The Margaret Hyde Council
Leadership Women Philanthropy

MISSION STATEMENT

The Margaret Hyde Council seeks to encourage women's philanthropy to ensure the strength of Rhodes. We are committed to providing more opportunities to prepare women students for leadership in the workplace, their communities, and their personal lives. We are an educational resource for all women in the Rhodes community.

Rhodes College

The need for a liberal arts education

has not changed

The Margaret Hyde Council

has made an investment in developing the leadership skills of many Rhodes women, among them German major Elizabeth Enger. Now understanding the challenges faced by developing nations, she used her scholarship to participate in a service program in Honduras to help clear land for a woman's cooperative.

Lori Dunn has faced challenges most college students never imagine: a battle with cancer. With financial assistance from the Hyde Council, she is active on campus and off. Lori is pictured with her Snowden School Adopt-a-Friend. Against all odds, Toni Greer entered college as a 37-year old single mother of three. While working at Buckman Labs, she became interested in Japanese language and culture. She was awarded a scholarship to study in Japan for a semester. An inspiration to all who know her, Toni is now working on a Masters of Engineering for Technical Japanese. And finally, Tavishi Agrawala, Hyde Council scholar from India, has enriched campus life at Rhodes. "My classes have been eye openers to cultures very different from my own. They have helped me view the world from new perspectives."

We must ensure that, regardless of financial resources, talented women have access to a Rhodes education. And further, once they are enrolled, we must ensure that they can afford to take advantage of growth opportunities such as international study, internships, research, and leadership programs. The Margaret Hyde

Council is committed to preparing women to embrace the challenges and opportunities of the 21st century by investing in their education at Rhodes.

We invite you to establish an endowed scholarship in your name or the name of a woman who has influenced your life. Your scholarship will be as permanent as Rhodes itself, as a portion of the endowment's income will provide support for deserving women each year in perpetuity. Every year, the college will report on "your" students, so you will have an opportunity to know the young women whose lives you are influencing.
