Yom Kippur Message Given To Jews In U.S.

ATLANTA, Ga. — (SNS) — Seldom have the heart and conscience of man been confronted by greater challenge than that which they face today.

As Jews throughout the world pray for the offering with deepest sincerity and ethical purpose.

Our prayers must be forgiveness for our sins of oral blindness and a pathy toward the tragic plight of those brethren within the human family who are beset by oppression, poverty and degradation. Our prayers must ask for clarity of conscience and strength of heart, and must serve to install within us an unbreakable resolve to support — with fervor of voice and determination of action — those pursuits which can proffer succor and light to the disinherited.

This is an era of ferment, fear and confusion. Our Jewish brethren in Russia are denied their birthright of religious freedom.

Our black brethren in Biafra are on the verge of extinction because of our tragic suffering has neither pricked the conscience of our nation leaders nor struck a sufficiently responsive note among those of us who feel too far removed from their pathetic struggle for peaceful independence. Our American black brethren are in legitimate revolt to throw off the throttling yoke which for 300 years has denied them the constitutionally guaranteed rights and privileges enjoyed by the their white brethren.

Youth are in rebellion against an unjust war that is destroying the people and land of Vietnam, just as they are in revolt against political bossism and brutality that have begun to take on the bitter flavor of totalitarianism. And our American Indian brethren

House Speaker Orders Doors Locked After Blocking Tactics

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—A Republican bloc brought the House to a standstill Tuesday in an effort to prevent action on a bill to allow televised presidential campaign debates. Speaker John W. McCormack was forced to lock up the chamber to keep members at work.

McCormack resorted to his seldom used authority to order the House doors locked after Rep. Donald Rumsfeld R-Ill repeatedly blocked House procedures with a series of time consuming quorums. The speaker's action was unprecedented in the memory of congressional observances of the past quarter-century.

A spokesman for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey who has been demanding a face-to-face television debate with his GOP presidential rival Richard M. Nixon charged the Republicans were trying to filibuster the bill to death.

Rumsfeld leading a group known jocularly in the galleries as "Rumsfeld's Raiders" through a monkey wrench into the laps of House members of adjourning the election year session by this weekend.

Four and one half hours after the House convened at noon the "Raiders" had insisted on nine quorum calls each one consuming 23 to 30 minutes. The House had been unable to proceed with any business except for the opening prayer.

At issue was a bill to waive the federal requirement that equal time be allowed for all presidential candidates on political television appearances.

A similar waiver opened the way for the John F. Kennedy Nixon debates in 1960. This time the House bill would extend the provision for both major party candidates to include George C. Wallace of the American Independent party.

Humphrey has been demanding that Nixon meet with him in debate. Nixon has shrugged off the proposal saying he refused to debate Wallace. The poll would permit all three candidates to appear on television without the necessity of giving equal time to minor candidates.

Moments after the House convened Rumsfeld and his group began their demands for quorum calls, which meant that the roll of 432 members had to be called. By 2 p. m. the clerk had not even finished reading the journal of the previous day's proceeding a routine that ordinarily takes 30 seconds or less.

Rumsfeld concluded that the equal time bill should not be acted on until Congress passes legislation providing for congressional and election reform.

At 4:30 p. m. McCormack ordered the doors locked.

While the House was bogged down in a Senate-style procedural maelstrom the Senate itself plodded through its finishing business with these actions:

Ratification of a treaty providing for the return home of astronauts and their space vehicles if they land back on the earth on foreign soil.

Further debate on a $101.7 million catch-up appropriations bill which is being used as a vehicle for amendments including one to limit "Medicaid" state and federal help for the medically indigent. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and other northern senators have to filibuster to knock out the restriction.

MARtha J. STEINBERG WAS HEARD ALL OVER MEMPHIS LEMOYNE COLLEGE PRESENTS CULTURAL EVENT

African Dancers Are Spectacular African Dancers, presented to Memphis by Lemoyme College Tuesday evening in the Auditorium Music Hall, were spectacular. They were gay, charming, graceful and the girls had broad smiles. Their Dances, Acrobatic Acts, the Warriors, the Singers, Drummers, and Musicians were all traditional of Mali, a large landlocked Republic in north-western Africa. It was also noted that many of them carried out the chants and dress of Moslems and more than half of the people of Mali and north Africa are of the Islam faith. A scene of Timbuktu (Mali's most famous town, was shown on a back-drop showing the Niger River.

Many of the Acts or scenes were obvious as were the "Witch Doctor" the "Dance of the Hunters" the Sacred Bird, the all of the Tam-Tam which plays a vital role in the Malian tribal life as drums are used in communicating with others far away. We also recognized the "Funeral Ceremonies of the Dogans who live in caves" the Gamba which says when a boy qualifies as a man Presentation of Dragon Masks and the Grand Masque (Dogans) stood out. They were worn several hundred years ago and are national treasures and are rarely permitted to travel outside the Republic of Mali (once the French Sudan) because of their delicacy, their antiquity, their rarity, their historical significance and their value. Masks were elaborate and beautiful.

Mus'c Hall of the City Auditorium was packed with an almost capacity crowd. We arrive in time but saw only a few as we had front seats. But the very first person that we noticed was my husband's one time friend, Robert Ratcliffe, Director of Public Relations at Lemoyme who stood in the foyer and watched the crowd lined up at the box office.

Glancing around, we noticed there were many caucasians. Among these we saw Mrs. Alma Roubach Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Horne Miss Erma Laws, Mrs. Ann Weathers, Mrs. Emma Tom Johnson, Miss Valma Lois Jones, Miss Lucille Fultz, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Jackson, Mrs. Ernestine Guy, Mrs. Andrewetta Hawkins Jones who lived in Africa. With her were her mother and a brother and sister-in-law, Mrs. Edgar Hawkins, Sr. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hawkins, Jr., their children and the Jones Children who were thrilled over the dances and customs that they had lived with.

Others noticed were Mr. and Mrs. Reed of the Defender whom we talked with back stage. Looked around for President and Mrs. Hollis Price who have done much traveling in Africa. Noted Miss Utoqa Quarles who has traveled in Africa with Mrs. E. Hawkins enjoying the performance and so was my spouse, who has traveled in a small portion of the continent, thoroughly enjoying the performance. I also looked for Mr. and Mrs. Maceo Walker (the once sent to the Republic of Mali as an Ambassador of Goodwill by the President of the United States (L. B. J.) but missed seeing him. But noticed the Walker's young daughter, "Candy" with Mrs. Betty Caruthers Bland and M. A. B. Carter.

MRS. ANDERSON BRIDGES is back after attending a fabulous birthday party given for her friend Mrs. Ed Clayton who was in college with her. The party was given at one of Atlanta's fabulous hotels. Mrs. Clayton, a frequent visitor in Memphis, is public relations director for SCLC. Jo rushed back to open her Public Relations Office and it is a pretty suite in the Minimum Salary Building on Hernando.

MRS. FLOYD NEWMAN (Lillian) is home after having been ill in Baptist Hospital. She is still in wanting to see her friends. Many have been by.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS HAYES are back after attending a meeting of the National Transit Authority that met in Cleveland last week. However, Helen was back in time to entertain lavishly for the Links on last Friday evening.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT LEWIS Jr. and DR. AND MRS. LELAND ATKINS are back after driving the Lewis' pretty young daughter, Sharon to the Nation's Capital where she is attending Howard University. The two couples (the two matrons sisters) visited Dr. and Mrs. Gregory Carter in New Port News back to Williamsburg spent time with Judge and Mrs. Aubrey Anderson (she the former Sarah Payne of Memphis and with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eiland who had them to dinner. Julia spent time with an old friend, Mrs. Frances Hooks who came for Julia's wedding reception years ago and they all visited with Dean and Mrs. Stephens Davis (the Dean of the School of Engineering at Howard U. The Atkins young niece the former Barbara Bruce, is married to Stephens Davis, Jr. whom they also visited.

Much interest is centered around the recent marriage of Miss Mignette Morris and Mr. George Brown, Sr. The bride has been popular in church and social circles and is a teacher in the Memphis City School System. Mr. Brown who is with Illinois Central is a prominent citizen and a member of a pioneer work at Mt. Olive Cathedral where two of his maternal uncles have pastored.

LAS DOCE AMIGAS PRESENTS REFLECTIONS IN LIVE IN FASHIONS AT SHERATON-PEABODY

Martha Jean Steinberg Is Topp As Commentator

Martha Jean Steinberg, a top Radio Personality in Detroit and a native of Memphis was Supurb Sunday. She was charming, well dressed, down-to-earth, concerned about others, commentary in her many remarks about others when she commented the smart fashion show given for the fifth year by members of Las Doce Amigas, all members of Penecostal Temple.

The show, given in the Skyway of the Peabody, drew a capacity crowd and a very appreciative one. All members of the club greeted guests upon arrival and they too looked especially good wearing aqua blue "after-five" frocks.

Theme of the Show was "Reflections of Love In Fashions" Sub-topics with four scenes were "Color is the Key" Black is Beautiful "High Fashions" and Our Afri-American Heritage. Mrs. Arthur F. Mason introduced the show. The Rev. Samuel B. Kyles presented plaques to the late Dr. Martin Luther King to be placed in the Plaque Room of the Gorraine Hotel (Room 306). Expressions were by Mr. J. B. Trotter. Music by Mr. Samuel Flagg at the organ. Prizes were presented by Miss Ann Fletcher and Mrs. Julia Atkins, president of the group presented beautiful tall plaques to Mrs. Steinberg who has come to Memphis for five consecutive years to commemorate the show and to Mrs. Denise Hawkins, Chairman of the show who also served as one of the charming models and Denise was well dressed for sure and a fast stepper.

MARtha JEAN (known all over Detroit as the "Queen" by her show), was the top thing in fashion wearing (in the first scene) a smart red satin suit, a red head dress band giving her the Afro look. As she entered, she said Color is the theme and it was for her and the good-looker did look good in the bright red and in every thing that she wore. She started the show by telling her audiences to be proud and interested in the Grainge Workers, all Blue Collar Workers and placed much emphasis on the Hospital Workers, now on strike. Miss Steinberg presented three silver pitchers for Carling Black Label Beer. One went to Mr. T. O. Jones Labor Leader and Mr. "Bill" Ross who is also with the Labor Movement. She mentioned that she and her manager, the good-looker and brilliant FETE HALL placed a wreath on the spot where Dr. Martin Luther King was murdered.

The show moved fast. Even though it was two hour long, the time seemed a mere 30 minutes, in the pleasant atmosphere. Ushers also were Afro dress.

In her second scene Martha Jean wore an exquisite bright red satin Theatre Coat that featured a high waste line with the jeweled belt over a deep rose gown and she again wore a head band of sequins on red that tied at the back giving her the Afro look.

Bishop J. O. Patterson, pastor at Penecostal gave expressions: And I Quote: The continued concerted effort of the Las Doce Amigas Club to bring to fruition a full time Child Care Center reminds me of a Biblical metaphor told by Jesus, the Christ, almost two thousand years ago. The story vividly projected two human philosophers. One was that of the Priest and Levi—What I have is mine and I am going to keep it. The second philosophy was that of a nameless "Good Samaritan" What's mine is yours if you need it. The latter seems to be the philosophy of the club as they look about the city and see little children uncaared for.

For the past three years all profits from the Fashion Show have been deposited in the Penecostal Temple Child Care Center Account. Members responsible are Mrs. Julia Atkins, Mrs. Denise Hawkins, Mrs. Geraldine Miller, Mrs. J. O. (Deborah) Patterson, Mrs. Lois Glider, Miss Ann Fletcher, Mrs. Joan Golden and Mrs. Bernice Harris.

Models were Mrs. Doris Bowers, Mrs. Judy Eiland (an able designer), Mrs. Denise Hawkins, Mrs. Ruthy LaGrone, Mrs. Allie McGuire, Mrs. Rolena Porter, Mrs. P. L. Rowe, Mrs. Polly Swayne and Mrs. Gwendolyn Walton.

DR. AND MRS. ATKINS ENTERTAIN Dr. and Mrs. Leland Atkins (she Julia) entertained and were assisted by members of Las Doce Amigas in complimenting Martha Jean Steinberg and her sauve manager, Pet Hall on Friday evening of last week. The party was in session when they arrived at the airport and these they were met by Mrs. J. O. Patterson and Mrs. Joan Golden. To describe the party one would say that the beauty was superb and the food delightful and plentiful. Caterers going through the crowd all evening. The service table was placed directly in front of a glass wall that overlooks the Atkins' back patio and gardens.

MISS STEINBERG AND MR. HALL ENTERTAINS THE PRESS HOLDS PRESS CONFERENCE

Martha Jean and Pete Hall were most gracious when they entertained for members of the Press on Saturday morning at the Sheraton Motor Inn at Breakfast and again the radio personality looked good. She wore an off white suit a navy high neck-line sweater Navy shoes and hose. Pete wore gray and he is truly on the ball as a host.

From the Sheraton, we went to the Minimum Salary Building for a Press Conference in the office of Mr. T. O. Jones, well known Labor figure.

Stopped by the parade, we went in Leveys. It was here that Erma Laws and I got the surprise of our lives when Martha Jean and Pete presented us with Body perfume by Christian Dior. Our next stop was WDIA where Miss Steinberg was on the and. There we were met by Nat Williams. We again had lunch with them Erma and I cut out. Nat took them on to WLOK where Joan turned the station over to Martha Jean. Saturday evening, they visited friends and relatives.

Time-Life Books Give $35,000 To SCLC Foundation At Luncheon

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, recently received the first net profits from the sales of Time-Life Books' "I Have A Dream" a pictorial biography of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Rhett Austell, publisher of Time-Life Books which issued the biography shortly after Dr. King's murder on April 3, presented $35,000 to Rev. Abernathy. The funds are earmarked for the Southern Christian Leadership Foundation, the non-profit education arm of the civil rights organization that Dr. King founded and led until his death.

The presentation was made in Paschal's Hotel at a noon luncheon attended by SCLC, religious and civic officials of Atlanta. In a short ceremony, Austell recalled that the book was produced in only five days, in an atmosphere that was deeply charged with emotion from start to finish.

In response to the presentation, Rev. Abernathy expressed appreciation for the generous contribution and declared "every cent of it will be used to advance the whole cause for which Martin Luther King gave his life."

He also cited in brief the obstacles which have been overcome by the race and the help of its friends. He said he hoped all our race can someday truthfully say "Free at last" because there would no longer be barriers based on color.

Bill Howland read a brief statement of tribute to the late Dr. King in behalf of Mayor Ivan Allen.

Both the senior and junior Madames Kings were present and so was A. D. Williams King, several other members of the SCLC of final family were also present.

At the time of publication, it was announced that all net profits of "I Have A Dream" would be donated to SCLC. The publisher said today's donation represented the book's first accumulation of profits and that over a period of time additional profits would be realized and other payments made to SCLC.

"I Have A Dream" combines 100 pages of photographs and a running text to follow the life and career of America's foremost crusader for racial equality and apostle of non-violence.

The title of the new book is the phrase which provided the theme for Dr. King's memorable freedom speech given at the Lincoln Memorial at the climax of the massive 1963 March on Washington. Over 300,000 copies of the book are in print in the United States.

National Council Of Women Name 21 To Honor Roll

NEW YORK CITY — Twenty-one distinguished women from all over the United States — all leaders in an area related directly to human rights — will be honored in New York City October 15 as "Women of Conscience" by the National Council of Women of the United States.

Each of these outstanding women was nominated for this special NCW national citation by a member organization in which she has been active. These organizations through the National Council encompass some 18 million American women, Mrs. Robbins said.

The 21 "women of conscience" will not be officially announced until the annual "Woman of Conscience" luncheon on October 15 to be given by the National Council on the opening day of a three-

Federation medal in 1947. For distinguished community service, he was awarded the Columbia Lion by the Columbia University Essex County (N. J.) Club.

A resident of Short Hills, N. J., he has been active in New Jersey affairs. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Regional Plan Association, the Advisory Board of the Graduate School of Business Administration at Rutgers University and the Board of Advisors at Seton Hall University.

He and his wife, the former Helen McOregor, reside at 497 Long Hill Drive in Short Hills. They have three children, Jane, Margaret and Robert M.

NEWARK, N. J. — Take six or seven disadvantaged children, add some topical discussions and then mix with some simple chemistry experiments.

This is the successful formula that Ron Taylor discovered as a volunteer tutor for the Child Service Ass. of Newark. Taylor is a research chemist for Humble Oil & Refining Company's research and engineering affiliate in Linden, N. J.

"I wanted to get involved in tutorial work, and I didn't care whom I tutored," Taylor said. "I wanted to help children, black and white, who needed someone to act as a spur to give them impetus."

While giving a series of Opportunity - In - Industry lectures at the Seventh Avenue School in Newark, Taylor made inquiries concerning the needs for volunteer tutors. He was referred to the Child Service Ass.

"The Association — through a series of grants — counsels families who have financial, social or marital problems," Taylor said. "The children I worked with came from these families. The young people were selected on the basis of their general aptitude and represented the first such group at CSA."

"The idea that they are incapable of learning because of low aptitude is entirely incorrect," he said. "Their situation at home or at school, however, is such that they probably will never have the option of a college education."

"We have to stimulate their thinking even though their situation is diluted with other concerns. I found that these youngsters get old at a very early age."

"You gain the acceptance of these children by not condescending or talking down to them. I structured my class as a fun thing — something not like school — so they would be receptive. The discipline problem did not exist."

"The children grasp concepts but fail to retain them, Taylor said. "Being exposed is one thing, but if the exposure is not constant, there will be low retention. My problem was I just did not have the time I needed to be totally effective."

Although the classes took place in the evenings, attendance was excellent, according to Taylor.

"Some of the children had to take two buses across Newark, but they came rain or shine."

"After a relationship was established that the training was not a typical classroom situation, the children began to ask countless questions."

"Once the children realized that this was a free — floating type thing, they had plenty of questions," Taylor said. "When it came to experiments, the only thing I insisted on was care in handling the chemicals."

Besides the classroom discussions, the chemical work conducted in the class included making nylon, dry ice experiments and acid-base titrations.

"These children can and want to learn," the Linden resident said. Taylor currently works on the structural analysis of chemicals under development as additives for Humble lube oil and fuel products. He will be going on a professional leave of absence soon to do post-doctoral work at New York University. At NYU he will be expanding his capabilities in complex organic chemical analyses.

Detroit Magazine Probe Black Militants

Detroit Scope Magazine, in its October 6th issue, published the first meaningful dialogue among the black and white commentators about the black militants really want.

The in-depth study shows that beneath all the saber rattling, the black militants are striving for fundamentally the same dream that all Americans share.

The establishments press has long played up the violent threat of black militancy, which has resulted in whites mistakenly thinking that black pride is hostile.

"The so-called 'Black Revolution' is more a movement to awaken America than to destroy it. The blacks are taking the larger percentage of casualties in Vietnam to show how they are willing to protect the American Dream while young whites flee to Canada."

Detroit Scope Magazine again telling it like it REALLY is.

Lutheran Leader's Funeral Held

AMSTERDAM — (LWF) — More than 1000 friends of Dr. Willem Jan Koolman filled Oude Lutherse Kerk (Old Lutheran Church) here on September 23 as funeral services were held for the highly-regarded scholar and leader of his confession.

Dr. Koolman, 65, died on September 18. The churchman, a professor of church history at the University of Amsterdam and LWF seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in the Kingdom of the Netherlands had been in ill health for a prolonged period.

Among his various positions, Dr. Koolman was chairman of the Netherlands National Committee of the Lutheran World Federation.

Condolences were conveyed to Mrs. Koolman and the Netherlands Lutheran Church by Dr. Andre Appel, L. W. F. general secretary, and the federation was represented at the funeral by the Rev. Gunnar Ostendat, secretary of the LWF Commission on Stewardship and Evangelism.

The LWF representative also brought to the Netherlands Lutheran church a special remembrance of Dr. Koolman from Lutheran churches in the East German Democratic Republic.

This was a tapestry of famous Lutherplaces which was presented to the Martin Luther House in Amsterdam, a home for the elderly built by Netherlands Lutherans in cooperation with the government.

The tapestry representation recalled two special occasions last October 31 — the dedication of the Martin Luther House and commemoration of the 450th Anniversary of the Reformation at Wittenberg, Germany. Dr. Koolman, a noted authority in Luther research, had been scheduled to be among the main lecturers at Wittenberg but his poor health prevented his participation.

During the final services and in private conversations, Mr. Ostendat said later it was "evident how much Dr. Koolman meant to the Lutheran Church in Holland — he was the image of the Church."

In January of 1967, Dr. Koolman was made a Knight of the Order of the Netherlands Lion, one of the nation's highest honors, by Queen Juliana.

BOGOTA, Colombia — Police here recently put out of business a thriving school for confidence men...
