Trailer Carrying 12 Cotton Pickers Struck, Overturns

A Trailer carrying 12 cotton pickers was struck and overturned Monday near Arlington, Tennessee by Alamo, Tennessee gravel truck driven by A. H. Pratt, 29. The accident resulted in critical injury of Ben Sol, Jr. 9 and 11 other persons. William C. Blevins, 12 of near Arlington, suffered a concussion, skull fracture and shock, hospital attendants said. His condition was critical. Three S. W. Qualls and Sons ambulances took nine injured to John Gaston Hospital. Four slightly injured did not go to a hospital. List of others injured were Harry Musum, 22, Geneva Rivers, 31, Ben Bevens, 52, Elnora Bevens, 31, Charley Rivers, 35, Sam Bevens, 31, Pinky Bevens, 43, Sam Davis, 81. Deputies Jack Thorpe and John Evans said a 1951 Chevrolet gravel truck driven by Pratt, going north on Highway 70 two miles south of Arlington struck the tractor and trailer loaded with cotton and pickers as the driver of the tractor attempted to make a left-hand turn onto a dirt road. The trailer was turned over. Driver of the tractor was Columbus Wills, 16, Rt. 1, Arlington. An Arlington doctor who gave first aid said that the workers were scattered over the highway, bleeding and suffering greatly. Pratt said that he was only driving about 30 miles an hour. Traffic was halted some twenty minutes. Deputies Thorpe and Evans said that Wills did not have a driver's license and ordered both drivers into court last Friday. The tractor was knocked about 30 feet into a ditch and was about half submerged in water.

Proposed Idea Labeled "Silly And Monstrous"

ROME, Ga.—Although emphasizing they favor segregation and want it preserved, two education leaders denounced legislative proposals to preserve racial segregation in Georgia schools. In an address delivered at a Seventh District GEA Public Relations forum held Monday night at Model School in nearby Shannon, Kankakee Anderson, Polk County school superintendent and former president of the Georgia Education (Teachers) Association blasted the proposals as "silly and monstrous." Also attacking the proposals was J. Harold Saxon, executive secretary of the GEA, who said that he "had never been more concerned or more stunned and benumbed, although the GEA itself had taken no action on the matter. MOVE "INCONCEIVABLE" Mr. Saxon declared it was inconceivable that anyone should propose to do away with the public schools and revert to private schools as the legislative measure is designed to do. M. P. Anderson pointed out that he had taken 100 years to build up the public school system and asserted that if the legislative measure were put into force, "it would be the greatest calamity that ever befell the people of Georgia." "I can't think of anything worse for the people of this state than to have public education abolished," he said. In the event the United States Supreme Court abolishes segregation in the public schools, the leg-

The game will bring two of the outstanding teams together, each with a big following among the local football fans. Washington High and Manassas High were the only two high schools for Negroes in the city, and for many years they battled it out for superiority in many activities. The annual football game between the two teams was always looked forward to, as the partisans of the various leagues looked forward to their league champions, The Ivy League new safety deposit boxes. Educator Sees People Losing Basic Freedoms

ATLANTA Georgia — (SNS) — "As we prepare to pay tribute to the founders of this land, it is well to note few basic landmarks set long ago which are threatened by recent events and contemporary trends," said Rev. G. Murray Branch at the Butler Street YMCA yesterday. BY ASSOCIATION Rev. Branch, of the department of religion at Morehouse College, was the featured speaker for the Hungry Club Forum. Rev. Branch pointed out that a "trend in the direction of being penalized for what one thinks is obvious. This is indicated, he added, by the frequent imputing of guilt by association based on rumor and hearsay." CONSIDERED DANGEROUS Rev. Branch cited instances where people had been penalized, not because of any crimes they had committed but primarily because they may have come from a country considered dangerous or for the conduct of relatives. "It is a distressing spectacle in a country founded by men and women who held unorthodox views to witness their heirs three centuries later penalizing people who may have been influenced by unpopular doctrines and slamming the door in their faces," Rev. Branch said.

Body Of Drown Victim Is Found In Yalobusha River

GRENADA, Miss.—Thanksgiving for the family of Sammie Lee Bland, 19, was a complete "blackout" when news was brought to them that his body had been found floating in the Yalobusha River.

MRS. LILLIAN BRAUGHER, night secretary Housing Commission State Supervisor of the Nurses Unit of the State of Tennessee. Evangelist, Missionary, assistant President to Personal Worker, group and reporter for the 1953 churches in God Convocation.

The body of Bland who disappeared while fleeing from police Nov. 10 was removed from the Yalobusha River near here Monday morning. A verdict of accidental drowning was returned after the body was recovered from the river. It is reported the body was examined by both white and Negro physicians who reported there was "no sign of violence." Also attending the inquest were Sheriff S. L. Davis, Police Chief E. M. Crumby and Officer Sam Ferguson. FOUND BY ENGINEERS U. S. Engineers, working in the area of the bridge on Highway 61 North, saw the body which had risen from the water about 100 feet west of the bridge. It was reported by police, Bland entered the water the night of Nov. 10 at the spot in an attempt to escape after he allegedly attacked police Sam Ferguson. Police officials said Bland had been drinking on the night he was alleged to have attacked police officer Sam Ferguson, and after the attack Bland broke and ran. Ferguson gave chase and Bland ran under the bridge and into the water. VISITED GIRL FRIEND It is reported that Bland after having supper with his family, visited a girl friend at a trailer camp to borrow a dime to visit a show. While there a man told him a filling station owner wanted a night watchman. On leaving to see about the job he was accosted by a police officer concerning some remark he is alleged to have made. Sammie is alleged to have been struck by a policeman. After being struck he is alleged to have started running in direction of the Yalobusha River. It was reported that Sammie was over taken and beaten over the head with some kind of iron instrument and chased to the river where four or five shots were heard. Efforts to locate those who claimed they heard the shooting proved futile. It was rumored here that Sammie surprised his girl friend at the trailer camp when he caught her. (Continued On Page Seven)

U. Of Ga. Student Writers Do "About-Face" On Bias Stand

AUGUSTA— Student editors of the University of Georgia's newspaper, Red and Black, have done an about-face on their anti-segregation in education stand as a result of having been "put on the carpet" by the University's regent led by Roy Harris. The student editors proved themselves "turn-coats" even before Regent Harris said that his threat to withdraw state funds from the publication was an attempt to throttle freedom of the press as charged by the students. The real issue, Regent Harris

Aching Tooth Used As Reason For Slapping Wife, Man Says

An Aching Tooth story by Otis Malone, 42, told to Judge Boushe in City Court last Monday, failed to convince the Judge as being the reason why Otis was slapping his wife Mrs. Delta Malone, 38, around Saturday afternoon on Nov. 6 on the street where they were arrested. Lt. Evans and Officer Jones testified Monday that the couple had been drinking and Otis was slapping Mrs. Malone around. It was this way—he testified. Mrs. Malone had had a toothache for about a week and it kept them both up nights for about a week. Otis finally got Mrs. Malone on her way to the dentist. She got as far as Nov. 6 Street and started to back out which was too much for Otis, he said that's when the slapping around started, he testified. Mrs. Malone confirmed the story. She appeared in Court with a swollen jaw, which, she said, was caused by the toothache. Otis, she testified, was "very kind." Judge Boushe fined Otis $10 on the assault and battery charge and Mrs. Malone $11 on a disorderly conduct charge. Mrs. Malone parting words to the court: "Judge, I'm ready to have that tooth pulled now."

First Social Security No. Issued To Woman 17 Yrs Ago

Just 17 years ago this month the first social security account number was issued to a New England woman worker. Since then, over 105 million persons have been assigned account numbers and over 5.2 million beneficiaries are now receiving payments, totalling about 233 million dollars a month, according to Joe W. Eanes, manager of the Memphis social security office.

Every single one of these benefits depended on some individual worker's social security account number, and the wages that were recorded to his account. Each social security card represents a Government insurance account, and the number on a card is the key that makes it possible for the Government to keep that particular social security record correct.

It is the worker's responsibility to show his social security card to his employer, Mr. Eanes emphasized. Also, the worker is responsible to himself and his family for safeguarding his card. If he should lose his card, he should immediately get a duplicate at the local social security office. He or she should also register with the social security office any change in the name under which they work.

Mr. Eanes realizes that to the young, old age seems a long way ahead. For this reason, he says a lot of young people do not fully understand the importance of their social security account-number card. They fail to realize that the social security insurance system is both for the old, and-for survivors of a wage earner who dies at any age. Credit for part-time employment may lead to full-time benefits at a later date; for this reason, he says, credit for parttime jobs is included on the worker's account just as for full-time employment.

Mr. Eanes called attention to these very important rules to observe about your social security account-number card. (1) Show it to every employer you work for - the employer needs your number when he makes out his quarterly report of your wages and pays social security taxes so that your account will be credited properly. (2) Keep your card in a safe place. When you or your family claim benefits, the number will make it easy to identify your account. (3) Make sure you have only one social security account number. If you have more than one number, part of your wages might be credited to one account and part to one or more others. Your number is the key to the record of your earnings, which will determine the amount of the payments to which you or your family become entitled.

Magazine Man Finds Haiti Proud, And Freedom Loving

Man Spends Six Weeks With People In All Negro Republic

By GLADYS P. GRAHAM
NEW YORK—(ANP)—Arthur Ost, promotion manager for Cue magazine of New York living with an audited circulation of some 100,000 weekly recently returned from six weeks spent in Haiti the only Negro Republic in the Western Hemisphere.

In a brief interview Ost said he was quite excited and inspired by his trip to the Caribbean. He also had much to say of Haiti which is currently preparing to celebrate some 150 years of freedom in January. He said: "Haiti is an independent Negro republic governed and administered by people of dark skins a proud and independent people. You sense this wherever you go and no matter to whom you speak."

Ost indicated he was quite impressed with the effort being made by the Haitian government in aiding its population to complete literacy. The major language spoken is Creole, an admixture of French, African, Indian and Spanish, with the official language being French.

A government bureau sends teachers into towns and villages to instruct the people in written French language. The Caucasian American also noted that a phonetic Creole spelling using the French written alphabet has been devised so that even the poorest peasant can learn to read and write the language he speaks. This bureau, part of the Department of Education, uses mimeographed textbooks and awards diplomas to those who complete the course as a source of encouragement and security.

Ost was quite impressed with the government sponsored reconstruction projects in outlying towns around Port-au-Prince. He noted that completely rebuilt slum cities have now become flourishing communities with clean, modern dwellings for workers. Ville Magloire, named after the President of Haiti, is a notable housing example.

The huge contrast in transportation from the traditional donkey is fast disappearing during the new construction being carried out under government sponsorship. In travel to Cape Haitian up on the northern coast about 200 miles away Ost had the pleasure of traveling most of the way on a newly built first class highway.

Haiti depends mainly on growing coffee, tobacco and hemp since it is an agricultural economy. The poor condition of the soil is currently engaging the attention of the government which is studying soil conservation and irrigation to retard erosion. Farmers are taking to modern farming equipment on a cooperative basis as much as possible.

Ost was intrigued by the Haitian peasant woman who works literally from sun-up to sun-down. The ever present peasant woman carries her basket gracefully on her head to the market place to sell produce. Most haunting is the night scene when the females of Haiti descend in long lines in single file up the steep highway silhouetted in the dark of the moon.

The interviewee learned that there are more than a dozen newspapers of varying shades of opinion circulating among the people. Sales are by subscription. He found the offices of La Democratie, Le Temps and Les Nouvelles among others of high cultural interest. Museums, two major art galleries where one finds the finest paintings of the primitive and modern

Study To Be Made Of African Race Relations

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — (NNPA) — The Special Political and Security Committee of the United Nations General Assembly Friday began consideration of a report made by a commission set up by the General Assembly last year to study race relations in Africa.

The commission reported that as a result of the policy of apartheid (racial segregation), four-fifths of the population are reduced to a "humiliating level of inferiority."

Dr. Herman Santa Cruz, a former delegate from Chile who headed the commission said the key to the problem of racial discrimination, which might cause "a violent explosion" among the non-whites in South Africa, lay in solving economic conditions out of which he felt the policy of apartheid had arisen.

The government of South Africa insists that the matter is one of domestic jurisdiction and has refused to recognize the special commission. G. P. Jooste, chief South African delegate, told the committee that his government regarded the commission as "unconstitutional" and that his presence at the meeting should not be construed as recognition of the inquiry.

Detroit NAACP Opposes Bias At Hospital

DETROIT — The proposal to use funds collected in the Capital Gifts campaign for an extension to the Parkside Hospital here is opposed by the Detroit branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People because the hospital is a "segregated facility."

At its regular monthly meeting on November 16, the board of directors of the local NAACP unit passed a resolution reiterating the Association's historic position "against segregation in any form whether in hospitals, schools, public transportation, public accommodations, or churches."

The NAACP action followed announcement that the Metropolitan Detroit Building Fund had been asked to give $2,500,000 from money collected in the campaign for the construction of a 100-bed extension to the hospital.

Law School Team Wins District Championship

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A three man Howard University Law School team defeated Georgetown University, 1952 National Moot Court Champions, here Thursday (November 19th) to win the District of Columbia Inter-Law School Moot Court Championship, Otto McClarrin, director of public relations at Howard, announced today.

Both finalists in the District championship qualify for the National championship which will be held in New York City on December 17 and 18. Hampton President Speaks At Annual CIO Convention HAMPTON, Va. — President Alonzo G. Moron of Hampton Institute told the Congress of Industrial Organizations holding its 1953 annual convention in Cleveland, Ohio, "It is my pleasure to recognize the concern this Congress, in its national administration and in the several locals, has shown for the unsolved problems we face in the fields of health, housing and education. It is easy to say that your motivation has been selfish since workers have suffered most from our failure to match our concern for increased productivity with equal concern for the health and welfare of the people who furnish the labor for our industrial machine. But I prefer to think that you have also been moved by a realization of the fact that we cannot continue to reduce the infant mortality rates, to reduce industrial accidents, to lift the average quality of housing, and to improve our facilities for the healthy and intellectual development of the youth of our nation. As a college president, I bring you sincere thanks for your moral and financial support of educational institutions and of movements for the advancement of education in this country and abroad.

Moron's address before the Wednesday afternoon session was titled, "Higher Education for Negroes in an Era of Transition." He briefly outlined the historic background of education in the southland for Negroes. This situation according to Moron warrants study because of the implications it builds today as a struggle for integration and equal opportunities for Negro youth in the schools of the land. The Hampton Institute President stated that census figures will show that in 1900 there were 2624 Negroes in institutions of higher learning. By 1950 that number had increased 2800 per cent while the total number of students in all colleges was increasing during the same period by only 1100 per cent. In 1950 there were 74,000 Negroes enrolled in colleges throughout the country. Of this number only 15,000 were getting their education outside the south. The other 59,000 were enrolled in private and public institutions in the south. The larger proportion of these students, 32,500, were enrolled in private colleges for Negroes in the South.

was rampant. Everywhere Amos saw wasteful luxury and extravagance on one side, contrasted with the wretched poverty of the people among whom he lived. Therefore, he spoke out for social justice and uttered a plea which the world has not yet heard. He told those who had become rich by taking advantage of their fellowmen that although they built fine houses, they should not dwell in them. He condemned with out fear the social evils of his day.

The passion of Amos' soul is for the establishment of social justice. He declared, "I will fall upon the heads of those who frustrate that, whether by incidental cruelty or, as here, by deliberate violence of the principles of equity in the courts of justice. The worst offenders were those who poisoned justice at its source, those who by their venal decisions made it a bitter thing for the poor man when it ought to have been sweet and who laid righteousness prostrate upon the ground when she ought to have been erect and smiling."

The words of Amos are still applicable for us today. Speaking for God, he tells Israel to "seek good and not evil" and with emphasis, "hate the evil and love the good." As for the formal religious ceremonies, he declares that these mean nothing unless the people live righteously. Outward, formal worship will not be accepted by God, and Amos appeals to his hearers to "let justice roll down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream."

These basic principles emerge from the Bible to govern the economic life of men seeking to build a better world: (1) Work is honorable and imperative. (2) Success and achievement bring added responsibility for the needs of others. (3) It is God's purpose that all men, regardless of rank or race should have equal opportunity for the realization of the potentialities of personality and achievement. And, (4) No society can endure the favor of God when these principles are ignored.

Sunday School Lesson

A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITY International Sunday School Lesson For November 29, 1953

MEMORY SELECTION: "Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as mighty stream."—Amos 5:24.

LESSON TEXT: Deuteronomy 24: 14, 15; 19: 5 Amos 5: 10-15, 24; II Thes. 3: 7-10

There are many in our world who believe that business and religion should be kept separate. That there is no place for business in religion and vice versa. However, if Christianity has any application for the individual at all, it must permeate his whole life or it is worthless. Christianity is a religion for life. This includes one's vocation, his business relations and his responsibility to earn a living for himself and his family. Therefore, the economic field is an important field for the application of Christian principles. Christianity, with its accompanying justice, must control our economic life if the purposes of God for mankind are to be fulfilled.

The Bible is explicit in laying upon us the duty of applying the great ethical ideals of our religious faith to our daily business practices. Work is a privilege and the ability to perform work should be grounds for thanksgiving to God. However, we must apply God's laws to our work. In Deuteronomy 24: 14-15 and 24: 10, God outlined the relationship which should exist between employer and employee. It should be remembered that a position of power brings added responsibility for recognizing and respecting the needs of others. In the passage above, there is a provision to insure humanitarian concern for the poor, the unfortunate man. A hired servant, if poor and destitute, was helpless to defend himself. A selfish employer might exploit his poverty by not paying a fair wage. So God required that the servant be paid at the end of each working day in order that he might immediately buy the necessities of life and also reduce the probability of exploitation by an unscrupulous employer after a long period of work.

Another provision in the law required that a forgotten sheaf of grain or scattered leftovers be left for the strangers, the fatherless and the widow. This Old Testament "law of the stranger" was given as a standard for treatment of those who, for any reason, were outside the family group or the group made up of friends and acquaintances. And, in outlining this rule, an enduring principle was set forth: God forbids ruthless exploitation of cheap labor, and requires consideration for the victims of misfortune who need the help of those more fortunate.

Amos, the Old Testament prophet was a shepherd and farmer at Tekoa, a little village six miles south of Bethlehem. He was not trained as a prophet and belonged to that select company of great men in the Bible who were humble workers. Although Amos lived in the country, he understood the life of his age. He saw the wickedness of the cities when he carried his produce to market. As Rev. Bernard C. Claussen enumerates: "Unscrupulous judges condemned the innocent for paltry bribes. The rich grasped the small possessions of the poor. Prices were fraudulently increased and measures were fraudulently diminished, and bad grain was sold as good. The most shameful licentiousness was practiced. Idolatry, with its bestial immoral-

Whites Want To Curb Negro Franchise In Federation

Says HST Got 12 Warnings About Glasser

WASHINGTON (INS) — Senate probes said yesterday the Truman administration had received 12 spy warnings against Harold Glasser when he was sent to the 1947 Moscow meeting of foreign ministers as an adviser to Sen. George C. Marshall, then Secretary of State.

Internal Security Subcommittee Counsel Robert Morris read into the record a list, supplied by the Justice Department, of high officials who received FBI reports or memoranda containing information about Glasser.

The list cited 10 specific occasions on which summaries of accusations against Glasser went to Truman administration officials. In addition, the Justice Department pointed out that Glasser was named in a 1945 FBI report and in a Feb. 1, 1946, FBI memo on the late Harry Dexter White.

A statement by Elizabeth Bentley, confessed Soviet spy courier, was quoted in a part of the 1945 FBI report which has been made public. The excerpt said: "Bentley advised that members of this (espionage) group had told her that (Alger) Hiss of the State Department had taken Harold Glasser of the Treasury Department and two of the others and had turned them over to direct control by the Soviet representatives in this country."

The Internal Security Subcommittee, in its own report, has said that Glasser was identified by Whitaker Chambers, also a confessed spy courier, as a member of the Communist espionage conspiracy.

A committee report last spring showed that then Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder promoted Glasser on August 22, 1946 to director of the Monetary Research Division of the Department with a $10,000-a-year salary. Glasser had been assistant director. While also at one time was director of the division.

When Glasser resigned on Dec. 24, 1947, Snyder wrote him a letter in which he expressed regret at Glasser's resignation. Snyder wrote: "You have been associated with the Treasury for a long period of time and I am fully aware of the many valuable contributions you have made in the monetary field. It is gratifying to know that your treasury experience has been pleasant and interesting and I am sorry that circumstances have led you to seek connections outside the government. I wish to assure you that we will miss the fine work that you have done here."

About 100 of them had arrived, carrying spears from another village beyond the Lutuba Hills. They had been told they must drop tokens into ballot boxes and they thoroughly disapproved of the proposal.

Saved By Seer

MARY E. KING — I am Mary E. King, of 3414 Michigan Avenue, Flint, Michigan. I went to "Doc" R. C. Anderson July Third, Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-Three. When I went to see him I had sores from head to foot. I had been suffering with this for twenty-two months. On July the Second I went totally blind and had to be led.

He laid his hand on me and told me to pray. In a few days my sight began to come back. I had gone to many doctors and spent several hundred dollars, but I grew worse all the time. I feel as if I had not gone to him I would have been totally blind today. I was in constant pain all these months and now I am almost completely cured. I don't have any pain and my sight is good. I am very thankful that through this man God has cured me.

He also has a book that is called "I Shall Not Want," with thirty-two pages, that tells you how to get anything that you want out of life. This book is proven, every word, by the Holy Bible. It tells you what Psalms and verses to read to get what you want, including Love, Money, to bring back old sweet hearts or lovers, to move your enemies away, to help you in lawsuits, helps you in illness and despair, and brings you happiness and peace in anything you might want. It is God's own word. This book sells for $2.00 cash and 7c in stamps, or $2.00 C.O.D. plus postage and C. O. D. charges. You can get this book by writing to "Doc" R. C. Anderson, Rossville, Ga., or if you wish to see this wonderful man in person you can also get an appointment by writing to the same address or calling Rossville, Georgia, 81-9719. Be sure and get the address correct, the place to get help is: "Doc" R. C. Anderson, 302 West Gordon Avenue, Rossville, Georgia.

Along The Sports Trail

By SAM BROWN

With the lone exception of the Lincoln-Tennessee A. & I. State university college game, local fans have had to be contented with prep league games for their football pleasure.

True enough, the preppers have on many occasions given their followers many a thrill, yet we here in the big Bluff City can't enjoy more college football.

Since LeMoyne College gave up the game the only games many fans have seen the Tennessee-Lincoln game, which has always been the first game of the season for both teams, when they were more or less experimenting or trying to find out the ability of the various players.

In talking with a group of football-minded fans we learn that there is in the minds of many local fans a desire for a return of the game to LeMoyne College. Whether the movement for football at LeMoyne will get very far, we are not in position at this time to say, but we would like to mention that there are many interested fans who hope to do something, whatever they might be able to do, to return college football to Memphis.

Whether they have contacted the authorities at LeMoyne College, we were not able to learn, but if the enthusiasm that that was expressed at the impromptu conversation takes fire, something of a definite nature may be forthcoming in the near future.

The LeMoyne Quintet has been working out daily at the Y for the past few weeks, and according to Coach Frank Lewis the team is well advanced in its training and conditioning.

Lewis stated that he is well pleased with the showing the boys have made, and that he feels that the team should measure up to last season's team which won fifteen home games without a defeat.

Coach Lewis was loud in his praise of Clifford Brady, a Junior back from the army and also the improvement Bill Little has made in his play. Lewis said "Little is the most improved player he has seen in so short a time and should be of valuable help to the team."

Other players from last year's team are Jay, McDaniel and Jas. Boyd, Juniors; Charles Williams, William Collins, Sophomores.

Newcomers to the team are Joseph and Leonard Scott and L. C. Boyd, Freshmen who played with Barrett Chapel High School last year.

All the boys have been working hard during the training sessions and are now practically in mid-season form. They realize that the game Tuesday night with Stillman is no breather and they will be out to start the season with a victory.

All LeMoyne games will be played at the YMCA Gym. The preliminary, starting at 7 o'clock will send Goal Trotters against La Rose School team.

Body Of Drown

In the company of another man on the night of his disappearance prior to his alleged alteration with the law.

NO AUTOPSY HELD

No autopsy was performed at an inquest in the death of Bland, at which a verdict of accidental drowning was returned, Sheriff S. L. Davis said Tuesday.

Blands family did not request an autopsy but a thorough examination of the body was made by both white and Negro physicians, the sheriff said. They reported there were "no marks of violence on the body."

NOT ALLOWED TO REMOVE BODY

Relatives of Blands' who sought to remove the body to Memphis for burial were met with opposition, when a Memphis Undertaker was denied the privileges of transporting the body to Memphis.

It is reported that grave side funeral services for Bland was conducted Tuesday but the family was not permitted to view the remains.

A near riot almost resulted when a northern aunt demanded to see the deceased. The riot was averted.

The FBI agents investigated the disappearance of Bland. The FBI probe was aimed at determining whether any Federal laws, including civil rights statutes were violated.

A report was to be made to the Department of Justice.

Present at the Corners Inquest of Sammie Lee Bland, were: Dr. L. L. Rayford, Coroner H. W. Alexander, and Dr. L. A. Clayton, Clark's Funeral Home of Grenada.

has been published in the Red and Black, signed by the editor, the managing editor and the news editor promising "to be mindful of university and regent policies, insofar as they are made known to us, in handling controversial matters."

Subtly, the statement concluded with the note that "in view of the foregoing, we hope, the Board of Regents will see fit to discontinue the Red and Black as a student-controlled newspaper."

The ire of Roy Harris and his fellow-Regents was aroused when the student paper, editorially speaking, said, in part, "with Communism knocking at the Negro's back door, we cannot afford to let educational segregation bars stand."

More Attention Needs To Be Given Children

The recent, nation-wide attention to the Greenleaf kidnaping case overshadowed the death, in Atlanta, of a four-year-old child by its adopted mother. Other crimes of adults against children are constantly cropping up in the newspapers.

Violence of adults against each other is certainly horrible enough to contemplate. The violation of one person's sacred human dignity is the main factor which makes man considerable "lower than the angels."

When an adult practices such violence upon a child, however, the action is infinitely more horrible. Children of this country have been subjected, to an increasingly higher degree, to malicious torture, murder, rape and criminal negligence.

It doesn't take a psychologist to figure out what kind of an adult would so harm a child; nor does it take a penologist to figure what should be done to such an adult.

It is going to take all the resources of church, court, school, psychology and community understanding to help rehabilitate the child who has been the victim of such brutality.

Not all the cases that occur are reported — we only hear of the extreme cases. Much of the brutality against children is secret, such as, brutal beatings that are kept family secrets — imprisonment in closets and attics that are not discovered — sexual attacks by adults on children that the child is afraid to report.

With such bestiality occurring, what can be our hope for a sane, well-balanced future generation? If the pattern is not to continue, what is there to stop it?

Certainly, the best efforts of our churches, schools and courts must be redoubled, the vigilance of our school-teachers and psychologists must be intensified.

Our children must be protected.

The War Against Insects

Scientists from all over the world met recently in Rome to discuss progress and defeat in man's age-old warfare against insects. Many of the scientists agreed that insect control today is a tougher job than had been expected eight or nine years ago.

Then DDT was being used for the first time and results were almost always excellent. However, in the ensuing years, such pests as the house-fly developed an immunity to DDT and now it is generally agreed that other insects are developing a like immunity.

ADLAI STEVENSON, Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1952, is shown as he addressed a joint session of the Georgia legislature in Atlanta last Tuesday. A large crowd with only a sprinkling of Negroes present gathered in front of the capitol where the speech was delivered. He praised the loyalty of the Negroes in rejecting Communism "overwhelmingly." He also praised the progress of racial relations in the South.

Some scientists believe the malaria-bearing mosquito is now developing an effective resistance to DDT.

A conclusion reached by most of the scientists, attending the Rome sessions, is that insects have proved they can adapt themselves to almost every insecticide yet devised by man. Therefore, it seems that civilization is winning only temporary victories against the insects and the house-fly continues to defy the combined efforts of mankind to eradicate him. The surest way to kill the house-fly today is with a good swat from an old-fashioned fly-swatter. This remedy, fortunately, is almost one hundred per cent effective.

BY MRS. GRACE WILLIAMS

The day after the big Thanksgiving dinner is likely to find you with an equally as big question mark in your mind. What to do with so many leftovers? There are three possible solutions to that question Number one, you can reheat the leftovers and serve them as they are. Number two, you can disdain them and serve a very comprehensive dish as one Memphis homemaker did. But perhaps if I tell you the entire story you will understand what I mean by disdain and comprehensive. "Time" magazine reported that "In Memphis, a queasy husband seeking a divorce complained to court that his wife cooked him up a one-dish breakfast composed of a layer of beans, one of sardines, one of salmon, topped with cake." The divorce was granted.

ing — constantly until uniformly thickened. Stir in turkey and vegetables, then pour into a 2-quart casserole. Place baking dish on a piece of aluminum foil or cookie sheet.

Cornbread Topping:
 1-2 Cup Sifted All-purpose Flour;
 1-2 Teaspoon Salt; 2 Teaspoons Sugar
 1-2 Cup Cornmeal; 1 Well-beaten Egg; 1-2 Cup Milk; 2 Tables-spoons Shortening.

Heat filling in casserole in hot over (425°) until blubbly, about 10 minutes. Meanwhile, sift flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Mix with cornmeal, cut in shortening with pastry, blend until mixture resembles texture of coarse cornmeal. Combine eggs and milk and add to dry ingredients; stir until just moistened. Pour cornbread batter over top of filling spreading evenly. Continue baking until topping is brown, 20 to 25 minutes; 6 servings.
