

Rhodes at a Glance

The College & Campus

One of America's premier liberal arts and sciences colleges, Rhodes is located in Memphis, Tennessee and is affiliated with the Presbyterian Church. Though quietly nestled in an attractive residential neighborhood, the Rhodes campus is just minutes from downtown Memphis. Its 100 wooded acres are home to 46 Gothic stone buildings, 13 of which are listed on the National Register of Historic Places. A beautiful campus in close proximity to a thriving, metropolitan center creates an ideal learning environment for students.

The Students

More than 1,700 students, representing 46 states and 15 countries attend Rhodes. Seventy-three percent of students live on campus.

Academics

Rhodes offers 24 departmental majors, 8 interdisciplinary majors and 31 minors. Through partnerships with other universities, Rhodes also offers dual-degree programs in engineering, education, and nursing. Any student whose interests and career goals do not fit neatly into one of these categories has the opportunity to build an individual major. Students work with a faculty advisor all four years and declare a major by the end of their sophomore year.

The Faculty

Ninety-seven percent of our full-time faculty hold the Ph.D. or other terminal degree in their discipline.

Course Schedule

Classes meet for 50 minutes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday or 75 minutes on Tuesday and Thursday. Students take four courses per semester and earn four credits per course. Our liberal arts and sciences curriculum is based on 12 foundation requirements, which can be found in our catalog.

Class Size

Rhodes has an average class size of 13 students and a student-to-faculty ratio of 10:1.

Graduate School Placement Rates

The acceptance rate of Rhodes graduates into business, law, and divinity schools is over ninety-five percent, and for medical school it is nearly twice the national average.

Student Government

Rhodes Student Government:

Student-elected members represent the needs and concerns of the student body to the faculty and administration.

The Honor Council:

Student-elected representatives uphold the Honor Code and rule on violations of the Code.

The Social Regulations Council:

Student-elected representatives investigate social offenses and enforce regulations pertaining to social and moral conduct.

Rhodes Activities Board:

Produces a wide variety of campus events to unite the campus and promote responsible social activity.

Community Service

A variety of programs provide students with service opportunities through dozens of campus- and community-based organizations. Projects include tutoring children, working with the elderly, health care, hunger and homelessness services, a student-run soup kitchen, community organizing, Habitat for Humanity, and alternative Spring Break trips to Costa Rica. Eighty percent of students participate in community service during their years at Rhodes.

Campus Publications

The LYNX: Rhodes' yearbook

The Sou'Wester: Rhodes' weekly student newspaper

The Southwestern Review: Rhodes' annual literary magazine

Fine Arts

Visual Art: Activities include visiting lecturers and artists as well as rotating exhibitions in the Clough-Hanson Gallery.

Theatre: The McCoy Theatre produces four "main stage" productions a year, (usually including one musical) in addition to student produced projects and original play readings.

Music: Opportunities include the Rhodes Singers, Woolsocks (men's a cappella group), Lipstick On Your Collar (women's a cappella group), Rhodes MasterSingers Chorale, the Rhodes College Orchestra and instrumental ensembles.
