Board considers By-Law changes

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees has recommended that the college By-Laws be amended in order to eliminate inconsistencies, and establish clearer lines of authority. The proposal follows a report from a visiting committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS), which points out inconsistencies in the By-Laws, and recommends that they be cleared up.

Last spring the SACS visiting committee came to Southwestern for the purpose of evaluating the college in order to reaffirm its accreditation. The visiting committee expressed concern over an inconsistency found in the By-Laws regarding the Board of Trustees, relationships to the rest of the Southwestern community.

In one instance, the By-Laws state that the President shall "formulate and recommend to the Board policies, programs, and plans for the educational development of the college." Yet in another instance, "the faculty is charged with the responsibility for the organizations and implementations of the educational programs of the college." The visiting committee recommended that a clear line of authority and responsibility be established from the Board of Trustees, through the President, and then to the faculty. Since a response to this recommendation is required (as it is to all the recommendations the visiting committee made), the Committee on Board Direction and Leadership has recommended that the following italicized words to sections 1 and 2 of Article VIII of the By-Laws be added. "Section 1. Faculty. The faculty subject to the approval of the chief academic officer and the President shall be charged with the responsibility for the organization and implementation of the educational program of the college." "Section 2. Students. The power of admitting, passing, failing, disciplining, and suspending, expelling or dismissing for academic reasons a student of the college is delegated to the faculty subject to the approval of the chief academic officer and the President." This proposal will be voted on at the next Board meeting (Oct. 18, 19) unless the Board accepts the recommendation of the Communication Committee to extend the thirty day discussion period. A thirty day notice to the faculty is required when the Board proposes to adopt policies effecting the faculty.

However, President James H. Daughdrill, Jr., said the wording of the proposal may still need refining.

"I think it is subject to wrong interpretation," he said.

President Daughdrill explained that a professor had asked him if professors would have to check with the President each time they gave a grade to a student.

"I think some wording will probably be worked on that that will not be subject to that interpretation," he said.

Community Life lengthens formal Greek rush weekend

Rush has been lengthened slightly this year in order to provide more time for decision making. This action came in response to the Community Life Committee's (CLC) discussion last spring over the Greek rush system.

In addition, the faculty will consider at its October meeting a requirement that fraternities and sororities report to the committee annually in regard to their avoidance of racism, religious discrimination, and judgments based on appearance during rush.

In past years the committee required reports every three years; however, last year's review was a year late, which resulted in the student body perceiving it as a new

Faculty trustees resign

Stating that they are no longer able to effectively communicate faculty views to the Board of Trustees, Prof. Marshall Jones, and Prof. Kenneth Williams resigned as faculty representatives to the Board on Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Earlier in the week Prof. Donald Tucker resigned as faculty member of the Board's special communication committee.

The resignations followed last week's Board actions culminating in the granting of a ten year contract to Pres. James H. Daughdrill, Jr.

Prof. Jones explained his resignation in the following statement to the Southwestern faculty.

"With regret I am herewith asking the Southwestern Faculty to accept my resignation as a Faculty Trustee. I feel that I cannot in the near future serve the College and the Faculty constructively in that position.

"During my tenure as a Faculty Trustee, the Chairman of the Board consistently and politely provided me ample opportunity to speak before the Board. Because I felt an inescapable obligation to apprise the Board of Faculty attitudes and positions, I made a special effort to keep in contact with a large number of Faculty members. To the limits of my ability, I attempted to communicate honestly and openly to the Board these opinions and positions. I did not shrink from difficult questions. (Also, a Faculty colleague and I recently took directly to officers of the Board a thorny problem that faced the College.) But I found that I was saying things that the Board did not want to hear. Subtle pressures were brought to bear (though I want to emphasize that no member of the Board ever threatened me, directly or indirectly). I have received a clear signal that the Board will not hear in the future anything coming from my mouth. It is for this reason that I withdraw.

"There are members of the Board whom I know well and for whom I have deep affection. There are others whom I do not know well, but whose gifts to Southwestern in time, money, and emotional energy seem to reflect a real concern for the College. In this statement there is no intention to malign the Board — only an intention to communicate to the Faculty openly and honestly my reasons for withdrawing.

"Southwestern is a good college and a strong college — it has been for a long time and it is right now. Here there are no closed questions, no unquestioned theories. This College stands for the unfettered search for truth and justice.

"I accepted a position at Southwestern 16 years ago, when any young mathematician was thought to be making a great mistake in joining the faculty of a liberal arts college. I do not regret it. My commitment to this College is deep and lasting. I intend to continue to serve Southwestern up to the limits of my ability. I will continue to encourage my faculty colleagues, students, board members, and all others who care about Southwestern to let the sun shine brightly on any and every issue and to strive mightily to help the Southwestern community to maintain its vitality of spirit and intellect."

M. Jones

Prof. Williams said he felt that he "could not adequately project the strong feelings the faculty has."

"I just feel the internal problems at Southwestern are great, and I feel I have not been able to express these to the Board," he said.

The only remaining faculty representative to the Board, Prof. Bernice White, said she does not intend to resign in the near future.

When asked about her effectiveness as a faculty representative, she replied that she had "no way of assessing that."

"I am not willing at this point to give up trying to convey to the Board faculty positions on matters that concerns us most," Prof. White said. "As a colleague whom I particularly respect observed, 'someone has to do it.' And I'm just stubborn enough to be willing to do it for the time being."

Prof. Tucker said that the Board decision to give Pres. Daughdrill a ten year contract influenced his decision to resign from the communication committee.

"The role I was performing on the committee involved criticizing the President. I was telling him what he had to do in order to re-establish relations with the faculty," he explained.

"The granting of the ten year contract said to me the Board did not want to hear any more criticism of the President," Prof. Tucker continued.

"I have other things to do than tell people things they don't want to hear," he said.

Prof. Tucker said that he had lacked enthusiasm for the committee from the beginning.

AAUP adopts resolution

The following resolution was adopted by the Southwestern At Memphis chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) on September 26, 1979.

WHEREAS

The Board of Trustees of Southwestern At Memphis has in recent weeks taken a variety of actions which reflect a blatant disregard for the proper role of the faculty in the governance of the college,

AND WHEREAS

The Board has awarded President Daughdrill a ten-year contract at a time when faculty confidence in his leadership has been deeply eroded, an action taken in a hastily called executive session from which faculty and student representatives were automatically excluded and at which only nineteen of thirty-six Board members were present,

AND WHEREAS

Members of the Board were apprised that serious charges of plagiarism might be brought against the president by responsible student leaders in connection with his "As I See It" column in the June issue of Southwestern Today, and since the Board failed to give a hearing to the students involved, their behavior demonstrates an unconscionable insensitivity to the principles of integrity and ethical behavior embodied in the Southwestern Honor System,

AND WHEREAS

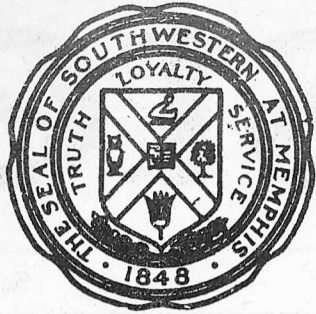

The Board violated the fundamental tenet of an academic community — the right of free inquiry in the search for truth — by declaring the question of plagiarism a closed issue, and by instructing the president to answer no further questions concerning this matter; subsequently, the Chairman of the Board, in a statement both cavalier and authoritarian, impugned the motives of anyone who sought to learn more about this issue (Cf. the comments of Robert D. McCallum in The Sou'wester, September 21, 1979).

AND WHEREAS

The President and the Executive Committee of the Board have recommended changes in the by-laws of the college which would give the President extensive power over every phase of the educational program, specifically making admissions standards and grading subject to his approval, and since this action was recommended by the President and Executive Committee without consulting the faculty or the office of the Dean,

BE IT HEREWITH RESOLVED THAT

The Southwestern Chapter of the American Association of University Professors finds the above stated actions consistent with a sequence of decisions by the Board and the President which reflect an utter contempt for the most elemental principles of fair and responsible governance, and herewith deprecates those actions as not in the best interest of Southwestern At Memphis.

At the crossroads

In order to examine the actions taken by the Board of Trustees last week, we must examine some of the ideals which this community values so highly.

By declaring the controversy over the "As I See It" column a closed issue and then granting President Daughdrill a ten year contract, the Board brushed aside all regard for the valued process of free inquiry and debate. We have been told in this case not to "search for truth." Furthermore, the Board's action makes it apparent that it will not listen to any criticism of the President, his actions, or policies.

Faced with such a situation students cannot help but believe that they cannot win. One then must ask if there is any point in fighting this losing battle. Wouldn't it be better for the college if we did not create an uproar and open new wounds?

The Board's decisions force us to believe that this is the reaction and attitude that they had hoped to create. These men and women who have given so much of themselves, their time, and their money to this college must honestly feel that it is in the best interest of Southwestern to persuade us to drop the issues.

Unfortunately, they are wrong. When we look inside ourselves to see if we have the will to fight a "hopeless cause," we discover ugly emotions — frustration, resentment, despair, cynicism. And herein lies the great danger to the community.

As we consider accepting the cynical attitude that nothing can be done, Southwestern begins to lose some of its special meaning.

The concepts of "truth, loyalty, honor, quest, service, search" begin to ring hollow without significance.

Perhaps we could merely follow these ideals in our academic endeavors and ignore the Board actions. However, it would seem that if these values are to have any meaning in one part of our life, we must pursue them in every part of our life. If we abandon these ideals as we respond to Board actions, we have abandoned these ideals in every part of our lives. Then we will have robbed Southwestern of its essence.

Thus, we have no choice but to continue to struggle, to demand that our questions be answered, and that our voices be heard. In doing so, regardless of whether the Board hears us, we will have won a victory. The idealism of Southwestern will still be alive.

Box 724.....

Dear editors,

This past spring the Honor Council spent many hours revising the Honor Code Handbook and evaluating various policies. The Council made several changes but invested more time in considering the refectory policy than any other issue. In order to eliminate confusion from the beginning, the Council wishes to clarify the responsibilities which students have toward this area of the Honor System.

Students are accountable for any form of lying, cheating, or stealing committed in the refectory. Therefore, removing silverware, storing food for future consumption, and attempting to eat a meal without paying for it are all Honor Code violations. A student found guilty of any refectory violation receives one warning, after which a second violation will result in a trial situation with possible penalties of probation, suspension, or expulsion.

Students should never remove glasses, trays, plates, salt shakers, coffee cups, silverware, or any other nondisposable items from the refectory without obtaining the permission of the refectory manager. Paper or styrofoam cups are frequently provided for students who wish to finish drinking beverages outside the refectory.

The handbook states that "the act of taking food from the refectory with the intent of storing it for later consumption" is considered an Honor Code violation. The assistant refectory manager has discussed this matter with the Honor Council and defined his expectations in more concrete terms: "There is a lot of difference between eating an apple on the way back to your room and filling a sack with apples and storing them on your bookshelf. There is also an obvious difference between taking an ice cream cone out of the refectory and taking a glass of ice cream and a refectory spoon."

Ideally, all students should consume each meal entirely inside the refectory. The refectory management realizes, however, that time and convenience occasionally dictate taking part of a meal "to go," and the manager trusts students not to remove food from the refectory unless they would have eaten it during the particular meal from which it was derived. Hopefully, students will respond to the trust and flexibility of the management by not abusing this concession. In the past, students who have taken advantage of it have cost the refectory thousands of dollars per annum. These students fail to realize the expense incurred by thoughtlessness is reflected in rising board costs and poorer quality food.

Students who eat meals not covered by the prepaid meal plans are responsible for paying the cashier before they are served. Whether a student intentionally deceives the cashier when questioned about his identity or meal plan, or simply fails to take the incentive of paying if the cashier is unaware that he should, eating a meal without paying for it is considered stealing and, depending on the circumstances, possibly lying.

Finally, while breaking in line is not an Honor Code violation per se, it is an incredibly gauche action which should be refrained from doing.

Father Yates, 73, dies

Father Gerald F. Yates, S.J., Distinguished Visiting Professor of International Studies at Southwestern, died on September 13. He passed away at a Jesuit retreat in New York after suffering a heart attack. He was 73 years old.

Father Yates was buried at Georgetown, where he had taught and had held the position of Dean Emeritus of the Graduate School. The university recently named its 7.5 million fieldhouse in his honor.

In a memorandum to the faculty and staff, Dr. Peyton Rhodes, acting dean of the college, observed that, "As a gentleman, Father Yates attracted many friends; as a scholar, he was respected by students and professors; as a Christian, he set an example of gentleness and concern for others. We shall miss his inspiring presence on our campus."

Dear editors,

Plagiarism! With all due regret I must accuse The Sou'wester editors of plagiarism. I feel that the editors of The Sou'wester owe a letter of apology to President Daughdrill for adapting the name of his column, "As I See It" and then blatantly using it as the title of their editorial, "As We See It," without a credit. Surely they realize that a paraphrase must be credited as well as a direct quotation.

Of course that is not enough. After they distribute letters of explanation to the students, the offense warrants the publication of a Sou'wester which has over 1/4 of the paper.

Regretfully yours,
Michael E. Matthews

P.S. Thank you for warning us in your editorial that we can expect "irate and radical" as your editorial position instead of rational and informed.

P.P.S. Whatever happened to football coverage (we have already played two games without even the report of a score) among other sports coverage?

Editors' reply

The Sou'wester apologizes for failing to credit the headline and a quotation in the "They found Cacciato" article. The quote following sentence, "But as Sarkin Aung Wan said to Paul Berlin:" is from the book Going After Cacciato, by Tim O'Brien.

The Publications Board, after full investigation and discussion has accepted this explanation as completely satisfactory; and considers the issue closed and instructs the editors to respond to any questions regarding this matter by simply reading this action of the Publications Board. ("spooof from know source" Sept. 12th action of the Board addressing the controversy surrounding the President's column in the June issue of Southwestern Today.)

"I don't think the problem this college has had over the last four years has been fundamentally a communication problem. Consequently, I didn't have any enthusiasm for the work of the committee," he said.

Prof. Carl Walters, the other faculty member of the communication committee, said he had been encouraged by a proposal brought before the committee Wednesday, and currently has no intention of resigning.

"The Wilderness Battle" is a hardwood ash and maple sculpture by Richard Graham which is part of an exhibition to be displayed at Southwestern.

Graham to exhibit wood collection

Master wood sculptor Richard Graham will exhibit a collection of his works at a public showing at Southwestern At Memphis during the month of October.

The Clough-Hanson Gallery on the campus will display twenty contemporary pieces by the Michigan artist. The show will run from October 1-31 and will be offered at no charge to the public between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., weekdays. Graham will demonstrate his work to interested persons at 2 p.m. on Monday, October 1.

From a block of wood, preferably a hardwood like ash, maple or walnut, Graham can create a piece of sculpture so visually pleasing to appeal to most art tastes. In fact, he says his best audience is a person with no formal art knowledge.

Graham, professor and chairman of the art department at Central Michigan University, sticks almost totally to the medium of wood. Yet, his works exhibit diversity and a rich sense of design and balance.

"If I could mold it (wood) with my hands like clay I'd like the flexibility but miss the toughness and weight that wood has...the toughness teases and challenges me, increasing the final rewards," Graham said.

Graham's impressionistic wood sculptures generally range four to six feet in height. Most follow a similar T-shaped pattern with a carved vertical column topped by a chiseled slab of wood.

Graham has shown his work in over 60 Juried National Group Exhibits since 1962. His many awards and prizes include a first prize at the Minnesota Museum of Art for sculpture, a first prize for a "Toys Designed by Artists" exhibit at the Arkansas Art Center in Little Rock and a first prize for sculpture from the Norfolk Arts Festival in 1970.

The exhibit at Southwestern was scheduled a year and a half ago, according to Lawrence "Lon" Anthony, chairman of Southwestern's art department and a well-known sculptor in his own right. Anthony coordinates art offerings of the gallery between November and May. Each month a different artist is featured.

Series for women begins Monday

Southwestern At Memphis will again offer its "Financial Planning Seminars for Women," an extremely popular series since its inception two years ago.

Matters of financial interest will be discussed in a down-to-earth, non-technical manner, according to Winton Smith, Jr., Legal Counsel for Southwestern and coordinator of the program. Classes will meet 10:00 to 11:30 a.m., Monday mornings starting October 1st, for four weeks, in Clough Hall on the Southwestern campus.

The series is aimed for women who want to improve their grasp of financial planning, wills and trusts, estate planning and charitable estate planning.

"There are a number of attractive alternatives to consider in developing estate plans," said Mr. Smith. Highly qualified speakers will address these options in an informal discussion and question/answer setting.

Herbert Rhea, Certified Public Accounting and president of SSM Corporation of Memphis, will kick off the series. Rounding out the speakers' roster will be Joe McDaniel Duncan, partner in the law firm of Burch, Porter and Johnson; Shepherd Tate, Memphis attorney and recent president of the American Bar Association; and Legal Counsel Winton Smith with Southwestern.

Admission is limited on a first come basis. A nominal registration fee of $15 will cover the entire series.

To register or for further information, contact Winton Smith, at 274-1800, ext. 342, or write him in care of Southwestern At Memphis, 2000 North Parkway, Memphis 38112.

Program seeks careers for women

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- The Tennessee Women's Career Convention, scheduled for October 26-27 at Municipal Auditorium in Nashville, Tennessee offers students an entirely new method of exploring careers, according to Gail Larsen, convention director.

Designed to match qualified women and employers, and to build shells for career success through a program of nearly 50 workshops and seminars, the convention is a first-of-its-kind event for the Southeast.

"Over 100 major businesses and organizations will participate," said Ms. Larsen, a personnel specialist who originated the idea for the convention and who organized the sponsoring company, Career Conventions, Inc. "These organizations will have exhibit space where their recruiters will meet with the several thousand women expected to attend the convention."

Participating companies include Xerox, Avco, Hospital Affiliates International, State of Tennessee, Alcoa, Northern Telecom, Ernst & Whinney, Merrill Lynch, Ashland Oil, Kimberly-Clark, Texas Instruments, South Central Bell, ITT-North, WSM/Opryland, and several major banks and insurance companies.

"Women should bring their resumes and get a head start on career placement," said Ms. Larsen. "Many of these companies are specifically looking for upcoming graduates. It's a great opportunity."

The two-day event will have nearly 50 workshops, seminars and career panels featuring some 100 recognized authorities as speakers. Nationally known individuals include Niki Scott, author of the syndicated column "Working Woman"; Phyllis Moehrle, Vice President of National Association of Manufacturers, and Barbara Proctor, President of Proctor & Gardner Advertising of Chicago.

The program is designed for three different audiences of women: those entering or re-entering the workforce, or women considering a career change; working women interested in improving skills for career advancement; and those who are ready for upper management, self-employment and/or political office.

"Our program will be especially helpful to senior women about to embark on a career. This audience will receive a definite edge toward early career definition and success," said Pam Howison, convention coordinator, and former associate director of career planning and placement at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville.

Career panels will focus on banking, accounting/finance, personnel/industrial relations, law, insurance, data processing, music, engineering, sales and marketing, public relations/advertising, health care and other fields.

Employers' exhibits will be open for the entirety of the two-day convention, with special time set aside for participants to visit booths between programs.

Pre-registration is $10 per day, with a reduced rate of $5 per day for students.

Soccer squad shows determination

by Joe Krakoviak

A strong defense and a gradual cohesion in teamwork are the early trademarks of the Southwestern soccer team. The squad and coach Sepp Huber are hoping to improve on last year's tie for first place in the College Athletic Conference.

A 0-1-2 record is an indication that, "team has not played together enough," according to mid-fielder Rob Montgomery. "You can see improvement with every game, though."

Training for the season began August 25, with the first game against Vanderbilt coming before school started. The two teams tied 1-1 on an artificial turf field, with which Southwestern was unfamiliar. Rodney Nash, a senior, scored the team's goal.

Their next game at Memphis State, a cross-town soccer rival, also ended in a 1-1 tie, the goal provided by senior Jimmy Onobun.

The squad's best showing came last weekend against the University of Alabama-Huntsville, a Division II team with a tradition of national ranking. Southwestern lost 1-0, but a fine effort by goalie Greg Volgas stopped the string of lopsided losses that they had suffered in the past against U.A.-H. "The Huntsville fans usually make fun of us, but they were applauding Greg's good saves," said teammate Dan Witherspoon.

The defense, anchored by Volgas, is the team's strongpoint at the present. Witherspoon works with Dedier Aur, Palles, and either Paul Mackin or Terry Bate (a freshman from England).

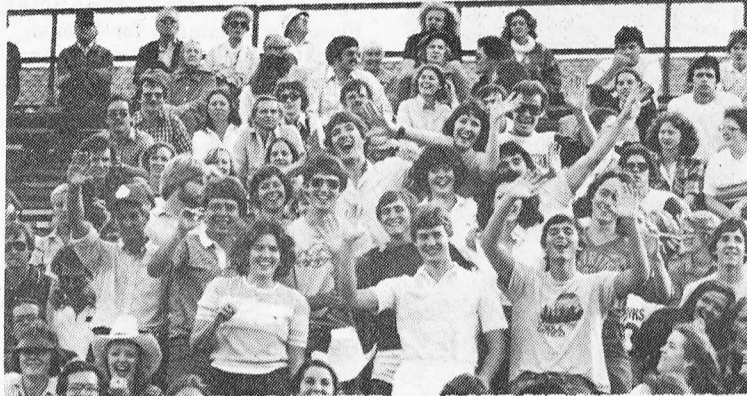

The mid-field consists of Montgomery, Tom Graves or Eddie Morris, and Jochen Leisenheimer, an import from Germany. The forwards are usually Nash, Onobun, and Ted Estes, a freshman from St. Louis.

The Southwestern soccer team left yesterday for the Port City Soccer Classic in Birmingham. They will play teams from the University of Alabama at Birmingham, Georgia State University, and The University of South Alabama.

Their first home game is with the University of the South, October 13, at 11:00 a.m.

Palles prowles powder room

by Joe Krakoviak

An incident after the soccer game against Vanderbilt provided some consolation for the tie. The squad stopped at a restaurant in Nashville, and, when several of the players filled the men's room, Ted Palles found himself in a serious dilemma.

Deciding that waiting would prove disastrous, he checked and found the women's room empty. He entered, planning only a momentary trespass, but soon found himself trapped in one of the cubicles by the continuing presence of the appropriate users of the facilities.

Finding once they returned to their vans that Palles was missing, the team sent another player to search the restaurant. The trip proving fruitless, Charlotte Thompson, a team manager, was sent to investigate.

She entered the women's room, noting two waitresses changing clothes there. Seeing the tell-tale shoes and pants of Palles below the door of one of the stalls, Thompson yelled "Palles!" in a moment of exasperation.

The weak "Yes?" was discerned by the two waitresses as being from a man's voice. The embarrassed male appeared from the stall and began an explanation, but the quick-thinking Thompson, realizing the implausibility of a justification, dragged the red-faced soccer player to the van and the howls of laughter from his teammates.

Lynxcats claw Bears

by Rick Cartwright

Good weather and winning football returned to Fargason Field Saturday as the Lynxcats gave Coach Troll his first intercollegiate win as head coach with a 21-14 victory over the Bears of Washington University.

SAM, previously 0-2 was in a "must win" situation after two defeats at the hands of Milsaps and Division IAA Davidson College.

The Lynx defense, still sore from hitting Davidson, shut down the Bears starting in the second quarter when senior defensive back Mark Doramus blocked and ran in a Washington punt to put SAM on the board late in the quarter. The defense, led by William Tycoliz's three interceptions, caused four fumbles and held the Bears to 230 yards total offense.

The SAM offense, sluggish in the first half, cranked up in the second to put 14 points on the board. Troll, made use of his talented quarterback Greg Peters and Terry Hampton, by going to the air to score in the third quarter with a 33 yard pass from Peters to stand out receiver Micky Mays, culminating a 56 yard drive. Another Peters to Mays connection in the fourth quarter gave the Lynx a 21-7 lead after the PAT by junior Wayne Hoge.

The Bears managed to score with 25 seconds remaining by capitalizing on an interception. However the onside kick failed and the SAM victory was assured.

The Lynx travel to Iowa to play Coe College this Saturday. This will be the second time these teams have met. Southwestern leads the series 1-0. The game will air later than usual due to time zone difference. Listen to WLYX for details.

Flagball games scheduled

The following is an explanation of the intramural flagball game fields.

Field 1 runs diagonally between the softball diamonds. Field 2 is the old soccer practice field just north of the softball diamonds. Neither of these is the old A-league field.

In addition, we have a third field that is exclusively for make-up games. It runs parallel to Jackson on the rise just north of the old A-league field. There is a calendar on the board in the refectory on which you may reserve the field for make-up games or rainouts. There are three equipment bags so you may play even when there are games on the two regular fields.

Rule 25 - If a team forfeits twice, they are eliminated from further competition and all their games will be struck from the schedule, including games already played, and any points accumulated by other teams in games against them will be nullified. (If the team captain knows that he will have difficulty fielding a team, it is a good plan to try to reschedule early. Our prime concern is to have every game played if possible.)

* Games on 9-26 on Field 2 may have a conflict with soccer team practice. Come there in any case and we will move from there to another place, if necessary. Someone from the intramural staff will be there to assist if it proves necessary to move.

Please contact us if you have any questions or problems. Jeff Cowell - 203 White; David Granoff - 204 Townsend; John Ratliff - Gym.
