Name Clyde Propst New Athletic Director

Former Alabama Star Fills Vacancy Caused by Deaths of Haygood and DeHart. Staff of Three Assistants. Schedule Announced

ON THE SHOULDERS of Clyde (Shorty) Propst rests the responsibility of being Athletic Director and head football coach at Southwestern. Propst succeeds Jimmy DeHart, who died a few weeks after he had been selected as Athletic Director to succeed the late Jimmy Haygood. Propst assumed charge of spring football training on March eleventh.

A staff of three capable assistants have been named to aid Propst. John Miller, assistant coach since 1931, will serve as line coach and first assistant to the new head coach. Harold High, '34, backfield coach last season, has been named freshman coach. Carroll Durham, former Arkansas College player and coach at Benton, Ark., high school last season, will serve as assistant freshman coach.

Propst attended the University of Alabama where he was selected as All-Southern center on the football and basketball teams. He graduated from Alabama in 1924; became freshman coach at Alabama in 1925; and was named assistant varsity line coach the following year. He served five years under Wallace Wade and two years, 1931 and 1933, under Frank Thomas at Alabama. Propst was appointed head football coach at Howard College, Birmingham, last year and had a fairly successful season.

The new Lynx athletic head is a native of Alabama, having been born in Ohatchee.

He is six feet five inches in height and weighs 230 pounds. He is 36 years old.

Propst uses a football system that is a combination of the Notre Dame and Wade systems. He has taken the strong points of the Rockne system and combined them with the best features of the single wing-back, as taught by Wade.

Jimmy DeHart, whom Propst succeeds, was named Athletic Director after the sudden death of Jimmy Haygood. DeHart was stricken in Winston-Salem, N. C., as he was preparing to depart for Memphis to conduct spring football practice. An emergency abdominal operation was performed, but DeHart failed to rally from the operation. He died March 4, the second Southwestern Athletic Director to die in less than two months. DeHart formerly coached at Washington and Lee, Duke, and University of Georgia.

College to End Decade of Work in Memphis

Southwestern to Celebrate Tenth Anniversary of Memphis Residence During Commencement Exercises in June. Marked Progress Made Since 1925

THE CONCLUSION of the present college session marks the end of the tenth year that Southwestern has been in Memphis. A celebration of the first decade of educational work in Memphis will be held during the Commencement exercises in June. In addition to marking the end of ten years of Memphis residence, 1935 terminates sixty years of service by Southwestern as a Presbyterian institution.

While final plans have not been completed, a gala celebration is planned for the alumni during Commencement. The ten-year class, 1925, will hold a special reunion, and numerous other classes will reunite. All Southwestern alumni are invited to attend the tenth anniversary celebration.

It is indeed a different setup that Southwestern presents today in comparison with the one that greeted students in 1925. A number of major and minor improvements have been made that have helped no little to raise Southwestern to the educational level that she can rightfully claim today.

The curriculum of the college has been greatly advanced. The Tutorial Reading Courses, the honors courses, and the widened scope of each department have all been factors in the development of the college. The faculty has increased from 18 to 30 professors in ten years.

A large number of improvements have been made in the buildings and plant. The laying of hard surface drives and concrete walks on the campus were among the first improvements made. A dormitory for women, as well as an additional men's dormitory, has been acquired. A women's gymnasium, a cinder track, and eight tennis courts are a few of the forward steps made by the athletic department.

The classroom and laboratory equipment has been greatly supplemented. A number of exhibits have been placed in the science building, and a marine museum has been started. One sorority lodge was built the first year, and since that time, four sororities and two fraternities have built campus lodges.

The alumni association, which was unorganized until a few years ago, now has an office and equipment.

A student publication office has been established in Palmer Hall. The college campus has been extensively beautified by the addition of shrubbery, trees, flowers, and grass. A complete electric lighting system for illuminating the campus is now being installed. Twenty-five globular lights on iron standards are soon to be ready for use, and the number will be raised to sixty during the summer.

The first ten years' stay of Southwestern in Memphis can be summed up in one word—progress!

Cleveland, Miss.

Dear Dr. Diehl:

When Southwestern opened in 1925 at Memphis, I held my one-year old baby boy in my arms during the opening service. That boy will be eleven years old this year, so I know Southwestern has been ten years in Memphis.

With appreciation of your great achievement during these ten years and to help support Southwestern until my ten-year old boy can enter there, I send you my check for $10.00.

I hope more of the alumni will say it with cash instead of flowers. Why not emphasize at this Commencement our ten years at Memphis?

With hearty congratulations and best wishes to you and Southwestern.

College Loses Beloved Athletic Director

Jimmy Haygood Dies Suddenly in Little Rock, Ark. Had Been Southwestern Coach Since 1931. His Loss a Severe Blow to College

THE FINIS to the fine football saga of Jimmy Haygood, late Athletic Director of Southwestern, was written on the morning of January 18, 1935, in Little Rock, Arkansas.

Death came with startling suddenness while the beloved coach was on a mission for Southwestern. He had risen early in the morning to drive to a near-by town, and while driving, he became ill and returned to his hotel. Shortly afterwards, he died from a heart attack.

The career of Jimmy Haygood, who came to Southwestern as Athletic Director in 1931, started at Vanderbilt University and wound through four southern states. He was born near Waverly, Tennessee, 54 years ago and attended Branham and Hughes preparatory school. In 1903, he enrolled at Vanderbilt and was under the tutelage of Dan McGugin, who praised him as one of his best quarterbacks.

Shortly after leaving Vanderbilt, he was named coach at Henderson-Brown, Arkadelphia, Arkansas. For seven years he won state championships in Arkansas, and several of his teams were undefeated. He stayed at Henderson-Brown for seventeen years, and he was so beloved by the people of the vicinity that the athletic field at Henderson-Brown today bears the name of Haygood Field.

From Arkadelphia, Jimmy went to Lakeland, Florida, to assume coaching duties at Southern College. After three years, he went to the University of Alabama to coach freshman football and varsity track. He coached and developed a number of great players who later represented Alabama in Rose Bowl classics. Jimmy came to Southwestern four years ago.

He was not long endearing himself to the students and people of Memphis. While he did not have any great success in the matter of winning games, he did turn out some good teams. His football record at Southwestern shows 18 victories and 13 defeats, but athletics at Southwestern made marked progress under Jimmy Haygood. He brought outstanding football teams to Memphis, and Southwestern began playing "big time" grid machines. The Memphis football public got to see some of the major teams of the South in action. Haygood laid the foundation for bigger and better things for Southwestern athletics.

Everyone who knew Jimmy Haygood feels a personal sense of loss now that he is gone. Jimmy was the kind of fellow who made you feel that you had known him for years even though you had known him for only five minutes. He was like that—everybody's friend. Tributes from coaches, sportsmen and friends all over the South have in some measure shown the love and esteem in which he was held.

He was buried at Arkadelphia—the scene of his first coaching triumph. Members of the Southwestern football team—his boys—served as pallbearers. A large number of students, faculty members and friends went to Arkadelphia for the final rites.

President Charles Diehl, in expressing his profound sorrow and loss in the death of Coach Haygood, said: "He was the most lovable and beloved member of the faculty. He was not only an excellent coach, but a friend. He was not interested in the outcome of a game but in the development of character.

"None knew him but to love him
Nor named him but in praise.

"I think Jimmy Haygood more nearly lived up to the little inscription that hangs over my desk than any other man I ever knew. It goes:

*"For when the one great scorer comes
To write against your name
He writes not that you won or lost
But how you played the game."*

Jimmy Haygood—Builder of Men

Alumnus Sports Writer Extols Late Southwestern Director of Athletics Who Taught His Players the Game of Life

By WALTER STEWART, ex '30

DEATH came today for Jimmy Haygood. The beloved football coach of Southwestern died at a Little Rock hotel leaving behind him not a record of games won and lost, but of boys he taught and guided.

The fact is that he didn't win so very many games. His material was spotty, and he couldn't rely on reserves. Jimmy Haygood liked to win, but that wasn't the ultimate end. He lost games he could have won—won by pushing an injured player into the heat of the scrimmage—slipping an ineligible tackle into the breach.

But Jimmy Haygood didn't play football games that way. He believed that a boy's future was more important than a touch-down, and he stuck to his rule. He never lost sight of his players. He followed them out into the world and helped them get jobs. He was talking about that about a month before the 1934 season opened. He thought he was going to have a good team, but his greatest pride was a list he pulled out of his pocket.

"Look at this," he chuckled. "Practically every one of my players has a job, pretty good jobs they are, too. But you will see by this list that lots of my boys never even came out for football. I know a lot of people, and I try to help my boys."

Jimmy Haygood did know a lot of people and a lot of people knew and loved Jimmy Haygood. He was a slim, gentle man with a sunburned scalp. You never saw Jimmy with a hat.

He never roared at a player in his life. A horrid mistake and Jimmy would sigh, explain what was wrong and start them over again. He hated dirty football, and he would pull his best man out of the lineup if he tried anything that even looked dirty.

Jimmy was born in Waverly, Tennessee, 54 years ago and went to Vanderbilt where he played quarterback on the famous teams of 1904 and 1905. Dan McGugin was just getting started as coach, and it was the day of the giant in moleskins. Jimmy was a little fellow, by comparison, and he was in the center of something rough almost all the time.

Vanderbilt was rolling, and Jimmy rode on top of the wave. These great teams made Vandy men quite sought after as coaches, and Jimmy went to Henderson-Brown in Arkansas almost as soon as he got out of school. Then he went down to Florida, where he coached. Wallace Wade brought Haygood to Alabama, where he had charge of the freshman football men and varsity track.

He coached the great Alabama freshman team that played in the Rose Bowl when they reached their senior year. He began the development of men who carried the Alabama crimson to a score of victories.

Then Jimmy came to Southwestern. That was a change. He didn't have the Red Elephants of Alabama on the string. These boys didn't weigh 200 pounds, and they weren't so rugged; but Jimmy went to work in his quiet way and built a football team.

It wasn't the best in the South, but Jimmy was proud of it. It played hard and lost gamely. Then he got hold of "Chicken" High. The "Chicken" developed into one of the South's greatest broken field runners. Jimmy took his men back to Alabama, and the Red Elephants were held to two touch-downs at the end of the half. Then the Tide came in, but Jimmy was happy. "Chicken" had run them dizzy and slipped through for six points.

That was one of the big moments in Jimmy's life. He had another one when young Jimmy Haygood, Jr., made his first tackle in a Southwestern uniform.

Jimmy Haygood turned out four football teams at Southwestern. These teams are monuments enough for any man.

Elect Alumnus National Fraternity Head

John O. Moseley, '08-'10, Norman, Oklahoma, Named National President of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity

JOHN O. MOSELEY, '08-'10, Norman, Oklahoma, has the distinction of being the second man living west of the Mississippi River to be elected national president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Mr. Moseley is associate professor of Latin at the University of Oklahoma. He was elected to the national presidency of the S.A.E. at the annual convention of the fraternity which was held in Washington, D. C., in late December.

After leaving Southwestern in 1910, he went to Austin College at Sherman, Texas, and received the A.B. degree in 1912. The next three years were spent as a teacher of Latin and athletic coach at a Durant, Okla., high school. In 1915, he enrolled at the University of Oklahoma and joined the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Oklahoma granted him his M.A. degree in English in 1916, and in December of the same year, he was selected as a Rhodes Scholar from that state.

The World War interrupted not only his teaching but also his Rhodes Scholarship. He enlisted and soon saw action in France as an officer. Shortly afterwards, he matriculated at Oxford and in 1922 received his B.A. degree from the English institution. Following his Oxford study, he became assistant professor, and later associate professor, at Oklahoma. He has done additional work at Stanford, University of California, and Columbia University.

As in the S.A.E. chapter at the University of Oklahoma, where he held all of the offices of the fraternity, Mr. Moseley has held all of the national offices of the organization. In 1924, he was appointed province archon of the chapters in the states of Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Arkansas. In 1930, he became Eminent Supreme Herald of the S.A.E. and two years later was elected national vice president. His election as national president occurred on December 27, 1934.

The Oklahoma A. and M. chapter of the fraternity recently showed the esteem in which they hold Mr. Moseley. They honored

Mr. Moseley by naming their chapter for him. The A. and M. chapter of S.A.E. is known as the Oklahoma Moseley chapter.

Mr. Moseley's father, the Rev. John W. Moseley, Jr., is also an alumnus of Southwestern. He attended the institution from 1895 to 1899. He is a retired Presbyterian minister and resides at Duncan, Oklahoma.

Tennis is one of Mr. Moseley's hobbies. He is an ardent devotee to the sport, and for a number of years he has served as coach of the University of Oklahoma's tennis team. His teams have been quite successful and have been some of the best produced in the Big Six conference. He is the only coach at the University who does not receive remuneration for his coaching. His reputation as one of the most popular professors at the Oklahoma institution is one of long standing.

Soon after returning from Oxford, Mr. Moseley married Miss Marie V. Nichols of Los Angeles, California. They have two children, a son, John Nichols, age ten, and a daughter, age eight.

Campus Notes

Southwestern's campus will take the form of a "White Way" this spring with the completion of the installation of an electric lighting system. Globular lamps will be placed on iron standards on the drives and walks through the campus. Sixty lights will be installed when the system is completed. A number of the lights are already installed.

The annual Week of Prayer was held during the first week in January. The Rev. Hugh T. Kerr, D.D., pastor of the Shady-side Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, was the speaker at the services. He spoke twice daily and culminated the services with a vesper on January 13.

Four upperclass students have been elected to membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, national honor fraternity. The newly initiated members are Robert Brown, Memphis; Rodney Baine, Tupelo, Miss.; Harvey Jones, Andalusia, Ala.; Richard Dunlap, Paris, Tenn.

The annual Mississippi Valley Press Association, whose membership is composed of the editors of high school publications of this area, will be held at the college during the last week in March. James Meadow, Batesville, Miss., editor of the Southwestern weekly student paper, will be in charge.

Rodney Baine, senior from Tupelo, Miss., was selected as a Rhodes Scholarship nominee from the state of Mississippi at the annual Rhodes trials held in January. He lost in the final district trials in New Orleans.

The Rev. W. J. Millard, '20, pastor of the Evergreen Presbyterian Church, Memphis, was the speaker at the Christmas vesper service sponsored by the junior class.

The Rev. Samuel Stanworth, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Jackson, Tenn., was the speaker at the vesper sponsored by the sophomore class on the Day of Prayer for Colleges.

Olivia Reames, Memphis, has been awarded the first annual scholarship offered by the Memphis Alumnae Chapter. Miss Reames was selected from a host of applicants. She will graduate in June as an honor student. Miss Reames has also been actively connected in campus activities.

The scholarship is for $125 and takes care of the tuition costs for one semester. Fifty-four alumnae contributed to the scholarship fund. Anne Shewmaker, '31, was chairman of the selection committee.

The annual "Who's Who" contest at Southwestern was held last month. Six honorary positions were filled in the elections. Sarah Elizabeth Gemmill, senior from Memphis, was named "Miss Southwestern." Others elected were: Alvan Tate, senior, Memphis, most popular boy; Jack Crosby, senior, Mobile, Ala., best all-round student; Olive Black, senior, Memphis, most beautiful; Siveley Moore, senior, Memphis, handsomest; Elizabeth Pearce, junior, Memphis, most stylish co-ed.

Fourteen students were listed on the honor roll for the first semester. Ten were named on the first honor list, which includes those making a grade of A in each subject. First honor roll students were: Rodney Baine, Tupelo, Miss.; Gerald Burrows, Jr., Tunica, Miss.; Herbert Cain, Indianola, Miss.; Jameson Jones, Corinth, Miss.; Mildred Brandes, Mary Brewster, Douglas Johnston, Olivia Reames, Audrey Townsend, Robert G. Walker, all of Memphis.

Second honor students were: Francis Benton, Bessemer, Ala.; Joseph R. Crosby, Mobile, Ala.; William L. Blue and Robert High-saw, both of Memphis.

The annual co-ed edition of The Sou'wester, weekly student paper, was published last month.

Southwestern to Have Marine Museum

Expedition from Biology Department Will Spend Three Weeks This Summer Among Florida Keys Collecting Marine Specimens

WORK ON THE establishment of a marine museum at Southwestern will be continued this summer by an expedition from the biology department to Florida. The expedition has been made possible by a grant from the General Education Board of New York for the purpose of collecting marine specimens for a museum exhibit.

Dr. Clinton L. Baker, professor of biology, started work on the museum during the summer of 1933, when he spent several weeks working among the Florida Keys. He made another trip last summer to the same locality and went again during the Christmas holidays. However, this time the biologists will have complete diving and collecting equipment and will be able to go about the work of collecting specimens in a scientific manner.

The base of operations will be Key Largo, Fla., which is located some 50 miles south of Miami. This location will place the scientists on the edge of the Gulf Stream where it skirts the southernmost tip of the Florida Keys. The fairly shallow water, constant temperature, and numerous islands make this locality unexcelled for collecting marine fauna and flora.

The party of three advanced biology students, and expert cameraman, Dr. W. O. Puckett, associate professor of biology, and Dr. Baker will go to Key Largo the last part of June for three weeks of work. Diving helmets, an underwater camera, a varied assortment of nets, waterglasses, and an abundance of laboratory equipment will be a part of the equipment that the expedition will use.

Using motorboats, the collectors will go over the waters in the Keys in search of marine specimens by means of a glass box placed on the surface of the water. When a desired specimen is found, pictures will be made, and then the diver will go overboard to collect the marine forms. They will record data concerning the structure and coloring of these specimens, and the material will then be packed and sent to Southwestern. There, they will duplicate as nearly as possible the living conditions in a permanent exhibit for the museum. Dr. Baker hopes to be able to paint the marine animals in their natural colors so that the permanent exhibit will give the students an idea of the true habitat group.

There is no museum of this type in the Memphis vicinity, and the Southwestern museum will serve as an exhibition for the entire Mid-South. "We plan to make this an annual summer trip," Dr. Baker said, "with the possibility of giving courses on location during the summer such as is done in the Marine Biological Laboratories at Woods Hole, Mass." The student assistants who will make the trip are Jeff M. Hart, Leslie McKee, and Clinton McKay, all of Memphis.

The museum will be located on the third floor of the Science Hall. A number of glass exhibit cases will be purchased for the museum. Several cases have already been obtained and filled with specimens collected by Dr. Baker on his previous trips to Florida.

Athletics

Basketball

Handicapped by lack of experience and height, Southwestern cagers had a rather poor season. Coach Harold High did as well as could be expected with the green material with which he had to work. However, near the end of the season, the Lynx team gathered momentum and won several games, including victories over Ole Miss and Millsaps.

The team was composed mostly of sophomores and with the same squad back next season, Southwestern should be able to turn out a representative team. Murray Raspberry, a junior, and Rudy Gartside, a sophomore, were the outstanding members of the quintet.

The freshman team had a more successful season. They won three of their four intercollegiate games and won numerous games from independent fives in and around Memphis. They were coached by Andrew Edington.

Tennis

With five of the six lettermen of last year back, Southwestern's tennis team should be a winner. The varsity will be ably aided by some sophomore talent that will strengthen the team considerably.

Dr. P. N. Rhodes, tennis coach, has arranged a schedule that includes matches with Tulane, L. S. U., Sewanee, Millsaps, Vanderbilt, Vicksburg Tennis Club. Matches are pending with University of Mississippi, Mississippi State, and Mississippi College.

Members of last year's squad ready for another campaign are Charles Ledsinger, Richard Dunlap, Dorsey Barefield, David Flowers, Eugene Stewart, and Richard Mays.

Golf

The laying of a nine-hole golf course on the Southwestern campus is one of the biggest forward steps that has been taken on the Southwestern athletic program in several years. Work on the construction of the course will begin soon and will be completed this spring. Walter Sherwood, professional at the Memphis Country Club, will lay out the course.

Jack Crosby, president of the Lynx Golf Association, is conducting a tournament now to determine the squad for the varsity golf team. Matches have been arranged with several collegiate teams and others are pending. Forty golfers entered the intramural tournament.

Intramural Sports

A full intramural sports program has been mapped out for the year. Several cross-country runs were held in the fall, and a great interest was shown in them. The basketball league has just ended with the championship being won by the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

A volleyball league is now under way with eight teams entered. Playground baseball will start next month as will interfraternity horseshoe pitching. The annual track meet will be held in May. Beverly Buckingham, student athletic director of intramurals, is in charge of the men's sports program.

The women's intramural program is being managed by Miss Louise Stratmann, physical education director. The intersorority and interclass basketball leagues are going at full speed with games being played three times each week.

Archery, horseback riding, tennis, swimming, volleyball, rifle practice, and track complete the co-eds' program.

Athletic Department Receives Gift From Memphis Hotel

The athletic department was the recipient of a gift from the Hotel Gayoso last month. The management of the hotel donated two marble "rub-down" tables to the college. The tables will be placed in the players' dressing room in the gymnasium.

In Hellenic Circles

Pi. K. A.'s Lead in Scholarship

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity made the highest scholarship average for the first semester with an average of 2.91, thus breaking the monopoly of Theta Nu Epsilon who has been the leader for the past seven years. Kappa Delta again led the sororities with an average of 2.65.

The fraternity ranking was Theta Nu Epsilon, 2.65; Alpha Tau Omega, 2.52; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 2.41; Sigma Nu, 2.35; Kappa Sigma, 2.00; Kappa Alpha, 1.90.

The sorority rating was Chi Omega, 2.62; Zeta Tau Alpha, 2.44; Delta Delta Delta, 2.40; Alpha Omicron Pi, 2.24. The all-sorority average was 2.47 while the all-fraternity average was 2.34. The average for the college was 2.24. In compiling the standing, four points were given for each grade of A; three points for B; two points for C; one point for D; zero for E's and F's.

News Among the Lodges

Nine women students were pledged by sororities at the start of the second semester. They are:

DELTA DELTA DELTA—June Boyer, Jean Boyer, Doris Bowden, Erin Campbell, all of Memphis.

ZETA TAU ALPHA—Lois Moreland and Julia Parke, both of Memphis.

ALPHA OMICRON PI—Margaret Kyle and Mary Ann Boyd, both of Memphis.

CHI OMEGA—Agnes Paine, Aberdeen, Miss.

Three fraternities elected new officers for the spring term. They are:

ALPHA TAU OMEGA—Richard Dunlap, Paris, Tenn., president; Charles Maxey, Memphis, vice president; Louis Gauchot, Clarksville, Tenn., treasurer; William Lapsley, Uniontown, Ala., secretary; Hiram Todd, Memphis, historian; McMath Givens, Bastrop, La., sergeant-at-arms.

KAPPA SIGMA—Jack Crosby, Mobile, Ala., grand master; Ned Wright, Shreveport, La., grand procurator; Alvan Tate, Memphis, grand master-of-ceremonies; Marion Cobb, Delrose, Tenn., scribe; James Haygood, Jr., Memphis, treasurer.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON—Thomas Jones, Corinth, Miss., president; Henry Watkins, Memphis, vice president; J. O. Wallis, Clarksdale, Miss., warden; Raford Herbert, Lexington, Miss., recorder; Glenn Gates, Clarksdale, Miss., treasurer; Harry Webb, Memphis, herald.

Miss Christelle Ferguson, national inspector of Chi Omega sorority, visited the Southwestern chapter on February 15.

Kappa Sigma held a district conclave at the college on February 22, 23, 24 with representatives from five colleges attending. George R. Rea, '96-'00, Bay St. Louis, national treasurer, attended the annual meeting.

Kappa Alpha observed the birthday of General Robert E. Lee with a banquet at Hotel Peabody on January 19.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the interfraternity debating tournament by defeating the Sigma Nu team in the final debate. The S.A.E. were presented a silver trophy as the championship award.

The men's Panhellenic Council has become a member of the National Interfraternity Council, which is composed of the fraternity councils at some 200 colleges and universities over the country. Duff Gaither, Kappa Alpha, is president of the Southwestern Panhellenic.

Greeks Initiate New Members

Several fraternities and sororities have initiated some of their pledges. Those initiated into the Greek letter organizations are:

DELTA DELTA DELTA—Frances Gladney, Homer, La.; Dorothy Walker, Helena, Ark.; Mollie McCord, Bernadine Taylor, Cornelia Crinkley, all of Memphis.

ZETA TAU ALPHA—Mary Frances Baker, Kingsville, Texas; Gladys Crump and Irene Morehouse, both of Memphis.

SIGMA NU — Roland Hazelwood, Vassar, Mich.; John Ricker, Wayne Paullus, George Reames, all of Memphis.

KAPPA SIGMA—Ed. McCormick, Grenada, Miss.

ALPHA OMICRON PI—Elizabeth Cobb, Helena, Ark.; Margaret Stockard, Eugenia Tully, Jean Dolan, Rebecca Laughlin, Virginia Cunningham, Ann Clark Miller, Alice Hagler, Ann Jeter, all of Memphis.

CHI OMEGA—Betty Hunt, Greenville, Miss.; Sarah Louise Tucker, Tucker, Ark.; Billie Mills Bush, Malvina, Miss.; Marian Spencer, Glen Allan, Miss.; Lola Sale, Covington, Tenn.; Mary Brewster, Dorothy Matthews, Katherine Matthews, Margaret Winchester, Mary Elaine Lipscomb, Betty McMahan, Josephine Ingram, Rose Lynn Barnard, all of Memphis.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA—Edward Atkinson and Fred Feiderling, Clarksville, Tenn.; James Watt, Humboldt, Tenn.; James Gladney, Homer, La.

With the Classes

Class of 1882

*Rev. R. E. McAlpine, D.D., Correspondent
426 Carolina Circle, Winston-Salem, N. C.*

I have a "real scoop" of good news to send to you—D. C. "Challie" Kennedy, '80-'82, and his wife have just celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary.

Fifty years ago, the prophecy of such an event would have been indeed great news. It is now full 55 years since young Kennedy settled his plans to enter Southwestern. In September, 1880, it was my privilege to meet him and Bob McClure, '80-'82, as they changed trains in Nashville on their journey to the old college in Clarksville, and we three young monkeys had as merry a trip as one can imagine. Our years in college together continued to strengthen the friendship begun on that first day.

What happy memories cling around those youthful years! Visits in their homes in Middle Tennessee cemented even more firmly these ties of friendship, for there it was my added privilege to meet sisters and sweet-hearts of these boys. Already, young Challie Kennedy was assuming a sort of proprietary attitude towards a certain young lady, which presently eventuated in a marriage in the last days of 1884.

Last year it was again my happiness to journey to Cornersville, Tennessee, and to be the guest in the home of D. C. and Mrs. Kennedy. And they didn't look so terribly changed in spite of the years. Challie is now, and has been for a number of years, a banker, a solid business man in the community, and a leader in the church.

After that visit of last year, it was possible for me to visualize the happy event which I was not able to attend. The handsome invitations and also the written reports tell of the Golden Wedding celebration as taking place December 31, 1934. Despite stormy weather, guests came from all quarters—New York, Texas, and many nearer states.

Through these quiet 50 years a fine story has flowed—steady and strong, living up to high principles. Despite their modest self-effacement of their united half-century, such a history sets a high standard of worth-while living. Let us acclaim them and seek to follow in their steps.

A Lament

The theological department of Southwestern Presbyterian University was organized as a part of the university at Clarksville, Tennessee, in 1884 and abolished in 1917. It occurs to the writer that some account of this organization may be appropriate as a contribution to the Alumni Magazine, and interesting, if for no other reason than as a lament over its passing.

The idea that led to the organization of this department of the university was that the preparation for the ministry, which requires three years of about eight months' study each year might be accomplished in two years of ten months each. Especially might this be done when the three-year English Bible course, which was required for an academic degree, could be counted as a part of the ministerial preparation.

Furthermore, the interlocking of courses would enable the student to take some seminary courses, and on the other hand, some seminary students might complete their academic degree by taking some college courses. There was no thought of lowering the standard of preparation for the ministry. Some of the founders and recognized leaders of the Southern Presbyterian Church were the instigators and originators of this movement, among whom were Dr. B. M. Palmer, Dr. J. R. Wilson, Dr. J. N. Waddel, Dr. T. R. Welsh, and Dr. S. A. King.

At the beginning, Dr. J. R. Wilson was called from the pastorate of the church at Wilmington, N. C., to the chair of Didactic Theology. Dr. Robert Price took the department of Church History, and Dr. J. B. Shearer was professor of English Bible. The chancellor, Dr. J. N. Waddel, also taught in the seminary. Among those who afterwards became instructors may be mentioned such eminent teachers as, Dr. C. C. Hersman, who later became professor of New Testament Greek at Union Seminary; Dr. R. A. Webb, professor of Theology at Gainesville, Ky.; Dr. George Summey of the seminary at Austin, Texas.

There were always among the students of the university anywhere from 30 to 50 of them looking forward to the ministry. Many of these, after completing their academic course, would go to other institutions for their seminary training. The classes in the seminary varied from a half-dozen to as many as twenty-five.

During the 33 years of its existence, probably as many as 250 ministers received their seminary training at Clarksville. The writer has seen it stated that 12 per cent of the ministers of the Southern Presbyterian Church received their training, either in whole or in part, at the university at Clarksville.

Possibly the idea of a seminary as a department of a university was a mistake. It may be that preachers can be better trained in institutions devoted exclusively to that purpose. There are still, however, some of us to whom the memory of influences and associations of the seminary at Clarksville is a sacred heritage, and who can but lament that a movement, conceived by such high authority and maintained with such imminent prestige, should have to be numbered among the things that were, but are no more.

Class of 1888

Preston C. West, Correspondent
1910 Exchange Bank Bldg., Tulsa, Okla.

About the end of January, I wrote the '88ers for something to put in my letter for the Alumni Magazine, and added that if they did not respond I would have to make up something. I succeeded in bluffing only Wallace "Pammer" (The Rev. W. T. Palmer, D.D., Manning, S. C.). I don't know whether the reputation of the others is too good or too bad to be hurt by any fiction of my manufacture.

Wallace seems to have gone back to the homeland, for while he was born in Georgia, his forebears, both paternal and maternal, were South Carolinians. I believe among them was numbered a governor, but whether the individual who had the celebrated colloquy with the governor of North Carolina, I shall have to plead non sum informatus.

He tells me that he has quite nearby a number of men who were fellow students with him at Union Seminary, but that Dr. John M. Wells, pastor of the First Church in Sumter, S. C., and Professor D. J. Brimm at the Presbyterian College, Clinton, are the only Southwestern alumni in his vicinity. All the boys of our time will remember both of these as fine fellows and excellent students.

I have sent letters to Bill Nisbet to several places in the imperial state of Texas, but all have been returned. I have also written Chester Parish at several points in Louisiana with like results or non-results. But, of course, recent disturbances in "La Louisianne" may have something to do with that.

Class of 1895

Rev. R. L. Benn, D.D., Correspondent
Etowah, Tenn.

So far as I am able to ascertain the members of the class are all well, but, apparently too absorbed in their respective duties to heed the call for letters.

However, now and then, it is a pleasure to meet some of the members of other classes. The Rev. G. H. Turpin, ex '10, is doing a good work at Soddy, Tenn. Dr. T. E. P. Woods, '96, and Dr. S. J. McCallie, '97, who were well known and popular on the campus at Clarksville, are engaged in building character at the McCallie School, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Another who is pleasantly remembered by his associates is the Rev. B. M. Larson, ex '20, the present pastor of the Little Brick Church, Knoxville. After graduating from Louisville Theological Seminary, he married Miss Lucille Johnson, a daughter of J. E. Johnson, a leading citizen of Athens, Tenn., and is the father of five bright youngsters. Mr. Larson is also the efficient superintendent of Home Missions in Knoxville Presbytery.

Recently I met a young student of Atlanta, Ga., who expressed very great appreciation of Dr. G. F. Nicolassen, who was for many years the esteemed instructor in Greek and German at Clarksville. Many will agree that the mention of Dr. Nicolassen's name revives the memory of the Greek verb luo, lueis, luei, which was so thoroughly and harmoniously accomplished as to produce real melody.

To avoid extending the length of this missive unduly, may I close by using all the German at my command since those days which, though far gone, seem but yesterday—Auf Wiedersehen.

Class of 1901

Rev. H. M. McLain, D.D., Correspondent
Box 35, Byhalia, Miss.

Since the last issue of the Alumni Magazine, four of my classmates have sent greetings to all alumni.

Courtenay Dinwiddie, general secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, New York City, writes, "We are in the midst of an intensive effort to see that child labor is wiped out of those industries where it still remains."

The Rev. Phillip A. Lotterhos sends in news from Crystal Springs, Miss., and tells of his pleasure in meeting so many Southwestern alumni in his section. They are not of our class, however. He has recently had some interesting correspondence touching the work of Dr. R. B. Price, Taichow, China.

The Rev. E. S. Brainard, Welsh, La., insists that he has nothing interesting to write. He is in his eleventh year as pastor of the Welsh Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. R. H. Orr, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Vidalia, Ga., is very much interested in establishing a mission preaching point near his home. He comes in contact with very few Southwestern alumni in his section of the country, but mentions some pleasant visits with Lamar Ferguson, who has been city superintendent of schools in Decatur, Ga., for a number of years.

On a recent visit to Atlanta, your correspondent had hoped to have a chat with Professor Ferguson, but found him out of the office when he called. He did, however, have a delightful half-hour visit with a former Southwestern athletic director, Henry C. (Pickles) Heinz. Mr. Heinz is vice president of one of Atlanta's largest banks and says he is always deeply interested in everything pertaining to the well-being of Southwestern.

Class of 1902

*A. J. Street, Correspondent
Denham-Alford Bldg., McComb, Miss.*

I am going to break the charm of the "old grindstone" and write you about the "Old Boys" of the Class of '02 though up to date, they have failed to write to me a single bit of news about themselves. However, I would certainly like to hear from them not only that I could write more fully, but because as we grow older the memories of our association with one another grows dearer, and we come to realize each one holds a reserved place all his own in our hearts. So, I hope "the boys" will not fail me again.

Of the Class of '02 comes first "Vince" Frierson, our class president. Wonder what he is doing with himself now, and why he won't write a fellow about it all?

And there's Lowry Davis. He owes it to himself to write us even if he is busy trying to make China a Christian nation. I was much interested to learn some time ago about his efforts. Lowry was our valedictorian.

It seems also that R. E. Fulton might make some sort of a noise that would indicate what he is doing and where he is. Fulton gave Lowry Davis some trouble about the valedictory if my memory is correct; also took the Greek medal—sort of a compromise between them, it may seem.

Russ McGehee, I see right often, and it is one of the pleasures I encounter these days. He is secretary-manager of the Brookhaven Production Credit Association—a right responsible position with Uncle Sam. Brookhaven is just a short distance from here.

Dick (Prep) Parker might also advise us about himself as well as the remainder of the class.

And now we turn to the other members of the class whose "pictures hang on memory's wall"—Dan Hensley, Byron Breard, and "Sister" Rhea, who have all gone to their reward.

We might mention a few words about some of the other boys who were not members of our class but who make interesting reading matter for other alumni.

Dr. R. B. (Bobby) Price was near to me a year or so ago, but I was prevented seeing him because of a previous engagement that I could not well break. This was a great disappointment to me indeed, for Bobby and I were close friends.

We were all grieved to hear of the death of Will S. Payne, '79-'85, some two or three months ago in Baton Rouge, La.

Barney F. (Wretch) Johns now lives in Jackson, Miss., where he will embark again in the automobile industry, no doubt. He only recently moved there.

While we could mention others of the old boys, yet, I do not want to make my letter too long, so I will close for this time. I may add that each Commencement is a disappointment to me in that I cannot attend and mingle with the old boys I knew so well.

Class of 1903

*Rev. Chas. L. Power, Correspondent
624 Wyandotte, Shreveport, La.*

In response to numerous requests, several members of '03 have sent in letters. It seems that we must all be on the average of the proverbial poor letter writers.

Oscar Newton, '93-'94, Elected Federal Reserve Bank Head

Oscar Newton, '93-'94, Atlanta, Ga., prominent southern banker and former chairman of the board of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank, was recently elected governor of the bank. He succeeds the late Eugene R. Black as governor. Mr. Newton was named to his new position by the board on January 10.

The new governor is a native Mississippian and has been connected in southern banking circles for a number of years. He started out as an assistant cashier at the Mutual Bank, Crystal Springs, Miss. He later held positions with several Mississippi banks and was president of the Jackson-State National Bank in Jackson. He also served as president of the Mississippi Bankers' Association.

In 1920, he went to Atlanta and was elected a member of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank. He has been board chairman and reserve agent since 1925.

I was agreeably surprised when one of the early replies came from C. E. Allen, the eldest of the clan who made history for Southwestern in the days of its Clarksville existence. He says that he is happy, though busy, in his work as professor at Centre College. He invited criticism in referring to my advancing years and not mentioning his own thinning locks.

Jovial "Big Jim" McKinstry wrote a characteristic letter from his home in Reagan, Tenn., much of it in verse. He declares that he is for some things but "agin others, chiefly philosophy." This does not bode well for our Philosophy Professor Lang down there at the University of Alabama.

George Harbin Kirker from his pastorate in Marion Junction, Ala., sent in a reassuring note saying that he is exposing two of his sons to the fulminations of the above-named professor. He awaits with interest the outcome of this dangerous experiment.

"Bishop" Rolle would not write, but on a brief trip to Shreveport, he called me on the telephone. He said that he was suffering from a sore foot, perhaps gout or injured by stepping in a pool of that "hot oil" we hear about. "Bishop" is doing a great work out in Oklahoma as the Synod's Superintendent of Home Missions.

So far as I am informed, our class ranks remain unbroken, something really remarkable, when we remember how old some of them were back in the college days.

I hope to have news by next issue from the others now on the delinquent list.

Class of 1905

*Dr. George Lang, Correspondent
University of Alabama, University, Ala.*

To begin with our most distant member, "Bishop" W. A. Rolle, he presides over an area of 70,000 square miles! One feels sure that he can do no more because he has done so much. Then, lo and behold, the next report finds he has done still more! Oklahoma has a really great "Bishop" for a really great state.

Nor does the Bishop in the midst of his ecclesiastical tasks lose sight of his long-cherished friends. Since we heard from him last, he has returned to the old field of battle, Clarksville and Robb Hall, on a visit. He has been at the General Assembly, and as a rebuke to certain bachelor members of the class, he has married off a son. A pretty good record!

Dr. Rolle is already urging us to remember the next Class Reunion year for as big as his work is and as exacting as it is, he doesn't lose sight of the boys of '06.

We missed Ed Brownlee at our last Class Reunion, but it was not for lack of the spirit of comradeship that he was not present. He is still one with us, and not less so because he maintains such a busy and fruitful ministry in Sanford, Florida. Ed has had a "sick spell," but we are glad to report he is much better. I judge that he is altogether well from a letter he wrote me recently which had all of his characteristic "pep."

I fear, however, he is becoming contaminated by the rich invaders of Florida and thinks it is a small matter to run hither and thither on impulse. For example, he commands me to break away from "deep metaphysical speculations" (thank you, Ed) and to run down to see him. He should know that his class belongs to the working class. Last summer he climbed Mount Mitchell in North Carolina, so look out, fellows, he is out for the best years of his career. I think I told you in a former letter of a most delightful visit to Ed some years ago. He is greatly beloved by his people and by the men of his synod.

I hope John McKinstry sends out letters to all the members of his class. John is working on a redistribution problem the statement of which is too long for the Alumni Magazine space limits. John likes his job of reinterpreting the affairs of the church and is feeling fine. He closes his letter in a quotation from one of the old Romans: Si tu es bene, id est bene, ego etiam sum bene. John thinks this means something about beans.

Charley Power refuses to acknowledge letters of appeal for information about his doings. But even so, we have ways of keeping up with him. A recent visitor to these parts assured me that he was well and "fit to kill." It may be that his silence to your correspondent is tied up with the Louisiana dictatorship, but we guess not for Presbyterians are not easily intimidated by dictators. Last June, Charley was able to get back to Southwestern on Alumni Day, which to me was an enviable trip.

Fellows, you ought to see and hear George Kirker. He is another member of the class who has sons to talk about. Two of them are at the University of Alabama, and you never saw finer boys. I have both of them in class. Recently, I quoted the catechism in one of its definitions and what do you think? He came up after class and corrected me by calling attention to the fact that I had used one word more than was in the catechism! I wrote George that he must bring up boys who don't expose professors.

W. H. McIntosh still holds forth at Hattiesburg, Miss., and all reports I get from there are to the effect that he carries on with fine success. Maybe we will get him to the next class reunion.

My space is already filled to overflowing, so I won't say anything about myself. Why should anyone be interested in an old bachelor, anyway? I will say only this. It is pleasant to have letters from those of you who write me. I hope all goes well with you. Let us look forward to our next reunion in the hope that there may be no absentees and may we rejoice together again as we did before.

Class of 1910

*Rev. R. A. Bolling, D.D., Correspondent
Cleveland, Miss.*

No news must be good news concerning 1910, but other alumni have crossed our path lately. Of them, I sing.

Major J. W. Kennedy, '15, president of Chamberlain-Hunt Academy of Port Gibson, Miss., made a splendid address on Christian Education in Cleveland, Miss., in January. At the same hour I had the happy privilege of preaching at Shaw, Miss., for the Rev. William H. McAtee, '21, and baptizing his young son, William Graeber McAtee. Then a turkey dinner with Mac at which Kennedy and Mrs. Bolling were guests of honor.

Jefferson Davis, '27-'31, of Indianola, Miss., who took his law work at Cumberland University, is liquidating agent of the frozen Bank of Indianola. Jeff is also a candidate for prosecuting attorney of Sunflower County. Furthermore, he is the husband of Jeredone Kimbrough Davis, '30-'32. His honors accumulate rapidly.

Jeff has been conferring with me lately on establishing some sort of alumni endowment fund celebrating the 60 years of Southwestern and the 10 years of progress in Memphis, honoring President Charles E. Diehl. We will report more definite news later.

Horace F. Harwell, Jr., '31, of the Tri-States Amusement Co., located in Memphis, has opened a movie palace in Cleveland.

Virginia West, '34, is on the faculty of the high school at Pace, Miss. Predestined, I guess, because when Virginia was a tiny tot Mrs. Bolling asked her what she intended to be when grown. Virginia said, "I guess I'll just be a lady and get married. But one thing is certain I'll never be a school teacher." And now, behold!

The Rev. Paul Watson, '17, of Shelby has moved to Clarksdale, Miss., to serve as pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. Otis Barry, '13-'17, is one of his supporting pillars.

Your correspondent is undertaking to help provide a support fund for the current expenses of Southwestern. Every church in North Mississippi and elsewhere is invited to send him or the college a monthly check for Southwestern. Southwestern is the greatest asset of the Presbyterian Church in the whole Mississippi Valley. Individual checks will be accepted and appreciated.

Rev. J. W. Moseley, '95-'99, Writes Book on Presbyterian Principles

The Rev. John W. Moseley, Jr., '95-'99, Duncan, Okla., is the author of an excellent little volume, Pan-Presbyterian Principles, which has just recently come off the press. Mr. Moseley is a retired minister, having served as pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Duncan for many years. In addition, he has held numerous other pastorates.

The book is dedicated to the Rev. George Summey, D.D., former chancellor of Southwestern. Mr. Moseley studied under Dr. Summey when he was professor of Bible and Biblical History at the college. The volume contains ten brief chapters dealing with some of the teachings of the Presbyterian Church. His summary of these teachings is brief but at the same time so clear that it can easily be understood by readers who have had no theological training.

The volume is published by the Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing Company, Grand Rapids, Mich.

become pastor of the churches at Statesboro and Metter.

Proctor McElroy has had a unique experience in his chosen profession. After relinquishing his pastorate at El Dorado, Ark., he took one year of graduate work at George Peabody College; taught one year in the department of Psychology at the University of Idaho; and rounded out his preparation by spending one year at Harvard University as student and instructor.

He has served as psychologist as follows: one year at Boston Psychopathic Hospital; three years at Massachusetts Department of Mental Diseases, division for examining prisoners; two years on the staff of Sing Sing Prison, Ossining, N. Y. Next he was in the personnel department of Western Electric Co., Kearny, N. J., and he is now psychologist with the New Jersey Emergency Relief Administration. Proctor's home address is 23 Northview Ave., Upper Montclair, N. J.

Your scribe has been quite busy trying to assemble biographical sketches of all ministers who have been on the roll of the Southern Presbyterian Church since its beginning in 1861. Most of the men whose names are on our rolls have sent in the information requested. However, there are several who read the Alumni Magazine who have not "come across" yet; so let this be a reminder to you to send yours without further delay.

Also the members of the Class of '11 are hereby notified that unless they send me some late news about themselves in time for the next letter, I will have to manufacture something on them.

Rev. B. O. Wood, D.D., Correspondent
319 W. Harris St., San Angelo, Texas

As class correspondent, I do not have very much information about the members of our class, but I will pass on to you some things that I have learned.

I saw C. A. "Bugs" Raymond last summer. Raymond is pastor of a Presbyterian church in Florida. He has developed a tremendous voice, and when he prays, you think the bulls of Bashan are roaring. However, "Bugs" is his same lovable, congenial old self.

Once in a while I run across Charles McLaurin, who played football, basketball, and baseball in Southwestern when I did. He is living in Lubbock, Texas, and is doing very well.

I see E. W. "Pug" McLaren from time to time. He is the pastor of the Presbyterian church at Ballinger, Texas. "Pug" has a baby to whom he has given the name McLauchlin. Mac is greatly beloved by the ministers of this state. He has become a fine scholar and continuously reads Greek and Hebrew.

Polk Atkinson, who holds the rank of captain in the United States Army, has changed his address. Atkinson was stationed in the field artillery unit of the R.O.T.C. at Ohio State University but was recently moved to Fort Hoyle, Maryland.

I would appreciate a line or so from some of the fellows—if they will be so kind as to write.

George M. Brandau, valedictorian of our class whom we all remember for his good nature and congeniality, is a practicing physician in Houston, Texas, with offices in the Medical Arts Building. George has made a number of contributions to current medical literature from which he has received high commendation both in this country and from abroad. He is associate physician at the Jefferson Davis Hospital in Houston and a Diplomat of the National Board of Medical Examiners.

No, we can't claim him in this class, but we want him so that he can pat Tom Wharton on the back. Tom not only got Dr. Nick's daughter for a wife but also caught from him some of his love for Greek. Just listen to what he recently wrote the correspondent:

"Deacon, I'm getting a kick out of my Greek. . . . Just now I am diligently reading again both the Old and New Testaments with a careful comparison, verse by verse, with the modern Greek Bible. . . . I am especially interested in the Greek synonyms of the Old and New Testaments. . . . I hope after several more years of study to bring out something along this line."

That sounds like the real thing, and many alumni will look forward to the book which Tom proposes to write.

The only other member of the class I could get to answer my letter was Paul Watson. Well, that is incorrect. His wife answered for him. Lots of wives answer for their husbands, but when Mrs. Watson answers for Paul, she does a good job.

Paul is to be excused for his negligence. He is trying to rear two or three preachers, and he has recently taken on himself some new work. Paul has been called to the pastorate of the Second Presbyterian Church, Clarksdale, Miss. He still preaches at Shelby but has moved to Clarksdale to live.

By the way, if we could get the wife of some member of this class as correspondent, it should help the cause along. The present correspondent is a rotten one!

Class of 1921

*Rev. William Crowe, Jr., Correspondent
Talladega, Ala.*

Your correspondent for the Class of '21 has not been in recent touch with the members of the class and has no news of particular interest to record about them. You may be interested to know that I ran up on Marvin Cross, '20-'21, the other day in Huntsville, Ala., much to his surprise and to mine. He is representing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Martin A. Hopkins, '12, Writes and Publishes Book in Chinese

The Rev. Martin A. Hopkins, '12, missionary at Tenghsien, Shantung, China, has recently written a textbook on Biblical Theology in Chinese. The book is published by the Christian Book Room, Shanghai, China. Mr. Hopkins is now on furlough from his field and is living at Mission Court, Richmond, Va.

The entire book is in Chinese and contains a biblical theology of the Old Testament and the theology of the Pentateuch. The book is a translation of the classroom notes of Dr. Geerhardus Vos of Princeton Theological Seminary, and the notes have been supplemented by Mr. Hopkins.

Mr. Hopkins was recently elected principal of the Mateer Memorial Institute, after serving as acting principal for two years and is also connected with the North China Theological Seminary. He has been doing missions work in China since 1917.

The Southwestern alumnus has quite a natural gift for construction which he has turned into practical use. During his college days, he planned and built a church across the Cumberland River near Clarksville. Last summer, he had the pleasure of preaching in the church which he had built some 30 years ago during his student days. The pulpit and furniture were made by his own hands.

In China, he has drawn plans and directed the building of numerous buildings at the North China Seminary and Mateer Institute. He has contributed a copy of his publication to the Alumni Bookshelf.

It has fallen to my lot to have the privilege of helping raise some funds for the support of Southwestern next year. I have just now returned from a tour of the northern part of this state and found all of the church officers with whom I conferred glad to increase Southwestern's share in their church budgets for the coming church year.

Horace Y. Kitchell of Greenwood, Miss., has broken his silence and writes for the benefit of his class: "I am still operating the Delta Machine Works trying to make a living and pay my taxes. Really, it is a lot of fun if one can only remember to hold on to his S. H. (sense of humor), as 'Ooley' Wilson used to say—when you've got to take it.

"I very seldom see any of the old gang except John Humphrey and Tom Kirby, both of whom still live here. Tom as you know has been married for several years, but John tells me he is a confirmed bachelor.

"It is with interest that I always look forward to an issue of the Alumni Magazine and search it carefully for any bit of information concerning those that we knew at Southwestern.

"The football games that Southwestern has been playing over the state are great drawing cards. I remember the game at Clarksdale last fall and with what pleasure I saw Dr. and Mrs. Diehl, Holland Felts, and a number of others whom I had not seen in several years. The boys played a great game before packed stands and everyone whether they rooted for Ole Miss or Southwestern had a good time.

"By the way, did you notice Professor Cooper's picture in The Commercial Appeal a few Sundays ago? He looks more handsome than he did 15 years ago when we first found out what economics and history could mean under him."

In closing, Kitchell adds that he would like to "introduce you to the chief noise-makers in our home, as they romp about with all the necessary evils, dolls, skates, fire engines, etc."

This splendid letter from Kitchell should serve as an inspiration to Mabel Meacham to write for our next letter. Mabel is still in Clarksville, and we hope to bring you news from her next time.

Scarcity of news necessitates this column be only a few lines in length. Mrs. W. O. Swan, the wife of the popular Southwestern chemistry professor, will change scenery next fall when her husband takes up his new duties as head of the chemistry department at Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va.

Rumors have reached the correspondent that Penn Moss is coaching the basketball team at the Tupelo, Miss., High School.

How about this, Penn? Let us know if we are right or wrong, and if so why? Here's hoping that we get a nice answer by next time.

Class of 1927

Hamilton, Miss.*

The news about all of you, classmates, is scarce this time. Your correspondent has not heard from any of you, so that means that our part of the Alumni Magazine will be less interesting to those who chance to read these pages. May we do better next time.

News reached us that Louis Marks, who was associated with Marx and Bensdorf in Memphis, has become connected with the rental department of the Union Planters Bank. Ed. Morgan, who did mission work in Kentucky for a spell, has returned to Memphis to continue his ministerial duties.

Alexander Kahanski, who is doing boys' work in New York, was a visitor to the campus in the early fall. His address is 715 Fox Street. Eleanor Richmond deserves the crown jewel for her untiring work with the Memphis Alumnae Chapter. She is the president, you know, and was instrumental in helping the Memphis alumnae raise funds for a scholarship given to a woman student at Southwestern.

How about some news for the next issue, classmates?

Brownsville, Tenn.*

The correspondent wishes to take this opportunity to thank the members of the class who helped to make this letter possible. He hopes that before the time for another letter is here he will be able to tell you even more. Members of the Class of '28, let us hear from you!

If you happen to be in the vicinity of Asheville, North Carolina, at any time, drop by the Highland Hospital, and you will find that Mary Althea Parker is an instructor at that institution.

William Orr is working on his Ph.D. degree at Hartford Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn. A great deal of the winter has been spent in library work and speaking at various churches.

Mrs. Malcolm Perry (Dorothy Elizabeth Eddins) and Mrs. Ben C. Patton (Iola Shepherd) are proud young mothers. Dorothy has a little daughter, Dorothy Anita, called "Nita," who arrived on December 26. Iola also has a little daughter, Edna Lois, who arrived in Memphis on January 22.

James Pace is married and in business at Gilmore, Ark. His wife, formerly Addie Goad of Earle, Ark., attended Arkansas College and State Teachers' College. She taught several years in Earle, prior to her marriage. We wish them a long and happy life.

A prominent young dentist in Memphis is Dr. Herman Kaminsky. His office is located in the Sterick Building. Herman has a very promising future.

Dr. Sid Latiolais, who has been assistant resident surgeon at the General Hospital in Memphis, for the past few months, is now located at Dothan, Ala. He is roentgenologist at the Frazier-Ellis Hospital.

Joe Norvell is going to take unto himself a wife in the very near future. Miss Louise Stratton of Memphis is his fiancee. They will be married very soon.

Frank Heiss is still a prominent figure in the New York law firm of Larkin, Rathbone and Perry. His present address is 452 Riverside Drive, where he has an apartment with one of Owen D. Young's secretaries.

Chester Frist is pastor of the Moorefield Presbyterian Church at Moorefield, West Virginia, and is the father of a daughter, Jane Elizabeth, born January 26.

Joe Davis is doing a fine job in the athletic department at Clemson College as assistant coach. He is head basketball coach, and his team has a fine record for the season. Joe paid a visit to Memphis and Southwestern in late December and had a chance to greet some of his old friends.

Harold Avent has continued his tour of American hospitals by moving from Washington to New York. Harold is located at the hospital of the Society for the Relief of Ruptured and Crippled in New York. His address is 321 East Forty-Second Street.

The Class of '29 is the foster parent to a new co-ed. Malcolm Perry is the proud father of a daughter, Dorothy Anita, who was born December 26. Congratulations to the Perrys!

John Bornman has skipped out of Clarksdale, Miss., and has made a new business connection. John is located at Johnson City, Tenn.

Rubye Sebulsky is the latest to join the ranks of the happily married. She is now Mrs. Jacob Alperin and was married January 27 in Memphis. After a honeymoon that took the Alperins through New York, Washington, Chicago, and points along the way, they are now at home at 1511 Harbert Avenue.

Will White Holloman is another of the migrants to Washington, D. C. He has one of those federal jobs and is living at 1528 Sixteenth Street, N. W.

John C. Tate, '26-'29, who also makes the medical line his profession, is now at Fairfield, Maine. He is with the Central Maine Sanatorium.

Class of 1930

Gerald M. Capers, Jr., Correspondent
2685 Yale Station, New Haven, Conn.

The news items for the Class of '30 are rather few and far apart this time. Ruth Harris, who has a position as county administrator of the Emergency Relief Administration with headquarters at Lexington, Miss., has moved over to Tunica, Miss., for a bit of work. Ruth's work keeps her traveling quite a bit.

Anita Passmore said, "I do," to C. H. Barker of Carrollton, Ga., on December 23. Anita and her husband are making their home at Gore, Ga. Congratulations to them and may good luck come their way often.

Olive Walker was a visitor on the Southwestern campus during the first week in February. Olive was attending the annual district meeting of the American Alumni Council as a representative of Sewanee. You know she is the assistant alumni secretary at the University of the South.

Ellen Goodman has forsaken the confines of Memphis and has landed herself a good government job in Washington. Her address is 2034 Twentieth Street.

Harvey Kidd was ordained into the ministry at the First Presbyterian Church, Tuscaloosa, Ala., on December 16, by the Presbytery of Tuscaloosa. Congratulations, Harvey. You know, the Rev. H. T. Kidd, as he is now properly called, is assistant pastor of the church in Tuscaloosa.

Fritz Heidelberg is working on his Master's degree at Louisville Seminary, but goes to Jasper, Indiana, each week to preach. He is the pastor at Jasper, and he has established residence at 316 West Eighth Street.

Dr. H. E. Kirk, '94-'97, Writes His Seventh Book

A Man of Property or the Jacob Saga is the title of a book that has just come from the pen of the Rev. Harris Elliott Kirk, D.D., '94-'97, of Baltimore, Md. It is published by Harper and Brothers, New York. The book contains a series of studies on the career of Jacob, the ancient patriarch of Israel.

This is the seventh volume to come from the pen of Dr. Kirk, who has been pastor of the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church in Baltimore since 1901. The book is dedicated to the congregation of the Westminster Church in London, England, where Dr. Kirk has been summer pastor for a number of years.

Class of 1931

*Nate R. White, Correspondent
Falmouth, Ky.*

Miles Freeman, who holds the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church at Harrisville, Mich., wins the five star award for this edition of the Class Letter. Miles wrote an interesting and lengthy letter to the correspondent. Here's hoping that some of the other members will take the hint and drop a line.

The big news concerning Miles is that he has added himself to the married list of the class. He married Miss Rubie Inez Clarkson, of Louisville, Ky., on September 5. Congratulations, Miles, and may your wedded life be long and happy. Miles went to Harrisville on June 1, after his graduation from Louisville Seminary. He is doing mission work with headquarters in Harrisville. He also has two other preaching points, one ten miles and the other twenty-five miles from Harrisville. He preaches at all three of them every Sunday. Miles is directing the work of the construction of churches at all three of these points. Thanks, Miles, for the letter. It is needless to say how much it was enjoyed.

Leroy Montgomery has gone into business for himself. Leroy recently opened an antique shop on Union Avenue in Memphis and is doing well at his new work. How about penning a letter with one of Napoleon's antique quills, Leroy?

Horace Harwell is a big promoter with the Tri-State Amusement Co., and recently opened a picture show at Cleveland, Miss. Horace still works out of the Shrine Building office in Memphis.

Mary Moore is another to take on a partner for life. Mary was married to W. G. Shivers of Phoenix, Ark., on November 23, in Helena. Congratulations and good luck, Mary. The couple are making their home in Phoenix.

Jennie Burford Puryear has taken up with a new job. Jennie is now the social secretary for the Hotel Gayoso in Memphis and invites all her friends to come and see her.

Marion Painter has moved to the Western Union office at Birmingham, Ala. Painter took up his duties on the first of the year and likes his new location fine. He lives at 4311 Clairmont Avenue.

After June, our class will be able to claim a pair of Ph.D.'s. John Flowers will receive his Doctor's degree in physics from Virginia, while Ogden Baine will be awarded his by New York University, having specialized in chemistry.

Class of 1932

*James G. Hughes, Correspondent
236 Pasadena, Memphis, Tenn.*

(Editor's Note—Since Mr. Hughes has been so busy making preparations to get "hitched," he has been unable to write his usual interesting column. The Editor is taking the liberty to do a bit of reporting for the Class of '32. Congratulations to '32's correspondent and his bride.)

Cupid has certainly played havoc with the Class of 1932. Within three weeks Cupid's arrows have rung true on the hearts of three of the class members. The correspondent has taken unto himself a wife. Jane Barker and Jimmy were married on the evening of March 1 at the Calvary Episcopal Church. They are at home now at 236 Pasadena.

Milly Fry was the victim of another of Cupid's well-aimed darts. Milly married William Walters, '26-'27, on February 6. They are making their home at 1572 Overton Park Avenue. Congratulations to both of these couples and may happiness meet them at every turn of life's road.

Bill Walker has left his coaching duties at Leland, Miss., and is now affiliated with the A. G. Spalding Co., sporting goods house. Bill is a traveling salesman for the company and covers the territory of West Tennessee, Northern Mississippi, and Eastern Arkansas. He is working out of the Memphis office. He plans to make his home at either Memphis or Clarksdale, Miss.

Class of 1933

Mary Allie Taylor, Correspondent
1830 Jackson Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

No one could be more appreciative of the fact that most of our classmates live in Memphis, and are available therefore by means of the telephone, than your correspondent. Were it not for that instrument this column would be practically blank, for somehow it seems that I can always be at the wrong place and at the wrong time to see any of you scurrying about the city's streets in pursuit of your duties or pleasures.

George Roy says that I am just too busy and in too big a hurry, for when one takes a stroll leisurely about the business district, there are lots of class members to be seen. Now that George is a new member of the board of directors of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, he will probably be a "too busy man."

Back to the telephone and thanks to it for an enjoyable conversation with Winona Bates Tripp. She had just talked with Ida Banks Wright, who has taken her young son to Hernando for a visit with her family while Dr. Wright attends a medical convention in Memphis. Winona has taken two delightful trips of late—to Hot Springs for a week-end and to Cincinnati during the Christmas holidays.

Then Anne Galbreath and I chatted at the expense of the real estate office. Anne stated very unenthusiastically, "I'm still doing the same old thing," but we have a sneaking suspicion that Anne enjoys her job. She reminded us of Eloise Brett's visit here for Christmas. Some of us who had the pleasure of seeing Eloise found her quite a Washington enthusiast. She's back now on the job.

Speaking of Washington, reminds us that Carolyn McKellar, '29-'31, who has been working in the nation's capital, is now in Memphis making plans for her wedding to C. Irwin Dunn of Baltimore.

"Pud" Mahan had lots of "dope" for me. She naturally keeps up with people because of her job as one of the society editors of The Commercial Appeal. First, she mentioned the Jane Barker-James Hughes wedding and the fact that the bridal party in-

Walter Stewart Named to Sports Staff of New York Newspaper

Walter Stewart, ex '30, sports and feature writer of The Memphis Press-Scimitar, was recently appointed to the sports staff of The New York World-Telegram, a Scripps-Howard newspaper. Stewart was appointed by Joe Williams, national sports columnist and a former Memphian.

Stewart's work for The Press-Scimitar has attracted widespread attention on various occasions and won him the journalistic berth in New York. Westbrook Pegler, nationally known columnist and sports authority, in an article in Esquire named Stewart as one of the best sports writers outside of New York.

His writings have been outstanding for their rich color, their ready readability and their individual treatment. Stewart is a native Memphian, and after leaving Southwestern, he attended the University of Illinois and Columbia. He did his first newspaper work with The Press-Scimitar.

An article on the death of Coach Jimmy Haygood written by Stewart appears on page four in this issue of the Alumni Magazine.

cluded several members of our class—Anne Galbreath, Ione Wall, Russell Perry, and Franklin Kimbrough.

A letter has also been received by "Pud" from Mrs. Edward L. Edmundson (nee Nell Sanders), who was married on January 1, describing the lovely ancestral home in Goldsboro, N. C., that Nell found all furnished and ready for her after a Florida honeymoon.

Clough Eaton, who says he is still wrapping bundles, gives us the low-down on the Sears, Roebuck employees of the class. Harriet Storms is very busy in the public service division of the advertising department. Bill Taylor is a buyer—of baby shoes—of all things.

"Bubber" Coleman deserted the academic profession to sell Frigidaires, according to what we hear. Emma Frances Robinson has taken up teaching and is located at Gordon School in Memphis. Harvey Creech, we learn from the Miller-Hawkins business school bulletin, is now taking a business course there. Creech is studying up on advertising and preparing to enter the field. Robert Mobley is connected with the National Bank of Commerce in Memphis.

Dorothy Smith McCormick tells us that Claude is now in the cotton business with his brother, and so, he is traveling about quite a bit. To Dotty we owe our thanks for news of Martha Burton, who is teaching in Buckner, Ark., and is assistant basketball coach.

Barbara Porter Ginn of Greenwood, Miss., spent the first week in February in Memphis, celebrating her first wedding anniversary.

Now, in closing, let us again say thanks to the telephone. It's interesting to me—and to you, I'm sure—to know the whereabouts and doings of our classmates. So save up the news for us, and in about two months you'll have another call from this correspondent.

In Memoriam

Wilburn J. Jenkins, '33, Memphis, Tenn., died February 19 in the Methodist Hospital, of pneumonia, following an illness of several days. Mr. Jenkins was an honor graduate of Southwestern and a member of Theta Nu Epsilon fraternity. He was connected with the John Gerber Co. Members of the Class of '33 extend their heartfelt sympathy to the members of his family in their loss.

Class of 1934

William Ducease, Correspondent

1815 Canal Bank Bldg., New Orleans, La.

So I became class correspondent. However, sometimes I think it should be despondent. In my first time at bat in the Class News League, I have managed to amass a mace average of .250. I can blame Anthony Adverse for this insignificant figure. When I undertook my duties as correspondent, I was ambitious and as zealous as a young boy making his first mud pie. I was getting along beautifully, as "Humpko" would say, having written to two or three of our illustrious members, when who should come strolling into my room but my "Beetle"—Anthony Adverse.

When I became tangled up in the infinite jungle of words, I was good for nothing else for two weeks. After I did find out whether the old Marquis would disclose the secret to Anthony, I managed to write a few more of the members. Then Romeo's fate decreed that I should change jobs and locations. As a result, I have been too busy to write any more members. However, I did manage to write about 24. (Note to Prof. Atkinson . . . Is that "However" used correctly?) I received replies from eight, and being a cold-blooded man, I'm going to include only those in our letter.

Lillias Christie seems to be the most ambitious of the crowd. She's not satisfied with working. She has to go to school too. She writes that she's a case worker at the Transient Bureau in Memphis from 5 p.m. until midnight every night. Besides that job, she is taking a few courses at the University of Tennessee. She didn't tell me what she does with all her spare time.

Now take Dixie (Dizzy) Mae Jennings. She tells me that she is working, but doesn't disclose the location, nature, or any details about her job. I just can't wait until I find out.

Scudder (Scooter) Smith seems to be one of those mysterious sort of people who glide silently through the night disclosing their thoughts and plans to no one. I thought "Little Dusty" was going to work on his master's degree at Vanderbilt. Instead, I find him at Town Creek, Ala., where he is an assistant to the concrete technician at Wheeler Dam.

Henry Oliver wrote me a letter most of which was "not for publication." Since I received his missive, I have learned from the newspapers that he has received an appointment as an assistant in the economics department at Duke University. You know that is where J. B. Breazeale is also studying. Congratulations, Henry, on your good fortune.

After Julia Marie Schwinn's letter, I determined that I would some day visit the college "founded by Thomas Jefferson and attended by Woodrow Wilson, Edgar Allan Poe, and A. Theodore Johnson." That "yodelling of a bunch of . . ." especially appeals to me. Judy is enrolled in the graduate school and taking courses in English. She is also in charge of one-act play productions and assistant on the full-length plays in the dramatic department.

Out of the 52 students that graduated from Southwestern in June, 1934, I would say that there were 51 dumbbells and one educated man. That educated man is Robert (Puddle) Pond. When he gets out in the world, he doesn't take the first thing that comes along. No, he makes up his mind what he wants and rears back like a stubborn mule to wait for results. How is DuPont coming along, Puddle?

Virginia West writes a very nice note from Pace, Miss. She is teaching English in a junior high school at Pace, which is not so very far from her home town, Shaw. Virginia likes her work fine and is doing well at her new job.

I had to make a trip to Greenville, Miss., recently and dropped in to see Bill Hunt. I found him in a big office behind a door which had on it "Hunt and Chappell, Insurance Brokers," in large and important looking letters. He was kind enough to invite me to dinner, but lo and behold, what did he do but drag me off to a wedding. All kidding aside, I enjoyed the wedding, and Bill, Mrs. Hunt, and Mary, his sister, gave a convincing demonstration of Greenville hospitality. I will have to buy some insurance now.

I also had to stop at Natchez, Miss., where I met Dr. J. F. Chamberlain, '93-'95, of Chamberlain-Rice Hospital. He told me that he had attended Southwestern. When I asked him what years, he shied away. Whereupon his associate, Dr. Rice, suggested that it was in the days "that Cromwell was arrayed in England," so I didn't press the point. Incidentally, Professor William T. Jones is his nephew.

As I count up the members in this manuscript, I find that eight are included. My conclusions are that it is time to stop the jumbled ramblings of a somewhat disorganized brain. I conclude with the plea that if any of the readers find their anatomy in the vicinity of New Orleans they will look me up without fail.

Italian Government Sends Classics to Library

The Italian section of the college library has been enriched by the addition of 31 volumes donated by the Italian government. Renato Citarelli, Italian consul at St. Louis, forwarded the group of classics to Southwestern, and he promised an additional 300 volumes when the college set aside a special room where students and campus clubs interested in the language might study.

Dr. J. H. Wilson is in charge of the study of Italian, and an unusual amount of interest has been shown by the students. Dr. Wilson also organized a class in Italian for members of the faculty and business staff of the college.

Among the classics received were "The Divine Comedy" by Dante, "Lyrics" by Mauzoni, "Orlando Furioso" by Ariosto, "Il Principe" by Machiavelli, "Jerusalem Delivered" by Tasso, sonnets by Petrarca, tragedies by Alfieri and some comedies by Goldoni.

New Dietitian Assumes Duties at Neely Hall

Mrs. M. L. Hill has been named dietitian and manager of the college dining hall. Mrs. Hill succeeds Mrs. Porter B. Dailey, who served as dietitian for the past four years. The new manager came to Southwestern from a similar position at Randolph-Macon Academy, Front Royal, Va. She was formerly house manager at Galloway College, Searcy, Ark., and Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn.

Faculty Notes

Dr. Ralph Hon attended the annual meeting of the American Economic Association that was held in Chicago in December.

Dr. John H. Davis was the speaker at the meeting of the American Association of University Women that was held at the Nineteenth Century Club on February 1.

"Mussolini's Italy" was the subject of a talk given by Dr. H. J. Bassett on January 22 before the Watauga Chapter of the D.A.R.

President Charles E. Diehl and Dr. W. O. Shewmaker represented the college at the meeting of the Association of American Colleges that was held in Atlanta, January 16-18.

Prof. Felix B. Gear gave an address at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Students' Conference that was held at Belhaven College, Jackson, Miss., on February 23.

Dr. James H. Wilson gave a lecture on "The Renaissance" at the James Lee Memorial Academy of Arts on February 11.

Dr. M. L. MacQueen had a paper on "A Projective Generalization of Metrically Defined Associate Surfaces" published in the October, 1934, issue of Transactions of the American Mathematical Society. Another of his papers will appear in the July, 1935, issue of the American Journal of Mathematics.

Dr. W. O. Puckett spoke before a meeting of the science teachers of the Memphis public schools on March 4.

Dr. W. R. Atkinson spoke before the Memphis Teachers General Assembly on February 9. He was also a speaker at the Scout Leaders Training School last month.

Prof. Allen Tate has an article on "The Profession of Letters in the South" in the April issue of The Virginia Quarterly Review.

Dr. A. Theodore Johnson wrote a review of Alec Maury, Sportsman for the recent issue of The Journal, student literary publication.

Dr. P. N. Rhodes spoke to the Memphis Alumnae Chapter last month on "Science and Its Peculiarities."

One of the most important functions of the Alumni Magazine is to keep the alumni of Southwestern in touch with each other. The class-correspondent plan makes it possible for alumni to renew the ties of college friendships, since the members of each class are expected to keep in touch with the class correspondent, reporting any items of interest about themselves or their classmates. From the letters received from the members of his class, the correspondent writes the class letter for the Alumni Magazine. It is the part of the members of each class to keep the correspondent supplied with material for the class letter. Don't leave your affairs to the imagination of your class correspondent.
