ormer! Melrose "Darlings" Of MSU

Two young men who made basketball history at Melrose High School are now the darlings of Memphis State University. Larry Finch and Ronnie Robinson, both sophomores, are bringing up the boards and winning the applause and cheers of Memphis State fans.

Finch is sensational as a dribbler and sneaky point-maker and Robinson is a master of the backboard on defense. The basketball Tigers of Memphis State are something else this year and they are giving the fans everything they want to see. New basketball coach Gene Bartow believes in the runand-gun type of play and this is what the fans have wanted for a long time. The Tigers won their first two games and drew over 7,000 for the opener against California Dayis and more than 6,000 for the contest with South Dakota which was televised locally. The Tigers are attracting more black students and more black adults. The black students have set up a special cheering section, packed with jazzy 'soul' cheers. Some of the white fans are catching on and joining the black rooting section.

Needy Aidea By Porter Jr.

The Porter Junior High family, in cooperation with the Junior Red Cross and Home Economics Department of the school, produced 35 gift baskets. The students contributed the food for each basket and the Home Economics Department made sure that each basket contained a balanced Thanksgiving meal.

Prizes were awarded to the classes with the most outstanding basket at a program in the school gymnasium. The program had music by the band, the ninth grade Glee Club, The 7th grade music classes and a group called the "FABULOUS FIVE."

The highlight was a "playlet" entitled "It Sounds So Cheerful" done by members of the Junior Red Cross. The actors were: Jennifer Mosby. Carl McKinney, Percy Foster. Iris Williams Eva Johnson Valerie Futch, Faith Johnson and Aunetta Morris.

Closing remarks made by the principal, Daniel Ward, with a note of thanks to the Student Council as the control body for the program and the staff and students for a job well done with thankful-giving as a theme.

Subject "Silence

Text: 'To everything there is a season.... A time to keep silence, and a time to speak. Ecc. 3: 1-7

We preach on the subject "Prayer." But what about "Silence"? The one begets the other. In prayer god lends his ear and we talk to god, in silence god opens his lips and talks to us.

Some of the grandest mo-ments of my life and of your life too have been periods of silence...A silence broken only by the sound voices other than the human voice. In the early spring of 1919 I was in France. I found myself in a French Cathedral I can't find words to describe the silence there-in nor the beauty of the cathedral interior. There was deep silence. Here and there I saw a kneeling soul in apparnt prayer...not a sound was heard. It seem god was there an in the deep silence there god spoke to me

In the deep hours of the night when all others in the household were fast asleep, I have sat musing in front of the old fire place...while the embers made fantastic figures, only the tick-tock of mother's clock on the mantal spoke to me. In spring, in full summer, In ripened autum, or when the earth is mantled with a garment of stainless white...Out in the country alone and in silence and yet not alone for then and there god talked with Pilate said to him "whence art thou?" only silence. Jesus spoke not a mumbling word. To have spoken would have invited other questions and insults.

Let us give to ourselves ... every day a period of silence in addition to our prayers, Be alone, be quiet, perhaps god... will speak to us at least our souls will be exalted, Keep a period of silence, relax our muscles, say to our brains 'You are now in the presence of God. Pretty MISS Sandra Sandrdge was named Miss Social Ball Friday evening when the ontest ended with a Bang... and the fashionable Showcase the very first persons to be seen were Mrs. Maxine Smith Executive Secretary of the local NAACP. ... Velma Lois Jones, chairman of the contest for two consecutive years and both were given several ovations for outstanding work. Both looked especially good. and sat together at a front table....Also seated with the two ladies who led the show were Mrs. Charles Tarpley who was M. C. for the oc-casion. He presented both of them to the audience...Mrs. E. Young and Mrs. Elsie Bailey who also worked untireingly. along with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Weathers and Mr. Jesse Turner, all known as NAACP itself in Memphis. Others who came in to sit with the workers were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis, Jr. and much in evidence were Dr. Fred Rivers and Mr. Clifford Miller, owners of the "showcase". Two parents that I noticed early were Mrs. Roderick Diggs and Mr. Joe Walker ... and Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Thomas and their pretty daughter.

Other Contestants presented (and they were all unusually pretty) were Brenda Diggs, Bernice Wade, Sandra Sandridge, Katherine White, Janet Walker, Freda Williams Doris Durham, Cleotha Powell Joan Pratt, Frances Regina

The Commercial Appeal did long stories on two outstanding Black educators, Dr. Joseph Westbrook and Mrs. Callie Stevens, newly appointed area superintendent at the Memphis City Board of Education who were in Chicago last week studying the Chicago School System. We are all proud of both executives who as deserving of the top position that they hold. Dr. Westbook grew up in Memphis and Wood stock and came through the ranks,...LeMoyne Colllege...a City teacher Coach Asst. Principal then a Supervisor before he received the a rea head. Mrs. Stevens (a brilliant and attractive addition to anything) came to Memphis from Nashville. She first taught at BTW...later becoming a city principal. I would say that she is a giant of a person. Both Callie and command respect. She too loves sports, especially Boating now as she has a boat, and is a most effective

BLACK EXPO Flamboyantly dressed in tight maroon colored leotards, sporting a yellow fringed vest, a high floppy orange hat, a flowing, floor - lenth orange cape, and leopard skin boots, Enterprise (STAX) recording star Issac Hayes strolled on stage at the Southern Christian Leadership Conference-Deparation Breadbasket Black Expo at Chicago hugh and drafty International Impni-theatre. He swept off the big floppy hat with a flourish, kelp prayerfully on the floor facing the standing - room only audience, and as the brightly off his big bald head, the colossal audience as one roared its delight ... and I quot Stax.

That opening gesture started the crowd eating out of his hand and he kept them at it for more than two hours of electrifying performance dur ing which he sang, shouted, pleaded, groaned, rapped, whispered and moaned through some of his most popular songs: "By The time I get To Phoeniz". "I don't know What to do with myself," I stand accused, walk on by and others.
As Ike finished, the audience explored into a crasing roar of approval that neraided Hayes performance as among the best... If not the best of the five day affair that featured some of the nations top notch artists. Haves who is also Senio Vice Preident of Production (enterprise of the Memphis Sound) was backed by his female trio and the Issac Hayes Move ment Orchestra directed by Dale Warren.

Hayes spoke glowingly of Expo and how it has "created a brotherhood that all Black people sould be a part of," and he was joined on stage by Breadbasket's dynamic and youthful director the Rev. Mr. Jesse L. Jackson (who records on the Respect. Stax label ... and comedian Flip Wilson who was emces of the evening.... Later Haves was mobbed as the Stax Records exhibition booth while augographing pic tures for fams.

LOS ANGELES: After her ten-day song session at the famous Los Angeles nightfamous spot, P. J.'s. Carla Thomas, daughter of Rufus, Thomas, decided to extend her stay permanently.

The lovely Memphis Queen has delighted audiences coast to coast on television specials and Stax recordings for many years and has now decided to try her hand at acting.

Carla, who used to sing with the late Otis Redding, and who appeared on television with Sam and Dave. recently racked up to acclaim from cities when she sang at the Royal Box of the Hotel Americana in New York, at Chicago's Master Kelly's, at the Village Gate in New York Boston's Sugar Shack and at the Carter Baron Theatre in Washington.

Last year she and singer loe Tex made an exciting European show tour together, making headlines whereever they appeared.

Her appearance in Los Angeles is not her first, "I was out here not too long ago touring with the Temp-tations, "she said "That's when those rumors got started about me and Dennis Edwards of the Tempts. He is a darling fellow, the apple of many girls' eyes, but to me he has always been a grand good friend."

The pretty Miss Thomas did not rule out romance altogether, however. She admitted she's being courted by another special fellow who, like Dennis Edwards, is from Detroit.

Says Carla, I'm currently going through a lot of tests and grooming for some television work and motion pictures..... something not just in song but in drama.

Miss Thomas majored in English and looks back on several stunning years at Tennessee State University and Howard University she also did some acting at both universities. But for the time being, Miss Thomas is a singer. And that's the way the public loves her, a witness to the big sales of her latest Stax album "Carla Thomas Memphis Queen." She's alreadly lined up to do repeat TV appearances with Mike Douglas Johnny Carson, Dick Vacette and Barbar McNair.

MEMPHIS. Vocalist Rufus Thomas will be doing the Funky Chicken, The Dog and the Push and Pull Through out England, France and Germany during his forth coming European tour from January 15 to February 17. Thomas. who has created trends with his Stax recordings of "Do the Funky Chicken" and - "Walkin The Dog," has just released The Pull."

Father of vocalist Carla Thomas, who also records for Stax Rufus represents 40 years of Memphis Soul. The 54 year old entertain has per formed since he was fourteen He has been a singer, comic. songwriter, talent show director, master of ceremonies and disc jockey during his lenthy show business career.

Redio Station WDIA in Memphis will give Rufus a month long leave of absence so that his many European fans can enjoy him in-person.

I told Carla Thomas that she had many fans in Europe gasoline prices if industry and labor did not do something about them.

Only a few days ago the President sold he thought the United Auto Workers contract recently agreed upon was inflationary.

While Pres. Nixon warned both business and labor leaders about inflationary contracts, he said "Nothing has done more to help people throughout the world than the private economic system." This brought applause.

The warning by Pres. Nixon to labor and contractors was timely. He said "Unless the industry wants government to intervene in wage negotiations on federal profects to protect the public interest, the moment is here for labor and management to make their own reform."

Hitting specifically at construction wages, the President said. "When construction wage settlements are more than double the national average for all manufacturing, at a time when many construction workers are out of work, then something is basically wrong with that industry's bargaining process."

Some have suggested that Mr. Nixon Invoke price and wage controls but apparently he feels that things are too much out of balance to have a freeze at the present stage of wages and prices. We are inclined to agree.

Inflation is a menace to all, especially those with fixed incomes and nothing to live off except their savings which are decreasing in purchasing power everyday.

As we see it the general public and leaders of business, industry and labor must all join in checking infla-

The President knows the danger of inflation and we can and must help him meet this danger.

The Louisiana Purchase

The South, and the nation, was greatly enlarged through the efforts of President Thomas Jefferson in December of 1803. Jefferson saw his opportunity because Spain had transferred the Louisiana territory to France and France became engaged in war against England.

The French feared the English or Americans would seize the territory and were thus tempted to sell, but hard bargaining between James Monroe and French negotiators was necessary before a sales agreement could be signed, on April 30th, 1803. (The United States was to take possession on December 20th.) In the end, Napoleon Boneparte made the surprise decision to sell the whole territory, as sentiment for taking it grew in the Ohio Valley after New Orleans port was closed by the French to American trade.

The Rescue Effort

The effort to rescue U.S. prisoners of war in North Vietnam, over which a furor of protest from war critics arose, is a relatively minor move in the vast struggle in Indochina and while the North Vietnamese used their outrage to stir as much resentment as possible, the raid caused practically no casualties.

It is unfortunate that U.S. prisoners were not still at the camp and though Washington denies it, a leak of the plans from the South Vietnamese certainly seems possible; it is common knowledge that the Saigon regime is infested with Communist spies at all levels.

His critics lambasting him at the time, the President called the leaders of the rescue mission to the White House and decorated them for their effort. It was unquestionably a brave try and would have been a brilliant feat had the prisoners been freed. Militarily, the operation was an impressive display of mobility and sea and air coordination. Politically, the President is not likely to lose support for making an effort to rescue U.S. prisoners-of-war. On the contrary, he probably has the support of at least eighty per cent of the American electorate in having authorized the try.

Getting A Man

What kind of woman does the average male look for when thinking of marriage? That has long been the sixty-four dollar question for females the world over. At a recent woman's discussion meeting one expert, a male, summed up the an-

The average man wants a woman who is glad she is a woman, who wants to be feminine, not masculine. He wants a woman who enjoys caring for her home and takes pride in her cooking (and can cook) and who wants to rear a family and enjoys caring for her children.

From that description, it's obvious why so many American women go unmarried or are quickly divorced, or unhappy while sticking out an unhappy marriage. American females are conceded to be, the world over, the most aggressive, loud and masculine of all the world's females. A growing number seek to get out of the home, turn over the rearing of children and the home to servants and pursue a career in

Have You Invited Disaster for Christmas?

Christmas: a time for joy, for sharing, for peace, for love. Too many families, however, will not experience the good Christmas brings, for one care less act may induce tragedy Hence, Christmas for those un fortunate families will be re-membered not for what it was but for what it could have

While many hazards are apparent during the holiday season, none seem to be so prev-alent as electrical fixtures and flammable materials. For at no other time of the year are as many of these present in the home; consequently, thous-ands of people leave them-selves susceptible to disaster, whether it be loss of life or property.

In order that you might have a safer Christmas, Underwriters' Laboratories would like to offer the following safe ty suggestions. Follow each one, and you will be sure to make it a lasting, not last,

—Don't overload circuits.

—Don't work on light strings while plug is still connected. -Don't stretch string lights or extension wiring.

Don't use string lights or exions outdoors unless the attached label specifies you may do so.

Don't use flood lights on or near flammable material.

Don't place electrical fixtures within a child's accessibility. Do buy only UL labeled string lights and cords.

Do inspect all wiring insula-tion for possible deteriora-tion, especially if it has been styred for an indefinite per-

Do use rubber light socket gaskets where provided and replace if needed.

Do make certain lights are not loose in their sockets.

Do use UL listed, artificial trees wherever available.

While not seeking to minimize the importance of the preceding points, perhaps two should be stressed circuit overloading and physical inspections.

Basically, overloads are cre ated by placing more current on a wire than it can handle but not enough to cause a fuse to blow. At Christmas this is usually due to placement of too many bulbs on a single extension cord. Result: overheat ing; melting insulation; exposed wire; shock; electrocution or fire. Hence, always look for the capability of the wiring supplying the lighting.

Examination of the insulation is a minor task but one of major importance. Wiring that has been stored in attics or cellars for a long period of time can become vulnerable to the elements. Consequently, varying temperatures can easily affect the insulation to the point of being incapable of serving its protective purpose.

World air cargo shipments in the next fifteen years will increase by a factor of eighteen, the International Civil Aviation Organization predicts. Ten billion ton-miles will be flown in 1970; this will increase to nearly 180 billion ton-miles in 1985. U.S. manufacturers today build nearly 75 percent of the transport aircraft operated by free-world air carriers. The international preference for U.S. transports is based on proven records for operating efficiency. reliability and ease of maintenance, all backed by a global network of manufacturers' service organizations.

Productivity In Air Transportation

Air transportation is one of the few items on any one's shopping list today that costs less than it did 10 years ago. On the average the cost of air travel measured by cost per passenger mile — was 5.96 cents per mile in 1960. Today's average is slightly less. This contrasts dramatically with the Consumer Price Index, an important cost-of-living indicator, which rose nearly 30 percent during this same period.

There is little economic magic in this amazing record of holding the fare line. It is largely based on the single factor that commercial air transport manufacturers have produced a series of aircraft that have consistently lowered operating costs while improving efficiency, comfort and safety. In short, today the airlines can carry more passengers greater distances in less time with fewer aircraft. The airlines and the manufacturers have a word for this record - productivity.

Today we are in the spacious age of the wide-bodied jets — the Boeing 747, Lockheed 1011 and the McDonnell Douglas DC-10. The 747 already is in service. The other two models will enter service next year.

Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association, an organization composed of the scheduled air carriers, puts it this way:

"Because of its size, the 747 has introduced a whole new environment for the air traveler. Moreover, its design and configuration have permitted the use of highly sophisticated automatic flight controls and navigational aids. These devices promise to greatly enhance the safety of air transportation, while at the same time increasing the productivity which will help to maintain fare levels and provide better service."

The U.S. supersonic transport (SST), the next major step in air transportation, will be twice as productive as the current generation of wide-bodied jets because during a given time period it can carry twice as many people over a specific range.

And in air transportation, John H. Shaffer, Federal Aviation Administrator, states: "Productivity is the name of the game."

* * Women Who Made America Great THE New York Sun of Charles A. Dana cited one of

Sarah Josepha Buell Hale's achievements as inspiration to "women in the wanguard of progressive activities who may chance to need bucking up of their morale." Reference was made to Mrs. Hale's organizing women to pro-vide the funds and complete what Daniel Webster, Edward Everett and other distinguished male sponsors had not accomplished in seventeen years. That was raising of Bunker Hill Monument at Boston.

There are other monuments to Mrs. Hale's influence nationwide as editor of Godey's Lady's Book.

She was responsible for Thanksgiving Day's becoming a revered national institution. Although it had antecedents in Virginia in 1609 and Plymouth colony in 1621, there were virginia in 1609 and Plymouth colony in 1621, there were only sporadic observances, usually regional, until "the persistent effort of Sarah Josepha Hale" built up a favorable sentiment which found expression in a national Thanksgiving Day, "Although she had approached former Presidents with respect to setting aside a national holiday for praise and prayer, it was not until she appealed to Mr. Lincoln in 1863 that she found a sympathetic hearer," to quote the historian Dr. Louis A. Warren.

Louis A. Godey of Philadelphia hought Ladies Mannales.

Louis A. Godey of Philadelphia bought Ladies Magazine of Boston to obtain Mrs. Hale as editor of his, until then, ss successful periodical. Her husband's death when she was thirty-four, with scanty means of supporting their four children, turned her to writing—poems (including Mary's Lamb), fiction, essays—and to editorship.

Bertha Stearns summarized, "She guided the taste of thousands of women away from all indelicacy... setting forth the duties and privileges of women... continued her campaign for better education, urging that colleges of medicine and liberal arts be established for women, and that the teaching in such colleges be entrusted as farrely that the teaching in such colleges be entrusted as targely as possible to women."

The firmly established arbiter of fashion, etiquette, diet and healthy domestic architecture, landscaping, child-rear-ing continued active editorially until ninety. She retired satisfied that she had labored to elevate her country-women by providing in her magazine "a beacon-light of refined taste, pure morals and practical wisdom."

phis last year and conquered Alabama, and a team which has not been to a Bowl in years are paired in this gar's 12th Annual Liberty lowl Football Classic, Dec. 12 at 12:15 in Memphis Memorial Stadium.

Defending Champion Colorado a spectacular 47-33 winner over Alabama last year and Tulane, a 1970 Cinderella Team, which last played in a Bowl (The Sugar) in 1940, will provide the ingredients for what could be the best game in Liberty Bowl history.

The Buffaloes started the 1970 season fast with big wins over Indiana and Penn State However, they ran into trouble against Kansas State, Oklahoma, Missouri and Nebras-ka in Mid-Season, but swept past Kansas, Oklahoma State and 8th ranked Air Force to climax a successful season

The Bulldogs, who fought an uphill battle most of the night, came within a whisker of losing the game to a scrappy Voorhees team. With 0:28 seconds left the Tigers' Jackie Dinkins pulled Voorhees within one point of the Bulldogs on a layup making the Score 91-90.

Prior to that it appeared that South Carolina State was about to lock the game up with less than seven minutes left and the score 81-80. In the next three minutes the Bulldogs outscored Voorhees 8-3 and held an 89-83 advantage.

Then Dinkins converted a basket into a three-point play and later added another bas-ket to put the Tigers back into the game.

Dinkins, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, scored 36 points. However, his production was stepped up to the cockpit of the little 90-horsepower Mono-coupe. His eyes reflected his deep concern.

"I'll leave the airfield lights on tonight," he told the two men at the controls, "If you don't find Nassau you can come back here. Good luck."

If you can cast back in your memory to a time when airfields shut down at dusk, when, pilots had no way of checking wind drift, when two-way radio was still on the drawing boards and when a railroad track was a better navigational aid than most maps, you will understand the Miami manager's fears.

What won't be so easy to understand is the importance of this early flight to more than 19 million Americans, at least until you've pored over old newspaper clippings and photographs turning brown in tattered albums and talked to old-timers. Then everything becomes clear because the two pilots in the little Monocoupe were Negroes and they probably did more for their fellow blacks in the field of aviation than any other men in history.

. Those early aviators were Dr. Albert E. Forsythe, a physician then practicing in Atlantic City, N. J., and C. Al-fred Anderson, a farm boy with a burning desire to see pastures and hayfields looked like from up in the

Between them they made the first Negro goodwill flights across the American continent, to Canada and to half a dozen islands in the Atlantic and Caribbean, More significant by far, they opened the first aviation school for Negroes and helped train most of the early black flyers for the Army and Air Force.

Their backgrounds couldn't have been less alike. Dr. Forsythe was born in Nassau in the Bahamas, grew up in Jamaica and went to college in the United States. Then he got his medical and publichealth degrees at McGill University in Canada. Anderson was a poor boy born in Pennsylvania and raised in Virginia. When he tried to enter aviation schools he was po-litely told that Negroes had no future in the air. The Army told him the same

Anderson wouldn't give up. He scrimped and saved and borrowed until he could buy a plane of his own. Even then the needed instruction in flying. When help came it was from a man who had known too much tragedy himself.

Years before, Harry Thaw, the millionaire, had married Evelyn Nesbit, a beautiful chorus girl, and a son was born and christened Russell. Later Thaw killed Stanford White, the world-famous architect, who had become enimored of the chorine. Young Thaw and Anderson met at a Pennsylvania airfield and Russell agreed to teach young Anderson to fly. He did it while flying to Atlantic City on weekends to visit his mother, then running a night that in the seaside resort.

Five years after Lindbergh startled the world by flying bolo from New York to Paris,

Anderson won his transport license —

A FLIGHT INTO HISTORY—On a day in September 1934; two Black Americans became the first of their race to fly a plane into Nassau, Bahamas. Starting from Atlantic City, N.J., two pioneers — C. Alfred Anderson of Tuskegee, Ala. (next to plane) and Dr. Albert E. Forsythe (second from right)—flew in stages to Miami and then crossed the water to Nassau, landing at dusk. They were greeted as heroes by Nassau citizens, most of whose names have been lost to antiquity. For Dr. Forsythe, the welcome had a special warmth: he was born in Nassau.

mas and West Indies. In September, 1934, the two Negroes took off in a new plane, a Lambert Monocoupe 90, on the first leg of a proposed island-hopping internabefore them and natives of the islands were clearing flat fields, filling in ditches and moving telephone wires and poles. Newspapers in Nassau, Port-au-Prince, Kingston, St. Thomas, San Juan and other cities were issuing special editions as fast as a counterfeiter prints spurious bills.

Pan American flying boats had been landing in the water off most of these cities, but this was different. These flyers were black, as most of the inhabitants were, and exoltement built up to fever pitch with each new bulletin and telegram. In Nassau, capital and largest city in the Bahama

Islands, the populace was fed a steady stream of news about the goodwill flight. The government named a welcoming committee headed by the Lieutenant Governor and arrangements were made for parades, dinners and speech-

Dr. Forsythe and Anderson took off from Atlantic City on a bright late summer morning, an auxiliary gas tank fastened under the wing, headed for Miami. The extra gas seemed essential as there were not too many airports between the two cities. Over South Carolina the little Monocoupe ran into air turbulence. It didn't frighten the pilots at the dual controls but in the streets and, of course, it was enough to cause the tubing from the auxiliary tank to work loose. Suddenly a field-day, proud that two gas was spilling out and the - the first gauge on the cockpit panel

The night before the linemen had moved all the telephone poles in the area and shifted the wires.

"We made our approach but when we could see clearer we saw that the crowd had swarmed out onto the road near Fort Charlotte, where we had to land. We circled again and approached but the same thing happened again. They were sure excited but they didn't know much about planes. It was now getting dark and many cars turned on their headlights to help us. Someone must have sensed our danger because this time when we swooped down the people were out of the way. black men had flown to the Bahamas for the first time in a land plane; proud that race would be honored for the goodwill mission.

After the festivities in Nas-au the goodwill flight continued. Stops were made in Havana, where the plane landed at the military airfield instead of the commercial one and frightened the soldiers half to death: at Port-au-Prince and at San-

A cylinder burst over Santo Domingo and the pilots managed to land in a dry lake bed. It took weeks for a replacement to come from St. Louis. Then the mission went on, touching down at San Juan, St. Thomas, Grenada and finally at Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. By now the men were heroes everywhere they went. In their small bags they had welcoming scrolls, documents to prove they were honorary citizens of a half dozen cities and several handsome medals.

The next stop was to have been, Georgetown in British Guiana, now Guyana, but Forsythe's and Anderson's luck had run out. Trying to take off on a rough airstrip close to a range of high hills the plane was caught in a downdraft and tossed to the scratched, the physician unhurt, but the plane of which they, and thousands of other placks were so proud, was tangled, worthless mass of metal and fabric.

"I think it was God's will bilots. Empty roads and the Forsytne the other day, allevel ground inside racetracks provided occasional landing the flight. "We knew dusk that the plane crashed," said Dr. Forsythe, soberly. "The would fall quickly in the islands so we wanted enough time."

Brain Sensor and Transmitter May Assist Mental Patients

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. -A brain sensor and radio transmitter system, developed for space medical research with test pilots, appears to allow major improvements in diagnosis and treatment of schizophrenic mental patients.

Scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's: Ames Research Center, and at Agnews State Hospital, San Jose, Calif., a mental hospital of the California Department of Mental Hygiene, are working together on the system. They are using the radio-sensor system with a computer to develop a new means of diagnosis.

The new method is under clinical test on mental patients at Agnews Hospital with good preliminary results.

Installed in Headact

The sensor-radio system installed in a headset is so light and comfortable that it does not frighten disturbed patients. Because of this, doctors now believe they can use it to distinguish between schizophrenics needing immediate large doses of tranquilizing drugs, and those who can be treated without drugs.

The diagnostic method uses differences between patients' brain wave responses to a series of light flashes, as a way of distinguishing between various types of schizophrenia (behavior disorders).

Past diagnostic methods using brain waves have required inserting needle electrodes under the scalp, or shaving patches of the scalp for electrode contact.

Transmitter Used

With seriously disturbed schizophrenic patients, these disquieting procedures - required immediately on admission to the hospital usually have not been pos-

The Ames-developed system, however, employs only a headset consisting of a light wire clip fitted with two small electrodes which sense brain waves through the hair with no scalp preparation. The headset also carries a tiny battery-powered radio transmitter to broadcast the brain signals to the computer for analysis. Because data is radioed. no wires are involved. This absence of wires prevents undue anxiety about shock therapy by some disturbed patients who have either undergone it or fear such has promise for other uses, Dr. Rappaport adds. Patients could wear the headsets in their wards: Then data on their mental states could be radioed to the computer as they did a variety of activities, or were presented with different kinds of situations. The brain's reaction patterns to the light signals are tiny, brief and are mingled with the constant massive flow of other brain wave signals. However, Mr. Hopkins has devised a computer program to sort out these tiny electric signals. The very small one-milli-

HEALTH BEAUTY

Prolonged illness or disability compels many people to spend onths or years in bed. Time often drags, especially for those who are not fond of reading and for those whose eyes are weak

Complete rest in bed is necessary in the cure of many diseases. The body isn't equal to the wear and tear of everyday living. When you're up and about. our heart beats more rapidly and the lungs have to work harder. You can't keep the muscles still; they're constantly in motion. You don't notice this particularly, but your body is burning fuel which must be replaced to sus-

Rest conserves the fuel supply. The drain on the system is greatly reduced so that the body is enabled to fight the infection more effectively. The new drugs haven't done away with the necessity for rest, though they help The process of repair goes on rapidly when the patient doesn't have to struggle against fatigue, changes in temperature, work or worry. Unless the patient resigns himself to bed rest, he'll get little benefit from it. When you retire, learn to relax.

Don't clench your fists and draw up in a knot. You must sleep if your body is to repair itself during the night. First get into comfortable positions when you go to bed, which should be reasonably early. Relax your muscles. Letyour body go completely limp. Approach sleep by an evening prayer. Ask forgiveness for all your wrong deeds or thoughts. If any one has trespassed against you, forgive him. Wipe the slate clean. Don't harbor any feelings of hate or unkindness towards

Having gotten your mind and body in a state of peace and relaxation, turn into the position in which you usually go to sleep and repeat the little prayer that vour mother taught you as a child Inhibit thought. In a few moments you'll be sleeping soundly.
