COURSE INFORMATION AND REQUIREMENTS

Course Description, Purpose, and Method:

Religious Studies 101 is designed as the introductory course in the foundational “Life: Then and Now” sequence. As such, it has several aims. First, it introduces scholars to the academic study of the Bible as a central and influential sacred text for the West. Such a study is deliberately and necessarily different from the sectarian, denomination, devotional or confessional approach offered by synagogues, churches, “Bible” colleges or divinity schools, although the interpretation of the Bible can never be divorced from its meanings in religious contexts. Second, the course introduces scholars to the contexts – historical, literary, and cultural, as well as religious – in which the various texts of the Bible arose, were written, transmitted and interpreted. Third, it introduces the study of the idea of a scriptural “canon,” and the processes by which the Jewish and later the Christian canons were developed and eventually “closed.” Fourth, the course introduces scholars to hermeneutics, the method of biblical interpretation within various cultural contexts, including those of the present. Finally, it introduces scholars to major questions and problems of the relationship between the two great “religions of the Bible,” Judaism and Christianity. The overall organizing principle of RS 101 is how the relationship between God and a people is portrayed and understood in the Jewish and Christian Scriptures and by those responsible for their composition and preservation.

No prior knowledge of the Bible, especially as a subject of academic study, is presumed. The class will consist of several types of learning and instruction: information-giving (lectures, background reading); intensive and reflective reading and study of the primary texts assigned; critical response to, reflection on, and discussion of the ideas contained and questions raised in both primary and secondary texts; and testing of the knowledge gained.

Textbooks for Course (Required):

* Note: The Augmented edition has been ordered for this course. If, by chance, you have the 3d ed. Of the NOAB, that will probably be sufficient, but it must be the 3rd edition of the New Oxford Annotated Bible. If you have another Bible for your personal reading, you cannot use it for class.

Course Requirements:

The most important requirement of the course is active involvement, by which I mean reading the assignments and interacting with them critically in class discussion and in written work. Please remember that no discussion or argument can be fruitful unless it is well-informed. In addition to critical response papers and a longer paper that analyzes some topic relevant to the Bible, the written work will consist of the submission of one 4 X 6 notecard for each day’s assigned reading (not for each individual reading assigned for that day), focusing on one of the following questions: 1) What was most intriguing to me about this reading/tradition/practice? (May be several items); 2) What was the most difficult to understand, puzzling or shocking about this reading for me? These cards will serve as “prompts” for class discussion and be collected at the end of each class session. Replies will be sent via e-mail. Course requirements and their percentages are as follows:

1. Attendance and active participation, including submission of the note cards. (15%)
2. 2 in-class tests, each worth 15%, for a total of 30% of the final grade.
3. 2 “critical reflection” papers of one to two pages on the reading from Cox and Scholz (you may choose individual readings, chapters, or the overall Scholz book), for a total of 15% of the final grade.
4. 1 three to four page critical paper on a topic to be assigned, completed according to stated guidelines, for 20% of the final grade.
5. 1 final examination, 20% of the final grade.
ALL TESTS AND PAPERS ARE DUE ON THE DATES NOTED; THERE ARE NO EXCEPTIONS. ALL REQUIREMENTS MUST BE FULFILLED IN ORDER TO PASS THE COURSE.

Determination of Final Grades:
Percentages are noted as above. The range of grades is as follows;

A (93-100); A- (90-92); B+ (87-89); B (83-86); B- (80-82); C+ (77-79); C (73-76); C- (70-72); D+ (67-69); D (63-66); D- (60-62); F (below 60). D- is the minimum passing grade.

Please note: Grades are not the result of a negotiation between you and me. A grade will be re-examined only if there is substantial evidence that it has been wrongly calculated. The burden of proof is on you. Scholars are not “given” grades by me; they earn them.
