WHO'S WHO HAS NINE

Esther Jane Swartzfager Is 1954 Maid of Cotton Entry

Southwestern's 1954 entrant in the National Maid of Cotton Contest is Esther Jane Swartzfager, of Laurel, Mississippi. She was chosen Thursday evening from seventeen entrants in a lovely and colorful contest in Hardie Auditorium. First alternate is Marion Cobb of Whitehaven, Tennessee, and second Alternate is Jacqueline Coker of Caruthersville, Mo.

"Poochie" got up from a sickbed to participate in the contest; and her courage, coupled with her vivaciousness and beauty, proved to be the margin of victory over the others in a very close contest. So stunned was she over winning the title of Southwestern's Maid, when Master of Ceremonies Buddy Allison called her name, she hesitated a moment before stepping out of the line of entrants to receive the beautiful bouquet of red roses presented to her by Mary Ellen Chambliss, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements.

As Southwestern's entry to the National Maid of Cotton Contest at Ellis Auditorium, January 3, "Poochie" will carry with her the heritage of another Southwesterner, Hilma Seay (Mrs. Billy Marks Hightower) who was chosen King Cotton's Ambassador of Goodwill in 1947. And according to the judges, she has a wonderful chance to bring the title of Maid of Cotton back to Southwestern.

Esther Jane, a member of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority, and sponsored by them in the contest, is a member of the Junior Class. She has been in the beauty section of the Lynx, is "Dream Girl" of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity, and holds the office of Commissioner of Undergraduate Women. She has held various positions in her sorority, currently serving as Assistant Rush Chairman.

In her speech, "Poochie" told the audience and judges "My father was originally a cotton farmer, but somehow or other, he strayed from the fold and became a lawyer. But, 'With age comes wisdom,' and he is planting cotton once more."

The contest proved to be one of the most colorful and exciting ever held on the campus. The seventeen entrants first came on the stage in street clothes, and gave a one-minute speech on "Why I Would."

Volleyball

Volleyball is still in a tight race with ATO still remaining unbeaten. Sigma Nu and Kappa Alpha are close behind. By the time you read this paper the new champion will have been determined. The last games were played yesterday.

Next on the intramural sports list is basketball which begins January 6. Some of the teams have already started practicing for the games.

Intramural sports are graded by the points system. At the present, SAE is ahead with 80 points, followed by Kappa Alpha with 65 points. In third place is Sigma Nu with 55 points, and in fourth place is ATO with 45 points. These points were given during tennis competition. Touch football was abandoned and therefore no points were given in it.

DDD's to Sell Food in Dorm

Food will be sold by the Tri-Delts each Tuesday and Thursday nights at 10:15 in Voorhies Hall. The sorority began this project last week, selling sandwiches and hot chocolate. Other weeks, the members plan to make fudge and cookies.

The project was begun to benefit the Tri-Delta Service Scholarship Program, through which outstanding students each year are aided in completing their education. The program on this campus is only a part of the Delta Delta Delta national plan which last year awarded $21,321 to 161 women students.

Southwestern's program was begun by the chapter in 1945. Last year three girls were awarded scholarships of $150 each. To be eligible a girl does not have to be a member of Tri-Delta. The winners are selected on the basis of scholarship and leadership. The candidates, who must be planning to return to Southwestern the next year, need only to apply to the Dean of Women's Office before the deadline date in the spring.

Help Buy Life

There are hundreds of babies and little children in Memphis who have very little of that bare necessity—food. The PRC has chosen for its Thanksgiving project, this year, the furnishing of a poor family with milk each day. For how many months can we furnish milk, each day, for these five little children who are without it? That depends on you and the generosity of your contribution when you place your money in the box in the cloister or the dining hall.

This week the Protestant Religious Council asks the kindness and generous co-operation of the entire student body in contributing to this worthy and urgently needed program. Open wide your billfolds and your hearts—give them a meaning for Thanksgiving. Help buy life by helping buy milk. The blessing will be yours.

Frosh Victors In Tourney

Chi Omega defeated Tri-Delta Tuesday night in the last girls' basketball game of the year. The trophy was presented to the undefeated Freshmen team, who gave it to the second highest sorority, AOPi.

W.A.A. picked two All-Star teams, which were announced at the game Tuesday night. On the first team are Jane Burns Campbell, Carolyn Williamson, Wootie Beasley, Jean

Class Absence Information

Students may obtain information about their absence record in class and chapel on Monday afternoon, November 30, from 1:00 to 3:30 in Room 100 of Palmer Hall.

Requests for excuse of absence must be personally presented to the Dean within one week of return from absence.

Social 30 Pieces of Silver

Don't look at this and turn away. It concerns every student at Southwestern. I suppose that every editor of the Souwester has written an editorial on this subject since the paper was begun—I know that one has been written every year since I came here.

It concerns attendance of extracurricular activities.

Please don't throw up your hands and exclaim, "Oh, that again!", because that is exactly why this editorial is being written—

BECAUSE THAT IS ALL THAT IS EVER DONE!

It is a known fact that students on this campus do not support anything that does not concern either themselves directly or their fraternity or sorority.

And this is ridiculous. This is a Liberal Arts college—men and women are supposed to come from it with a well rounded education and with a wide range of interests. It has been so in the past.

Is it now? I'm not talking about events of a social nature in this editorial—social events are pretty well attended, but the trouble is that there are too many of them, and they take away from the attendance of events that are really, truly worthwhile.

For instance, did you know that there are often more town people at our plays than students? Or that the Southwestern Orchestra plays to fifty or seventy-five people when they should be playing before two hundred and fifty or three hundred? Or that the International Relations Club has not more than fifteen or twenty active members, if that many?

Sure, you can go to what you want and stay away from what you want—that is your privilege, and I respect it. But to stay away from a basketball or a football game to chew the fat with some of your buddies is not being fair to yourself.

This is your school. You came to it, and many of you will graduate from it. You can get a degree and walk out of here without supporting a single thing the school has offered in the way of stimulating activities for four years.

But in the meantime, Memphis newspaper critics who attend our plays will continue to write nasty but true little pieces about our "apathetic" student body—music lovers who come to our concerts will continue to go away saying "Southwestern students sure don't realize a good thing when it's right under their noses."—sports lovers leaving a half-filled Fargason Field House will continue to drop comments about non-supported teams, and indifferent students.

These things hurt a school—hurt it badly. I realize that the primary argument against attendance to these functions is the need for study; but is it a true one?

You will find that the people who have to dig for their grades here at Southwestern are the very ones who attend these aforementioned events — not the "brains," or those who never study at all.

Why is this? I'll tell you why—because those people who have to hustle to get along are the ones that are getting the most out of college, and they realize that these activities are essential for the well-rounded individual, and so they go. Maybe they don't consciously realize it, but realize it they do.

You can call it "supporting the team" or "supporting the school" or anything else you might want. I should like to call it "supporting yourselves." Let's all support ourselves more at Southwestern.

Letters to The Editor

Southwestern at Memphis
November 17, 1953

Editor of the Sou'wester
Southwestern
Memphis, Tenn.

Dear Editors,

I'm not sure exactly who wrote the article "conflict" in the November 14th issue of the Sou'wester; but it really doesn't matter, as I have nothing against him or her personally. Being a member of an athletic team at Southwestern, I merely want to state my position on the subject of athletics at Southwestern.

The article sounds as if the athletic events were scheduled on purpose to interfere with the All-Sing. That was not the case at all. The football meetings have been scheduled for Monday or Tuesday night of every week since football season started and basketball practice has been on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights for three weeks before the All-Sing was scheduled. Southwestern has a low enough reputation in athletics as it is; and if it is heard that Southwestern coaches have to consult the Dean of Women's social calendar before they can have practice for their athletic teams, then the reputation of Southwestern's athletics will drop another notch. You can not get around the fact that a school's athletic teams are one of its best means of advertising.

The article also states that the boys on these teams owe an obligation to their fraternity. That is very true; but they are doing their fraternities a lot more good by being members of varsity athletic teams than they ever could by participating in the All-Sing, Stunt Night, or what have you.

I'm not against All-Sing, Stunt Night, or any other event on the Dean of Women's Social Calendar; but I feel athletics are of very great importance and should take a back seat to nothing except the academic work of the student.

Let's get straightened out all right. Let's get athletics at Southwestern straightened out.

Sincerely yours,

Frank Horton

P.S. I agree wholeheartedly with your editorial on chapel. That was a good piece of work.

TO THE EDITOR:

Can anyone tell me why we brag about what we call the great "Southwestern Spirit?" I've heard it before, in fact the pitiful part is that I've said it before:

"We may not have the greatest team in the world, but we have the spirit!" Yeah—! Sure we yell—because we like the sound of "Hey, ziga, zoomba, zoomba, zoomba,—"

"You'll love the wonderful spirit of our chapel programs." Yeah—! You'll love them—if you can hear over the mumble and see through the paper wads—disgustingly high-schoolish.

"And studies, the people at Southwestern really want to learn. We don't have a lot of outside foolishness." Yeah—! If you can find some comfortable little dungeon to hide from extra curricular activities.

"There's such a wonderful spirit among the fraternities and sororities on the campus." Yeah—! If you don't mind excluding all unaffiliated people from several campus events, and if you don't mind hearing those two words that make me cringe: DIRTY RUSH.

And we call ourselves Christians. Who are we fooling anyway? Ourselves?

And we brag about the spirit at Southwestern! Let's stop bragging and start doing something! Let's not be so busy with our little campus activities that we can't see the

BY THE ZOO

With Ken Silvey—

This afternoon Southwestern brings down the curtain on their 1953 football schedule. The opponent will be the tough ever-ready team from Louisiana College. This year has seen the team end a 23-game losing streak; with the breaking of that streak has come bright possibilities for next season. It would be a fitting tribute to the team for their efforts if the entire student body would be present for this football finale. So we'll see you at 2 P.M. at the Lynx Gridiron.

As football passes on, the magic of basketball begins to appear. In just two weeks, the Lynx cagers will be opening their 1953 schedule with Ole Miss. The team has been hard at practice the past two months, and if practice makes perfect the Lynx will be consistent winners this year.

Trap Your Man

With "The Robe" first Cinemascope picture just finished with its more than five weeks run on main-street, the second cinemascope film is now showing at Loew's State. "How to Marry a Millionaire" starring Marilyn Monroe, Betty Grable and Lauren Bacall bring new dimensions to cinemascope. In the show they rent a "swanky" penthouse man-trap with the object of luring wealthy suiters—quick, before the next rent comes due. For top entertainment and top advice on how to trap men, some will not want to miss this new cinemascope production. "Flight to Tangier" an adventure drama in technicolor, is now showing at the Strand. Jack Palance, Corinne Calvet, and Joan Fontaine are stared in a sinister bit of intrigue, mystery and shady doings in the international North-African City. This show is tops for adventure. The Malco is showing "Back to God's Country." The feature is based on James Oliver Curwood's classic of the wild north. Rock Hudson, Marcia Henderson, and Steve Cochran draw top billing in this adventure of the snow-frozen north.

Little Theater

When you return from the Thanksgiving Holidays, The Little Theater will have another top hit ready for your enjoyment. The play, "Three Men on a Horse," will star Albert Gresham and Barbara Lawhead. The Chickasaw Gardens Playhouse will serve as the scene of this all-out comedy.

Here on the campus, the Southwestern Players are preparing for the next play. On the nights of the 23rd and 24th, they will present the Greek Tragedy, "Electra," Barbara Cason will join a student cast as guest star. As a campus activity, this play will be tops.

Looking for the biggest steak in town? Pappy and Jimmy's Lobster Shack, at Madison and Cooper, is known over Memphis as the restaurant with "the most" steaks. Their sirloin split for two is really an adventure in good eating. They also suggest Lobster Thermidor, Softshell crab, or scallops. The atmosphere of the Lobster Shack is quite unique, to say the least, and worth a trip to see. Why not put the Lobster Shack on your list as one of the finer eateries in town!

Happy Holiday

As time ticks away and Thanksgiving gets nearer, we're sure everyone is ready to head for home. However, before that happens, we would like to wish you a pleasant and meaningful Thanksgiving.

See You

important things in life! Southwestern spirit! Rah, rah, rah, rah, Lynx Cats, Roll On!

And we walk around the campus like a bunch of self-satisfied Pharisees—"I'm so glad I go to Southwestern. The people are just great, and we have such a wonderful spirit." Yeah—! This school is just one bundle of perfection. We're a great bunch! So we pat ourselves on the back—Well, I'd like to know where in this world we got these ideas! Who told us we were the chosen people? Southwestern's such a cozy, little college—Okay, Let's be cozy, but not exclusive. Let's be little, but not little-minded. Let's be a college, not Utopia University. And why have I taken it upon myself to write this? Certainly not because I've got what it takes, but because somebody's got to do it, and I've never learned to keep quiet; because I'm sick of talking, and not acting; because I'm tired of being a hypocrite! I'm not the only one who's been yawning. There are others waking up and coming down off that mountain. I'm not the only Rip Van Winkle who's sick of Utopia University.

After a short intermission, they returned in evening dresses to be questioned by the judges on stage while the Master of Ceremonies read their achievements to the audience. Then, while the audience was being entertained, the judges retired to the Faculty Room downstairs, chose the five finalists, and after additional questioning, made their decisions. All the entrants then returned to the stage, where the winners were announced. Immediately the stage was flooded with a crowd of well-wishers, and it was minutes before the stage could be cleared and the photographers begin their pleasant task.

Lynx Defeated By Sewanee

Jip Walters

The Lynx went up to Sewanee last weekend and lost a football game 41-0. It was Homecoming Day for the Tigers, and by whipping the Lynx they gained their third victory of the year against four losses. It was the Lynx sixth loss against one victory.

A big fellow named Gordon Sorrell passed, kicked, and ran the ball for the Sewanee 'til the Cats didn't know what he was going to do next—but they didn't stop hitting him.

It's a long ride to Sewanee, and even a longer one back, especially when you are on the losing end of a 41-0 score. The Lynx had almost enough men to fill the Greyhound bus that took them up the road, and some of these were pretty banged up, and a few stayed at home. But they went.

Not Whipped

And they played, and they gave their best with what they had. The first quarter they held the Lynx scoreless; whatever the Tigers tried they had to whip a Lynx before they made it, and they didn't whip any. Rumors have it that the Sewanee first string didn't come on the field until the second quarter. We don't know, but they hit hard and wanted to win.

We wanted to win, too, and we kept acting like it. But early in the second quarter this big boy Sorrell took the ball and raced 50 yards to the Southwestern 15, where we held for four downs.

Fumble

The Cats ran a play, then fumbled, and an alert Tiger guard covered it behind our goal. We received the kickoff, and after three running plays punted. On the first play from scrimmage, this guy Sorrell scampered 63 yards to score. After taking the kickoff, The Lynx moved the ball to mid-field, where another fumble cost them the ball. After Sorrell had carried to the 32, a fifteen yard run and a pass gave the Tigers another six points as the half ended.

The second half was no fun, either, and almost a repeat performance of the first. The final score was 41-0.

That sounds pretty bad — but what does it take to get out every afternoon and run and kick and knock and knock and knock and then lose?

Well, it takes a lot of something. Maybe it's just the animal instinct, but we rather think it is a love for the game, a love for the school, the competitive spirit and the desire to win.

What does it take to go out every afternoon and pour yourself into coaching a bunch of men who have a tremendous desire to play football, and then not be able to win too often?

Some folks may say a lack of anything else better to do is the reason—but we rather think that it consists of a great love for the school, as great a love for the boy, and a love and respect for the name "sportsman" and the game.

The Lynx and their coaches have all of these, we can do nothing but humbly admire their spirit and stamina and wish for them more of everything that is good.

We won one this year—broke a 23 game losing streak—look out for us in '54!

"Electra" Dates Nov. 23, 24 at 8:30 in Hardie

The second play of the year will be presented November 23 and 24 in Hardie Auditorium by Alpha Psi Omega and Beta Sigma Phi, honorary dramatic and classical languages fraternities. The curtain will go up at 8:30 for the presentation of Sophocles' tragedy "Electra".

The cast, in the order of appearance are as follows:

The Pedagogue-Kirk Osinach; Orestes-Malcolm Whatley; Pulades-Burton Henry; Electra-Jennie Lee Davis; Crysothemis-Ann Caldwell; Clymnestra-Barbara Cason and Aegisthes-Dan Adams.

The modern dance group, under the direction of Mrs. Joye Thompson, will take the part of the chorus, a standard of all ancient Greek tragedies. Jean McLean, Kay Lueders, Lucy Huff, Mary Jane Crutcher, Beth Etter, Erin Moody, Joanna Kingdig, Margaret Redden, and Ruth Kelley are the dancers. Joye Thompson will dance a solo.

It is necessary to know what happens before the play begins in order to understand fully the meanings that Sophocles has given "Electra".

King Agamemnon was murdered by his wife, Clytemnestra, and her lover, Aegisthes. Aegisthes took over the throne of the murdered man, and he and Clytemnestra proceeded to make life miserable for everyone. Orestes and Electra are the children of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra; Orestes has grown up in a foreign land.

"Electra" begins with the homecoming of Orestes, after the death of Agamemnon. He and Electra, by rights should have high titles in the kingdom: however, Aegisthes has reduced them to nearly nothing. They, naturally, are very bitter; and the entire play is concerned with their efforts to do away with Aegisthes and Clytemnestra.

This famous Greek tragedy promises to be excellently done by a fine cast. Tickets are 50 cents for students and 75 cents for adults.
