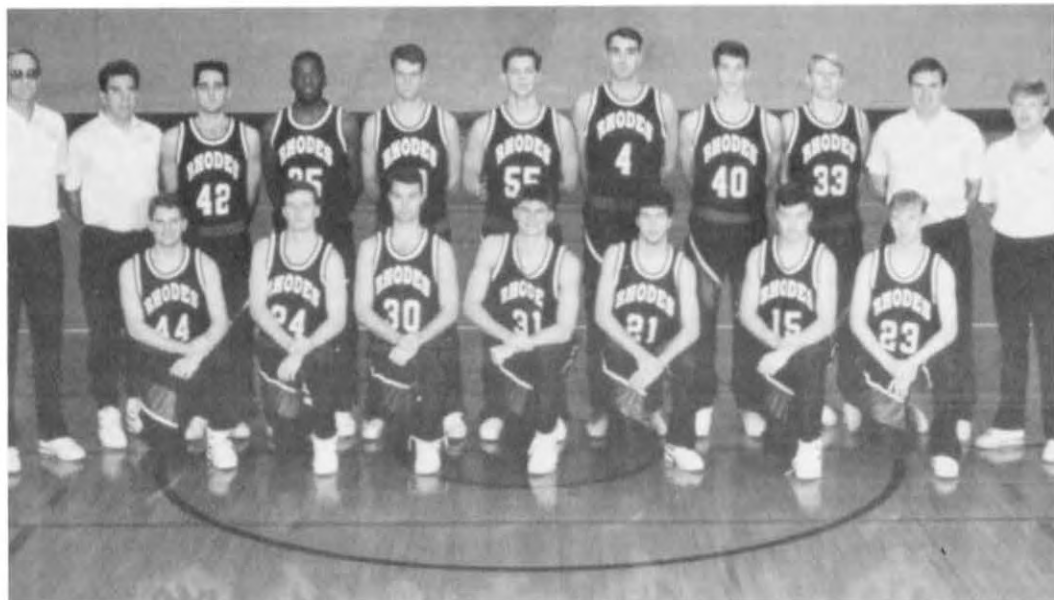

The women's soccer team had a very successful 1992 season. They spent most of their season playing difficult teams. This stiff-competition did not discourage the players, however,, for they knew it was adding to their team.

The team had only graduating two seniors and will be bringing back some of their best players, including Emily Edson, Cortney Poole, Mo Martin, Amy Cooper, Hallie, and Missy Anderson. Captains Lisa Finley and Mo Martin provided the leadership needed.

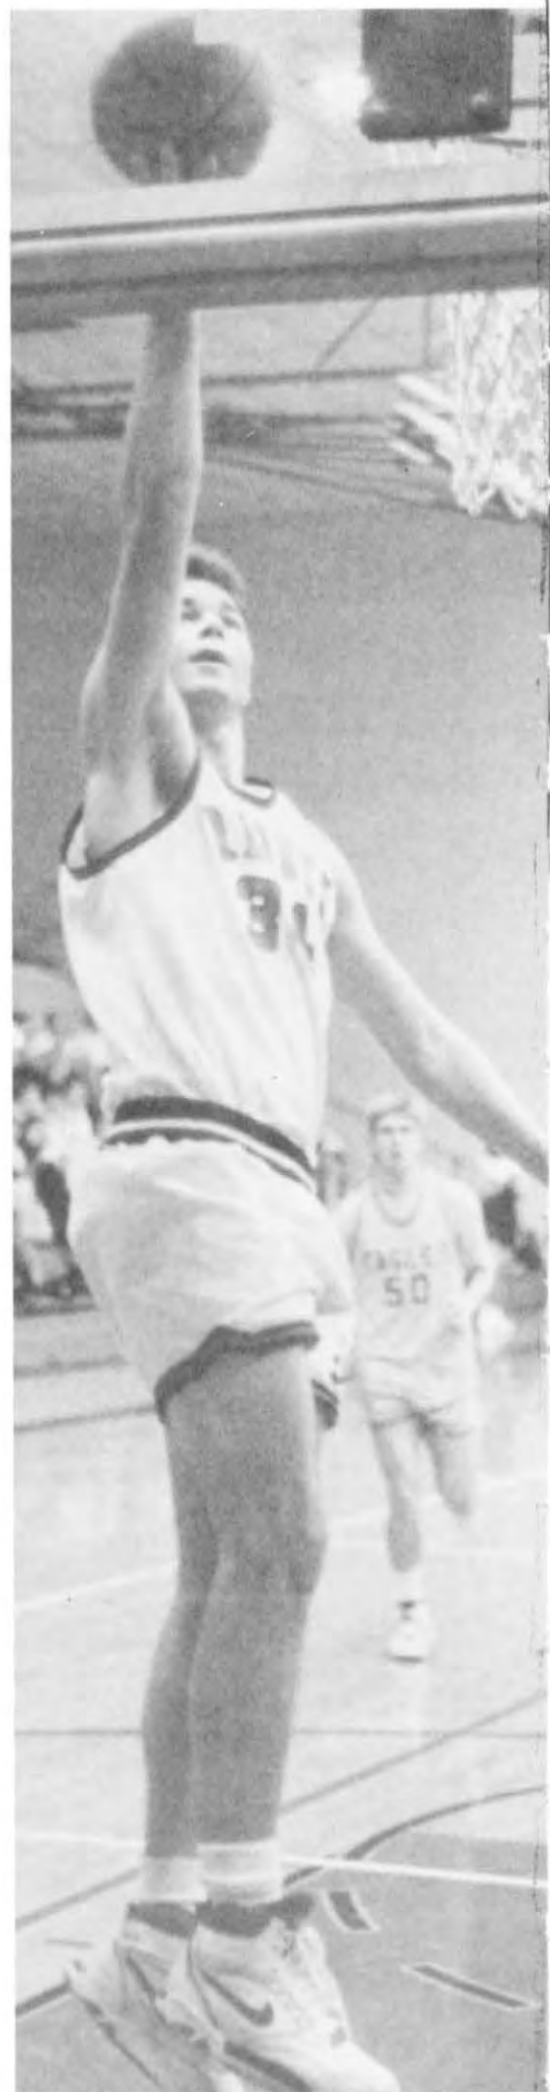

The team came in second in the conference losing only to Trinity by a score of 1-0.

Basketball

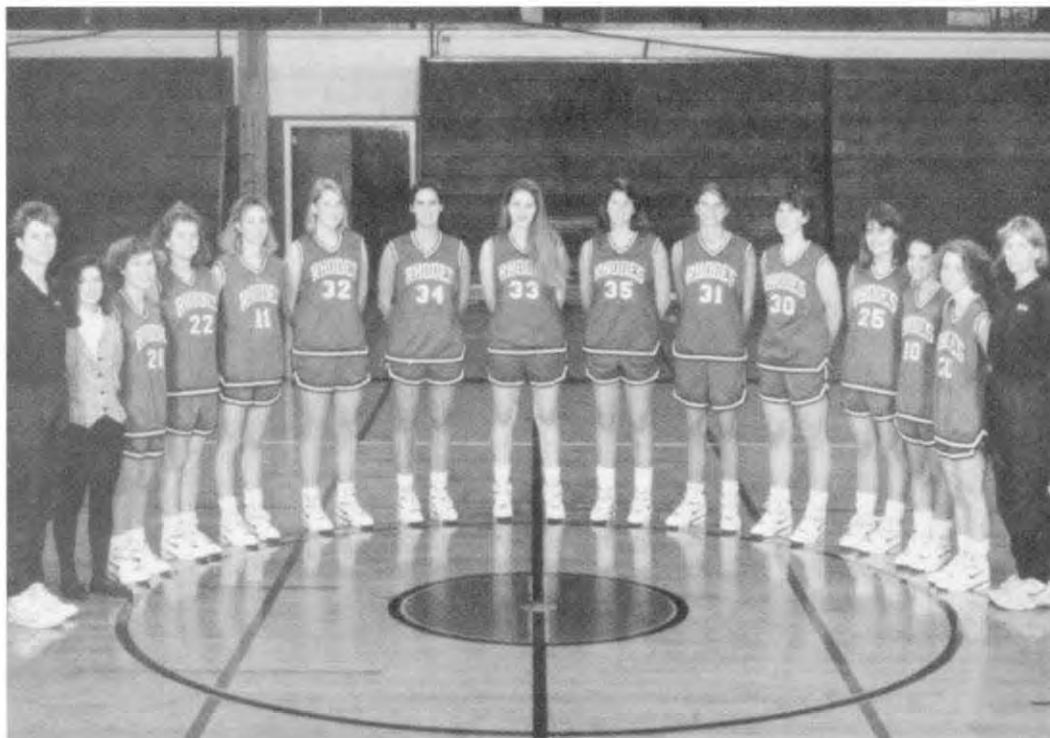

The Lynx basketball team entered the 1992-93 season with high expectations. Coach Hilgeman's squad was coming off a twenty-win season, and had added several talented newcomers. Led by tri-captains Thomas Johnson, Andy Pippenger, and Mike Gonda and defensive specialist David Rayfield, the Lynx were even highly ranked in several pre-season basketball publications. Rhodes fans would settle for nothing less than a Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference (SCAC) championship and a NCAA Division III tournament berth. And their Lynx Cats did not disappoint.

Rhodes posted an outstanding 6-2 record before Christmas, including impressive victories over Asbury and Fontbonne College. The Lynx even took home the title in the prestigious Maryville (MO) Classic, sweeping both games. In addition, the Rhodes players made basketball news of another sort when they trounced the Bees from Savannah College of Art and Design, who featured Melissa Burden, the only female playing men's college basketball at any level. After Christmas, the basketball team routed Principia College on the road in its final tune-up before its grueling conference schedule began.

For the third consecutive year, Rhodes went undefeated at home in Mallory Gymnasium in conference play. The Lynx Cats won crucial SCAC games at home against the likes of hated rivals Sewanee, Oglethorpe, and Millsaps. But, perhaps the most important Lynx conference victories occurred when they avenged their only four SCAC losses over the previous two seasons by beating both Fisk and Centre on the road in the same weekend. So, when they beat Centre again, this time at Mallory, in a thrilling come-from-behind victory, the Lynx wrapped up the SCAC conference championship and with it an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

Rhodes finished its regular season with a 20-5 overall record, including a 9-1 mark at home, and a final ranking of 4th in the extremely competitive South Region. Also, the NCAA tournament appearance was only the third in school history and the first in twelve years, and it was the first time ever that a Rhodes College basketball team hosted a NCAA tournament game on its campus. The season was also one for individual milestones as Coach Herb Hilgeman won his 250th career game at the college and juniors Thomas Johnson and Mike Gonda each joined the 1,000-point club. All in all, this year's season was one of the most successful in Rhodes basketball history!

Thomas Johnson goes for the lay up with Mike Gonda trailing to help his teammate if needed.

Baseball

Covering first base, Jason Turns and Chad Carney throw the ball home.

Baseball is a sport of hard work, self-determination, and good times. Many hours are spent on the field perfecting hitting, throwing, and catching skills. The team proved to every opponent that they were determined to win. Brad Jenkins, who graduated, and junior Scott Franklin were named All Conference.

The 1993 Rhodes baseball team is led by the new Head Coach, James Elgin. The returning starters were senior Troy Roddy, juniors Scott Franklin and Brian Vandergrift, and sophomores Jason Rauls and Jason Watkins. Charles Hooker, a first year student held a starting position.

Get Fired Up

Cheerleaders: Lots of Sparkle

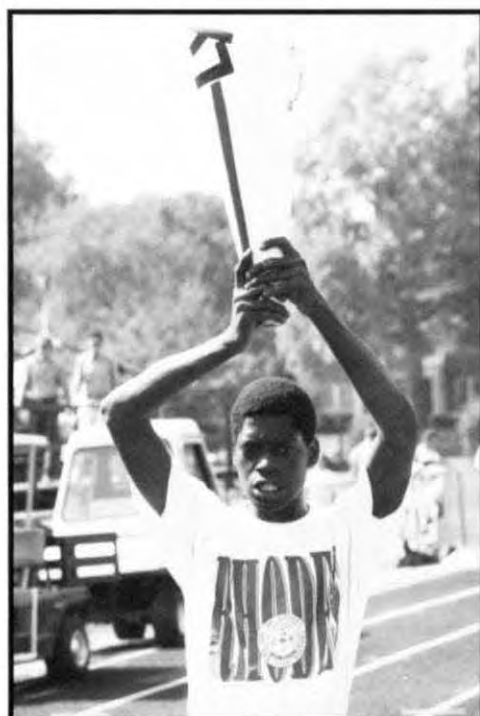

The cheerleaders spent another great year spreading cheers and school spirit. They participated in football and men's and women's basketball games, and even followed the football team to San Antonio, Texas.

Their year started a week before classes with cheerleading camp and after that they kept busy making signs, designing door decs for all sports, hosting pep rallies, and cheering with the mascot, R.C. Thanks again, cheerleaders, for supporting athletics at Rhodes. Sparkles!!!

Self Defense Class

The idea behind this course is to teach basic defense moves in order to protect oneself. Emphasis is put on how to get out of a potentially dangerous confrontation without harm, instead of further attack. While the students learn how to block various moves by the assailant, they also learn a few tips on how to avoid being a potential target for attack.

Nell Paxton does some weightlifting before hopping over to the self defense class to learn how to protect herself.

Coming Together Again

Ahhh! Mile-long bookstore lines, freshmen looking lost, ampitheatre parties, alcohol (when you get finished reading this look over to the left). Looks like the beginning of another year at the village of Rhodes.

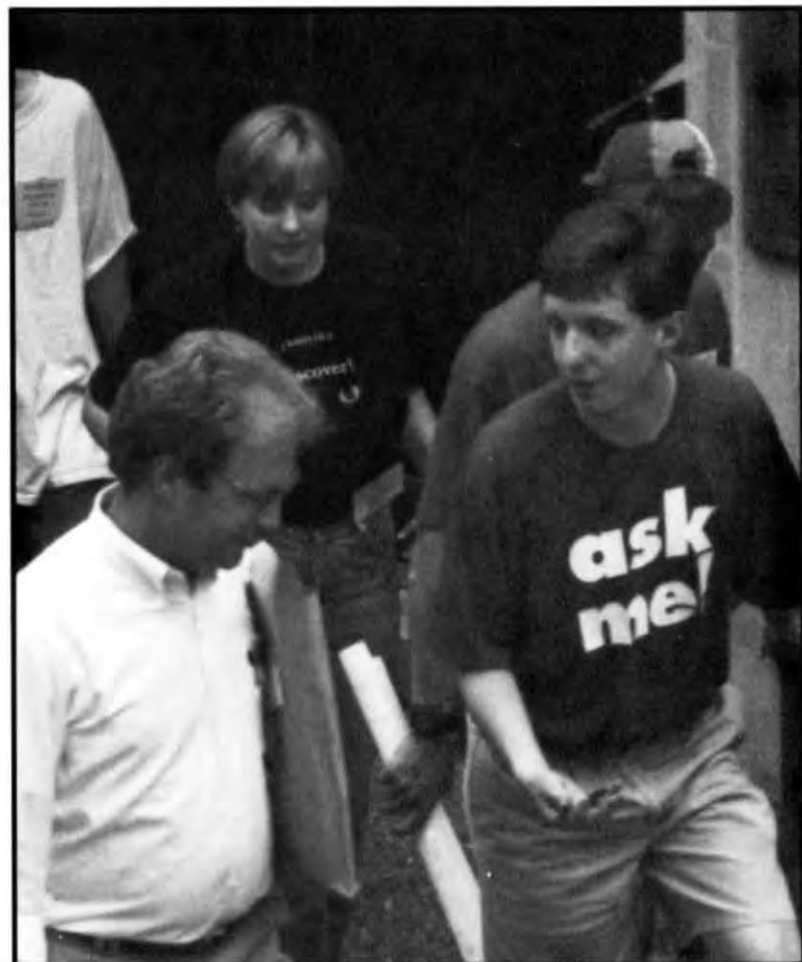

You know it's the start of the semester when you find yourself in the depths of the Student Center buying 93 novels for your English class. The problem is, though, that the rest of the student body is down there, too. So, all you can do is just stand there and catch up on all of the summer events with your friends. After that, you browse through the $50 sweatshirts that you will never be able to afford, especially after buying $300 worth of books. Hey, but at least you caught up on all of the gossip.

The start of the year also means moving back into the dorms and the return of Rat meals, and as a result, the return of Taco Bell, McDonald's, Subway, Burger King, Pizza Hut, etc., etc. You quickly realize how much you miss your room back home and the luxury of having a stocked kitchen. But, lucky you, now you get to stay up all night studying for Econ tests and working on Bio labs.

Sure, having to start back to classes is not a pleasing idea to most everybody, but there are several great things about the onset of the new school year. First, of course, you get to see all of your friends. And then, there's the back-to-school ampitheatre party, and, thanks to the social commission, several other parties.

Most of all you have your freedom from your parents. You can stay out as late as you want or (if you get in at 7:00 the next morning) as early as you want. You can drink alcohol... um... soda pop if you can dodge the Policy.

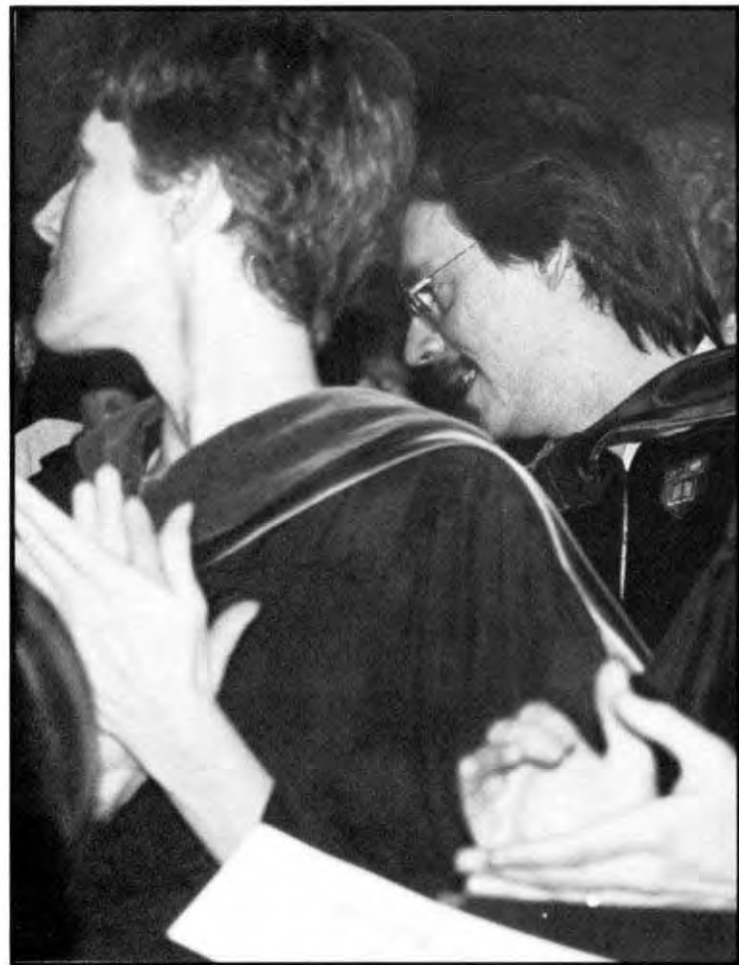

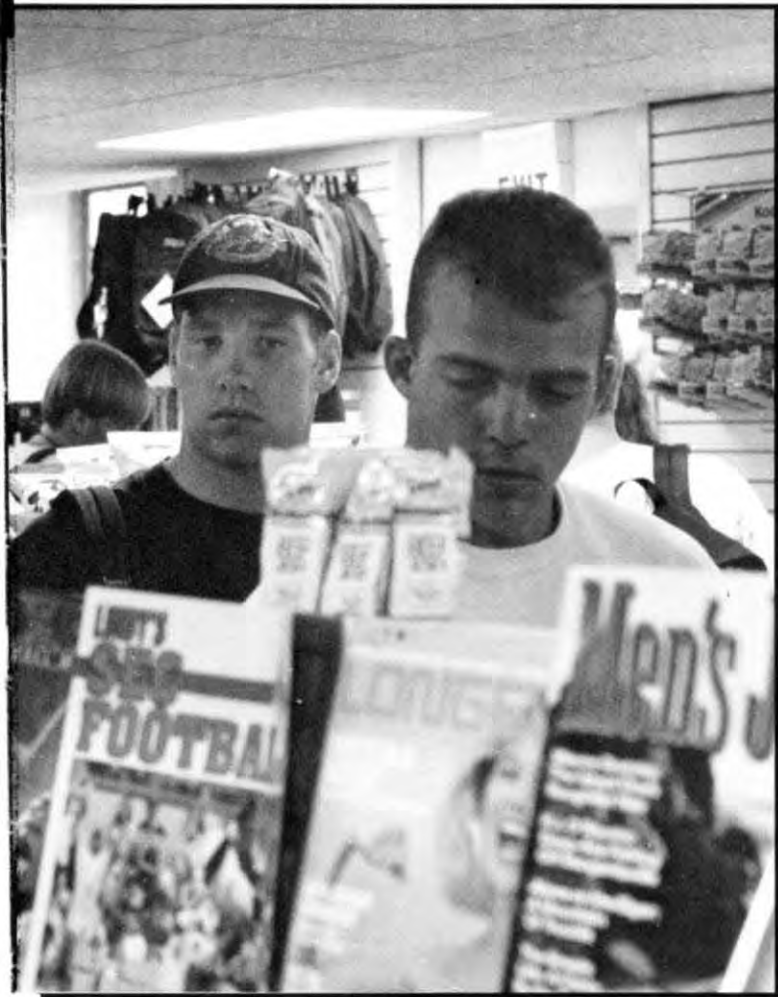

All in all, getting back to classes is not too bad. Well, a few people think it isn't.

...the activities fair signals the beginning of the year for organizations...

Little Bo Peeps. Dr. Bryant and Rob Jarrett lead their flock of freshmen off to brief them on their upcoming year.

Sheer boredom. Students wait and wait and wait and wait to get their books at the beginning of the semester.

The pursuit of excellence. Founder's Day Convocation officially rings in the new academic year.

NEW! ALCOHOL POLICY--AGAIN

It's 1992 and Rhodes has a new alcohol policy... AGAIN. In the past 3 years, 3 alcohol policies have come and gone, and the campus now tries to live under a fourth.

In 1989, Rhodes was a swamp (as far as wet campuses go). The only alcohol policy enforced was "No Policy", and the alcohol flowed freely.

But before the year was over, the kind government in Washington mandated - Dry campus or no federal funds. Rhodes, forced to comply, developed a new policy of "No Alcohol".

Then, we loosened the "No Alcohol" to alcohol only if you were 21, in your own room with the door closed, and in the company of 21 year olds. No public drinking was allowed and alcohol couldn't be served unless everyone in the room was 21.

This too did pass. Our new alcohol policy centers around the new piece of red, high fashion jewelry so graciously provided at no cost to us by Student Affairs (unless, of course, you lose it... there's a replacement cost each time). If you're 21, wearing your numbered bracelet, drinking in Trezvant or Stewart quads between 5 pm and midnight, not publically intoxicated, and drinking out of your own bottle, you're safe. Alcohol consumption is also allowed in fraternity houses or a registered parties.

How this policy will work remains to be seen. Perhaps it could be a lasting policy - NOT!

Firm grip. If there is going to be a beer can in your hand, you better have a bracelet around your wrist.

commUNITY

Community and unity were the buzz words for the 1992-3 school year. Everybody worked together to bring life, something missing for two years, back to the Rhodes campus.

Several organizations took leadership roles in strengthening the atmosphere on campus. Nancy Turner rejuvenated LINK, bringing numerous organization presidents and leaders together in order to improve lines of communication. One of their projects was a calendar of meetings and events sponsored by organizations.

Student Assembly also continued as one of the main forces in promotion of awareness for community spirit. It sponsored various programs to get students more involved in Rhodesian life.

College Republicans and College Democrats pulled the politically divided together with group viewings of the Presidential debates televised in the ultra-modern sophisticated state-of-the-art Blount Auditorium.

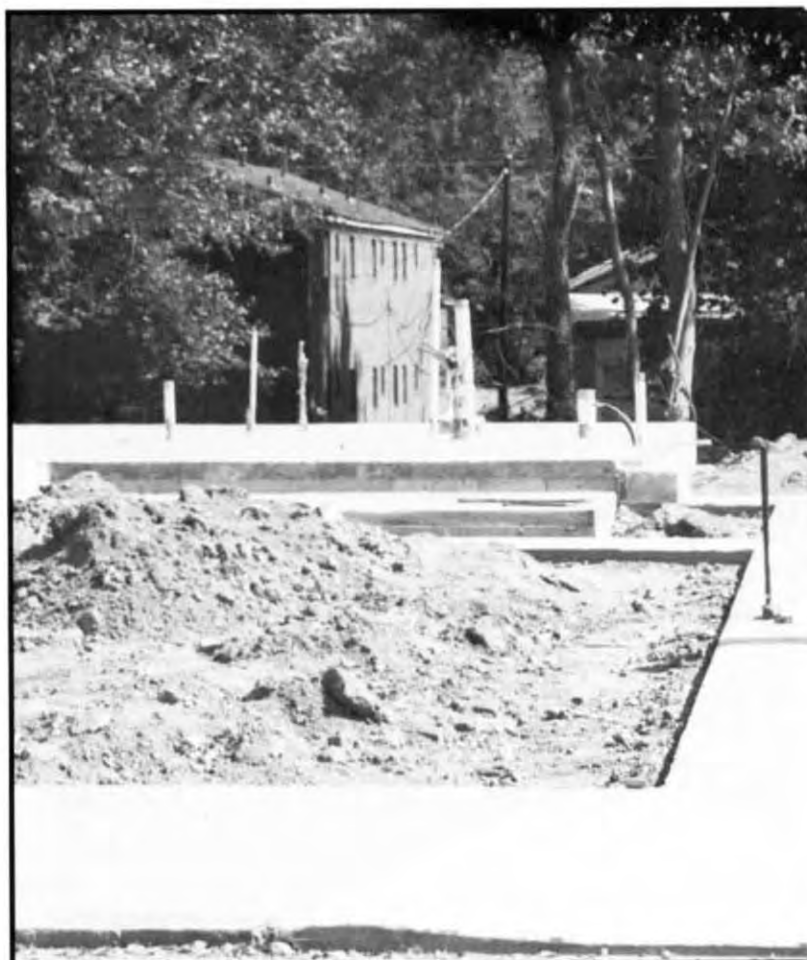

Campus Green got everybody to think more about the environment with their recycling bins and reusable plastic baskets in the Pub.

More groups were having parties and social functions on campus than in the past. The amphitheatre was no longer just a hole in the ground. On weekends it was being transformed into a festive, happy place.

After a long drought of inactivity on campus, things began looking up this year, and students started embrace and join together as one big joyous family.

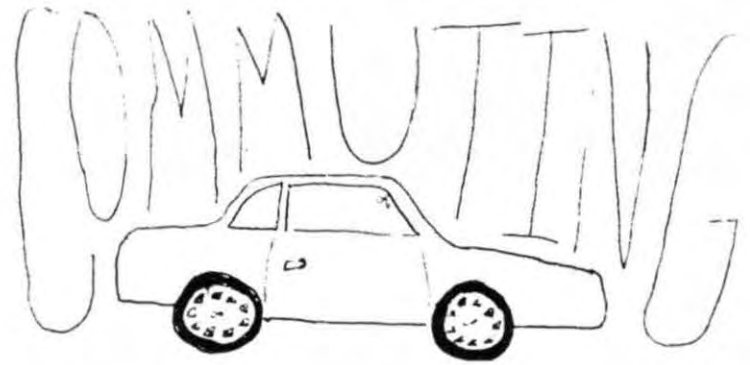

Bid day bonding. New Pike pledges rush out of F-J to meet and celebrate with their new brothers.

...bid day is a day of unity for the men's fraternities...

Ruling the campus. Drew Henry, Thomas Gieselmann, and Jim Turner listen to a presentation on student responsibility at a Student Assembly meeting.

Oh, the joys of being a commuter. You have an apartment (or house) that, unlike a dorm room, you can actually move around and walk in. There's a kitchen always at your disposal. You don't have to wait in line behind 20 other people to use the shower. And, there is relatively more silence than in the dorms.

Sure, the lifestyle of the commuter seems quite glamorous, but there are several drawbacks. BILLS! Light, gas, water, telephone—always happy to see you each month in your mailbox. Then there's grocery shopping and cooking. Well, it has to appear somehow, and there is not a little food fairy to ease the process.

Another disadvantage is the cleaning. Dishes, carpet, sink, tub, toilet. The good ol' days of having Rhodes housekeeping are over. Time to break out the rubber gloves and Comet.

Parking is another obstacle faced by the commuter. True, he does have a commuter lot parking tag, but so does everybody else. As a result, he has to park at the end of the airstrip and walk and walk and walk to class, thus earning the title of "Double Commuter."

Commuting does have its advantages (edible food, normal-sized rooms) but along with these amenities come the responsibility of living in the real world.

"Runway all clear". The airstrip greets commuters each day with its enormous amount of parking, enabling those who drive to campus to get in their daily exercise.

Helping hands. Habitat for Humanity provides an outlet for students to join together and help out the community.

1. Da BRAVES. The faculty is considering making it a requirement for all students to have completed 500 hours of watching the Atlanta Braves on TV in order to graduate.

2. The new mailroom scheme. You're over 6 feet tall, you're a freshman, and your mailbox is two feet off of the ground, and best of all, you get to keep that same mailbox until you graduate.

3. Ratniks. And as a kid you thought you could never eat enough hamburgers and hotdogs to satisfy yourself. Aren't you glad that you now have that chance?

4. Alcohol policy bracelets. It's just what all drunk people need—a small piece of metal that has sharp edges and always keeps falling off.

5. Entering/exiting buildings through the left-side doors. Everybody who's normal uses the right-hand doors, but not you. That may be why when you open the door you usually hit somebody who is trying to enter (on the correct side).

6. David Hester. More commonly known as the "New Laura Miller". As the Director of Student Activities, he has been an integral part in bringing the campus back to Rhodes.

7. The rice bar. White rice, brown rice, rice with stuff in it, rice with salt, rice with pepper, rice with salt and pepper—yum yum.

8. Leaf blowers and lawn mowers. No need to buy an alarm clock. Many people think it is a strategy that professors use to get students to come to their 8:00 a.m. classes.

9. Taco Bell. Could there be any food that is so perfect?

10. Graduation on Saturday morning. The administration is determined to make every student on campus get up before noon on Saturday at least once during their college career.

11. Voting. "Rocking the vote" is in vogue.

12. Complaining. A skill that every student develops and becomes quite proficient in during his years at Rhodes.

13. Being politically correct. If you are being PC in order not to hurt or discriminate against certain groups, aren't you actually discriminating against those who don't want to be PC?

14. Fried cheese in the Pub. Could there be any food that is so perfect?

15. J. Crew. You just got a really cool looking plaid flannel shirt in the mail today, but the rest of the student body did, too.

16. Memphis drivers. Obviously, they don't teach driver's education in high school here.

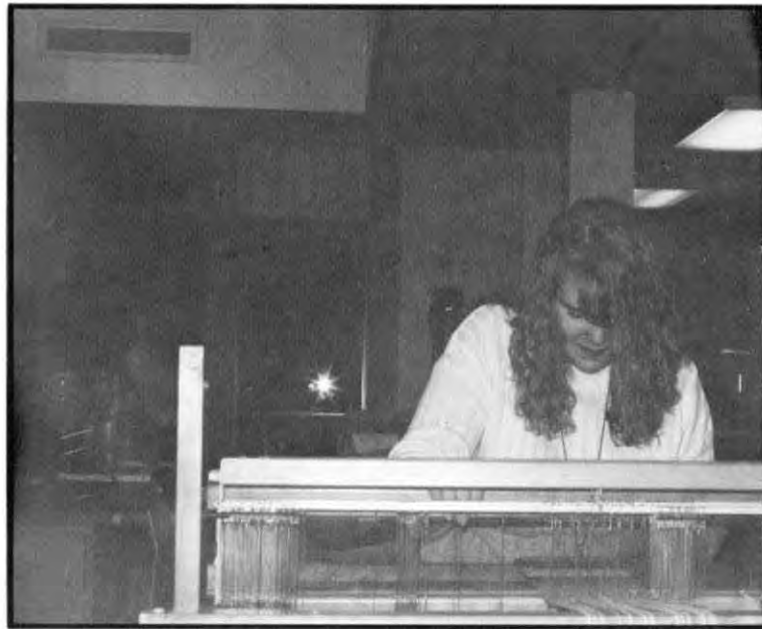

17. Plastic baskets in the Pub. Say no to plain, white, non-biodegradable styrofoam. Instead, eat your French fries out of a colorful, fun, reusable plastic basket.

18. NOT! A word that is never, never overused . . . NOT!

19. The Maclab. A place of rejoicing, frustration, and ignorance.

20. The Firm and Tom Cruise. In Memphis!! It's like a big tub of butter.

Dream weaver. Stephanie Rogers works late into the night trying to get in her extra hours for her Fiber Arts class.

Late Nite at Rhodes

It's migration season. This year more and more people were staying on campus to party, etc., than in the past couple of years. This is due in part to a more flexible alcohol policy; however, a large reason for the flow of the masses back to campus is the fact that students are enjoying and realizing the importance of the campus community.

Social Commission sponsored a variety of functions on campus. They introduced the new Fall Over Fest (a miniature Rites of Spring without the fence) in October with bands such as The Grapes and Nuclear Cafe. This weekend helped students unwind after all of those midterms that they failed.

Late nights at Rhodes are not always as pleasurable. Most of the time, they are filled with studying and homework. Students in studio art classes put in extra required hours on their projects. Bio students do lab work, and throngs of others write papers in the Maclab.

The night is also crammed with other activities. Instead of studying, some go on what they call "study breaks"--an excuse to go get something to eat, usually implying that studying supposedly was going on. The favorite stops include Taco Bell, Krystal, and the Pub (for those who don't feel like journeying off campus and losing their prime parking spots).

Nighttime also means laundry. It's you against the rest of the campus. Quarters, detergent, whites, colors, more quarters, fabric softener. . . It requires you to armed at all times.

Finally, late night also means sleep (for some, that is).

Protecting the campus. As part of her dorm attending job, Julie Henderson checks all doors in her dorm to be sure that all are locked.

Doin' duds. Bophany Huot finally finds an empty dryer for her clothes around midnight.

...late night is a time for drinking and Pictionary...

Helping Hands

At Rhodes, most people have at least heard of the Kinney Program and several participate each year. For those of you who do not know what Kinney is, it is basically a volunteer program that links students to many agencies in Memphis.

The nature of Rhodes' volunteer program is so individualized, however, that although students are enthusiastically participating at their own agencies, each volunteer may not be aware of the efforts of the group as a whole. Here's a few stats: approximately 20-30% of the campus participates in the program; 74% of seniors volunteer during their time at Rhodes; there are about 40 agencies which students volunteer for.

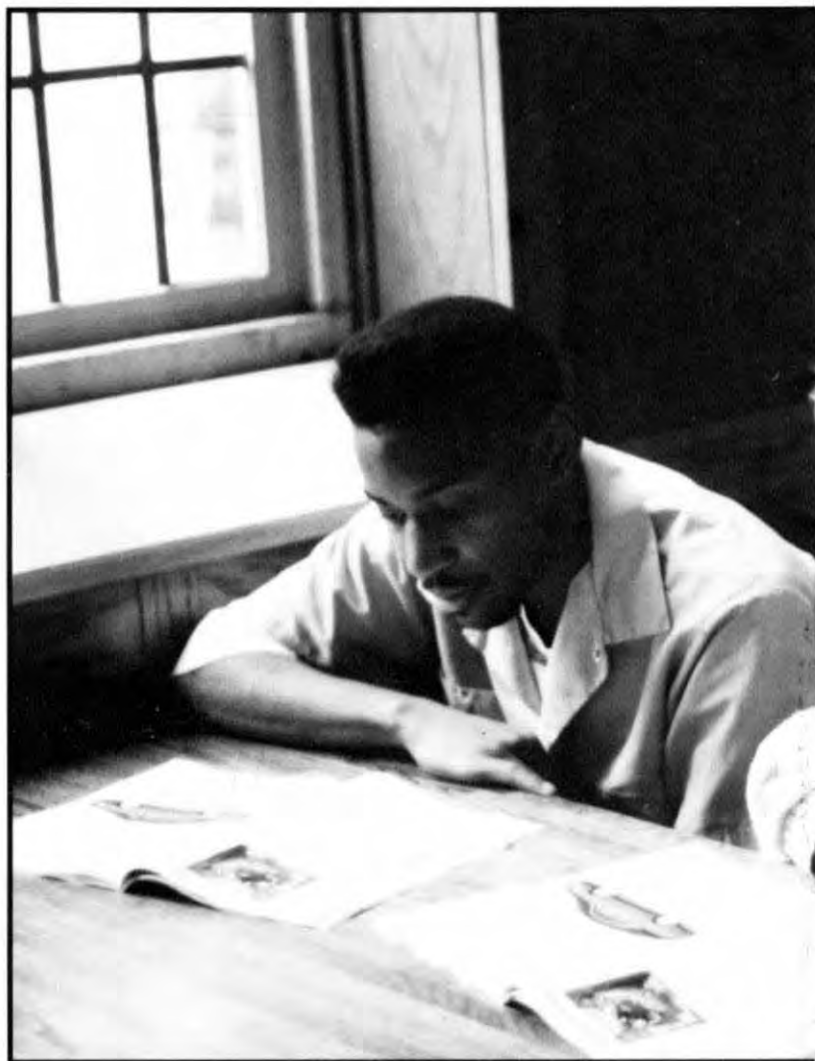

Kinney agencies are roughly divided into six separate areas and each area has a specific student coordinator. First, is the literacy and tutoring area headed by Gayla Bassham. It covers programs such as the Time to Read literacy program and Evergreen Afterschool Tutors.

The Hunger and Homelessness coordinator is Trent Taylor. Calvary Street Ministry and Soup Kitchen fall into this area. Susan Fondren leads the Counseling, Crisis/Health, and Human Services division which includes Special Olympics and Crisis Center Hot Line.

Another group of agencies is the Children/Youth/Recreational Services run by Beth Webster. Some of the agencies in this category are Big Brothers/Big Sisters and Kinney Clowns. Jennie Beth Harris directs the Peace, Justice, Environment, and International area with examples such as the Memphis Humane Society and the Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence. The sixth group is the Adopt-a-School program headed by Laura Porter. Services include the Snowden Homework Center and The Science Project.

For no matter what interest, a volunteer opportunity can be found at an agency where Kinney volunteers already participate, or by introducing new agencies to the program.

Meeooow!! A whole passle of cats await the eager volunteers who go to the Memphis Humane Society.

Getting involved. Students can sign up to volunteer for various organizations at the Kinney Fair held each fall.

Tickling the ivories. In the Voorhies Social Room, Jill Schnek teaches piano lessons in the Kinney Music for Kids program.

Coming to AMERICA

"The people were friendly. I thought it was really neat." -Shezy Hameed, Pakistan

"There were so many people who were interested in getting to know me." -Liana Leonardau, Romania

"I got in at night and everything looked very big and confusing. The campus was so pretty, but the buildings all looked alike."
-Irmtraud Bertsch, Germany

Going to college is a frightening and confusing process for most American teenagers. But imagine what it's like to not only go away to a college, but to go away to a new nation.

This year was the first time in the history of Rhodes that a special one day pre-orientation was held for all new foreign students. International House, Student Affairs, and Multicultural Affairs worked together last Spring to put together the "Friendship" Pre-orientation Program, which paired the incoming students with current-student "Buddies." These Buddies met the new students at the airport and helped them get settled into life at Rhodes.

"I'm 10,000 miles away from my home in India. It would break my mother's heart to see the not very Indian food... I'm inclined to believe the US Postal Service has a vendetta against me - surely it's not my friends and family that forget to write?" -Dipak Ghosh, India (before he came to Rhodes as a transfer from Salem-Teikyo)-Now: "Rhodes is great!"

International education. Dipak Ghosh, from India, enjoys a discussion about the Presidential race after viewing one of the debates on TV.

Rhodes Offers Creature Comforts to Unlikely Resident

Rhodes' most unusual transfer this year was a 2,700 pound, 22-foot-long pentaceratops which joined the campus after a six-month stint at the Memphis Zoo.

The dinosaur was part of the "Dinosaurs Live!" exhibit, a large assemblage of life-sized, computer-animated models that attracted more than 283,000 people. The pentaceratops was originally slated for return to the owner that leased it to the zoo: Dinamation International Corp. of Irvine, CA. But when a computer malfunction silenced and paralyzed the prehistoric beast early during its stay in Memphis, the company decided to give the model to the zoo which in turn donated it to Rhodes.

The dinosaur--which can stand up to 10 feet tall with its head raised--now resides in the lobby of Frazier Jelke Science Center, just a few feet from the real-life remains of a mastodon which once frolicked in the same spot. Two mastodon leg bones were unearthed at Rhodes in 1966 when workers were excavating for the science center. The bones have remained in cases in the lobby since the building opened.

The biology department faculty believe that dinosaur ownership will be a mark of distinction for the collegiate Gothic campus.

Angel Tree Encourages the "Gift of Giving"

Many children in Memphis experienced the excitement of Christmas giving with the help of members of the Rhodes community who participated in the campus' third annual Angel Tree program.

Sponsored in the local community by the Salvation Army with the on campus assistance of Omicron Delta Kappa, the Angel Tree program allowed students, faculty, and staff to enjoy the gift of giving" by purchasing toys and clothing for children whose families were unable to afford the added expense of Christmas.

The names of one hundred children were placed on the Angel Tree (which was located in the Student Center lobby). Each tag also had a list of things the child wanted for Christmas.

Campus organizations and groups (for example, residence halls, faculty departments, and fraternities) also got involved by pooling their resources to purchase large gifts such as bicycles, jam boxes, bean bag chairs, and basketball backboards.

"People seem to be so happy buying the toys, games, and clothes for these kids," said program coordinator Don Price. "They have a good time and feel good doing it."

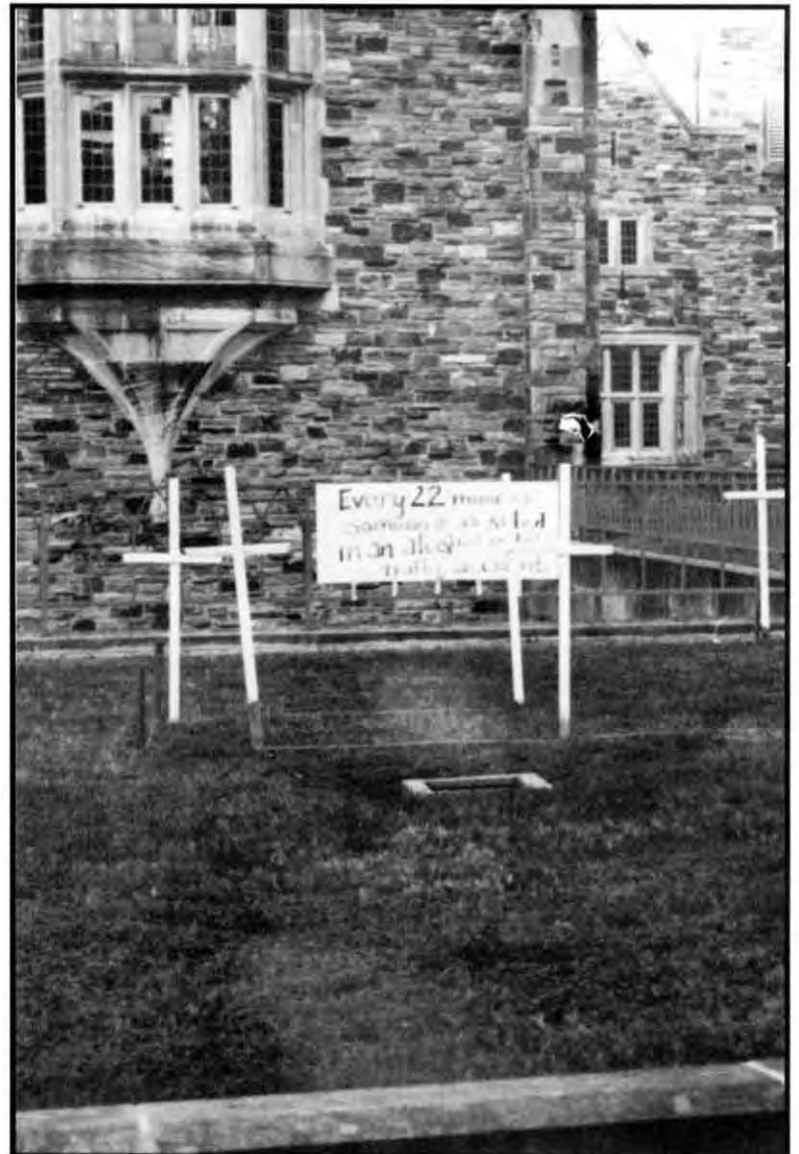

Dead Silence Speaks Loudly on Alcohol Deaths

A group of students was dead serious about exposing the dangers of drinking and driving. On Tuesday, November 17, with the help of the Counseling Center's Lynn Dunavant, twenty-eight students took part in "Dead Day," dramatizing the nation tragedy and frequency of alcohol-related fatalities.

Every twenty-two minutes in this country, someone dies in an alcohol-related traffic accident. To symbolize that sad fact, a sudden on campus figuratively "died" every twenty-two minutes by tying a black arm band around his or her arm. At the same time the participant put on a sign, explaining the participation in "Dead Day" and refused to speak (except during class) until 6:00 p.m. that evening. Simultaneously, a wooden cross was erected every twenty-two minutes on the lawn to the east of Kennedy Hall.

"This is a nation problem," said Dunavant. The Tuesday initiative was one way to remind and educate students to the perils of drinking and driving. "We're trying to teach students a different pattern of behavior."

"Dead Day" was sponsored by Student Assembly as well as the Counseling Center.

Asbestos-Coated Pipe Closes First Floor Halliburton

The Admissions Desk and Reception Area on the first floor of Halliburton Tower were temporarily closed in September due to asbestos which was found on a leaking pipe above the ceiling.

During the day, the area was surrounded with huge poastic sheets. Signs on the sheets warned, "asbestos area, keep out." At night, a special company came in to remove the asbestos and to clear the air of free floating asbestos particles.

Students expressed little or no concern about the asbestos. "Oh, it really was asbestos," said one student, "I saw the signs one day, but when I went by the next day, they were gone. I figured that some prankster put them up as a joke." Many were unaware of the problem. "I never to over there," one said, "so I didn't even know about it."

Those that did express concern worried about the remaining pockets of asbestos on campus. "Most of these buildings were built before 1970," observed one student, "and I wonder how many still have pipes and things with asbestos coatings."

"The thing to keep in mind," remarked one student, "is that we are still seeing the effects of asbestos use. If anything, it should teach us to be more careful in the future."

Look, I can fly! Bill Clinton's campaign really took off after his visit to Memphis.

In case you didn't notice, there was a Presidential election this year. It was quite an emotional election, with the supporters of Bill Clinton, George Bush, and Ross Perot always at each other's throats. Also, since this was the first Presidential election in which most Rhodes students could vote, excitement flurried around campus.

The College Republicans worked hard to keep the incumbent in office. In addition to regular meetings, they put up signs, had Rush Limbaugh parties, and attended Bush rallies in Memphis and St. Louis.

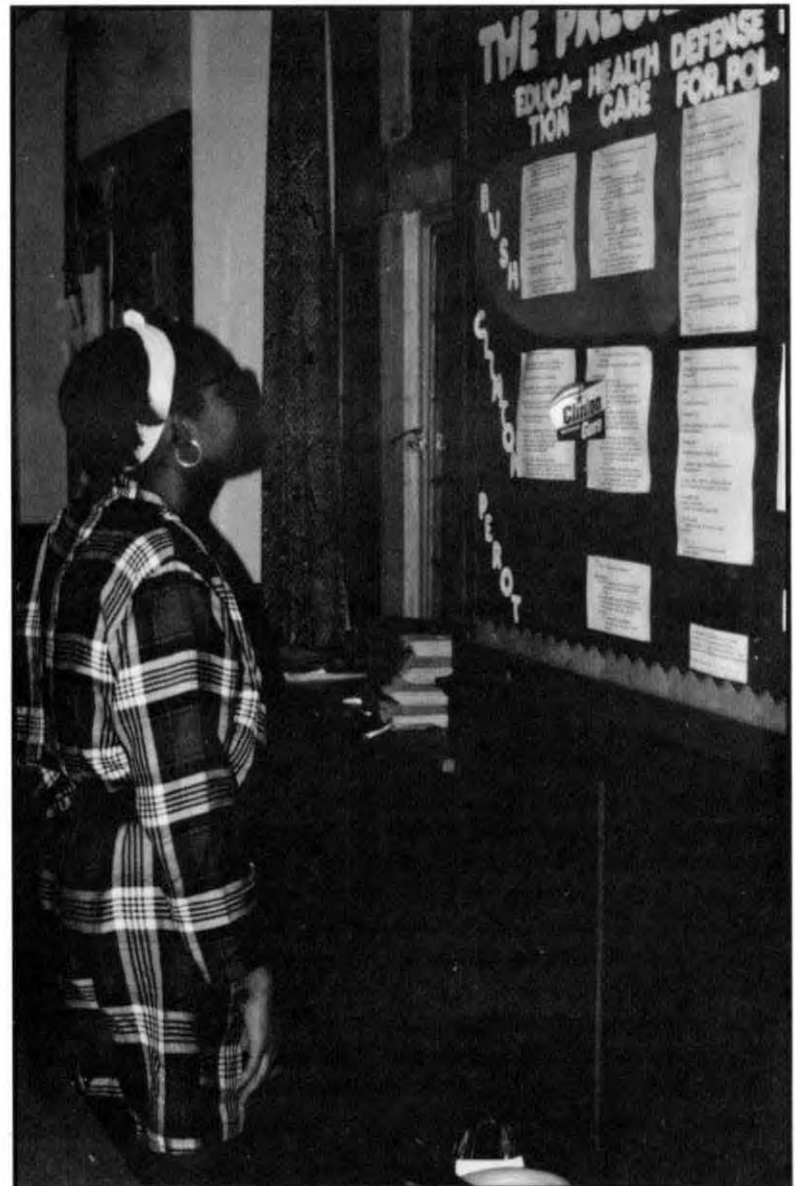

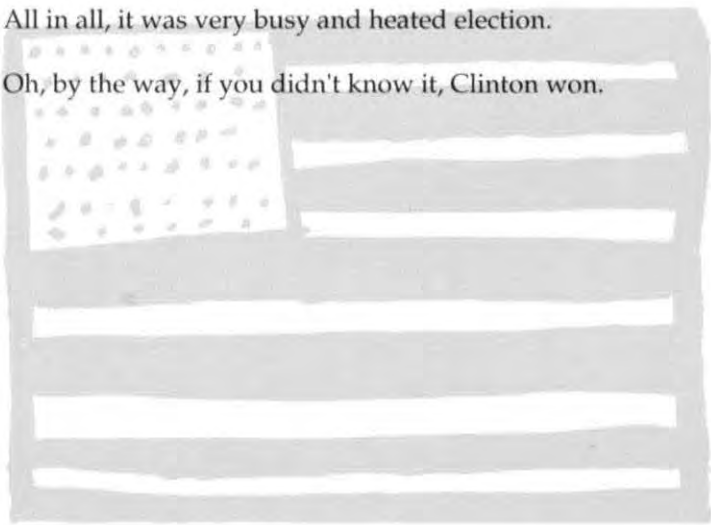

The College Democrats also did the meetings and signs thing. They distributed a newsletter, C. D. Sounds, to inform the campus on Clinton and Gore's position on key issues. The democrats attended a rally downtown for Clinton and went to hear Hillary Clinton at Memphis State.

Other groups on campus did their part in the drive to increase voter participation. Student Assembly sponsored a debate between the part heads from the political organizations in the county. The Committee for Social and Political Awareness, put up a bulletin board in the student center to inform students on how the candidates stood on particular issues. CSPA also stuffed reminders in students' mailboxes to get them out to vote.

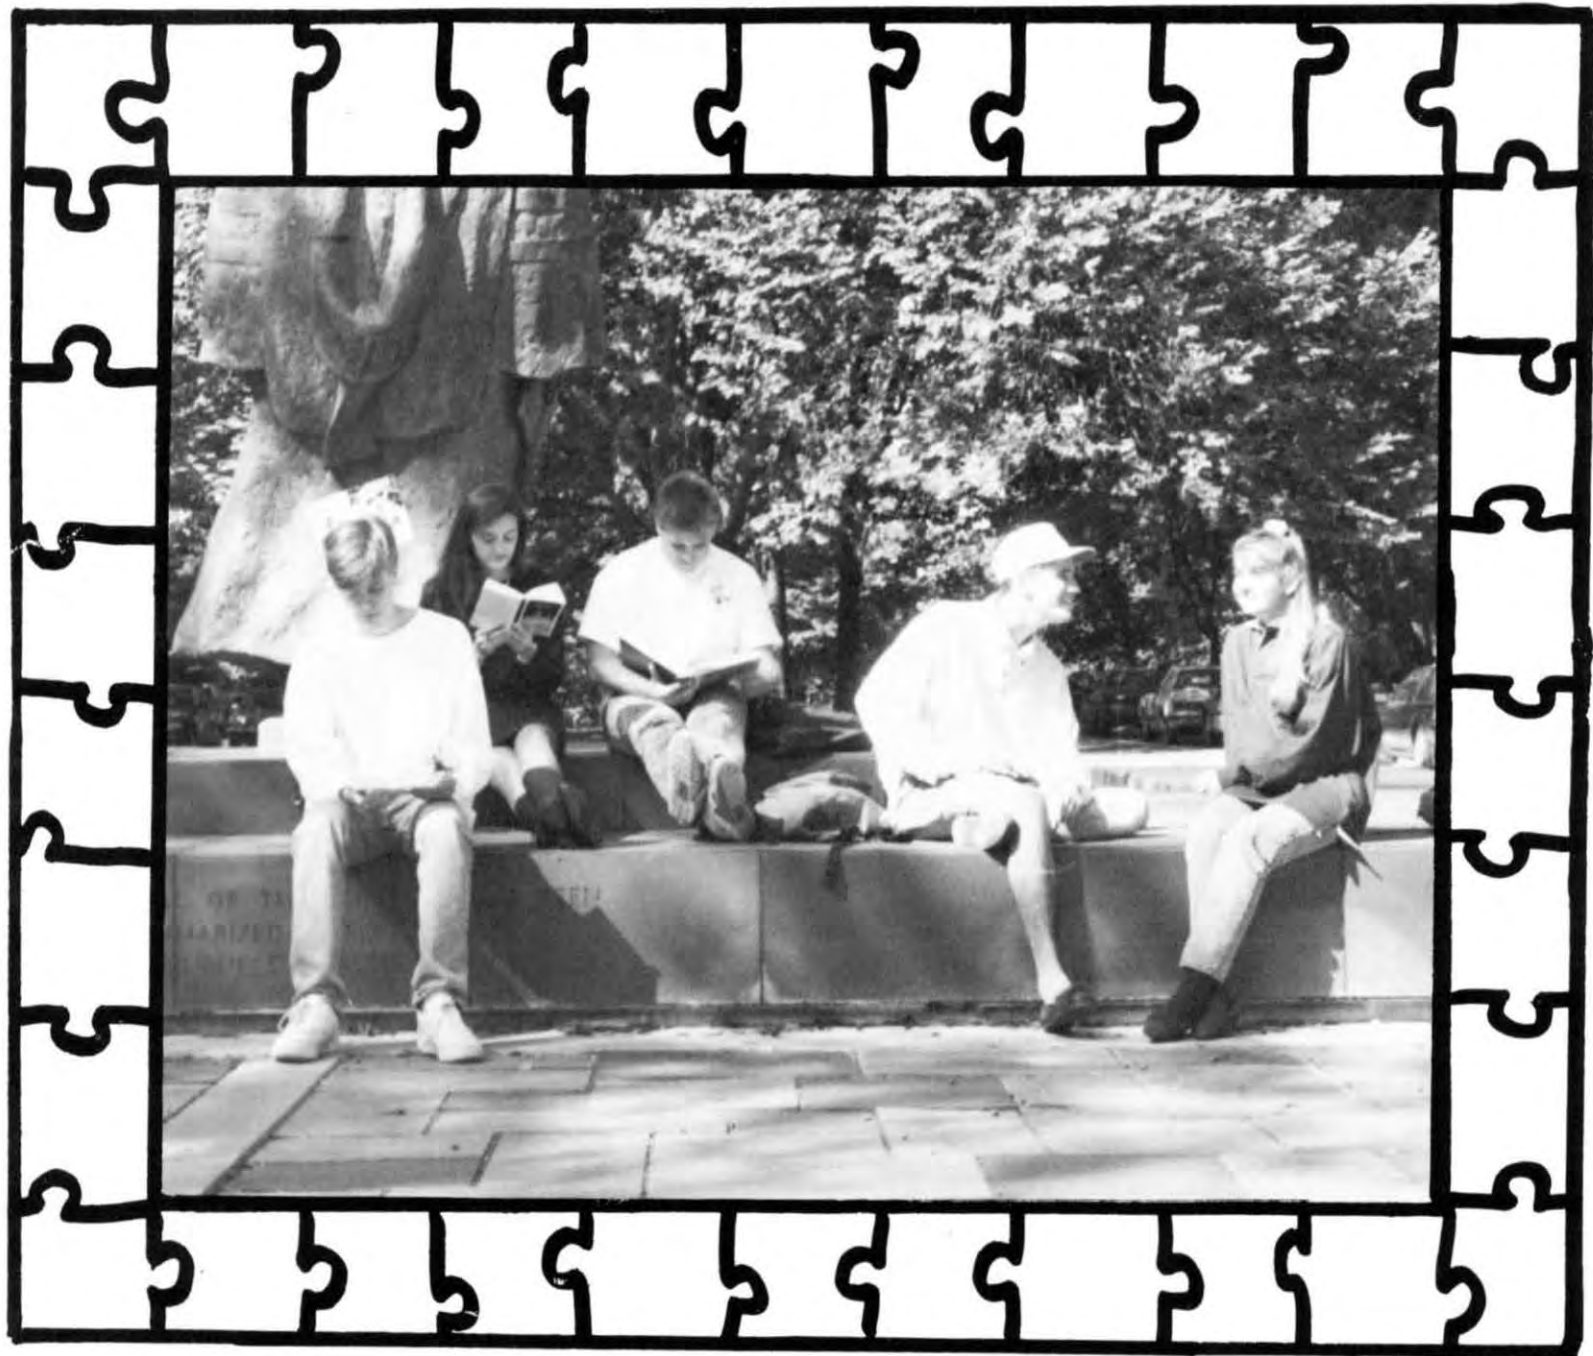

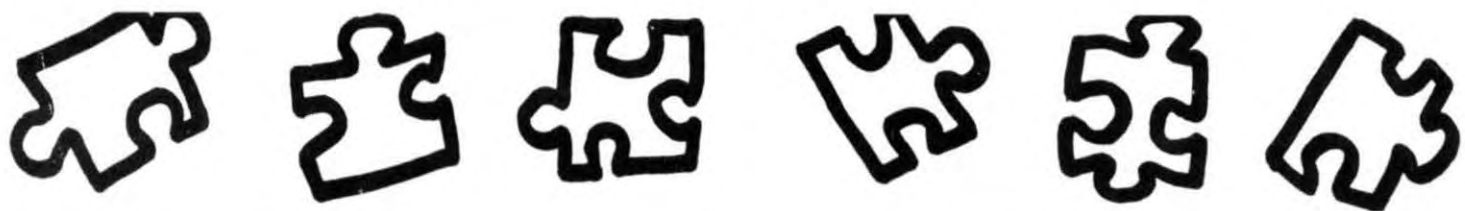

These groups combined their efforts in special projects. The College Democrats, College Republican, and Student Assembly sponsored a voter registration drive in the Rat. The Republicans and Democrats also held TV viewings in Blount Auditorium of the Presidential debates and in the Pub of the Vice-presidential debate. On Election Day, these two groups also organized rides to carry students to the polls.

All in all, it was very busy and heated election.

Oh, by the way, if you didn't know it, Clinton won.

A big choice. Delores Patterson surveys the CSPA bulletin board to learn about the Presidential candidates' stances on the environment.

Taking time to look back on all that has happened since this year's senior class arrived here four years ago brings many memories of the way things used to be. A senior has experienced many things that the rest of us never saw. Now it is time to remind the seniors, and tell everyone else, all that a senior remembers.

JUNIORS

Okay. The summer was fun, stress-free, you made the "real" decision last semester- you declared your major. So, the only thing to do is get back to school and have some fun, right? NOT! Not if you're a junior, anyway! You've had two years of fun. Now, for the first time, those really big question come up. No! Not where to go for Spring Break or whether to sleep throught that 8 o'clock class. Which, by the way, you should have already known not to sign up for, because you'd never make it. No, these questions are a little more like- Where will I go? Do I have to grow up?

As a junior, you have to actually consider a future outside of the stone and slate community of Rhodes College for the first time.

But it isn't all serious! Being a "junior" does leave you one more year to play a little and breathe a sigh of relief that being a "senior" is still somewhere in the hazy future of "next year".

What's your major? We heard that question a lot during last year? Why are they asking me again? I'm not a first year student anymore. Or, at least I wasn't when I last checked. Did they suddenly change the number of hours I need to be a sophomore here?

Oh, that's right! I have to declare this year. Which means I have to actually decide what I want to do with my life. I'm too young to do this. Besides, is it really healthy to be planning my life out this early? Didn't some psychiatrist say we were supposed to be spontaneous?

So I have to declare this year. I can do this. It's not that big of a deal. I mean, I can always change my major. It shouldn't take more than another year or... no, wait- That's money. I need to decide the right one now. What do I like? I like everything. Hmm. I have to like something better than anything else. What do I like to do, then? I like to bum around. Oh, great. That's it. I'll major in creative bumming. Don't I wish!

This is frustrating! Why do I have to plan my life out now? I'll just pick my favorite class and declare it. What is that, anyway? Economics- I can live with that. Maybe it's not so bad planning my life out. It's kind of neat.

Now, where's the registrar's office?

FIRST YEAR STUDENTS

Whether you noticed it or not, there were a lot of new people on campus this fall discovering a lot of new things. One of the first things they discovered was that they were not freshmen. They were "first year students". Next, these "first year students" were surprised to discover that Rhodes is a very open community.

The first evidence of this openness was Mystery Theater. Other big surprises for the first year students were the bathrooms in the "residence halls". Williford has walk-through bathrooms, Glassell has bathrooms in the rooms, and Bellingrath has urinals.

Some students said they discovered what "keg stands" were and what "floating the keg" and "beer goggling" mean (Of course, if they weren't 21 surly these discoveries were not first hand knowledge). Other students discovered the meanings of "grubbing" and "shacking". Some names of places new to the first year students were the "air strip", the "Rat". Going on Ratnicks and attending colloquium groups were also new activities for these students. But, don't worry, they learned other educational things too. Their two new Vocabulary words for the year were- "sweet" and "random".

Advantage? Professor Clifford Fox contemplates the idea of the greek system providing an advantage due to networking.

Fair Advantage?

Many sororities and fraternities on campus have organized test files. This is a file in which the active members usually put their old tests, according to subject. Both active members and pledges are free to use these resources whenever needed to help them to prepare for an upcoming test. Pledges and members of the sorority are encouraged to use the test file if it is believed that a past test may help her because good scholarship is promoted within all sororities.

Is using a file cheating? Most professors at Rhodes are aware of the existing test files and therefore change their test questions from year to year. However, some professors do not necessarily approve of them. Professor Chris Wetzel of the psychology department, when asked if he opposed the use of test files, said, "Yes, I do. From year to year I don't like to change test questions. It takes a lot of time and effort to think of questions that truly test the students' knowledge of the subject. And I also don't like them for a more subtle reason. Students use them as a study method. It would be okay if they used them as practice tests, but they don't."

Is it unfair to others for sororities to have test files? Amy Toole, an independent, said, "Yes, I think it's unfair. But I don't not like the sororities for it. All the independents could get together and make their own test file if they wanted. There just aren't as many independents."

The final, possibly most important question concerning test files is, do they really help, or do they only mislead a student into thinking that they are useful? After all, many of the teachers do make up new tests each time. But according to Sarah Frinks, they are very beneficial. "I think they help a ton. I've used ours for three different classes. It didn't help me much to look at tests by other professors, but it did help when I looked at past tests from my professor. Especially being a freshman, I didn't know what to expect, so they gave me some sort of an idea."

New Additions

As with each school year, several new members were added to the faculty. In fact, there were eight new full-time faculty, five with only term appointments. The full-time faculty included two assistant professors of English, Cary Holladay and Mark Winokur.

Rahel Hahn and Yoshinori Sasaki, both assistant professors, joined the foreign language departments, teaching German and Japanese, respectively.

The international studies department welcomed two assistant professors, Herbert Huser, a Latin America specialist, and Nancy Mitchell, whose focus is American foreign policy.

The physics and history departments both received one new faculty member. Assistant professor Joan Schmelz joined the physics department, instructor Winston S. McDowell the history department.

McDowell first became aware of Rhodes through his acquaintance with a former faculty member, and was further attracted by the fact that Rhodes is a "liberal arts college in an urban setting" with the "historic black population providing outlets" for his study of Afro-American society.

Five taught in term appointments. Assistant professor William Felice in international studies, instructor Clifford Fox in political science, instructor Eric Heneger in the foreign language department, professor Valerie Kukharensko in Russian, and assistant professor Kenneth Yarnell in mathematics/computer science.

Yarnell was impressed by the students. "They seem to work hard and are concerned with how well they do. Also, I like the atmosphere-- the relationship between the students and the teachers."

Beyond Books

In addition to the traditional methods of learning in the classroom, most college students further their efforts through several alternatives offered. Students often gain much experience in their area of study through internships which are available in twelve academic departments. They are designed to combine the traditional academic work with practical application for credit.

Gary Lindquister, coordinator of the intern program for the biology department, felt that "before investing the time in graduate study, it's nice to do an internship." They help to "cement interests in that field."

International studies professor Andrew Michta agreed there were advantages. "An internship gives real job experience so your resume looks different, exposes a student to the real international business environment or to how the government operates, and is often a way of securing a job at a time when you can still afford it."

Other helpful facilities are located on the campus, including the library system (including the Burrow Library, four departmental collections in biology, chemistry, mathematics, and music, and the Human Relations Area File in the anthropology/sociology department), and the language center and MacLab in Buckman Hall.

Some classes, such as Model UN, provide a more direct experience than the traditional book-learning approach. In Model UN, students "get a much better appreciation of what the UN is and how it operates through role playing and debate," said professor Herbert Huser. "They come to understand in more depth a country they may have never known much about-- it broadens their outlook."

Study or Break?

Study groups are common, but the question is, do they help, or are they just a method of procrastination?

According to Mandy Waller, "Study groups work if you are disciplined." Junior Tonya Vaughn disagreed. "Study groups just turn into gossip sessions." Added Cindy Humble, "If they are with potential dates, they never work!"

Despite varying opinions, study breaks are still popular. In fact, first-year Seach students are encouraged to organize their own study groups and many departments, such as biology and math, offer organized study sessions before tests.

Of course, there are always the times when a friend calls you up, interrupting the intensive biology cramming session, to suggest a break at the Pub.

Study breaks are a vital part a student's life, whether the preferred location is the Pub, TCBY or Perkins. TV provided an enjoyable diversion for many who frequented social rooms or the Pub, which has the big screen. Movies, which are available in the library, were another study break favorite.

Also popular was using the time to stay in shape, using the equipment in the gym or taking a walk or jog. Any time spent away from the books with friends helps relieve the stress caused by a rough schedule.

Becky Miller and Jennifer Hawkins attended the rally at the Pyramid for the Democratic team.

"The skill of the physician lifts up his head, and in the presence of great men he is admired."

Chris Buchanan and Bryan Shelby show their support for Clinton and Gore by attending the rally and cheering on their candidates.

Charles Schafer, Patty Fitzgerald, and Wesley Thompson join the crowd gathered in the Pub to watch the Vice-presidential debates.

Rhodes College was represented at the Clinton/Gore rally due largely to the efforts of organizations to provide transportation to the event downtown.

Activism Flares

Rhodes campus came alive with political spirit during the 1992 presidential campaign. This trend was reflected in both the classroom and outside activities.

During the fall semester particularly, the campaign was a popular topic in many political science classes.

In Professor Swain's U.S. Politics course, Clyde Henderson said they "discussed [which candidate] would do well in what states and went through the electoral college and talked about why Bill Clinton was going to win."

During these discussions, Swain predicted that Clinton would receive 415 of the electoral votes, which was close to the final result to 356 votes.

Students in Professor Fox's Mass Media and Politics course worked on research projects that dealt with the election in various forms. The class concentrated particularly on studying the television coverage of the election.

Professor Nelson, two weeks prior to the election, declared it was "all but certain that Bill Clinton [would] win the election." Nelson, an expert on the presidency, discussed the topic in length in his course on the American presidency.

Away from the classroom, the College Democrats, which consisted of many students from Clinton's home state, were busy with activities such as making signs at the campaign headquarters the night before Clinton's appearance at the Pyramid and transporting students to the rally.

They also published CD Sounds, a page of editorials written by club members to inform students of Clinton's key policies. A new issue was distributed in the Rat every Monday for students to read.

College Republicans also rallied around their candidate. They scheduled meetings that enabled them to listen to Rush Limbaugh's program. They also organized parties, during which they watched the debates. Memphis State and Shelby County Republican contacts often joined Rhodes' students to discuss the election.

Independent Ross Perot was also represented, with signs appearing across campus prior to the election encouraging students to vote for Perot. Students were allowed to gather in Blount Auditorium in Buckman Hall to view all debates on the big screen.

Acting Life

Once again, the McCoy Theatre program provided numerous opportunities for student involvement in all aspects of theatre. Activities included stage management, house management, costume and set crews, and advertising.

Auditions for the productions were open to everyone, even those with no experience. Guest actors and directors were featured periodically, with many performers coming from the Memphis community.

The 1992 season included Cabaret and The Fantasticks (performed in repertoire), Spring Awakening, and As You Like It. The Music of Cole Porter was the benefit performance of the season.

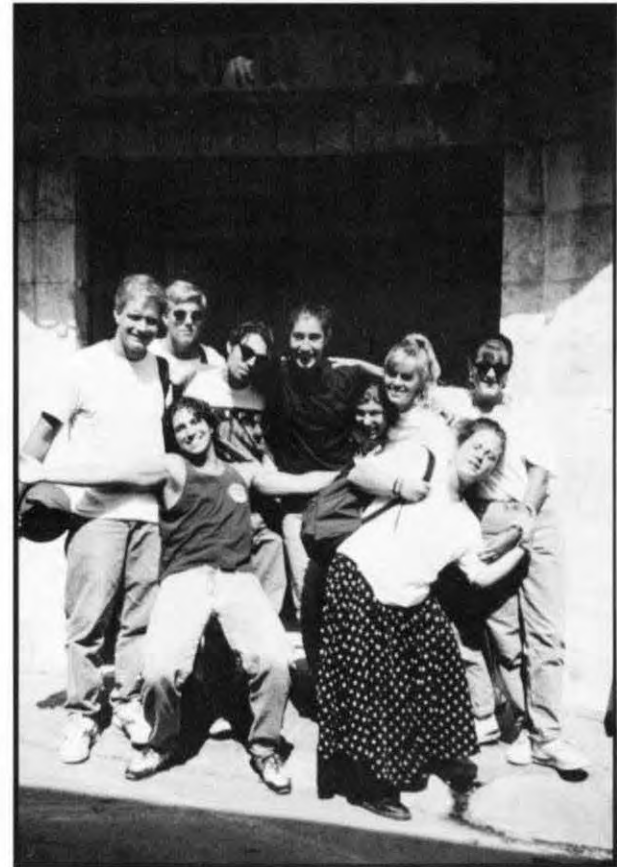

Merryl Taylor, Lara Babaoglu, and Rachel Wortham carefully apply their stage make-up before a performance of Cabaret.

Available Alternates

For some students, a great attraction of the college was the opportunity for study abroad. Many different programs were available, ranging from an exchange program with a university in Russia to intensive language study programs. The British Studies at Oxford and European Studies programs also attracted many students who wished to broaden their college experience. With study available on almost any continent, students were able to combine education with cultural exchange.

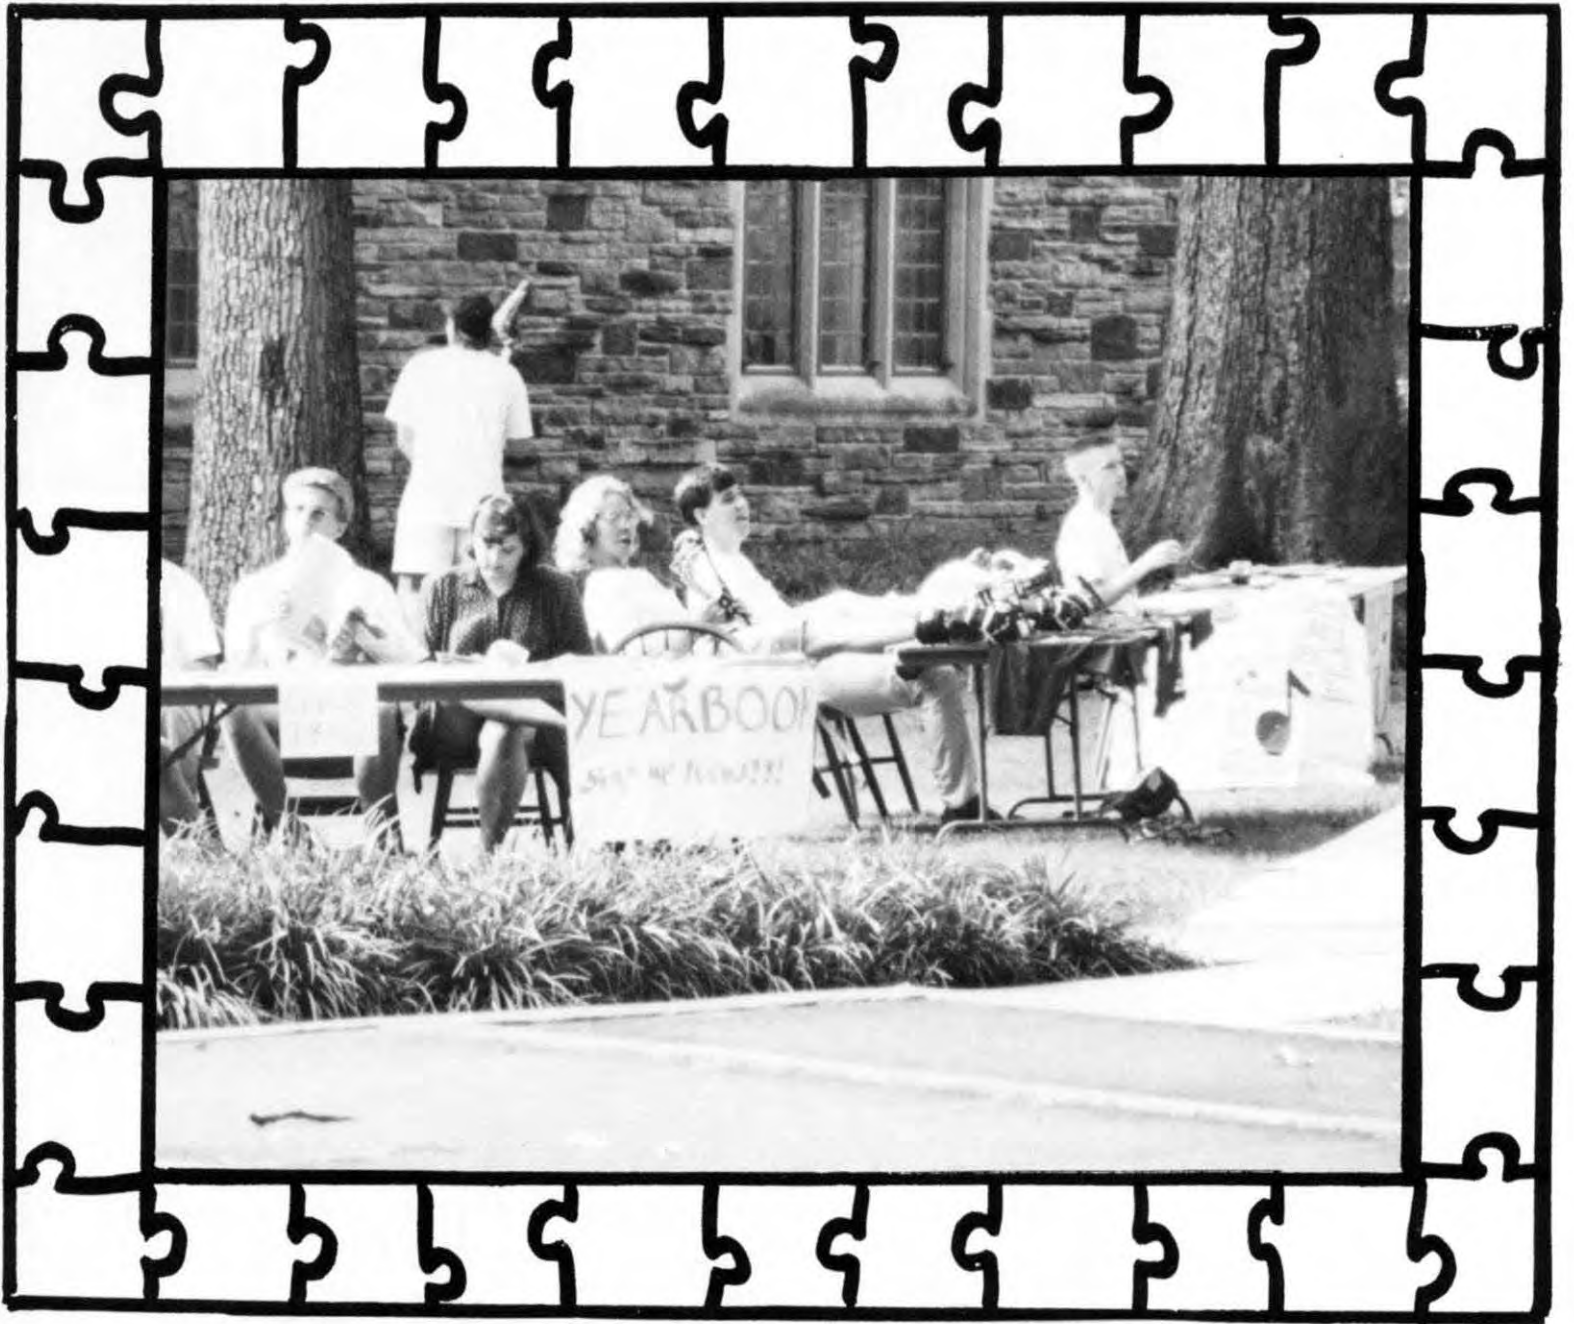

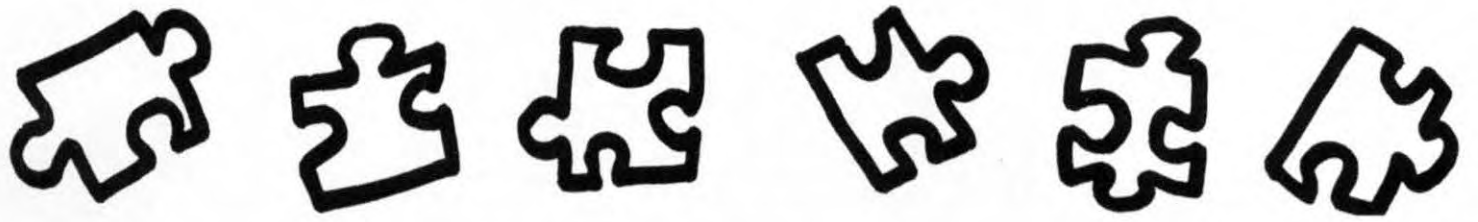

Shannon Papin, who traveled to Israel in order to study the Palestinian and Israeli cultures and learn more about the conflict between the two, took time out for sight-seeing with new friends at the Damascus Gate in Old Jerusalem.

Participating in the European Studies program, Jennifer Parker and friends enjoy a ride on the English Channel.

RHODES COLLEGE VOLUNTEER
ACTION & SERVICE
"SERVING NEIGHBORS IN NEED"

The Kinney Service Program began in 1957, named in honor of the late Professor Laurence F. Kinney, founder of the program. Kinney has become an integral part of life at Rhodes, making a valuable contribution to campus life, the Memphis community, and beyond. Volunteers serve in a variety of capacities, ranging from the soup kitchen, tutoring and literacy programs, Big Brothers/Big Sisters to hospital care, crisis counseling, and environmental activities. The program involves almost one fourth of the faculty and students of Rhodes College who subscribe to the Kinney motto, "Serving Neighbors in Need."

I love you!
Robyn

Jimmy- It was great being at Rhodes with you, even if it's not as "special" as the professors think it is.

Andy- Thanks for a lot of good times and experiences that will probably come up at my confirmation hearings.

Vince- Keep "feelin' warm"!

Derek- Knock 'em dead on Wall Street! Just don't step on me on your way to the top.

Dave- Try to get some sleep during grad school; you've earned it.

Mom and Dad- I knew you would hate the senior picture; I hope this is some consolation. Thanks for giving me four great years. I hope I made you proud.

Best wishes for everyone's future. It's been fun.

After many hours of attempting to come up with a theme for this year's book, I found the answer in my mailbox. Sitting there one day, was the Summer Update, thanks to the folks in College Relations. "Together Again" was suggested as the theme for the year as they were trying to get us back for the fall. Why not for the yearbook, too? The yearbook is supposed to remind you of what happened- what better. Together Again- the theme just seemed to fit the year. First, we all came back for one more year- together again! Second, there were great efforts and successes in bringing the Rhodes community closer. Many activities occurred on campus thanks to people such as the Social Commission and Student Assembly. We had great turnouts for both Fall Over Fest and Rites of Spring. And finally, the student body seemed to join together and work towards a common goal- making this the best possible year! At the same time that so much was happening at Rhodes, the nation and the world was changing. We elected a new U.S. president, all kinds of natural disasters struck the states, the Soviet Union broke into Republics, and the EC came into full function, to name a few things. Together Again seemed to say just how the Rhodes community responded to all these changes this year

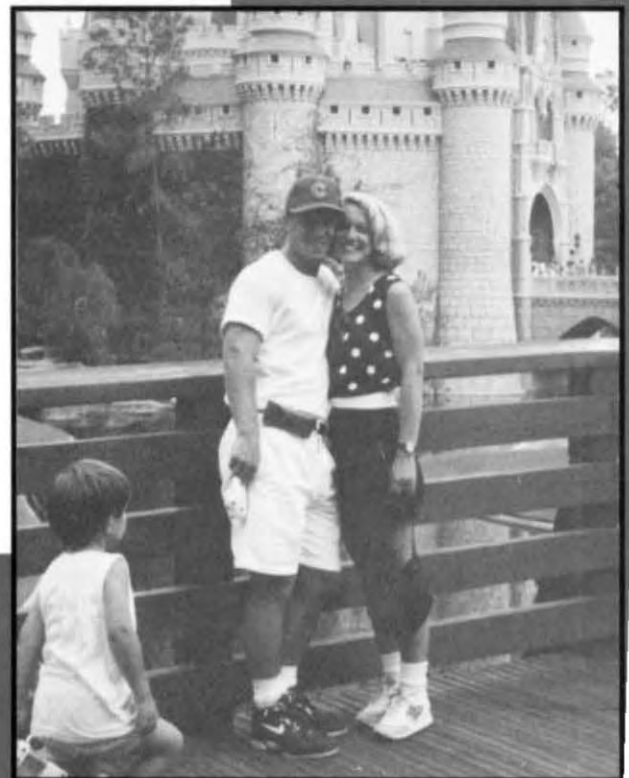

Being editor has been quite a learning experience for me this year. In fact, it was quite a challenging year. It really was amazing how many times I told myself- just a little more work and the worse part will all be over. But I survived. I would like to thank all of the section editors- without you, I could not have finished the book. Thanks to the entire staff who spent countless hours trying to find out that one last person just to appease me. The photography staff was a life saver- without them you would not see any pictures!

Special thanks (and congratulations) go out to my roommate, Cathy Carls, my suitemates, Amanda Coe and Debie Rudder, my friends, and innocent bystanders who put up with me and all my endless problems and conflicts. I promise you all- you will never have to deal with that again! Cathy-guess what!- no more answering machine tapes used up daily with messages for yearbook! Debie and Amanda- you don't have to hear the chirping phone half as much or the hang-ups! And Jennafer- it's fun from here on out, I don't have anything to worry about, so you can't either! This page is for all my friends and highly esteemed idols who put up with me daily- hope you enjoy it.

Thanks for the memories and experience as editor. But from now on- all I want is FREE TIME!

Elizabeth Young
