THEY WATCH FOR YOU — Members of the Ground Observers Corps, post at Walker Memorial Christian Church, Ford and Flynn roads in the Walker Homes, keep a watchful eye on all planes traveling in the area as part of the overall Civil Defense plan of being ever alert for sneak attacks.

The post, the only active post in the four states (Tennessee, Mississippi, Kentucky, and Alabama) serving with the Nashville Air Defense Filter Center, was inspected and lauded Monday by Col. John F. Somers, head of the Memphis Civil Defense, and T/Sgt. Donald Allen, training sergeant with the NADFC.

The post, directed by the church's pastor, the Rev. G. A. Evans, has logged an admirable record, the undermanned, of more than six hours daily watching since its beginning early last year.

More than 200 persons are needed to man the GOC posts, each stationed every eight miles in the NADFC area, serving at least two hours a day.

Persons interested in serving with the GOC post are urged to contact the post at WH. 2-3841 and WH. 6-4580 or the local Civil Defense commission at 85 Exchange Avenue. (Memphis World Photo by Tisby)

IKE EXPLAINS CIVIL RIGHTS PLAN; WARNS OF INFLATION DANGER

Jackie Robinson Slated Here March 2nd For NAACP Meeting

WILL SPARK OPENING OF LOCAL MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

BY RAYMOND F. TISBY

Jackie Robinson, the first Negro to enter organized baseball, will speak here Saturday, March 2, in behalf of the national and local NAACP organizations, Atty. H. T. Lockard, Memphis NAACP president, announced.

Robinson, who recently retired from organized baseball to become vice president in charge of personnel for the Chock Full 'Nuts restaurant chain, will visit Memphis on the last lap of a 11-city tour for the NAACP.

The outspoken, militant athlete, who this year received the NAACP's Spingarn Medal and who recently presented the NAACP's Spingarn Medal and who recently presented the NAACP Legal Defense Fund with a $10,000 check from his present employers, is serving as national chairman of the NAACP's 1957 Fight for Freedom Fund.

The former National League star recently concluded visits to 10 Eastern, Midwestern and Western states in behalf of the Freedom Fund and consented to make Memphis an added stop before his final fund raising appearance in Atlanta, Ga., March 3.

In accepting the fund drive chairmanship Robinson said the NAACP, by helping to improve conditions for Negroes in this country strengthens the prestige of the nation among other countries.

Accordingly, he asserted "white people need to support the NAACP as strongly as do Negroes because it means as much to them as to the colored people. The NAACP is an asset to the nation."

Atty. Lockard, who Wednesday confirmed Robinson's appearance here with G. L. B. Current, director of NAACP branches, said Robinson's appearance will also serve to open the Memphis branch's 1957 membership drive.

The time and site of Robinson's appearance will be set at a meeting of the local NAACP board this weekend.

CONTROLS PROBABLE, IKE SAYS

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower declared Wednesday that the civil rights program he has laid before Congress is "intended to preserve rights without arousing passions, and without disturbing the rights of anybody else."

Mr. Eisenhower made the declaration at his Wednesday press conference at which time he said "I think it is a very decent and needful piece of legislation."

The Eisenhower administration program on civil rights was presented to Congress Monday by Attorney General Herbert Brownell who declared that the safety of minorities depended upon its early enactment.

The program calls for a bipartisan commission to examine civil rights cases and policies, creation of a new Civil Rights division in the Justice Department, new laws to protect voting rights and Civil Court remedies. It was immediately attacked by Dixie Congressmen.

PRICE CONTROLS

Turning to other subjects, Mr. Eisenhower said that unless labor and management "act as enlightened Americans" and fight inflation the government must move in with price, wage and production controls.

He told his news conference that in his recent appeal to industry and the unions to hold down prices and wages he "wasn't merely asking them to be altruistic." He declared: "Their own long-term good is involved, and I am asking them merely to act as enlightened Americans."

Mr. Eisenhower's statement came on the heels of recent warnings by Treasury secretary George M. Humphrey and ex-president Herbert Hoover that a "Hair-Curling" depression will result unless astronomical government spending and other inflationary pressures can be curbed.

The President said unless business and labor cooperate the government will have to "move in more firmly with so-called controls of some kind." He added: "And when we begin to control prices and allocations and wages, and all the rest, then it is not the America we know."

Mr. Eisenhower spoke against the background not only of the Humphrey-Hoover warnings but in the context of sharp declines in the stock market.

TWO HITS OF THE MARCH OF DIMES FASHION SHOW, held at the Waldorf, New York, this past week, were Miss Lena Horne and the 1957 March of Dimes poster girl, Marlene Olsen of Boston, Mass. Modelling the gown shown above, which was designed by Robert Mackintosh, Miss Horne joined other stage and screen celebrities in doing their bit for the polio fighting organization. More than 1,200 guests were present at this fund raising event.

165 Years Long Wait For Rights, Brownell Says

BY LOUIS LAUTIER
Washington Correspondent, Atlanta Daily World and NNPA News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (NNPA) — Urging approval of the Eisenhower Administration's civil rights program, Attorney General Herbert Brownell told a House Judiciary sub-committee Monday that 165 years were long enough to wait for civil rights.

Mr. Brownell was the first witness to appear before the subcommittee, headed by Representative Emanuel Celler, of New York, chairman of the full Judiciary Committee.

Following him as a witness was Representative Kenneth B. Keating, ranking Republican member of the Judiciary Committee, and a subcommittee member, who is sponsoring the Administration's civil rights bill.

Witnesses who appeared Monday afternoon were Representatives John F. Baldwin, Republican of California, and James Roosevelt, Democrat, of California. They testified in support of their bills.

The afternoon session of the subcommittee was temporarily blocked when Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, the Democratic floor leader, asked the House for unanimous consent for the committee to sit while the House was in session.

Representative William M. Colmer, Democrat, of Mississippi, objected. The House, however, adjourned for the day at 1:50 P. M., which permitted the hearings to resume at 2 P. M.

Mr. Colmer called Colmer's action "an obstruction." He said it is unusual to refuse a committee permission to sit while the House is in session.

"It is only done when highly controversial legislation is being considered," he said. "There was nothing in today. All we had was special orders (permission to certain members of 10 o'clock, so as to avoid any delay by the committee) being denied permission to sit while the House is in session."

Ike Becomes Honorary Head Of Brotherhood Wk.

NEW YORK — (ANP) — President Eisenhower will again serve as honorary chairman of Brotherhood Week to be observed Feb. 17-24 under the sponsorship of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, it was announced by Louis B. Seltzer, editor, The Cleveland Press, who is serving as national chairman.

Simultaneously Mr. Seltzer released a special Brotherhood message from President Eisenhower which stressed that America must seek a "stouter unity" among its people and a "sharper understanding" so that the nation shall prosper spiritually as well as materially.

"We are a people of many races, colors and creeds but we are one nation, one country," the President declared. "The rich variety of American life invigorates the entire Republic, our economy, our culture, our dedication to freedom and justice."

Pan-American Airways carried more than 150 Americans from Port-Au-Prince to Kingston and Ciudad Trujillo, capitals of Jamaica and the Dominican Republic respectively.

The airline suspended daily strike was called in the Haitian capital in a successful attempt to force the resignation of provisional President Joseph Nemours Pierre-Louis.

His political foes charged he was not sufficiently opposed to the policies of former President Paul E. Magloire who went into exile last December.

Pan-American resumed service to Haiti Wednesday with four 54-passenger flights. Two planes went to Kingston and two to Ciudad Trujillo.

Memphis Heart Ass'n Makes Grant To Univ. Of Tenn.

A $350 grant to the University of Tennessee for heart surgery research was announced Feb. 7 by the Memphis Heart Association as a dramatic climax to the first week of its February Heart Fund drive.

First research grant made this year, the $350 comes from last year's Heart Fund contributions given by people in Memphis and Shelby County. Other research grants will be made after the 1957 Heart Fund, now seeking $100,000 to continue research, education and service programs for people with heart trouble.

The $350 given yesterday by the Memphis Heart Association will continue research on a heart pump (which assumes the work of the heart) and an oxygenator (which assumes work of the lungs) during heart surgery.

Co-investigators of this research project are Dr. Edward H. Storer, director of surgical research laboratories at the University of Tennessee and Dr. S. Gwin Robbins, assistant professor of surgery. Dr. Orin Butlerick, surgical resident, is Research Fellow.

This is the fourth grant made by the Memphis Heart Association to the doctors' project. In 1955, a grant of $750, and in early 1956, another grant of $300 bought the heart pump and oxygenator developed at the University of Minnesota to keep animals alive during experimental heart operations. A third grant of $1,600 last summer financed a study to discover why the two mechanical devices failed to keep most animals alive after 15 minutes of surgery. The doctors indicate acid change in the blood may cause the failure.

The $350 pays for a new pump head to pump 4-1.2 quarts of blood per minute during an operation, instead of the previous 2-1.2 quarts a minute. "We think with increased blood flow, we can slow down or stop the acid condition of the blood and operate successfully on the heart for much longer periods of time," Dr. Storer explained.

Since 1949, the University of Tennessee has received $119,179.63 in research grants on the heart—$56,022.63 from the Memphis Heart Association; $57,167 from the American Heart Association and $6,000 from the Tennessee Heart Association. The people of Memphis and Shelby County have given a total of $287,112.42 to the Heart Fund since 1949.

Saud Endorses Ike's Middle East Program

BY DON DIXON

WASHINGTON — (INS) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia Wednesday endorsed President Eisenhower's doctrine to thwart communism in the vital Middle East.

Saud told newsmen in an impromptu question and answer session that the President's program "is a good one which is entitled to consideration and appreciation."

The oil-rich Arabian monarch indicated that he will discuss the program with other Arab leaders upon his return to the Middle East.

At the same time, Saud said negotiations on renewal of the lease to permit the U. S. Air Force to continue to use the Dhahran Air Base are "going quite satisfactorily" and added "we anticipate an agreement."

The king said he hopes this agreement will come before he leaves Washington Saturday.

Saud spoke through an interpreter to newsmen who had gathered in the second floor sitting room of Blair House, President Eisenhower's guest residence where he has been staying for the past week.

The monarch said that "we are seeking" to increase the size of the Saudi Arabian armed forces (Continued on Page Eight)

It might prove interesting to see this "clique" affair of the Juniors, with all the royalty in Memphis presented and plus "plus" royalty crowned and her court of Junior girls and their escorts.

ASSIGNMENTS: LEMOYNE COLLEGE

BY MELVIN GREER

Percy Gonye Hentrel is the pastor CALIFORNIA, HERE SHE COMES

Margaret likes to travel, and her "Miss Lemoigne" title will reap her an all-expenses paid trip to American Missionary Society Institutions, as well as other significant places. She plans to tour California come Summer, and has already visited Illinois, Morgan State College in Baltimore, Md., and Michigan, where she patronized Idlewood Summer Resort Island. She was a delegate to Boule (boo-lay) in Atlanta, Ga., during the Christmas holidays. Currently vying for the title of Cotton Makers Jubilee Queen, Miss Johnson has an ear for good music, so say her friends, and enjoys the semi-classical works. She also goes in for swimming. Of course, she has her dislikes, too. Ahhors greens.

NEAR FUTURE: MEMPHIS STATE

After graduation, which is scheduled for June, she intends to take — and pass — Memphis State College's entrance examination so she can do graduate work in Contemporary American History at Memphis State.

On Greek Letter Organizations she has this to say: "Sorority life extracts superior scholastic, ethical, moral, and social standards of an individual. It gives one the opportunity to help his fellowman, and to contribute to worthwhile organizations."

SUMMING UP

Miss Johnson's sex appeal is evident. She is strawberries, and cream Apple pie and a walking dream; Sugar and spice, and everything twice; Fiery, but doesn't let fire dominate her; Important, but friendly; and brainy, but beautiful. She is MISS LEMOYNE.

THIS CO-ED MARGARET JOHNSON IS LOADED!

Anyway you look at it, this co-ed Margaret Johnson is loaded — with looks, with talent, with poise, with personality, with character, and with knowledge — traits which won for her, by a prodigious vote — the most coveted of all Lemoigne female titles, that of "Miss Lemoigne."

Miss Johnson's winning the "Miss Lemoigne," title was no fluke. One glimpse of those sparkling brown eyes, those eye-appealing 34-24-38 measurements, that simple but yet ultra-fashionable hair, style should convince even her most obtuse critic that she and she alone is "Miss Lemoigne."

MISS MARGARET JOHNSON

Miss Johnson resides at 1092 Woodlawn Street with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Johnson. She was born February 4, 1936.

Margaret's formal training began at Manassas School in North Memphis. It was at Manassas where she started on her still uncompleted ascended ladder to success.

HOW DOES SHE DO IT?

Sometimes the beauty queen wonders herself how she holds so many offices, a habit which evidently was started at Manassas where she was a Double Tamer, Y-Teens member, National Honor Society member and innumerable other meritorious Manassas organizations. She graduated from Manassas with distinction and incidentally, she was an "A" student.

At Lemoigne she is basileus of Beta Tau Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, member of the Pan Hellenic Council, NAACP, Religious Life Committee, Student Activity Committee, senior representative and treasurer of the Student Council, and a member of the Committee for Women's Affairs.

She is a member of the Trinity C. M. E. Church of which the Rev.

FRATERNITY FUROR GEORGE COX LASHES AT COLUMB'S "ATTACK" ON ALPHA PHI ALPHA FRAT

George Cox, President of the Lemoigne chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, has accused this column of "giving the public a distorted view of the attitudes of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity."

"Although it has definitely been proved and established that the Alphas are unquestionably the tops," Cox explained, "We Alphas don't indulge in puffing out our chests, nor holding our noses high in the air as to give a snooty appearance as was stated in this column last Friday."

"This column completely misrepresented the attitudes of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, which was little more than a deliberate attack on Alpha Phi Alpha," he said. "And as for the idea of another fraternity knocking us so-called 'high flying Alphas off the perch, well, how ridiculous can you get?" Cox concluded in so many words.

WRITER'S NOTE: It appears as though the Alphas have misinterpreted the views of last Friday's column to a tremendous extent. There is nothing in it, that I see, which refers to them as snooty, nor was the column an attack on Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity as Mr. Cox stated above.

COULDN'T BE APPRECIATED

Herman Henning, President of the Student Council and also an Alpha brother, stated Monday that "Although it is impossible to slander Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, as some have said was done last Friday, the column couldn't have been appreciated by any Alpha."

HORSELAFF — WITH 'OLD BETSY' IN THE MIDDLE

If you are curious about how much horsepower Frank Lockhart's aging auto "Old Betsy" has, I'd advise you drowning your curiosity and not look under Betsy's hood. It's a horrifying experience.

I sneaked and peered under Betsy's hood last week and was utterly shocked and amazed to discover a run-down looking horse under it. The horse looked indignantly at me as if to say, "Well, what did you expect, stupid, Native Dancer?"

Now I know why a filler-up man always sticks two bales of hay under Betsy's hood instead of oil, and also realize why her transmission is so complex: "Did you ever try to shift gears on a horse?"

MR. AND MRS. HANNIBAL PARKS GIVE OPEN HOUSE RECEPTION AT NEW SOUTH PARKWAY RESIDENCE

The warmth of welcome, given by Mr. and Mrs. Hannibal Parks Sunday when they asked in a group of their friends to see their new South Parkway residence, was added to by the warm shades and the beauty of the home purchased by the couple just before Christmas.

Made for the sun, it is a house inviting the outdoors in. Center and heart of this liveable design is the huge living and dining area (all in one) with its wide, roomy fireplace, curving sofa, and the many windows. . . . Many of the guests found the large breakfast nook and Butler's pantry and the den a favorite stopping place Sunday. One immediately saw that the expensive yard and the side patio will be a favorite place when it gets warm.

Lighting up the warm brown of the oak-paneled woodwork are the aqua wall and soft yellow draperies. . . . Highlighting the decorations were an exquisite pair of lustres, a massive sterling tea set (a gift from Mrs. Parks' parents) and the wrought iron cornices found in the breakfast and in the modern kitchen. The beautiful place has passed through several modern stages. . . . We first noticed the large ceiling electric fans in the massive bed rooms. . . . Later we saw the attic fan and air condition units.

The repeat of the aqua shade in the den was a definite contrast to the red leather furniture and the attractive Egyptian plaques. The dining room table, overlaid with a very pretty Italian cut-work cloth of linen, was centered by a small open house that showed off the "Red Carpet" that the Parks' rolled out Sunday. . . . Both the dining and breakfast room tables were covered with hors d'oeuvres.

The striking Mrs. Parks wore a smart embroidered black taffeta set off by rhinestone straps and a detailed back that featured a loose panel and a large rose. Mrs. Joe Davis, who arrived early with her husband, Mr. Davis (Mrs. Parks' parents), wore a lovely pink lace adorned in pearls and rhinestones.

Hostesses assisting during the evening were Mrs. Mary Dale Gilliam, Mrs. E. A. Harrell, Mrs. Josephine Allen, Miss Vera Weddle and Mrs. Laura Watson.

Guests included Mrs. Muriel Grib-ble, Mr. Charles Ware, Mrs. Charles Mallow, Mrs. Lydia Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Crawford, Mrs. Tiny Armstrong, Mrs. Nettie Duncan, Mrs. Bessie Walthorp, Mr. Robert Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Williams, Mr. and Mrs. O. ## Loeb's Box Score

Clement's Teacher Raise Plan Against Changing City Govt.

By RAYMOND F. TISBY
Informally addressing the New Light Civic Club Tuesday night Feb. 5 at Melrose school, Public Works Commissioner Henry Loeb, in addition to outlining plans of his department, (1) came out in support of the Memphis Board of Education proposed budget and thereby supporting Gov. Frank Clement's proposal for a teacher pay raise; (2) is against changing the present city form of government; (3) outlined his reasons for voting against the naming of a Negro to the John Gaston Hospital trustee board; (4) again blasted Memphis' "Wandering politicians"; and (5) predicted a lessening of power of the political "machine."

"I'm for our teachers getting a $400 raise," Loeb stated, adding, "and I am for the Board of Education's proposed budget."

The education board's proposed increased budget would give local teachers a $250 increase this year. Coupled with the $150 raise for teachers this year proposed by Gov. Frank Clement's administration, teachers here would receive a total $400 raise.

Loeb contended "it is better" to raise taxes locally in order to give the teachers the proposed raise "and get a dollar in value returned for every dollar paid out rather than getting half-value from taxes paid to the state."

The commissioner pointed out that if the state foots the entire $400 raise, as advocated by the Tennessee Education Association backed by a majority of local state legislators, Memphis, which now pays 20 per cent of all taxes received by the state, would get only 50 cents in value returned from the state for every $1 paid.

Loeb also felt that the state to foot the entire raise would cost Memphis to lose funds for other projects such as mental hospital facilities, Memphis State University, expressways, etc.

Loeb reiterated his blast at "Memphis' wandering politicians," Police and Fire Commissioner Claude Armour and County Commissioner David Harsh who were spokesmen for the Shelby legislative delegation.

In announcing their backing of the move to have the state pay the entire $400 raise, Armour and Harsh, Loeb charged "are willing to sacrifice" other projects for Memphis rather than pay for part of the raise locally in an attempt to keep Memphis tax rate at $1.80 "in the hope that this low tax rate will keep the machine in power."

"Full page ads to the contrary," Loeb asserted, "Memphis citizens will not be fooled by this and will let the machine know it at the next election."

During the question and answer period, in reply to a query as to his stand on changing to a City Manager government for Memphis, Loeb said he preferred to keep the commission form.

Under the City Manager government "a bum" could be appointed City Manager, Loeb contended, with the citizens having no control over his actions.

Under the commission form, Loeb declared, a "machine" must gain control of all five seats in order to have complete control and then each commissioner must be reelected according to how well he has run his particular department and "not as a machine."

Loeb also explained his reason for being against the naming of a Negro to the John Gaston Hospital trustee board as suggested by Mayor Edmund Orgill last year.

Loeb felt the move was "inopportune and unwise." He pointed out that the suggestion was made at the time a controversy was raging over the use of a public golf course for a Negro tournament.

"Fortunately," Loeb avowed "Memphis has been an island of peace in a sea of storm and I am against any move that would help the extremists turn Memphis into a racial battleground."

Loeb pointed out that he is seeking a million dollar increase for his department for improving major streets. Last year's budget for street improvement was $2.5 million. The first $1.8 million will be used to repair streets requested by the Board of Education with only $700,000 remaining for other streets if the extra million is not approved.

Melrose took the measure of St. Augustine 78-46 at Blair T. Hunt Gymnasium. The Golden Wildcats got off to a slow start with the Thunderbolts and didn't manage to shake the sluggishness until the third period. Melrose led at the end of the initial quarter by a one point margin, 13-12. Melrose took advantage of some excessive fouling near the end of the first half to take a 32-24 lead into intermission.

With forwards George Martin and Andrew Washington finding the range the charges of coach Frank Lewis put the game beyond reach mid-way the third stanza. Washington edged teammate Martin for scoring honors, meshing 23 points. Martin garnered 21.

Saud Promises Hospital $2,000 A Year "Forever"

BY EDWIN DIAMOND
WASHINGTON.—(INS)—U. S. Army doctors Monday filed Saudi Arabian King Saud for five pair of new glasses and also announced his son Little Prince Masbhar, is on the road to rehabilitation for a partially-paralyzed right arm and leg.

At the same time, the doctor officially announced that the boy is a cerebral palsy victim and has been treated as such since shortly after he entered Walter Reed Army Hospital last Thursday at President Eisenhower's personal request.

The announcement of diagnosis and treatment confirms an International News Service report of last Thursday.

In a gesture of gratitude toward the hospital and the country that helped his sad-eyed, three-year-old "favorite" son the king said he was donating $2,000 a year to Walter Reed Hospital "in perpetuity."

A Saudi Arabian spokesman said this meant "forever."

The king, absolute monarch of the oil-rich, strategic Arab kingdom, combined a trip to pick up his son with a surprise visit to the Walter Reed eye clinic.

Surrounded by burly bodyguards and U. S. Secret Service men the tall monarch strode past waiting G. I. patients seated in the waiting room and climbed into Col. William L. Spaulding's examination chair.

The king's eyes were dilated and carefully explored by Spaulding, chief of the clinic, and Dr. M. H. Bhaty, a Pakistani specialist studying at Walter Reed.

The king's glasses were then examined by specialist third class A. Grossman, a doctor of optometry, S. Grossman, 25 of Pittsburgh.

It was learned the king was diagnosed as nearly blind in one eye and suffering from a myopic-near-sighted-condition in the other.

It also was disclosed that five pairs of G. I. glasses were ordered ground up for the king - three green-tinted and two brown-tinted.

After the examination the king called for his son. The little Prince walked out of the hospital wearing his new U. S. Army-made leg brace and new high-top American shoes.

DOT DANDRIDGE'S FRENCH FILM CAN'T BE BLOCKED

MEMPHIS WORLD Saturday, February 9, 1957

OOPS . . . AGAIN!—Defense secretary Charles Wilson, shown with newsmen after a White House conference with Pres. Eisenhower last week, made new headlines when he again blasted the National Guard as too poorly trained to be "dependent upon." Refusing to apologize for his criticism of the organization, Wilson also refused to tell newsmen whether he planned to quit the defense post. Wilson's latest "foot in mouth" observation was later severely criticized by the Chief Executive. (Newspress Photo).

COMPLETES ROLE ON "ISLAND IN THE SUN"

HOLLYWOOD — (ANP) — Assurances have been made to Dorothy Dandridge that the French film version of "Tomango," which she is scheduled to begin next April cannot be blocked from release in the United States.

The actress who recently completed her role in Darryl F. Zanuck's "Island In The Sun" in London, signed a contract to star in the film based on the prosper Morree story of the same title last September but had recently been notified by Milton Holmes from London that he and Director William Dieterle began preparations for the same picture over two years ago.

Holmes also had Miss Dandridge to pull out of the contract with the French company and star in his and Dieterle's version on the basis that legal action would be taken to halt showings of the French picture in the United States and Great Britain.

Now Dorothy's personal manager, Earl Mills has been informed by Roland Girard, chairman of the board of Les Films du Cyclopes in Paris, that his version of "Tomango" will be made under French law and will therefore be protected in showings all over the world.

Girard also pointed out that Merimee's novel is a hundred years old and in public domain.

He denied to Mills that his writers had ever had access to material prepared by Holmes and pointed out that neither Holmes nor Dieterle could not be released in the U. S. or Great Britain, has still not decided which of the two versions of "Tomango" his client will accept and Miss Dandridge is now awaiting receipt of the rival scripts.

Freedom Radio Wins Many Listeners Inside Russia

NEW YORK — Evidence that foreign radio broadcasts are finding a growing and appreciative audience within the Soviet Union was disclosed this week.

Some of the evidence was provided by a Russian bear-tamer who, tiring of life in a Soviet-managed circus, had fled to freedom in the West.

Other pieces of evidence came from within the Soviet Union itself — in the form of letters from Soviet listeners who were asked to write to innocuous-sounding addresses outside the Iron Curtain.

All this was disclosed in a 47-page booklet summing up the work of Radio Liberation which for the past four years has been broadcasting into the USSR.

The booklet, entitled "Sparks In to the USSR" was published by the American Committee for Liberation, which supports the work of Radio Liberation. Copies of the booklet may be obtained free at the American Committee, 6 East 45th Street, New York 17, N. Y.

Radio Liberation, the voice of exiles from the USSR fighting for freedom and democracy in their homeland, began operations on March 1, 1953 from studios in Munich, Germany.

Then it had but one 10-kilowatt transmitter. Today, Radio Liberation has eleven powerful transmitters in Germany and the Far East. From broadcasting only in the Russian tongue, Radio Liberation has branched out to speaking in seven languages used in the USSR.

Ten minutes after Radio Liberation went on the air, it was jammed by the Soviets. As Radio Liberation stepped up its activity, the Soviets responded with ever-heavier jamming. Technical data in the possession of Radio Liberation demonstrates, however, that Radio Liberation delivers an intelligible signal to a majority of the population of the USSR, the station's sponsors claim.

Direct confirmation of this fact comes from Soviet citizens themselves. Such as the Russian bear-tamer, 26-year-old Viktor Iljinsky, who last year escaped to freedom at Aachen, Germany, while traveling with a Soviet circus in Western Europe.

Iljinsky, interviewed at a refugee camp in Western Germany, said he had sought an opportunity to escape ever since he heard former Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov claim over Rad o Moscow that there were no Soviet units participating in the Korean war. Iljinsky knew better, for at the time he was serving with a signal corps unit in North Korea.

Iljinsky reported he began listening to Western broadcasts in 1947, adding that almost everyone in the Soviet Union, from generals to collective farmers, tries to listen. As for himself, Iljinsky said he preferred Radio Liberation broadcasts, claiming its greatest asset was its "colossal irony."

4-H Camp Dedication Date Is Scheduled For June 14th

GREENSBORO, N. C. — The date for the dedication of the 4-H Club Camp, recently completed at Hammocks Beach, N. C. in Onslow County, was set last week at the annual meeting of the North Carolina 4-H Club Foundation held here at A&T College.

The camp will be formally dedicated and named on Friday, June 14 at 11:00 A. M. Officials stated that a day-long program is being arranged for visiting guests.

In the annual report presented by W. C. Cooper, assistant State 4-H Club director and secretary to the Foundation, it was revealed that more than $94,000 has been spent during the past five years. A major portion, more than $84,000 has been used to construct the camp, while other expenditures included travel expense for three farm youths who went for North Carolina to England and Wales under the International Farm Youth Exchange Program.

The report stated that more than 1200 youngsters, members of 4-H Clubs in the state participated in camping at the site last summer and nearly 2,000 will be accommodated this coming summer with an extended camping period.

R. E. Jones, State agent, in charge of the A&T College Extension Service, presented to the board of directors a list of needs for improvement and additional construction at the camp. The items, to cost more than $25,000, included a fishing pier, arts and crafts building, boats and other equipment.

Four new persons were added to the board of directors. They included: William Hooks, Whiteville farmer and business man; Mayon Parker, Ahoskie newspaper publishers; W. I. Bissett, Griffin farmer, and Mrs. Idell Jones Randall, Johnston County homemaker and former secretary to the board of directors.

VETERANS WHIRL

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Fuller information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q—My State gives a bonus to Korea veterans. May I apply for it through the VA?

A—No. VA does not administer State bonuses. You should file your application with your State, not with VA.

Q—I am planning to sell my GI home and allow the buyer to take over the GI loan. When should I apply to VA for release from liability to the Government — before or after I sign the sales contract?

A—You should apply to VA for release from liability before you sign the contract. In that way, you will know whether the buyer is eligible to assume your liability before you commit yourself to sell.

Q—My husband, a World War II veteran, died after January 1, 1957 of a service-connected illness. Would I have a choice of receiving death compensation payments or payments under the new Survivors' Benefits Act?

A—You would not have a choice. Families of veterans who die of service-connected conditions after January 1, 1957, are eligible only for Indemnity Compensation payments under

Middle East Policy Is Brought Into Clear Focus

The difference between a practical and idealistic approach to the solution of problems in the Middle East was brought into sharp focus as an Atlanta University Town Meeting questioned a panel of speakers on the question "Should Congress Support the Eisenhower Doctrine?" Dr. Charles O. Lerche, Department of Political Science, Emory University and Oliver Jackson, Morris Brown College supported the affirmative, opposed by Edward Zinn, Professor of History at Spelman College and George Grogan Morehouse College student.

Saying that the United States had had no Middle East policy until the seizure of the Suez Canal, Dr. Lerche analyzed American policy as consisting of three stages: to work through the United Nations to stop the use of force in settlement of problems; to preserve the status quo until tempers had cooled and a better atmosphere created for a permanent solution; and to settle outstanding political problems in any time from two to six years.

Dr. Lerche said that the present request of President Eisenhower for power to use the armed forces and for money for economic aid was the means of carrying out the second stage.

Mr. Zinn criticized the policy as being aimed only at stopping the spread of communism in the Middle East and ignoring the long term objectives of establishing peace based on democratic government. He said that instead of trying to fill a power vacuum with its own power, the United States should move toward disarmament and away from unilateral action. "We have lost sight of democracy when we support Ibn Saud," he charged.

Shoots Wife And Kills Self After No Reconciliation

ST. LOUIS — (ANP) — Attempts for a reconciliation with his estranged wife failed here last week and as a result a Chicago railroad billing clerk seriously wounded his wife and then took his own life.

The man, Hugh Haynie of Chicago, pumped bullets into his 33-year-old wife, June, after making futile efforts on several occasions to induce her to return with him to Chicago, and then killed himself.

Mrs. Haynie told police from her bed at Homer G. Phillips hospital that Haynie pleaded with her to come back to him, but she refused and left the apartment.

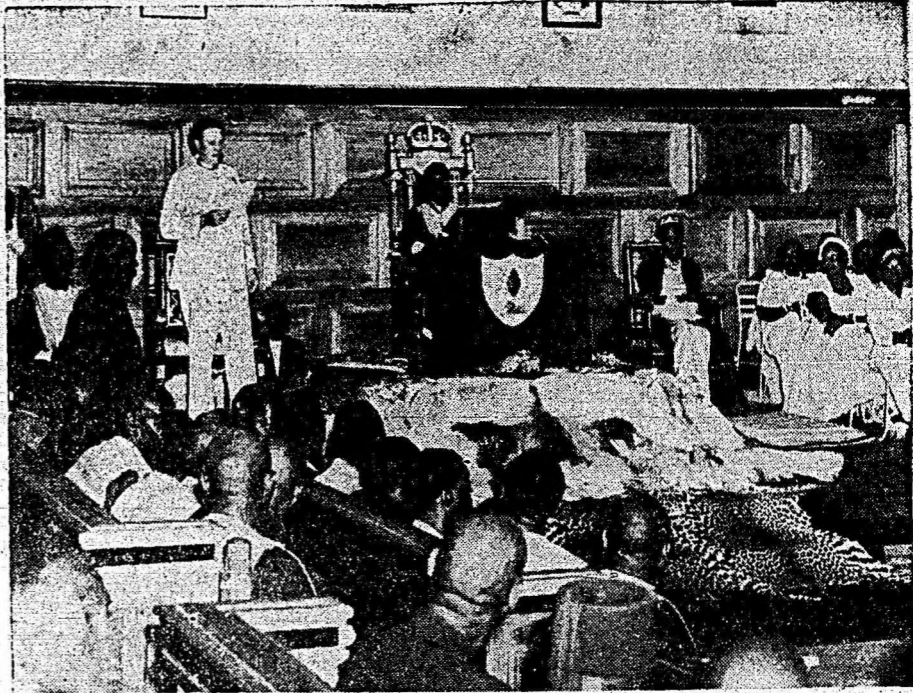

She said Haynie followed her across the street where they argued for about 15 minutes and he told her "if you don't get in the car I'll kill you."

She said a neighbor, Howard Phillips, saw Haynie attempting to pull her into the car and yelled "Don't do that."

Phillips said the pair struggled briefly and she broke away and started running across the street. Phillips said Haynie pulled a .25 caliber Italian-made revolver from his pocket and pursued his wife. Haynie fired when she was in the middle of the street and after she fell, he turned the gun on himself.

Mrs. Haynie was struck in the neck and abdomen by bullets.

At Least 20 Persons Victims Of Explosion

RENO, Nev. — (INS) — A violent gas explosion in downtown Reno Wednesday touched off a huge fire that swept a dozen buildings and struck down at least 26 persons.

One woman was known dead in the holocaust and three or more other persons were trapped inside flaming structures.

At least 25 persons were listed as injured — 13 of them seriously — as the blaze raged in the heart of Nevada's largest city, causing damage estimated by one Chamber of Commerce official at $100,000-600.

However, other city authorities were as yet unable to estimate the damage though they said it would "run into the millions."

Two swiftly successive blasts, attributed to a leaking gas main, rocked a wide section of the downtown area at nighttime and explosive flames belched skyward.

All available Reno firemen and all of the city's fire fighting equipment converged on the scene, together with Red Cross disaster relief units and police.

The entire affected district was ordered evacuated and Reno's world-famed slot machines and other gaming devices came to a standstill for the first time since gambling was legalized in Nevada. Tourists attired in dude ranch costumes and out-of-state persons awaiting their time for filling court actions in America's "divorce capital" were among the many hundreds who poured out of downtown buildings by order of the police.

All gas services was shut off with in minutes after the explosion-kindled fire broke out.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

By the NNPA News Service
In the past the American public school system has been geared toward such ideas as general intellectual preparation for advanced education or vocational training and the values of achievement in a competitive society.

This has generally meant emphasis upon intellectual attainment or setting good grades — competitive achievement, the suppression of any aggressive behavior, and the dependence of the child on the approval of the teacher and parents for achievement.

In present society there is no single criterion for success. Therefore, the standards by which are measured the effectiveness of the school system are many and varied. It follows naturally that some groups will approve one set of standards and other groups quite another.

Fifty years ago, American high schools had a fairly fixed standard curriculum. Those few people able and fortunate enough to have a high-school education generally took the same courses in classics and sciences.

But today the high schools are open to all students — those who will be future scientists, political leaders, industrialists, as well as the skilled and unskilled laborers.

For the former, high-school education is merely a stage in the process of formal education. For most of the latter, high school represents the terminal point in education. The educational needs of these two groups are different.

Educational theorists during the past three decades have emphasized that the responsibility of the public school is to educate future citizens to live and work effectively in adult society.

The kind of education a future citizen requires will naturally vary with the role he will play in adult society. If his formal education is to terminate at the secondary level then it is incumbent upon the high school to provide a curriculum of sufficient breadth to fit him for his responsibility as a future parent, as an intelligent voter, as an effective worker, and as a law-abiding citizen.

By contrast, for those who seek higher formal education, such courses will naturally be less important at the high-school level. But this means that high schools, if they are to fulfill the needs of society, must provide diversified curriculums.

"Vision Inspired Me To Lead My People," Dr. King Says

YOUNG LEADER SAYS HE WILL STAND UP WITHOUT FEAR

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — (ANP) — A silent, but proud congregation last week sat in Rev. Martin L. King's church here and heard their courageous leader declare:

"Montgomery can keep shooting and I'm going to stand up to them because a vision came to me last year to lead the Negro movement without fear."

Dr. King described the vision to a near capacity crowd saying "I realize that there were moments when I wanted to give up and I was afraid, but you gave me a vision in the kitchen of my home and I am thankful for it."

The 28-year-old Baptist minister's talk came in the wake of a wave of terror, bombings and violence directed against himself and other Negroes.

Rev. King said that after Negroes began their 14-month-old bus boycott of city busses in protest of segregated seating, "I went to bed many nights scared to death by threats against myself and my family. But early on a sleepless morning in January of 1956 rationality left me, and I said: 'out of nowhere I heard a voice saying to me: Preach the gospel, stand up for the truth, stand up for righteousness.'"

The young leader added: "Since that morning I can stand up without fear. So I'm not afraid of anybody this morning."

"Tell Montgomery they can keep shooting and I'm going to stand up to them, tell them they can keep bombing and I'm going to stand up to them. If I had to die tomorrow I would die happy because I've been to the mountain top and I've seen the promised land and its going to be here in Montgomery. The old Montgomery is passing away and segregation is dying out."

Cab Calloway's Revue Smashing Club Records

MIAMI — (ANP) — "The hottest Miami Beach nightclub show in a decade" that's what local scribblers and blabbers are calling the new Cab Calloway Revue of 1957, now in its sixth week on the site of the world famous Macomber in that city.

In the last ten days alone, the Club was visited by more than thirty thousand Florida vacationers; some back for their second and third visit.

The exciting revue is headlined by Calloway, Sallie Blair and Lonnie Smith, staged by Benny Davis and Murray Nelson with dance direction by Clarence Robinson.

The exact package will run until late April at which time it will tour various theaters and cafes all over the country.

Right now, the best chance for its next locale seems to be the Palace Theatre on Broadway.

Other bidders include the Royal Nevada and Dunes and New Frontier in Las Vegas, the Chez Paree in Chicago, and the El Comodoro in Los Angeles. The show will be offered for the highest price ever offered for a package in club offering.

Another possibility is that the Calloway Club will be reopened on the site of what was formerly the Sahara on Broadway.

held until he signed the confession. Police pointed to an answer Bedwell gave when asked why he finally decided to admit the slaying after first denying any knowledge of it. Bedwell said:

"For one thing, because the captain (Walter Fleming) was good to me and was my friend."

Bentley said he had seen pictures of the slaying and that a friend had read stories from the papers and from this knowledge he reconstructed the crime with himself and a friend, "Frank" in it. ## ELEANOR

Write your problem to ELEANOR, 210 Auburn Avenue, N. E., Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Eleanor
I am in high school and I cannot understand why I am not as popular as most of the girls. I am good looking, wear nice clothes and have a "fine line." I see others who are not as attractive as I am, getting the better dates.

Answer: It is somewhat difficult to answer such a question without knowing the person who asks it. Perhaps you are a bit conceited and your companions resent the fact that you consider yourself attractive. An attractive person should have better judgment than to let people know that she considers herself attractive.

Have you ever been with a girl who thinks she has to talk all of the time? Well nothing wears out a person more than stream after stream of senseless chatter. While it is nice to be able to keep a conversation going, the average boy appreciates a good listener much more than he does an incessant talker. A sure-fire hit is to bring the conversation back to the interests or ambition of the fellow.

Then too, if you want to be popular with the boys, don't neglect the girl friends. The girl who attains lasting popularity with boys is usually the one who is also liked by the girls. So be clever and cultivate the friendship of both girls and boys.

Rev. G. Carroll Is Panel Speaker

BALTIMORE, Md. — The Rev. Edward G. Carroll, pastor of Sharp Street Methodist Church here was one of four speakers on a panel which discussed the problem of church integration at the First Presbyterian Church, Monday.

The panel featured the quarterly meeting of the Baltimore Ministerial Union, an interdenominational organization of Protestant ministers of Baltimore and vicinity.

Other speakers were Dr. John B. Fischer, superintendent of Public School Instruction of Baltimore; the Rev. Robert B. Pegram, rector of Holy Trinity Church in suburban Essex, and the Rev. T. Guthrie Speers, minister of the Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Fischer, noted for his leadership in the school integration program in the city in 1954, told of his board's plan not merely to desegregate, but to integrate Baltimore schools fully in the near future.

The Rev. Mr. Pegram told of his experience in serving an integrated church in an urban community in New Jersey. Dr. Speers revealed that his church has had interchange of activities for some time with the Grace Presbyterian Church, a colored congregation. Editors from the respective churches have officiated interchangeably, and Sunday School pupils and teachers have done the same.

The Rev. Mr. Carroll challenged the members to translate talk into action. He told of integration movements among Methodist Churches of the two racial groups, in which areas notable gains have been made, he said, in recent years.

The Negro students at Clinton High School.

"Thanks for a job well done. The folks here are very complimentary and appreciative of your program. We feel you did us a real service."

Jerry Shattuck, President, Clinton Student Council.

The Knoxville News Sentinel, the Knoxville Journal and the Nashville Tennessean, along with many other leading papers throughout the South carried a long wire service syndicated review by Charles Mercer saying, in part, "The citizens of Clinton, Tenn., must be very pleased this week with the fair presentation of their community problem on television by 'See It Now' (It) was superb the finest hour of television journalism in many months."

In Atlanta, Ga. the program was seen—by delayed broadcast—just a few days after the city had had another flare-up in its own bus integration problem.

On the day of the broadcast, the Atlanta Journal and Constitution welcomed the program in advance by saying, "This is part of America speaking, simply and eloquently. This is television at its best, holding a stethoscope to the heart of the people."

"In its review the following day the paper said, 'Television redeemed itself somewhat this season with 'See It Now's plain talk survey of the segregation problem in Clinton Tenn. The drama, written by history, was cast with people in various walks of life and they told their roles in the crisis simply and, for the most part, without heat.'

An editorial in the Washington Post on January 12 referred to "Edward R. Murrow's recent and brilliant 'See It Now' report on Clinton, Tenn."

Harvard Invites Science Teachers To Aid Schools

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Leading scientists of Harvard University will join next year in a new program to stimulate high school science and mathematics.

Some 45 high school teachers will spend the academic year 1957-8 at Harvard in an Institute for Teachers of Science and Mathematics. Cost-of-living grants, including tuition, will be made to the 45 teachers selected as Fellows of the Institute.

Programs of study will be based on Harvard scientific courses modified to meet the special needs of secondary school teachers and supplemented by new offerings directly designed to give the Fellows a broad and stimulating scientific background.

PHYSICIST IS DIRECTOR. Professor Edwin C. Kemble, theoretical physicist with long experience in teaching elementary and advanced scientific courses, will be Director of the Institute. Dr. Kemble has been closely identified with Harvard's physical science since its inception.

Charles A. Condon, now science instructor at Phillips Exeter Academy, will be Assistant Director of the Institute.

The Institute will be under the guidance of a faculty committee of scientists, including Prof. Frank M. Carpenter (biology); Prof. J. Lynn Lingane (chemistry); Prof. J. V. Street (physics); Prof. Fletcher Watson (education) and Associate Dean Judson Shaplin of the Graduate School of Education. The Institute is under the joint sponsorship of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and the Graduate School of Education.

PART OF NATIONAL PROGRAM. The Harvard Academic Year Institute will be one of 16 similar experimental programs planned for 1957-8 at different universities scattered over the country in an attempt to alleviate the shortage of qualified high school teachers of science and mathematics. The Institutes will supplement the work of the shorter summer institutes for high school science teachers recently established. Both the academic year institutes and the summer institutes are sponsored and supported by the National Science Foundation.

The aim is to prepare selected teachers for leadership in science teaching in their school systems. The program is open to experienced teachers of science under fifty years of age, to younger teachers of ability who feel the need for additional background training, and especially to teachers who are under pressure to teach sciences outside the scope of their own basic college training. Applications must be sent in by February 21st.

Each Fellow's program will be worked out on a flexible basis to fit his own needs and aptitudes. Those with a sound basic training in the sciences can pursue advanced studies in the Harvard Laboratories. Others will need scientific courses of a more introductory character.

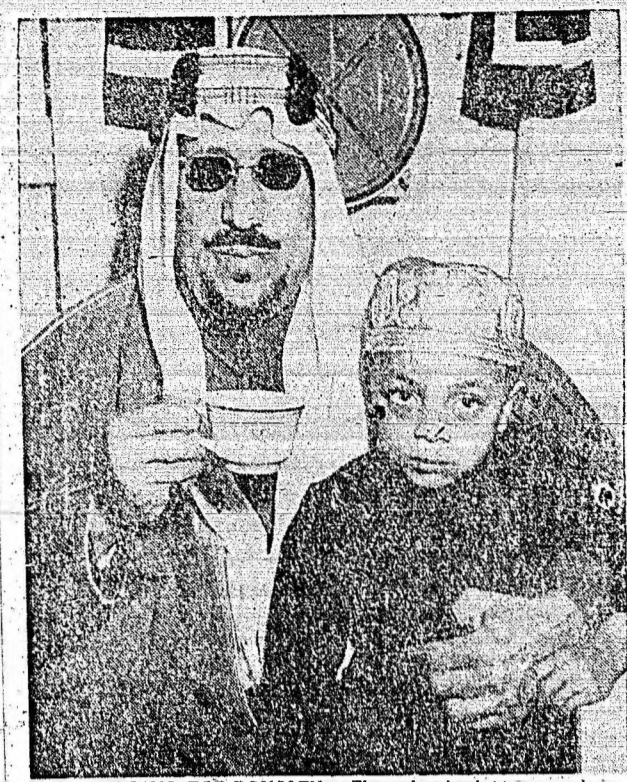

To guide them in the choice of courses and give them needed assistance through the year each of the scientific departments concerned will appoint one or more special advisors: in biology, Dr. Herbert W. Levi; in chemistry, Professor Edwina Ruchow, Associate Professor Leonard K. Nash; and Dr. Stephen S. Winter, Assistant Professor of Chemistry at Northeastern University; in mathematics, Associate Professor Andrew M. Gleason; in physics, Professor Kemble.

NEW COURSES. All Fellows of the Institute will take the following special courses together:

1. A year-long science seminar, led by Professor Kemble, treating special topics in science and mathematics, including teaching problems in the spirit of Harvard's General Education Program. Senior scientists and Institute Fellows will participate.

2. Teaching procedures and the planning of instruction in science and mathematics, with emphasis on the interplay between the two fields. This will be led by Associate Professor Fletcher Watson and Associate Professor Ralph Bentley of the Graduate School of Education (A half course).

3. Supervision and curriculum design in the secondary school

Clues Of Slaying Of Teen Age Sisters Lead To Home

CHICAGO — (INS) — The search for clues in the mysterious slaying of two teen age Chicago sisters narrowed to the immediate vicinity of their home Friday in the belief that the girls were virtually kidnapped from their doorstep.

Investigators said they have traced the sisters Barbara Grimes, 15, and Patricia, 13, right up to the last few minutes of their lives with evidence now considered vital in the case since engine holes were punched in the stoned confession of Edward L. (Benjie) Bestwell.

Two teen-age boys, who had known the sisters for five months, said they saw Barbara and Patricia at about 11:30 p. m. Dec. 26 in two blocks of the Grimes home.

That was the night the girls left home and attended a neighborhood theater. Their nude bodies were found Jan. 22 in a frozen suburban ditch in Willow Springs.

A tax collector's report indicated the pair died within five hours of the time they left home.

The two boys, Earl Zastro, 15, and Edward Lorden, 17, told police on Dec. 31 of seeing the Grimes sisters, but officials tended to disconnect their evidence at the time.

Another witness, Joseph Rocco, 30, whose recollection was described by police as "very clear and important," said he saw a young man who looked like Patricia being forced into a car in the Grimes neighborhood shortly after midnight Dec. 26.

Rocco added that a well-dressed woman and a man in work clothes who stood nearby also witnessed the abduction and police began making radio and newspaper appeals for the witness to "come forward."

Meanwhile, Bestwell, 21, an illiterate, skirt-law dishwasher, who repudiated his signed confession as "a lie, a criminal, can't work no place on a writ of habeas corpus."

He is being held on two Federal charges of murder.

Bentley told the court that he was not with the Grimes sisters at any time and that he signed the confession because he "was a scared of getting caught up" by police.

Both Sides Of The Bias Picture At Clinton Shown

NEW YORK — (ANP) — Presenting both sides of a bitterly controversial issue without drawing outraged accusations of partiality and bias—especially in a full hour television broadcast—is a rare and difficult feat.

But, according to letters, wires and newspaper clippings that have been streaming in to CBS Television offices during the past week the network's noted "See It Now" series seems to have achieved this goal with room to spare in its presentation of "Clinton and the Law: A Study in Desegregation" last January 6, over CBS Television Network.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

WARNING AND INVITATION

International Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 10, 1957 MEMOBY SELECTION: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me."

Matthew 11: 28-29

To get the background for our lesson, we should read the whole of the eleventh chapter of Matthew. From it, we can see the effects of Jesus' preaching on John the Baptist, who at the time was in prison as a result of his outspoken denunciation of the kind of life the King, Herod, was living.

There, in confinement, depressed physically and mentally, out of touch with events, a question as to the real identity of Jesus arouses in his mind and so John sent an inquiry by two of his own disciples to Jesus asking, "Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?" In answer to the question Jesus invited the visitors to look about them. The blind were being healed the lame were walking, the dead were being raised so the proof was recited, and in the climax, the gospel was being preached to the world. That was certainly convincing testimony for the visiting friends to carry back to John in confirmation of his own earlier inspiration as to whom Jesus was.

Then Jesus paid his wonderful tribute to John the Baptist a mighty man for righteousness, not need shaken by the wind, but a prophet whose coming had been foretold by the prophets. No man had been greater, declared Jesus, who added that the least in the new kingdom would be greater, however, not in material things, but in opportunity and privilege for spiritual truths.

Then, taking up the scripture for our lesson, Jesus issued a severe warning to the unbelieving generation. Jesus pointed out that John had been stern, austere uncompromising, and had been rejected. Now, he (Jesus) came sociable and free, and the people accused him of being a winebibber and a glutton, and as such they rejected him. People, then, as now, were simply so busy with the accumulation of money and the pursuit of pleasure that they were lacking in spiritual development, uninterested, and more concerned with worldly things. Their inconsistency and the childish stubbornness toward religion reminded Jesus of spoiled children who sat in the market place and would not play no matter what game was suggested. Nothing pleased them. How familiar that sounds today!

The wise plan of the Father revealed truth to simple-hearted, conscientious seekers and denied it to the worldly wise and proud. For this, Jesus expressed his thanks.

All things were revealed to him,

but not to all men—only those to whom he would pass it, depending upon the spiritual growth of the man.

Then Jesus delivered his wonderful invitation. It is still true that nothing perhaps is more needed in this restless world of ours than rest. Not especially rest of body, but rest of mind and soul. In the turmoil and strife of this life, with its cares and burdens, what could be more comforting to us than to hear the Master's words, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Jesus was thinking of the weary, over-burdened people in his day, who, seeking the rest of God, had only become more heavily burdened by the ritualistic formalities laid upon them by the religious leaders of their day.

The use of the word "yoke" was familiar to the Jews in their writings. Such language was only a figurative way of saying, "Submit yourselves unto my teachings and learn from me those things which were made in order to have rest."

Something New--A Modern Country Club For Negroes

BY ALYSON E. WISE

Initial plans are well underway, and as a result, Negroes of Memphis and the Mid-South area will in the near future possess the nation's finest in an ultra-deluxe country club and residential development which until last Friday was an undreamed-of event.

William B. Wolfe, president of the Wolfe Building Co., 2065 Union, announced that his company had acquired option, a site consisting of 240 acres with 4500 feet frontage on the west line of Horn Lake Road and also 3000 feet on the north line of Holmes Road.

Mr. Wolfe went on to say that with the completion of the project, Memphis and Mid-South Negroes will have both social and home facilities on par, if not finer, than any one group either in this section or in the nation.

It has been learned that there is a country club for Negroes in the New York metropolitan area of New York, Lincoln Country Club in Atlanta, and if there are any others east of the Mississippi River.

Under supervision of Lakeview Management Co., Inc., a Wolfe operating company will develop 110 acres and over-see construction of club facilities. Development of the residential section will be handled by other corporations, Mr. Wolfe declared.

STARTS THIS SUMMER

It was announced that construction on the huge development will get underway early this summer if present plans materialize.

Mr. Wolfe plans said that he intends to go before the planning Commission soon to present the entire proposition. If the principles are approved, he will meet with the commission for detailed approval of each parcel in turn.

EMPHASIS ON CULTURE

"We hope the club will become the cultural center of Memphis and the Mid-South for colored people," Mr. Wolfe stated.

FEES ANNOUNCED

Life family memberships in the club are being offered at $500, and to individual members at $300, Mr. Wolfe said.

He further revealed that no dues would be applicable until the club is in actual operation. The situation then to depend on club members, probably $10-$15 per month.

Families or individuals wishing detailed information may obtain such by calling the office number, not yet listed BR 5-3130.

FED. COURT PETITIONED ON BUSES

BATON ROUGE, La. — (INS) — Six Baton Rouge Negroes — three ministers and three physicians — Monday petitioned for a Federal court judgment declaring segregated bus seating unconstitutional.

The petition, based on the Federal constitution and decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court, asked for a declaratory judgment on the constitutionality of the city's segregated bus seating ordinance and for a temporary injunction restraining enforcement of the ordinance.

This suit follows a similar filing in New Orleans last week.

Rev. T. Jenkins, who two years ago led a successful boycott of Baton Rouge city buses, was among the petitioners.

Other petitioners were the Revs. Edward Brown and Felton Hithens, and three doctors, Dupuy Anderson, Curtis Gilliam and Lewis James. Atty. Gen. Jack Gremlinn immediately issued a statement saying he was convinced that the present city ordinances, which require Negroes to sit from the rear to the front and separated from white passengers, is "constitutional and will be found so."

Solon Hits At Beer Sales To Teen-Agers

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Rep. Walter Norblad (R) Ore., complained Tuesday that 17-year-olds can apparently buy all the beer they want at army stores.

The Congressman told army secretary Wilber Brucker and Gen. Maxwell Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, that a 17-year-old whom he identified only as a relative, advised him of this.

He said the youth was stationed first at Ft. Knox, Ky., where he participated in the army's six-month basic training program for boys of 17 to 18 and one-half.

Norblad told Brucker and Taylor at a House Armed Services Subcommittee hearing on reserves that "this young man found he could purchase all the beer he wanted at the army PX."

The Congressman said he wrote Taylor about the situation, but received no reply. He added that when the young man was transferred to Aberdeen, Md., the youth found that the same situation existed there. Norblad added: "But the boys couldn't buy beer in Maryland off the camp because it was against the law to sell it to them."

He said he visited both PX's and saw beer sold to minors. Taylor said the situation was being looked into as Norblad warned that "your six months' training program will be in trouble if something like this happens elsewhere."

Afterwards, Norblad told newsmen that he first wrote to Taylor last October when his relative was stationed at Fort Knox.

In December, the boy was transferred to Aberdeen, but Norblad said he did not formally file a second complaint.

Norblad remarked after the hearing: "If a 21-year-old soldier wants to spend the afternoon in a beer joint, I have no reason to object. But I think 17 is a little too young

We Should Appeal Again To The Congress

The announcement of Senator Hennings, Chairman of the Committee on Constitutional Rights, that hearings will commence on February 12th, at 10 A. M. on the controversial Civil Rights measures, should be of grave concern to every lover of liberty and justice.

At any rate it is interesting that such a hearing has been planned. While there are certain to be those who will appear with opposition arguments, there are bound to be those otherwise tolerant who will bring briefs on many reasons in favor of the proposed measure.

Newspaper files are full of infractions on Civil Rights. One has but to go through a few volumes to find mention of many cases, discussed, "investigated" and "passed up" while other infractions such as the Till murder case and the Walton county killing of two couples taken from jail and massacred, may be coupled with interest.

There are instances of bombing, intimidation of those who wanted to vote and otherwise challenging voters to keep them away from the polls.

These are little prompters for those who might wish to appear in favor of the bill or, would otherwise send letters to Senator Thomas C. Hennings' Committee. Senators Knowland and Johnson should also be informed of our concern.

The President of the United States enunciated a Civil Rights policy upon his taking up of public office; he has reemphasized this question in his messages to the Congress.

Finding that the reach of the federal courts is difficult and long drawn out, the plan is to shorten the route by making it permissible for one to go right into federal court with an injunction which would immediately place an offender in such position as in contempt of court.

Senator Knowland seems to have the know-how on this close business and it appears that the talkfests will be worn down to the bricks if needs be in order to bring this legislation to book.

A service might be rendered should those who have instances which would enhance the cause of Civil Justice, to avail themselves of the opportunity of dropping Senator Thomas C. Hennings' committee a line. This may be addressed to his office, Washington, D. C.

Let those who have long awaited this opportunity, make the most of it.

King Saud Comes To U. S.

It is quite in keeping with the accustomed ethics of this country touching the relations of state that President Eisenhower has warmly welcomed King Saud of Arabia to this country.

The wealthy monarch probably overlooked what was possibly intended for a slur on the part of certain recalcitrant New Yorkers. That was unfortunate and hardly would it commend itself to the cherished custom of tolerance and due regard for nations and their sanctions, customs and religions.

Safely, the plush entertainment and high ceremonies at the Washington Airport, would more nearly bespeak this nation's sentiment and the temper of the chief executive than would the cool reception afforded in New York.

It cannot be denied that the unfortunate affair at New York was the same pattern seeking to assert itself in this country on another front. These correspondents must have gained their tutelage from some of the discussions going the rounds in those quarters which suggest circumvention, underground methods to defeat common justice and outright defiance of those measures with which they disagreed.

King Saud is at least symbol of world order; he is an avowed foe of communism and for this latter fact alone we can ill afford to offend him or his country.

Keep The Distinction

In the working out of the segregation issue it is already exceedingly difficult—and is likely to continue to be so—to differentiate between action taken primarily because of race and action taken for a complex of reasons among which race may be one. This problem has come to the fore in the sequel to the Autherine Lucy case.

A year ago, it will be recalled, Miss Autherine Lucy, (now Mrs. Hugh Foster), a young Birmingham, Alabama, Negro, was admitted to the University of Alabama on authority of a federal court order. Disorders followed, and the university suspended Miss Lucy, "for her own safety."

On petition, the federal court ordered her reinstatement, at the same time dismissing charges made by her organ in her behalf that trustees and officials of the university had "conspired" with the mob to drive her from the campus.

These charges, apparently, were acutely embarrassing to NAACP headquarters, which by that time had entered the case. Miss Lucy's attorneys conceded they could not prove the charges.

The university readmitted Miss Lucy, and promptly expelled her permanently for making "outrageous false, and baseless accusations" against the institution's administration. This expulsion has now been upheld and with it, by implication, the right of university officials to take disciplinary action.

As an answer to those who might argue that the university would not have been so severe had Miss Lucy been white stands the fact that it expelled at the same time a young white inciter of the mob also for "unwarranted and outrageous public attacks" on college officials.

Reading racism into situations indiscriminately can do about as much harm as actually introducing it.

REVIEWING THE NEWS BY WILLIAM GORDON Managing Editor Atlanta Daily World

Symbols Of The American Ideal...

Competition is far from being just a word to be linked with a hollow phrase; its meaning runs deep into human feeling. One cannot but admire the words of a young white sports editor who said:

"There is more democracy and good race relations in athletics than in any other American institution." There is no doubt that this point of view can be traced to the thinking of many Americans who view our ideals of democracy in light of reality instead of the superficial.

In light of the young editor's reasoning, one cannot keep from touching on some aspects of the recent sports jamboree, the One Hundred Per Cent Wrong Club's annual dinner, whose roster carried the names of some of America's top athletes. As we sat, watching these young men and women share in the honors given them, I am sure that many in the audience were touched with the deep meaning of competition.

Many of us looked, not so much at the outstanding achievement made by these young people as we did at the difficulties, the barriers, the hidden obstacles that cloud the paths of many who strive for equality and recognition. The real story could not be told in a few words; not even in the awards and the praises. This was not only the story of the Negro and his struggles for human dignity, but the story of America in a fuller meaning.

One did not have to strain his imagination to sense the respect and cooperation athletes get from people of different racial groups. The act of competition brings out the more genuine elements of the individual; much of which reflects through the entire program of athletics.

The competitive spirit, it seems has brought America closer to the real meaning of its teachings and concepts. For out of this climate, you get an entirely different kind of person. You get the kind like the young white football player who also had an admiration for jazz music.

"I don't care what color a man's skin is. If he can play music, I'd sit next to him in any band."

Competition is born out of individual incentive, void of prejudice. The more enlightened person likes to compete in order that he sharpens his own deficiencies. It is generally accepted that a culture without its competitive forces, one without a challenge becomes a dying way of life, stagnated by the roots of its own prejudices.

The young athletes, honored by the One Hundred Per Cent Wrong Club in Atlanta Friday, represent that part of America, still alive and moving toward a future that will respect with equal dignity, all mankind. They represent the symbol of the free world; they are what the young sports editor called an era in which the whole world is rising out of superstition and fear of a period of enlightenment, a time when democracy will have its greatest meaning. It's interesting that it took the spirit of athletics to lead the way.

165 YEARS LONG

House is in session in the afternoon. "I am opposed to any efforts, by direction or induction, to extend these hearings," Keating said.

But Brownell disagreed. He said the authority of the Federal Government had no right to act unless state laws were discriminatory.

Willis protested Brownell's use of the word "subterfuge." He said state laws need provide for non-discriminatory opportunity to vote.

Willis tried to get Brownell to answer a hypothetical question as to whether he would act under the proposed legislation if a student should come to him with a complaint that a school board had improperly assigned him to a school or deprived him of his rights under the Supreme Court decision.

The Attorney General said, however, that he considered the Hoxie, Ark., as illustrative of the type of case where the Justice Department would intervene.

In Hoxie, he explained, the school board integrated the schools, but outside individuals came in and threatened the superintendent and members of the school board with violence.

The Federal District Court, Brownell said, believed this to be a violation of law and asked the assistance of the Justice Department. "We went in there as a friend of the court and supported the courageous action of the school board in complying with the Supreme Court decision," Brownell said, adding:

"We argued in the Court of Appeals, and the court upheld the act."

Keating urged the committee to pass the bill as a "package" and without any "substantial amendment."

Saud Endorses

"with the cooperation of our friend, the United States." Saud said he has "hopes" that his talks with Mr. Eisenhower aimed at obtaining U. S. military aid for his country will be successful.

The king's remarks reflected the feeling held by U. S. officials that his visit to the U. S. has been a resounding success.

Mr. Eisenhower told his news conference earlier that the king's visit has advanced the cause of peace in the Middle East.

Before Saud spoke out, Lebanon assured the President it will support his plan. The assurances came from President Chamoun of Lebanon in a personal letter to Mr. Eisenhower which was delivered by Lebanese foreign minister, Dr. Charles Mal'k.

Saud's endorsement of the Eisenhower doctrine is likely to change the whole political picture in the Arab world.

Saudi Arabia, with a 300 million dollar yearly income from the Arabian-American Oil Company, in the past has frequently played the role of financier for the ambitions and projects of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Nasser along with the rulers of Syria and Jordan, has opposed the Eisenhower doctrine as just another form of imperialism. Saud's approval of the plan means that the government presented by the Government, that it was perfectly proper for the Department of Justice to step in and uphold the constitutional rights of colored children in that community.

"I am glad to say that the school is now back on an integrated basis and everything is proceeding peacefully."

Brownell also told Willis that it was his opinion that the Keating bill did not increase the jurisdiction of the Justice Department in connection with primary elections.

Willis contended that the language was broad enough to cover selection of candidates by party convention.

Brownell explained that the Justice Department now has authority to commence criminal proceedings where there are conspiracies to violate civil rights or where civil rights violations occur under "color of law."

He said the Department can use the present statutes only (1) where there are included one or more Federal officers and where winning the primary is tantamount to winning the election, or where the primary is an integral part of the election process, and (2) where persons who act under color of law deprive persons of Federally-secured rights.

In the prepared statement he read to the committee, Brownell said the "turbulent events and unfortunate incidents" which have occurred since the House last year passed the Administration's proposals "have not demonstrated any need for revision, but have underscored the need for early enactment of this program."

Throughout his testimony he emphasized the importance of the right to vote. "The right to vote is itself the very life-blood of representative government," the Attorney General said.

"Civil proceedings to stop illegal interferences and denials of the right to vote would be far more effective in achieving the goal of safeguarding the free exercise of this most valuable right than the criminal proceedings now authorized by law," Brownell declared.

He pointed out that criminal sanctions are the only remedies specifically authorized by the Congress.

"Extremists on either hand will not be satisfied" with the Administration's proposals, Brownell said adding:

"But they will go far to make a living reality of the pledges of equality under law which are embodied in the Constitution."

The Keating bill would create a bipartisan civil rights commission: in the executive branch of the Government and a civil rights division in the Justice Department. It also would give the Attorney General authority to bring civil suits to prevent interference with the right to vote or violations of civil rights.

Mr. Keating urged the committee to approve his bill as a "package" and without any "substantial amendment."

The proposed civil rights commission cannot be stripped of its subpoena powers "without vitiating its effectiveness," he said. He called the provision authorizing the Attorney General to bring civil suits for civil rights violations "the keystone of the whole program recommended by the President."

In testifying, Mr. Roosevelt urged approval of fair employment practice legislation as well as other civil rights bills.

His testimony brought from Mr. Keating the remark that FEPC legislation did not come before the Judiciary Committee but would probably go to the House Education and Labor Committee of which Mr. Roosevelt is a member.

Mr. Keating suggested that Mr. Roosevelt might be able to exercise some influence over the chairman of that committee, Representative Graham A. Barden, Democrat, of North Carolina, who is opposed to all civil rights legislation.

A Rule For Brotherhood

BY OVETA CULP HOBBS This is published in the Interest of Brotherhood Week, February 17-24, sponsored by the National Conference of Christian and Jews.

The one drawback to annual observances of any kind is that out of habititude, we tend to become phrasemakers who no longer listen to our own pet phrases.

In all the editorials and speeches which will be made before this week is done, the word "brotherhood" rolls off again and again until it sounds easy.

But brotherhood doesn't come in a package. It is not a commodity to be taken down from the shelf with one hand—it is accomplishment of soul-searching, prayer and perseverance.

Brotherhood takes self-aware practice. The rule of thumb is a simple one: Regard each man and woman as an individual. Not as a Catholic, a Protestant or a Jew. Not as a Negro Anglo-Saxon or Asiatic.

Look at the person—the character and personality of this human being. Like or dislike that person for his own intrinsic qualities, and refuse to tinge that judgment by the irrelevant fact that he belongs to a different race or religion from your own.

The spontaneous feeling of brotherhood is a mark of human maturity. Many illiterate people have an instinctive recognition of brotherhood which is a thing of the spirit. The American Indians, when they found a white man

Nasser may have to change his mind or, otherwise, may find himself without an Arabian banker. The king, on other questions, said:

The prospects for peace between the Arab states and Israel rests on "implementation of the resolutions and charter of the United Nations." He presumably was referring to the U. N. vote calling upon Israel to withdraw from the Gaza Strip and the rest of the Sinai Peninsula.

Asked whether he believes that communism is a threat to the Middle East Saud replied he "think that the Arab world is well aware of its own interests and hopes to keep its own traditions."

CHAPTER 20

STEVE started for the recording machine when he heard his own voice issue from it. I headed him off, pushed him down on the love seat.

"Oh, no, you don't!" I said. "We'll leave it on." "Connie, listen..." "Yes, listen!" I put my hand over his mouth. "I want to hear every word of this!"

Anita: ... just one more drink; shall we? Steve: No, I don't think so. Anita: What's your rush? Steve: I've got to get home and spend the evening with Connie.

I said, "Oh, no, don't let me stand in your way!" "Connie!" Anita: ... must be very lovely. Why she like, Steve?

Steve: About five-five, weighs a hundred and twenty-two. She's right handed. Throws and bats right handed. Anita: (Laughing) Steve ... don't you, darling. Sit down for just one minute.

Steve: Well, one more cigarette. I said bitterly, "And you promised me you'd cut down on your smoking." Steve: ... charming apartment, real cozy.

Anita: So glad you like it. But it can be very lonely. Steve: I don't believe it. A girl like you.

Anita: I'm being quite serious. In my job I meet dozens of men, but so seldom do I meet anyone ... well, I'm so pleased you decided to come to the Crescent School.

Steve: (Bantering) Gee, I hope I make the team! Anita: There's one team you've already made, darling ... (a pause) There ... that's nicer, isn't it?

I shouted, "What's going on here? What happened? What's nicer?" "She put a pillow behind my back." "I'll murder her..." "That's already been done."

"Quiet!" But the tape had run out. I watched the machine automatically click to a stop. I turned back to my husband. I pinioned him with my eyes. He cringed back into the love seat.

"Steve," I said, "I'm not going to ask you what happened." "Nothing happened! I left!" "No," I said calmly. "I won't ask you. Although Anita was thoroughly unscrupulous, immoral, amoral, really, she was obviously fascinating, irresistible. So I don't blame you, Steve..."

"Listen!" he shouted. "Anita twisted her ankle dancing with me. It was my fault. I took her home, helped her up the stairs."

I held up my hand. "May I continue? Thank you. And in all fairness to Anita, I don't blame her. Inherent weakness in your character, you have a certain animal attractiveness and a fatherly sneaky charm that appeals to a certain class of women."

"Connie, listen..." "So Anita probably saw that she might combine some genuine pleasure with her business. In this case rather small business yet."

Stubby: Not for Stubby, it's not young. That's cause I'm drunk. Anita: No, you're not. Stubby: Sure I am. Very, very drunk. Tonight's the night to get drunk. Everybody should get drunk tonight. Why aren't you drunk? It's your duty.

Anita: Stubby, wake up! Please, Stubby. Stubby: Tired, so tired. Anita: Here, Stubby, this'll make you feel better, this'll wake you up. Stubby: Don't like Scotch ... I'm a Bourbon baby.

Anita: Here's to us, Stubby ... bottom's up. There, now you can talk to me, can't you? Walter didn't fall out that window, did he? Stubby: Who cares about Walter?

Anita: You did the world a favor, think of it that way. Stubby: Sure, but me ... I do the world favors. But did the world ever do anything for me? Since I was a little kid at my mother's knee? Nah. You can have the world. It's off my list. Anita: You should get a medal for giving Walter that little push. Stubby: What good's a medal? Or do you mean a gold medal? Anita: That took a lot of courage.

Clerics Rap Governor For Handling Of Race Tension

RICHMOND, Va. — (ANP) — The Richmond Ministers Association, an interracial body, last adopted a resolution last week almost unanimously criticizing Governor Thomas Stanley and the Virginia legislature for "their exceedingly inept handling of the current racial situation."

The 1,500-word statement of the association, according to a spokesman; is designed as a credo for a rallying point for Virginians, white and colored who are opposed to the governor's no-integration plan and the anti-NAACP bills which were passed by the General Assembly last year.

The statement, adopted at a meeting attended by about 60 Richmond ministers, states:

The legislature "has taken long strides toward a vindictive, dictatorial way of government, foreign to our traditions and guaranteeing years of tension and tragedy among the citizens of Virginia. The statement said further:

"It is not our wish to deprecate, as individuals, these in public office who have brought our state to this tragic situation. However, these men have taken a grave problem having significant moral and religious overtones and coerced their own solution without due consideration of either moral or religious teaching.

failed to bring them. Meanwhile, a court order suspending application of the law to one Negro student has resulted in the conditional acceptance of registration of more than 30 Negroes. Once the temporary injunction is lifted, however, the Certificate Law will again be enforced.

A companion law permits the discharge of any school official who aids integration, such as by issuance of such a certificate to a Negro.

There are four Negro students presently enrolled, who have obtained certificates from out of state.

NAACP Raps D. C. Taxi Cab Bias

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has protested "persistent racial discrimination" by Diamond Cab drivers at the Washington terminal.

Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington Bureau, informed Hack Inspector Francis H. Dunn that Diamond drivers were often "surely and recklessly" in their treatment of Negro passengers. Sometimes they avoid taking a Negro fare altogether.

Sigmas Honor Twelve

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has announced that twelve members of the organization have been honored by the NAACP for their contributions to the cause of racial equality.
