

PRAYERS AT WORK
Nov 17-21, 2008

Monday, November 17, 2008 -- (Meditation: John 3:16)

God, when death holds no threat, every day is more joyful. When I know I am heaven-bound, I can live more patiently along the way. When I live as a pilgrim in this world, I can keep everything in perspective. When I know where I will spend eternity, I can face life, no matter the circumstance. And when I remember the sacrifice of Your Son on the Cross, every day is a day of grace and love. God, thank You for Your blessings! In Jesus' name. Amen.

Tuesday, November 18, 2008 -- (Meditation: I Timothy 6:7-10)

Dear God, money, health, success and being in control mean too much to me. I cling to them. It scares me even to THINK about losing them. But if I could drop these addictions, what would my life be like? Would I feel scared and alone, or would I feel free? Would I be a misfit, or would I be a new, whole person, with more confidence? Would I be irresponsible, or would I be MORE responsive? God, dare I give over my addictions to You?

Wednesday, November 19, 2008 -- (Meditation: John 14:25-27)

God, I'm amazed at what happens when I spend time with You. In this quiet time, You expand my vision and deepen my sense of wonder. In this quiet time, I know myself better. I have new insights into problems. I have focus, and balance, and harmony. I understand more about life, and more about You. Thank You, God, for giving me so much of Yourself. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Thursday, November 20, 2008 -- (Meditation: Philippians 1:9-11)

Almighty God, You make all things new (Rev 21:5). How should I change to be made new? Help me to distinguish between what is good and timeless, and what is superficial and empty. Which family values and traditions are worth holding onto, and which are shallow and selfish? What is genuine and true about my relationships at work, and what is false? Help me to discern what is truly important. God, help me to cast-off the evil in my life, and to cling to the things that YOU value. Through Jesus Christ, my Lord. Amen.

Friday, November 21, 2008 -- (Meditation: Isaiah 64:8)

God, when I pray with a yielded heart, following Your will is no longer fighting against my own will. It is simply letting go . . . emptying myself to You . . . trusting You . . . yielding to You. When I do this, I realize that prayer is not about me, but about You. You are the Potter -- I am the clay. O God, thank You for Your loving, caring, all-sufficient will. In Jesus' name. Amen.
