$10,000 Endowment Gift Celebrates Anniversary

In celebration of the twentieth anniversary of two mortgage-loan firms, the James E. McGehee Company, Incorporated, and the McGehee Mortgage Company, Southwestern At Memphis is the recipient of a $10,000 endowment check establishing an annual scholarship for a deserving Shelby County student. Mr. James E. McGehee, Sr., chairman of the board of both companies, is pictured presenting the check to President David Alexander. At right is Mr. Max Ostner, president of McGehee Mortgage Company.

Alumni Announcements

■ The Alumni Office has moved, and is much more readily accessible to visiting alumni. The office is now in the Harris Memorial Building, better known to most alumni as "the Rollows' house." In recent years it has been used as part of the College of Music. Alumni of all eras are always welcome, and are cordially invited to come by for a visit!

■ Alumni are reminded that Alumni Day has been set for the last Saturday in April, on a permanent year-to-year basis.

Elected to Board of Directors

W. C. Rasberry, of Shreveport, La., and Dr. John W. Wade, of Nashville, Tenn., have recently been elected to Southwestern's Board of Directors. Representing the Synod of Louisiana, Mr. Rasberry succeeds Mr. Alden T. Shotwell, who had completed two four-year terms as a member of the Board. Dr. Wade, representing Tennessee, succeeds Mr. Morton B. Howell, Jr., who had also completed two four-year terms as a director.

Mr. Rasberry received his B.A. degree from Southwestern. His daughter Doris "Sissy," Mrs. Jack B. Caskey, also chose the college as her alma mater, graduating with distinction in Bible in 1959. With extensive timber, real estate, and banking interests in Louisiana, Mississippi, and Florida, Mr. Rasberry has long been a leader in civic affairs. His name is listed in World Who's Who in Commerce and Industry and in Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

Dr. Wade is Dean of the Law School, Vanderbilt University, and, in addition to the Bachelor of Arts, has earned LL.B., LL.M. and S.J.D. degrees. He served on the faculties of the Universities of Mississippi and Texas and during World War II was an officer in the Marine Corps, before joining Vanderbilt in 1947. He is the author of Cases and Materials on Restitution and is listed in Who's Who in America.

The Reverend Mr. James V. Johnson, Jr., of Laurel, Mississippi, was elected at the 1966 meeting of the Synod of Mississippi for the four-year term ending in 1970. Mr. Johnson is not new to the Board, having been appointed in June, 1965, to complete the unexpired term of the Reverend Mr. Murphey C. Wilds, who moved from the Synod.

Likewise, Mr. Belin V. Brodie, of Mobile, Alabama, who was named to the Board in June, 1964, to complete the unexpired term of Mr. Jack Warner, has been elected for the four-year term ending in 1970.

The mellow tones of the Halliburton Tower bell proclaimed the approach of the academic procession to the Hubert F. Fisher Memorial Garden, where an assemblage of more than 800 was gathered on the occasion of the opening convocation of the one hundred and eighteenth session of Southwestern At Memphis. The Honorable Abe Fortas, associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, who earned his Bachelor of Arts degree here in 1930, was present to make the convocational address and to receive yet another degree, that of Doctor of Civil Law.

President David Alexander, presiding, introduced the speaker, observing, "He did not just graduate from Southwestern. He read for honors and received the highest marks in a sterner day when to read for honors required independent work in two subjects." After giving the highlights of his career since graduation, Dr. Alexander concluded, "Thus runs the public record of this remarkable man: For us at Southwestern, though, he holds a special place. This can be demonstrated by a fact not widely known. President Charles E. Diehl was a man of highest standards who relentlessly pursued his ideals of genuineness and excellence. So impressed was President Diehl with this graduate that for years he kept Mr. Fortas's honors thesis on his desk to display what Southwestern's program of independent study really could accomplish in bringing out the best in competent students. And Dr. Diehl's desk had no room for less than the best."

Mr. Justice Fortas, in a speaking voice of soothing timbre and stately measure, prefaced his address by remarking that this was to him a deeply moving occasion, in a setting more beautiful than he remembered, synonymous with the beauty and idealism for which Southwestern stands. Graciously he declined the description, "transplanted Memphian," saying, "For I do not feel that I am . . . I feel that my roots are here . . . and where a plant's roots are determines its characteristics."

“The Chance and the Challenge”

—marked in Convocation address

PRESIDENT Alexander, distinguished faculty members, students and guests.

I'm glad to be home. I'm grateful to you at Southwestern for honoring me. I return with recollections of more people, fondly remembered, than I can appropriately name. But I must at least pay my respects to the late Israel Peres and the Peres family, through whose generosity I was able to attend Southwestern. And by acknowledging my good and warm memories of Dr. Diehl, I know that you will understand that I also mean to recall to mind the members of Southwestern's faculty who opened for me new vistas into man's past and future. Perhaps too, you will indulge me if I acknowledge the warm memories which I have of fellow students at Southwestern, whose friendship meant and still means so much to me.

In this quick and summary way, I reluctantly leave the living markers of the past. The past, on an occasion of this sort, is apt to be overwhelming to the speaker—and merely a curiosity to those born in later generations.

Your world is not the world that my generation experienced. I have no doubt that some of the same torments stir within you; that you, too, must contend—day after day and night after night—with the eternal questions of who, what and why am I? The search for self-knowledge; the struggle for self-realization—these, I think, do not change.

These volcanic forces—contained within the human frame—are the mark of man: the spark that ignited Adam when first he yielded to the temptation to partake of the special knowledge of the gods—the knowledge of good and evil. It is these volcanic forces—it is this torment that makes man great—and that makes him a restless wanderer, always in search of the fruit of the tree which he will never find.

Within this cosmic adventure, each generation has its own rendezvous—its own station to which it must laboriously toil, heavily laden—its own appointed mission. For some generations, the mission is clear. It is prescribed by inexorable events, clearly written. It is dramatic. They are the fortunate generations, however harsh the drama, for such generations, their mission is unmistakable—the focus of their efforts is sharp. Those in such a generation who seek a meaning for life—a purpose to which they may fully dedicate themselves—those in such a generation who seek self-realization through a commitment of life's efforts—have a goal—a life object—clearly defined, clearly at hand.

Mine was such a generation. First, we faced the great depression of the early 1930's; and we were fortunate enough to be given the task of economic reconstruction and human regeneration. Ours was the problem of economic survival for ourselves and for the Nation—and the restoration of hope and national confidence. In this many of us found a purpose and a meaning—a kind of self-realization; certainly a focus which integrated our lives. The struggle was hard, and sometimes bitter; but we were young, and sometimes merciless.

Then, only a few years later—as time is counted by its contemporaries—only shortly after the great New Deal effort had passed its peak—came the Second World War. Again, because of the astonishing blunder of the Japanese at Pearl Harbor and because of the incredible arrogance and outrages of the Germans under Hitler, the people of my generation were able, without reservation or withholding, to dedicate ourselves passionately to this second great mission.

Your generation, I think, has not yet had these paradoxical blessings. Your generation has not confronted a perilous threat to national economic survival. For you, who attend this college, ours has indeed been an affluent society. The problem for most of you has been to cope with the gifts of abundance rather than to overcome the problems of poverty.

It is true that you are at the threshold of a great social revolution upon which this Nation has embarked—a revolution directed at the emancipation and upgrading of the Negro and the poor. This revolution is one of the dramatic chapters in human history. But most of your generation are not participants; they are not couriers of direct personal involvement. To some of your generation, this social revolution has furnished a clarion call to action—to wholehearted participation. But this has been true of only a few of you. Perhaps just as many of your generation—I regret to say—have responded negatively and destructively.

So, for your generation as a whole, I think it is true that you have had no summons to passionate action. No great national call has yet rallied you to total dedication. There was a moment—a moment that promised to present to you a Nation whose purpose was wrapped in poetry—the thrilling moment of a young President, full of grace, who appeared on the political stage. But his moment was disillusioning and brief—shattered first by collision with the realities of national political life with which he did not successfully cope, and then finally, by an assassin's bullet.

And even the powerful medicine of war has lacked—for your generation—its full impact. The war in Vietnam—I regretfully observe—has not yet operated as an energizing, unifying event. This is not because the war is wrongly motivated, it is not. But it is because, to Americans, the issues of this war appear remote. We feel that it is remote not merely because of geography and distance but because we seem unable to realize the war's nearness to our fundamental interests.

Despite recent history, we Americans still have difficulty in accepting Asia and Asiatics as a part of our world. This is an error. For Asia and the Asiatics are our world; and their immediacy of importance is hardly less than that of Europe and its peoples. We can only hope that this new isolationism will not be fatal—that it will not succeed in dissuading our great President from the firmness and persistence that are needed to demonstrate to China and the aggressive nations of the world that they, too, must tolerate the coexistence of nations of different ideology.

So it is that despite the social revolution and the war, I think that yours has to this point been a generation without a rallying point—without a sharp focus to which the emotion and the desire for dedication which exist in each generation might be directed. At the same time, ferment has not been lacking. Indeed, I think you have been in the midst of a profound ferment, signifying the breaking of some old patterns of thought and points of view, and the birth of new ones.

As usual, this ferment was first evident in the arts—in painting and sculpture, in drama and poetry, and in music. In these there has clearly been a burning effort to penetrate the limits of society's institutions and of the accepted modes of thought—an effort to break through the forms and conventions, to search out what might be inner substance—and to reject what is mere form-for-form's sake. Indeed, it has been an effort, analogous with the thrust of man into outer space, to penetrate the limits of self, to seek an ultimate meaning and significance for life, and to communicate, and to express that ultimate meaning.

This kind of ferment is not new. As always, its extreme displays in dress and behavior—or undress and misbehavior—are greeted with misgivings and dismay. But they are unimportant. The important point, I think, is that the ferment exists and that it is vigorous. Troublesome as it is, this ferment presages and prepares for great events that lie ahead.

For I think we are at both the end and the beginning of an era. We are at the end of a world in which individual lives are limited by the horizon. We are at the end of a world in which national life is limited by national boundary.

Now truly, the world is with us. We as a Nation, and each of us as an individual, will be a participant far beyond the horizon that our eyes can see, and far beyond the limits of life as it has heretofore been lived. Now the reality of the Nation's life and the life of each of us is affected daily and pervasively by new and strange factors; and by the events of all the world; and—soon—by developments under the sea and in outer space.

Now truly, we have passed the point where all of our energies may be devoted to the production of material goods for ourselves. We are entering a period when we can and will devote a significant part of our time and resources, not just to acquiring and distributing bread for our own needs, but for the needs of unseen millions in far away places. And we are beginning to add a new dimension to our own lives by providing the opportunity and the means to participate and to enjoy those pursuits which reflect man's divine genius—the cultivation of knowledge; the experience of beauty; the practice and enjoyment of the arts.

And now, truly, we are reaching a new plateau in the never-ending march of mankind to achieve the objectives of religion and morality—the extension of the benefits of law and of our material achievements to all people and not just to a fortunate few. After a century of unfulfilled promise, we have begun to realize in deeds the promise of our Constitution—of one Nation, under law, with equal right and justice for all.

For some of you, a full and satisfying life will be provided by the new world of science—of the outer space of the cosmos—the marvelous depths of the sea, the unknown mysteries of the human mind and body. But this life of adventure is for the few—the fortunate few. They may find the essence of their life outside of the life of events—in the worlds of science; in worlds of such intense reality, that they are divorced from the abstraction that is man's life in society.

The lives of most of us, however, are woven into the fabric of events. The color and pattern, the texture and brilliance of our lives depend upon the richness or barrenness of their context. For us, the passions and frustrations of the times are the principal substance of our lives. As Mr. Justice Holmes once said, "To live is to function"—and he who does not function at the utmost of his capacity, does not live.

I think, as we move from the beginning to the development of this new world—this great society—you too will have your call to greatness—your summons to the summit. You will have the task of bringing about the total acceptance of the world as your neighborhood—the creation of attitudes and institutions fitted to the world and not to a village. You will have the challenge to participate, as a matter of course, in the events of parts of the world that a few years ago were as exotic as places in a fairy tale.

You will have a place and a share in a Nation where, progressively, man will be honored for achievements in the arts—for triumph of the mind, the senses and the creative imagination—and where, truly, we may all share the satisfactions and delights of the culture which man has achieved—his art and philosophy and literature.

And—perhaps most imperatively of all—you and your successors will have the chance and the challenge to complete the democratization of our own Nation—to complete the emancipation of the Negro so as to realize the century-old promise of the 14th and 15th Amendments to our Constitution—that no one shall be deprived of his right to vote on account of race, color or previous condition or servitude; that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property except upon due process of law; and that no citizen shall be denied the equal protection of the laws or the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States.

I say to you as I have said elsewhere, that I honor you of the South for your great accomplishments in these last few years. I have little tolerance for those who have not recognized the formidable task that the South—its judges and lawyers, its leaders and its people—have had thrust upon them; and who do not acclaim the greatness of the South's achievement in surmounting deep-seated customs and traditions to make the progress that is evident in correcting discrimination which has existed too long.

Your generation in the South has the challenge and opportunity which this social revolution presents—the challenge to accept the revolutionary change in the status of the Negro; to create from the fragments of the old conventions and the new order, a new and more vital South—richer and greater because it more closely approximates man's religious and moral conceptions—because it is based upon the principle that all men are equal before the law; and because it will add to the South the full productive capabilities of its vast Negro population as successive generations gradually come to take advantage of the new opportunities opened to them for commitment to law, for self-respect, dignity and achievement.

And so, to all of you, I wish you excitement, happiness, an intense life and much adventure. And to Dr. Alexander, the faculty and the trustees of Southwestern, I repeat my high regard and my thanks for the honor conferred upon me, and my warmest good wishes for an illustrious future. ◀

During the academic year just past several professors took leaves from the college, under its new sabbatical program.

RETURNING to Oxford was Dr. John Henry Davis, accompanied by Mrs. Davis, who set up headquarters in London from September until March. Most of this time he was to be found in the reading and MS rooms of the British Museum and in the Institute of Historical Research, gathering data on Robert Harley, but there was also time for some visiting with Oxford friends, excursions to Canterbury, Cambridge, Coventry, and for poking about London and such places as St. Albans and Windsor. From March until early May the Davises traveled on the continent with Dr. Wenger—also on sabbatical—and visited the Scandinavian countries. They concluded their stay in Europe with bus tours of England, Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, returning to the United States in mid-June. The picture of Dr. and Mrs. Davis was taken in Killarney in a jaunting cart.

Also in Europe were Professor and Mrs. Thomas M. Lowry, Jr. Professor of History and Government, Professor Lowry had as his prime objective the study of European government first hand. The Lowrys were in the United Kingdom during the fall, spent November in Scandinavia and early December in Germany, returning to England for the latter part of the month. From February until June they were at Aix-en-Provence, where Professor Lowry taught one course at the university. In June they visited Spain, Italy, Germany, Austria, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and France.

Flying far to the west and south, right out of autumn into early spring, Dr. John R. Benish spent a part of his semester's sabbatical in New Zealand, the "Erewhon" of Samuel Butler's utopia, touching down briefly at Fiji en route and vacationing for ten days in Hawaii on his return. While in New Zealand, Dr. Benish, professor of English Literature, spent most of his time at the University of Auckland, where he attended classes and seminars, exchanged views with the professors, including the foremost poets of the country, read in the New Zealand room of the library, and participated in various activities of the "spring" quarter in September. The accompanying photo was taken on the campus with Dr. Musgrove, chairman of the English department there. After leaving Auckland, the Benishes made a tour of the North Island, during which they visited a model pa, or village, of the Maoris, witnessed a performance of native songs and dances by a group of Maori young people, and saw such highly touted sights as the famous glow-worm cave, the Wairakei natural steam area, and Mt. Egmont, the "Fujiyama" of New Zealand.

Dr. Danforth Ross, professor of English and a graduate of Southwestern, was on sabbatical leave for the spring semester and completed the first draft of a book titled Story of Existentialism in Modern Fiction and Drama, which he hopes to complete next summer. The book is a project which has grown out of one of his courses, The Modern Novel and Drama. Dr. and Mrs. Ross spent the entire leave on the farm of his mother, Mrs. John W. Ross, Sr., outside Clarksville. To digress a moment, Mrs. John W. Ross, ninety-two years of age, attended classes of the late Dr. Charles Townsend when Southwestern was in Clarksville. She devotes two days a week to visiting Moore School in Clarksville, where students vie to attend her story-hour of Greek mythology. In 1964 Mrs. Ross visited Greece, to enlarge her understanding of the country's history and mythology; this past summer she spent in Scotland doing family genealogical study. However, she no longer does a great deal about the farm, which Dr. Ross runs for her, commuting from Southwestern at least once every month (note accompanying photo). For a distinct change of pace before returning for the fall term Dr. and Mrs. Ross spent three weeks in Mexico, where they visited with friends in San Miguel de Allende and sojourned in Morelia and Mexico City. ◀

“TO MEET TOMORROW”

A fifteen-minute 16mm sound/color movie, “To Meet Tomorrow,” is presently available to alumni groups, churches and civic organizations at no charge.

Interested groups or individuals may write, or call collect, the Office of Public Relations at Southwestern.

Frances McGregor Memorial Fund

Alumnae and collegiate members of Alpha Delta Chapter of Kappa Delta Sorority have established a memorial fund in honor of the late Frances McDonald McGregor '62. Contributions, still being received, stood at $676.30 in mid-October.

ONE of my happiest experiences as Dean of Admissions is that of welcoming back an alumnus who returns to introduce his teen-age son or daughter. An old friendship is renewed, a new one made, and information exchanged in an atmosphere of genuine concern for the student, the college, and the ideals cherished by the parent. When the student has a strong academic record and a sincere interest in coming to Southwestern, it is a double joy to answer his questions about present curriculum and campus life and to help him apply for admission and financial aid if that will be needed. Such an interview is one of mutual appreciation and understanding. Would that every day were blessed with many such happy occasions!

Alas, such is not always the case! Some days are filled with difficulties, the kind every admissions officer must face. One such difficulty is the obligation to tell an “alumni child” and his parents that success for him is not likely at Southwestern and therefore an application for admission is inadvisable. Most alumni parents, however, appreciate this counsel for what it is intended to be; namely, a genuine concern for the well-being of the student involved.

A more frequent difficulty is the selection of a limited number of applicants from a category of acceptable applicants too numerous for all to be admitted. The question which the Admissions Committee must inevitably answer, then, is: “Which students should be selected?”

SW'S ADMISSION PROCEDURE

■ Some colleges give numerical values to each factor that must be considered in their selection of applicants, and final decisions are based solely on the computed figures. Southwestern's procedure is a combination of two approaches: (1) ranking students academically and (2) selecting them individually by vote of the Committee. Thus standards are set as high as possible, yet all factors in individual cases receive careful consideration. To illustrate how this procedure actually works out, the following percentages from this year's 305 applications from out-of-town freshman women are given:

40% of total were accepted, of whom 65% matriculated

61% of Presbyterians from cooperating synods were accepted, of whom 60% matriculated

64% of alumni children were accepted, of whom 57% matriculated

Children of alumni and Presbyterians from the cooperating synods, then, are definitely given priority, especially when all other factors are constant. Of interest to alumni is the fact that 95 students currently at Southwestern have alumni parents, and over 200 have alumni relatives.

THE CLASS OF 1966

■ Of further interest is the fact that, of the 178 graduates from the class of 1966, 56% of the men and 31% of the women are attending graduate school. The remainder are teaching, serving in the armed forces, engaged in business, marriage, or other worthwhile pursuits.

CURRENT STUDENTS

■ Since alumni like to keep up with the growth of the college, a glance at the current student body and freshman class is in order. There are 1019 students, compared to 993 last year. Of the 1019, 990 are regular, full-time students (958 last year) and 29 are special students. Of the regular, 60% are resident and 40% commute; 56% are men and 44% women. The majority are from southern states, and nine are from foreign countries. 38% of the students receive some sort of financial assistance.

CURRENT FRESHMEN

■ The freshman class is smaller than last year: 299 compared to 327 in 1965-66. Men number 168 (56%) and women 131 (44%). Twenty-two states are represented, 116 cities, and 168 secondary schools.

The overall quality of the freshman class, considered in terms of academic preparation, continues to improve gradually. The Scholastic Aptitude Test average score this year is 1151, compared to 1135 last year, 1125 in 1964, and 1088 in 1963.* Last year 74% of the freshmen were in the first quarter of their high school graduating class; this year the percentage is 77%. The number in the upper half of the senior class remains at 94%.

Sixty-one freshmen have been designated Southwestern Scholars, which means that they have made at least 1200 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, were in the first quarter of their graduating classes, and were highly recommended by the officials of their high schools. Twenty-seven of them have been awarded Honor Scholarships. Nine Baker Scholarships and thirteen Leadership Awards were also won in competition.

ALUMNI PARTICIPATION

■ We hope alumni will continue to guide prospective students and encourage well-qualified young people—especially their own children—to apply for admission to Southwestern. Thus, "Alumni and Admissions" will continue to be a happy partnership, and many other joyous occasions will be provided in the future.

*EDITOR'S NOTE: In comparing Scholastic Aptitude Test scores of all students who entered colleges this fall, Southwestern freshmen men ranked at approximately the 75th percentile; Southwestern freshmen women at approximately the 80th percentile.

NOTEWORTHIES

■ Dr. Alexander Leads Council

Dr. David Alexander was recently elected to head the University Council on Education for Public Responsibility. The election meeting was held in New Orleans, and was also attended by Dean Jameson M. Jones, and Dr. Granville D. Davis, dean of continuing education at Southwestern. The Council is a group concerned with the utilization of adult education to bring citizen awareness of public duties.

■ Elder Heads ODK Associates

Robert A. Elder, 1940 Southwestern graduate, is the new president of Memphis ODK Associates, national leadership honor society for college men. Harte Thomas, a 1934 Southwestern graduate, is the incoming vice-president and Dr. John Quincy Wolf, professor of English at Southwestern, continues as secretary for the organization, a post he has held since its establishment in 1949. Alumni of many colleges and universities comprise the membership of the Memphis chapter. ODK recognizes leadership in all dimensions of college life.

There was recently established by ODK Associates the John Q. Wolf Scholarship at Southwestern, and Dr. Wolf was presented a plaque recognizing his service to the chapter. During the 1965-66 academic session five Southwestern students were given financial assistance by ODK Associates.

■ Alumni Earn Doctoral Degrees

The Alumni Office has recently been informed of the doctoral degrees earned by the alumni listed below:

Kenneth Ray Barker '61, Ph.D., 1966, Texas, Zoology.

Melvin Bernstein '46, Ph.D., 1965, North Carolina, Music.

Ed. Smith Dorman '58, Ph.D., 1965, Johns Hopkins, Physics.

Ben Marshall Dukes '58, Ph.D., 1965, Alabama, Education.

James L. Henderson '52, Ph.D., 1964, Houston, Clinical Psychology.

John D. Hettinger '60, Ph.D., 1966, Wisconsin, Chemistry.

Marshall P. Jones '59, Ph.D., 1966, Virginia, Mathematics.

Enloe T. Ritter '61, Ph.D., 1966, Johns Hopkins, Physics.

■ A New Service for Southwestern Graduates Considering a Change in Employment

The Southwestern Placement Office has added a new service to acquaint graduates with the wide range of employer opportunities available to them. Called the GRAD system (for Graduate Resumé Accumulation and Distribution), it is operated for college placement offices by The College Placement Council, Inc., Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, a non-profit corporation.

How does GRAD work for you? Write to Dr. Fred Pultz, Southwestern Placement Director, for a resumé form. Complete and return it to Dr. Pultz for forwarding to The College Placement Council. Your name and professional qualifications are thus placed in the Council's computer system for immediate access by prospective employers. When referral to your resumé results in employer interest, he will contact you directly. Your resumé remains available to employers for six months. It will then be removed and the Southwestern Placement Office advised of the number of referrals it received during that period. There is no charge to you, nor is there a limitation to the number of times your resumé may be referred to potential employers.

Members of the Southwestern Placement Office staff will be glad to answer any further questions regarding use of the GRAD system. Direct correspondence or telephone calls to The College Placement Council should not be initiated.

■ In New "Who's Who"

The names of five Southwestern alumni have been added to the 34th Edition of "Who's Who in America." They are:

Mr. Brice Marchbanks Draper '30, Hartford, Conn., Executive Vice President of the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

Dr. James Gilliam Hughes '32, Memphis, Tenn., physician. Chairman, Dept. of Pediatrics, Univ. of Tenn.; Pediatrician-in-Chief, City of Memphis Hospitals; president, American Academy of Pediatrics.

Mr. Joseph Alexander Moss '34, Fairfax, Va. Director of the Cotton Policy staff, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Dr. Henry M. Oliver, Jr. '34, Bloomington, Ind., economics and educator. Professor of Economics, University of Indiana.

Mr. Shepherd Tate '39, Memphis, Tenn., lawyer. Former president, Tennessee Bar Association and of the Southwestern Alumni Association; member, Southwestern Executive Committee.

■ Dan Bowen Killed in Collision

Dan Bowen '62 was fatally injured August 10 in an automobile accident near Corinth, Miss. The accident occurred in a heavy rain, when the driver of a station wagon lost control of her car and skidded in Dan's small foreign one. Dan was en route to Memphis after a brief holiday at Pickwick Lake.

An honor student at Southwestern, he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, ODK, and the Student Council. Listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," he was also named to Southwestern's Hall of Fame and was the recipient of a Woodrow Wilson fellowship for graduate study.

Following graduation, he served two years with the Peace Corps in Africa. Upon his return in 1965, he entered graduate school at UCLA, where his field was African Studies. He had joined the faculty at Memphis University School this summer, and, in addition to teaching there, was doing further graduate work at Memphis State University.

He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Bowen, of 3447 Rockwood, a brother, and five sisters.

by Ray Hill, M.F.A.

Associate Professor of Speech and Dramatics

This past summer Southwestern cooperated with Front St. Theatre in a unique theatrical venture, the Summer Youth Theatre. The Youth Theatre is unique in this country in that its members actually operate the theatre for nine weeks—promote, produce, and perform the plays, administer the offices, build the scenery, make the costumes, man the box office, handle publicity and public relations, attend classes—working, studying, and learning under professional supervision. The Rockefeller Foundation was so impressed by the worthwhile character of the project that it made a grant of $17,000 for it, with an additional $10,000 grant to be made available next summer to enable the enterprise to continue. The Memphis Arts Council provided the $25,000 necessary to complete the budget.

Of particular importance is the fact that this was the only such grant made by the Rockefeller Foundation, which showed further interest in Southwestern's encouragement of the theatrical arts of the community by granting another $10,000 so that Dr. Jack R. Conrad, Professor of Sociology and Anthropology, can carry out a two-year sociological survey of the general audience potential in the Mid-South region. This may serve as the prototype for similar audience surveys in other areas of the country.

Ninety-eight young people between the ages of 14 and 21 were involved in the Summer Youth Theatre, which culminated in the presentation in repertory of Thornton Wilder's The Skin of Our Teeth and a triple bill made up of Sean O'Casey's Hall of Healing, Christopher Fry's The Boy With a Cart, and Maurice Maeterlinck's The Intruder. An English course in world drama, and a drama course in theatre history were offered by members of the Southwestern faculty. College-age participants in the Youth Theatre were eligible to take both these courses for college credit at no cost.

Members of the Front St. Theatre staff and acting company taught non-credit courses daily on the Southwestern campus. These included stage movement, taught by Leon Russom, and acting, taught by Allen Bates, Tom Carson and Phil Price. Southwestern also provided rehearsal space.

Southwestern has played an integral part in the theatrical maturing of Memphis and the Mid-South. The undergraduate Southwestern Players and the Adult Education Center-sponsored Center Players have each season offered a varied dramatic bill of fare with the emphasis on revivals of the classics and the introduction of avant garde and experimental plays.

In the past decade, the two groups have presented four plays by Shaw, four by Ibsen, eight by Moliere, two by O'Casey, one by Synge, one by Lorca, two by Strindberg, three by Chekov, one by Camus, two by Sartre, five by Tennessee Williams, one by Arthur Miller, one by Marivaux, one by Capek, and eight classic Greek plays. In addition, seven original scripts have been produced.

To encourage a better choice of plays in the high schools, the college has sponsored a High School Classical Drama Festival. This past summer a week-long religious drama workshop was conducted on the campus with participants coming from six states.

Beginning this fall the Southwestern Players and Center Players are planning a four-year cycle of production with a one-year concentration on our classical heritage, with the season's plays being Greek and Roman classics or modern plays utilizing Greek and Roman themes. Next year's concentration will be on our oriental heritage, to be followed by two years of emphasis on our European heritage.

Euripides' Medea was performed by the Center Players in Hardie Auditorium, October 25, 26, and 27. Other plays under consideration for the 1966-67 season are Jack Richardson's The Prodigal, a modern version of the Electra-Orestes theme; The Infernal Machine, Jean Cocteau's reworking of the Oedipus story; and Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors, which he based on the old Roman farce The Twin Menaechmi, by Plautus. ◀

NEW MEMBERS OF FACULTY AND STAFF

Doughty

Gill

Pultz

Included in the opening convocation academic procession were 16 newly appointed faculty members who will serve the college in various departments this year. Three of these professors are Southwestern alumni, five hold doctoral degrees, and a sixth is a candidate for the Ph.D.

The department of Bible and religion adds four new members: Dr. Darrell J. Doughty, Dr. Jerry H. Gill, Mrs. Frederick D. Pultz, and Dr. Carl Walters.

Dr. Doughty joins the faculty as assistant professor of Bible and religion and comes to Southwestern from Princeton Theological Seminary, where he served as an instructor in New Testament. Dr. Doughty received his B.S. degree from the University of California at Berkeley and the B.D. degree from San Francisco Theological Seminary, where he was awarded the Senior Honors Fellowship and a faculty scholarship for graduate study. He earned the Th.D. degree at the University of Gottingen. Dr. Doughty is married and the father of a young daughter.

Dr. Gill received the Ph.D. degree from Duke University and comes to Southwestern as assistant professor of philosophy. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Westmont College, Santa Barbara, California, his Master of Arts from the University of Washington, Seattle, and the B.D. degree from New York Biblical Seminary. Dr. Gill is married and has one son.

Mrs. Pultz has been named instructor, part-time, in Christian education. As the wife of Dr. Pultz, director of vocational counseling and professor of psychology and education at Southwestern, and the new president of the Southwestern Woman's Club, Mrs. Pultz was already well known on the campus. She received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Arkansas College, the Master of Religious Education from the Presbyterian School of Christian Education, and has taught in Missouri, Virginia, and Tennessee. The Pultzes have three sons.

Dr. Walters, assistant professor of Bible and religion, is a 1956 graduate of Southwestern. He graduated cum laude from Union Theological Seminary, where he also obtained the Th.M. and Th.D. degrees. From 1962-66 he taught at Hampden-Sydney College as associate professor of Bible and philosophy, serving as chairman of the Bible Department last year. He has done special study in the field of New Testament Synoptic Problems, and during the summer of 1965 was a member of the Institute for Mediterranean Studies where his particular field of study was that of Biblical archaeology. Mrs. Walters is the former Miss Robin Ruth Sprague, also a 1956 graduate of Southwestern. They have two children.

Walters

McKamie

Joining the College of Music as professor of piano is William J. McKamie, who holds the Bachelor of Music degree and the Master of Music, with honors, from Baylor University.

Professor McKamie has done additional study at the University of Texas and from 1953-1966 was on the faculty at Baylor. He has been soloist with the Waco and Houston symphonies, served as Texas State Piano Chairman, and Director, T.M.T.A., and is a member of Apha Chi and Phi Mu Alpha. He and Mrs. McKamie have four sons.

Miss Ann Kendall, visiting instructor in music, comes to Southwestern from the University of Indiana, where she is a candidate for the M.M. degree. Miss Kendall graduated magna cum laude from Florida State University with a B.A. degree in cello, and with honors in philosophy. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Pi Kappa Lambda, Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Alpha Iota, and Mortar Board. She played with the Mobile and Tallahassee symphony orchestras, the Birmingham Pops and University of Indiana orchestras, and as principal cellist with the Florida State University Symphony.

The language department adds four new members: Miss Angelika D. Führmann, Mrs. Charles L. Mosby, Mrs. J. William Rowland, and Mrs. Robert H. Williams.

A native of Germany, Miss Führmann holds a certificat as a teacher of French from the Université de Poitiers and a Diplom-Ubersetzerin from the Universität des Saarlandes. She comes to Southwestern as instructor in French and German, having taught German in France and at the University of Virginia. During her college years she won awards for outstanding scholarship and served as a graduate assistant at the University of Richmond, Westampton College, teaching both French and German. She has aided in the compilation of the Vocabulary of International Organizations and the Technical Vocabulary Treatise, both published in Germany.

Returning to the faculty as acting assistant professor of Spanish is Mrs. Charles L. Mosby, the former Rose Link, a Southwestern graduate of 1953. She holds the M.A. degree from Tulane, has taught at Randolph-Macon Woman's College and has served several times on the Southwestern faculty in a part-time capacity. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Eta Sigma Phi, and Phi Sigma Iota, she is married to an alumnus who is also a member of the Southwestern faculty. They have two children.

Mrs. J. William Rowland is a part-time instructor in English. She earned her Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees at the University of Arkansas, and was formerly an instructor of English at Little Rock University. She and her husband are the parents of a daughter.

Another part-time member of the faculty is Mrs. Robert H. Williams who is also an instructor in English. Mrs. Williams is a graduate of Queens College of New York, where she also obtained the Master of Arts degree. Her fields of specialization include Development of the Novel and English Literature in the 14th and 15th centuries. A Phi Beta Kappa, Mrs. Williams received graduate fellowships from 1962-65, and a travel grant from the University of New York in 1965. She and her husband have one son.

Dr. Lawrence E. Noble is associate professor of political science. He received his A.B. from the University of Mississippi, the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Duke, and has done independent study at Columbia, Yale, and the London School of Economics and Political Science. He has served on the faculties at Centre College, the University of Mississippi, and Drew University. A Lieutenant Commander in the USNR, Dr. Noble is a member of ODK, the American Political Science Association, and the AAUP. An active Presbyterian, he is a former Moderator of Transylvania Presbytery in Kentucky. He and Mrs. Noble have four children.

Mr. Clyde Nunley comes to the college as assistant professor of mathematics. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Tulsa. He has taught at the University of Minnesota, the University of Tulsa, the University of Oklahoma, and at Central State College, Edmond, Oklahoma. From 1963-65 he was a National Aeronautics and Space Administration Fellow at the University of Oklahoma. Mr. Nunley is married and his wife teaches mathematics at The Hutchison School.

A part-time instructor in sociology, Mr. Thomas G. Seabrook received his Bachelor of Arts in sociology from Carleton University in Ottawa, and his Master of Arts from McGill University, Montreal. A Canadian, he has served as a teaching assistant in introductory sociology at McGill and as a part-time lecturer at Carleton. He is married and has one child.

Mr. Dolph Smith is visiting instructor in art. He received the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts in advertising design from the Memphis Academy of Arts and has been engaged in advertising as well as painting during the past six years. He is listed in the 1966 Outstanding Young Men of America, and holds memberships in the American Veterans Society of Artists and the Watercolor Society of Alabama. He and his wife have three children.

Streete

The third Southwestern alumnus to join the faculty this year is John L. Streete, who received his B.S. in 1960 and his M.S., from the University of Florida, in 1963. Presently a candidate for the Ph.D. from Florida, he is assistant professor of physics and research physicist in the Laboratory of Atmospheric and Optical Physics. A member of Sigma Si, Sigma Pi Sigma, and Chi Beta Phi, he has had articles published in Applied Optics and in the Journal of the Optical Society of America. He is married to the former Mary Elizabeth McCharen, who also graduated from Southwestern. They have two children.

Warren

Dr. Charles O. Warren, Jr., is assistant professor of biology. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the Ph.D. in botany at the University of Florida, where he also worked as a graduate assistant in general botany and interim instructor in general botany and plant physiology. He is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon and Phi Sigma; has had articles published in the Virginia Journal of Science and the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station Technical Bulletin.

THREE ALUMNI JOIN STAFF

Miss Louisa Eubanks Fulton, Mrs. Mary Ann Vollmer, and Mr. Richard Johnston are alumni joining the college staff this fall. Miss Fulton, who received her Bachelor of Music degree in 1965 and is a candidate for the master's degree from Union Theological Seminary, is serving the College of Music in the capacity of secretary. Mrs. Vollmer, the former Mary Ann Kimbrough and a member of the class of 1960, is a secretarial assistant in the Office of Development, on part-time basis. "Dick" Johnston, a 1966 graduate, is the Field Representative for Admissions. Dick was vice-president of the sophomore class, president of the junior class, and senator of the senior class. He was selected for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" last year and is a member of ODK.

Other new staff members are Mrs. Noble Brewington, clerical assistant in the Alumni Office; Mrs. J. Richard Cox, assistant to the Registrar; Mrs. Wilma B. Duke, Financial Aid Assistant; Mrs. Emory Grinnell, Assistant Catalogue Librarian; Mrs. Bonita Bruce Thompson, Resident Nurse; and Mrs. Martha West, secretary to the Dean of the College. ◀

At Southwestern— A LOT OF CHEERS ARE ON INSIDE

By Charles Gillespie Staff Writer, "The Commercial Appeal" Sunday Morning, October 2, 1966

LAST night Ole Miss was playing Alabama and a hundred thousand people and maybe more wanted to buy tickets for the game. An inestimable number of other fans hung near their radios waiting for every word to filter through the tension and the excitement.

Yesterday afternoon Southwestern played Centre College in a quiet residential neighborhood of Memphis. A few hundred spectators were in the stands, the ticket booth was a lone young man seated at a table, and the most pressure apparent was applied by two small boys who asked a bass drummer if they could bang his drum.

The two contests and the two scenes were basically the same—intercollegiate football. In the one instance there was a game on the upper level of the big time, in the other a game so nearly typical of small college football it was almost a cliché of the type.

Southwestern's stadium is on a far corner of the campus, almost invisible from the surrounding streets. The setting is not pastoral, but almost is. From the top of the stadium a man can be seen strolling near one of the school's buildings. He gives every impression of being a man seeking solitude and finding it.

A section of the stands large enough to seat Coxey's Army has been reserved for the pep band, a small band of large ambition and enthusiasm. The uniform of a Southwestern pep band member seems to be no uniform at all although the aforementioned bass drummer is wearing an elaborate hat of Tolstoian character—a campaign hat that has seen a lot of campaigning.

Name the ingredients at Mississippi Memorial stadium and at Southwestern and they are the same. The bands and the cheerleaders were there (small-college cheerleaders are just as pretty as big-time cheerleaders), two fierce rivalries were renewed.

Differences, however, are obvious, the most obvious being that you can tell Centre and Southwestern are playing an unsubsidized sort of football with people who major in English literature and things like that. There are a few good athletes present, but fat boys who haven't been through the sweatstorm of a year-around program of dieting and training are playing for the teams, and skinny boys, and boys who wear glasses . . . GLASSES, in the Tom Wolfe style.

The Centre center actually determines the issue in what was one of the major Southwestern victories of recent seasons. A snap on one punting situation was so high the punter has to leap for the ball and his kick was blocked and the snap on the next situation dribbled along the ground. The Centre center was gloriously inconsistent in his failures and this is the part of small-college football that contributes most toward making it an excitement and an amusement.

Jack Farris, an English professor and a writer whose bristly mustache gives him the appearance of an English professor and a writer, is one of the Southwestern fans. He was a scholarship athlete at Ouachita, attended Michigan when the Wolverines were champions of the West.

"I'm just a football fan," he said, "but particularly a Southwestern fan . . . I've just about quit going to the big games though. The drinking in the stadium, the traffic—this is like a picnic, something to enjoy. I like to bring my wife and my boys out."

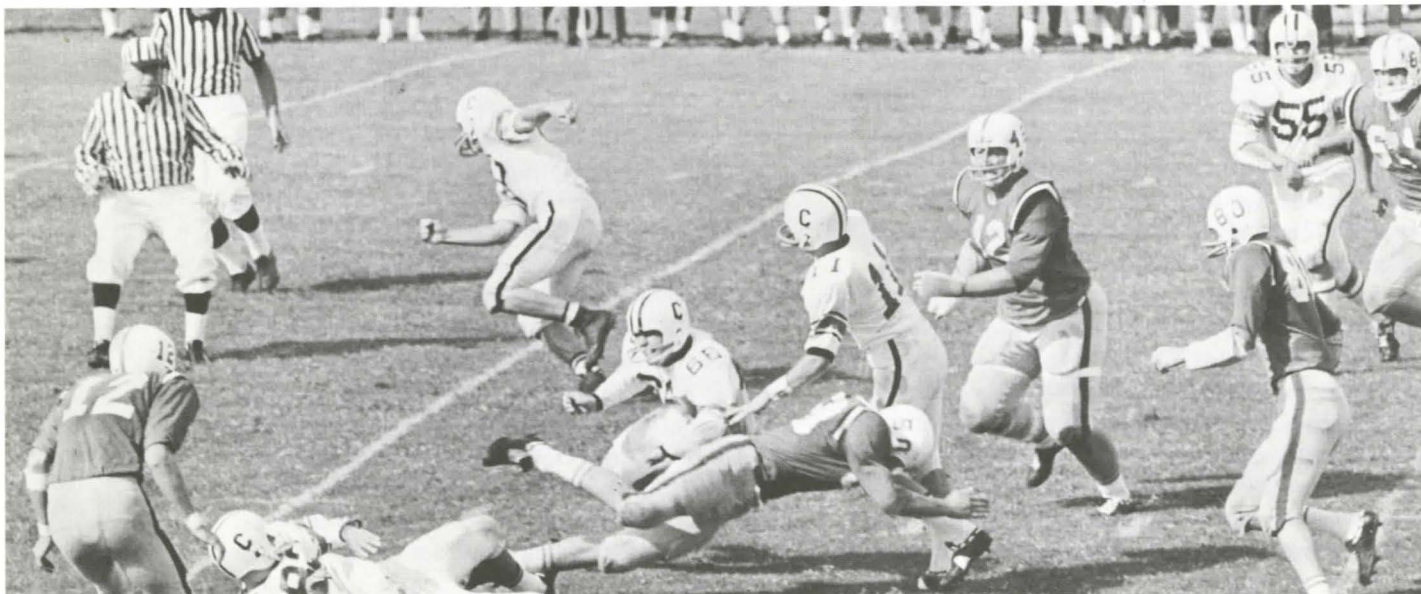

Farris does not think the pulverizing licks passed between major college teams contribute a great deal to the excitement of football.

"We beat Principia here last year in the last three minutes, 28 to 24 I think it was, and that was one of the most exciting games I've ever seen. I don't think the Memphis State-Ole Miss game was very interesting from a spectator's point of view and I've seen Big Ten teams, great teams, play terribly dull games.

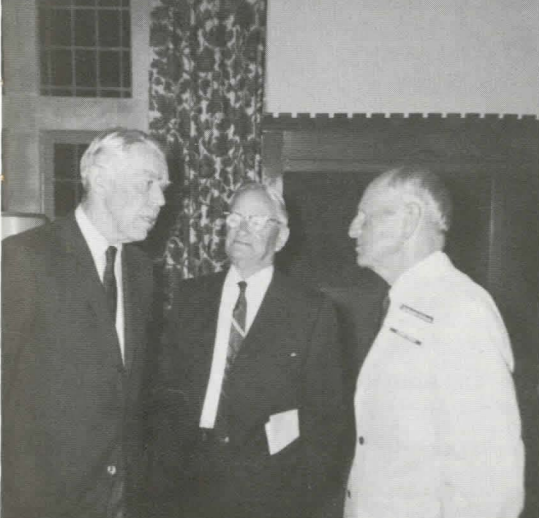

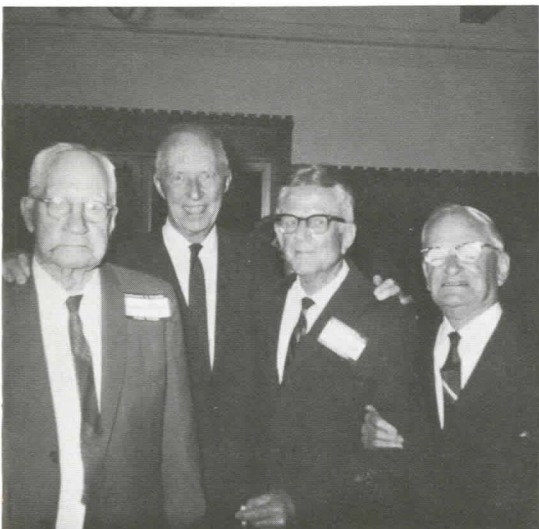

"I used to think after you'd watched the big teams for a long time you could never enjoy football on this level, but that isn't true and in the past few years I've learned to enjoy this more than any other kind of football. You get to know all the players in the classroom and if I were in a larger school, like Memphis State, you might go through an entire year and not know a single player . . . Our coaches are a participative part of the faculty. We have coffee with them in the morning and they tell us about the team and we tell them how to run the team."

At halftime, a man somebody identified as the team physician lay down on the padded stretcher near the Lynx-cat bench and relaxed in the sunshine; in the third quarter Southwestern came through on a crucial play and the keeper of the down marker, standing in the middle of the Centre College substitutes, jumped up and down and cheered; no, the traditional dog did not appear on the playing field, but a dog was trotting around in the grandstand, lapping up an abandoned soft drink and shrugging off affection.

At the end a Southwestern player, No. 30, threw his helmet high in the air. He caught it expertly and raced off the field, stumbling and falling over the curb of the running track. ◀

Snapped at the Alumni Weekend reception honoring classes through 1920 were, left to right: Edward Walthal '04, Dr. W. J. Millard '20, Dr. M. L. MacQueen '19, and Dr. T. T. Williams '10. 1899

The June issue of the Kiwanis Courier, monthly publication of the Alabama District of Kiwanis, devoted a page bannered "Meet 'Dr. Jack' Kiwanian, Scholar, Gentleman" in a salute to Jack P. Montgomery and his lifetime of teaching and service. In a recent letter Dr. Jack wrote, "Any success which I have had as a teacher should be largely credited to the excellent faculty at old S.P.U. 1896-99." He is pictured with his daughter and granddaughter.

William Atkinson (Dr. W. R.) has been reelected to a three-year term as a trustee of Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Foundation . . . A. H. Patch wrote last summer saying he was returning to Clarksville (Tenn.) to live . . . Pete (Dr. R. P.) Richardson retired in July as associate pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Pine Bluff, Ark., but continues to be actively involved in church, civic, and social affairs. Scarcely a Sunday goes by that he is not filling a pulpit in the area.

1920

Robert Johnston, Lexington, Miss., visited the campus in July. After earning his M.S. in biology at Southwestern and the Ph.C. at the University of Tennessee, he served on the faculties of several colleges and universities before devoting all his time to pharmacy.

1922

James Marcum has retired from the USA Corps of Engineers and spends much time traveling. When at home in Corinth, Miss., his favorite hobbies are rebuilding and repairing furniture and machinery.

1926

Prim Rodriguez's sister Louisa (Mrs. John Conroy, Jr. '23) tells us that Prim and his lovely wife make their home in Warwick, Va. They have three daughters, five grandchildren.

1927

Charles Murphy, Jr., Cheverly, Md., is a chemical consultant with the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory in Washington. He has had many articles published in chemical and technical journals, and his special hobby is antique furniture. He and Mrs. Murphy have two daughters.

1929

Tom Garrett is the new president of Pi Kappa Alpha Memorial Foundation. T. M. and Lina (Hughes '31) live in Tunica, Miss., where he has farming interests and an automobile agency. A former Mississippi state senator and a past president of the Southwestern Alumni Association, he has previously served the foundation as secretary and treasurer.

1930

Stanford Parnell, formerly at Holly Springs, Miss., has accepted a call to become minister of the Dixie and Belcher, La., Presbyterian churches. . . . Bill Schulz, executive vice president of the Brickell Institute of Leadership Training, and Miss Mary Alice Yearwood were married July 16. . . . Abe Fortas took time out from his crowded schedule as a United States Supreme Court Justice to appear at the annual meeting of the Tennessee Bar Association in Chattanooga; he addressed delegates at a joint luncheon of the Tennessee Bar Association and the Tennessee Judicial Conference.

1931

Memphis Board of Education has named Margaret Williams head of a new department to counsel teachers and map new policies for the Board. Longtime director of certificated personnel, Margaret spent so many hours counseling the more than 5,000 city teachers that it was decided to create the new department. . . . A call came in the summer from Donald Kern, Chicago, asking for the addresses of George ("Dode") Farnsworth '29 and Norman Thornton '29. Away for thirty years, Don was thinking he'd like to come back for Homecoming. . . . No matter how long some people are gone, time seems to change their appearance not at all. Such a one is Frances Arthur MacLeod (Mrs. Malcolm), whose visit coincided with Opening Convocation. Lucille Work Ingram (Mrs. R. A.) and Frances enjoyed a deluxe tour of the campus after the reception following the Fortas address.

1932

Bill Hall, Shreveport, has been elected "Boss of the Year" by the American Business Women's Association, Srebo Chapter. In addition to his practice of medicine, Bill devotes much time to Hollywood Heights Presbyterian Church, and the Leprosy Mission at Carville, La. He is a member of the governing board of the YMCA, the "in person" sponsorship of the Billy Graham Campus Crusade, and the American Bible Society.

Annah Lee Early is Memphis' recently elected "Outstanding Business Woman of the Year" by members of the Women's Executive Council. President of Southern Greeting Card Company since 1961 and a past president of the Southwestern Women of Memphis, she is currently serving on the board of the Memphis Better Business Bureau—the first woman to serve on this board. In 1964 she was the recipient of the "Outstanding Woman Who Works" award, in the field of community service. When asked to give her formula for success, she answered, "Genuine interest in your job, a desire to do it well—and hard work."

Helen Lowrance, Head of the Lower School at Hutchison, recently earned a master's degree in Education Administration. . . . Martha Tabb Sullivan (Mrs. Charles C., Jr.) is social secretary at the new Club LaRonde.

Bob Pfrangle, minister of The Old Stone Presbyterian Church, Lewisburg, W. Va., attended the 178th General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., in Boston, as the fraternal delegate from the Presbyterian Church in the United States. He is Moderator of the Synod of West Virginia and holds the D.D. degree from Davis and Elkins College.

The Old Stone Presbyterian Church, built in 1796, is the oldest church unrestored and in continuous use west of the Alleghenies.

"Muff" Gordon, properly Dr. Helen Gordon, Dean of Women at Louisiana State University, is pictured (See picture at top of page 17) at left at a Chi Omega tea held in her honor, at which she was presented with a "Council Ring," in recognition of her services as a former national officer of Chi Omega. Muff was on campus as the official delegate of LSU at the inauguration of President David Alexander. Nellie Sue Casburn, president of Chi Omega, is pictured with her.

Art Womble and Art III went to a summer wedding in Kansas City in their 17½ foot Century Resorter runabout. The distance is 775 river miles and they had to be on time, since Art III was in the wedding party. Playing it safe, the ladies of the family, Mary Frances (nee Aydelott '39) and daughter Christy, traveled by train.

We were deeply saddened by the death of Jean Reid Walker's (Mrs. Frederick W., Jr.) son, Fred III, in an automobile accident near Stanford University in June. The Walkers live in Hinsdale, Ill. They have a daughter, Jean, who is a senior at Lake Forest College.

The appointment of David Gibson as Assistant General Agent of Denby Brandon and Associates was announced last spring. Other Southwestern alumni in the office include Denby Brandon '50 and Bill McClure '51. All three are married to Southwestern alumnae. . . . If you have wondered why that lady in the Sanka tv commercial looks and sounds so familiar, we can satisfy your curiosity—it's Betty Bruce Miller (Mrs. Sydney). She and Sydney were on vacation in Ft. Lauderdale and got chilly at the Marina.

When a coffee-mobile appeared they decided to have a cup of coffee. Betty says, "The man who gave us the coffee asked how it was, and I said it was terribly good. He thought I said, 'Oh, it's terrible,' and he said, 'What did you say?' I said, 'It's terribly good.' He had been upset, but that made him happy. We talked a minute, and then he said it was Sanka, and I said I didn't believe it. He showed me the bottle, and then I said something real country. I said, 'Well, I'll be doggone.' Then he told us we had been 'on camera' and might be on tv. The chances of it being shown seemed so remote that I forgot all about it. I was surprised months later when I got a letter asking us to sign a contract." Every time it's shown, Betty gets a check from Sanka. . . . Charles Schuenck, M/Sgt., USA, recently returned to the country after spending six months at the American Embassy in La Paz, Bolivia, and four months at the Embassy in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, on temporary duty.

Ward Archer is president of the Advertising Club of Memphis. He is a partner in Archer & Woodbury, Inc., and is married to a SW alumna, the former Louise ("Peachie") Thompson '44. . . . Jane Bray Wessman (Mrs. Keith) doesn't know it, but we had been unable to locate her for several years until this summer when she wrote to the Registrar's Office requesting a transcript be sent to the Board of Education in Huntsville, Ala.

1940

Ann (Eckert) and Wallace Mayton enjoyed a breath of Canadian air in June when they attended the Second North American Family Life Conference at Hamilton, Ontario. . . . A letter from (Dr.) Ralph Bethea reported his return to Tanzania in July "from extensive tripping which included a visit to India to buy land for a prospective hospital in the city of Bangalore. Our mission board has asked our family to move to India in August to expedite the hospital in Bangalore." Ralph and Lizette (nee McCall '43) have been in Tanzania, where Ralph is a medical missionary, for several years following a sabbatical spent in Memphis. Before that, they spent four years in Indonesia. As Ralph wrote, they were anticipating a visit from Lizette's father, brother (Dr. John W. McCall, Jr.), sister-in-law, and nephew. . . . Among new Brooks Art Gallery officers are Josephine Tully Hall (Mrs. L. Parker, Jr.), president; Suzanne Ransom Young (Mrs. John D.) '47, treasurer; Diana Wallace Crump (Mrs. Charles M.) '41, recording secretary; Eva Gene Bruce Bringle (Mrs. Carey) '36, Mid-South exhibition chairman. . . . DeWitt Spain has been named inspector general for the Air Force's Tactical Air Command, a position which places him on the special staff of the commander-in-chief of TAC and in which he must evaluate the tactical capabilities of each unit within TAC. He comes to the new post, at Langley Air Force Base, Va., from England, where he commanded the Tenth Reconnaissance Wing, a part of NATO.

Bland Cannon was chairman of the organizational meeting of the Memphis and Mid-South Medical Center Board, formed to study the burgeoning medical center and "analyze how best to coorordinate the various efforts there and provide for logical growth." Other alumni named to the Board included Al Wunderlich '39, John D. Hughes, '32, Hubert Turley '40, Hays Owen '47, and Palmer Brown '30 . . . A. B. Long, Jr. writes that he regretfully had to miss the 25th reunion but is counting on making the 50th and all intervening ones. He's president of the Tennessee Roadbuilders Association, a director of American Roadbuilders Association, a director of the Knoxville Chamber of Commerce, and has an LL.B. degree from U.T. . . . Harriet Hollis McLoughlin represented Southwestern and President Alexander in the academic procession of the Rutgers University Bicentennial Convocation September 22 . . . Elizabeth Ricker Wallace is executive secretary to Helen Lowrance '33, Head of the Lower School at Hutchison.

Twenty-Fifth Reunion in April

As you all know from Charles Reed's letter, our class reunion committee is already working on our class reunion. You will hear from him again about classmates who are planning to come. The schedule includes a buffet supper at the Reeds' on Friday night, the class luncheon and a big day on the campus Saturday, and then a reunion dance at the University Club after the alumni supper. This is a fun affair not only for members of the class, and their wives and husbands, but also for everybody from the other classes in college at the same time (1939-45) . . . the ballroom of the University Club is slightly different in decor from that of the old field house, but the spirit and the people are the same. On Sunday morning we will attend the 11 o'clock service at Idlewild Church. . . . Walter Bader is new pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in West Point, Miss.
