Men's, Women's Councils Set New Fall Rush Rules

The Women's Panhellenic Council held its last meeting September 25 in the Bell Room. At this meeting some fall rush rules were changed and some new ones adopted. The major alteration of these rules was that the violations of all rules must be reported to a member of the Pan Council within 48 hours after the matter has been brought to the attention of a sorority member.

Another change in the practices of rush is the manner of matching the bids with the rushees preferences. This will be done in the future by a Memphis lawyer instead of the Memphis Panhellenic Council.

The following rules are binding for all unaffiliated new women students, and all women affiliated with sororities, both actives and alumnae, until after the formal rushing period, December 3 and 4.

New students may not spend the night with women affiliated with sororities.

No money may be spent on new students by women affiliated with sororities except when approved by Pan Council.

New students may not enter sorority houses except for student body events until after pledging.

Dates are not to be arranged for, or double dates with new unaffiliated women students.

The Men's Panhellenic has the following rules in effect now until after pledging on October 7.

No upperclassman, except his roommate, may enter a new student's room between ten p.m. and 7:30 a.m. from September 20 to October 7.

No new men students may enter the fraternity house except for a rush party, or a student body function until after pledging.

From 11 p.m. Tuesday, October 6, until after pledging October 7, a quiet period will be in effect. No more than a passing "hello" may be exchanged between fraternity members and new students.

Band Needs Players

"Considering the number of freshmen enrolled in band and their exceptional ability, the band has the best prospects it has had in six years." Jack Funkhouser, director, made this statement at the first band rehearsal of the year, Thursday, Sept. 24. As soon as the band is organized and capable, he plans to take the group to out-of-town football games. He strongly urges all students who play musical instruments to support the band and the football team by attending the rehearsals at 7:00 Thursday nights.

Bob McClure, a senior member of the band, welcomed the new students and reminded them of how important the success of this organization is to any school. After the rehearsal refreshments were served.

The new members enrolled in band are Sallie Jane Dickerson, Diana Warren, Ronald Branyan, Harriet Byrd, Harry Masterson, Jimmy McCaulla, Bob Lawrence, Richard Teaford, Jim Holmes, Lewis Bledsoe, Dan Adams, and Tom Huff. Former members present were Mary Margaret Storck, Frances VanCleave, Dewey Harrison, Gene Fowinkle, Bob McClure, Jo Ann Pomeroy, Jean Johnson, and Elaine Vickrey.

Balfour Here

A display of Balfour jewelry will be in the Lynx Lair Wednesday Oct. 7. Vic Vanaman is their representative.

All sorority and fraternity jewelry is included in the Balfour Collection.

McQuiston Says

Prof. J. R. McQuiston, director of publicity, requests that the publicity chairmen of all social and other organizations that wish notices of members' honors or achievements to be sent to home-town newspapers to turn in lists of the names and honors to the Publicity Office in the Office of Development. These lists may also be given to Wiley Umphlett, who is in charge of mailing the notices.

Council Minutes

Religious Emphasis Week will be held Oct. 25-28, Al Evans, Commissioner of Religion, reported to the Student Council at its last meeting Sept. 24. A candle-lighting service will be held following the last service on Wednesday.

A Social Committee headed by the social commissioner will be formed with a representative from each social organization and each of the two independent organizations. The duties of this group will include interpreting social rules, making dates for parties, and seeing that blanks are filled out. The committee will also take charge of decorations for Homecoming, the Christmas Party, and the April Fool Carnival.

Reg Germany, Commissioner of Athletics, announced that the "S" Club will sell programs at the games this year. The Council voted for the money left in the SABA treasury to be transferred to the "S" Club.

Joe Eades announced that the second-hand book store will make a net gain of approximately $10.00. The Council voted that the $3.50 spent on the entertainment at the freshman mixer and $4.00 for hoodies for the Sanhedrin be taken out of the profit.

A Commission for the Budget was appointed, to be composed of Millye Bunn, Mary Williams, and Jean Enochs.

Church, Civic, Educational Leaders to Attend Formal Dedication of Library

Leaders of the church, the city government, the college and the library, students and their parents, alumni, representatives of educational groups, and friends of Southwestern will be present on Thursday, October 8, at 8 p.m. to witness the formal dedication of the A. K. Burrow library.

Dr. Clarence H. Faust of New York, president of the Fund for Advancement of Education which is sponsored by the Ford Foundation, will present the principal address. Dr. Faust is a former Dean of the University of Chicago and its graduate library and has been director of libraries, dean of humanities and sciences and acting president of Stanford University.

Master of Ceremonies

The program for which Southwestern President Peyton N. Rhodes is master of ceremonies will begin with the Invocation by Dr. John S. Land, vice-chairman of the Southwestern Board of Directors. Dr. Laurence F. Kinney will read the Scripture, and Dr. Frank W. Price, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, will give a brief expression of thanks from the church for the new building.

Mayor Frank Tobey and Dean A. Theodore Johnson will give similar expressions on behalf of the city and the college. A brief ceremony centering around the unlocking of the door will follow. Professor John Henry Davis will lead a litany of dedication, and President-Emeritus Charles E. Diehl will give the prayer of dedication.

Following the principal address and the singing of the Alma Mater, the Right Reverend Theodore N. Bantly, Bishop Coadjutor for the Episcopal Diocese of Tennessee, will give the benediction.

After the dedication, an informal reception will be held in the circulation area on the main floor. The library will be open for inspection. Guides will conduct tours of the building, and members of the faculty and library staff will be in attendance to explain various operational phases. Also, refreshments will be served in the Adult Education Center in the north wing of the ground floor.

Tour Sights

Some of the many features of the imposing new structure which will be brought to the attention of the visitors will include the acoustical tile ceilings and asphalt tile floors which reduce noise to a minimum; the Treasure Room which houses a rare Oriental Collection given to the school by Miss Floy Hanson; six soundproof practice rooms; student, faculty, and library staff lounges; seminar, study group, and tutorial rooms.

The library contains six levels of stacks with a capacity of 200,000 volumes. There is a trophy room, workrooms and a kitchenette for the staff, and a large and luxuriously furnished Adult Education Room.

Reading Rooms

In addition to the reading and periodical rooms which have a capacity of about 150, there are 66 individual study carrels complete with desks and adjustable fluorescent lamps.

The whole purpose of the new

Cast Chosen For New Play

Those named for major roles in the forthcoming production of "Behold the Star" have been announced by Prof. Ray Hill. Jennie Lee Davis has been selected to play the aging star, Lenora, of the Baldwin family of Broadway. Jennie Lee is familiar to most Southwestern students for her numerous roles in past productions.

The ingenue lead is being taken by Frances Marshall of Memphis, a newcomer to the Southwestern stage . . . John McKinney starred in last year's production of Philip Barry's "Spring Dance," and supplies Frances romantic interest. Playing the perpetually upstaged husband, Dan Adams has his first role on Southwestern's stage.

Others in the cast that are new to Southwestern are Bill Seeds, the harassed producer, Gerry Whittman, the stoic maid, and Grace Villee, the rival actress.

As a result of a superb piece of type casting, exchange student Michel Paradis will play a very French set designer.

Appearing again in a Southwestern production will be Margaret McKee as the stage struck maid, and Anne Thomas as the Eve Arden-type secretary.

There are several roles yet to be cast. Anyone who is at all interested in the stage is urged to contact Professor Hill.

building is expressed by the entablature over the main entrance which shows the seven liberal arts—rhetoric, logic, grammar, geometry, astronomy, arithmetic and music. Over these is a Bible superimposed on a cross to represent theology, the Queen of the Arts. It is these cross purposes which make life at Southwestern what it is.

Smoking Permitted—

It is lamentable that the people of the United States as a whole cannot assimilate what they read. This fact has been proven time and time again by means of public tests such as Selective Service, Armed Forces Qualification, and others. But are Southwestern students guilty of this, too?

On the coffee table in the beautiful Browsing Room of the Burrow Library is a notice which states, in effect, that the Browsing Room is for browsing and nothing else. It further states that smoking is permitted. Yet we persist in using the room for study—sometimes for conversation, but mostly for study. Why is this? It is not because there is not ample room for study; there is probably more study room in the Burrow Library than in all the dormitories combined. It might be because of the beauty and comfort of the room,—no one can deny that it is lovely. Or is it because we cannot understand the notice? Personally, we believe none of these reasons is correct.

It is our opinion that the reason for the abuse of the Browsing Room is because it is the only place in the library that we can smoke and study at the same time. Miss Marsh suggested to the library committee some time ago that we be allowed to smoke in the carrels on a specified level in the stacks, but the suggestion was turned down.

It is our belief that a change in the rules would eliminate the congestion in the Browsing Room.

Progress—

It is with a great deal of pleasure that the editors express their thanks to Dean Johnson and the rest of the faculty responsible for the changes in excusing and reporting absences. We have felt that a change has been necessary for some time, and these present rules seem to encompass and tend to eliminate all difficulties that were so prevalent in the old system.

We are particularly glad that the old rule requiring that a student use up his allowed number of absences before he can excuse them has been scrapped. Outside of the hardship it worked on the Dean by creating a mass of people in his office at the end of each semester, it was necessary for each student to keep an elaborate personal record of absence dates.

The freshmen have been spared, and the upperclassmen are thankful.

Gratitude—

When the World Series begins, most Americans who are able cease their labors for a few hours in the afternoon and cluster around radio or television sets for returns on the games. It is hard to believe that a sport like baseball draws people together in a way that no religion ever has; and with a closeness that rivals any fraternity or sorority group. As long as a stranger is a "fan" (be he on your side or not) he is accepted by the aficionado as a person who possesses something they possess. He can be richer or poorer or taller or shorter or older or younger or even a different nationality, and we still feel a little closer to him because he loves the game.

This year, as last, Charlie Pack has arranged for a television set to be placed in the Lynx Lair for the enjoyment of the student body. He did not do this because he loves the game, (although we know of no more rabid fan) but because he realized, through various rules some Southwesterners would be deprived of an opportunity to view the Series in places on the campus that have television sets.

The receiver in the Lair was loaned to us by Orgill Brothers & Co. We have long known of Orgill Brothers' interest in Southwestern as an institution of higher learning, but we are grateful they think enough of the student body to make this large gesture.

The thanks of all the students and faculty who enjoy baseball go to Mr. Pack and those responsible at Orgill Brothers.

Re-Pate-tion

The average upperclassman expounds the theory that the purpose of hazing freshman is so that the new arrivals may absorb some of the deep wisdom of the battle-scarred veterans of the textbook wars.

One thing, however, the blase upperclassman can afford to absorb from the ignorant. That one thing? SCHOOL SPIRIT.

Spirit is one of those intangible things which one must feel. Without it life becomes rather drab and dull.

No athletic team can win unless the people it represents have confidence in it. No players can surmount the obstacle of playing for a group which blithely asks him . . . "How much do you expect to lose this one?"

It's an established fact that a mediocre team can be "talked into" defeating a better one. Another fact is that a good team will lose to an inferior simply because no one expects it to win.

A sign in the football players locker room says—"We furnish everything but the guts." And—we might add—the school spirit. The spirit is something you'll have to create yourself.

What's Your Answer?

The Question: Do you believe that smoking should be permitted in specified sections of the library where studying and smoking may be combined?

The Answers:
 "They should provide a social room similar to the reading room. Smoking should be permitted in certain of the carrels."—Patricia Riegle.

"I think that they should try it and see if the students will take advantage of it. Reason—I like to smoke!"—John Howie.

"Smoking should be permitted if it doesn't present an upkeep problem or encourage loitering."—Wheatley Beard.

"The library was created for students use and if needless restrictions are set up, students will soon avoid Burrow."—Lloyd Templeton.

"Yes—providing that smoking does not interfere with non-smokers."—Ann Thomas.

"Why not let those who want to smoke use third floor?"—Margaret Jenkins.

"I think it should be permitted in a room in the basement."—John McKinney.

"Yes. That's the reason a lot of students don't use the library."—Ellen White.

"Anything that would help—if smoking does, ok!"—Don Carnes.

"There should be a specific room where you can study and smoking is permitted, but I don't think it should be in the carrels."—Elizabeth Carter.

Navy Scholarships Offered

The Navy recently announced that its competitive examination for high school seniors and graduates will be held December 12, 1953. Successful candidates who pass aptitude and physical examinations will enter the NROTC college of their choice and will be commissioned as well trained junior officers in the regular Navy or Marine Corps upon graduation.

The government pays tuition, cost of textbooks, and other fees, plus $50.00 a month to defray living expenses. Students commissioned are obligated to serve on active duty for three years.

Those who desire additional information should consult Charles I. Diehl, Dean of Men, who is acting as the Navy's local civilian representative.

The Midsouth Fair closes up shop tonight, and I suggest you catch it if you haven't already. They've broken every existing record for the fair, and think that today's crowd should rival the 52,000 that attended last Sunday. If you are interested in anything at all, you'll find it at this year's Midsouth Fair.

Well, it won't be long before the Arena Theater opens at the King Cotton Hotel for another season of top-notch entertainment. Sam McCullough, who fostered the Arena Theater and is now producer, is in New York at the present time auditioning actors and negotiating contracts. The first show (cast and title not given as yet) will begin in about two weeks. The plan is like it has been for the past two years—a big-name star in for a week with a fine supporting stock company. I hope that Sam continues with his plans to let Southwestern students have season tickets at half price or thereabouts—I know he mentioned something of the sort to me at the end of the season last year, and it really is a money-saving idea. The season will be divided into two parts, with the first one ending in December, so you won't have to put down as much gold as if the season were uninterrupted. As soon as Sam gets back from New York, I'll have more definite information on the Arena Theater.

The movies this week held some of the best entertainment that has been in and around Memphis in a long time. My stock in the Malco organization has gone up 1000 percent. As you probably know, it has bought the old Joy theater in West Memphis, former burlesque and "D" picture house, and is now showing the movies that the pitiful, inept censor board of Memphis has banned. The Joy's opening picture began today with "The Moon Is Blue," one of the most enjoyable comedies of this year, banned in Memphis because it had two "obscene" (ha!) words in it. If, after you've seen it and can honestly say that you can find a word in "The Moon Is Blue" that is obscene, I'll refund to you the price of your ticket. I know I'm safe, though; nobody's that prudish—except our censor board! But I strongly suggest seeing the picture—it is wonderful. Another real fine one that started Thursday at the Strand is "Little Boy Lost," with Bing Crosby—a wonderful, heart-warming movie. Bing is at his best in this one, though I'll admit it does seem strange to see him without Hope. This movie introduces the French youngster Claude Dauphin to the American moviegoer, and you won't be disappointed in the least. The kid has that unconscious Gallic appeal to the ladies—oh well, we can't all be Frenchmen! James Cagney gives a tremendous performance in a tremendous movie at the Warner; he plays Hank Martin (which is really Huey P. Long) in "A Lion In The Streets," an action packed story that depicts the rise and fall of a great political boss. This flic should appeal to everyone, especially you Louisianians. The picture started Thursday. One of my personal favorite stars is in "Mr. Scoutmaster" at the Palace. It's Clifton Webb, and he is the most! Starts today. A strange, but good, movie at the Ritz is "The 5000 Fingers of Dr. 'T'" about the imagination of a boy who doesn't want to practice his piano lesson. Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy star in it. Time Magazine lauded this one to the skies. It ends today so you'd better hurry.

Did you know that "Guys and Dolls" is coming to the Auditorium for a five-day stand beginning Monday week? I thought I should tell you now so you would have plenty of time to get tickets. This great musical rivals "South Pacific" in popularity, and everyone who has a chance should see it. You can get tickets at Bond's Clothing Store, 20 South Main. The hit will run through Saturday week.

See you—On The Town!

Honor Council Code Revised; Changes In Trial, Penalties

By ELAINE VICKREY

"We believe that while our Honor System is not infallible it is the best possible system," Newton Todd, president of the Honor Council said about the 1953 Revised Constitution of the Honor Council. "Dissatisfaction expressed by the Student Body and the inadequacy of some rulings found by the Council in trial proceedings brought about our changes."

In the principle of the Honor System there has been no change. Significant revisions will be found in trial procedure and penalties.

The Revised Constitution states, "The president shall appoint a member of the Honor Council to act as defense counsel to make sure the accused fully understands the nature of the investigation, his rights and privileges during the course of the investigation, and the fact that it will be conducted under oath of secrecy." The defense counsel does not defend the accused in the trial; he does advise the accused and ask question during the trial to bring out the details of the case. He has no vote for conviction.

While nine members constitute a quorum for regular meetings, ten members excluding the president and defense counsel are needed for investigations. A three-fourths majority instead of the former two-thirds is necessary for conviction.

Clause Added

An important clause was added to the article on penalties. "In case of unusual circumstances the Council may, at its discretion, impose a lesser penalty (lesser than immediate suspension.)" Newton Todd defined "unusual extenuating circumstances" as severe illness of parents or acute financial condition or some similar conditions.

To insure that all members of the Council have practical experience before actually taking part in a trial the new Council elected in March of each year will sit with the Council until the end of the current session. The new Council will serve from the end of this session to the end of the following session.

Thirteen members formerly made up the Council. The number has been raised to 14, the president not being counted as a representative of his class, since in ordinary cases he has no vote. The number of members of the summer session Council has been raised from five to seven.

Need Stronger Tie

"While the faculty has fully supported the system, there was need for a stronger tie between the Council and the Administration," Newton said. The Dean of the College will now be notified in advance about Honor Council trials. An additional phrase in the oath of secrecy allows the accused to discuss the trial with their faculty advisor.

In the case of appeals, the president and defense counsel meet with the Faculty Committee to review the case. The only change in By-Laws is the omission of a specific day and time for regular Council meetings. The Council meets monthly.

The revision of the constitution is the result of a long and thorough study of the honor systems of various colleges throughout the United States. The investigation was begun by Bill Hughes, president of the 1952-53 Council, soon after the publication of a report in Life Magazine on the effective honor system at John Hopkins University. Southwestern corresponded with over 40 schools, mostly private, with highly rated honor systems.

Read and Discussed

The articles of the constitution were read and discussed in the regular meetings of the Council last year. The revisions were then voted on and accepted by the Honor Council and by the College Ad-

Nashvillians Visit School

A delegation of men and their wives from many phases of business in Nashville and Gallatin visited Southwestern Saturday, September 26. President Peyton Rhodes and Vice-President R. P. Richardson met them.

In the morning after breakfast in Neeley Hall, some of the delegates attended the discussion groups in "Man in the Light" while others attended English Literature and Political Science classes. This was to give them some idea of our curriculum. The group was then taken on a personally conducted tour of the new Burrow Library and other points of interest on the campus.

Following luncheon in Neeley Hall, various features of campus life were described by professors and students in the Adult Education Center of Burrow Library. This program on the campus was designed to show what the college has and what it needs in connection with a campaign now going on in Nashville to raise funds for Southwestern.

The group included Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Parker, T. H. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Herbert, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goodpasture, Harrison Thithler, Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Ball, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Monte S. Ross and G. A. Puryear of Nashville and Townes B. Johnson and William McClain of Gallatin.

College Gets $9,400 Grant

Southwestern has been awarded a grant of $9,400 by the National Science Foundation for the support of a research project entitled "Critical Energy for Secondary Electron Emission," President Peyton N. Rhodes announced today. The project will be under direction of Dr. David E. Matthews, of Southwestern's Department of Physics.

Dr. Matthews' research will be an investigation of the energy required to remove electrons from certain kinds of chemical compounds. Knowledge of this energy will make it possible to determine whether the source of the electrons is the compound itself or an impurity existing in the compound.

In announcing receipt of the award, President Rhodes expressed gratification, especially in view of the fact that it is unusual for the National Science Foundation to make grants to the smaller colleges and universities.

Dr. Matthews, before joining the Southwestern faculty in 1952, was a research associate at the University of Mississippi for two years. He previously taught at Vanderbilt, from which he received his Ph.D. degree, and at Birmingham Southern College. He will be assisted in his research at Southwestern by Professor Julian C. Nall of the Physics Department.

ministration. Two lawyers carefully read the clauses of the constitution to insure their legality. A chapel service was then devoted to the reading of the entire proposed constitution to the Student Body. The vote was unanimous in favor of the constitution.

Warren Heads Cheerleaders

Chandler Warren, president of the senior class, has just been elected head cheerleader for the coming year. The election was held by the cheerleaders at practice Monday night. Chandler started his career as a Southwestern cheerleader in his sophomore year and was elected head cheerleader last year. Now for the second time he will lead the Lynx in support of the athletic teams.

Other cheerleaders elected last Thursday, Sept. 24, by student vote were veterans Elizabeth Carter and Lisa Rollow, both from Memphis, and Dot Henning from Birmingham, Alabama. This year will be Elizabeth's fourth as a Lynx cheerleader, Lisa's third and Dot's second.

Sophomores Malcolm Whatley from New Orleans, transfer Jimmy Adyette, and a lone freshman, Margaret Ann Fagan from McComb, Mississippi, are the newcomers to the group. The cheerleaders this year will indeed help our school spirit, so let's get behind them and support our team.

Mississippi College First 1953 Foe of Lynx Cats

By Burton Henry

It was just a month ago that the Lynx Cats met for their first official practice; since that time progress has been the byword of the coaching staff. The "Cats" have switched formations and are now running from the Missouri split "T," instead of the single wing.

It was evident that the team has come a long way by their showing in the intrasquad game Saturday.

The backfield is loaded with talent. In fact Coach Johnson says he can field two backfields that can hold their own in small college competition. Jim Higgason, Pete Street, and Jim Turner proved this Saturday by making several beautiful runs. Higgason also threw in a couple of key blocks that added extra yardage for the ball carrier. Smokey Russell showed he is a capable passer and can lug the pigskin whenever he is called on. George Gracey, freshman, 180 pound fullback from Covington, provides that extra weight necessary to bull for those precious yards that may be the difference in a first down.

Strong Line

The line, although not so deep from the standpoint of replacements, will throw up a wall of strength that will be quite adequate. Tackle Bill Hughes, Center Reg Germany, and tackles Jim Gillis and Joe Clark will form the nucleus. Gerald Smith and Lee Weed, a pair of speedy guards round out the line as far as we can see. The ends will be manned by veterans Bill Lawson and Tom Tosh, with freshmen Jim Breazeale and James Edens adding to the reserve strength at this position.

Revenge Sought

Tonight the Lynx will be out to avenge a 20 to 6 loss handed to them last year by the Miss. College Choctaws of Clinton, Miss. This is the curtain raiser on Southwestern football. This past weekend, the Choctaws managed to squeeze out a 19 to 19 tie against Austin College of Sherman, Texas. Our boys are eager to hit the gridiron and win a ball game and the consensus is that they can do it. There is considerable talk of a number of students that are planning to travel into the wilds of Mississippi to see the Lynx in action. This is a good sign of school spirit, so let's all pitch in and give the team all the support we can. This is our team and it is our duty to support them in victory as well as in defeat.

LIBRARY OPENS—With the start of classes this week, Southwestern students began earnest work in Burrow Library. Leaving the newly completed building last week were Bill Hughes, president of the student body, Patricia Riegle, and her brother Charles Riegle, all of Memphis.

Poochie's Patter

As school gets underway with classes, tests, and labs so does our special calendar fill with ball games, open houses, pledging, and parties . . .

Thursday evening the football team was honored with an open house from 6 to 8:00 at the AOPi lodge. Many of the student body turned out to wish the team victory over the big Mississippi plowmen at Clinton.

The decorations carried out the football spirit with autumn leaves, mums, pennants, and toy footballs. Reg Germany, captain of the team, expressed high hopes for a Lynx victory. For refreshments, cokes, light sandwiches, nuts, and candies were spread. Informal chatting and dancing was enjoyed by the group. Jo Ann Pomeroy acted as the "cutie pies" hostess for the night.

Tuesday at noon the student nurses were honored with a luncheon at the Zeta house. Fried chicken, potato salad, and slaw were served. Then the group enjoyed singing old favorites such as "Workin' on the Railroad," "Heavenly Hash Chorus," etc.

Congratulations to . . . Jimmy Carter, the N'ville hillbilly, who is now a full-pledged Alpha Tau . . . Mary Frances Forbes, new K. D. secretary, Carolyn Williamson, AOPi secretary . . . Burton Henry who placed his star and crescent on Tootsie Haire . . . Catherine Coleman, a "white star" sweetheart . . . Ginger Anthony, a week-old Sigette . . . Bill Hughes whose "pinnee" is at Stephens . . . Tommy Robinson, Phi Delt transfer from Vandy, who affiliated with S. A. E. . . . Cora Davis and Jody Danielson, new Zeta pledges.

20 At Synod Conference

A group of Southwestern students attended the Westminster Fellowship Conference of the Synod of Tennessee at Na-Co-Me the first part of this month.

Main features of the conference were a series of discussions of the book "That They May Have Life," by D. T. Niles, and a Bible study on I John led by Dr. Taylor Reveley. The needs of the 20th Century that Christ can meet was the question which the group sought to answer.

Among the Southwestern students attending were Peggy Fitch, Jip Walters, Holly Mitchell, Charles Kennon, Bill Barnett, Henry Williamson, Bryan Smalley, Carolyn Williamson, Bobby Allison, Mary Devlin, Bill Sullivan, Marsha Calmer, Beth Holden.

Frances Van Cleave, Ann Barr, Libby Schaffer, Joan Womach, John Flippin, Juanita Goodman, and Jimmy Aydelotte.

This conference was a briefing for the Quadrennial Youth Conference at Auburn, Ala., Dec. 29 through Jan. 1. Dr. Reveley is in charge of registration.
