CLASS OF '39 TO HAVE 25th REUNION APRIL 18th

All Former Students Invited to Alumni Day

Each alum should mark the following date on his or her calendar: Saturday April 18, 1964!!! That's "Alumni Day!!!"

Big plans have been in the making for many months now; and we look forward to every Southwestern alumnus visiting the campus on that date, especially those classes having reunions: 1959, 1954, 1949, 1944, 1939, 1934, 1929, 1924, 1919, 1914 and any other graduating classes ending in a "4" or a "9."

With ten new buildings on the campus within the last ten years, you will have a lot of sight-seeing to do if you haven't been around for awhile. A track meet, tennis match and many other activities have been planned for April 18th with you in mind.

25th Reunion for Class of 1939—

Biggest plans of all are those being shaped by members of the 1939 class, which celebrates its 25th anniversary on Alumni Day! President of the group, Waddy West, Jr., indicates that even a 1939 automobile has been procured for the event; furthermore, a group class picture will be taken and certain class members will be selected for the Alumni Hall of Fame!

The tentative schedule for the Class of 1939 is as follows:

Friday April 17th—Informal small group meetings in homes of classmates.

Saturday April 18th—Noon Luncheon (Southwestern movie will be shown), followed by a tour of the campus, a track meet and a tennis match.

4:00 to 5:30 p.m.—Chartered bus will take class members to the University Club for a "re-acquainted social."

Saturday evening—Alumni Dinner in Mallory Memorial Gymnasium with an after-dinner social at the S A E house. For the latter, '39 class members are urged to invite members of other classes as their guests.

Sunday April 19th—Plans are being made for the entire class (with families) to attend church together, with a classmate delivering the sermon.

Class of 1939 officers looked through their graduating annual recently, seeking ideas for the 25th Reunion coming up April 18. (l. to r.) Charlie Freeburg (Finance and Project Chairman); Mrs. Tom White, Jr. (Sarah Boothe) (25th Reunion Chairman); Waddy West, Jr. (President); and Frank H. Campbell (Treasurer).

Hard-Working Chairmen—

Placing the emphasis on securing the largest number of out-of-town classmates for any Southwestern reunion, Mrs. Tom White (Sarah Boothe), Chairman of the 25th Reunion of the 1939 class, will be working with the following committee chairmen: Charles Freeburg (Finance and Project), Samuel H. Mays (Entertainment), Harriet Pond McLean (Housing), John Spence (Publicity), Dr. Edward French and Letitia Montgomery Haygood (Attendance), and Cecil Warde (Transportation and Hospitality).

Remember the date . . . April 18, 1964!!! "Alumni Day!"

A. S. P. GOAL REVEALED

The 1964 Annual Sponsors' Program moves into high gear this month, according to Dr. Alfred O. Canon '44, dean of alumni and development, seeking auxiliary funds for the operation of Southwestern's many facets.

A goal of $175,000 has been set for 1964, earmarked for faculty salaries, space science research, the Adult Education Center, and language laboratories.

Phase I of the 1964 A.S.P. campaign, devoted to special gifts, is under the capable direction of Dr. Edmund Orgill H'56 with Paul Borda and William N. Wilkerson as co-chairmen. Their kick-off dinner was held January 9, at which plans were revealed for reaching a goal of $100,000 within their phase alone.

The kick-off dinner for Phase II is slated for March 3. This phase embraces general business, legal, medical and alumni divisions, and is under the chairmanship of William S. Craddock, who has the following faithful lieutenants working for him: Buford Norman, James Breytspreek '38 (General Business); John Porter '31 and John "Buddy" Thomason '51 (Legal); Dr. Robert F. Ackerman '42 and his co-chairman Dr. William T. Tyson '39 (Medical); Robert Elder '40 and Judd Williford '50 (Alumni). These leaders and their willing workers have their sights steadily set on a goal of $75,000.

Maybry Leads Cross Country Team to Victory

Southwestern extended its string of winning cross country seasons to eight this fall, as coach William R. Maybry led the Lynx harriers to a 7-5 record. At the beginning of the season the outlook was not so favorable, but Maybry attributes the team's success to the great improvement of returning squadmen.

The schedule was the toughest to date, including Arkansas State, Mississippi College, Union University, and Washington University—annually rugged teams.

Senior captains Howard Romaine and Dossett Foster continued in their stellar ways, but the high spot was the improvement of John Poolman and Ted Morris; they were often high in the top six finishers. Neither ran much last season.

Another great contribution to the Lynx cause was freshman Gary Nichols, who will be a top man next season. He was fourth in the Lynx ranks this year and always a threat to the opposition.

Southwestern has never had a losing season in cross country since Maybry took the reins in 1956, and the prospects for the next season are excellent, despite the loss of Foster, Romaine, and Poolman.

A Memorable Day Homecoming Well Attended

—by Dr. Ray Allen '44, Dean of Admissions

The combined Homecoming and Parents' Day on November 2nd was a huge success. Ole grads returned to the fold briefly and students' parents had an opportunity to view campus facilities, talk with professors and take part in numerous activities.

During the registration period in the Adult Education Center, the Southwestern Woman's Club served coffee and other refreshments to approximately 450 people.

Hardie Auditorium was virtually filled for the morning program entitled "A Look at Southwestern." This program began with the guests viewing the twenty-minute color movie of Southwestern, followed by faculty seminars. Dr. E. L. Queener gave a very interesting talk on "Psychology Today;" Dr. J. H. Taylor featured the "Alaskan Solar Eclipse Expedition;" and Dr. John Henry Davis spoke on "The Ancient and the Modern in the Near East."

Luncheon For 800!!!!

All fraternities and sororities participated with good displays in the "Lawn Decorations Contest."

Mr. Richard Johnson, manager of the dining hall, and his capable crew served lunch to 800 people in the Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. Actually, 456 reservations were made on the return-addressed postal cards sent to parents of current students. The others served were alumni, faculty members, students and others who did not make advance reservations.

The Sewanee-Southwestern football game was well attended, as were the fraternity open houses in the late afternoon.

At the Homecoming Dance in the Azalea Room of the Park-view Hotel, there was an overflow crowd of students and a few parents.

Our 1963 Homecoming and Parents' Day was successful due to the excellent cooperation from the Student Council, fraternities, sororities, independents, faculty members, Southwestern Woman's Club, Southwestern Men of Memphis, Southwestern Women of Memphis, dining hall personnel, athletic department, publicity department and the administration of the College.

Quotes Concerning the Event

In a memorandum from President Peyton N. Rhodes: "I think Homecoming and Parents' Day went off fine and was one of the best occasions we have had. . . . Everybody seemed to have a grand time and the turnout was considerable."

A quotation from a letter from one of the out-of-state parents: ". . . the Parents' Day-Homecoming Celebration was an outstanding success. We enjoyed the full and very rewarding day, and found the program stimulating and interesting. We were particularly impressed with the atmosphere of friendliness on the campus. We are satisfied that we found exactly the right college for our daughter.

Thank you again for a memorable day."

Students' Medical Insurance Plan

The Southwestern student is protected 24 hours a day by an Accident and Sickness Insurance plan at no additional cost after his tuition has been paid. Generally speaking, the plan covers accidents sustained and sickness commencing while the insurance is in force from June 1, 1963 until June 1, 1964. Coverage is effective at college or elsewhere, and while traveling.

Football and Basketball FEW PLAYERS—FIGHTING HARD

—by Mike Simmons '65

Southwestern's football team, called the "fighting few" by Coach Jesse Johnson, enjoyed moderate success this season but lost some real heartbreakers.

The Lynx, under the guidance of this new and aggressive coach, ended with a 2-5-1 record—somewhat short of some predictions—but the feeling of accomplishment still lies in the fact that the "fighting few" fought hard and lost valiantly. The main trouble all season was the lack of depth. Only about 12 points were scored on the Lynx in the first half of each game, with exception of a 36-point production by Washington and Lee. The second half was always a different story with the lack of replacements causing physical fatigue for the regulars, most of whom played the full 60 minutes all year long.

A season with a losing record often means failure to many people, but not so to me or the members of the team, or the members of the athletic department. Some people pass it off lightly saying the Lynx "play for fun," something that I wage personal war against. We play football and all other sports merely for the love of the sport and the desire to succeed. I quote from the article in the February, 1963 issue of Coach and Athlete Magazine: "The Lynx may not win all their games, or even the majority, but the real aim of the athletic program will be met—to lead, shape, and build the leaders of tomorrow in the tradition of sportmanship, and physical accomplishment that made our nation's forefathers the best leaders and followers in the world."

Our sports philosophy holds that sports are for the players—for their pleasure and development. Alumni support, such as attendance at games, pointing out recruiting prospects to the coaches, etc. aids Southwestern in attaining this goal.

Southwestern's current basketball squad appears to be a vast improvement over the teams of the past two years, which won only 10 games. This sport also has a new head coach—Donald Duckworth who was formerly with Washington University, a fellow member of the College Athletic Conference.

The basketball schedule is a tough one, but presents a good challenge to the young team, composed mainly of freshmen and sophomores. This will definitely be a building year for the Lynx, but that does not indicate that it will be a losing one. The team is aggressive and fast, and will be a headache for most opponents and a pushover for none.

William Ingram '49 Elected Mayor

Elected to the office of Mayor of Memphis in the November election was Judge William B. Ingram '49. Bill was born in Hollandale, Miss., reared in Brownsville, Tenn., and moved to Memphis in 1940. In 1957 he won the bar association's recommendation for the position of judge of the proposed new city traffic court and was appointed to serve until the 1959 City election which he won. He has been active in Masonic, Democratic Party and bar activities, is married to the former Beverly McCall and has four children. The Ingrams live at 4712 Kaye Road.

From the Ivy-Covered Tower

By Alfred O. Canon, '44, Dean of Alumni and Development

As the very prosperous year of 1963 drew to a close, the Alumni Office recorded a total of approximately 1,200 gifts to the college for a final figure of $66,000. This is quite impressive when one compares it with a total of less than $10,000 per year in the 1940's and 1950's. These gifts from alumni along with those of the Annual Sponsors' Program from business leaders and individuals in the city constitute 15 percent of the operating income of the college. Without such significant financial assistance the college could not hope to sustain a first-rate educational program.

The one disappointing aspect of alumni support, however, has been the relatively low percentage of those who do contribute to the college. Out of 6,000 alumni, only 1,200 (or one out of five) gave to the college in 1963. Another 20 to 30 percent have given sporadically over the past five to ten years.

The disturbing fact is that approximately 50 percent of the 6,000 alumni have never given to Southwestern. Why should there be such apathy and lack of response on the part of Southwestern alumni—at least on the part of 50 percent of them? Has the college failed to inform its alumni of the tremendous role which they can play in supporting their alma mater? Have we who work in this area of development and alumni relations failed to provide adequate objectives or techniques for giving in our attempt to illustrate the urgent need for increased support by alumni? Or does alumni apathy in giving simply indicate a lack of "school spirit" or real love for alma mater that never really existed even during the course of the student's days in college?

Dr. Canon

increased support by alumni? Or does alumni apathy in giving simply indicate a lack of "school spirit" or real love for alma mater that never really existed even during the course of the student's days in college?

Divers Reasons Given

Many reasons are advanced by alumni for their failure to contribute:

1. "I've been away from the campus so long I really don't have much interest in the college."
2. "My husband went to X University and he gives to its alumni fund rather than to Southwestern."
3. "The Bible Department is too 'liberal'."
4. "I went to another school after Southwestern and feel a greater loyalty to it."
5. "I didn't like the chapel speaker the college had recently. He sounded too liberal to me."
6. "Why should I give? I don't owe Southwestern anything! It cost me enough to go there anyway."

Are these valid reasons for a refusal to support a private liberal arts, church-related college which is attempting to provide the finest individualized instruction to the young men and women of this region?

The Positive Side

Let us put the matter in a more positive perspective. Why should I, as an alumnus, give to Southwestern? There are undoubtedly many reasons, but let us consider a few of the more obvious ones.

1. Our dual system of private and public higher education simply cannot survive unless alumni, the church, and others who believe in the private college or university give it sufficient support. Is Southwestern, as a small liberal arts college, performing a role in education that is unique and valuable, as contrasted with the state university, etc.?
2. Colleges such as Southwestern are the primary educational agencies of the church. As such they seek to provide not only ministerial candidates for seminaries but also an educated laity which is a significant asset to the administration of our churches and their programs. Does the church (e.g. the Presbyterian Church in the United States) really need the colleges as an integral part of the total program of Christian education?
3. Any student at Southwestern has been subsidized even if he paid full tuition. For example, in 1962-63 tuition was $800 and the instructional cost per student was $1,500. If a student did not receive a scholarship and paid his "full fare" for four years, he would still obtain a $2,800 subsidy which was provided by alumni, the church, and other friends who established endowment funds, gave buildings or contributed annually so that others could receive a splendid education at almost "half the actual cost." Is it logical then for an alumnus to say "I don't owe Southwestern a thing?"

4. The college continues to provide cultural and educational services to its alumni, as well as to the general public. Concerts, film series, discussion groups, art exhibits, and lectures are offered throughout the academic year. In 1962-63 over 2,600 persons registered in 104 different programs offered by the Adult Education Center. This included 28 programs offered outside of Memphis in Alabama, Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Tennessee. Of special interest to Memphis and the Mid-South area have been the yearly Institute for Executive Leadership (now in its ninth year), the Urban Policy Conference and the University Lecturers Series, which will bring in distinguished speakers this winter from Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Duke, Washington and Lee, Michigan and Virginia. Should the college continue to offer such services and opportunities to this region?

5. Corporations and many foundations, as well as wealthy individuals, are raising the question? "Do Southwestern alumni support their alma mater?" The obvious conclusion which can be drawn from this is "Why should non-alumni sources contribute to Southwestern if those who have been a part of the institution and have received an education from it do not give their wholehearted commitment?"

To those of us who work so closely with the college these seem to be excellent and obvious motivating factors for alumni giving. Perhaps we do not effectively communicate these points to you, our alumni. Or is this a question of not only informing alumni of the need for contributions but also challenging the individual to play a more significant role in a particular project?

How can an alumnus give to the college?

1. Memorials can be sent to the Library.
2. A gift to the Loyalty Fund can be undesignated or specifically given for a purpose such as scholarships, Science Fund, etc.
3. A Memphis alumnus can give personally and/or through his business in the 1964 Annual Sponsors' Program. (This is also credited to the Loyalty Fund and to the individual's class in the case of an alumnus.)
4. An increasing number of alumni parents are contributing to the Parents Fund, which is being dedicated at the present to the completion of the Briggs Student Center.
5. Many alumni are making provision in their estate planning to leave a specific amount or a percentage of their final estate to the College for its endowment or scholarship funds.

There are some colleges which stress the point that alumni should budget a certain amount (e.g. one percent of income before taxes) each year for their alma mater, just as one would make provision for their church pledge, the Community Chest, etc. Over the past five years, an increasing number of firms and individuals in Memphis have included Southwestern's Annual Sponsors' Program in their annual budgets. Although the great majority of the officers of these companies are not Southwestern alumni, they are firmly—even enthusiastically—convinced of the fact that Southwestern is a tremendous asset to Memphis and to the future development of privately supported education in this country.

What should an alumnus give Southwestern? How much do I "owe" the college as my alma mater? Each alumnus must answer these questions for himself or herself. To a certain degree the future progress and development of the college will depend upon your response!

Southwestern Women of Memphis Meeting on January 31, 1964

The Southwestern Women of Memphis will have a catered luncheon at the Zeta Tau Alpha House on campus at 12 o'clock noon, January 31st. Mrs. William L. Oliver, Jr. '58 is hostess and Mrs. James L. Ries '34 is in charge of the program.

The Evergreen Presbyterian Church nursery will be available.

Another new member of the mathematics department this year is John Harlan Christy, assistant professor of mathematics. He received his B. S. degree in mathematics from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1959 and his Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University in January 1964. He belongs to Sigma Xi and is a member of the American Mathematical Society. During the summers of 1959 and 1960 he did research work in the theoretical physics division of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory at Los Alamos, New Mexico. Professor Christy and his wife, Nancy Carol, have two children, Katherine Anne and John Harlan III.

William C. Nemitz '50 is associate professor of mathematics at Southwestern. He received his B. S. degree from Southwestern, M. S. and Ph. D. from Ohio State University. He served in the U. S. Navy from 1951-1954, was an instructor at Ohio State University during 1959-1960 and assistant professor at the University of Kansas in 1960-1961.

Dr. Nemitz's field of research involves implicative semi-lattices. In 1959-1960 he had a joint article published in the Mathematics Magazine on a mathematical theory of switching circuits and in 1961 the Transactions of the American Mathematical Society published his article on a decomposition theorem for measures in Euclidean n -space. His article on transformation preserving the Grassmannian will appear soon in the Transactions.

HE TWENTIETH CENTURY has witnessed changes in mathematics which are so extensive, so profound in their implications for education, and so far-reaching that they can be described only as revolutionary.

In an article entitled "The Revolution in Mathematics," (Liberal Education, May, 1961), Marshall Stone has this to say: "While several important changes have taken place since 1900 in our conception of mathematics or in our points of view concerning it, the one which truly involves a revolution in ideas is the discovery that mathematics is entirely independent of the physical world . . . The discovery that this is so may be said without exaggeration to mark one of the most significant intellectual advances in the history of mankind . . . At the same time . . . mathematical systems can often usefully serve as models for portions of reality, thus providing the basis for a theoretical mathematical analysis of relations observed in the phenomenal world."

"Indeed, it is becoming clearer and clearer every day that mathematics has to be regarded as the corner-stone of all scientific thinking and hence of the intrinsically articulated technological society we are busily engaged in building. . . . When we stop to compare the mathematics of today with mathematics as it was at the close of the nineteenth century we may well be amazed to note how rapidly our mathematical knowledge has grown in quantity and complexity, but we should also not fail to observe how closely this development has been involved with an emphasis upon abstraction and an increasing concern with the perception and analysis of broad mathematical patterns. . . . What it now seeks is to adjust its place in education in accordance with its growing importance in the intellectual life of our times. In such an adjustment the central problem is to define a new core of mathematical knowledge embodying the leading ideas and principal techniques of modern mathematics and to organize the teaching of this core as a well-articulated program, taking advantage of whatever light modern psychology can throw on intellectual development, concept formation, and the learning process."

Mathematics, which has long been used by the physicist and the chemist, has invaded the life sciences, biology and psychology, and is now making important contributions to the social sciences. As a result of this tumultuous growth in mathematics, efforts are being made to insure that the mathematics education provided by our schools and colleges is adequate for the needs of our times. Active steps have been taken to modernize the mathematical programs at all levels. Recognizing the urgent need to improve school mathematics programs, foundations have contributed large sums of money for experimentation. Among the various new programs, the material developed by the School Mathematics Study Group (SMSG) is unique in that it is the result of the largest united effort for improvement in the history of mathematics education. SMSG textbooks and teachers' manuals for grade 4 through 12 are now available for use in our schools.

Today there is an unprecedented demand for well-qualified teachers of mathematics in our schools and colleges. In many cases teachers of high school mathematics and those of college mathematics find re-education is necessary because of the changes that have taken place in mathematics. For such teachers The National Science Foundation provides many opportunities for study through in-service institutes, summer institutes, and academic-year institutes.

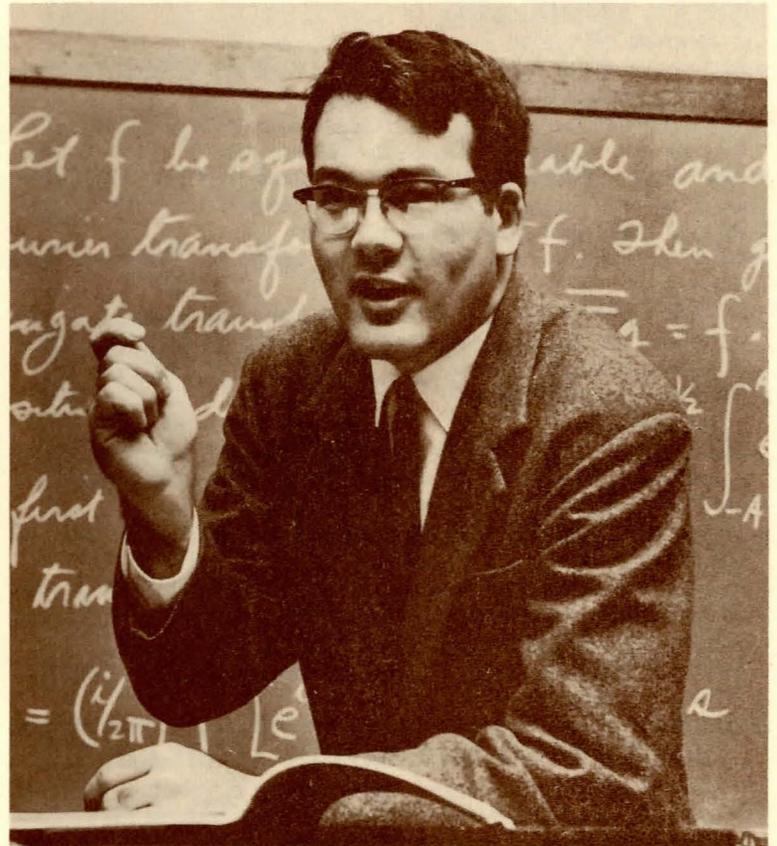

Mindful of the general development and major trends in mathematics, the department of mathematics at Southwestern has sought to keep its program at the proper level of quality and to provide courses embodying the essential elements and techniques of modern mathematics.

70th Reunion April 18!

An interesting letter to Goodbar Morgan, dated December 4, 1963, was received from Dr. C. T. Caldwell. It said, in part, "More and more I am aware of the debt I owe old Southwestern Presbyterian University. Perhaps I am the oldest alumnus, being four months into my 99th year but not retired." Dr. Caldwell is pastor emeritus of First Presbyterian Church in Waco, Texas, where he became pastor in 1903. He is, indeed, one of Southwestern's oldest alumni, but not THE oldest.

Class of 1903

Another interesting letter to Goodbar Morgan was written by Dr. T. H. Gaillard, M.D., of Magnolia, Ala. Dr. Gaillard wrote, "I have just received a copy of the Southwestern News and have been thinking of the days of yore . . . It seems almost like a dream when I think of the bygone days. At that time we did not have many students but we had the finest faculty in the country. I often wonder what has become of my classmates." Among other reminiscences Dr. Gaillard recalled the following, "Another thing happened that is very unique. A Mr. McComb donated a few thousand dollars to the school and the student body thought we should have a holiday—so after Chapel one morning I think it was Charles Raynal representing us who made the announcement, 'In consideration of Mr. McComb's gift, we, the student body of Southwestern do hereby grant the faculty of said University a twenty-four hour holiday,' which we did, and for which we received bad marks in deportment." *The late Rev. Charles Edward Raynal '03, A.B., B.D., D.D.

Class of 1910

The Rev. Dr. Richard Bolling officiated at the wedding of the daughter of Aubrey Hilliard Bell and Mrs. Bell on August 29 in Greenwood. Dr. Bolling is minister emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church in Cleveland, Miss.

Deceased: Charles M. Day, board chairman and co-founder of the Valley Dolemite Corporation of St. Louis, on September 17 at St. Luke's Hospital, of complications following surgery the previous week. Services were held at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, with burial in Oak Hill cemetery. Mr. Day, who lived at 8 St. Andrew's Drive, Ladue, Missouri, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marguerite K. Day; a son, Henry P. Day; and a daughter, Mrs. Jacob Van Dyke.

Class of 1911

Southwestern has its third generation of Ned Atkinson's family in its current Freshman Class. Ned's son, Dr. Edward R. Atkinson, 1440 Golf Club Lane, Clarksville, Tenn., received his B.S. at Southwestern in 1939 and his M.D. from U.T. in 1940; Ned's grandson, "Ted," is the freshman.

Class of 1915

Dr. Ulysses Short (Preacher) Gordon received tribute for a half a lifetime's work on November 6 when he was feted, after a church supper, by his Gainesville, Fla., First Presbyterian Church congregation. Rev. Gordon was described as "beside himself . . . between tears and laughter," by his secretary, Mrs. W. T. Calloway, as he was reminded of his years of service in the dedication to his work. "Preacher" was presented with a 1964 blue and white Ford Galaxie 500, as a token of the congregation's appreciation. The session had voted several months before to surprise him with the evening dedication and gift. This minister of a congregation of 1500 is listed in Who's Who In America. He received a citation from Florida Blue Key in 1949, a Certificate of Merit from the University of Florida in 1953, a special recognition from the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce in 1963, and an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from Florida University last May. He received his Doctor of Divinity degree from Richard E. Davis '17, Editor and Publisher of The Herald-Register of Trenton, Tennessee, was featured as "Editor of the Week" in the August 17 issue of The Publishers' Auxiliary, a national publication and the oldest in the newspaper profession.

Mr. Davis began his newspaper career as a typesetter for his hometown paper, the Rutherford Register in Rutherford, Tennessee. While attending Southwestern Presbyterian University in Clarksville he worked in the college print shop, but after graduating from college he secured a job as a teacher and would have continued in that field, perhaps, had it not been for a stint in service during World War I. After the war he returned to newspaper work where he has been for half a century or more. It is his opinion that a newspaper should supply to its readers: information, entertainment, and opinion. As for the latter, not a single issue of the Herald-Register has appeared in more than 22 years without at least one editorial written by the editor.

Pauline Jones Hord left Memphis in September for Bogota, Columbia, where she is helping to set up a countrywide television literacy program. The project is sponsored by the Peace Corps and the Laubach Literacy Fund of New York. Pauline is serving for one year as a Peace Corps "short-term specialist," directing production of adult Spanish-language films which will be distributed to about 2,000 television-equipped schools in Colombia, where more than half of the 15 million population is illiterate. Pauline has pioneered in educational television and for five years produced a literacy program over WKNO, Memphis educational television station. She has been associated with the Board of Education for more than 30 years, from which she is now on a year's leave of absence. Pauline has had two books, A Door Opens and Going Forward, designed to help others read, published this year. Two handbooks, written by her to supplement the books, are currently being printed. She was one of 18 persons who, four years ago, received $5,000 grants from the fund for Adult Education to study the teaching of reading by television. Subsequently she helped to make an educational movie in Washington. In 1958 she was named, by the Women's Executive Council of Service Clubs, Memphis' Outstanding Business Woman. In addition to being a Southwestern graduate, Pauline has done graduate work at the University of Chicago and at Syracuse University.

Mary Allie is Rotary's own regularly assigned reporter from The Press-Scimitar, who, each year, also introduces Rotary to the pretty contestants in the Maid of Cotton Contest. She accompanied the Maid of Cotton on the Maid's first trip to Europe; is also the Press-Scimitar's Travel Editor. The award was made by Leslie Stratton. As a Peace Corps member, he must have a project in addition to his regular teaching duties. He has been given a vacant room, in the Sarrat public school, which has not been used since World War II when Japanese soldiers used it for a shooting gallery. He is converting this room into a library center for all the schools in the area and for all members of the community. 1,200 books were donated by the Davidson County (Tennessee) Board of Education to stock the library. They were out-of-date textbooks, included texts in English, math, science, music and other subjects for grades one through 12. Also included were dictionaries and other reference books. The Nashville Rotary Club purchased $190 worth of postage used to mail the books — the stamps included several kinds of commemorative and special issues which will be collected and saved by students in John's stamp club. To raise more money for the project, John's mother, a teacher at Nashville's Hillsboro High School, worked out an arrangement with home economics teachers in the Philippines whereby she takes orders from her friends for hand-woven fabric.
