Committee Makes Suggestions For Activity Reduction

During the holidays, the President of the Student Body called a meeting to discuss the reduction of the students' activities on the campus. Present at the meeting were Dean of Women, Miss Eleanor Bosworth; Dean of Men, Prof. Charles Diehl; Coach Johnson; Coach Maybry; Dr. Richardson; Julian Nall, and six members of the student council. They met twice and discussed the suggestions turned in by the students.

The following suggestions were turned over to the Student Welfare Committee for its consideration:

1. All fraternity and sorority meetings are to be held on Monday night. The only social function to be held on Monday nights will be the date suppers which are to be over by 8:00 p.m.

2. At the beginning of each semester there will be a meeting of the presidents of all campus organizations and the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women to specify all dates on the social calendar.

3. All requests for social events must be made by 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday before the event is to take place, and the Commissioner of Social Activities will be in the Dean of Women's office at this time.

Another list of suggestions was turned over to the Faculty Committee for consideration:

1. The Elections Commission is to be taken over by the Student Council, and the Vice-President of the Council will be in charge of this function.

2. The Women's Undergraduate Board is to be taken over by a group on the Student Council who will be in charge of all Freshman hazing.

In regard to intramural sports the following suggestions were turned over to the Athletics Committee.

1. Intramural sports are to be confined to four sports—volleyball, basketball, soft ball, and touch football, two to be played each semester.

2. Individual sports such as tennis, golf, and horse shoes are to be carried on as an all-Southwestern tournament. All intramural activities are to be over by 8:00 p.m.

Every organization on the campus will be sent a memo and asked to give three reasons why it is important to student life. They are also asked for suggestions as to possible combinations of organizations.

SN Wins Volleyball

Sigma Nu continued its torrid pace in intramural competition by downing a determined ATO volleyball team in a playoff for the championship last Tuesday night.

Although the basketball tournament was scheduled to begin this week, because of the many campus activities, play will not begin until next week.

ABSENCE NOTICE

Students may obtain their absence records on Wednesday, January 14, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in Room 102 of Palmer Hall. All requests for excuse of absence must be made prior to taking of examinations.

Favorites Will Be Selected Tuesday

The Editors of the 1953 Lynx have announced that the annual Beauty Review will be held Tuesday, January 13, in Hardie Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the contest is to select thirteen girls whose pictures will appear in the beauty section of the annual. The finalists will be announced the night of the judging, but the eight favorites and the five beauties will not be known until the book makes its appearance in May. Judges for the contest will not be announced until Tuesday.

Each sorority and the Independent Women are allowed to enter six girls, from whom the favorites will be chosen. Eleanor Brown and Billy Frye are in charge or arrangements for the contest.

The Contestants

The following girls have been entered:

AOPi: Anne Hebert, Esther Jane Swartzfager, Beverly Mayhall, Barbara Mann, Anne Sterry and Emma Jean Myers.

XO: Elizabeth Collins, Virginia Anthony, Mary Pelham Finlay, Virginia Bramlett, Elaine Dies, and Janet Green.

DDD: Margaret Jones, Peggy Crocker, Robin Sprague, Carolyn Milton, Sallie Thomas, and Ann Feemster.

KD: Claudia Owen, Marilyn Mitchell, Betty Lou Collins, Mary Frances Forbes, Dot Henning, and Jo Taylor.

ZTA: Sara Jane Brockman, Nola Nurnberger, Mary Curtis, Martha Holcombe, Carole Macklin, and Daisy Glenn.

Independent Women: Sarah Ruth Strong, Jane Wood, Frances Teer, Jo Ann Danielson, and Martha Rooney.

No admission will be charged. Everyone is urged to attend.

Thirty-one Receive Football Letters

Thirty-one members of the Southwestern football team and the two team managers are to receive varsity letters for play during the 1952 season, according to Coach Glenn A. Johnson. This group includes three Seniors, nine Juniors, five Sophomores, and fourteen Freshmen.

The three graduating members are Captain Bob Crumby, quarterback and chief hurler; Charlie McAllister, fullback and the team's leading ground gainer; and Bill Allen, defensive halfback.

The lettermen include the following:

Ends: Frank Simonton, Burton Henry, Bill Lawson, Earl Browne, Lee Weed, and Bobby Hunter.

Tackles: Reg Germany, Bill Hughes, Wheatley Beard, George Fischer, and James Jones.

Guards: Jim Gillis, Ray Tanner, Gerald Smith, Bob Ridley, and Bob Gillespie.

Centers: Ronald Collins and Jack Bugbee.

Backs: Charlie McAllister, Bob Crumby, "Smoky" Russell, Pete Street, Bill Allen, Richard Flaniken, Frank Horton, George Harmon, John Lawhorn, Jim McLin, Tom Tosh, Tommy Jones, and Don Wilkins.

Managers: Amel Peterson and Leigh MacQueen.

Delegates Attend USCC Conference

Four Southwestern students, Bob McClure, Bill Mitchell, Henry Moseley, and Truman Nabors, attended the United Student Christian Council Study Conference during the Christmas holidays at Park College, in Parkville, Missouri. The Protestant Religious Council and the Westminster Fellowship paid the expenses of the delegates.

The conference was unique in that a new study plan was the central organization rather than many inspirational addresses. Three hours before lunch were free for study, and then three hours more in the afternoon. In the two hours before supper the 500 delegates to the conference were divided into small study groups with about ten or twelve people in each to discuss points they had studied earlier in the Book of I John. In the two hours after supper similar small groups delved deeply into such important questions as "The Christian Student and the University," "The Christian Student and the Church," and "The Christian Student and the World Struggle."

Airline Seeks Stewardesses

American Airlines will interview young women of this area on January 15 for "Sky-High Careers" as Flagship stewardesses, according to Don Patterson, of Dallas, Texas, the airline's southern region personnel representative.

Qualifications

Mr. Patterson will interview qualified young women from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the Peabody Hotel. Applicants must be between 21 and 28 years old and must have high school education or better. Height requirement is from five feet, two inches to five feet, seven inches, with proportionate weight.

"Plenty of travel, the greatest attraction and biggest satisfaction to women now flying for American Airlines, is one of the advantages of stewardess work," he said. "Not only do they fly an average of 25,000 miles per month on the job," Mr. Patterson explained, "but they often fly somewhere, just for fun, on their days off." This is possible because of free mileage allowances they are en-

Mrs. Mallory Breaks Ground For Gym Memorial To Son

CONSTRUCTION TO BEGIN IMMEDIATELY

On Monday, January 5, 1953, exactly two years from the date when A. K. Burrow broke the ground for the Burrow Library, members of the Executive, Investment and Gymnasium Building Committees, members of the Mallory family, along with members of the faculty, staff, and student body met at the site of the proposed Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium for an impressive ground-breaking ceremony. Students and friends of the college assembled north of the tennis courts at the regular chapel hour and awaited the procession, which was led by Bob Crumby, bearing the Southwestern Banner, followed by members of the Southwestern band, the Southwestern Singers, and the faculty Marshalls, Professors John H. Davis and J. O. Embry.

Mrs. B. L. Mallory, mother of the late Neely Mallory, in whose mem-

College Extended Lecture Invitation

Mr. William A. Loewenberg, president of Temple Israel, of Memphis, has extended an invitation to the faculty, staff, and student body of Southwestern to attend an open meeting sponsored by the Temple Brotherhood and Sisterhood on Monday, January 12, at 8:00 p.m., in the Vestry of the Temple, Poplar and Montgomery.

This meeting will feature an address by Herman H. Dinsmore, editor of the International Air Edition of the New York Times. Mr. Dinsmore will speak on "The Pattern of World Unification." He is former Associate Foreign Editor of the Times and has served as a member of the faculty of the Columbia University School of Journalism. He was at one time President of the New York section of the American Newspaper Guild, and for the past twenty years he has been associated with the Times.

titled to. Also, at vacation time each year, they get unlimited travel privileges anywhere on the airline's system.

Pay

In addition to a starting pay of $222 per month, which includes cost-of-living allowance, stewardesses get living expenses while away from their home bases. The monthly pay jumps to $242 after the first six months and increases at intervals to a peak of $312.

All qualified girls are urged to take advantage of this interview.

ory the gymnasium is being erected, was escorted to the site by another son, Lee Mallory, and President P. N. Rhodes. Completing the procession were members of the Gymnasium Building Committees, the Faculty Committee on Athletics, and the Student Council.

The Program

Following the singing of the Doxology by the Southwestern Singers, under the direction of Dr. Burnet C. Tuthill, Professor W. T. Reveley offered the Invocation. Those assembled then heard the reading of the Twenty-fourth Psalm by Dr. W. J. Millard, pastor of Evergreen Presbyterian Church and vice-chairman of the Board of Directors.

Dr. Rhodes, presiding over the ceremony, made fitting opening comments, reminding the group of the significance of this beginning of the fulfillment of a dream, twenty-seven years old. He expressed the gratitude of the college to those who have made this dream become a reality, and reminded us that the Latin phrase, "Providence has favored our beginning," was applicable here.

Dr. Rhodes presented S. W. Farnsworth, chairman of the Board of Directors of Southwestern, who read a message to the group from Mr. Robert Snowden, Chairman of the Citizens Committee for the Mallory Memorial, and who sparked the drive that has made construction of the gymnasium possible.

Dr. Charles E. Diehl, President Emeritus, in his most capable manner, paid tribute to Neely Mallory in his brief address to the assemblage. He spoke of Major Mallory as "tops . . . physically, mentally, and spiritually." He brought Neely Mallory close into the hearts of those who did not have the privilege of knowing him, by revealing to us the vast amount of interest and work that Mallory gave to Southwestern. Dr. Diehl so fittingly closed his remarks by saying that "Neely Mallory is truly a man who will feel at home in the unseen world."

The First Shovelful

Mrs. Mallory, again assisted by her son, turned the first spadeful of ground on that site where we shall soon see the vast, modern structure to be known as Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. Upon the close of the prayer of thanksgiving and commitment by Dr. R. P. Richardson, the group gathered joined in singing the Southwestern Alma Mater, realizing the significance of the occasion with gratitude towards those people who aid the college so generously, thus enabling Southwestern to grow to even greater heights. Professor N. B. Gibbs then dismissed the group with prayer.

AT LAST!

"There is a gym in the future!" For twenty-seven years this statement has been uttered many times, and most people had come to believe that the gymnasium would never be a reality for Southwestern. But Southwestern continues to grow; the first spade-full of earth has been turned; we shall soon see construction begin; and in March, 1954, we are scheduled to witness the opening of the most modern of all new gymnasiums.

Funds for this construction of Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium were not raised by merely wishing. Many years and countless hours of valuable time were given unselfishly by those people who held the desire to see this dream of a new gymnasium become a reality. So we would here offer our heartfelt thanks to all who had a part in the Neely Mallory Memorial Drives; to the Investment, Executive and Gymnasium Building Committees; to Dr. Rhodes; to Dr. Charles E. Diehl; to the Faculty and Administration of the College; to Mr. Robert Snowden, who sparked the drives; to Mr. Sidney W. Farnsworth and the other members of the Board of Directors; to all the contributors—to you we say "Thank you," for providing a gymnasium for Southwestern and a standing memorial to Neely Mallory, the ideal amateur athlete, who gave so much to Southwestern.

We know that the completion of Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium will be payment enough for the time, money, and efforts you have displayed.

WE RESOLVE...

The New Year brings with it many resolutions, to be broken, of course, so this column this week contains a few of the resolutions of students on campus.

- Resolved, that . . .
- I, Margaret Jones, will try to learn to walk on trains without falling in laps, and will attempt to enter Voorhies at least once this year without falling flat on my face.
- We, the Students who frequent the Lair, will cut Bridge at least once each week so that we might attend classes.
- We, the Administration, will exempt all students from exams who have at least a 1.0 average.
- I, Emily McKay, will not complain of all my ailments in '53.
- I, Ann Feemster, will begin my homework before 1:00 a.m.
- I, Bob Crumby, will break at least one girl's heart monthly.
- I, Don Ramier will not "bum" any more cigarettes from anyone.
- I, Laverne Myres, will not cut another class, even in the case of severe illness.
- I, Amel Peterson, will not attend any "marvellously beautiful gorgeous weddings" in 1953.
- I, Robin Sprague, will leave off desserts in 1953.
- I, Mary Beth Davidson, will ask

New Gym . . .

Members of the contracting firm of Canfield, Badgett & Scarbrough met with the Building Committee of Southwestern at 9 a.m., December 18, 1952, in Southwestern's Directors' Room to sign the final papers for the construction of the main wing of Southwestern's new Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. Estimated cost of the unit is $625,000.

"Inasmuch as available funds are not yet sufficient for the completion of the entire structure as designed," Dr. Rhodes said, "we are letting the contract for this part of the Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium to this well known Memphis firm."

The Building Itself

Construction of the new building will begin early this month. Plans provide for a building of the same architectural type as the other Southwestern buildings. It will have a main playing floor of 102 x 118 feet in the clear (room for a 50 x 94 foot official-sized basketball playing court), and will contain two cross-practice courts and space for two tennis courts side by side, with 20-foot back stops at each end. Courts will also be laid out for volley-ball, badminton, and other net games. Spectator seating capacity of the completed floor will be from 2500 to 3000.

The building will be entirely functional, with ample provision for a full program of physical education. The proposed swimming pool will await completion of the east wing.

There will be a classroom for physical education, capable of seating 100 persons, and equipped for visual-aid training. The building will have special dressing rooms for faculty as well as for men and women students, plus a recreation room for "S" Club members. There will also be a number of exercise rooms.

Plans also provide for two handball and squash tennis courts, and for a U-shaped balcony that will follow the north, south, and west sides of the building to provide additional space for spectators or regulation bowling alleys. A thirty-foot ceiling lobby will permit installation of trophy cases, memorial displays, and other athletic treasures, and will feature indirect lighting with floodlights.

The Hoped-for East Wing

President Rhodes emphasized the fact that although Southwestern is temporarily omitting the east wing and the auxiliary gymnasium (including the 25-meter Olympic-specifications swimming pool) from its immediate construction plans, college authorities hope that completion of the whole can be effected in the near future. Contract agreements have been made flexible enough to allow certain features of the total plans, temporarily held in abeyance, to be reactivated without penalty within certain time limits as funds become available "As the Development Fund Campaign continues, we hope that funds will be provided for the erection of the much needed additional east wing, too," Dr. Rhodes said.

Location

Entrance to the new Gymnasium will be at Lyndale on University Place. The building will occupy a site near the present tennis courts. The architect is H. Clinton Parrent, Jr., of Nashville, who was for years associated with Henry Hibbs, designer of the original buildings on the Southwestern Campus when the College moved from Clarksville, Tennessee, in 1925.

Mr. Mallory

The gymnasium is named in honor of the late Neely Mallory of Memphis, a business and civic leader, who was closely associated with Southwestern for many years prior to his death during World War II in 1945. Major Mallory

PRAYER FOR THE NEW YEAR

Almighty and Eternal Father, at this time for beginning anew
 May we remember our past mistakes and failures—
 May we profit by them, and build from them
 To create a new, and better, person for the year ahead
 We would ask Thee for vision—
 "To dream such dreams as old men dream
 And visions young men see . . ."
 We would ask Thee for guidance—
 He was given life that he might enjoy all things.
 "Keep lighted in our hearts the flame . . ."
 And we would ask Thee for humility and love.

He prayed for strength that he might achieve;
 He was made weak that he might obey.
 He prayed for health that he might do great things;
 He was given infirmity that he might do better things.
 He prayed for riches that he might be happy;
 He was given poverty that he might be wise.
 He prayed for power that he might have the praise of men;
 He was given weakness that he might feel the need of God.
 He prayed for all things that he might enjoy life;
 He was given life that he might enjoy all things.
 He had received nothing that he asked for—all that he hoped for;
 His prayer was answered—he was most blessed.

Students Give Opinions On What To Do With Fargason

By Don Ramier

Monday was a great day for freshmen, sophomores, and others planning for one reason or another, to be at Southwestern two years from now. For as most chapel-goers know, on that day Mrs. Daisy Neely Mallory, mother of our embryonic gymnasium's namesake, lifted a spadeful of earth from the frozen ground in back of the tennis courts, and construction was declared in progress on William Neely Mallory Memorial Gymnasium. (A shrewd suggestion to those who will reap benefits from the facilities of the new edifice is to refer to it upon its completion simply as "the gym"; so as not to tie your tongue in one great big knot trying to repeat the entire five word proper name).

Soon, an alert Student Council or some faculty committee will be dealing with the problem of what to do with our present beloved spectre, also referred to as "the gym." I'm sure a student opinion poll would vote 425 (or however many students attend classes at Southwestern) to one (this being the most neurotic dissenter at school) that the great green monster "has gotta go." With it will go the greatest pneumonia factory in the winter, hotbox in the spring and summer, and the greatest year around firetrap known to mankind. (Who else has noticed its resemblance to the morbid castle that houses "New Yorker" cartoonist Charles Addams' ghostly "ghoul family"?)

So to continue predicting, the served as a member of the Board of Directors and member of the Executive Committee, as chairman of one of the Annual Support Campaigns in Memphis, and lastly as Treasurer of the College, a post he held at the time of his death. His firm belief in the value of non-subsidized athletics has left its imprint upon Southwestern's present-day athletic policy.

Functional Building

It should be emphasized, President Rhodes pointed out, that the new building, construction of which is to begin this month, is not a field house to be used as the site of great athletic spectacles; but rather it is to be a gymnasium in the original sense of the word, a place to provide the utmost in physical education in accordance with Southwestern's educational philosophy of building all-around men and women rather than training a few highly specialized athletes.

Externally this building will be of ferruginous Arkansas field stone with slate roof, to harmonize with the architectural design of the other buildings on the campus.

The building committee, in addition to Dr. Rhodes, includes: J. Baynard Boyle, chairman; Edmund Orgill, vice-chairman; S. Toof Brown; C. L. Springfield; J. A. Rollow; Lucius E. Burch; and Sidney W. Farnsworth, chairman of Southwestern's Board of Directors ex officio.

question of "what to do with it" will soon rise up and clamor for utterance. The logically thinking optimist would say, "tear it down and sell the material." But he would be abruptly countered by the alert economist who would advise him that the cost of destruction would greatly exceed the price it would bring on the junk market, and the school would lose in the deal.

Possibly some bitter realist would argue in favor of the optimist by declaring, "It's been a loser for about 25 years, so why not take a final loss and write it off the books for good?"

"A compromise," says a cheery voice from the rear of the committee room. "Let's temporarily forget the problem until something comes up. Who knows, we may in some manner turn this into a money-making situation."

"Please," says the committee chairman, "let's not mention the word 'temporary' in connection with our 'problem.' It's now perhaps the oldest 'temporary structure' on earth, and it must be disposed of."

So, on and on, into the night goes the discussion until finally, from sheer exhaustion and lack of remedies, the committee meeting on what to do with the "gym" is dismissed.

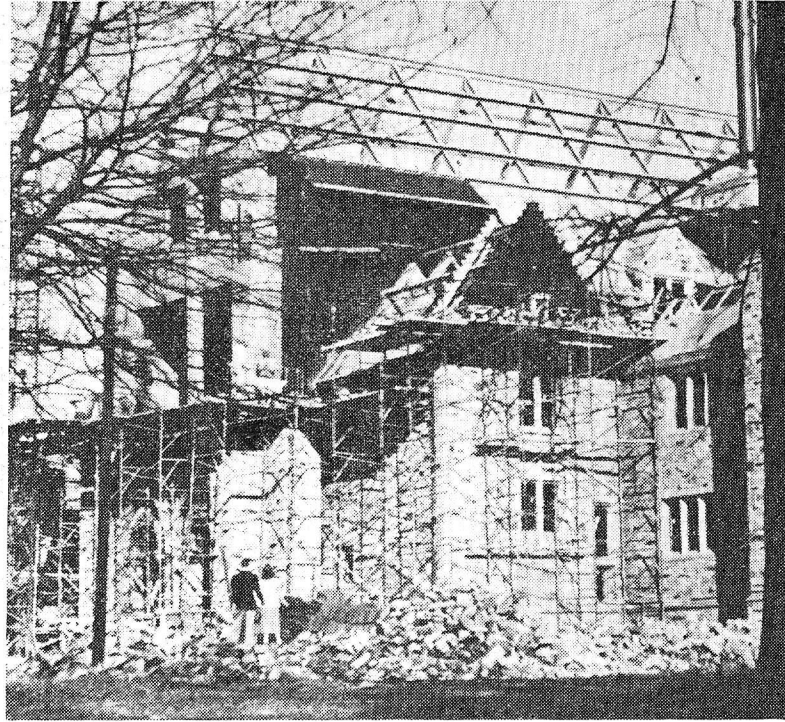

For reasons unknown to anyone, the question of "what to do with the 'gym'" is presented to the student body for suggestions. Here are a few of the more representative ideas presented by the wide-awake students:

- "Construct stalls in it and make it into a dairy barn."
- "Convert it into a broom factory and entitle the factory 'Southwestern Co-ed Transportation Corp.'"
- "Imprison dining hall step singers in it."
- "Convert it into a tavern and run 'La Fiesta out of business.'"
- "Remove all lights, provide it with an underground entrance, grow moss and fungus for the walls, equip it with straight backed iron chairs, and convert it into a study room for the faculty."
- "Raise giraffes in it."
- "Burn it and roast marshmallows."

Does Blood Drive Constitute Red Plot?

by Chester Anderson

On New Year's Eve, downtown Memphis was a riot of riots. Firecrackers were exploding on every side, people were shouting, screaming, blowing odd little horns. People were indiscriminately kissing people, buildings, lamp posts, and rubbish containers. Why the hilarity? Were they overjoyed at seeing the entry of a new year, or just hysterically relieved to see the old one go?

The latter is more plausible, for the terrors of the new year are still unknown to us, while those of the old one are only too familiar. So on one night of the year the whole world goes more visibly crazy than before. Maybe this is an attempt to frighten the new year away.

Firecracker Backfire

One incident I enjoyed tremendously. A brash young man was throwing lighted firecrackers into open car windows from his vantage point in a vintage model Chevy. Suddenly he made a mistake and threw a firecracker at a closed window. The devilish instrument bounced back on him and gave him the scare of his life. Didn't hurt him, though, I'm afraid.

There is an old superstition that what you are doing on the stroke of midnight on New Year's Eve, you will continue to do the rest of the year. That explains the indiscriminate osculation, and maybe the unbridled drinking, but what can explain the firecracker bombardment?

In order to test the theory, I intend to go to bed at ten next New Year's. Hope it works. This year, at least, I am likely to lose a great deal of sleep.

The Red Plot

Patriotic though it might be, I still think that the blood donating racket is a red plot. The Instigators don't even know how to write our language. At any rate, I'll just give here a copy of the documents we had to fill out with suitable comments.

Release

(get that! Whom are they releasing?)

My son, daughter (there are very few exceptions to this) has my permission to voluntarily make (a split infinitive) a donation (donation, yet!) of blood (eep!) to the American Red Cross (see! a Red plot!) and for that purpose may, at his or her own risk (again they have the sexes confused.) submit to the tests, examinations and procedures customary in connection with donations of blood. (These tests include the Schlorr-Nahrung test, which determines the nutritive value of your blood for vampires.) We agree that neither the American National Red Cross (a Red plot! I told you so!) nor any surgeons, physicians, technicians, nurses, agents or officers connected with any of them (a prime example of muddy thinking) or who may be participating otherwise in this work (that "otherwise" could mean anything, and probably does) shall be in any way responsible (aha! Irresponsibility!) for any consequences to him or her (meaning us, of course) resulting from the giving of such blood (such blood! I

NOVEL NOTES—

"Man On Donkey" Is Inspiring Story

THE MAN ON A DONKEY

by H. F. M. Prescott

Several leading literary critics have named this book as the possible winner of the 1953 Nobel Prize. It is a tremendous book, telling of the religious metamorphosis in England in the early 16th century.

The story revolves principally around five characters who were caught in the chain of startling events during Henry VIII's reign in England. Robert Aske, third son of a Northumbria lord, because of his loyalty to his religion, turns to help a peasant uprising. Christabel, prioress of a small, quiet nunnery, loves no one, but is shocked when she finds the world can hurt her. Julian, a young girl, loves one man and would die for him. A village priest is incapable of love and therefore hates bitterly. Malle, a half-wit, sees visions and is responsible for the name of the story.

This book is thrilling as well as well-written. It reveals the passion-filled saga of King Henry, Katherine, and Anne Boleyn, the North Country uprising, the revolt against the Pope, and the fears and desires of the people and the nobles of the 16th century.

I think this is one of the best books written recently. It is a history, a romance, perhaps an epic, and certainly a thrilling tale of an important time in English history.
