Probe Seen As Political And An Intimidation Act

MACON (UPI)—Mayor Ed Wilson Monday blasted a superior court judge's order to a grand jury to investigate apparent Negro bloc voting as "the worst blow to race relations in Bibb County in recent years."

Wilson said he was writing a letter to grand jury foreman Robert M. Penland requesting a hearing.

The mayor said Judge Oscar L. Long's charge was prompted "by unfounded rumors from disgruntled, unsuccessful politicians. Or it stemmed from hatred of the Negro race."

He said Long's charge calling for a probe of "Negro bloc voting" and sanctioned by two other superior court judges, was "though the judges may not have intended it, 'political' both in timing and in its content. He noted that Long's charge came just before a primary election."

Wilson said he had "never before known of a superior court of this county becoming involved in political matters."

"It is an insult to all public officers who have received a large Negro vote and it is couched in terms to intimidate the Negro voters."

Wilson acknowledged that he had received a large Negro vote in three elections, but he added, "I have bought no vote-white or Negro."

"I asked for the Negro vote and I will again if it falls my lot to offer for public office. I know of no wrongdoing in any of these elections, either morally or criminally. I am convinced there was none."

Meanwhile, the grand jury held a four-hour and 15-minute session Monday and apparently questioned five witnesses in its investigation of Negro voting.

Solicitor General William M. West said no further sessions have been definitely set. He said he could not comment on the investigation or who had appeared Monday.

First Since 1890 Seeks Post In Orangeburg County

ORANGEBURG, S. C. — (AP) — For the first time since 1890, a Negro candidate of Orangeburg County qualified and ran for a seat in the South Carolina House of Representatives. Rev. H. O. Harvey was one of seven candidates for the county's four seats.

An unofficial tally showed that of the 10,600 votes cast, Harvey gained 1,688. An estimated 8,000 Negroes voted in the June 14 primary. There are 3,000 registered.

Rev. Harvey and his campaign committee, "Friends of Rev. Harvey," said that his presence in the race caused the heaviest Negro registration and voting in the county in many decades. They said they no effort was made to influence Negroes to bloc vote.

It is reported that Negro poll watchers were treated courteously except at one precinct where authorities did not permit them to remain at the ballot counting.

Rev. Harvey announced that the work shall continue in registering Negroes in order that they might fully participate in American life. He feels that his campaign has gone far toward awakening Negroes from their political lethargy.

Reddick Is Fired From Ala. State

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (SNS)—Dr. L. D. Reddick, former chief librarian at Atlanta University, was fired from his teaching position at Alabama State College here Tuesday by the State Board of Education because of what Gov. John Patterson termed his Communist associations. Reddick had already resigned from the school effective August 31.

However, Patterson insisted on forcing him to get him off the faculty and to put the action into his record. One dissenting vote was cast against the ouster move.

Patterson said that he had evidence of Reddick's associations with a group called Contemporary Writers. He said that the head of the department of history at the Alabama institution was a speaker at a meeting sponsored by Contemporary in New York in 1945.

Fulton Police records quoted the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, as saying that the chairman of Contemporary had defined the group as composed of "Marxist and other anti-Fascist writers."

Reddick, a native of Jacksonville, Fla., has degrees from Fisk University and the University of Chicago, and has taught at Kentucky State College and Dillard University. He once was a curator of the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature, a lecturer at City College and the New School for Social Research in New York.

The Alabama board directed the president of the college to dismiss Reddick "before sundown today." Alabama State was the scene of demonstrations against segregation laws. Reddick is a close associate of Atlanta's Dr. Martin L. King, Jr.

The board was also urged by Patterson to seriously consider the replacing of Alabama State's President Dr. H. Conrad Trentham. No action was taken on the matter but Trentham has been ordered to appear at the next meeting in July. Trentham refused comment on the subject.

Haywood Voter Registration Being Watched

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn. — Civil Rights Commission representatives were on hand here Monday to observe voter registration of Negro and white voters in the Haywood County Courthouse here.

The Civil Rights men said they were observing because they had heard of "complaints" that Negroes were still not being allowed to vote in a county where they reportedly have not voted since Reconstruction.

Twelve Negroes and two white persons were qualified to vote Monday by Registrar C. H. Berson. Berson said he refused applications to several Negroes because they were "unable to give their birth dates."

The two Civil Rights men would not comment on their findings. They also declined to say whether or not they would be on hand for scheduled registration next Tuesday.

How A Tulsa, Oklahoma Branch YMCA Compares With Abe Scharff Branch

By THADDEUS T. STOKES
(Second In Series)

The Abe Scharff Branch YMCA was compared with the Candler Branch YMCA in Knoxville. The comparison showed that the Candler Branch was more progressive than the Abe Scharff Branch.

In this issue will compare the Abe Scharff Branch with Hutcherson Branch YMCA in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Tulsa is a city of an estimated 260,000 population of which 28,000 are Negro (an estimate 10 percent). Memphis' population is almost twice as large.

The Hutcherson Branch has three professional staff members... executive secretary, Youth director and a physical director. Memphis branch has only one.

The Hutcherson Branch's executive secretary with ten years experience receives a salary of $6,200 which is $1,400 more than is paid the Abe Scharff's executive secretary with 25 years of experience.

The annual budget of the Hutcherson Branch is $5,100 which is $27,800 more than the Abe Scharff Branch. Forty-five percent of Hutcherson Branch is $5,100 which is sidized community agents. Here it is only fair to point out that the Hutcherson Branch serves both as a branch "Y" and a Youth Center.

The Hutcherson Branch has 28 members of its Committee of Management which is six less than the Abe Scharff Branch. They serve a maximum continuous term of six years. They are eligible to be re-elected for only one term.

Memphis Committee of Management member can serve indefinitely. They are elected by voting members. The average attendance of board meeting during a year is eight out of 10 while the average attendance at the Abe Scharff YMCA is much less.

Committee members at the Hutcherson branch give about 70 percent participation in the overall YMCA program, while very little is given by the members of the Abe Scharff Branch.

The Hutcherson Branch was established 40 years ago which is about 17 years more than the Abe Scharff Branch.

Membership at the Hutcherson Branch is 721 men and 511 boys or a total of 1232 which is 602 more than the total membership of the Abe Scharff Branch. Members are obtained by annual enrollment, with about 65 percent renewals. At the Memphis branch it is about 75 percent.

Both branches have gymnasiums but the Hutcherson Branch does not have dormitory. Both have swimming pools. The Hutcherson Branch has four club rooms. The Memphis Branch has seven. Both

Nixon Offers To Allow Rockefeller To Question Him

CAMDEN, N. J. — (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon fired back at Nelson A. Rockefeller on Thursday by offering to let the New York governor question him "in depth" about key issues - before television cameras.

At an unusual jam-packed news conference, Nixon defended the GOP administration's defense program against Rockefeller's attacks and challenged the governor's assertion that he had failed to discuss major election-year issues.

Then he dropped his surprise proposal for a joint television appearance with Rockefeller.

Nixon stressed that he was not issuing a "challenge" to the governor and that the TV appearance would not be "a debate" because Rockefeller was not an active candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

WOULD DISCUSS PROBLEMS

But Nixon said he would be willing to sit down with Rockefeller or any other person and be "examined in depth" about the problems of the day.

"I am sure we could find some television station to carry it," the vice president quipped.

Nixon, far from replying angrily to Rockefeller's blast on Wednesday, almost held out an olive branch to the man he referred to as "one of the leaders of the Republican Party." He said he would be glad to meet with him and "discuss all the issues on which we might be in disagreement."

He defended Rockefeller's right

Cong. Powell Wins Smashing Victory In N. Y. Primaries

NEW YORK (ANP)—Claims are being made here after last week's primaries in which political boss Carmine De Sapio lost his sting, that Adam Clayton Powell is now the county's strongest Democratic political leader.

Candidates endorsed by a newly formed alliance between Powell and Manhattan Borough President Hulan Jack won a smashing victory at the polls.

Powell, too, was encouraged by the outcome. He threatened to back a Fusion ticket in the 1961 elections if the Harlem Democratic voters did not receive their equal share of the county's political patronage.

"WE ARE SOLID NOW"
"We are now the most solid Democratic vote in Manhattan and we are due our equal share of patronage with every other group." Powell declared on the heels of the team's overwhelming victory in six contests against insurgent forces by margins of 3-1 or better.
While most Harlem Democrats credited Powell with winning a personal victory in the primary, be-

In the 14th A. D. Assembly race, where Manhattan Borough President Hulan Jack switched his support back to incumbent Assemblyman Jose Ramos Lopez over Ivan Michael only three weeks ago, Lopez solidly defeated Michael.

In the 14th A. D. Assembly race, incumbent Assemblyman Lloyd E. Dickens won handily in his bid for re-election over Percy Sutton's Central Democratic Club's candidate.

CONVENTION DELEGATES WIN
In the only contest for delegates to the Democratic convention in Los Angeles, J. Raymond Jones and Dickens won the delegate's posts and Mark Southall and Mrs. Lillian Thompson won as alternates.

In most political circles, Tuesday's smashing victory for the Powell-Jack team put them in a key county pivotal position, possibly the balance of power, as a result of the reform victories over the DeSapio forces in several mid-town contests.

NIXON ANSWERS ROCKEFELLER CHALLENGE—Vice President Richard M. Nixon rejects a statement by New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller charging that the Republican program has not been clearly presented. Nixon said at a fund-raising dinner in Camden, N.J., that in 47 no-holds-barred press and TV conferences since the first of the year, he has put forth his views "in greater detail than anyone else." He offered Rockefeller an opportunity to question him on any point but the governor said he would debate after "a clear statement."

Nixon Emerges In Good Shape Following Rockefeller Row

Disagreeing with Senator Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, chairman of the Republican National Committee, Mr. Nixon said the possibility of Gov. Rockefeller or anyone else who disagrees with President Eisenhower's program being nominated by the Republicans cannot be ruled out.

Mr. Nixon suggested that he and Gov. Rockefeller sit down before the television cameras and have "a discussion in depth, in which he can answer any questions on any issues before the American people." Later, Mr. Rockefeller declined the invitation and reiterated his conviction that Mr. Nixon should

Geeter School Alumni Honor Dr. Joseph W. Falls At Banquet

MEMPHIS WORLD • Saturday, June 18, 1960

Cite Retired Principal For 39 Years Service

Geeter School Alumni, teachers and friends of the mushrooming institution turned out recently to honor the man who, more than any other, is given credit for making Geeter and the Geeter community what it is today.

Dr. Joseph W. Falls, who retired this month after having served for nearly half a century — 39 years — as principal of the Whitehaven school, was lauded for his "long and patient sacrificial service rendered to the Geeter High School and the community." Rev. Wardell Johnson, alumnus of the school and president of the Whitehaven Civic Club, presented Dr. Falls a plaque with these words inscribed thereon.

Featured speaker for the occasion was Dr. Russell Ford, principal of Lincoln High School, Sikeston, Missouri. Roscoe Simmons, co-chairman of the Geeter alumni committee, served as toastmaster.

Dr. Falls was cited for building Geeter from humble beginnings as a wooden frame building which housed a four-room elementary school with three teachers into the structure it is today — a modern brick plant whose enrollment is about 1,800 and which has a faculty of 51 biggest school in Shelby County. Geeter principal dominated the labor of the school 39 years ago when a Mr. Jackson Geeter, the school's namesake, donated land for the school's construction.

When Geeter opened its doors to children of the area's residents, Dr. Falls bought and operated the school's bus, the first school bus Shelby County had had for Negro students. During his part of his career at Geeter, he also served as teacher as well as principal. Before coming to Geeter, he served for a year as teacher of Fayette County Training School in Fayette County, where he was born. His family moved to Memphis when he was about five years of age.

Dr. Falls finished "thirteen consecutive terms" at Alabama A. and M. College at Huntsville, Ala., where he majored in brick masonry and mathematics obtained the A. B. degree from Rust College, Holy Springs, Miss. He received the M. S. degree from Tennessee State A. and I. University, has attended Chicago University and Hampton Institute.

Dr. Falls also holds an honorary doctorate degree which was awarded him by Monrovia College, Liberia, Africa. Last spring he completed requirements for a degree in divinity from Unity School of Christianity, Lee Summit, Missouri. His dynamic wife, Dr. Montee Falls, who has provided him inspiration throughout his career, is leader of the Unity Center of Christianity on Wellington Street where they are members.

Both Dr. Falls and Mrs. Falls have streets named for them in the Whitehaven community. "Falls Road" is named for Dr. Falls, and "Montee Road" is named for Mrs. Falls. "Falls Shop" on the Geeter campus is also named for Dr. Falls.

Dr. Falls received hundreds of awards during his 39 years as Geeter principal. Among them were "citizenship awards" from the Levi Civic Club which named the veteran Shelby County citizen "most outstanding citizen" for two years in a row. More recently, Dr. Falls was honored at a special ceremony along with Rev. Blair T. Hunt, recently retired principal of Booker T. Washington High School and Mrs. Elizabeth Townsend, county supervisor. The 1260 Geeter graduating class presented Dr. Falls with a war bond and the Geeter faculty gave him a gift of $450.

ACTIVE IN POLITICS

A member of the Abe Scharf YMCA board of directors, Dr. Falls has long been active in politics. He takes pride in the fact that Geeter was the first county school given an "A" rating by the accrediting body of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and colleges.

Dr. Falls has always tried to make Geeter a part of his own principles, which call for the Christian philosophy, culture, arts, try and refinement. He has tried to abide by his school's motto, which is "Peace and Love."

A firm believer that education is the key to progress, Dr. Falls has always emphasized this to his students and family. His son, Joseph Falls, Jr., graduated from Wilberforce University, and is a research chemist in Chicago, Ill. His younger daughter, Mrs. Phyllis Wheatley, Falls Armour holds the B. A. from Tennessee State and the M. S. from Loyla University, is teaching in Chicago. His older daughter, Mrs. Mildred Falls Davis, who holds both the bachelor's and master's degree from Tennessee State and who lives on Falls Road, has been a member of the Geeter faculty for 15 years. She teaches home economics.

The professor's wife holds the bachelor and master's degrees from Tennessee State. Mrs. Falls also was awarded an honorary doctorate from Monrovia College, Liberia, Africa.

Members of the Geeter alumni committee are: Mr. Simmons, chairman; Rev. William Suggs, co-chairman; Mrs. Gertrude Ford, Mrs. Ida Mae Jones, Mrs. Ida Bell Hodges, George Banks, J. S. Simmons, John Davis, bond chairman; Miss Deornie Johnson, Calvin Carol M. Mildred Falls Davis, and Mrs. Rosetta Tucker.

HEROIC EXPLOITS OF 9th AND 10th CAVALRY TOLD IN WARNER BROS.' 'SERGEANT RUTLEDGE'

From official government archives in the nation's capital comes the true-to-life background of the story brought to the Technicolor screen by Warner Bros. in John Ford's "Sergeant Rutledge," starring Jeffrey Hunter, Constance Towers and Billie Burke, supported by Woody Strode, Juano Hernandez, Willis Bouchee, Charleton Young, Judson Pratt, Bill Henry, Walter Reed and Chuck Hayward. The picture opens June 18 at the New Daisy Theatre.

The tale unfolds in the post-Civil War days when a hand-picked group of Negroes were chosen to make up the ranks of the 9th and 10th U. S. Cavalry. They fought on the crimsoned battlefields of the Old West during the Indian Wars, serving with high courage and devotion. The impressive Medal of Honor list of both regiments is the measure of the fighting zeal of "The Buffalo Soldiers," which was the name given to the troopers by the Indians.

Eye-witness reports in Army archives set forth that at first sight the troopers seemed almost identical in height, weight and general appearance. This was no accident for when the units were activated in 1866 it took a full year to hand-select the first sixty-odd recruits for each regiment.

Frederic Remington, the noted painter of early scenes in the West, made numerous in-the-field sketches and oil studies of the Negro troopers in action, and — in the interests of authenticity in the screenplay — these were used for reference in preparing the uniforms worn by the actors portraying the cavalrymen.

The original idea for the story was conceived by Willis Goldbeck, whose screenwriting talents have given the screen such notable triumphs as "Saramboche," "Ten Tall Men" and "A Kiss For Cinderella." He has also variously served as a director and producer, and for the filming of "Sergeant Rutledge" held coproducer status with Patrick Ford.

MISS PEGGIE ANN WHITE IS WED TO MAURICE BULLETT

Hundreds Attend Fashionable Wedding

Interested focused last week on one of the major wedding of season, that of Miss Peggie Ann White and Maurice Bullett who were married in a ceremony of great beauty and dignity at the Mississippi Boulevard Christian Church Saturday evening at 8 with the Reverend J. A. McDanel, pastor of Bethel Presbyterian Church, officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry White of 1519 Hanauer. Mr. Bullett is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Turner of Chicago and the grandson of Mr. O. Bullett of Memphis.

The double ring ceremony was performed in a gardenlike setting of white stock and glowing candles, and the couple pledged their vows under a round archway, and before a lace green background. The bride's attire was marked with bouquets of fragrant white blossoms, tied with satin bows, and the glow from single Cathedral candles entwined with lace greenery, lighted the aisle.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Thelma Whalum. Mr. Joseph Jackson sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer," and Miss Annie L. Monger sang "I Love Thee," "If I Could Tell You" and during the ceremony she sang "With This Ring I Thee Wed."

The lovely young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite wedding gown... and original by Priscilla of white Chantilly lace over bridal tulle. The bodice was designed with a point de vue neckline sprinkled with tiny iridescent sequins and the sleeves were long with petals that pointed over her hands. The brilliant skirt, of lace over layers and layers of tulle, featured narrow bands of silk tulle encircling it. Her double-tiered finger-tip length veil of misty lace, cascaded from a Queen's Tiara of delicate lace and cultured pearls that was centered with a large pearl tear-drop. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids and her only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls, a gift from the groom.

Mrs. Ullius Phillips, Jr., was matron of honor. Other female attendants were Mrs. Adeline Phipps, and Mrs. Ruth H. Hayes, Miss Lillian Crowder and Mrs. Louise Sanford.

Flower girls were white dressed with tiaras of white roses, and they were Caron-Jane Sweet and Jacqueline Shields. Little Harold Jamison, Jr., was ring bearer.

Frederick Letcher was best man. Mr. Bullett's other attendants and ushers were Augustus White who came in from Stanford Medical School on the West coast; Willie Lindsey, J. J. Graham, Jr., James

O. Patterson, Jr., who arrived just in time from the Howard Law School Friday; Wallace Wilburn, Walter Gibson, Jr., who came from Meharry Medical School and Lewis Twigg, Jr. who arrived here from Atlanta University for the wedding. Mrs. White, the bride's mother, wore a smart pink rose lace dress with the scooped neckline that featured a pink cummerbund and a side panel of chiffon that extended to the hemline. Her complementary headpiece, of tiny pink and white roses, was accented with lilies of the valley. She wore a shoulder corsage of purple orchids. Mrs. Turner, the groom's mother, wore a blue lace fashioned with sequins around the neckline and a skirt overlaid with blue net. Her shoulder corsage also of purple orchids.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Marie Pike, wore a stunning blue and white print of sheer cotton and a pink sequined hat with bands of pink satin covering the top. Mrs. Alice Davis, the bride's aunt who came from Columbus, Ohio, wore a lovely pink lace and a pink "after five" hat.

RECEPTION FOLLOWS

The receiving line was formed in the main living room before greenery and arrangements of white stock. The round bride's table in the dining room was lovely with a tiered wedding cake, encircled with gardenias. The table was overlaid with a cloth of bridal satin. Glowing white candles in candelabra flanked the cake. The dining room table, overlaid with a white lace cloth, was a perfect wedding setting with open face sandwiches and a large bowl of frappe. The centerpiece was a large candelabra holding flowers and tapers. Punch was also served from a side table, and caterers carried delicacies through the large crowd throughout the evening.

NAACP Hits Segregated Plans Of WDIA's 'Starlight Revue'

The local branch of the NAACP registered a "vigorous protest against" the "segregated" seating plans of the "Starlight Revue," which is an annual charity show staged by radio station WDIA. This year's show is scheduled for July 1 at Crump Stadium.

The NAACP's protest was revealed in a news release signed by Jesse H. Turner, chairman of the board of the local branch.

The news release stated: "The NAACP is familiar with the contributions made by WDIA." (1) The Goodwill Home (2) Providing transportation for crippled children (3) An athletic program for Negro youths. (4) Pioneering locally in providing employment opportunities for Negro radio announcers.

Added was "however, the local branch NAACP cannot reconcile these contributions with the radio station's proposed racially segregated show."

"WDIA's presentation of this racially segregated show becomes more humiliating to the Negro in his march toward first class citizenship when one realizes the position to which WDIA has risen in the Negro's advertising market. An advertisement by WDIA currently appearing in a national magazine states that through active public service and civic leadership, WDIA has become a part of its listeners (Negroes) daily lives. The articles in the magazine went on to say that 'when the Negro buys he selects the products he has heard about on WDIA,' stated Turner, in his news release.

The release continued: "The Negro to whom all of WDIA's programs are beamed and as a result of which the radio station receives all of its income, will be shocked to learn that WDIA has so little respect for the Negro's drive for freedom that it will use the position of leadership that it has attained in the Negro Community to further the cause of segregation and racial discrimination."

Turner stated further: "This is particularly alarming since it comes at a time when hundreds of Negro students here and in other southern communities have been humiliated, beaten and jailed for no other reason than that they desire equal participation in industry and government as afforded persons in other racial groups."

He added "the fact that the proceeds from the segregated revue will go to charities does not alter the fact that this performance will serve to perpetuate the discriminatory patterns that Negroes are now fighting to eliminate."

The new release indicated that a copy of the written protest was sent Bert Ferguson, manager of the local station; A. C. Williams and Egmont Sonderling, an executive of WDIA.

Proceeds from the "Starlight Revue" are earmarked to supply transport crippled children to and from school daily as well as purchase wheel chairs, as well as supply equipment for WDIA's little league teams.

June 21-26 Meet To Be First Ever Held In Northwest Area

SAINT PAUL, Minn. — The NAACP will hold its 51st annual convention here, June 21-26, marking the first time the Association has convened in this area of the country.

In light of recent developments in the South, the recent launching of the new Negro American Labor Council and the impending Presidential election campaign, the convention promises to be one of the most interesting and stimulating of the annual NAACP gatherings. Seven hundred or more delegates, representing branches throughout the country, will be concerned with voter registration, open housing occupancy, selective use of economic power, more trade union democracy, emerging Africa, and the role of youth in the Fight for Freedom. Workshop sessions will be specifically devoted to review and study of the southern student protest movement. A special youth night is scheduled also.

Conferees will be welcomed by Governor Orville L. Freeman and Mayor George Vavoulis at the opening session on June 21.

The keynote address at this session will be delivered by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, Board Chairman and member of the newly created New York City Housing and Redevelopment Board. The Association's executive secretary, Roy Wilkins, will deliver the closing address Sunday afternoon, June 26.

The 3,000 seat Civic Auditorium in Saint Paul will house the convention's business and evening sessions. Workshops and regional groups will convene in various other rooms.

Saint Paul, situated about 600 miles north of Chicago, adjoins Minneapolis to compose a twin cities complex. Its non-white population together with Minneapolis in 1950 was 15,284 but the 1960 census is expected to show a sharp increase in the Negro population of the two communities.

The Saint Paul NAACP is host branch. A citizens' planning committee is headed by Mrs. Pierce Butler III, Judge Archie L. Gingold

"Living In Dark Ages" Says Highway Safety Lighting Expert

By PATRICIA McCORMACK For UPI
NEW YORK — (UPI) — We're living in the dark ages. This illuminating news comes from Edmond C. Powers, education director of the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau.

He's talking about the darkness on the nation's poorly lighted streets and highways. Out of this cover of night spring the muggers, the rapists, the thieves. "Darkness makes these strange the nation pays for not being lit up.

"Proper lighting," Powers said, "would save 12,000 lives on the nation's highways during the first year it was in effect. The economic saving would exceed $3 billion a year."

Good lighting on certain highways has reduced the death-rate by two-thirds. And he said the installation of proper lighting in one major city — Cleveland — was followed by a 44 per cent decline in assaults on women.

Proper lighting means lighting that meets minimum levels of illumination set by the American Standards Association. Fewer than 20 of the nation's 18,000 incorporated towns and cities have such lighting, Powers said.

In many of the poorly lighted towns, women — frequently enraged by a brutal assault committed on a dimly lit street — carried the torch in crusades for better lighting.

Powers cited Cleveland as one such town. But the female lamp-lighters have sparked legislation to brighten smaller towns also.

Powers said the per capita loss from accidents, thefts, personal assaults occurring at night is $18 a year. The per capita cost of installing proper lighting across the nation — roughly, the price of a carton of cigarettes for every American — 500 million dollars.

CONSUMER INDEX HIGH
Rising food prices lifted the Consumer Price Index to another record in April—four-tenths of 1 per cent higher than March, and almost 2 per cent higher than a year ago.

New York Glamour Fades As Journey Begins Into Harlem

NEW YORK, N. Y. — For many blocks, New York's Fifth Avenue is the epitome of elegance and sophistication. Slowly but surely it begins to lose its glitter as it journeys uptown, into Harlem.

In the July issue of Esquire Magazine, author James Baldwin takes a walk through the streets of Harlem, giving a close examination to the filth and despair that has lived there longer than he has.

Foreed out of their dilapidated homes, Negroes are moved into cold, impersonal housing projects that they quickly grow to resent, for once again they are being put on a shelf not allowed to live like other people. The projects are hated because they reveal the real attitude of the white world — "no matter how many liberal speeches are made, no matter how many lofty editorials are written, no matter how many civil-rights commissions are set up."

The Esquire article says that we are quick to note the rise of certain successful people from less than perfect living conditions, Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr. serving as good examples of a determined will. Yet, at the moment, in this country, the determined will is quite rare and the inequalities suffered by the many are in no way justified by the rise of a few.

Baldwin says that Northerners often think of the Negro problem as being something that ended with the Civil War, or a malady peculiar only to Little Rock. He suggests that we walk through the streets of Harlem and see what we, this nation, have become.

Dr. Sylvester B. Smith, First Negro To Head Penn. Dentists

AMBLER, Pa. — Dr. Sylvester B. Smith of this suburban Philadelphia community set two precedents recently when he was elected president of the Montgomery-Bucks County Dental Society. Chosen by unanimous vote, the highly regarded dentist thus became the first Negro and the first Ambler resident to serve this post in the group's 30-year history.

As president, Dr. Smith heads a selective group of some 400 dentists in Montgomery and Bucks Counties. Boasting one of the largest memberships in the state of Pennsylvania, the Society is a component of the Second District Dental Society and the American Dental Association.

Dr. Smith, for years an active member of the organization also set a historic "first" for Negroes in 1957 when he accepted the chairmanship of the Program Committee, said to be one of the most important assignments within the group. That same year, Dr. Raymond L. Hayes, head of the Department of Endodontics at Howard University's School of Dentistry, became the first clinician of color to lecture to the Society. The following year, Dr. Thomas J. Pinson, also of Howard University and one of the country's leading Oral

African Political Map To Be Changed As Freedom Gains

New Nations, New Presidents To Emerge As Change Comes

By LOUIS LAUTER

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — By the end of 1960 the political map of Africa will be so changed that newspapers will find it difficult to distinguish between the dependent areas and the independent countries created since World War II.

That statement was made by Joseph C. Satterthwaite, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, in testimony on mutual security appropriations for fiscal year 1961 before the House Foreign Operations Appropriations subcommittee.

The subcommittee chairman, Representative Otto E. Passman, of Louisiana, looks at the mutual security program, particularly with respect to Africa, through a jaundiced eye.

Before calling Mr. Satterthwaite to testify, Mr. Passman said: "At the rate we are going, there will be so many new nations, new kings, new presidents, new potentates, and new top echelon people, that when we get to advancing all these people into a society they are not ready to accept, I am afraid we might be relegated to the position we experienced in the early thirties, that is, selling apples on the street corners."

Mapmakers have been having a time with Africa, and their job will not come easier this year, Mr. Satterthwaite told the committee. MORE COUNTRIES FREE

By October there will be at least five more independent countries — the Belgian Congo, Somalia, the Federation of Mali, the Malagasy Republic, and Nigeria. Cameroon achieved independence last Jan. 1, and Togo became Africa's twelfth independent nation last April 27.

Below the Sahara there is no uniformity of language, custom, or civilization, Mr. Satterthwaite explained.

The many tribes now being released from colonial controls, he said, have one common denominator — opposition to colonialism; one common characteristic — political ferment — and one common goal — self-realization in their own, not in any other people's image.

"In vast areas of Africa the people are vaulting in one generation from the neoliths (stone) to the nuclear age," Mr. Satterthwaite said, adding:

"Indeed, the Africa we see today is a land where everything is happening at once — constitutional struggles, endless quest for economic and social advancement, civil strife, the conflict between democracy and communism, colonialism and nationalism, equality and racism.

"Of no less importance than the swift pace of political developments on the African scene is the pressing need for accelerating the sluggish rate of economic growth and improving living standards.

A POLITICAL EVOLUTION
"Africa's economic and social structures are not developing at a pace comparable to its political evolution. It is fairly easy to recognize that the political revolution is at hand and by and large its pressures are irresistible.

"It is essential that the pace of economic development match or at least not fall further behind the rate of political change now sweeping the Africa continent."

Mr. Satterthwaite added that countries are becoming politically independent without "adequately trained leadership and technical skills and without the basic economic and social institutions and systems which provide the foundations for secure, confident, African-led nations."

He said present United States foreign assistance programs are not adequate in scope or size to be responsive to the dramatic changes taking place.

"The facts of this situation, and U. S. sympathy for the newly independent or about to be independent or about to be independent recommendations for a new and creative United States approach," he said.

Budget request of $24.3 million for Africa for the fiscal year beginning July is $3.35 million above the amount programmed for the region in the current fiscal year.

The increase is chiefly for new programs in West Africa, or relatively new programs in the nations that are in the process of achieving independence such as Somalia and Nigeria.

James P. Grant, Deputy Director for Program and Planning, International Cooperation Administration, told the committee that it was already probable that the amount requested for fiscal year 1961 "will fall considerably short of our needs for technical cooperation funds in Africa."

He explained that as recently as last December it did not appear that major colonies such as the Belgian Congo, the Mali Federation, and Madagascar would become independent in fiscal year 1961.

The Belgian Congo is as large as the United States east of the Mississippi. The Mali Federation is approximately twice as large as Texas, and Madagascar is as large as Texas.

Mr. Grant said "it is essential that we work with the new and prospective leaders in these countries while their attitudes are still forming. If we delay we may either greatly increase their economic and political costs or lose the opportunity altogether."

Growing African Sovereignty Hailed By Pope John XXIII

VATICAN CITY — Pope John XXIII praised in a radio address here the "growing sovereignty" of the African people.

In a half-hour message broadcast to Africa, the Pope exhorted Africans to direct their growth according to Christian principles.

He repeated the observation of Pope Pius XII in his Encyclical "Fidelis Domini" (Gift of Faith) that the African continent "is opening itself to modern life and is living what is perhaps the most serious year of its millennial destiny."

Then Pope John added: "We are happy to express to you our great satisfaction in seeing the progressive realization of growing sovereignty. The Church rejoices in it and trusts in the will of those young states to take their due place in the community of nations."

Pope John proceeded to trace the Christian history of Africa. He pointed out that Africa had given asylum and protection to the Holy Family when it was fleeing Herod. He said that Africa, soon after the first Pentecost, welcomed the Christian word and the legions of martyrs that followed, among whom St. Cyprian was outstanding.

The Pope said: "Blossoming communities were born along the Mediterranean coasts, the desert became populated with hermits like St. Anthony, concerned with fighting the devil through fasting and prayer. And at Hippo, St. Augustine directed the church entrusted to him with wisdom and theological knowledge."

Speaking of the progress of modern Africa, pope John said that the attainment of sovereignty does not solve all problems. He said that there is need to work for the sound development of each new state.

As an aid to this development, he said, the Church places at the disposal of African nations "a disinterested way and, according to their needs, principles of action that are most useful for the development of the individual, the family and professional, civic and international life."

"These norms," he added, "are always inspired by respect for the dignity of persons and by the requirements of the common good."

After recalling the establishment of national hierarchies in recent years and the naming of the first Negro cardinal, the Pope pointed out that these things are only beginnings.

It is too soon, he said, to recall missionaries. He added that there is still much to be done toward the training of a native clergy and the education of Christian laymen who can play a full role in the Church and society.

AFRICA WELCOMES HOME FIRST NEGRO CARDINAL

ENTEBBE, Uganda, — (NC) — Thousands of persons, including Negro Africa's first native bishop and central Africa's first native priest, greeted the first Negro cardinal on his return to his native continent.

On hand to welcome His Eminence Laurian Cardinal Rugambwa when he landed at Entebbe airport were Bishop Joseph Kiwanuka of Masaka, Uganda, consecrated in 1939 by Pope Pius XII, and Msgr. Victor Maska, who was ordained in 1911.

The Cardinal, who is Bishop of Rutaba in neighboring Tanganyika, then drove 20 miles to Rubaga along a route lined by cheering crowds. In Rubaga school children paraded in his honor.

After a day's stay in Rubaga he returned to Rutaba by air.

MUST BILLS

A modest list of "must" legislation remains to be acted on before Congress can take off for the political conventions.

The Democrats meet in Los Angeles, beginning July 11, and Congressional leaders are determined to adjourn before that date. Indications are that they should be able to meet the deadline with no more than the usual late pressure of business.

NAACP Delegates To Hear South African Scholar

NEW YORK — Professor Mhah-nesburg, Union of South Africa. The convention will be held in Saint Paul, Minn., June 21-25.

Professor Njlsane replaces Oliver Tambo on the convention program. Mr. Tambo, who is the refugee deputy president of the South African National Congress, encountered difficulty in obtaining a United States visa.

By the time this problem was resolved he had made other commitments which prevented him from coming to the United States at this time.

In this country as an exchange teacher, Professor Njlsane has conducted courses in sociology at Howard and Boston universities. A graduate of Witwatersrand and Natal universities in South Africa, he taught at Natal for a number of years before coming to America on the exchange program.

Rathblott, Human Dynamo At 74: Pace Beats Many

N. Rathblott of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, land developer, philanthropist and humanitarian at age 74 is a human dynamo. Many younger men find it impossible to keep up his pace and his zest for living. In capsule form he is described as a bundle of energy with one aim in life, "To make living easier for the oppressed."

The media he is using to accomplish his life long aim is the internationally known developments for all races at Mizpah, N. J. Outstanding leaders of the race, long recognize Mr. Rathblott's dedicated aim and paid him public tribute and honor throughout the country.

As early as 1925, Rathblott was elected to a life time membership in the National Baptist Convention, Inc. The beloved, late Dr. L. K. Williams presided over this historic meeting when the election of Rathblott to the membership as its first Jewish member had the unanimous approval of the delegates present.

Only recently, Rathblott said, "That while he has only a limited number of lots remaining at his Mizpah Development and normally he should feel that his mission in life was accomplished, however, in this day and age we find ourselves living in a hectic world and bigotry runs rampant because there is still the element, though in a minority, who would like to see the Negro and the Jew placed on a secondary status. Our history books are an indelible record of the shameful treatment which have been inflicted upon the two minority groups of the world. Thinking people are at a loss in their attempt to find justification for the actions of the past and more important for the present conflicts which we read about daily in connection with the segregation question. It is for these reasons that I feel that my work is not done and that this adversity to democratic freedom must be fought with all our hearts and by a unification of the forces who are friendly to us and who also are desirous of making this world a better place to live and that all humans regardless of race, color or creed, shall have equal opportunities to prosper and enjoy the fruits of this modern age."

Canada Arrests Josephine Baker

MONTREAL (UPI)—Josephine Baker, sepiu star of Folies-Bergere fame, was charged Wednesday with bringing more than $10,000 in stolen clothes and music into Canada from the United States.

Miss Baker, 54, who made a string of bananas famous as a "odd-tune" in the 1930's and Hollywood director Stephen Papich, 34, were arrested by four policemen last night on a private complaint filed by New York impresario William Taub, her former agent.

Miss Baker has been feuding with Taub since he filed suit recently in the United States to collect money she allegedly owes him for his services.

Taub's complaint charged that Miss Baker and Papich stole $10,000 worth of costumes, clothes, including a mink jacket, and sheet music and orchestrations which Miss Baker uses in her act. The complaint said the articles were rented and had to be bought and paid for if taken outside the United States.

Miss Baker and Papich were continued in $1,000 bail each after their arraignment before Criminal Court Judge Rene Thiberge, who ordered them to appear before him Friday on a charge of theft. No plea was entered to the charge.

Klan Leader To Run For Georgia Post In Election

MACON — (UPI) — Ku Klux Klan leader R. Lee Wild Bill Davidson III announced June 16 he will run as an independent for state representative in the November 3 general election.

Davidson, grand dragon of the U. S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klans, Inc., said he will run against the winner of the July 20th Democratic primary race for the representative's post vacated by Andrew W. McKenna. McKenna resigns due to appointment as judge of the city court of Macon.

The Klansman said he decided to run because all three candidates for McKenna's seat favor local option on school closings.

W. Elliott Dunwoody III, Delbert Leggett and Phil Taylor are Democratic candidates for the representative's post. All three have said they favor local option in the school crisis.

Davidson said complete segregation is the only way to operate Georgia schools. Several Republican candidates also are expected to oppose the Democratic nominees for the three legislative posts in the general election.

Johansson Ready For Title Defense

By JACK CUDDY
 United Press International
CROSSINGER, N. Y. — (UPI) Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson finished his preparations Wednesday for his title defense against Floyd Patterson Monday night with the compliments of Dr. Alexander Schiff ringing in his ears.

Just before Johansson sparred his three final rounds, Dr. Schiff announced that Wednesday's physical examination showed that the champion was less nervous about the big fight at the Polo Grounds than ex-champion Patterson and Ingemar also indicated he had more stamina than the challenger.

More than 200, including approximately 60 sports writers from American and European cities, watched the workout, which was forced indoors at the Grossinger ski lodge because of the stormy weather.

Ingemar was examined by three physicians from the New York State Athletic Commission: Dr. Schiff, Samuel Swinick and Edwin A. Campbell.

Chairman Melvin L. Krulwich and Co-Commissioner James A. Farley, Jr., watched the workout.

Commenting upon the examination, Dr. Schiff pointed out that the champion's comparatively low pulse rate of 48 beats a minute and the pulse's reaction to exercises indicated that he could take more exercise without fatigue than Patterson, whose pulse showed 60 before exercise in Tuesday's examination at Newtown, Conn.

Schiff stated also that Johansson's composure during the examination indicated less nervousness than Patterson's desire to yawn and sit down, in possibly feigned indifference, Tuesday.

Cardinals "Try-outs" Scheduled For Bristol

Baseball activity will be at a high pitch in Bristol, Tenn., Va., on June 23 and 24, when The St. Louis Cardinals stage tryouts for players eager to get into professional baseball. It was announced today by Farm Director Walter Shannon.

"We're counting on a fine turnout at King College Field, where the tryouts will be held," Shannon said. "If there is any major league talent in the area, we're hoping to discover it."

The tryouts will be directed by Red Bird scout Eddie Lyons and get underway promptly at 10 a. m. each day. A player must be in the 17 to 23 year age bracket. No equipment is needed other than a glove, shoes, and a uniform if the player has one. The Red Birds will supply the bats, balls, and catching equipment.

"Our search for the Cardinal stars of the future goes on," Shannon remarked. "And, while changing times have brought about a more selective approach in scouting, we still consider tryout camps a worthwhile part of our program. Particularly is this so when they are held at carefully chosen spots like this one. These camps are a real break for the many unscouted players of ability who desire a professional baseball career but lack the chance to prove that they are ready for it."

No charge or fee is required to attend the camp. A player signed to a contract will be refunded any expenses incurred as a result of attending the camp.

To take part in the tryouts, an American legion player must have a letter of approval from either his legion coach or Post Commander.

Lee Calhoun Beats Hayes Jones In Compton, Houston Hurdles

Former N.C. College Ace Getting Ready For NCAA Meet In Bakersfield, California

By JOHN A. HOLLEY
BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — Lee Calhoun, the 1956 Olympic gold medalist in the 110-meter high hurdles, sounded his strongest challenge of the current track campaign in his last two outings, winning the Compton Invitational from his chief nemesis, Hayes Jones, and taking the Houston "Meet of Champions."

The former North Carolina College hurdler, now employed by Gary, Indiana's recreation department, is now getting ready for the National AAU track and field championships to be run off at the Bakersfield track on June 24-25.

Calhoun's win over Jones at the Compton meet was only his second over the Eastern Michigan flash since the 50 National AAU meet at Boulder, Colo., earlier in the Coliseum Relays. Calhoun took his first race over Jones this season. At Compton, Calhoun skipped over the high hurdles in 13.5, equalling his fastest time ever in the event. The following week, at Houston, the Gary gazelle dipped into the tape at the "Meet of Champions" in 13.5.

Right after the Penn Relays, where he dropped a heart-breaking, identically-timed decision to Jones after leaving the race up to the last hurdle, Calhoun made a trip to Durham before returning to his job in Gary. It was here that he sat down with his former collegiate coach, Leroy T. Walker, now in Israel prepping the Israeli Olympic team, to iron out the kinks in his hurdling technique.

The very next day, both coach and pupil returned to the scene of many of their most profitable workouts during the climax of Calhoun's career, prior to his '56 Olympic appearance as well as the time of his battle to come back after his AAU ban had been lifted. This familiar scene was the Duke University cinder track where Walker, after this, the two sat down, viewed the results of their previous day's work. The results began to pay off shortly afterward. In his next outing, at the Coliseum Relays, Calhoun nipped Jones in the hurdles with a 14.1 timing, considered good stepping on the grass-surfaced Los Angeles coliseum track.

With four straight wins, at the Coliseum, Modesto, Compton and Houston meets, all in good times, it looks as if Calhoun is still the class of the high hurdles on the international scene, and certainly the most fearsome threat on the United States' front.

Calhoun seems set on winning his second gold medal at the 80 Olympics in Rome, Italy, and then he says: "I'll call it quits to devote some time to my family."

"But right now I am mostly concerned with this AAU meet where I will have to face the best in the hurdling field such as Jones, Elias Gilbert, Chuck Cobb, and Willie May among AAU competitors, not to mention the current crop of collegiate hurdlers," added Calhoun as he flexed his muscles in a workout on the Bakersville track.

Stone Johnson Convinces His Coach, He's Among U. S. Best

Tom Williams Tabbed Grambling Ace As One Of The Nation's Best Sprinters

By COLLIE J. NICHOLSON
GRAMBLING, La. (Special) — Nobody got panic stricken when Coach Tom Williams made a premature claim in early March in which he called Stone Johnson, "the nation's best young sprinter."

From most quarters it looked as though the Grambling College mentor has stuck his head in the meat chopper.

Few people outside the immediate area had heard of Johnson and friends hinted strongly that the verbal summation indicated that the coach was spending too much time scribbling and gazing at the rolling landscape.

In spite of the criticism, Williams bravely stuck by his statement.

Southwestern conference fans and coaches adopted a watchful, waiting attitude and, to implement the scheme further, Johnson gave a clear indication of his brilliance by beating the nation's best sprinters — just as Williams said he would — in a manner that has caused consternation among U. S. Olympic hopefuls.

The 19-year-old sophomore has been beaten only three times this year — each time by defending NCAA champion Charlie Tidwell of the University of Kansas.

Tidwell beat Johnson in the Drake Relay Carnival and edged him in the 100 and 200 meters in Houston's meet of champions.

Williams fervently points out that Johnson has convinced detractors by beating such outstanding performers as Dave Sims, world's record holder for the 220-yard dash; Bobby Morrow, 1956 Olympic 100 and 200 meter dash winner; Ira Murclison, co-holder of the 100-meter record; Ralph Aspaugh, southwest conference 220-yard champion from the University of Texas; and Dave Styron, brilliant Northeast College star.

Britain's Colonial Headaches Stepped Up By Strategic Malta

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG For UPI
LONDON — (UPI) — Britain's onsize burden of colonial headaches is being stepped up by new independence demands from tiny but strategic Malta.

The fortress island colony, which until the nuclear rocket age held the defense key to the central Mediterranean, is clamoring again to join the swelling rank of former British possessions which have become independent nations.

But Britain, which has ruled the island for 146 years and which decorated it with the coveted George Cross for standing up to Hitler's five bombers throughout World War II, thinks differently.

The British government sees no future as an independent nation for Malta's 369,000 population crammed into an area of less than 100 square miles.

SUSPENSION CONSTITUTION
 Eighteen months ago Britain suspended Malta's constitution and withdrew limited internal self-government because the island's politicians refused to cooperate with her.

Since then the island has been run by the British governor.

Next month Lord Perth, minister of state in the British colonial office, is scheduled to visit Malta to seek agreement with Maltese political leaders that would make internal self-government possible again.

But Dom Mintoff, fiery, 44-year-old, Oxford-educated leader of the Maltese Labor Party and the island's most prominent politician, has replied that he will be satisfied with nothing short of total independence.

Mintoff had quit as premier in April 1, 1958, and from then onwards no Maltese politician was willing to form an alternative government, leading to the constitution suspension in January, 1959.

The impasse stemmed from an argument over the amount of financial subsidy paid by Britain to the impoverished island which lives largely from British handouts.

DEMANDS INCREASED SUBSIDY
 Curiously, the row followed a vote by the Maltese in February, 1956, for complete political integration with Britain.

But Mintoff demanded an increased British financial subsidy as the price. New fuel was added to the dispute in the spring of 1958 when Britain decided to close down Malta's huge naval dockyard, which provided a livelihood for

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Paul Richards, who doesn't choose to run, has released his delegates and hopes they find some other candidate to stump for as "manager of the year."

Each time anyone mentions that phrase around the 51-year-old Baltimore Oriole manager, he winces so hard that the crowd's feet show up around the corners of his eyes.

"Let someone else be named manager of the year," he says, "I'll settle for being named manager of the team in the World Series."

Richards, of course, knows the two distinctions generally go hand-in-hand. As a matter of fact, there is little about baseball he doesn't know.

OPINION DIVIDED
 Even so, opinion is somewhat divided about him in Baltimore, where his supporters insist he's the smartest baseball manager since John McGraw and his critics claim he maneuvers his team like a man playing a pinball machine.

One particular Oriole fan, Harry Gilder of Annapolis, Md., put it this way:

The stretch happened to be a "test road" for two types of surfacing and was so labeled.

When Lancaster asked "Why are you driving so fast?" the motorist replied: "It's a test road, isn't it?"

South Warned To Settle Racial Problems Now

ATLANTA, Ga. — (SNS) — Two leaders of the Indian parliament said Monday the South must solve its racial problem before the U. S. can face the threat of Communism in uncommitted countries.

Prof. and Mrs. J. B. Kripalani warned that Communism's claim that it has no racial prejudice in non-white nations.

Prof. Kripalani is head of the opposition Socialist Party in India. Mrs. Kripalani is secretary of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's International Congress Party.

The Indian couple, making their first visit to the South, said the sit-in protest movement was a "very impressive" start toward solving the racial problem.

"It is a passive resistance movement based on the philosophy of Mahatma Gandhi," said Kripalani. The late Ghandi, a close friend of the Kripalanis, resorted to passive resistance in India's successful fight for independence from Great Britain.

"Without violence you get the sympathy of the neutrals," Kripalani said. "And that is the tactic the students staging the sit-ins are using."

Distillers Union Charged With Bias

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (ANP) — A $250,000 damage suit was filed in Federal Court last week against the Distillery Workers Union and Julius Gessler Distillery for alleged discrimination against Negro members of the union.

James A. Crumlin, attorney for the Kentucky conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, filed the suit on behalf of nine union members. Six of them have been laid off. The others are now working for the distillery.

The suit charged that separate seniority lists are kept for Negro and white workers, and when there is a cutback, Negroes with greater seniority have been dropped while whites with less tenure have been kept on.

Improvement in Economy Seen

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A "moderate" improvement in the nation's economy can be expected during the remainder of 1960, economist Marcus Nadler said Wednesday.

In a mid-year business analysis prepared for the Hancock Bank Nadler said "there is both strength and weakness in the economy, but the forces indicating a further expansion are more numerous than those pointing to a contraction."

He also predicted that the pattern of business this year will be marked by "keen competition" both here and abroad. The collapse of the summit meeting makes it even less likely that Congress will either raise tariffs or that the administration will impose new import quotas.

for the Democratic nomination. None of the candidates would score perfectly on civil rights. Each of them has some bad spots. But none of them has what may be classified as a bad record or an anti-civil rights record.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, like the Vice President, has some spots on his record, but he can also boast that he started his political career as a liberal under the banner of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and that the Senate, under his leadership, passed two civil rights bills - the Civil Rights Act of 1960 and the Civil Rights Act of 1961.

Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts has at least one bad vote in his record - the vote for the fur yerul amendment in 1967. But like Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, who also has a good voting record, he has never been vocal on the subject of civil rights.

One of the stories which made the rounds of the Nation's Capital concerned the rupture between President Eisenhower and Chief Justice Earl Warren. The story was to the effect that Mr. Eisenhower was not too happy with the Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in the public schools.

There was not much light that Mr. Nixon could throw on this story. But persons close to the Vice President said Mr. Nixon believed, as far as personal relationships were concerned, that the reports of any rupture were greatly exaggerated or had no foundation.

On the occasions when Mr. Nixon attended White House dinners and Chief Justice and Mrs. Warren were present, persons close to the Vice President say he noticed only a warm personal relationship, very cordial and friendly.

With respect to reports that President Eisenhower disapproved the Supreme Court decision, this reporter can state that the Vice President has found the President always to avoid scrupulously any indication of any criticism of the decision in any meeting in which Mr. Nixon has participated.

This reporter also can state that Mr. Nixon thinks the President's attitude on civil rights is rather indicative of the way he approaches things.

The President may have individual views, which might not be consistent with those of the Supreme Court decision, but he has consistently followed the line that once the law has been declared and once it is established everybody adheres.

At the time the President chose Governor Warren to be the Chief Justice of the United States, and the Vice President had nothing to do with it, it is known that the Vice President thinks it was made without any prospect or regard to the decision against segregated public schools.

That certainly was not discussed at the time, and Mr. Nixon is known not to believe that. It had anything to do with the appointment.

There have been disagreements about the Supreme Court decision. But this is not unusual. It has happened in every Administration, both Democratic and Republican.

The gist of the story was that Chief Justice Warren was named at the lack of the President's initiative in pushing the decision.

But persons close to the Vice President said he had not seen any indication that the Chief Justice is pained.

Of course, Chief Justice Warren is not one to confide in the Vice President, and Mr. Nixon is not one likely to have known if the Chief Justice was pained. Relations between the two men have been strained ever since the 1962 Republican national convention.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Scott Jordan, a lawyer with a reputation for stretching the law to cover anything that will help his clients, is in a jam again. His ransacking of the apartment of Dan Varney for clues to where the literary agent has gone with $50,000 belonging to an author, was interrupted by the arrival of a young woman Jordan didn't know.

CHAPTER 2

ADAM COLEMAN was waving a paper in the air. "Look at this," he said a little wildly. "I'm being sued. Fifty thousand dollars." He repeated the sum. "Fifty thousand and I never even saw the money."

"Sit down, Adam," I told him. "Relax. That's easy for you to say. You lawyers thrive on litigation. Every time somebody's in trouble..."

"I don't know. Let me read the complaint first." "It was simple enough. The plaintiff was a man named Fred Duncan. He was suing Adam Coleman and Dan Varney, both as individuals and as members of a firm, for fifty thousand dollars received by them for the sale of his book, The Kingsmen, to Zentih Films, a Hollywood producing outfit."

Adam's agitation had eased a little now. The summons explained his gloomy mood and now I wanted him to explain the summons.

"I assume this Fred Duncan is a client of yours and he wrote a book called The Kingsmen which you sold to Zentih Films." "From a manuscript. We haven't been able to find a trade publisher."

"How come?" "Duncan's a rank amateur. The writing is lousy. But what a story he tells! Based on fact, too. It's a blockbuster, Scott. That's what Zentih bought, and with a good scenario they can't miss."

"It's all wrapped up with Zentih? Contracts signed and the money paid?" "I—I guess so." "What do you mean, you guess. Don't you know?"

He nodded unhappily. "I was out of town when the check arrived. Varney deposited it at our special account at the Merchant's Trust and when it cleared he simply withdrew the cash and... disappeared."

"You mean absconded?" "Adam groaned from the heart. "There's no other explanation." "Varney's married, isn't he?" "To my sister, Barbara. Didn't you know?"

"I shook my head. "When did that happen?" "About a year ago. She'd just returned from Europe and met me at the office one day. I introduced them. Barbara's a stunner. One look and Varney was hooked in."

"Doesn't she know where he is?"

Adam gestured helplessly. "Barbara's in Reno getting a divorce. That marriage was on the rocks from the beginning. God knows, she tried to make it work, but... well, anyway the money's gone and so is Dan. And now I've got Fred Duncan on my neck."

"Tell me about him." "Adam took off his glasses and wiped them. "Duncan is an ex-cop. A Scotsman with an accent thick enough to sit on. He was wounded during a holdup some years ago, shot in the knee and partially crippled. He pensioned him off the force and he got a job at the Merchant's Trust, custodian in the safe-deposit vault. That's where I met him."

"He knew I was a literary agent, and one day he handed me a manuscript and asked me to read it. He'd been working on it for a long time, he said. I wasn't sanguine over the prospect."

"Anyway, I took it back to the office and left it on my desk. Varney found it and started reading. He got interested and thought it had possibilities. So we started sending it around. Well, that sort of thing takes time, and Duncan was a nuisance. He'd phone almost every day, grumbling and griping, until I got so fed up I wanted to chuck the whole thing. But then Dan had a bright idea and he sent the story over to Zentih Films. It's an independent outfit with a lot of imagination."

He paused and I nodded to show that he had my full attention. "The first nibble came with a request for information about the author. And when they learned his background and realized how much of the story was authentic biography, they began to negotiate in earnest."

We settled on fifty thousand and notified Duncan. He had to sign the contracts, of course. Then I flew out to the coast and only got back last week. Varney wasn't around. At first I had no reason to be suspicious, he'd often take off for a day or two. And then Duncan started calling, wanting to know about his money. That's when I began to have misgivings. I got in touch with Zentih Films and they told me the check had been mailed. So I went over to the bank and got the shock of my life. The check had been deposited and the money withdrawn."

"They gave Varney fifty thousand in cash?" "Yes. He handed them some cock-and-bull-story about a nutty client who didn't believe in banks."

"You told Duncan about the money?" "I had no alternative. I stalled him as long as I could and then... well, you can imagine."

"And this morning you were served with a summons." "You. They can't hold me responsible, can they, Scott?" "Oh, yes they can. Each partner is personally responsible for the acts and omissions of his associates. Varney can be made to share the burden, if you find him. If not, the law insists that you shoulder the whole load yourself."

Adam looked stupefied. For a moment I thought I had lost him. He shook his head in a dazed way. "How can I find him?" he said. "I'm no detective."

"You'll have to hire one." "That's expensive and may take months." "We can notify the District Attorney. After all, Varney's a thief. Finding Varney is really their job anyway."

"No," Adam was surprisingly emphatic. "I—I'd rather not involve the police." "Why not?"

He hesitated, choosing his words carefully. "We can't stand the publicity. How do you think our other clients would react if they thought their money wasn't safe?" "I see what you mean. Then we'll have to find Varney ourselves."

He thought about it. "All right, Scott. What do you suggest?" "I suggest we file an answer to the summons. We'll enter a general denial, delay the proceedings, and in the meantime try to locate Varney. Have you any idea what made him do this?"

"Sure. Debts, high living, expensive habits." "Have you searched his desk?" "At the office, yes. Nothing there."

"How about his apartment?" Adam brightened momentarily. "No, but I have a key." "I suggest you go over there and shake it down. Look for cards or folders from a travel agency—receipts from an air line, the name of a shipping company, anything."

Adam stood still, looking glum and pitifully harassed. "What's the trouble?" I asked.

"I can't go," he said. "Not now. I have to go to the hospital. It's my father. He had another heart attack. He's on the critical list. Adam's mouth twisted bitterly. "And that woman he married never even let me know. I had to get the news indirectly."

"You haven't seen him for some time, have you, Adam?" "I can't see him now either. He's in a coma, under oxygen. They won't let anybody into his room." He looked up, tight-lipped. "But I want to be there anyway. I'm still his son, even if he did disown me. Look, Scott, I'll give you the key. You know better than I what to look for and I'd consider it a great favor."

How could I refuse? Too much time had been wasted already. So I took the key and made a note of Varney's address.

to the United States in late August.

To help pay for the project each student must contribute $500. Scholarship aid is given in cases where the need is shown. However, it costs about $1,650 to send each student to Africa. The rest of the money, as well as the money for scholarship aid, has to be raised through support from private foundations and gifts from individuals and corporations. The fund raising to finance this year's project still is going on.

to criticize the Eisenhower administration and said the governor could not be ruled out as a possible presidential nominee.

In fact, he said Rockefeller would not be "true to himself, his party or his country" if he failed to speak out against policies with which he disagreed.

TOOK ONE DIG But Nixon challenged Rockefeller's charge that he had failed to speak out adequately on issues in advance of the July 25 GOP nominating convention.

"I believe I have set forth with greater precision and in more detail my views on major issues than have any others," Nixon said.

Nixon took one dig at Rockefeller when, if any doubt remained, he ruled out any possibility of the Republicans coming up this fall with a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket.

Asked if he thought Rockefeller might be drafted at the Chicago convention, Nixon replied:

"I think I can assure him that he is often-expressed desire not to least as far as I am concerned, will be respected."

What And Who Is This Future?

This question posed by Governor Nelson Rockefeller in his manifesto to Vice President Richard Nixon, will ring down time in its restless inquiry long after the tumult and the shouting die around this campaign and this burning question of the presidency of the United States.

What and who is this future? The educational institutions and modern philosophers as well are trying to find these answers.

Science and invention take the stage. Hand in hand they are coming down civilization making this truly a small world. The present crisis, struggling within a narrow confine, throws upon the screen restless people and often, erring youth. Student movements all around the world are betraying every form of impatience; questioning both the integrity and "too conservative" movement of their elders, demanding in every form and fashion that they be heard.

Who is this future? They have left the earth and in their puncture of the stratosphere, are making pictures and speculating upon the possibilities of its colonization. Is this future to be real? Can it withstand the rigors of the dieters and the political reactionaries who have through the years fattened on delusion?

Is the parable of Lot's wife looking back, only to turn to a pillar of salt for her lust for the outmoded "way of life" that she had worshipped so long and loved so well in the plains of Sodom?

This future is real. This future is earnest. In its struggle in these swaddling clothes, "cannot live on bread alone."

The Mahatma comes alive once more; he moves in the spirit of the non-violent, the non-slogansists and the firm believers in the Rockefeller doctrine which ennobles the dignity of man. Man truly is a piece of dignity, having been created in the image of his maker, which vouches for the fundamental truth that nothing in the image of our great Creator can be inferior.

Time laughs and fate pities those who are still struggling in this quagmire of indifference which seeks to evade even the mandates of the highest courts in the land, render man to a state of non-political and economic defense and a pawn undeserving of the full protection, under law, and unfit for an unrestricted circulation in a free society.

Remember Randolph County and her Shorters; Columbus, Georgia, and her Primus Kings; Dawson, Georgia, and her school teachers; and poor Brazier who paid with his life in this atonement; remember Tuskegee—and forget the Alamo and all of those ancient shrines of wilful evasions and dead slogans.

Gov. Rockefeller, in what will live as a modern classic, left his own answers: "It is proving by political action that we do love and respect the dignity of man as we assure civil rights for all our people. He calls our America, "exposed—a problem to be either resolved by strong action, or to be evaded by strong slogans."

This future is you — and yours; this future; "It is nuclear power either serving to better lives — and to defend peoples, or to shatter nations and shake the planet."

A Handbook For Voters

Each election year multitudes of "get out the vote" campaigns are conducted. This is all to the good, but one more thing is needed—namely, informed intelligent voting.

A new paperback by John A. Wells, entitled "The Voter's Presidential Handbook," (McDowell Obolensky, New York) does an excellent job of filling that need. Sponsored by the Committee to Inform the Voters, it provides in concise and readable form a history of the office of the president along with description of his powers, duties and responsibilities; biographies of the 1960 presidential possibilities of both parties; a discussion of how each individual can be active and effective in politics; the way the national party conventions operate in choosing their presidential and vice presidential candidates, and a wealth of other valuable matter.

Mr. Wells dedicates his book "to the independent voter who, even if a member of a political party, does not blindly follow party dogma or a party leader, but thinks for himself and votes for the candidate or proposition he believes best for the people." The country sorely needs more voters of that kind.

Nixon Emerges

I believe we must practice at home such a respect for law and equality as we wish to preach — and serve — in the world at large," said Gov. Rockefeller, adding: "The record of the Republican party on civil rights is a very creditable one — certainly on any comparative basis. But no record can claim to be good enough so long as discrimination, segregation, and disenfranchisement persist on almost massive scale." "The Supreme Court has called for respect of the basic laws and principles of our nation with all deliberate speed." The deliberateness

35 Negroes Among Students Operation-Crossroads Africa

NEW YORK—Thirty-five Negroes from the North and South will be included in a group of 180 American college students who are going to Africa this summer to work alongside college students of 10 African countries.

Those involved will be participating in a student work and study project called Operation - Crossroads Africa. It was conceived by the Rev. Dr. James H. Robinson, Negro Presbyterian minister who has founded many community center programs on the Eastern coast of the United States. He is pastor of the Church of the Master in New York City and the founder of the Morningside Community Center which adjoins the Church.

This will be the second summer Dr. Robinson has led an interracial and interreligious group of American students to Africa. In 1958, the pilot project of Operation - Crossroads Africa saw him lead about 60 American students to that continent.

WINS PRESIDENT'S PRAISE For the first project five countries were visited. The students built schools, a chapel, and a water supply system. Upon their return to the United States two months later, the project and the participating students got unqualified praise from the State Department. President Eisenhower has since specifically praised Operation - Crossroads Africa in a letter to Dr. Robinson.

This year's project will take in 10 African countries — Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Sierra Leone, Nihomey, Togo, and Cameroon. Once in Africa the students will be divided into 14 groups. They will work on projects designated by the countries they visit.

Their motivation is the desire to come to grips with Africa on a strong personal basis. They will be in an area that is rapidly coming of age in a political sense. Ghana and Guinea have recently become sovereign nations, while Nigeria will soon become a full-fledged Commonwealth nation. Cameroon, Togo, and Senegal recently have become nations within the French family of nations.

In these new Negro nations the visiting Americans will be exposed to an intense nationalism, the likes of which they probably have never before experienced.

FRUITS OF PROJECT "The Africans, on the other hand, will be able to see for the first time a cross sectional group of Americans. Both the participating Americans and Africans will have much to learn from each other. Dr. Robinson, and many of those who have worked with him to support Operation - Crossroads Africa, believe that the new knowledge the American students bring back from Africa and the knowledge about America they leave behind will be the most valuable fruits of the project.

The students from this year's project were carefully selected from 70 colleges in the United States and Canada. They hail from 27 states and three Canadian provinces. One student is from the Republic of Uruguay.

The students will depart by air for Africa June 21 and 22 after an intensive week of orientation in New York City. They will return
