

THE PAUL BARRET, JR. LIBRARY

THE BARRET LECTURE SERIES

PRESENTS

ANTHONY GRAFTON

“The Library in Western Culture:
From Alexandria to Google”

OCTOBER 6, 2005, 7:30 P.M.

MCCALLUM BALLROOM

BRYAN CAMPUS LIFE CENTER

RHODES COLLEGE

Dr. Anthony Grafton, Professor of History at Princeton University, is one of the most accomplished scholars of Renaissance. He has taught on the history of books and readers and on the art, magic, and science in Renaissance Europe. He has also authored The Footnote: A Curious History and Bring Out Your Dead: The Past as Revelation.

THE BARRET LECTURE SERIES commemorates the opening of the Paul Barret, Jr. Library with a year-long, celebratory schedule of events. Each event will feature a speaker whose focus represents a step in the progression from early stages in the history of literacy to the future of publication and scholarship, placing that focus in the context of the significance of opening a new library.

Free and open to the public

Rhodes College

—1848—

2000 NORTH PARKWAY