AREN'T ALL MEN TOO HORRID; THEY'RE ALWAYS A DILEMMA

Men are what women marry. They have two feet, two hands, and sometimes two wives, but never more than one collar or one idea at a time. Like Turkish cigarettes, men are all made of the same materials, the only difference is that some are better disguised than others.

Generally speaking, they may be divided into three classes: Husbands, Bachelors, and Widowers. An eligible bachelor is a man of obstinacy entirely surrounded by suspicion. Husbands are of three varieties: prizes, surprises, and consolation prizes.

Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest plastic arts known to civilization. It requires science, sculpture and common sense; faith, hope and charity—especially charity.

It is a psychological marvel that a soft, fluffy, tender violet scented, sweet thing like a woman should enjoy kissing a big, awkward stubby-chinned, tobacco and bay-rum scented thing like a man.

If you flatter a man it frightens him to death, and if you don't you bore him to death. If you permit him to make love to you, he gets tired of you in the end, and if you don't he gets tired in the beginning.

If you believe in everything you soon cease to interest him, and if you argue with him in everything, you soon cease to charm him. If you believe all he tells you, he thinks you are a fool, and if you don't he thinks you a cynic.

If you wear gay colors and rouge and a startling hat, he hesitates to take you out, and if you wear a little brown toque and a tailor-made suit, he takes you out and stares all evening at a woman in gay colors, rouge, and a startling hat.

If you join him in his gaities and approve him in his smoking, he swears you are driving him to the devil and if you don't approve of smoking and urge him to give up his gaities, he vows you are driving him to the devil. If you are the clinging vine type, he doubts whether you have a brain, and if you are a modern, advanced and independent woman, he doubts whether you have a heart. If you are silly, he longs for a bright mate, and if you are brilliant and intellectual, he longs for a playmate. If you are popular with other men he is jealous and if you are not, he hesitates to marry a wall flower.

That settles that!
—The Alabamian.

The Sou'wester, on behalf of the staff, the student body, and the faculty, wishes to extend its sympathy to Carol Krausnick on the loss of her mother.

DEBATERS LEAVE ON TOUR SUNDAY

Tryouts To Be Held Tonight In Hardie

Southwestern's debating team will take to the road Sunday morning on an extended tour through Alabama and Tennessee, meeting Birmingham-Southern, Alabama College for Women, Chattanooga, Vanderbilt, Sewanee, and Union before returning home. The team will travel by automobile.

Tryouts for the team will be held tonight in Hardie Auditorium at 8:00 P. M. The subject for discussion will be the Pi Kappa Delta debate question: Resolved, That Congress Should be Empowered to Fix Minimum Wages and Maximum Hours for Industry. Upholding the affirmative side will be Herbert Bingham, Thomas McLemore, and Norman Shapiro. The negative will be defended by John Farley, Buddy Chiappella, Bright Horton, Steve Frazier, and John Summerfield. Professors D. M. Amacker, Ogden Baine and F. E. C. Caspari will judge the debate.

The student body and friends are cordially invited to witness the tryouts.

Home debates for the rest of the season will be announced next week.

CRITIC FINDS PLAY WORTHY OF PRAISE

By NORMAN SHAPIRO
The Southwestern Players demonstrated clearly enough last Tuesday and Wednesday nights that, given the proper odds, they could produce a thoroughly adequate and enjoyable performance. They play was an adaptation by Christopher Morley of a melodrama of the past half century, "The Blue and the Gray, or War Is Hell."

The evening began inauspiciously enough, with a male quartet composed of Joe Bell, Alec Cortner, Chester Carden and John Woolsey, which sang not at all well and acted much worse. Stage fright is an evil hard to conquer, of course, but it has no place in a college production. This was one number which could just as well have been omitted.

However, the play itself more than made up for the unfortunate opening. To name the actors who played well would be to repeat the program. Randall MacInnes and Marion Keisker adequately overplayed the romantic leads, with Steve Frazier and his heart interest opposing well at every turn. The quick-changing Sam Mays and Henry Mobley showed much versatility, and Paul Freeman, as Ben, the negro, Thomas McLemore as General Corse and the Commandant, and Herbert Bingham, also playing a dual military role, supported the principals in an extremely convincing style.

The outstanding bit of acting was performed by Frank Campbell as the bellicose General Sherman. His clowning, aided by a cigar and the clicking telegraph key, was superb. His voice inflections were pleasing and well-chosen, and a thorough feeling for the part made him undoubtedly the outstanding actor in the play.

Closely pressing Campbell for individual honors was the villain, Steve Frazier. Frazier's exaggerated southern accent and even his mustache fitted excellently with the conventionalized part he was forced to play. He exhibited an ability to transmit the Wallace is a sophomore transfer from the University of Missouri.

These two couples rank fifth and sixth respectively according to the number of votes each received in the balloting. The announcing of the seventh couple was delayed because of the tie between Rose Lynn Barnard and Martha Moore for this place in the 1937 Court. The winner of the run-off held yesterday morning in chapel will be announced along with her escort and the fourth couple in the next edition of this paper.

Letitia Montgomery, a sophomore, is a member of Chi Omega sorority, a member of the 1936 Carnival Court, and was awarded a place in the Beauty Section of the Senior Year Book last year.

THE ELECTION SITUATION

The entire situation which has arisen out of the April Fool Carnival election was uncalled for and rather ridiculous. We admit that the Election Commission was well within its rights as set forth in its constitution in "throwing out" the votes cast last week. The constitution says that no influence shall be brought to bear on the students while they are at the polls, and if the poster distributed last week does not come under that category we do not think that anything is ever liable to do so. But, what we want to know is why such a clause as this should be written into their constitution. As we understand it, the purpose of the Election Commission is to insure a fair voting and to keep down "combines," not to wipe out campus politics. Do nominations and campaign speeches mean unfair practices? Is it impossible for us to have a fair election on the Southwestern campus and still have our political parties or at least our political speeches? We certainly do not think so.

We are not attempting to defend the distributors of last week's poster, nor are we advocating a return to the old combine system under which many fraternity and sorority members were compelled to vote for a candidate, regardless of personal opinion, just because he or she was on the combine ticket; but, we do feel, and strongly, that nominations, speeches and healthy, vigorous campaigning would create an enormous amount of interest beyond that now evidenced in the results of an election. An increase in interest would bring an increase in the number of votes cast and, therefore, a corresponding increase in the fairness of the election.

We understand that the Commission has appointed a committee to revise its constitution. If this is true, then we are glad that the members have at last decided to make some changes that have been needed for quite some time, and we congratulate them upon taking this step. We would like to suggest that while they are working upon this revision the committee does a thorough and efficient job of it. Among other things, we would like for them to consider the composition of the Committee—that is, the way in which its members are chosen. This body, composed of one representative from each fraternity and sorority on the campus and one from both the non-fraternity and non-sorority groups, elects its own members. They are even more autocratic than is the Honor Council, which at least allows other nominations in its elections. Wouldn't it be more feasible to allow each of the groups represented to select two or three candidates and have the Commission choose its members from those selected? The groups would then be sure that they were being adequately represented as a group, and that the person chosen would not be following his own personal interests and desires in any controversy which might arise.

There are several other suggestions which we would like to make, but we much prefer that the Election Commission work out its own salvation and correct its own faults. Needless to say, we are waiting expectantly and hopefully for the time when the revisions will be ready for adoption.

Sidelights

Heard and read here and there: That frosh who went to a stag party because he had no doe. . . . Probably the finest example of sweet and undying constancy in a romance is prevalent in the Charlie Taylor-Charlie Taylor affair. . . . I made that prof eat his words and he almost died with the stomach ache. . . .

The other day one of the professors asked a wit of the freshman class why some critic had called Edgar Allan Poe "the jingle poet." Unhesitatingly the answer came back, "Well, that was the guy who wrote 'Bells' and 'Annabell Lee,' wasn't it?"

I received my first bit of fan mail the other day. . . . This column began with the idea that someone would want to contribute. . . . A great deal too much was taken for granted. . . . Well, a young lady came to my rescue. . . . Won't you please for the sake of a few girl-friends print this poem in your column? . . . I never thought that I would stoop to allow such trash to enter my column, but she says that surely I love good poetry. . . . Yes, I enjoyed your poem, but think of Dr. Monk and the English department, not to mention all those poor corpses of great poets when they start squirming in their graves. . . .

The Perfect Bore

He's the guy full of good advice. By all girls he feels it's sought. But 'tis a bushel of words And not a pint of thought.

He's so restful, too. No one else can say a word. Should you say something? Well, he scarcely heard.

To be brazen is to have technique. That is how he feels. Red lights in women's eyes Are 'go's' to his sex-appeals.

He can never take a hint. When one tells him to be gone, He says to himself, "She's leading me on."

He's usually a parlor-sitter. "Well, it's this way, Honey, If I spend my time on you Should I also spend my money?"

When he goes to church It's to worship himself. He takes a girl to help him. To all else he's deaf.

He's indifferent as Gattis, As handsome as Neal. Those qualities, he thinks, Give him sex appeal.

We should give him a hand. Did he need it we would. But such a guy doesn't. HE KNOWS THAT HE'S GOOD!

Campus politics at the University of Illinois went "professional" recently when seniors used a voting machine to count ballots in the election of class officers.

POTTS RECEIVES ADVERTISING;
CONSTITUTION GETS PANNING

By J. P. QUANTHY

Pots and pans have always been synonymous we believe; so it's only natural that a likable lass named Ann Potts should team up with Richard Mays whose pan packs a mighty brain.

The amazing Mr. Mays saw the possibilities of the John Ricker unpatented idea (reference, the Election Commission) of the "little pink slips fame." Only Mr. Mays, who is now known as Potts' stooge," selected slips of yellow. He thinks there will be no "slips" as in the Ricker job as the Election Commission, conqueror of Ricker, will not control the election of these particular beauties.

On the yellow slips was the name ANN POTTS in big letters. Underneath were sayings of freshmen, sophs, juniors and seniors and the whole thing was brought to a catchy finish with: "P. S. Don't forget those big brown eyes and that golden hair—it's natchul too!" The dialect was probably used because a little Negro boy, adequately dressed, passed out the slips.

"How did you happen to pick Miss Potts when there were 16 other beauties," I asked Mays in order to get a statement.

"I always pick the winning horse; anyway, I think she's the best looking in the bunch," he said.

Then: "Say, what do you know about this?" he demanded. "Since you're so smart I may skip the whole idea." (So, if you are reading this story you know that he didn't skip it.)

While we were on the subject we decided that the "Ricker idea" simply brought to light various discrepancies—perhaps I should say short-comings—in the Election Commission constitution. The Commission itself has not been at fault except that it has been lax. The constitution, we believe, requires a thorough going over. "We are doing something about it," says Alfred Page, president of the Commission. But I know that these same words have been used before by various members and by Page himself.

Mays and I discussed three measures which the students in general seem to favor and which should be considered by the Commission if it wishes to be of service. First, we say that there should be fairer, at least more democratic election of representatives. Each organization should be allowed to elect two, preferably three, people from among whom would be selected one member and an alternate.

In the next place, elections should be held in a place other than the chapel. Since people sit so close together we contend that there is not only influencing of voters, but also no privacy. Finally, we say that elections should be brought out in the open so that any person could speak for or nominate any candidate. Any person should have the right to voice his opinions concerning any candidate.

The Broadcast

BY SHAPIRO

Wednesday the Southwestern Players completed the Macbeth "cycle", giving the second half of the drama commenced Feb. 24. The cast which so adequately presented the first half of the play last week returned to finish in the same fine style in which they began. They were augmented by Polly Jane Cohen, who played the chief witch and Lady Macbeth's serving maid more than adequately. Randall MacInnes as Macbeth, Marion Keisker as Lady Macbeth, Thomas McLemore as MacDuff, John Farley as Malcolm, and Sam Mays as a host of lords and retainers in turn formed an excellently-rounded cast. Particularly outstanding were the sleep-walking scene, with Miss Keisker, and the witches' scene on the heath.

Men are more curious than women, insist coeds in the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority of Northwestern University. Here's how they proved it:

They painted a barrel, labelled it "DANGER", and placed it on the campus. For one hour hidden Zetas kept tab, counting 106 men and 24 women who stepped off the sidewalk to peer inside.

Which, protest the males, proves nothing except that 106 men and 24 women passed the barrel during the test-hour.

JAMES SYKES GIVES RECITAL

Colorado College Professor Visits Campus

Mr. James Sykes, M.A., appeared as guest artist in a piano recital presented by Southwestern last night in Hardie Auditorium. The program was composed of four of the romantic works of Robert Schumann.

The performance opened with "Butterflies"—Opus 2. The name suggests a simple, lilting melody, but it is, in reality, a very difficult and complex composition. Next, Mr. Sykes offered "Fantasy in C Major" and "Songs of the Morning." The program was brought to a close by the "Symphonic Studies," which is perhaps Schumann's greatest work. Mr. Sykes is an accomplished and intelligent musician, and his rendition of the four numbers was singularly enjoyable.

At present the Director of Music at Colorado College, Colorado Springs, Mr. Sykes has appeared in recitals on the east and west coasts and in Europe, giving premiere performances of many works. He has also done composing in classes of Paul Boepple, Arnold Schoenberg, and others. Mr. Sykes is a graduate of Princeton University, and studied theory, composition, and eurhythmics at the Austro-American International Conservatory at Mondsee, Austria. Later, he took his master's degree at the Eastman School, in Rochester, New York, in general history.

Mr. Sykes will be on the campus today and tomorrow, attending music and history classes. He will be available at any time and will be happy to talk to any who are interested in discussing music, history, Princeton, or any of the many subjects in which he is versed.

BIOLOGY PROVES PRACTICAL STUDY

"When people trace back their ancestry, it is the customary thing to leave out the horse thieves and cattle rustlers," said one of the greatest humorists of this age—Will Rogers.

Dr. Clinton L. (?) Baker, while lecturing on the tracing of ancestors, said that only a few were found. "But," the professor continued, "if our ancestors were traced back to the time of Charlemagne, one would find that there were not enough people living for each one of us to have our own set of ancestors. Therefore, each person living today is probably related to everyone else."

Leonard Ellis placed his head in his hands in deep meditation. Turning to Fred Bronson, he begged, "Cousin, can you spare a dime?"

Intramural News

The Intramural Board went into conference last Tuesday afternoon and emerged to report that several radical changes have been instituted.

1. The Board is to act in an advisory capacity instead of a legislative one.

2. Coach Hug is to be in complete charge of the intramural program, assisted by the student director and the various members of the board. However, the others will have no force in the determination of the policy of the association.

3. The "coach's list" rule barring all varsity candidates will not be repealed.

4. The schedule for the rest of the year was drawn up and approved. The schedule follows:

- March 8—Ping-pong.
March 10—Tug-of-war.
March 11—Horseshoes.
March 15—Boxing and wrestling.
March 30—Tennis and golf.
April 5—Debating.
April 12—Softball.
May 10—Track.

The tournaments will be run off according to official rules. Boxers and wrestlers will be compelled to weigh in the day of the matches.

"RECRUITING" HAS LOWERED RATING

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—If colleges and universities continue to "recruit" students and don't restore their high standards for selective admission, they will impair seriously the value of academic degrees.

At least that is the opinion of Frank H. Bowles, acting director of admissions at Columbia University.

Reductions in enrollment and decreases in income from endowment funds and other outside sources, caused by the depression, drove colleges to seek increased enrollment at the expense of educational standards, Mr. Bowles claimed.

Carole Lombard says:

"Advised by my singing coach, I changed to Luckies"

"In my new picture 'Swing High, Swing Low' I sing a song for the first time since I have been on the screen. To do this, I spent months taking singing lessons. And with this added strain, my throat was not in good shape. My singing coach suggested that when choosing cigarettes, I select a light smoke. And so I changed to Luckies. Since then I've found that a light smoke and my throat get along together just fine."

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Lombard verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. CHOCTAWS BEAT LYNX IN FINALS

Smith, Neal Get Places On All-Conference Team

Before a thousand excited spectators Saturday night the Mississippi College quintet defeated the Southwestern Lynx by a score of 43 to 35. Herman Newsome, enjoying one of his "hot-test" nights, compiled a total of 19 points. The Choctaws fed him the ball and watched him come through. Clois Neal led the Lynx with a remarkable exhibition of shots from outside the 30 foot line, making a total of 6 field goals (12 points) plus an added point for a foul.

Suffering a reversal of form, Gaylon Smith watched most of his shots that are usually good hit the rim of the basket and drop into the hands of the Choctaws. At that he got 9 points.

The Lynx started in their usual fashion by getting a lead 11 to 5, and then watched their opponents pull even. Starting another scoring spree they again took the lead 19 to 13 only to see it eaten away by the sharp shooting Newsome who made 4 points when it hurt Southwestern most.

At the half Mississippi was leading 23 to 21. After the half the Lynx made their last rally by again leading 27 to 25. At this stage with 11 minutes of play remaining their shots got wild and the Choctaws were soon in command of the situation. The final score was 43 to 35.

Despite this setback Southwestern was compensated in gaining two places on the All-Conference team. Gaylon Smith whose remarkable shots have been largely responsible for the success of the team was selected as a forward by a unanimous choice. Clois Neal whose floor work has caused considerable comment from those who recognize excellence was placed as a guard.

Often an unfortunate experience on a by-path is just what is needed to keep us on the main road.

GRID MEN GO INTO 3RD WEEK

New Tackle Dummy Greeted Players

A shiny new tackle dummy greeted Southwestern's gridmen as the third week of spring training got under way. Coach Propst intends to stress blocking and tackling from now on. The Lynx thus far have appeared rather sloppy in both departments.

Though last week's inclement weather interfered with the program, the Lynx are fast rounding into form. Injuries sustained last week by Welborn Bragg, big tackle, and Rodney Clark, hard hitting guard, may keep these two linemen out of action until fall. The rest of the squad is in good condition though J. P. Cavendar is nursing an ailing hand.

With Clois Neal and Gaylon Smith back in harness, now that basketball has run its course, Monday's scrimmage looked good. Even with the brace on his left knee Smith did a neat bit of pigskin toting. Neal did some nice blocking and got away for some good gains. The running attack seemed greatly improved.

But the passing attack is not improving so rapidly. Thus far "Kite" Morton's aim has been rather bad. He either snap-shoots the ball before the receiver is ready or he overthrows the receiver. As soon as "Kite" gets back into his real passing shape the Lynx air attack should go to town in a big way.

Last week found Oney Ellis giving a surprising exhibition of line play. Charles Lee, another tackle, is shaping up nicely, too. Around the guards Ed French, Arnold Hebert, and Humko Lamb are really "bulling" it. Harry Morris and George Humphrey are handling center well enough, while Captain George Jennings and Co-Captain Clay Nickells are doing some neat quarter-backing. And Rex Wilson, that boy from Arkansas, is packing the football in big-league style.

Heartiest congratulations to that very lucky Chi Omega and the lucky S. A. E. who was on the campus last year. Best wishes. Have you heard about Ricker's latest trick? He's aspiring to become a big-time politician—Looks as if Rick will be his second—Derrick and his little A. O. Pi's should be proficient at the game by now. Just one big happy family.

Two certain boys on this campus must be having fun with their own little private contest. How do you manage it?—Mary Churchill tried a "Bender" Sunday afternoon, same place, same idea, less in number. Can't you do better than five?

Clois Neal, Hank Walker, and Dunlap Cannon had a time in Jackson, and one of the number even made a conquest. A certain blue-eyed good-looking blond wrote all the way up here to find out the name of that tall, curly-headed brunette. Want the address?

It's getting to be a habit around here. Last week, it was played by Hilton's (ex?). This week, it's Marie. Our favorite cheerleader escorted her to Vespers. She had to study at eight. Home on time to two deep? subjects. He studied psychology, and learned a lot.

TEXAS STUDENTS GET "PIPE" EXAM

What University of Texas students thought was going to be a "pipe" examination turned out to be a viciously circling boomerang.

"Fellows," announced the instructor, "I'm just as tired of these darn exams as you are, so I've decided to give you an easy one today. Just one question, in fact."

Everybody in the class did a series of simple mathematical calculations and arrived at the sum of 100 for the answer.

"Just a minute," said the instructor, "I forgot something. Recall the number of times you were absent from this class, multiply that by two and subtract it from the answer on the problem."

The "A" grades that students had visioned slid down the alphabetical scale and even a few "Fs" blemished the instructor's record book.

"In most cases women cannot forget that they are women. They act just like prima donnas." Women just don't make good newspapermen, thinks the University of Michigan's journalism Prof. John L. Brumm.

Humming right along

All over the country, you hear more people mention the refreshing mildness and the pleasing taste and aroma of Chesterfield cigarettes.

You hear somebody compliment Chesterfields at a party. Another time, the grocer tells you it's a darn good cigarette. Or you see a group of men on a street corner, most of 'em smoking Chesterfields.

Because they have what smokers like, Chesterfields are humming right along...

They Satisfy
