

"BLOCKBUSTING" SUIT FILED!

'Blockbusting' is new to Memphis and other southern cities. Some consider it an unethical operation, but it has been successful in the North for many years.

It is not easy to prove that it does exist, but the U. S. Government is going to attempt to show that it has been practiced here in Memphis in recent months.

'Blockbusting' follows a couple of patterns:

1. A real estate agent arranges for a white person to purchase a home in the middle of a white block. Ownership of the newly purchased home is transferred to a black family. When the black family moves into the house, the white neighbors panic. Interested real estate people then approach the white home owners and ask if they would like to sell. They usually do.

2. Interested real estate dealers contact homeowners in a solid white block and advise them that Negroes are about to buy homes in the block. This usually causes a panic and most of the whites agree to sell.

The Government also will attempt to prove that the 'blockbusting' technique induces panic selling of white homes at low prices and that the same homes are later sold to Negroes at higher prices.

All of this is being denied by the eight real estate firms in Memphis, several of them owned and operated by Negroes, who have been named in the Justice Department's 'blockbusting' suit. The federal suit charges that the firms engaged in inducing "panic selling" of residences in the Cherokee Heights subdivision.

In Washington, U. S. Attorney General John N. Mitchell said the suit charges the real estate firms with violating Title 8 of the 1968 Open Housing Law.

Asst. U. S. Attorney General Jerris Leonard, head of the Justice Department's civil rights division, said the Open Housing Law is designed to protect white as well as Negro homeowners from commercial exploitation and panic-selling based on racial prejudice, to preserve the stability of biracial neighborhoods, to prevent re-segregation and to provide adequate housing for all citizens.

Cherokee Heights, a two-block area near the intersection of I-24 and Lamar, has been integrated for over two years. The middle-class homes in the area ranged in value from $24,000 to $40,000.

The federal suit asks for court orders prohibiting the defendants from continuing the alleged practices and requiring them to take affirmative steps to correct the effects of the past unlawful practices alleged.

A Justice Department spokesman said it would be up to the federal court judge to decide on what the proper "affirmative steps" should be.

NEW MATERIALS FOR NEGRO HISTORY WEEK - A new kit of educational materials from Coca-Cola USA, which dramatizes how the black man's struggle for equal citizenship has aided all Americans, was unveiled in New York City during a recent preview showing for educators and the press. Although designed for year-round use, the kit, "Black Guardians of Freedom," is timely material for the National Negro History Week observance. It contains a sound slide film, record, teachers guide and other material including a student take-home study guide. Kelvin A. Wall, left, vice president and manager of the Market Development Department of Coca-Cola USA, is shown discussing the kit material with Dr. Charles H. Wesley, center, executive director of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, and Dr. C. Eric Lincoln, professor of social relations and philosophy at Union Theological Seminary. The kit is available through participating Bottlers of Coca-Cola. Dr. Lincoln is a former Memphian.

3 Students Arrested On Campus In Mississippi

ITTA BENA, Miss. - Three students at Mississippi Valley State College here, including two top student leaders, were arrested Monday of this week following a protest march and rally through the campus.

The two student officers arrested were Tyrone Gettis of Utica, the student body president, and Elligta McGee of Hattiesburg, vice president.

They were arrested by members of a beefed up security force of nearly 60 black policemen drawn from towns around the state.

A student boycott began last week and College President J. H. White ordered all students to be in their classes Monday morning or get off the campus. He said those who leave could come back when they are ready to attend classes.

The Monday arrests took place after more than 1,000 students assembled peacefully at a campus chapel.

Students began their boycotts of classes last Thursday. They marched to President White's home and again Saturday in support of their many demands. There are 30 demands, ranging from hiring a full-time campus physician to a student voice in the naming of campus buildings.

President White said several of the demands were reasonable and he approved them, while others were either "unrealistic or impossible."

Protesting students burned school pamphlets containing school laws after marching on the president's home Saturday. President White put the campus off-limits to outsiders last Thursday. Two of the campus security guards were reported injured Thursday.

Witnesses Are Active

After much preparation Jehovah's Witnesses of Circuit No. 12 Memphis launched their week of activity, Tuesday night Feb. 3, the special talk entitled "Living Happily Under Increased Kingdom Control" given by C. G. Thompson, district supervisor, set the stage for the following day. Five hundred and eighty-five were on hand for the opening talk.

Then momentum of activity increased as on Wednesday night some 813 persons attended City Auditorium to see the motion picture "God Cannot Lie."

There was a brief break in activity on Thursday, but on Friday night Feb. 6, 6:45 p.m., "The Sacrifices that Please God Assembly" commenced with C. G. Thompson given opening talk on theme.

Saturday morning brought 471 persons to the morning session to hear baptismal talk and then witness 14 new ones baptized.

Saturday evening program convened at 7:00 p.m. A high point of the evening program was "Accurate Knowledge Built Fine Ministers."

Sunday evening at 3:00 p.m. was the climax of the assembly and 1,312 heard Mr. Thompson give the widely advertised talk "Withstanding The Pressures of Our Days"

CME Post To O. T. Peeples

A Memphian, O. T. Peeples of 142 Rembert, has been appointed financial secretary of the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church succeeding the late F. T. Jeans of Jackson, Tenn., who held the position for 23 years.

The announcement was made by Bishop L.J. Claude Allen, chairman of the board of finance of the general church which has a membership of more than a half-million.

Mr. Peeples has been a member of the board of trustees of Lane College, Jackson, Tenn., for 12 years and served as secretary since 1962.

He is a member so the trustee board of Rock of Ages CME Church where he served as Superintendent of the Sunday School for more than 30 years.

LAFF - A - DAY

Five Students To UN Confab

Five LeMoyné-Owen College students and two faculty advisors will be in St. Louis, Feb. 17-21, participating in the Midwest Model United Nations.

LeMoyné-Owen will represent Ethiopia.

The five students scheduled to make the trip are Mary L. Baptist, Charles Johnson, Mary Price, Alvin Clark, and Cynthia Anderson.

The two advisors are Charles Bailey, assistant professor of sociology, and John Leach, political science instructor.

The LeMoyné-Owen group will leave for St. Louis on the morning of Feb. 17. The first mock UN session starts Feb. 18.

Pre-Opening Tea At R-K-C

A pre-opening tea at the Riverview-Kansas Community and Day Care Center, 1424 Florida Street, will be held at the center this Sunday, Feb. 15, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Mrs. Bessie Frazier, chairman of the tea, said visitors should enter the center from the Sherwood Avenue entrance. She said donations will be appreciated.

Mrs. Bessie Lawson is co-chairman of the affair.

Fete Honor Roll Students

The cafeteria staff at Prospect School prepared a special dinner for honor roll students at the close of the first semester.

Mrs. Beatrice Thomas, cafeteria manager, Mrs. Earline Bruce and Mrs. Alberta Harris wore mortar boards indicating higher education as a goal.

The students enjoyed barbecued chicken, potato salad, green peas, hot biscuits, strawberry short cake and milk. Honor students ate at a reserved table with green simulated lace cloth and melon and light pink poinsettias arranged in rich array around tall white candles.

The bulletin board displayed elementary tools of learning (paper, pencils, ruler and report card) for "today," and a mortar board and diploma for "tomorrow."

A huge placard extended congratulations from the staff. The lamp of knowledge, against a green and white tinselled background carried out the school colors.

Mrs. Mary R. Brooks, principal of Prospect, commended Mrs. Mollie Fields and Mrs. Lorraine Chandler for their unique artistic contributions and the cafeteria staff for the nourishing and beautifully prepared menu.

Negro History Week Underway At L-O

Dr. Helen G. Edmonds, Dean of the graduate school and professor of history at North Carolina Central University at Durham, will be the speaker for the special Negro History Week program at LeMoyné-Owen College. The program will be held Friday, Feb. 13, at 10:30 a.m. in C. Arthur Bruce Hall.

The program is also a part of the Centennial Celebration of LeMoyné-Owen College. Theme for the 1970 Negro History Week observance is: "The Fifteenth Amendment and Black America in the Century 1870-1970."

The Centennial of LeMoyné-Owen College is a part of the Centennial Decade, celebrating one hundred years of the American Missionary Association in educational institutions for Negroes. Theme for the American Missionary Association Centennial Decade is: "The Year of Responsibility - We are Called."

Dr. Edmonds holds the masters and Ph.D. degrees from Ohio State University and has done post-doctorate research at the University of Heidelberg, West Germany. She has served several commissions under auspices of the United States Department of State, by presidential appointment, and by the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO. She was the first Negro woman selected to second the nomination of a candidate for the presidency of the United States when she seconded the nomination of President Dwight D. Eisenhower for his second term at the Republican National Convention in San Francisco, California in August, 1956.

Howard E. Sims is chairman of the Negro History Week Committee; and Dr. Juanita Williamson is chairman of the Centennial Committee. Dr. Charles L. Dinkins, development Director, is coordinator.

Launch Youth Job Project

The Youth Employment Project of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is sponsoring a Youth Employment Workshop Feb. 17-20.

The workshop will be held at the Sarah Brown Branch of the Memphis Y.W.C.A. located at 1044 Mississippi Blvd. The purpose of the workshop is to give job applicants age 18 through 25 an introduction into job application and interview techniques.

The greater part of the workshop will feature a wide range of job area training programs of one-half to one day duration taught by the personnel directors of many Memphis businesses. The most attractive feature of the workshop will be the awarding of jobs at the conclusion of each session.

Onzie Horne Jr. is the project director.

Gov. Ellington Supports 'Week'

The Tennessee State Conference of NAACP Branches requested and received a proclamation by Governor Ellington on Negro History Week.

The Proclamation reads, in part:

WHEREAS, Negro History Week will be observed in Tennessee and throughout the Nation during February and

WHEREAS, this annual observance is designed to bring about harmony between the races and acceptance by interpreting the history of one of the other, and

WHEREAS, the State of Tennessee is considered a leader among Southern States in the field of human relations, and

WHEREAS, this annual observance will afford the opportunity to reflect upon the contributions made of

Civil Rights Office Moves

WASHINGTON - The Southern Field Office of the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights has been moved from Memphis to Atlanta to provide closer contact with the states in its jurisdiction. Howard A. Glickstein, staff director of the Commission, announced this week.

The move was made possible by the recent creation of two new field offices, the Southwestern Field Office in San Antonio and the Mid-Atlantic Field Office in Washington, which will cover some of the area previously designated to the Southern Field Office.

Start Crusade In Memphis

A "Back to Church School" crusade has been launched by the Memphis Inter-Denominational Fellowship.

Mrs. Nettie B. Rogers of 1224 Fountain Court, founder of the Fellowship, said she is starting the crusade because she believes getting children back into Sunday School will solve many of the juvenile problems.

Mrs. Rogers said she and members of her organization are visiting churches throughout the city seeking help in making the crusade a success.

300 Housing Units Ready

A new Public Housing development soon will be ready for occupancy, built under a new concept in Memphis. The Walter M. Simmons Estates at Knight Arnold Road and Oakville Drive, is scheduled tentatively for final inspection Feb. 18. Shortly thereafter will follow the closing of the contract, and occupancy can start immediately.

Simmons Estates, a 300-apartment development, was built via the turnkey method; that is, a developer presents a proposal in competition with other developers to construct a given number of units advertised by the Housing Authority and, after his designation as the developer, proceeds to build the units as planned. Upon completion, the developer sells the apartments to the Housing Authority for a predetermined amount, providing the Housing Authority is satisfied the units have been built according to the approved specifications.

Named for Walter M. Simmons, late executive director of the Housing Authority, Simmons Estates features brick veneer townhouses, the first Public Housing units of this design. Included as standard installations are stainless steel kitchen sinks, refrigerators, stoves, and provision for resident-owned air conditioners. The units will be one, two, three, four and five-bedroom apartments with a majority having bedrooms located above the living room

300 Housing

Continued From Page One and kitchen area. J. O. Mabry, building Inspector for the city of Memphis, after having examined the development, said, "These apartments are some of the finest I have ever inspected. The materials and workmanship employed in the construction of these buildings are well above standard quality, and the buildings themselves should require little maintenance in the years to come." One factor considered in choosing a Public Housing site is the density of families per acre. Since the Simmons Estates is built on a 34-acre site, the density of 8.8 families per acre is well within the limit for this type of residential development. Ample playground space, six acres, will be provided, and the development is in close proximity to schools, shopping areas, churches and public transportation lines. The Housing Authority will provide services of all types to residents of the development. A full-time maintenance staff will be on duty to take care of any type of repair or replacement. The Social Services Department has a full range of community, recreational and health facilities planned which will be put into operation as soon as details of opening and occupancy are completed. The development will have a community building for use by residents and neighboring families for any number of activities. The organization of a resident association, which exists in all Public Housing developments, is also planned. Opening of Simmons Estates will bring to 5,355 the number of apartments operated in the Public Housing program in Memphis.

MY WEEKLY SERMON

By REV. BLAIR T. HUNT, PASTOR, MISSISSIPPI BVD. CHRISTIAN CHURCH, MEMPHIS, TENN.

"WHERE ARE YOU?"
TEXT: But the Lord called to the man and said to him where are you? GENESIS 3:9.

A startling question, a big question is our subject and text, "Where Are You?" Adam had sinned; Eve had sinned; They tried to hide from God, but all in vain. There is an old jubilee melody "Aint no hiding place down here." Then in those first days, now in the present day those words are grandly true. Equally true are the words of another melody, "He sees all you do; He hears all you say; my good Lord is writing all the time."

mands a response. Maybe the true answer is "I am in the caves of hatred and plotting." Maybe some are hiding behind the tree of jealousy and envy; maybe in a beer joint of drunkenness and reveling, maybe in a honky tonk.

The answer maybe, in the wicked city wasting lives' sustenance in riotous living, maybe in some den planning intimidations or skulking in some dark corner bent upon idle court in a reformatory. Where Are You? Maybe, having come to the end of crime's trail in some penitentiary.

Adam and Eve had defied the orders of God. God had created the Heavens and the Earth, peopling immensities with stars and plants, the moon and the milky way peopling the earth with planets and animals and then made man and woman. Man came with the image of God. He gropes for companionship and knowledge. In man's quest the diving image of God was marred by selfish and ambition. Then came lies and excuses, most excuses are lies. We find Adam and Eve naked in sin endeavoring to hide from God.

Adam sneaked away in false seclusion. His conscience made him uneasy. The disturbing question "Where Are You?" Came to Adam, a question from God.

To you and to me comes the same disturbing question "Where Are you" man, woman, boy, girl, "Where Are You"? The question de-

Robbery, Where are you, Youth? Maybe in some juvenile refusing to sing in the choir refusing to teach a Sunday School class. It seems you don't want God to find you. Let God find us ever eager and ready to accept responsibilities, Let God find in good places, in places of loving service. Let God find us creating Christian Homes, battling for righteous causes, working in churches, in character building and charity organizations.

Mrs. Lula White was hostess to the Ladies Community Club of Riverside Subdivision recently at her home 102 Kirk. Mrs. Fannie Clark, vice president, presided. Mrs. L. Crawford, chaplain, conducted the devotion and praise services. Report from the various committees were received.

After the business meeting a delicious repast was enjoyed by all. Other members present were Mesdames Rosalie Lee, Ester Lyons, Milas Watkins, Adeline Henry, Jessie Johnson, Amanda Kyles, Rosa Robinson, Minnie Gibson, Louise Smith and Elizabeth Adams who thanked the hostess for her hospitality and will entertain the club the next meeting at her home 198 Kirk Ave. Feb. 10, at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. T. J. Colston, president; Mrs. Milas Watkins, secretary; and Mrs. K. W. Green reporter.

Where Are You? Let it not be in hiding. Let it not be in darkness. Let it be in the light, busy in the open thrilling to the bracing air. Say, "I am walking and talking with Jesus my Saviour." May we add another question: "Have you been in the garden with Jesus alone with the Saviour in prayer?"

Lakeview School News

Lakeview School has had a variety of activities this past week. On Tuesday, February 3, the Shelby County Board of Commissioners presented the program "Operation Teenager." Several convicts from the penal farm told of their personal experiences. They gave young people reasons for not becoming criminals.

The Basketball team, Lakeview Pirates, played two games one on Wednesday and the other on Thursday. The Wednesday game was home game with the Capeville Musketters. The Pirates were defeated with a score of 47- to 54. The most points were scored in the second quarter. Larry Wells was the high scorer. Larry Fryson was the next highest scorer. The "B" team also lost! The cheerleaders did an especially good job helping the boys even in the losing moments of the game. On Thursday the Pirates played the Levi Warriors at Levi. Lakeview won that game with a score of 45- to 29. Larry Mason, the highest scorer of that game shot a total of 23 points. David Knox came in second, scoring 10 points of Larry Fryson did an outstanding job getting rebounds, with a total of fourteen to his credit. The "B" team played a short period in the game. At this game the cheerleaders gave their wholehearted support with cheers like Pep, I Got That Feeling and Victory.

On Thursday night, February 5, the P. T. A. presented its annual Founders Day Program. The program began with the Lakeview Choralliers, composed of a group of junior high students, singing "Lift Every Voice and Sing." This was followed by a prayer by Mrs. Anna Willis, Mrs. Irene A Thompson, program chairman, introduced the speaker, Rev. J. L. Netters, city councilman, who made a talk on the founders of the P. T. A. He said that the group who founded this organization was composed of concerned parents and dedicated teachers. William Yarbrough, a student, explained the P. T. A. emblem. Mrs. Fanny Britton gave the history of the P. T. A. The purpose of the P. T. A. Birthday Gift was given by Mrs. Mae Hyden. A collection was taken for the extension work of the P. T. A. Mr. James Wilson, president, presented all the past presidents.

Lakeview School held an investiture ceremony Jan. 23, for the Girl Scout Troop sponsored by the school. Each new member of the Cadette, Junior and Brownie group received a pin from the group leader. The welcoming ceremony was opened by singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The program included lighting a candle for each Scout Law when it was recited, group singing, and testimonials by new members on why they wanted to become a member of their group. The program was concluded with "Taps."

Mrs. Climmie Pittot and Mrs. Ruth Hipes are leaders

HOWARD, Chicago couple mentioned in the first of my column, were our house guests last week. They arrived here from their home in Chicago, and went directly to the Universal Life Insurance Company's Stockholders' meeting. I went to the doctor and back and found them still meeting. Coming in we all took a rest before starting out of the evening...and this went until Sunday evening...There were many Memphians who have entertained and extended courtesies to the Howards and the Connors. The Howards will leave New York for Africa again March 31, where he will again go on a Safari. This is probably his 4th Safari in Africa.

In town last week for Mr. Harry Ratcliffe's funeral services were the deceased cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Williams; (he principal of a Clarkdale School Mr. and Mrs. "Beau" Spearman (she Mrs. Harry Ratcliffe's sister who came from Pine Bluff where both work at Arkansas State College, and Robert Ratcliffe, Jr., came into Memphis earlier in the week from Washington, D. C. before his grandfather passed away.

MRS. FRED RIVERS is back from her home in Ft. Worth where she spent time with her father who underwent surgery.

Memphians who went to Nashville for the funeral service of the late Mrs. Gassaway (mother of two Tennessee State Professors Dr. Sadie Gassaway and Miss Pearl Gassaway all Memphians) were Mrs. Juanita Turner, Mrs. Bernice Howard, Mrs. Henne Jenkins, Miss Ada Ateman and meeting the Raynor sisters in Nashville was their sister, Mrs. Marlene Raynor. Day who sent down from Detroit for the funeral...

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis and Dr. and Mrs. Vasco Smith are GRACIOUS TO VISITORS

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Lewis were host to the above-out-of-town guests and their hosts (only) at the new revolving Embers (the World's revolving restaurant...To say that dinner was delicious and the atmosphere again had much warmth...coming from all four of the hosts.

Before going to Club Embers, we stopped off that magnificent South Parkway residence of Dr. and Mrs. Vasco Smith for Cocktail Again guests marvelled over the beauty of another beautiful residence.

Dinner at Club Embers went on (a gourmet dinner...wines and everything that produced the fine sirloin steak.

Looking especially good was the charming Ruth Lewis in a long cocktail frock and a full length mink that features a back belt...and she was assisted by her outgoing husband Herbert who is life of any party.. After dinner, we went to the Lewis's pretty Vance Avenue Town apartment...here there were desserts, coffee and after-dinner liquors. Going out were the Howards; the Connors, the Smiths, the Lewises, the Atkins (Leland) the Walkers (Maceo) their guests, the Jewel Connors...and the Jim Hulberts.

KLONDIKE PTA PLANS PROGRAM

The PTA of Klondike Elementary School will present a Founders Day program in the school's cafeteria Sunday, Feb. 15, at 3 p.m. "Home, School and Church" will be the subject of an address by Elder Blair T. Hunt, longtime educator and minister. Mrs. Geraldine Strickland will give the history of the PTA. The public is invited. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Bernice Eubanks is the PTA president, and Miss Anna Jones, principal of the school.

In the social news last week was the walker-Kelso family who entertained Mr. and Mrs. A Maceo Walker compliment out-of-town guests at brilliant cocktail dinner-dancing party.

Dr. and Mrs. T. R.M. Howard-Mrs. Grover Matthew, Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Jewel Conner, N.Y.C. And Mr. and Mrs. G. W.S. Ish, Little Rock Ark. Honorees.

The much talked about social whirl of the season was the brilliant Cock-tail Dancing Party given last week by Mr. and Mrs. A. Maceo Walker on Friday evening entertaining for Dr. and Mrs. T. R. M. Howard, (he a prominent Chicago surgeon and both members of what I would call the "Jet Set"...Mrs. Grover Matthew, Mrs. Walker's sister who is Chicagolan and a State supervisor over social workers in Illinois who came from Atlanta where she was on business last week...Mr. and Mrs. Jewel Conner, a prominent New York City Business-couple who have often had the Walkers as honorees.

Also sharing honors were Ms. Walker's parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. W. S. Ish (he for years known as one of the few Yale Medical School graduates and a prominent Little Rock Surgeon who is known nation-wide and that pretty Ersell who drove over for the party.

The event began at 7 in the evening and moved on smoothly until 2 A.M... Scene of the lovely event was the Maceo Walker's South Parkway mansion--where more than 70 guests poured in on time.

Guests mingled in the formal living and dining rooms admiring the beauty and moved on the back down to a split level area (a Cabana that fronts on their long veranda and swimming pool) made bright

More About History Week

Worldwide interest is focused upon the 44th Annual Observance of Negro History Week. Thinking and understanding are pivotal with the emergence of African Nationalism, global freedom crusades and the unprecedented crusade for human dignity throughout the universe.

Negro History Week is not a partisan cause. It behooves every nationality to probe historical background, the cultural precepts, the agonizing struggle and the unending search for a place in the sun, not only for his minority, but people of color, despair and hopelessness, everywhere. It will not be easy to obtain this fulfillment. Yet, somehow, somewhere over a distant rainbow, there is a truth that beckons people long for, a revitalization, an idealism, which make the Negro dig deep into his past.

It is truly written that a nation, or a race for that matter, who has no knowledge of his background of Heritage, will be scuttled by the awesome challenge of the future.

Negro History Week is a source of joy and inspiration. Heartfelt consideration is being given to its observance people and organizations in all walks of life, notable education, the professions, political and civic organizations, who are promoting interest into the problems of Black Americans, their contributions and potential in the growing hope that there will be atonement and recognition of their just impact upon life in the Home of the Brave and free.

Rugged the road the Negro trod, but despite difficulties he is optimistic about his future. Our traditional celebration of Negro History week gives challenge to the possible dream.

T. M. Alexander Jr., Goes Higher

It is with pleasure that we announce the escalation of our fellow townman, T. M. Alexander Jr., Atlanta Real Estate and stock broker, to the position of Assistant Commissioner for Home Mortgages of the Federal Housing Administration. Thusly, it is seen that another home boy has gone places in this urban rehab. program.

In recent months he served as a consultant to HUD. He served with Courts & Co., an Atlanta investment firm.

He previously was vice-president of Alexander & Associates, founded by his father. Both Alexanders have long been associated with civic and business affairs of this community and state.

All Georgia and Atlanta are proud of his advancement and will watch with avidity his strides in this technical field he so ably explores.

The New South Seen

We regretted the incident following the naming of former Secretary Dean Rusk, a teacher of international law at the University of Georgia. Dean Rusk had a long career in the cabinet of President Johnson in Washington and it was felt that he would bring grace and dignity to that honored administration.

While this appointment was pending, it gave time for much of the hatred and bitterness of the old South to come out.

He finally fell in more tolerant hands and was named to the Samuel H. Sibley Chair of International Law.

Now it happens that another snag was waiting at the meeting of the General Assembly.

It is said that the matter will come to surface in a strike in an attempt to cut $20,000 from the University budget, the salary the system would pay Rusk.

This attempt was made but it failed miserably. So it appears the New South is having its way.

St. Valentine's Day

The origin of Saint Valentine's Day is shrouded in mystery and controversy but it is derived from Roman custom and others. The young lad or lass giving their "special" a special Valentine in 1970, however, cares little about the origin of the tradition, which involves no less than three saints.

What is appreciated by today's youth is that the day has become a sacred one for lovers over all the Christian world. It is a day to remember that special person, a day to show the love one feels and often seldom reflects in today's world, for both young and old.

Love, the historians have long decreed, is the most powerful of human influences. It is also the most admirable, rewarding and fulfilling—and pleasurable—in case any reader has forgotten. And it is good to remember this on Valentine's Day.

Minis & Doom

Much time is wasted by listening to others' talk.

The jealous woman is a many-splendored thing.

Fast cars and disability insurance somehow go together.

The less work some laborers perform the more pay they expect.

Investing is closely akin to hope and faith in one's country.

Sincerity is the difference between writing and putting down words.

CANCER & CHICKENS
Washington—A government panel has recommended a change in poultry inspection standards to limit condemnation to chickens that might look diseased. Agriculture Department officials say the basis for recommendation is the failure of recent experiments to show poultry cancer viruses present any danger to humans.

In South Africa, most modern and industrialized of African countries, the mini skirt is ruffling the feathers of more conservative citizens, as it is in other lands.

But in South Africa a nationwide campaign is in progress—to ban the mini. Leader of the effort is Gert Yessel, quoted as saying mini skirts can lead to "forbidden deeds." He also reportedly blames them for earthquakes and the stock market slump. Yessel believes God is punishing the people with a draught, earthquakes and lower stock market prices, because females are wearing their skirts so high.

BEST DRESSED MEN
New York—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, evangelist Billy Graham and Liberace have been listed by the Fashion Foundation of America as among America's 13 best-dressed men. Britain's Prince Charles topped the foundation's international society category.

BRASS TACKS

By Thaddeus T. Stokes

OF THIS KIND

Nearly everyone dreams with a nostalgic feeling of loss of the days when much of the United States was an untouched wilderness. These dreams are the basis of present-day efforts of conservationists to stop the clock so far as remaining wild areas are concerned.

Many conservationists fail to realize that there is no way to stop the clock in conservation matters any more than in other aspects of our lives. In fact, stopping the clock would be a disservice to true conservation. The pressure of population leaves no alternative but to move ahead with the circumstances into an era of wise use of our lands and forests, both for recreation and the business of living.

In a way, this is the message of a fascinating book, entitled "Epiaph of the Giants," whose author, J. Larry Kemp, tells the story of the most devastating conflagration of 20th Century America—the great Tillamook fire that in 1933-laid waste to 600 square miles of the Western Oregon Coast-mountains.

It is a heart-stopping account of a disaster that made the Chicago fire of 1871 seem puny by comparison. In a single 20-hour period, from August 24 to 25, in 1933, the raging inferno destroyed more than 22-billion board feet of prime timber. In a single holocaust, to use the words of the author, "The fire blew up! It blew 40,000 feet straight up!" Timber destroyed represented the production of all the lumber, shingle, lath and pulp wood mills in the United States for a full year in the early 1930's.

The lesson of this grim story is simple: Much of the burned area was an untouched wilderness. There were no roads, no way for fire fighters to get into it, yet the encroaching activities of men, loggers and campers were responsible for the fire.

Today, with the enlightened forest management of the larger timber companies, we should never again see a catastrophe of this kind. (2-12-70)

WORLD OF RELIGION

By Louis Cassels
UPI Religion Writer

Pope Paul VI once again has raised grave doubts as to how far he's willing to go in sharing authority with the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church.

Last October at a meeting of the World Synod of Bishops in Rome, the Pope indicated he was ready to accede to demands from the bishops for a bigger voice in the government of the church.

This week, however, he bluntly served notice on the Dutch hierarchy that the question of priestly celibacy cannot even be "put into discussion."

VETO FORESEEN

That would seem to mean he plans to veto proposals by bishops of many countries that the celibacy issue be placed on the agenda for consideration at the next meeting of the World Synod of Bishops expected to take place in the fall of 1971.

If that is indeed the Pope's intention, it will come as a sore disappointment to bishops who had thought they were promised the right to propose matters for discussion by the synod.

The celibacy issue, in itself, seems less important to many bishops than the underlying question of whether they have "co-responsibility" with the Pope in formulating policies for the worldwide church.

The Vatican Council in its famous doctrine of "collegiality" asserted that the bishops are the Pope's partners in decision-making, even though the Pope retains supreme authority.

Many European bishops felt—and some said out loud—that Paul VI violated the spirit of co-responsibility in 1968 when he failed to take counsel with the bishops before issuing his controversial encyclical forbidding any form of artificial birth control.

In the unusually candid sessions of last October's synod meeting, the bishops made clear to the Pope their ardent desire that he at least consult them in the future before taking a hard stand on a bitterly contested issue.

SUGGESTED BY DUTCH

Last month, the Catholic bishops of the Netherlands suggested that it might be "useful to the church" to put priestly celibacy on a voluntary basis instead of making it mandatory as it has been in the Western part of the church for 1,500 years.

The Dutch hierarchy's statement obviously was a move to get celibacy on the agenda of the next synod of bishops.

"Informed sources" at the Vatican told newsman the Pope was almost sure to agree to a review of celibacy by the synod, even though he had repeatedly made clear his own feeling that the rule should be retained.

But this week, to the surprise of at least some of his own aids, Paul VI said flatly that celibacy "cannot be abandoned or put into discussion."

The episode is sure to revive complaints, heard in ecclesiastical circles for a long time, that Paul VI vacillates between an apparent willingness to allow more democracy in the church and a desire to reassert papal authority.

It also will revive speculation, especially in Western Europe, that "the Hamlet Pope" may preside over the greatest schism in the church since the Protestant Reformation.

Time is fleeting, but not for planning. In case you didn't know the 20th modern Olympic which will be held in Munich, Germany, and in this era of Maddox-provokes white supremacy and chauvinism, it is quite a flashback to the games in Berlin, in which Jesse Owens, so forgettably disproved those racial myths.

When I visit the West Hunter bistros, and listen to the voice of the people there is a frequent echo to wit: "Lay it on the line Jack, and 'Tall it like it is.'"

I caution my friends to the extent of saying "the most dangerous weapon in the World is the truth". Most of the time I come close to it! Yet, no one can deny that President Nixon Texas, yes! Penn State, No! is sports-fan. —Forgive: him, Lord! Nixon awarded the University of Texas the National Football Championship, before the season was over and no one to date has been able to override his veto.

I told Joe Paterno, head coach at Penn State, this before he made his 2-surprise visit to the 100 Per Cent Wrong Club All-Sports Dinner, as if it had not already been pre-arranged, but that's the way it corral them these days.

REMEMBER This Fact Finding — President Nixon has issued a special proclamation to the U. S. delegation to the International Olympic Committee meeting in Switzerland to bid for the 1976 Olympic site for either Denver or Los Angeles.

The Chief Executive's proclamation said the 21st modern Olympiad is to be held in the year 1976, a year in which the United States of America is to celebrate its bicentennial when this nation will be reaffirming principles that have much in common with the Olympic games. He added "I hereby pledge that the United States will take every appropriate measure to insure the entry and full participation of all authorized delegations.

FIGURING- THE DRAFT

The emphasis swung more toward defense in the 1970 professional football draft, even though the number of offensive players outnumbered the defensive prospects 228 - 198 overall...For one thing, - six teams --twice as many as in 1969 --drafted more defensive players than offensive... For another, for the first time a defensive position led all other positions. Out of the 442 players selected, 78 are listed as prospects for the defensive backfield. It was the first time that running backs had not led the list. Last year, the RBs lead the DBs 71-69. This year 63 running backs were selected. The overall breakdown by position was: 78 defensive backs, 63 running backs, 50 wide receivers, 48 line-backers, 39 tackles, 37 defensive tackles, 35 defensive ends 29 guards, 22 tight ends, 16 specialists (kickers and/ or punters), 13 quarterbacks, and p2 centers...Each of the 26 teams drafting selected at least one defensive back, one wide receiver and one linebacker. Every team except Chicago selected at least one running back...Altogether, 192 colleges and universities were represented compared to 180 in the 1969 draft. The leading schools were Grambling and Southern California, each with 9 prospects; Nebraska, Penn State and UCLA with 8, Michigan with 7, and Kansas State, Oklahoma, Purdue, Southern U. and Tennessee with 6. In 1969, Notre Dame led with 11 followed by Texas A & M with 9. This year Notre Dame players were selected while 4 were chosen from A & M.

The Helms Hall Major League Basketball Hall of Fame elected five members for 1970 Richie Guerin, Sam Jones, John Kerr, Willie Naulls, and Bill Russell. This brings to 26 the number of NBA stars so honored since 1960.

STEPS IN MAKING MOTION

In order to make a motion and dispose of it, the following steps must be taken.

1. The member stands and addresses the chair.
2. Another member seconds the motion.
3. The member makes his motion.
4. The presiding officer states the motion to the club.
5. Discussion takes place upon the main motion.
6. A vote is taken upon the motion.
7. The chairman announces the results of the voting. (Usually, he says "the motion is carried, or lost.")

In step five, the chairman says, "Is there any discussion on the motion?"

"IF YOU DON'T WEAR A HAT TONIGHT, YOU'LL GET CHILLED TO THE BONE!"

ABOUT A BOOK

By Mrs. Bertha Campbell

To be well dressed one needs more than a dazzling design and a lovely fabric; the key to that fashion-plate look is proper fit. And who can make your clothes fit better than you? For fashions, for fun, for economy, millions of modern American women sew at home. It's "the thing" to wear hand sewn clothing and books help you "do your thing" at the sewing machine.

"How To Make Clothes That Fit and Flatter," by Adele Margolis is the fourth volume in the basic home sewing library by this well known sewing teacher. Fitting is an art, and with the aid of this book, it is an art that may be attained by every home sewer. Knowing how and where a garment should fit is half the battle. Knowing what to do when it doesn't is the other half. Armed with this book, the battle is very easily won.

This book may be found at the West Hunter Branch Library.

Other books include: the "Singer Sewing Book," by Gladys Cunningham, "The Complete Book of Tailoring," by Adele Margolis; and "Sew For Your Children," by Mary Johnson. These books were all written for that special breed of women who like to sew, for in them the creative urge takes on unique forms. So Sew!

Hank Aaron Opens New Restaurant

Are Old Drivers' Tales True?

Did you ever rub onion on your windshield to keep it from fogging?
Or put pennies on battery terminals to hold down corrosion?
Or let air out of tires when you were stuck in sand, mud or snow?

Or coast with the car out of gear to save gasoline?
As long as there have been automobiles, people have been coming up with such odd-ball solutions to their car problems.
Many of these remedies are so well-known and so widely used they are practically folklore. But do they really work?

It is hard to disagree with the horse sense of so many old drivers, but experts do not recommend any of the above practices.
Not that they are completely useless. All of them have some value, if no other remedy is available. In most cases their use is ruled out by undesirable side effects.
For example, letting air out of tires will often help you get unstuck, especially in loose sand, but unless you have some way to put the air back in the tires immediately, you may cause damage that would cost more than calling a tow truck.
B.P. Goodrich experts say thousands of tires are ruined every year by the practice of "bleeding tires."
"Bleeding" is the word tire men use to indicate the practice of letting air out of tires for any of several reasons... to make the car ride smoother, to keep the wheels from sinking too deeply in soft ground, or to reduce pressure in hot tires after

SAFER CLOTHING

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans has ordered a notice placed in the Federal Register indicating that new or revised standards of flammability may be established for children's sleepwear, underwear and dresses. Data gathered by government agencies has shown that children under 6 years of age are injured more frequently from clothing fires than most other age groups.

VON BRAUN'S NEW POST

Dr. Werner von Braun, the German-born space rocket scientist, has been moved from the nation's rocket development center at Huntsville, Ala. to a planning job in the space agency's headquarters. Von Braun's appointment as deputy administrator for planning for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration became effective immediately, NASA administrator Thomas O. Paine said.

Old Taylor Presents Ingenious Americans

Charles Richard Drew (1905-1950)

He found a way to save lives by saving blood.

When someone needs a couple of pints of blood for a transfusion, his doctor simply telephones the local blood bank, and the proper type and quantity will be there in minutes. We take this for granted.

But what most of us don't realize is that only twenty-five years ago this simple phone call was impossible.

It was not until 1941 that Dr. Charles Drew, then director of the British Blood Plasma Project, introduced the revolutionary idea of a central depository for blood—a blood bank.

Drew's next step was to improve the methods of preserving blood. And, as the first director of the American Red Cross Blood Bank, he supplied much needed plasma to the United States Armed Forces.

But it was not only in the banking of blood that Dr. Drew made his mark. In the 1930's, as a professor and head of surgery at Howard University Medical School, Dr. Drew trained and encouraged hundreds of young doctors. Under his strong and inspired leadership, the enrollment at Howard swelled.

Shortly after the war, Dr. Drew was named Surgical Consultant for the United States Army. Then, a year later, his career was brought to an abrupt halt by his untimely death in an automobile accident.

Dr. Charles Drew left an enduring mark in many fields. He had been an outstanding athlete and coach, a magnetic speaker, an inspiring teacher and dynamic administrator, a gifted scientist and, above all, a skilled surgeon.

Memorials and monuments are unnecessary, for that simple phone call serves as a constant reminder of the momentous contributions Dr. Charles Richard Drew made to the world.

$1 MILLION GRIDDER?

'I'd rather bargain down than up,' Carlos explains

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Olympic sprint champion John Carlos, the current world's fastest human, has his bargaining strategy all mapped out for his negotiations with the Philadelphia Eagles about becoming a pro football player.

play ball with the Eagles and if they want to play ball with him, "they can take it from there."

"I can't see starting at $400,000 and working up to $1 million," declares Carlos. "So I start at $1 million and work down."

Carlos, who was drafted by the Eagles despite never having played football at San Jose State College, made his strategy known during a luncheon here.

He said not playing college ball would help rather than hurt him.

"I played a lot of street ball and that's more valuable... you take more knocks and fall on that concrete without shoulder pads or any protection."

The 6-foot-3, 203-pound sprinter said he hoped to get his weight up to 225 for football.

"Then," he said, "anybody who grabs me, I'll just push him off."

Carlos told the luncheon that he has more going for him than other trackmen who have turned to football because his mental attitude is superior.

"I don't think I can be beat unless I want to be beat," he said. "There ain't no way in the world they're going to stop me."

He said this would not come easy, however, because pro football defenders are good at their job.

Carlos said he would rather be a running back than a receiver although he feels he has good hands and can catch the ball.

No Letdown For Frazier

From Press Dispatches Joe Frazier continued to bang away at his sparring partners Tuesday on the way to Monday's showdown heavyweight title bout while Jimmy Ellis, who has not fought in 17 months, took it easy again.

The contrast between Frazier's heavy drills in Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum and the light workouts by Ellis the 6-1 underdog, prompted questions by a group of visiting boxing writers.

"Jimmy is ready for the fight," said Angelo Dundee, his manager. "He has been training for 17 months. He will box Wednesday and Thursday and that probably will be it."

Ashe says U.S. shouldn't hit back at S. Africans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tennis star Arthur Ashe, denied entry to play in South Africa, said Wednesday he thinks it would be wrong for the United States to bar South African athletes from America in retaliation.

"My gut reaction, being a black American, is that we should keep all of them out," he told a Congressional Subcommittee. But upon reflection, Ashe said, he had concluded that to do so would be to "stoop as low" as South Africa had when it recently refused him a visa so he could play in South African Open in March.

"My social conscience, brought up the way I was, wouldn't allow it," he said. Ashe also commented: "A couple of their players are friends of mine. I wouldn't want them to suffer the indignities at the hands of my government that I suffered at the hands of theirs."

However, Ashe said he felt the U.S. State Department should exert all the pressure it can to bring about a change in policy by the white supremacist government in South Africa.

Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Africa, had said previously the United States should answer Ashe's exclusion by "excluding South African athletes such as (golf professional) Gary Player from entering the United States."

The congressman took issue earlier with Oliver S. Crosby, the State Department's director for South Africa, who had taken a position similar to that of Ashe.

Diggs warned there could be demonstrations in this country against South African athletes because of the Ashe incident. Crosby said that while the United States would not retaliate in kind, if the entry of a South African athlete would result in a threat to public safety, then a visa might conceivably be denied.

Diggs said that various sources informed him that demonstrations and protests might take place, and added this would not be surprising in view of the recent protest against South African athletes in other parts of the world. "These problems appear to be escalating, and other countries are developing a concern and nervousness over this matter," Diggs said.

night I saw the movie 'Goal' (the 1966 World Cup) five straight times when it was shown in the biology building at school."

Carter played little league baseball and midget league football and basketball while growing up in Macon, but he gave up sports in high school to concentrate on his studies.

"I liked playing the other sports, but I think soccer is much more enjoyable," Carter continued. "The game must be a great success in the future here. Just judge from what's happened in the past. Three years ago there weren't any kids' teams. Now there are hundreds of them all over the city. It's spreading every year, and someday soccer will be as big as football and baseball throughout the United States.... maybe even in Macon."

Macon's S. Cater Becomes Chiefs' 1st. American Native

The Atlanta Chiefs have signed their first American-born player, 22-year-old Sonny Carter of Macon, Georgia. Carter is a graduate of Macon's Lanier High School and was introduced to soccer when he entered Atlanta's Emory University in 1965. He started by playing intra-mural soccer for the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity team, and Emory soccer coach Tom Johnson asked him to try out for the varsity his junior year. Carter started every varsity game for Emory his last two undergraduate years and is now in his first year of medical school. "When I arrived in the United States three years ago, I didn't believe it possible for an American to be at the professional level so soon," Carter said. "I've learned to love the game by both playing and watching the Chiefs."

tremendous improvement in the standard of all amateur teams. Sonny has improved tremendously and has the potential to improve a great deal more. Although he is the only college player we have seen who is good enough to play pro, there are many high school youngsters who could conceivably sign at their graduation. "For the first time this year, in fact, European professional teams have sent scouts to Atlanta to look at high school players. "I'm just thankful and happy that I'm getting the chance to play for the Chiefs," Carter said. "To be honest, I had never heard of soccer before I came to Atlanta. In Macon, we wouldn't have known if it (soccer) was a vegetable or disease. But I've learned to love the game by both playing and watching the Chiefs. "I also watched films. One

Oglethorpe Routs Clark, 109 to 90

BY JAMES D. HEARN (WORLD SPORTS STAFF)

Basketball took on a new image in Atlanta collegiate circles Tuesday night when Clark and Oglethorpe tipped off a home to home series. A SRO crowd was on hand at the Samuel H. Archer Gymnasium to witness the first home game for Clark in the long series as the Stormy Petrels routed the C-C Panthers, 109 to 90.

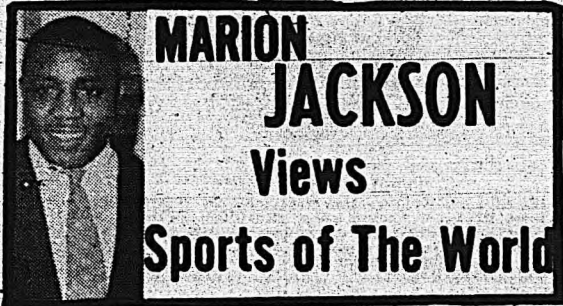

It may have been one of the best basketball games thus far in the center, carrying the rivalry of two AU schools. Points-for-points was the story in the first half and the first ten minutes of the second half, before Oglethorpe held on to a slim margin and increased it going down the home course.

The Petrels led at halftime, 50-41, but not before William Sheats, a product of Atlanta's Harper High, came through with the key baskets. The lead changed hands several times in the first twenty minutes of play, Oglethorpe was ahead after ten minutes of play, 21-18.

Oglethorpe did a good job in the first half in controlling Clark's number one shooter Tony Floyd, but he came on strong the second portion of the contest. Floyd ended the match as top scorer, hurling in 38 points, followed by Joe Etheridge, "Mr. Playmaker" who burned for 22 points. It could have been a bigger gap in the final score if Etheridge had failed to score.

MARION JACKSON Views Sports of The World

Dr. Edward B. Williams Honoree Sports desk notes tell that Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president emeritus, Morehouse College, and Dr. Edward B. Williams, chairman of the department of business administration of that institution, Dr. Wendell P. Whalum and the Maroon and White Quartet will be honored at the Sherman House, Feb. 21. In case you didn't know: President Richard M. Nixon has given his formal backing for the Stars and Stripes to hold the Olympic games in 1976.

I was angry as I walked through the streets of the Kenwood-Oakland community of Chicago. Angry because in this great country of prosperity and wealth, I found myself surrounded by destitution and deprivation.

This section of the "Windy City" is undoubtedly one of the worst inner-city areas in the nation and nobody seems to care except for those the system has labeled radical and extremist.

There are 65,000 people living in this area. Thirty thousand crowded into each square mile. At least two people live in every room and often there are two or three people sleeping in the same bed.

Most of the tenements do not have acceptable sanitation facilities—hot water, toilets and heat. They have poor lighting, falling plaster, peeling paint, roaches and rats. And for this discomfort the price is high.

The average monthly rent in other parts of the city is $88, but here amid broken curbs, uncollected garbage, condemned apartment houses, and open sewers, the average monthly rent is $100. Some of the residents call it "color tax."

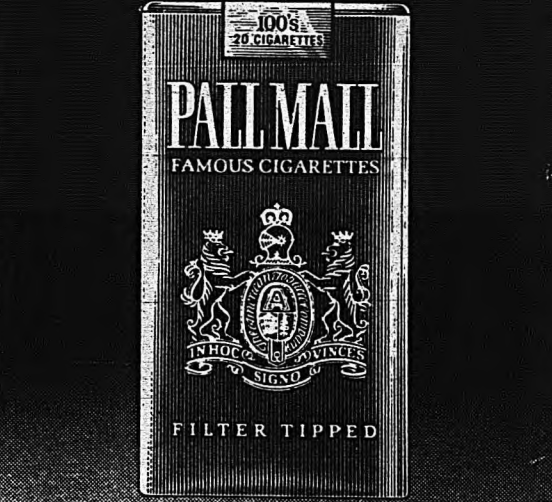

As Dr. Lester Breslow, president of the American Public Health Association, and I walked through these streets talking to people along the way my anger became bitter despair. This community of deprivation and poverty was a goldmine of exploitation for the grocer, the absentee landlord and even the Medicaid physician.

It's almost absurd to talk about good health to people who live in conditions like this, but I did.

One tiny, extremely nervous woman, told me how hard she tries to care for her two-year-old, 23-pound child. She said, "I just don't know what to do for him. I keep taking him to the doctors, but they can't find out what's wrong."

The mother and her five children live in a four room apartment where she pays $100 per month. As we left the building the stench of garbage filled our nostrils. Dr. Breslow and I marveled that at least the child had passed one of the most critical tests—living past his second week. About 45 of every 1,000 babies born in Kenwood-Oakland are dead by their second week.

As we continued our tour, I could not but help think—no wonder there are angry people in the streets. No wonder there are those who have not been moved by the most historic fest of the Century—landing a man on the moon. If a priority can be set and achieved for reaching the moon, it can be set for meeting the health needs of millions of disadvantaged Americans. "A hungry man gazes not at the moon but at his starving children," said one youth who has decided to do something about the conditions in Chicago's slums. To some people Fred Hampton, deputy chairman of the Illinois Black Panther Party, is an extremist. The system has made him so. But Hampton and the Party's Minister for Health, Ronald Sanchez, are doing something that Chicago's local health officials have not done. The Panthers opened a free medical center in September. "To maintain it," said Sanchez, "we went around collecting donations from medical and drug companies and asked doctors and nurses to volunteer their services. So far, we have more than 12 doctors and several nurses on the staff." In addition, he said, members of the Party are being trained as medical technicians and a free car service to and from the center is being provided. While I cannot agree with the separatist ideology of the Black Panther Party, there is no doubt that these young radicals are attempting to do what the establishment has failed to do. They are concerned. Indeed, if this type of concern, for the black, the poor, and the disadvantaged, had been exercised by local officials years ago, radical or extremist groups such as the Black Panthers and others could not survive today. Frankly, I'm glad they're there, because if they weren't, the already deplorable conditions would be worse. The health department as well as many of the other agencies for human services are brutalizing black people every day. This has to stop. How? By community participation and community control. The Kenwood-Oakland Community Organization (KOCO) is beginning to move forward on this front. Comprehensive neighborhood health centers, such as the Mile Square and the Martin Luther King, are getting more and more input from the community poor who know what it is to wait for hours for health care.
